INTERESTING EXTRACTS. The Harpers & Bro's have in press, and will publish in a few days, the fifth volume of Macaulay's splendid History of England. It was prepared from his revised manuscripts by his sister, Lady Trevelyan, and is as complete in nearly all respects as if he had lived to read the proof-sheets. It brings the narrative down, with a single break, to the death of the great hero of the author and the times, William the Third. The following interesting extracts are taken from the work:

CAPTAIN KIDD, THE PIRATE.

Some years before, while the war was still raging, there had been loud complaints in the city that even privateers of St. Malo's and Dunking course leaves of St.

Dunkirk caused less molestation to tri than another class of maranders. I English navy was fully employed in the Chan-nel, in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranea. The Indian Ocean, meanwhile, swarmed with ful stories were told. Many of these men, it was said, came from our North American colonies, and carried back to those colonies the spoils gained by crime. Adventurers who durat not show themselves in the Thames found a ready market for their ill-gotten spices and stuffs at New York. Even the Puritans of New England, who in sanctimonious austerity surpassed even their brethren of Scotland, were accused of conniving at the wickedness which enabled them to enjoy abundantly and cheanly the produce niving at the wickedness which enabled them to enjoy abundantly and cheaply the produce of Indian looms and Chinese tea plantations. In 1695 Richard Coote, Earl of Bellamont, an Irish peer who sat in the English House of Commons, was appointed Governor of New York and Massachusetts. He was a man of a mineral leafurer of the same man of eminently fair character, upright, courageous and independent. Though a decided whig, he had distinguished himself by bringing before the Parliament at Westby bringing before the Parliament at W minster some tyraunical acts done by at Dublin, and particularly the execution it is not rather to be called the murder Gafney. Before Bellamont sailed America. William apoke strongly to about the freebooting which was the grace of the colonies. "I send you, lord, to New York," he said, "because beneat and integrald honest and intrepid man is wanted to these abuses down, and because I believe to be such a man." Beliamont exerted self to justify the high opinion which king had formed of him. It was soon kind at New York that the Governor who had at New York that the Governor who had just arrived from England, was bent on the suppression of piracy and some colonists in whom he placed great confidence suggested to him what they may perhaps have thought the best mode of attaining that object.

There was then in the settlement a veteran mariner named William Kidd. He had passed most of his life on the waves, had distinguished himself by his seamanship, had had opportunities of showing his valor in action with the French, and had retired on a competence. No man knew the Eastern Seas better. He was perfectly acquainted with all the haunts of the piraces who prowled between the Cape of Good Hope and the Straits of Malacca; and he would undertake, if he were intrusted with a single ship of thirty or forty guns, to clear the Indian Ocean of the whole race. The brigantines of the rovers were numerous, no doubt, but none of them were large; one man-of-war, which in the mariner named William Kidd. He had p were numerous, no doubt, but none of them were large; one man-of-war, which in the royal navy would hardly rank as a fourth rate, would easily deal with them all in succession, and the lawful spoils of the enemies of mankind would much more than defray the charges of the expedition. Bellamont was charmed with this plan, and recommended it to the king. The king referred it to the Admiralty. The Admiralty raised difficulties, such as are perpetually raised by public boards when any deviation, whether for the better or for the worse, from the established better or for the worse, from the estab course of proceeding is proposed. I occurred to Bellamont that his fa scheme might be carried into ef scheme might be carried into effect with any cost to the state. The press for sailors to man the royal was at that time so hot that Kidd coul obtain his full complement of hands in Thames. He crossed the Atlantic, New York, and there found volunteers in abundance. At length, in February, 1697, he sailed from the Hudson with a crew of more than a hundred and fifty men, and in July reached the coast of Madagascar.

It is possible that Kidd may at first have meant to act in accordance with his instructions. But on the subject of piracy he held the notions which were then common in the North American colonies, and most of his crew were of the same mind. He found himself in a sea which was constantly traversed by rich and defenceless merchant ships, and he had to determine whether he would plunder those ships or protect them. The gain which might be made by plundering them was der those ships or protect them. The Adventure Galley took such quantities of cotton and silk. sugar and coffee, cinnamon and pepper, very foremast-men received from a hundred to two hundred pounds each, and that the captain's share of the spoils would have enabled him to live at home as an opulent gentleman. With the rapacity, Kidd had the cruelty of his odious calling. He burned houses, he massacred peasantry. His outlasses in order to extort information about their concealed hoards. Eastern Seas to England. But in August, 1698, it was known in England that the Adventure Galley, from which so much had been hoped, was the terror of the merchants of Surat and of the villagers of the coast of alabar. It was thought probably that Kidd after the French fashion. would carry his booty to some colony. PETER THE GREAT IN ENGLAND. In the same week in which Whitehall per-ished, the Londoners were supplied with a new topic of conversation by a royal visit, which, of all royal visits, was the least pompoas and ceremonious, and yet the most in-teresting and important. On the 10th of January a vessel from Holland anchored off Greenwich, and was welcomed with great respect. Peter the First, Czar of Mus was on board. He took a boat with a few attendants, and was rowed up the Thames to Norfolk street, where a house overlooking the river had been prepared for his recep-

His journey is an epoch in the history not only of his own country, but of ours and of the world. To the polished nations of Western Europe, the empire which he gov-erned had till then been what Bokhara or Siam is to us. That empire, indeed, though less extensive than at present, was the most extensive that had ever obeyed a single chief. The Dominions of Alexander and of Trajan were small when compared with the immense area of the Scythian desert. But, in the estimation of statesmen, that boundless expanse of larch forest and morass, where the snow lay deep during eight months of every year, and where a wretched peasan try could with difficulty defend their hovels against troops of famished wolves, was of less account than the two or three square miles into which were crowded the counting houses, the warehouse, and the innumerable masts of Amsterdam. On the Baltic Russia had not then a single port. Her maritime made with the other nations of Christendom was entirely earried on at Archangel, a place which had been created and was supported by adventurers from our island. In the days of the Tudoras a ship from England, seeking a northeast passage to the land of silk and spice, had discovered the White Sea. The barbarians who dwelt on the shores of that dreary gulf had never before seen such a protent as a vessels of a hundred and sixty ons burden. They fied in terror; and, when they were pursued and over taken, protraslves before the chief of the strangers and kissed his feet. He succeeded in opening a friendly communication with them, and from that time there has been a regular ial intercourse between our country and the subjects of the Czar. That latter part tory was indeed, even in the or the seventeen century, a rude and mean ilding. The walls consisted of trees laid in the long summer day of the Arctic regions.

Regularly at that season several English ships cast anchor in the bay. A fair was eld on the beach. Traders came from a which inflamed curiosity. He went to a oe of many hundred miles to the only part where they could exchange hemp and the sturgeon of the Volga, for Manchester field knives, Birmingham buttons, sugar from Jamaica and pepper from Malabar. Such was the report which the English legations made of what they had seen and suffered in Russia, and their evidence was confirmed by the appearance which the Russian whom he had called a dog, was provoked into and the grandees who accompanied him, were exclaiming, in an agony of remorse, "Yes, I so gorgeous that all London crowded to stare an a dog, but it is you that have made me at them, and so filthy that nobody dared to train whenever they soiled or lost any part of the Anglican ritual. Yet, from some cause which cannot now be traced, he had a taste for maritime pursuits which amounted to a passion, indeed almost to a monomania. His imagination was full of sails, yard-arms and rudders. That large mind, equal to the highest duties of the general and the statesman, contracted itself to the most minute details of naval architecture and naval discipline. The chief ambition of the great conqueror and legislator was to be a good boatswain and a good ship's carpenter. Holland and England, therefore, had for him an attraction which was wanting to the galleries and terraces of Versailles. He repaired to Amsterdam, took a lodging in the dock-yard, assumed the garb of a pilot, put down his name on the list of workmen, wielded with his own hand the caulking-iron and the mallet, fixed the pumps and twisted the ropes. The only Englishman of rank in whose society he seemed to take much pleasure was the eccentric Caermarthen, whose passion for the sea bore some resemblance to his own, and who was very competent to give an opinion about every part of a ship, from the stem to the stern. The impression which he made on Burnet was not favorable. The good bishop could not understand that a mind which seemed to be chiefly occupied with questions about the best place for a capstan and the best way of rigging a jury-mast, might be capable, not merely of ruling an empire, but of creating a nation. He complained that he had gone deed, not in the character of tenant that the among his countrymen. DEATH OF WILLIAM THE THIRD The king, meanwhile, was sinking fast.— Albemarle had arrived at Kensington from the Hague, exhausted by rapid travelling. His master kindly bade him go to rest fo some hours, and then summoned him to make his report. That report was in all respects satisfactory. The States General were in the best temper; the troops, the provisions, and the magazines were in the best order. -Everything was in readiness for an early campaign. William received the intelligence with the calmness of a man whose work was done. He was under no illusion as to his danger. "I am fast drawing," he said, "to my end." His end was worthy of his life.— His intellect was not for a moment clouded. His fortitude was the more admirable be cause he was not willing to die. He had very lately said to one of those whom he most loved, "You know that I never feared death; there have been times when I should prospect is opening before me, I do wish to stay here a little longer." Yet no weakness, learning could do for me; but the case is beyond your art and I submit." From the words which escaped him he seemed to be frequently engaged in mental prayer. Burnet and Tenison remained many hours in the ok room. He professed to them his firm belief in the truth of the Christian religion, and received the sacrament from their hands counsellors. He ordered several of them to be called in, and exerted himself to take leave of them with a few kind and cheerful words. Among the English who were admitted to his bedside were Devonshire and Ormond. But there were in the growd those who felt as no Englishman could feel - friends of his youth who had been true to him, and to whom he had been true, through all the vicissitudes of fortune ; who had served him with unalterable fidelity when his Secretaries of State, his or in an atmosphere tainted with loathsome and deadly disease, shrunk from placing their lives in jeopardy to save his, and whose truth he had, at the cost of his own popularity, rewarded with his bounteous munific strained his feeble voice to thank Auverqueuque for the affectionate and loyal services of thirty years. To Albemarle he gave the kevs of his closet and of his private drawers. "You know," he said, "what to do with them." By this time he could scarcely respire. 'Can this," he said to the physicians, long ?" He was told that the end was approaching. He swallowed a cordial and asked for Bentinck. Those were his last articulate words. Bentinck instantly came to the bedside, bent down and placed his ear close to the king's mouth. The lips of the dy ing man moved, but nothing could be heard. The king took the hand of his earliest friend and pressrd it tenderly to his heart. In that moment, no doubt, all that had cast a slight passing cloud over their long and pure friendship was forgotten. It was now between seven and eight in the morning. He closed his eyes and gasped for breath. The bishops knelt down and read the commendatory prayer. THE FIRST BLOW STRUCK. News of the very highest importance to America comes by the "Quaker City," from Havana. We now get the first practical penalty inflicted by foreign Powers, of the weak and despised condition to which our once great and powerful country has been reduced. Spain, it seems, is disposed to take advantage of our dissensions, and our consequent indisposition or inability to enforce the Monroe doctrine, and is taking measures to restore to her domains some of the fair possessions which she has heretofore lost through adverse fortune. San Domingo is the first point to which she has directed her attention, and we now receive the astounding announcement that a virtual agnexation has already taken place. During some time past, it appears a system of colonization has been quietly going Republics of Central America. Mesers. On the 16th of March, the Spanish flag was hoisted, much to the astonshment of the blacks and native population. who appear to have been taken entirely by surprise; and on the 23d, immediately on the receipt of the news at Havana, the Spanish frigate Blanca sailed to the assistance of the colonists, fully armed and equipped, and with a large number of troops on board. She was to be followed as soon as possible by two steam-frigates, with an army of five thousand men, when the "protectorate," as the Spaniards are pleased to term it, would be fully established. It was also reported that a large additional military and naval force was on the way from Spain to Cuba, to be ready for any emergency in which it might be required. According to all accounts, the plan of Spain appears to be to enrich her ancestral crown by adding St. Domingo, Hayti and Mexico to her jewels. The first, it seems. she has already secured; the second she has negotiated for with France and will soon have; and the last she is preparing to secure, if necessary, by the aid of France. Gen. Miramon, the late President of Mexico, being finally defeated by the Liberal party, has gone to Spain, with the late Spanish minister to Mexico, to advise the Queen and her cabinet of our real condition, and to prove to Spain that this is the moment to strike and regain Mexico. We may look for the appearance of fresh fleets in the Gulf, and the intervention of other Powers in American affairs. Spain, aiming to regain her ancient rank, and having already a powerful steam fleet and a Treasury with $27,000,000 in it,

MATTERS SOUTH.

Mississippi and Texas have ratified and adopted the constitution from the Convention representing the seceded States, at Montgomery, Ala. Five of the seven States have now ratified that instrument. Two States, South Carolina and Florida, are yet to adopt it. The Convention of South Carolina is now in session, and that of Florida meets in a few days, and in a week or two therefore, the final action of the confederacy will be prefected in regard to this important matter.

At Richmond, Va., on Saturday, the State Convention resolved to terminate the debate in the Committee of the whole next Thursday. when the Committee will proceede to vote on the various propositions before it. The House was all night long considering the joint esolutions relative to the movement of troops and arms in Virginia, growing out of the proposed transfer of guns from the Bellona Foundry. The Senate's amendments were finally adopted, amended so as to authorize the Governor to call out the public guard to arrest the contemplated removal of arms, and directing him to employ the needful force to esist any sttempt to place them beyond the control of the State Government.

TION.

We take much pleasure in having an opportunity of recording another of those delicate surgical operations which Dr. R. Seeds has been performing in this place for the last twelve months. This was a case of what surgeons call

Fistula-in-Ano; it occurred in the person of William Price, a resident of this place, who has been afflicted with this disease for some previous to his coming here; also has been treated by several physicians of this place without any relief; His sufferings were so intense that even piates had no effect in mitigating the pain

the result was, irritative fever set in, his general health became implicated, -being confined to bed,—and was rapidly sinking into a premature and untimely grave.

In this situation Dr. Seeds found him when by a well-timed and skillfully executed operation he has been completely relieved from all his soute sufferings, and is at the present time in the enjoyment of perfect bealth—being competent to attend to his business as usual.

We had a personal interview with this pan, and the above is his own statement, so that we can vouch for its anthenticity; at the same time he seems to icel extremely grateful for such a perfect state of immunity from all his sufferings.

This case certainly reflects great credit or the skill and professional attainments of Dr

O. J. Wood, Esq:—Dear Sir.—Allow me the pleasure and satisfaction to transmit to you the beneficial effects of your HAIR RESTORATIVE, after a trial of years. I commenced using your restorative in January, 1855, since which time I have not been without a bottle on hand. When I commenced the use, my hair was quite thin, and at least one-third gray. A few applications stopped its falling, and in three weeks time there was not a gray hair to be found, neither has there been up to this time.

After my hair was completely restored, I continued its use by applying two or three times per month. My hair has ever continued healthy, soft and glossy, and my scalp perfectly free from dandruff. I do not imagine the facts above mentioned will be of any particular advantage to you, or even fatter your vanity at this late day, as I am well sware they are all well known already, and even more wonderful ones throughout the Union. I have occupied my time in traveling the greater part of the time the past three years, and have taken pride and pleasure in recommending your Restorative, and exhibiting his effects in my own case. In several instances I have met with people that have pronounced it a humbug; saying they had used it and without effect. In every instance, however, it proved, by probing the matter, that they had not used your article at all, but had used some new article, said to be as yood as yours, and selling at about half the price. I have noticed two or three articles myself advertised as above, which I have no doubt are humbugs. It is astonishing that people will patronize an article of no reputation, when there is one at hand that has been proved beyond a doubt.

Apparently, some of those charlatans have not brains

ence the entire truth of what had been said of him. The Cs is cer came out, and the wound quickly healed over without dispuring my face. I am free to say, that the operation was entirely satisfactory, and that I feel myself entirely cured. I most cheerfully certify to the knowledge and skill of Dr. Bancock, in the treatment of my cancers, and do recommend him to all such as may be afflicted with this dreadful disense.

PANCER CURED WITHOUT PAIN

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—About two years ago, a spot made its appearance upon my nose, which, though at first I thought little of it, soon proved to be that dreaded disease, called Cancer. Dreading to have it cur out, and also having little confidence in the knife treatment, it had been growing from ONE AND AHALF to two years, when seeing the advertisement of Dr. N. BARCOCK, of this city, and a so hearing him spoken of as being skillful in the removal of Concers by meatic of plasters, and that, too, without pain, I; it myself under his care, and in a few days fearned by experience the entire truth of what had been said of him. Apparently, some of those charlatans have not brains enough to write an advertisement, as I notice they have copied yours, word for word in several inattances, merely inserting some other name in place of yours.

I have, within the past five years, seen and talked with mere than two thousand persons that have used your preparation with perfect success—some for baldness, gray hair, scald head, dandruff, and every disease the scalp and head are subject to.

I called to see you personally, at your original place of business here, but learned you were now living in New York. You are at liberty to publish this or to refer partles to me, Auy communication addressed to me, care box No. 1,22; will be promptly answered. Yours truly JAN, WAITE, M. D.

WOOD'S HAIR RESTORATIVE.—Unlike most specifics, this is proved, by unimpeachable evidence, to possess great efficacy as a restorer of the hair to its prestine vigor. Where the head had because of sickness, the use of this article has produced a beautiful growth of thick, glossy hair. It is therefore a valuable preparation for all clauses. Its ingredients are such as to effectually oradicate dandruff and other impurities which operate so injuriously to the hair. It also has curative properties of another description. In many cases pimpies and other disfigurements of the skin disappear wherever it is used. There is no hazard attaching to the trial of this remedy, and its effects can only be beneficial, as the compound, if it does not cause a manifest improvement, is incapable of doing harm, as its compount elements are perfectly unocnous.—Roston Transcript, April 22, 1839.

A GENUINE BOON.—In our capacity as conductor of a public journal, we are called upon to advertise the currealls of the day, each of which claims to be unadulterated in its composition and infallible in its current vertice, with what justice we leave our renders to determine. In one instance, however,—Prof. Word's Hair Restorative—we are so well assured of the notable qualities of the article, that we give it our endorsement as all that its inventor and vender claims it to be. Its effect upon a falling head of hair is universally known to be magical. Like time or guano on exhautted land, it brings the crop wherever applied. Our own thatch is fortunately healthy, but we advise our friends with sparsely-growing hair to try the Restorative—Columbus Spy TEA AND COFFEE

ALL HAIR DYES ABANDONED—WOOD'S GREAT ARTICLE HAS TAKEN THE FIELD.—Professor Wood stands on an eminence no chemist, whose attention has been turned to inventing a hair tonic has ever before reached. His fame is sudden but world-wide, and thousands who have worn wigs or been bald for years, are now, through the use of this preparation, wearing their own natural and luxuriant head covering. So much for chemistry, the chemistry of human life, and the laws which apply to the functions of the system. Prof. Wood studied out the human hair, its character, its proportice, its diseases, and how to restore the decaying vitality of that ornament; he saw, as in his own case, that gray hair is unnatural unless the age of the individual had reached four score, and he believed that the hair could be naturally revitalized. He tried his own case—almost bald and quite gray at the age of thirty-saven, he restored his own hair in color, strength and huxuriance, and the article he did it with he gave to the world. HEALTH.—" All our excesses," says a great writer,
" are so many drafts on the bank of health, accepted and made psyable some ten, fifteen or twenty years after and made payable some ten, fifteen or twenty years after date." So with our imprudences, our culpable neglect of nature's laws, all have to be paid in after years of sufferings. Nobody is better aware of this truth than DR. O. PHELPS BROWN.
