IMPORTANT FROM MONTGOMERY.

MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT DAVIS

The Congress of the Southern Confederacy met at Montgomery, April 29, and the following message was sent in by President Davis GENTLEMEN OF THE CONGRESS:

It is my pleasing duty to announce to you that the Constitution framed for the establishment of a permanent government for the Con-federate States has been ratified by conven-tions in each of those States to which it was referred. To inaugurate the government in its full proportions and upon its own substantial basis of the popular will, it only remains that elections should be held for the lesignation of the officers to administ

There is every reason to believe that at no distant day, other States, identified in politi cal principles and community of inte with those which you represent, will join this Confederacy; giving to its typical constellation increased splendor—to its government of free, equal, and sovereign States a wider sphere of usefulness—and to the friends of constitutional liberty a greater security for its harmonious and perpetual existence.

It was not, however, for the purpose of making this announcement that I have deemed it my duty to convoke you at an earlier day than that fixed by yourselves for your meeting. The declaration of war made against this Confederacy by Abraham Lincoln, the President of the United States, in his proclamation issued on the fifteenth day of the present month, rendered it necessary in the present month, rendered it neccessary in my judgment that you should convene at the earliest practical moment, to devise the

mon danger impelled them to a close alliance, and to the formation of a confederation, by the terms of which the colonies, styling themselves States, entered "severally into a firm league of friendship with each other for their on defence, the security of their liberties, and their mutual and general welfare, binding themselves to assist each other against all force offered to or attacks made upon them or any of them, on account of reigion, sovereignty, trade, or any pretence

In order to guard against any misconstruction of their compact, the several States made explicit declaration in a distinct article; that "each State retains its sovereignty, freedom and independence, and every power, jurisdiction, and right which is not by this Confederation expressly delegated to the Uni-ted States in Congress assembled."

Under this contract of alliance the war of the revolution was successfully waged, and resulted in the trenty of peace with Great Britain in 1783 by the terms of which the several States were, each by name, recognized to be independent.

The articles of contederation contained a clause whereby all alterations were prohibited unless confirmed by the Legislatures of every State, after being agreed to by the Congress; and in obedience to this provision under the and in obedience to this provision under the resolution of Congress of the 21st of February, 1787, the several States appointed delegates who attended a convention "tor the sole and express purpose of revising the articles of confederation, and reporting to Congress and the several Legislatures such alterations and provisions therein as shall when when agreed to in Congress, and confirmed by the States render the federal constitution adequate to the existences of government and the

It was, by the delegates chosen by the several States, under the resolution just quoted, that the Constitution of the United States was framed in 1787, and submitted to the several States for ratification, as shown by the seventh article, which is in these words: The ratification of the Conventions of nine States shall be sufficient for the establishment of this constitution between the States so ratifying the same." I have italicised certain words in the quo-tations just made, for the purpose of attract-ing attention to the singular and marked caution with which the States endeavored, in every possible form, to exclude the idea that the sengrate and independent supersignity of the separate and independent sovereignty of each State was merged into one common goveach State was merged into one common gov-ernment and nation; and the earnest desire they evinced to impress on the constitution Embolder its true character—that of a compact bettion and s

The constitution of 1787 having however.

Omitted the clause already recited from the articles of confederation, which provided, in explicit terms, that each State retained its sovereignty and independence, some alarm was felt in the States when invited to ratify the Constitution, lest this omission shou construed into an abandonment of their cher-ished principle, and they refused to be satis-fied until amendments were added to the ished principle, and they refused to be satisfied until amendments were added to the Constitution, placing beyond any pretence of doubt the reservation by the States of all their sovereign rights and powers, not expressly delegated to the United States by the Constitution.

Strange indeed must it appear to the impartial observer, but it is none the less true, that all these carefully worded clauses proved unavailing to prevent the rise and growth in the Northern States of a political school which has persistently claimed that the government thus formed was not a compact between States, but was in affect a national government set up and over the States. An organization, created by the States to secure the blessings of liberty and independence against foreign aggression, has been gradually perverted into a machine for their control in their domestic affairs; the creature has been cralted above its creators; the principals have been made subordinate to the agent appointed by themselves.

The people of the Southern States, whose almost exclusive occupation was agriculture, early perceived a tendency in the Northern States to render the common government States to render the common government subservient to their own purposes by imposing burthens on commerce as a protection to their manufacturing and shipping interests.

Long and angry composersy grew out of these attempts, often successful, to benefit one section of the country at the expense of the other. And the danger of disruption into docile, intelligent and cattle of the straing from this cause, was enhanced by the fact that the Northern population was in creasing by immigration and other causes a greater ratio than the population of the South. By degrees, as the Northern State gained preponderance in the National Congress, self-interest taught their people syield ready assent to any plausible advocation of their right as majority to govern the minority without control. They learned to list ten with impatience to-the augustion of an constitutional impediment to the exercise of their will! and so utterly have the principle of the constitution been corrupted in the | fact that the Northern of the constitution been corrupted Northern mind, that in the inaugural elivered by President Lincoln in March less ne asserts as an axiom which he pla to be undeniable, that the the stitution requires that in all cases the mable instance, the same Chief Mag not hesitate to liken the relation State and the United States to those which exist between a county and the State in which it is situated and by which it was created. This is the lamentable and fundamental error on which rests the policy that has culminated in his Jeclaration of war against these Confederate States.

... I agramed by the President of the United States, and

In addition to the long continued and deep seated resentment felt by the Southern States at the pernistent abuse of the powers they had delegated to the Congress, for the purpose of enriching the manufacturing and abipping classes of the North at the Congress. State and the United St of discord involving interests transcendent magnitude as at all create the apprehension in the create the apprehension in the many devoted lovers of the Union, nence was im measures necessary for the defence of the country.

The occasion is indeed an extraordinary one. It justifies me in a brief review of the relations heretofore existing between us and the States which now unite in warfare against us and in a succunct statement of the events which have resulted in this warfare; to the end that mankind may pass intelligent and impartial judgment on its motives and objects.

During the war waged against Great Britain by her colonies on this continent a common danger impelled them to a close alliance, and to theformation of a confidence of the defence of the powers to the United States delegated certain powers to the United States Congress, a large portion of the laboring population consisted of African slaves imported into the colonies by the mother country. In twelve out of the thirteen States, negro slavery existed, and the right of property in alaxes was protected by law. This property was recognized in the constitution, and provision was made against its loss by the escape of the slave. The increase in the number of slaves by further importation from Africa was also secured by a clause forbidding Congress to prohibit the alave trade anterior to a certain date; and in no clause can there be found any delegation of power to the Congress authoring it in any manner to legislate to the pedice, detriment or discoveragement of

With interests of such overwhelming magnitude imperilled, the people of the Southern States were driven by the conduct of the North to the adoption of some course of action to avert the danger with which they were openly menaced. With this view, the Legonard of the States invited the openly menaced. With this view, the Legislatures of the several States invited the people to select delegates to convention to be held for the purpose of determining for themselves what measures were best admits a several selection.

The principles thus emphatically an-nounced embrace that to which I have al-seady adverted—the right of each State to indge of and redress the wrongs of which it complains. These principles were main-tained by overwhelming majorities of the peo-phe of all the States of the Union at different tions, especially in the elections of Mr. is in 1805, Mr. Madison in 1809, and

In the exercise of a right so ancient, so rell established, and so necessary for self-reservation, the people of the Confederate tates in their conventions determined that wrong which they had suffered, and the is with which they were menaced. Alarmed by so extraordinary a demonstration the Commissioners requested the delivery of an answer to their official communication of the 12th of March, and thereupon revised on the 8th April a reply dated on the 15th cation of the 12th of March, and thereupon re-ceived, on the 5th April, a reply dated on the 15th of the previous month, from which it appears that, during the whole interval, whilst the Commissioners were receiving during the whole interval, whilst the Commissioners were receiving assurances calculated to inspire hopes of the success of their mission, the Secretary of State and the President of the United States had already determined to hold no intercourse with them whatever; to refuse even to listen to any proposals they had to make, and had profited by the delay created by their own assurances, in order to prepare secretly the means for effective hostile operations.

That these assurances were given, has been virtually confessed by the government of the United States by its sending a messenger to Charleston, to give actice of its purpose to use force, if opposed in its intention of supplying Fort Sumter. No more striking proof of the absence of good faith in the conduct of the government of the United States toward this confederacy can be required than is contained in the circumstances which accompanied this notice. According to the usual course of navigation the vessels composing the expedition designed tion the vessels composing the expedition designed for the relief of Fort Sumter, might be expected to reach Charleston harbor on the 9th April; yet with our Commissioners actually in Washington, detained our Commissioners actually in Washington, detained under assurances that notice should be given of any military movement, the notice was not addressed to them, but a messenger was sent to Charleston to give the notice to the Governor of South Carolina, and the notice was so given at a late hour on the 8th April, the eve of the very day on which the 8th April, the eve of the very day on which the fleet might be expected to arrive. That this maneuver failed in its purpose was not the fault of those who contrived it. A heavy tempest delayed the arrival of the expedition and gave time to the commander of our forces at Charleston to ask and commander of our forces at Charleston to ask and receive the instructions of this government. Even then, under all the provocation incident to the contemptaous refusal to listen to our Commissioners, and the tortuous course of the government of the United States, I was sincerely anxious to avoid the effusion of blood, and directed a proposal to be made to the commander of Fort Sumter, who had avowed himself to be nearly out of provisions, that we would abstain from directing our fire on Fort Sumter if he would promise not to open fire on our forces unless first attacked. This proposal was refused, and the conclusion was reached that the design of the United States was to place the besieging force at Charleston between the simultaneous force at Charleston between the simuli therefore, no alternative but to direct that the fort should at once be reduced. This order was execut-ed by General Beauregard, with the skill and suc-cess which were naturally to be expected from the well known character of that gallant officer, and well known character of that gallant officer, and although the bombardment lasted but thirty-three heurs, our flag did not wave over its battered walls until after the appearance of the hostile fleet off Charleston. Fortunately, not a life was lost on our side, and we were gratified in being spared the necessity of a useless effusion of blood by the prudent caution of the officers who commanded the fleet, in abstaining from the evidently futile effort to enter the harbor for the railor of Maior Anderson. I refer to the report of the Secretary of War and the papers which accompany it for further details of this

In this connection I cannot refrain from a well deserved tribute to the noble State, the eminent soldierly qualities of whose people were so conspicuously displayed in the port of Charleston. For months they had been irritated by the spectacle of a fortress held within their principal harbor, as a standing menace against their peace and independence. Built in part with their own money, its custody confided with their own consent to an agent who held no power over them other than such as they had themselves delegated for their own benefit, intended to be used by that agent for their own protection against foreign attack, they saw it held with persistent tenacity as a means of offence against them by the very government which theylhad estabwith persistent tenacity as a means of offence against them by the very government which they had established for their own protection. They had beleaguered it for months—felt entire confidence in their power to capture it—yet yielded to the acquirements of discipline, curbed their impatience, submitted without complaint to the unaccustomed hardships, labors and privations of a protracted siege; and when at length their patience was rewarded by the signal for attack, and success had crowned their steady and gallant conducts—even in the very moment of they evinced a chivalrous regard for the had been compelled to lower his flag. All manifestations of exultation were checked in his presence. Their commanding general, with the cordial approval and the consent of his government, refrained from imposing any terms that could wound the sensibilities of the commander of the fort. He was permitted to retire with the honors of war—to salute his flag, to depart freely with all his command, and was escorted to the vessel in which he embarked with the highest marks of respect from those against whom his guns had been so recently directed. directed. Not only does every event connectes with the siege reflect the highest honor on Sout Carolina, but the forbearance of her people and of the forbearance of her people and of ent from making any harsh use of a obtained under circumstances of such perovocation, attest to the fullest extent the absence of any purpose beyond securing their own tranquility and the sincere desire to avoid the ca-amities of war.

Its announcement of a mere paper blockade is so manifestly violation of the law of nations, that it would see uthority; but conceding this to be the case so far as the Executive is concerned, it will be difficult to satisfy the people of these States that their late confederates will sanction its declarations will deconfederates will sanction its declarations, will determine to ignore the usages of civilized nation and will inaugurate a war of extermination on both sides, by treating as pirates open enemies acting under the authority of commissions issued by an organized government. Sufficient time has not yet elapsed since the departure of these Commissioners for the re-ceipt of any intelligence from them. In the two States just named, the gentlemen confirmed as Judges declined to accept the appointment, and no nominations have yet been made to fill the vacancies. In conclusion, I congratulate you on the fact that in every portion of our country there has been exhibited the most patriotic devotion to our comexhibited the most patrotic devotien to our common cause. Transportation companies have freely tendered the use of their lines for troops and supplies. The Presidents of the railroads in the confederacy, in company with others who control lines of communication with States that we hope soon to greet as sisters, assembled in convention in this city, and not only reduced largely the rates heretofore demanded for mail service and conveyance of the confederate multiple but reduced to fore demanded for mall service and conveyance of troops and munitions, but voluntarily proffered to receive their compensation at these reduced rates in the bonds of the confederacy, for the purpose of leaving all the resources of the government at its disposal for the common defense. Requisitions for troops have been met with such alacrity that the numbers tendering their services have in every instance greatly exceeded the demand. Men of official and social position are serving the zeal of youth rival each other in the desire to be foremost for the public defense; and though at no other point than the one heretofore noticed, have they been stimulated by the excitement inci-dent to social engagement and the hope of distinc-tion for individual achievement, they have borne, when active valor shall be required in place of steady endurance.

A people thus united and resolved cannot shrink from any sacrifice which they may be called on to make, nor can there be a reasonable doubt of their final success, however long and severe may be the test of their determination to maintain their birthright of freedom and equality, as a trust which it is their first duty to transmit undiminished to their posterity.

A bounteous Providence cheers us with the promise of abundant crops. The fields of grain which will, within a few weeks, be ready for the sickle, give assurance of the amplest supply of food for men; whilst the corm, cotton and other staple productions of our soil afford abundant proof that up to this period the season has been propitious.
We feel that our cause is just and holy; we protest solemnly in the face of mankind that we desire peace at any sacrifice, save that of honor and inde-pendence; we seek no conquest, no aggrandise-ment, no concession of any kind from the States with which we were late confederated: all we ask is to be let alone; that those who never held power is to be let alone; that those who never near power over us, shall not now attempt our subjugation by arms. This we will, this we must resist to the direct extremity. The moment that this pretension is abandoned, the sword will drop from our grasp, and we shall be ready to enter into treaties of amity and commerce that cannot but be mutually beneficial. So long as this pretension is maintained, with a firm reliance on that Divine Power which covers with its protection the just cause, we will continue to struggle for our inherent right to free

Is this the means to be adopted to make people obnoxious, for no other reason than to gratify personal spite or petty malice? That the one who did it was cowardly, is evident from the fact that like all evil and mean transact tions, it was done under cover of darkness. It behooves all good citizens to frown upon all such attempts at outrages like this, for no decent man, however much he may differ from others in sentiment, will express his difference except in a fair, candid, and open

WHO ARE THE DISUNIONISTS?

If the Cottes States consider the value of the Union debeable, we maintain their perfect right to discuss it. Nay, we hold with Jefferron to the instituable right of commenties to alter or abolish forms of government that have become oppressive or injurious; and if the Cotton States shall become satisfied that they can do better out of the Union than in it, we insist on letting them go in passes. The right to accode may be a revolutionary one, but it exists nevertheless; and we do not see how one party can have a right to do what another party has a right to prevent. We must ever resist the asserted right of any State to remain in the Union and nullity or dely the laws thereof; to withdraw from the Union is quite another matter. And whenever a considerable section of our Union shell folliberately resolve to go out, we shall resist all correly me saures designed to keep it in. it is precisely what its name indicates; for, while pleasant to the taste, it is revivifying, exhilirating, and strengthening to the vital powers. It also revivifies, reinstates, and renews the blood in all its original purity, and thus restores and renders the system invulnerable to attacks of disease. It is the only preparation ever offered the world in a popular form so as to be within the reach of all.

So chemically and skilifally combined as to be the most powerful tone, and yet so perfectly adapted so as to act in perfect accordance with the laws of nature, and hence soothe the weakest stomach, and tone up the digestive organs, and allay all nervous and other irritation. It is also perfectly exhilirating in its effects, and yet it is never followed by lassitude or depression of spirits. It is composed entirely of vegetables, and those thoroughly combining powerful tonic and soothing properties, and consequently can never injure. As a sure preventive and cure of

PROF. WOOD'S RESTORATIVE CORDIAL.—It is recorded in the classics that Payche was once sent to a climate warmer than the West Indies to procure a sample of the beauty of Proserpine in a box. After some delay the messenger returned, and as soon as the tid of the box was removed, out few all the lifs that flesh is helt to. For tunnately, hope was found in the bottom of the box. PROF. WOOD'S RESTORATIVE CORDIAL revives the recollection of the story, for it invigorates the blood, alds the organs of digestion, imparts strength to the nervous system, and fortifies the citadel of health, so as to bid defiance to the assaults of disease. It is a healthy tonic, composed entirely of vegetable productions, and while it is exhilarating as pure wine, no injurious results can possibly follow its use. It is a desideratum in the medical world, and those who are afflicted with Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Consumption, Faintness, Gliddiness, Neuraigia, Palpitation of the Heart, &c., &c., will here find an infallible panacea.—St. Louis Daily Express.

A PURE HEALTHY TONIC, and one free from the dele-terious and injurious effects sure to follow those in ordinary use, has long been felt to be a dealderatum in the medica world. Such a tonic, and one so skillfully combined from the world. Such a tonic, and one so skilfully combined from the vegetable kingdom as to act in perfect accordance with the laws of nature, and thus soothe the weakest stomach, and at the same time allay nervous and other irritations, and tone up all the organs of which the human body is composed, is offered in PROF. WOOD'S RESTORATIVE CORDIAL AND BLOOD RENOVATOR. Hence it is perfectly adapted to old end young. Reader, try it. Thousands have already done so, and the testimony is universal in its favor.—New York Atlas.

PROF. WOOD'S RESTORATIVE CORDIAL AND BLOOD RENOVATOR, for the cure of General Debility or Weakness, arising from any cause; also, Dyspepsis, Nervoumers, Right Sweats, Incipient Consumption, Liver Completus, Biliousness, Loss of Appetite, Female Weakness in all its stages; also to prevent the contraction of disease, is certainly the best and most agreeable cordial tonic and renovance ever offered to the affilted, and so chemically combined as to be the most powerful tonic ever known to medical science. Reader, up it. It will do you good. We have no hesitation in recommending it, since we know it to beja safe, pleasant, and sure remedy for the diseases enumerated.

LOOK TO YOURSELF IN TIME.—How many in consequence of a false delicacy suffer from suppressed, painful, or obstructed menstruation, and think because they are young that bye-and-bye nature will work itself clear from obstructions, and all come right in the end, little dreaming that the seeds of death are aiready germinating in the system because the vital energies are impaired, and the entire animal economy deranged, doublitated; and yet, careless of themselves as they are, if a romedy were set beofre them which would restore all the functions of the system and re-invigorate the body, they would take it, and thus been in time to save their lives. Parents, think of this, and at once give the a bottle of PROF. WOOD'S RESTORAT IVECORDIAL AND BLOOD RENOVATOR.—The New York Courier.

THE VALUE OF GOOD HEALTH cannot be over estimated, and no netter legacy can be transmitted from parent to offspring than a sound and robust constitution. What are honors and distinction without health? what are riches without the capacity to enjoy the blessings of life?
