Poetry.

WHEN I MEAN TO MARRY.

BY JOHN G. SAGE.

When do I mean to marry?—Well— 'Tis idle to dispute with fate; But if you choose to hear me tell, Pray listen while I fix the date. When daughters haste, with eager feet, A mother's daily toil to share; Can make the puddings which they eat, And mend the stockings which they wear; When maidens look upon a man As in himself what they would marry, And not as army soldiers scan A sutler as a commissary; When gentle ladies who have got The offer of a lover's hand, Consent to share his "earthly lot," And do not mean his lot of land. When young mechanics are allowed To find and wed the farmers' girls, Who don't expect to be endowed With rubies, diamonds, and with pearls; When wives, in short, shall freely give Their hearts and hands to aid their spouses, And live as they were wont to live, Within their sire's one-story houses. Then, madam—if I'm not too old— Enjoyed to quit this lonely life, I'll brush my beaver, cease to scold, And look about me for a wife.

Miscellaneous.

AN IMPORTANT EPOCH IN THE HISTORY OF NAPOLEON.

From Thiers' History of the Consulate and Empire.

About midnight having traveled at full speed the entire day, either on horse or on mule, he at length reached Fontenay-le-Comte, all impatient to know what was going on. A large number of cavalry was seen advancing, preceded by some officers. Without hesitation he called the officers.

"Who goes there?" he asked.

"Gen. Belliard," replied the leader.

It was in fact General Belliard, who in compliance with the conditions of the capitulation of Paris, was going to Fontenay-le-Comte, to find a suitable position for the troops of the two Marshals. Napoleon sprang from his carriage, seized Gen. Belliard by the arm, led him to the roadside, and overwhelmed him with so many questions that he had scarcely time to reply.

"Where is the army?" said he immediately.

"Sire, the army is coming up."

"Where is the enemy?"

"At the gates of Paris."

"And who occupies Paris?"

"Nobody; it is evacuated."

"What, evacuated! and my son, my wife, my government, where are they?"

"On the Loire."

"On the Loire! Who counseled such a proceeding?"

"But, sire, it was said to be in obedience to your orders."

"My orders had no such meaning; but Joseph, Clarke, Marmont, Mortier, what has become of them, what have they done?"

"Sire, we have not seen either Joseph or Clarke the entire day. As to Marmont and Mortier, they have behaved like honest men. The troops have acted admirably. Even the National Guards whenever they were exposed to fire, vied with the soldiers. They bravely defended the heights of Belleville as well as the opposite declivity, looking towards Villeite. They even defended Montmartre, where there were only a few pieces of cannon, and the enemy, believing the place to be better defended, sent a column along the Revolve route, to turn Montmartre, thus running the risk of being driven into the Seine. Ah, sire, had we had a reserve of ten thousand men—had you had been here, we would have thrown the allies into the Seine, saved Paris, and avenged the honor of our country!"

"Undoubtedly, had I been here; but I cannot be everywhere! And Clarke and Joseph, where are they? And my two hundred Vincennes cannon, what has been done with them? And my brave Parisians, why were they not called into action?"

"We do not know, sire, we were alone, and we did our best. The enemy lost at least twelve thousand men."

"I ought to have expected it," cried Napoleon; Joseph lost me Spain, and now he loses me France. I ought to have believed that poor Rovigo, who told me that Clarke was a coward, a traitor, and moreover, a stupid. But let us have done with complaints, we must repair the evil. Caulaincourt—my carriage."

Having finished these words, Napoleon began to walk in the direction of Paris, ordering everybody to follow him.

"It is too late," said Belliard, "to go to Paris to-night; the army has been obliged to leave, the enemy will soon arrive, if they are not already there."

"But," replied Napoleon, "I shall lead on the army again, and drive the enemy out of Paris; my brave Parisians will bear my voice, and they will rise and drive the barbarians beyond the walls."

"Ah, sire, it is too late; the infantry is even now following me—besides, we have signed a capitulation that forbids our return."

"A capitulation! and who was so cowardly to assign one?"

"Honest men, sire, who had no alternative."

During the colloquy, Napoleon is still advancing, refusing to listen to any remonstrance, and calling for his carriage, which Caulaincourt does not bring, when an infantry officer is seen advancing. It was Urial. Napoleon calls him and learns that the infantry is on the spot, that is to say, three or four leagues distant from Paris, and that the time for returning to the capital is past. Conquered by facts, by the explanation he receives, Napoleon pauses at the two fountains that rise on the Juvisy route, sits beside the waters, covers his face with his hands, and remains sometime plunged in profound reflection. All present are silent, they look at each other, they wait anxiously the result of the Emperor's reflections. At length he rises, and asks to be shown some place where he can find a few moments' shelter. He had traveled without cessation thirty leagues on mule, and, thirty on horseback; he was worn out with fatigue, but he seemed unconscious of exhaustion. He asked for a table and lights: he wanted to look at his maps, and give orders. A messenger is despatched to the neighboring postmaster; a light is brought, and the Emperor's face becomes visible. His features exhibit some traces of his late emotion, but no disturbance of mind—the prevailing expression is in invincible energy. The maps are spread, he examines them, he reflects, and then says:

"If I had the army here all would be set right! Alexander is going to show himself to the Parisians. He is not badly inclined; he has no desire to burn Paris; he only wishes to show himself in this great city. To-morrow he will have one portion of his troops on the right of the Seine, another on the left. Some will be in Paris, some outside, and in that position, if I had my army, I would crush them all. The people would join me. They would think I was a divine mission on the heads of the traitors. The greatness of France would be restored. If I had the arms! But my troops will not arrive for three or four days. Ah! why did not Paris hold out some hours longer?"

And as he uttered these words, Napoleon looked up and down the small room, which was scarcely large enough to hold him and the few wretches of the strange scene. In order to see the map of Caulaincourt said:

"But, sire, the army will not arrive in four days your Majesty cannot stay at you would to-day."

Napoleon, who, up to this moment, seemed neither to hear nor understand what was said to him, suddenly raised his head, and walked straight up to M. de Caulaincourt, and he, who never appeared to admit the possibility of a capitulation, exclaimed:

"Ah! Caulaincourt, you do not know men. Three days; two days; you do not know what may be done in that short time. You know not all the intrigues that will be plotted against me. You know not how many there are who will abandon me. I could name them for you if you wish."

A YANKEE IN ALEXANDRIA.

CAPTURE OF A SECESSION FLAG.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune.

Washington, May 23, 1861.

I have already apprised you by the telegraph of the leading features of the bold and dangerous achievements of a Boston banker, which resulted in the taking of a "Confederate" flag. The details will be found highly interesting and exciting. On Tuesday, Mr. Charles E. Fuller, accompanied by his brother, W. J. A. Fuller, a prominent New York lawyer, spent the day in looking out Alexandria, having no purpose but a curiosity to see what Virginia troops looked like. They registered their real names and residence, and, of course, were marked men from that moment. After a thorough exploration of the city, they dined at the hotel, with about fifty officers of the Secession army, and the elder brother took the last stage for Washington, which he reached that night without any striking adventure. The younger brother declared his determination to bring home the only Secession flag that was flying in the place. He said he "could not stand it" to see the rebel bunting flaunting defiantly in full sight of the Capitol, and have it he would, at any hazard. No persuasion could make him forego the rash attempt. He took a room at the hotel—the Marshall House—where the proprietor kept the flag flying, swearing he was a "bloody old Secessionist, and Lincoln could not make him haul it down." He expressed a strong desire to see any "Yankee" attack the flag. Mr. F.

got exceedingly irate at this boast, and thought that he would let him know that Massachusetts men had more pluck than was credited them by the "Chivalry." The hotel is a large four-story building, and was filled with Secession troops. Mr. F. by a little adroit management, had a room assigned him in the main building, from the roof of which the flag-staff ran up through an open scuttle. After tea he goped his way toward the roof, and found the upper doors locked. He then climbed the nearest stairway, eight or ten feet above the stairway, and found it nailed down. He bought a hammer at a hardware store, went back and drew the nails. Being a perfect gymnast, and active as a cat, he expected to climb to the roof by the spout but this proved rotten as paper, and compelled him to abandon the attempt. He next searched about the city and found a locksmith, whom he told that he wanted a bunch of keys to open a closet. The man offered to go with him and fit the lock, but Mr. F. "did not see it" in that light. He said he would not trouble him to go, but would take a bunch of keys, and leave five dollars deposit for their return.

Armed with ten keys, he returned to the hotel, watched like a cat for his opportunity, and when the coast was clear ascended the upper story and tried his keys. Six of them were tried unsuccessfully, and the seventh had turned the lock, when he was nearly surprised by a party of soldiers who came up the stairs. He rushed into a sort of dark closet adjoining, secreted himself under a mattress, and waited with breathless anxiety until they passed into the next room, where they soon became absorbed in a lively game of "poker," at five cents "ante." He then went back, unlocked the door, felt his way in the dark to the flag-staff, tried the signal halyards, found that everything worked beautifully, and that he was sure, at least, of hauling down the flag. He mounted to the roof, and took a general survey of the premises. This was about eight o'clock in the evening. The streets were full of citizens and troops, and the full moon shone bright as day. He was again alarmed by a party of soldiers mounting the stairs, and feared that the slight lowering and raising of the flag, made when he was trying the halyards, had been observed from the streets. He stood behind the door, determined to jump by the first chance, and over the heads of those coming after, and make a run for the door, some four or five blocks off, jump in and swim to Pawnee. The Massachusetts 5th Regiment, who knew him as a man must be swift on foot, and "Charlie." Happily the troops went into another room. He then went toward the river to alter the mooring of a small vessel, so that her change of position might signify to his brother, who had concerted his swim toward the Pawnee, that the boat could approach within hail. He was turned back by sentinels at every street approaching the river. The whole shore was guarded. He then determined to go to the hotel, haul down the flag, and try to get to the chapter of accidents. After a careful reconnaissance, at about 10 o'clock, when everybody's attention was engaged by the passing of three cavalry companies, he hauled down the flag, cut the halyards, and made them fast to the cleat, that they might not be observed swinging loosely. To his horror he discovered that he had caught an elephant. The flag was over thirty feet long, and about fifteen feet wide. He took off his coat, vest and pants, and commenced winding the flag about his body. To use his own expression, he thought he never should get it all coiled away. He succeeded, however, by making a sort of "Davy" Lambert of himself, in tying up his legs and coat, so as to effectually hide the piratical emblem. He marched down stairs, got out of the house, without exciting suspicion, and started on his travels. Critical as was his position, with the river bank lined with sentries, and the picket guards extended to Long Bridge, where he knew the draw was raised, it soon became perilous in the extreme, by a general alarm, which was given in consequence of the fact that the flag was missed. He saw patrolmen rushing in every direction, so he concluded to conceal himself in an old shed, until the moon should be obscured by passing clouds, when he determined to push for the back country, make a circuit above the town, and swim across to Ellsworth's Zouave camp, whose fires he could plainly see. He saw his brother's boat (with a detachment of twelve men from the Massachusetts 5th), lying off in the middle of the river, but dared not land her, for fear of causing his certain arrest. He managed to push from picket to picket, by wary advances, at one time lying flat on his back for half an hour, while the guard was smoking within a few feet of him, until he broke cover in the open country, beyond the suburbs, when the moon shone out brightly, and he found himself surrounded by two sentries. He then seized him. He grasped one by the breast and threw him to the ground with such violence that he wrenched off one of the Virginia army buttons, which he now wears on his watch guard as a trophy. The other sentry dropped his gun and fled; but a third soldier, a powerful man, clinched him from behind, and, after a brief but fierce struggle, he was hopelessly a prisoner. He retained his presence of mind, and by ready wit and fertility of invention saved himself from personal violence; and ultimately, by his own stratagem and the diplomacy of his own brother, he slipped his neck out of the halter. He was carried back to the hotel, his captor proving to be its proprietor and the captain of a large guerilla band of horsemen, ready to act anew the atrocities of the "Skinners" and "Cow Boys" of the Revolution, when hostilities commence along the border. He was a good-natured man, and was so pleased with the general manner of his prisoner, and was lost in such admiration of his daring exploit, and of the sublime confidence expressed by him in the power of his friends in Washington, especially of his brother, to release him, that he was treated with "distinguished consideration," and permitted to go to his room on his parole not to escape. Every seductive art was tried to induce him to become a Secessionist, but Mr. Fuller said he "would rather swing for it than prove false to the Old Gridiron." His captor told him he "was a d—d sight too smart for a miserable Yankee," for he had done more than a regiment of them could accomplish by hauling down his flag. Mr. F. tried to bribe him, and to buy the flag, but was told that it could not be bought for $10,000—that "old Lincoln had threatened to take it down, and he wanted to see him do it."

After a night of anxious unrest, Mr. F. came down to breakfast, and found that everybody was observing him and pointing him out as the "d—d Yankee," who had hauled down the flag. He sauntered through the city, made small purchases of tobacco, &c., in the deserted stores, and went to a Secession meeting at night. One of the speakers alluded very feelingly to the imperishable glory which covered the Stars and Stripes and related with thrilling pathos how his father, a veteran of eighty years, still clung to them. At this point, when Mr. Fuller's patriotic feeling had overcome his prudence, he clapped his hands loudly in applause, when the whole meeting, electrified by the speaker, applauded to the echo. But the excitability of Mr. F. caused the crowd to grow so excitedly that he was applauded everything which followed, and it was the rankest sort of Secession lying and ferocity. The audience were told that the troops were all Northern barbarians, who only wanted beauty and booty. "Yes," exclaimed the orator, almost drunk with passion, "they only want to ravish our wives and daughters, and steal our property," and much more bosh of the same kind. Toward night Mr. Fuller's brother, thoroughly alarmed for his safety, took a carriage, rode down to Alexandria, succeeded in laying plans that resulted in his release the next day. As the safety of other parties (Union men) would be involved, I cannot reveal the nature of these negotiations, other than hint that the guns of the Pawnee and the movements of troops contributed largely to the result. Arrangements had been thoroughly made to assault and burn the city had the Fullers been detained after to-day. Several companies of the Massachusetts 5th took a solemn vow that they would take the city, "orders or no orders," and Ellsworth's "boys" were in the "ring." But the orders would have been given. Last night, Mr. F., sure of cooperation by water, again tried to take the flag; but it was guarded by two soldiers, sleeping in the attic, and watched incessantly by the sentinels outside. So he contented himself with taking the flag, which hung up in the hall, which he wound round his person, and which he succeeded in bringing here with him. It was exhibited at the quarters of the Massachusetts troops in the Treasury building to-night, where it was received with immense cheering; and the detachment which went down to aid Mr. F. last night regretted sincerely that they had not a hand in its capture.

Had it not been for the red-tape and meddling interference of the Captain (Rowan) and First Lieutenant (Lowry) of the Pawnee, the larger flag would have been taken the first night. The plan was a bold one, but with the firm nerves of those engaged in it, would have succeeded. Mr. Fuller, the elder, who commanded the detachment of twelve sailors from Capt. Wardwell's company, under Lucius Stoddard and Williams, determined to go round the Pawnee, and then pull straight to shore, answering any hail with—"boat from the Pawnee." He knew the fears of the city, troops and all, that her guns could level the place in thirty minutes. He intended to take half his men, seize the sentries, march openly to the hotel, demand the flag, his brother, the unconditional surrender of the troops and the city. He says he would have pledged his life that the "big scare" which is on them, in reference to the Pawnee's guns, would have made all the Virginia troops take to their heels, and have left him with a big elephant on his hands in the shape of a captured city. He trusted to finesse and firmness, and neither himself nor one of his men had any doubts or fears as to the result. The nautical quid naves of the Pawnee, however, thought that the "attack on the city would precipitate hostilities, irritate Virginia, and be an invasion of her soil!" Lieut. Lowry was very emphatic in his denunciations of the "demagogues who had brought on this war"—"Senators going about the country like the Committee of the Directory in the French Revolution"—"inciting the people to war," and all that sort of thing. He added that they had brought this war upon us, and now they had got to go by the board, and the war be conducted by naval and military rule, etc., etc. In fact, he was so imperious, arrogant, and abusive, that these peripatetic Senators should look after him.

P. S.—This letter should have got off by last night's mail, but it was just as well, for it enables me to add an interesting postscript. The very man who was Mr. Fuller's captor—Captain Jackson, the proprietor of the hotel—was the cowardly wretch who shot Col. Ellsworth in cold blood at the very door which Mr. F. opened with his false keys, for which act of atrocity he was instantly riddled by the bayonets of the Zouaves. Mr. F. and his brother are again in Alexandria with the troops. They can "spot" a large number of the leading Secessionists there, and will be sure to do it.

A YANKEE OUTDORE.

When at Brazos Santiago, the army suffered much from heat and drought. The water from the Rio Grande, though abundant, was not very palatable, and all kinds of liquors were at a premium. A certain hoary headed Yankee by some means procured a barrel of cider, and with this he determined to set up business. He ran together a loose canvass shed, tapped his barrel, and proceeded to retail his cider at two dimes a glass.

Customers flocked in by dozens; our Yankee was making an "eternal fortune at a strike." Some of his patrons complained that two dimes a glass was an outrageous price; but the times were hard as well as hot, whiskey scarce, water bad, the retailer's conscience easy; he had all the cider in market, and really could not afford to sell any cheaper." For several hours the Yankee was as popular as a paymaster; crowds filled his shanty, and cider went off rapidly, and the deep pockets of his short-legged pantalons contained silver enough to start a free bank in India. But the tide of fortune unfortunately began to ebb before the cider was half sold; his patrons gradually fell off, and in the middle of the afternoon Jonathan was left alone upon his barrel to whittle and cogitate upon the instability of trade. Towards evening a customer appeared in the tent and called for a glass of cider. The retailer hastened to get the desired potation. The customer, after drinking, took his purse and enquired the price?

"Two dimes," said the Yankee.

"Two what?" exclaimed the customer.

"Two dimes," coolly replied Jonathan.

"Why," snarled the customer, "I can get good cider here for five cents a glass."

"No you can't," drawled the Yankee.

"There ain't a pint of cider 'cep what I've got in that barrel, this side of Orleans."

"I know better," retorted the purchaser; "I bought a glass not half an hour ago, and paid five cents for it."

"I'd like to know where you effected that small transaction," inquired the Yankee.

"Right round here," was the answer.

"I guess it was right round here; right round where, I'd like to know," continued the cider seller.

"Why, close by here, somewhere. Just back of your place," rejoined the customer.

"I will bet you ten drinks you didn't," said the Yankee, "and will go right round and see."

"Done!" responded the customer, and off they started.

Sure enough, "right round here," they found another establishment in full clash. A second Yankee had rigged an awning behind the first Yankee's shed—and tapped the rear end of the aforesaid cider barrel through a board, and was retailing it at five cents a glass, to a perfect rush of customers.

At a dinner party Erskine was seated near Miss Henrietta—commonly called Miss Henne—who had been celebrated for her beauty, but was then somewhat past the meridian of life. "They say you're a great man for making puns," said Miss Henne to the wit; "could you make a pun on me?" "Ah, Henne," was the cruel rejoinder, "ye are no chick."

THE FIRE ZOUAVES.
A PAINFUL REPORT CORRECTED.

Sergeant Frank H. Marshall of the New York Zouaves, who left Alexandria on Monday, called upon us Tuesday to correct the report that two of the Zouaves were to be shot for desertion. Only one man, private Briggs of Company A has deserted. He hearing that his wife was dead, and being unable to obtain his discharge, ran away, and has not been taken. The reported deserters were four men, two of whom had been arrested and put in the guard house for petty offenses, and stripped of their uniforms and then sent adrift—the other two being those who, having refused to take the oath, had also been deprived of their uniforms and discharged. These were arrested by the 71st regiment, at the Baltimore and Ohio Depot, under the supposition that they were deserters, and returned to the Zouave camp. But they were subsequently released, and went to Washington. The report of the refusal of the Zouaves to officiate at the execution is, therefore, unfounded.

Private Buckley was shot on Saturday night by Lieut. Dowd, of Company D, for attempting his life. The Lieutenant caught him attempting to leave the Guard-House, and attempted to stop him, when he raised a musket and snapped at him. He was shot dead in his tracks. The statement that a member of the regiment is under arrest and to be shot for an attempt at rape in Alexandria, is untrue. The Zouaves are in good health, but very much depressed in spirits about the loss of their gallant commander. Col. May of this city will probably be tendered the command, Lieut. Col. Farnham feeling that he is not experienced enough to assume so grave a responsibility. Lieut. Col. Farnham is very much liked by his men, and they all regret that he does not feel willing to assume the place left vacant by the lamented Ellsworth.—N. Y. Tribune.

GREAT JOKE.

A representative of one of the Five Great Powers, met Mr. Seward on Monday, just as he was coming out of his room on his way to dinner. Of course the diplomat was invited to walk in. He declined, saying, "Oh, no; I only called to tell you a good joke. One of our captains has just arrived, and says that when he reached Charleston and went to my Consul's office and inquired for the Consul, he was told that he was drilling his company. What company? inquired the captain of the ship. Why one of the companies selected to march against Washington. The captain was greatly surprised, and mentioned the fact as evidence of the universal feeling of hostility which pervades Charleston."

Mr. Seward—What is the name of your Consul at Charleston?
Diplomat—
Mr. Seward (opening the door opposite where they were standing)—Mr. Assistant Secretary, draw up an order recalling exequatur issued in favor of ———, Consul at Charleston. There, that business is disposed of.

Diplomat—My God, Seward, you are not in earnest. I only told you the story as a good joke.
Mr. Seward—And I, Mr. ———, avail myself of the "Joke" to give you practical evidence of the manner in which we intend to deal with every Foreign Power and their representatives, whenever they interfere, directly or indirectly, between us and the Traitors in rebellion against our government. The exequatur of your Consul is recalled and the place vacant; and I sincerely hope that no imprudence on the other side of the Atlantic will compel me as summarily to terminate the very pleasant relations now existing with all the members of the Diplomatic Corps. Your Government understands us and is always friendly; but it may become our duty to prove to others that we are in earnest not to permit interference in this domestic quarrel.

Southerners slain at Charleston.—Mr. S. M. Brooks, a Massachusetts gentleman well known to several of our citizens as a person of unquestioned veracity, arrived in this city on Saturday night, having escaped from Fort Moultrie in an open boat, and managed to get aboard a schooner which carried him to New York. He states that he and his brother were imprisoned in the Confederate service, and were placed in Fort Moultrie, where they assisted in working the guns during the attack on Fort Sumter.

He says that he will take a solemn oath that from six to seven hundred men were killed in that fort during the engagement.
Ten days ago he saw a schooner in the offing, and, managing to steal a skiff, put for her. After he had got some distance from the Fort he was discovered, and five or six shots were fired at him, but he escaped to the schooner, and reached New York. The above statement may be relied on.—Palladium.

The Boston Herald says that, during the fast day sermon of Rev. Dr. Stone of that city, which was a political one of course, there was a tumultuous burst of applause from a large number of persons present. The deacons were shocked, as well they might be, and the sexton turned pale as a ghost. "Is this the House of God?" mildly inquired an old lady from the suburbs. "Marm," was the reply she got from the party addressed, "This is the church of the Rev. Dr. Stone."

At a town meeting held in Clatham on Saturday the sum of $1000 was voted for the families of volunteers.

SATURDAY, JUNE 1, 1861.

WAR NEWS OF THE WEEK.

A large body of Ohio troops have crossed the Ohio river into Virginia. Their destination is Grafton, at the junction of the Baltimore and Ohio and Northwestern railroads. Five regiments of Pennsylvania troops, under command of Gen. Patterson, are also directed to proceed to the same place, by way of Harrisburg and Chambersburg. On Sunday last there were 2500 Secession troops at Grafton, and more were constantly arriving from Harper's Ferry. It is not expected that they will show fight.

The rebels near Harper's Ferry are trying to destroy the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. They have succeeded in dislodging an immense rock, weighing sixty tons, which rolled down on to the track, and some dispatches say into the canal. It can be moved out of the way easily, at the expense of a few hours work, and a few kegs of gunpowder. Several of the railroad bridges have been destroyed, and threats were made against the splendid iron bridge at Monocacy, but Gov. Hicks has sent a strong guard of Maryland troops to protect it.

Troops are arriving at Richmond from the South at the rate of 500 a day. About 15,000 soldiers are at Richmond, according to the latest reports. Beauregard is also coming—coming—coming. Alexandria is now in charge of Col. E. B. Wilcox, of the Michigan Volunteers. The Union flag is over the Marshall House, were Col. Ellsworth was shot. Printers from Col. Wilcox's regiment do all the printing that is required—proclamations, orders, &c. They talk of starting a Union newspaper. Citizens of Alexandria are leaving for the South every day, accompanied by their families and servants.

John C. Fremont has been appointed Major-General.
Two Zouaves have been shot as deserters. Their companions refused to fire upon them, and a file of marines was detailed to perform the painful duty.

The greater part of the Zouaves are good soldiers and submit to discipline, but a few of them—perhaps one in ten—are very disorderly. The latter class is diminishing in numbers every day.

A citizen of Baltimore has offered a battalion and battery of four 12 pounders to the War Department.
Six additional regiments have been accepted from Indiana.

The southern mail service is to day discontinued. It is of no use to send letters to southern friends now—they will be sent to the Dead Letter office.

A special dispatch from Gen. Butler states that he has 135 negroes at work. They are most of them well informed concerning the state of the country, and think Gen. Butler's opinion that they are "contraband" about the right thing. Gen. Butler asks the President to determine what shall be done with them. It is not at all probable that they will ever be returned to a state of "chains and slavery." Some of the negroes expected to find Gen. Butler and his army colored like themselves, and were not a little astonished to find them white men.

The following from the New Orleans Picayune explains itself:
AND STILL THEY COME!—We are just informed that that lousy little bee of a privateer, the V. H. Ivy, is towing in from the sea as a prize under letters of marque, a large ship name unknown.

One of our Connecticut vessels has also been captured and taken into Apalachicola. She is the schooner, W. C. Atwater, Capt. Allen, of New Haven.

However, by the 15th of June every southern port will be blockaded, as the naval force will then be sufficient. That service has already been performed for New Orleans, according to a reliable telegraphic dispatch dated May 28.

Eighty thousand troops will rendezvous at Cairo, for the purpose of making an attack on Memphis.

We take the following from the New York Times of Friday:
It is evident from the tenor of our advices from Washington this morning, that the Government is about to make another important forward movement into Virginia, but in what direction, is of course, known only to those who direct. The New York Regiments which have recently reached the Capital, including the Ninth, which has a splendid engineer corps attached, and the Garibaldi Guard, which is composed in great part of veterans of several of the European wars, have received intimations that their services will be immediately required on important duty, and the regiments of the District volunteers last night were ordered under arms, with directions to make preparations for a long march. It is stated, also, that eleven steamers are at the Washington Navy-yard, laying in stores and munitions of all kinds, the destination of which is at present a mystery. It is probable that a demonstration will be made upon Centreville, where about four thousand rebel troops are stationed, and which is a point of considerable importance. Meantime our troops at Alexandria have commenced throwing up entrenchments about a mile to the west of that city, to command the approaches, in anticipation of a possible demonstration from the rebels of Manassas Gap Junction, which has been threatened.

The Middletown Sentinel is the meanest Secession paper published north of Mason & Dixon's line. Its columns abound in falsehood, calumny and treason. It is cowardly, having several times been scared into publishing loyal words—but a loyal patriotic heart, the editor never had nor will have. We will give a brief synopsis of the contents of this week's Sentinel. The judicious movement of the government in seizing telegraph dispatches is called "Another Usurpation." The Democrats of Middlesex County are libelled by the assertion that they are opposed to the war of aggression upon the seceded States. The Republicans are also libelled, called Abolitionists, and "fighting for the doom of slavery." The editor, with consummate impudence, denies his own words and makes the most reckless assertions. One article, we have searched through repeatedly without finding one grain of truth, but only monstrous and palpable falsehoods. The caution which Secretary Seward takes in granting passports to citizens of the Confederate States is called an outrage. In the style of the Charleston Mercury, the consumption of cotton in England is gravely stated, and the probability that Great Britain will submit to have the supply stopped is discussed! Curious reader don't be anxious to see the newspapers of the traitors; the Sentinel is their brother, and just like them, only idiotic.

The Sentinel man boasts that he made a week's travel through Middlesex County and found the Democrats all traitors. We passed a day in Middletown, and found them all patriots, and, as a duty, discontinuing their subscriptions to the Sentinel, and withdrawing their advertisements from that unclean sheet.

In an article in the Litchfield Enquirer, on the "Great Degeneracy of our Common Schools," we find the following delicious bit:
"A low-born and uneducated Irish boy is allowed to speak a dialogue, in which he takes the part of a husband, with the pretty daughter of a highly refined and accomplished gentleman—as a wife! Were there but the remotest suspicion of the possibility of the situation of the play becoming real, who would so quickly resent it as the father of the aforesaid damsel? Who would mourn so deeply as her mother? But they do not reflect that the truth of the old proverb concerning the danger of "playing with edged tools," has never yet been controverted, and the jest of to-day may become the earnest of to-morrow."

We should suppose at first sight that the above was from the columns of some Virginia newspaper, especially as in the course of the article we find such grammatical errors as "a knowledge of the Latin, Greek and Hebrew languages, and the higher Mathematics were essential qualifications for the teacher of a first class district school." Seriously, we are sorry to find a Litchfield County man talking of "the poor, the middle classes, and the wealthy." We will admit that there are two classes—the people and the asses, to the last of which the writer from whom we have quoted belongs.

The same Southern papers that applauded the disgraceful assault of Brooks on Senator Sumner, are now exalting the base murderer of Col. Ellsworth to a place among the martyrs. The Richmond Examiner, discoursing of "the invasion of the "sacred soil of Virginia," or in other words the capture of Alexandria, uses the following language:
One trait of true heroism has signalized this unhappy affair. A citizen of Alexandria, named Jackson, lacked the prudence to haul down the flag of his country, which streamed over his dwelling. That band of execrable cut-throats and jail-birds, known as the "Zouaves of New York," under the chief of all scoundrels, called Col. Ellsworth, surrounded the house of this Virginian, and broke open the door to tear down the flag of the South. The courageous owner of that house neither fled nor submitted. He met the favorite hero of every Yankee there in his hall, he alone, against the odds, and shot him through the head. As a matter of course, the man was surrounded by a mob of soldiers, and he met pieces with sword bayonets, on the spot, in his own violated home. But he died a death which emperors might envy, and his memory will live in history, and in the hearts of his countrymen, through endless generations. Here, indeed, was courage! The true courage, that would not yield or swerve before millions. He stood by his flag; he fell alone in defense of his hearth, and taught the invader what soil he trod on.

A CHANCE.
When President Lincoln's first proclamation for troops was read to the secessionists at Montgomery it was received with "shouts of laughter." Now "President" Davis has issued a proclamation for a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer, being petitioned thereto by the same gentlemen who were lately so hilarious.

POLICE COURT.—Our confidence in saints is greatly diminished, for, strange as it may seem, Saint Oliver, as he is called, was yesterday arrested and tried before Justice Attwood for an attempt to rescue a pair of old stags from our heyward—Mr. Scovil—who was going to pound with them. A very interesting trial. Clark for the plff. and Phelps for the dft. The Court gave a judgment that the defendant pay $4 and cost—in all $9 24. Now we would like to know why they call him St. Oliver! R. C.

The Savage Revolving Fire Arms Co., of Middletown, have purchased the buildings of the Bacon Rower Company, and are going to enlarge their force in making their weapons. Charles R. Alsop has patented a seven shooter, and is going to work at their manufacture immediately.

Messrs. Gillette & Beckwith have just completed a handsome carriage for Mrs. Griswold of Lyme. Great care has been taken in its construction, and the workmen employed on it are among the best in the State. Messrs. Gillette & Beckwith have but recently come into this village. They are from New Haven, and we are happy to state that they have about as much work as they can attend to.

The schooner J. Goodspeed was run into and sunk by the steamer John Brooks, while passing through Hurl Gate on Wednesday last. The John Brooks was somewhat damaged about the pilot house by the masts of the schooner, which were carried away, falling across her.

The J. Goodspeed is a fine schooner of 150 tons built in this place a few years since by Messrs. G. E. & W. H. Goodspeed who still retain a small interest in her, the balance being owned by the Captain and others of Norwich, from which port she now sails. Mr. G. E. Goodspeed left for New York yesterday evening to arrange for raising and repairing the schooner. It is supposed the steamer is liable for the damage.

Henry Dutton of New Haven, has been elected Judge of the Supreme Court of Errors in place of Hon. W. W. Ellsworth retired. The principal competitors were Loren P. Waldo of Tolland, and Charles J. McCurdy of Lyme.

We find the following tough yarn in the Courant:
Mary W. Dennis, 6-foot 2 inches high, is 1st lieutenant of the Stillwater Company, Minnesota Regiment. She baffled even the inspection of the surgeon of the regiment in discovering her sex, but was recognized by a St. Paul printer, who became shockingly frightened at her threats of vengeance upon him if he exposed her and decamped.

Mr. Samuel House of Haddam Neck, died on Wednesday aged 62. Mr. House was a prominent member of the Methodist Church, to which and to his large family, and to the neighborhood in which he has so long resided, his death will prove a severe loss.

DIED.

Prize Poetry.
Let chieftains boast of deeds in war,
And minstrels tune their sweet guitar,
A nobler theme my heart it fills—
In praise of HERRICK'S MATCHLESS PILLS.
Their cures are found in every land—
Amid Russia's snows and Africa's sand,
Their wondrous works the papers fill,
Produced by HERRICK'S MATCHLESS PILLS.
Does disease afflict you? Do not doubt
This charming compound will search it out;
And health again your system fill,
If you fly at once to HERRICK'S PILLS.
They're safe for all—both old and young—
Their praises are on every tongue;
Disease, 'tis said, no longer kills,
Since we are blessed with HERRICK'S PILLS.

THOMAS ADAMS, Marble Manufactory,
CORNER TEMPLE AND MARKET STREETS.
Hartford, Conn.

THE best assortment of Foreign and American Marble and Free Stone and Granite for Monuments. Patterns of every variety, unique and tasteful, combining beauty and durability. Persons wishing to procure monuments or any kind of marble work are invited to call and give a personal inspection of his material and workmanship, as this will be found more satisfactory than purchasing of agents, without an opportunity to test the quality of the article contracted for.—The material used in this establishment is the best quality, the most durable, and the highest cost, and will not, like some of the inferior qualities, crumble in a few years by exposure to our changeable climate. The lettering and ornamental work is superintended by the proprietor, and he can warrant it to give entire satisfaction. 3m51

FARM FOR SALE.

WE the subscribers, offer for sale the homestead farm formerly owned by Mr. Horatio Cone, late of East Haddam, deceased; situated in said East Haddam, about half a mile from East Haddam Landing, and contains about 70 acres of good mowing, pasture and plow land, with a two story dwelling house and two barns thereon and a good variety of apple and pear trees. It is well watered and fenced. Will also sell about seven acres of wood-land, situated near Moodus village; also about 3 or 4 acres of meadow land in the Cove meadow. THE MIGHTY CONQUELOR!

Disease Baffled—Sickness Cured!!

CERISIAUX'S RHEUMATIC ANTIDOTE.

or, Nature's Universal Remedy. BOTH FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE. IN the speedy relief and cure of Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pains in the Chest, Side, Back or Face; Sprains, Strains, or Britches; N. V. or S. Sick Headache; Languor or Faintness; Sore Throat; Cramp in the Neck, Shoulders, Stomach or Bowels; Colic, Summer Complaint, Worms, Diarrhoea, Fever and Ague, Cold Lame or Sore Feet, Frost-bites, chilblains, Bunions and Corns, Erysipelas, Pimples, Blotches, Salt Rheum, Scurvy, Prickly Heat, Stings of Insects, &c.

Since the science of medicine first dawned upon the world, there has not been probably any preparation so universal and efficacious in its application and adaptability to cure disease, as CERISIAUX'S ANTIDOTE. For the certain and speedy relief, and almost infallible cure for every complaint above named, together with numerous others, this medicine is unrivaled by anything heretofore discovered. In thousands of instances where it has been applied, strictly a solitary case has occurred where it has failed to effect almost immediate relief. For this terrible scourge, in every instance where it has been used, it has effected prompt relief, by simply gargling the throat with the diluted medicine, and applying it externally. Nothing has yet equalled it for this distressing complaint. As a HOUSEHOLD MEDICINE, NO FAMILY SHOULD BE WITHOUT IT FOR A SINGLE DAY. It cannot be too highly recommended to all. Try it, and be convinced. Sold by all druggists. STARR & CO., New London, Ct., Sole Agents. 6m-3

THE DIPHTHERIA.

Important to Housekeepers,
Mingy's Patent Anti-Dripping MOLASSES PITCHER.

WE have just received a large invoice of this new and valuable article. Every housekeeper should set aside the old Molasses Cup (or throw it out of the window) which soils more clean Table Cloths than any other article on the table, and purchase one of the NEW PITCHERS, which prevents all dripping and dropping of Molasses. As we have the entire control of this article, we shall offer inducements to parties wishing to introduce it into any of the States. Persons out of business at this time, and wishing something to do will find that the

DR. M'LANE'S Celebrated American WORM SPECIFIC, OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eyelid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a knawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fretting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hicough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,

DR. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE
Will certainly effect a cure.

The universal success which has attended the administration of this preparation has been such as to warrant us in pledging ourselves to the public to

in every instance where it should prove inefficacious; "providing the symptoms attending the sickness of the child or adult should warrant the supposition of worms being the cause." In all cases the Medicine to be given IN STRICT ACCORDANCE WITH THE DIRECTIONS.

DR. M'LANE'S Celebrated American WORM SPECIFIC, OR VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eyelid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furred tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a knawing sensation of the stomach, at others, entirely gone; fretting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times costive; stools slimy; not unfrequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult, and accompanied by hicough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,

DR. M'LANE'S VERMIFUGE
Will certainly effect a cure.

The universal success which has attended the administration of this preparation has been such as to warrant us in pledging ourselves to the public to

in every instance where it should prove inefficacious; "providing the symptoms attending the sickness of the child or adult should warrant the supposition of worms being the cause." In all cases the Medicine to be given IN STRICT ACCORDANCE WITH THE DIRECTIONS.

We pledge ourselves to the public, that

Dr. M'Lane's Vermifuge
Will certainly effect a cure.

It cures Rheumatism, Ague in the Breast and Face, Tooth Ache, Ear Ache, Bilious Colic, Cholera, Cholera Morbus, Broken Bones and Dislocated Joints, Cuts, Bruises, Fresh Wounds of all kinds, Old Sores, Corns, Burns, Frezors, Sprains, Cramps, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Neuralgia, Erysipelas, or Oriel in the Neck, Piles, Spinal Complaints, Salt Rheum, Cracked or Chapped Hands, Corns and Chibblains.

It cures on Hoarses:

Bone Spavins, Splint, Windgalls, Bay and Blood Spavin, Scrotchies, Galls and Sores of all kinds, Fistulas, Corks, Gravel, Founder, Botis, Dry Botis, Achil's, Cholic, &c.

Hundreds of Horses, with the Cholera, have been saved by giving only a pint or half a pint of the Liniment.

A host of "Cures" are given in the Free from Enquirer Medical Faculty, and from well known Horsemen from all parts of the Union, might be given showing the superiority of McEckron's Liniment, over all other external remedies; but a fair trial is better proof to the afflicted than a volume of recommendations. Selling 4 cents bottles for 25 cents; 12 cures for 50 cents; and in Quart bottles for only one dollar.

SELDENS COLUMN.

AWAY WITH PAIN! McEckron's CELEBRATED LINIMENT

TRIUMPHANT!

It is truly the greatest medical discovery of the age, and never fails to cure when applied according to directions. It has triumphed where all other external applications have failed to have any beneficial effect. An infallible Remedy for all diseases of Individuals and Horses requiring an external and in many cases an internal application. It is used by every class of Men; and by every Nation. No remedy was ever found to be as reliable, convenient and effectual for the Livery Stable, as McEckron's Liniment; as no pain or soreness can exist where it is used.

Selling by all Dealers throughout the Union. Beware of imitations.

For the Healing of the Nations. The World's Great Remedy.

TRIUMPHANT!

The best remedy must triumph, and one great proof of the excellence of "McEckron's Liniment" is its immense sale, and the secret of success is real merit. It is used in thousands of families because a single trial has proved it to be the most effective External Medicine in the world. It is the King of Pain, and never fails of curing or greatly benefiting, when applied according to the directions. Selling by all Dealers.

"Behold I bring you Glad Tidings."

TRIUMPHANT!

The trial has been fair, and the people have rendered a just verdict. "McEckron's CELEBRATED LINIMENT," the World's Great Remedy, stands foremost and without a rival in the immense catalogue of Medicines. It has by its "certificates" or by bought proofs, it has by its success alone taken the lead of all other like remedies, and stands triumphant. It has met the approval of many of the most eminent of the Medical Faculty; the press are loud in its praise; and the greatest Horsemen, Farriers and Stage Proprietors in the Union, will use no other Medicine.

Will you—can you doubt its merit? If so, give the article a trial; as a fair trial will convince the most skeptical. Selling by all Dealers.
