The following poem is from the pen of Johann Peter Hebel, the very popular poet, the centenary of whose birthday was celebrated in May, 1861, by the Germans:

SUNDAY MORNING.
"Well," Sunday to Sunday said,
"The people now have gone to bed;
All, after toiling through the week,
Right willingly their rest would seek;
Myself can hardly stand alone,
So very weary I have grown."
His speech was echoed by the bell,
And on his midnight couch he fell;
And Sunday now the watch must keep,
So, rising from his pleasant sleep,
He glides, half-dozing, through the sky,
To tell the world that morn is nigh.

He rubs his eyes—and none too late,
Knocks aloud at the sun's bright gate;
She* slumbered in her silent hall,
Unprepared for his early call.
Sunday exclaims, "thy hour is nigh!"
"Well, well," says she, "I'll come by-and-by."

Gently, on tip-toe, Sunday creeps—
Cheerfully from the stars he creeps—
Mortals are all asleep below—
None in the village hears him go;
E'en chancier keeps very still—
For Sunday whispered "twas his will."

Now the world is awake and bright,
After refreshing sleep all night;
The Sabbath morn in sunlight comes,
Smiling gladly on all our homes,
He has a mild and happy air—
Bright flowers are wreathed in his hair.

He comes, with soft and noiseless tread,
To rouse the sleeper from his bed;
And tenderly he pauses near,
With looks all full of love and cheer,
Well pleased to watch the deep repose
That lingers till the morning rose.

How gently shines the early dew,
Loading the grass with its silver hue!
And freshly comes the fragrant breeze,
Dancing among the cherry trees;
The bees are humming all so gay—
They know not it is Sabbath day.

The cherry blossoms now appear—
Fair heralds of a fruitful year;
There stands upright the tulip proud,
Bethlehem stars around her crowd,
And hyacinths of every hue—
All sparkling in the morning dew.

How still and lovely all things seem!
Peaceful and pure as an angel's dream!
No rattling carts are in the streets;
Kindly each one his neighbor greets:
"It promises right fair, to-day!"
"Yes, praised be God—'tis all they say."

The birds are singing! come behold
Our Sabbath morn, all bathed in gold;
Ere the sun's calm, celestial light
Among the flowers so sweet and bright!
The pretty goldfinch leads the row,
As if her Sunday-robe to show.

Mary, pluck those auricles, pray,
And don't shake the yellow dust away;
Here, little Ann, are some for you—
I'm sure you want a nosegay, too.
The first bell rings. "Away! away!
We will go to church to-day!"

*Sun is feminine in the German language.

TROUBLES OF A BISHOP:
The last English papers tell a good story about our energetic and investigating friend Du Chaillu, which recalls another turning on the same hinge. We will tell ours first, and the late arrival's second.

Mrs. J. C. Loudon, widow of the celebrated landscape gardener, took a great delight in protracting the favorite studies of her husband's life. On one occasion, wishing to make some researches in the department of arboriculture, she wrote to the Duke of Wellington for permission to see his Waterloo beeches (the celebrated avenue planted on his estate to commemorate his greatest victory.) Mrs. Loudon's chirography was none of the most legible—so that when the Duke read her letter he mistook beeches for breeches, and supposed the epistle a request for the inspection of that indispensable garment worn by him on the field of Waterloo. At the signature he was again deceived. The u in Mrs. Loudon's name he took for an n, and accordingly read the whole signature "J. C. Loudon," which was none other than that of the Bishop of London himself. Accordingly; though much astonished at such a desire on the part of a grave ecclesiastical dignitary, he wrote him in answer a note, which we may imagine created equal astonishment in the recipient:

"My Lord: My valet tells me that the breeches I wore at the battle of Waterloo were long ago given away to Mr. Benjamin Robert Haydon, for the purposes of his historical painting. Regretting deeply that I have not the breeches to show your lordship, I remain your lordship's very humble servant,"

"WELLINGTON."

So much for that story. Now for the one about Du Chaillu, which suggested it:

"The Bishop of Oxford asked him to breakfast the other day, and a large party to meet him, but he never came. Upon coming across him the same afternoon the bishop rebuked him for his non-appearance. 'I had no invitation,' said Du Chaillu. 'I wrote it myself, and left it with my own hands at your house,' returned his lordship. 'Nay, my lord, I only received one invitation for this day, and that was from some impudent fellow whom I don't know.' Now," said the hardy explorer, 'I never go to breakfasts where I don't know the people who give them. Oh! here is the man's letter, and his name too—Oxon, some Mr. Oxon, with whom I have no acquaintance whatever."

From all of which we learn that bishops had better keep any good surname they may have had like other people.

DEATH OF CAPT. JAMES H. WARD.
Our despatches to-day announce the death of Capt. James H. Ward of the United States Navy. Captain Ward was killed by the rebels during an action at Matthias Point, Virginia, yesterday.

Captain Ward was the eldest son of the late Col. James Ward, a prominent citizen of Hartford, Connecticut, and was born in that city in the year 1806. He entered the navy March 4th, 1823, and made his first cruise as a midshipman in the Constitution, under Commodore McDonough, with whom he sailed four years in succession. He was promoted to a lieutenant, and was in the ship which carried John Randolph as United States Minister to Russia. He was then attached for sometime to the Mediterranean squadron.

Shortly after his promotion as a first lieutenant, he was sent to the African squadron, and remained on the coast of Africa most long enough, as he used to say himself, to become acclimated. Once, during this time, he was prostrated with a terrible cold fever, and his life was in danger. But he lived to come home and return again as a commander of the United States squadron, and for an effective service in the capture of several slaves.

More recently he has cruised as commander of the Vixen in the Gulf squadron. He has been actively and almost constantly in service, and his leisure years on shore have been occupied in writing valuable works on naval tactics, gunnery, and steam as applied to naval purposes, and he has added several ingenious and valuable inventions to the ordinance of our navy. For a period he held a professorship in the Naval School at Annapolis, and some four years ago was appointed to the position of commander of the receiving ship North Carolina at Brooklyn Navy Yard.

This position, gratifying as it was to Commander Ward and to his friends, was at once promptly resigned when he felt that he could render more essential service to his country in a position of more active duty. He suggested to his fellow-townsmen, the Secretary of the Navy, the effective service that could be rendered by the fitting out of a steam flotilla of light draught, and upon his recommendation, early in May, the Thomas Freeborn and three other small propellers were purchased for the navy and fitted out as gunboats. This flotilla was commissioned May 16, and James Ward was appointed commander. On that day he left the North Carolina, his men mounting the rigging and giving him hearty cheers, and all the officers at the yard, on the wharf to see him sail.

He sailed that night to join the squadron in Chesapeake Bay. On his arrival Saturday, before reporting himself to Commodore Stringham, he opened fire on the rebel battery at Sewall's Point, and with the Star and other vessels silenced the battery and drove out the rebels. He then reported himself, and was sent by the Commodore with despatches to Washington, and on his way he captured two prizes, with fifty prisoners, and carried them into Washington.

Since then he has been one of the most active and energetic officers in the squadron. The telegraph to-day brings the account of his last engagement.

His appointment as a commander was dated September 9, 1853. He has been familiarly spoken of since the Sewall's Point affair; as Captain Ward, and there is no doubt but that his commission to a full captaincy would have dated from that day.

Commander Ward was married in 1822 to a daughter of Mr. Samuel Whittemore, of this city. Of his children; his oldest and youngest sons are with their mother in Germany. His second son was his clerk, and left the North Carolina to join his father at Washington a week ago.

His brother, Mr. Wm. A. Ward, of this city, received the announcement of his death this noon, and immediately left for Washington.

Commander Ward's death has created a profound sensation. He was endeared to a large circle of friends at Annapolis, Hartford and in this city—not only personal friends, but those his brilliant conduct has won for him the past few weeks. But, as one of the nearest of these friends remarked this noon—"His death is a shock, but we have expected it; the position that Captain Ward would take in an engagement would necessitate his death if any one or board was killed. He would be in the place of danger." A fitting eulogy for so brave a man!

In his religious belief Commander Ward was a devout Catholic and a consistent Christian.

Commander Ward was one of the best educated men in the Navy. Before his appointment as a midshipman he was for two years a student in the Norwich, Vermont, University, (Captain Partridge's military school,) and after he entered the navy he passed a year of leave in Washington (now Trinity) College. He was an indefatigable student all his life.

He was possessed of a handsome property left to him by his father, and just before he sailed on the Freeborn his brother-in-law effected an insurance of $5,000 on his life at the Mutual Life office in this city.

THE INSECT OF A DAY.
Translated from the French.
Aristotle says that upon the river Hyberis exist little animals who live only one day. Those who die at eight in the morning, die in their youth; those who die at five o'clock in the evening in a state of decrepitude.

Suppose one of the most robust of these Hypanians as old, according to these nations, as time itself; he would have begun to exist at the break of day, and through the strength of his constitution, would have been enabled to support an active life during the infinite number of seconds contained in ten or twelve hours.

During so long a succession of instants, by his own experiences and by his reflections on all he had seen, he must have acquired great wisdom; he looks upon his fellows who were died at noon as creatures happily freed from the great number of instants which old age is subject. He will have to relate to his grandsons an interesting tradition of facts anterior to all the memories of all the nation. The young Hypanian, composed of beings who have aged but an hour, approach the venerable patriarch with respect, and listen with admiration to his instructive discourses. Everything he relates to them, appears a prodigy to this generation whose life has been so short. A day appears to them the entire duration of time, and the dawn of day would be called, in their chronology, the great era of their creation.

Suppose now that the venerable insect, the Nestor of the Hypanis, a short time before his death, about the hour of sunset, assembles all his descendants, his friends and acquaintances, to give them, with his dying breath, his last advice. They gather from all parts under the vast shelter of a meadow, and the dying sage addresses them in the following manner:

Friends and compatriots, I feel that the longest life must have an end. The term of mine has arrived, and I do not regret my fate, since my great age has become a burden to me, and there is nothing new under the sun for me. The revolutions and calamities that have desolated my country, the great number of particular accidents to which we are all subject, the infirmities that afflict our species, and the misfortunes which have happened in my own family, all that I have seen in the course of a long life, has only too well taught me this great truth, that happiness, placed in things which do not depend upon ourselves, can never be certain and lasting. An entire generation has perished by a violent wind; a multitude of our imprudent youth have been swept into the water by an unexpected breeze. What terrible floods a sudden rain has caused! Our firmest shelters are not proof against a hail storm. A dark cloud causes the most courageous hearts to tremble.

I lived in the early ages, and conversed with insects of larger growth, of stronger constitutions, and I may say of greater wisdom than any of the present generation. I conjure you to give credit to my last words, when I assure you that the sun which now appears beyond the water, and which seems not far from the earth, I have seen in times past fixed in the middle of the heavens, its rays darting directly upon us. The earth was much lighter in past ages, the air much warmer, and our ancestors were more sober and more virtuous.

Although my senses are enfeebled, my memory is not; I can assure you that this glorious luminary moves. I have seen it rising over the summit of that mountain, and I began my life about the time that it commenced its immense career. It has, during several centuries, advanced in the heavens with an astonishing heat and brilliancy, of which you could have no idea, and which undesiredly you could not have supported; but now, by its decline, and the sensible diminution of its vigor, I foresee that all nature must shortly terminate, and that this world will be buried in darkness in less than a hundred minutes.

Alas! my friends, how I flattered myself at one time with the deceitful hope of always living on this earth! how magnificent were the cells I had hollowed out for myself! what confidence did I put in the firmness of my limbs, and in the elasticity of their joints, and in the strength of my wings! But I have lived long enough for nature and for glory, and none of those I leave behind me will have that same satisfaction in the century of darkness and decay that I see about to begin.

THE LADY AND THE ROBBER.
In a large, lonely house, situated in the south of England, there once lived a lady and her two maid-servants. They were far away from all human habitations, but they seemed to have felt no fear but to have dwelt there peacefully and happily. It was the lady's custom, with her maids, to go round the house every evening, to see if all the windows and doors were properly secured. One night she had accompanied them as usual, and found that all was safe. They left her in the passage close to her room, and then went to their own, which was quite at the outside of the house. As the lady opened the door, she distinctly saw a man under the bed. What could she do? Her servants were far away, and could not hear her if she screamed for help, and even if they had come to her assistance, these three weak women were no match for a desperate housebreaker. She closed the door, and locked it on the inside, which she was always in the habit of doing. She then leicarily brushed her hair, and putting on her dressing-gown, she took her Bible and sat down to read. She read aloud, and chose a chapter that had peculiar reference to God's watchfulness over us, and constant care of us by night and by day. When it was finished, she knelt and prayed at great length, still uttering her words aloud, especially commending herself and servants to God's protection, and dwelling upon their utter helplessness, and dependence upon Him to preserve them from all danger. At last she rose from her knees, put out her candle, and laid down in bed, but did not sleep. After a few minutes had elapsed, she was conscious that the man was standing by her bedside. He begged of her not to be alarmed.

"I came here to rob you, but after the words you have read, and the prayers you have uttered, no power on earth could induce me to hurt you, or touch a thing in your house. But you must remain perfectly quiet, and not interfere with me. I shall now give a signal to my companions, which they will understand and then we will go away and you may sleep in peace, for I give you my solemn word no one shall harm you, and the smallest thing belonging to you shall not be disturbed." He then went to the window, opened it, and whistled softly. Returning to the lady's side, who had not spoken or moved, he said, "Now I am going. Your prayer has been heard and no disaster will befall you." He left the room, and soon all was quiet, and the lady fell asleep, still upheld by that calm and beautiful faith and trust.

ADDITIONAL.—We have received an extract from a letter fully corroborating the remarkable anecdote of "The Lady and the Robber," and adding some facts that enhance the fact of her escape. We quote the words of the letter:

"In the first place, the robber told her that if she had given any alarm or token of resistance, he had fully determined to murder her; so that it was God's good guidance that told her to follow the course she took. Then, before he went away, he said, 'I must have the book you read out of, and carried off by my Bible, willingly enough given, or you may be sure. This happened many years ago, and only comparatively recently did the lady hear any more of him. She was attending a religious meeting in Yorkshire, where, after several noted clergy and others had spoken, a man arose, stating that he was employed as one of the book-hawkers of the Society, and told the story of the midnight adventure, as a testimony of the wonderful power of the word of God. He concluded, 'I am that man.' The lady arose from her seat in the hall, and said, quietly, 'It is all true; I am that lady.'—London Packet.

DR. MILLER'S DUCK STORY.
The Presbyterian of last week contained the following, in the shape of editorial matter. It is as funny as it is peculiar:

The late Dr. Miller, of Princeton as all his students will remember, abounded in anecdotes, which he related to his classes from year to year, to illustrate the points made in his lectures. One of them occurs to us, just now, as especially applicable to the new converts within the bounds of our circulation. A celebrated judge in Virginia, was, in his earlier years, skeptical as to the truth of the Bible, and especially as to the reality of experimental religion. He had a favorite servant, who had accompanied him in his travels around his circuit. As they went from the court-house, they frequently conversed on the subject of religion, the servant, Harry, venturing at times to remonstrate with his master against his infidelity. As the judge had confidence in Harry's honesty and sincerity, he asked him a great many questions as to how he felt and what he thought on various points. Among other things, Harry told his master that he was often very sorely tried and tempted by the devil. The judge asked Harry to explain to him how it happened that the devil attacked him (Harry), who was so pious a man, so sorely, while he allowed himself, who was an infidel and a sinner, to pass unnoticed and untempted.

Harry asked, "Are you right sure, master, that he does let you pass without troubling you?"

"Certainly I am," replied the judge; "I have no dealings with him at all. I do not even so much as know that there is such a being, he never troubles me."

"Well," said Harry, "I know that there is a devil, and that he tries me sorely at times."

A day or two afterwards, when the judge had gotten through his docket, he concluded to go on a hunt for wild ducks on one of the streams which lay across his road homeward. Harry accompanied him. As they approached the river, they espied a flock of ducks quietly floating on its surface. The judge stealthily crept up the bank and fired upon them, killing two or three and wounding as many others. He at once threw down his gun and made strenuous efforts, with the aid of clubs and stones, to secure the wounded ducks, while he permitted the dead ones to float on, for the time, unnoticed by him. Harry, as he sat on the seat of the carriage, watched his master's movements with deep interest, and when he returned, said to him,

"Massa, while you was a splashin' in de watah arter dem wounded ducks, and lettin' de dead ones float on, it jist come into my mind why it is dat de dabbil troubles me so much while he lets you alone. You are like de dead ducks; he's sure he's got you safe. I am like de wounded ones, tryin' to get away from him, and he's afraid I'll do it, so he jist makes 'im de fus: arter me, and lets you float down de stream. He knows he kin git you any time; but he knows it's now or never wid me. If you were to begid to flutter a little, and show signs like you were a goin' to g't away from him, he would make jist as big a splashin' arter you as he does arter me."

SELLING A THIN HORSE.
A jocosse Boston auctioneer was called upon one day by a country dealer from Vermont, who wished to dispose of his horse. He was one of those distinctive characters peculiar to the section with a countenance strangely indicative of both simplicity and shrewdness.

"I say," said he, "I want to see the auctioneer that auctions off horses here on Saturday."

"I'm the individual," said the auctioneer. "What can I do for you?"

"Well, I've got a horse I was goin' to sell, but I can't get enough for him, don't want nothing more than his value neither. He's a good one, though just now he's a little thin; but I reckon he ought to sell pretty smartly."

"Very good. Will you have him advertised?"

"Well, I guess I don't know about that. What do you say?"

"One dollar first insertion; fifty cents for every time after."

"That's tew dollars for three times. I reckon you may put him the newspaper once stranger, and after that let him slide."

"Very good. What color is he?"

"Rather brown than otherwise."

"Is he sound?"

"S'nd? Oh, sound as a dollar—shouldn't like to warrant him, though."

"All right; I'll advertise, and sell him on Saturday. Have your 'critter' at the mart by twelve o'clock."

"I jist want to tell you, Mr. Auctioneer, I should like to have the animal limited at fifteen dollars, but you may let him go for five."

"Exactly, and you won't take a deal more than is offered for him, you?"

"Well, no I'm not dispositioned hard, anyhow I calculate not."

Saturday came, and one dollar half was bid for the animal by the horse dealer.

"Go on, gentlemen; I have one more dollar and a half bid for the horse; much more do I hear? One dollar and half—going—going."

"Sell him, sir, he's dying," whispered the Vermont horse dealer into the ear of the knight of the hammer.

"Gone!" shouted the auctioneer, and down went the old horse at a dollar and a half.

After the sale, the horse dealer was the first one up to the desk to settle.

"Well, I reckon it won't take long to settle up this little trade of mine about the horse," said he.

"Not long," said the clerk; "there's your account of sale. You have to pay us jist fifty cents more than the horse brought."

"Political de-struction!" exclaimed the Vermontier, with a humorous affectation of astonishment. Then with a satisfied manner, he continued, "It's cheap enough! There's a fifty cent piece. Cheap enough! I couldn't gin him away at no price, and it would have cost tew dollars and a half to bury him. Jest a half dollar saved. Good morning Mr. Auctioneer. Cheap enough!"

THE NEW AND SPLENDID STEAMER

MARY BENTON,
 CAPT. GEORGE W. BATES.
 NOW completely finished and elegantly furnished throughout, has commenced her regular trips for the season, on the Hartford and Long Island route via New London as follows:
 Leaves Hartford, Tuesday's, Thursday's and Saturday's, at 8.30 A. M. stops at all River Landings, and New London, and arrives in Sag Harbor at 6 o'clock P. M.
 Returning, leaves Sag Harbor, Monday's, Wednesday's and Friday's at 7 o'clock A. M., stops at New London and River Landings, and arrives in Hartford at 5.30 P. M. Connecting each way with Shore Line R. R. at Lyme and Grenton.

THE MARY BENTON
 Is a new and beautiful steamer of 375 tons burthen built expressly for the route by Messrs. G. E. & W. H. Goodspeed, in the best possible manner, and for strength, speed, sea-going qualities, and passenger accommodations, is not surpassed by any steamer of her size in the United States; and with her experienced and obliging officers, it is confidently hoped she will meet with the approbation and liberal patronage of the public.

DAILY LINE, BETWEEN
 Goodspeeds Landing & Hartford,

WASHINGTON IRVING,
 CAPT. HANSON A. BATES.
 Leaves "Goodspeed's" every morning, (Sunday's excepted) at 7 o'clock.
 Leaves "Hartford" every afternoon, (Sunday's excepted,) at 2.30.
 THE "Washington Irving," having (at great expense) during the past winter been thoroughly repaired, much altered and greatly improved under the supervision of Mr. Abrams an experienced and accomplished steamboat builder of New York, she comes out at this time almost a new boat, with all the modern improvements in hull, engine and upper works, with cabins newly furnished and neatly painted, new carpets, &c., making her if possible more the "people's favorite."
 The officers of the "Irving," are the same as last year, who "never tire" in their efforts to please all that call on board.
 G. E. & W. H. GOODSPEED, Agents.
 Goodspeed's Landing, May 9, 1861. 5

FOR SALE.
 THE well-known steamer L. BOARDMAN now lying at Essex, Conn.
 The L. Boardman is a VERY FAST and first-rate passenger boat of 250 tons, with nearly new boiler and splendid powerful engine which together with all her furniture and fittings is in complete order for immediate use. Her owners having just completed their new and much larger boat the "Mary Benton," to take her place on the Hartford and Long Island route, now offer the L. Boardman for sale at a very low figure for a boat of her qualities and extraordinary speed.

At a Court of Probate holden at Lyme, within and for the District of Lyme, on the 15th day of June A. D. 1861.
 Present, MARSHFIELD S. PARKER, Esq., Judge.
 UPON the petition of William H. Ayer of E. Haddam in Middlesex Co., showing to this court that he is guardian of David B. Date, Ellen A. Date, Hiram H. Date and Frederick W. Date, minors of Lyme, within said District.—That said minors are the owners in common with Mary S. Spencer of certain real estate situated in said Lyme, and is bounded as follows viz: on the West and North by lands belonging to the heirs of Elisha Emerson, deceased, on the east by land of James L. Raymond and the heirs of Thaddeus H. Raymond deceased, and on the south by the highway; with a dwelling-house and barn thereon standing, valued at about Eleven hundred Dollars, and that in the opinion of the petitioner it will be for the interest of said minors to have said land sold and the avails thereof disposed of as the law directs, praying for liberty to sell said property for the purpose aforesaid as per petition on file. It is ordered by this court that said petition be heard at the Probate Office in this District, on the 2d day of August next at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and also directed that notice of the pendency of said petition be given by advertising in a newspaper published at least six weeks before the time of hearing and by posting a copy of this order on a public sign post in said Town of Lyme.
 Certified from Record.

THE SINGER SEWING MACHINES,
 BRANCH OFFICE
No. 9 Central Row, (Marble Blk.)
HARTFORD, CONN.
J. F. ELLIOTT, Agent.

THESE justly celebrated Machines are adapted to the use of FAMILIES and all kinds of manufacturing where stitching or sewing is done. We wish to have it distinctly understood that our Letter A Sewing Machines will sew on a variety of fabrics from the finest to the heaviest Beaver cloth. They hem, fell, and gather, in a neat and satisfactory manner. They are made more substantial, run easier, will last longer, are easier to learn to use, are LESS LIABLE TO GET OUT OF ORDER than any other machine in the market.
 Not one of these machines has ever failed to give perfect satisfaction. They are

The Machine for Families, Dress-makers, Tailoresses, and all who have a great variety of sewing to do. A new and improved Hammer is attached to every machine.

The Standard Machines!
For Manufacturing Purposes.
 These machines are extensively used in the manufacture of Clothing,
 Boots and Shoes,
 Hats and Caps,
 Carpet Bags,
 Harness,
 Carriages, &c.
 WITH GREAT PROFIT AND SUCCESS.

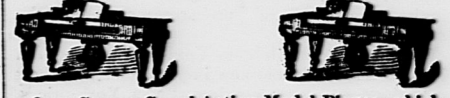

THE SINGER MACHINE
 Has earned an enviable reputation, not only throughout the United States, but in England, Scotland, Ireland, Russia, France, Cuba, Brazil, and in fact throughout the whole world.
 The great demand for these machines has induced us to open offices for their sale in most of the principal cities of foreign countries, and a large factory in France.

Elegant & Spacious Store in Marble Block, Central Row, for the exclusive sale of our machines.
 We shall be happy to receive a call from all who visit Hartford. We shall endeavor to show the admirable working qualities of our machines and explain the different points of superiority.
 We shall keep a large assortment of Machine Silk Twist,
 Linen and Cotton Thread,
 Machine Oil, Needles,
 and everything pertaining to sewing machines.

DR. McLANE'S CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS,
FOR THE CURE OF
Hepatitis or Liver Complaint,
DYSPEPSIA AND SICK HEADACHE.
Symptoms of a Diseased Liver.
PAIN in the right side, under the edge of the ribs, increase on pressure; sometimes the pain is in the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder blade, and it frequently extends to the top of the shoulder, and is sometimes mistaken for a rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, the bowels in general are costive, sometimes alternative with lax; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the back part. There is generally a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes an attendant. The patient complains of weariness and debility; he is easily startled, his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a prickly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low; and although he is satisfied that exercise would be beneficial to him, yet he can scarcely summon up fortitude enough to try it. In fact, he distrusts every faculty. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred where few of them existed, yet examination of the body, after death, has shown the LIVER to have been extensively deranged.
AGUE AND FEVER.
DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, IN CASES OF AGUE AND FEVER, when taken with Quinine, are productive of the most happy results. No better cathartic can be used, preparatory to, or after taking Quinine. We would advise all who are afflicted with this disease to give them a FAIR TRIAL.

AWAY WITH PAIN!
McEckron's CELEBRATED LINIMENT
It is truly the greatest medical discovery of the age, and never fails to cure when applied according to directions. It has triumphed where all other external applications have failed to have any beneficial effect. An infallible Remedy for all diseases of Individuals and Horses, requiring an external and in many cases an internal application. It is used by every class of Men, and by every Nat. Co. No remedy was ever found to be as reliable, convenient and effectual for the Livery Stable, as McEckron's Liniment; as no pain or soreness can exist where it is used.
Selling by all Dealers throughout the Union.— Beware of imitations.
For the Healing of the Nations.
The World's Great Remedy.
The best remedy must triumph, and one great proof of the excellence of McEckron's Liniment is its immense sale, and the success it has had in a single trial has proved it to be the most effective remedy for all the diseases of the world. It is the King of Remedies, and has no equal in the line of liniments, when applied according to the directions. Selling by all Dealers.
JOS. E. SELDEN,
Sole Proprietor,
East Haddam, Ct.

"Behold I bring you Glad Tidings."
The trial has been fair, and the people have rendered a just verdict. "McEckron's CELEBRATED LINIMENT," the World's Great Remedy, stands foremost and without a rival in the immense catalogue of Medicines. Unaided by bogus "certificates" or by bought puffs, it has by its merits alone taken the lead of all other like remedies, and stands triumphant. It has met the approval of many of the most eminent of the Medical Faculty; the press are loud in its praise; and the greatest Horsemen, Farriers and Stage Proprietors in the Union, will use no other Medicine.
Will you—can you doubt its merit? If so, give the article a trial; as a fair trial will convince the most skeptical. Selling by all Dealers.
JOSEPH E. SELDEN, Sole Proprietor,
East Haddam, Conn.

McEckron's Celebrated Liniment
It will do all that is claimed for it.—Bath, (Me.) Weekly Mirror.
All who have used it are loud in its praise.—Bath, (Me.) Gazette.
It is the best in the world.—Middletown Rein (Me.) Weekly Mirror.
It is the best of all other external remedies.—Northern Tribune, Bath, Me.
Has given it a trial and know that it is good.—Watfield (Mass.) News Letter.
We cheerfully recommend it as worthy a place in every household.—Home Journal, Gardiner, Me.
It is the best article now in use for either man or beast.—Fair Haven (Vt.) Tribune.
Present time that sells as readily and gives as universal satisfaction.—Bath (Me.), Daily Tribune.

THE BEST REMEDY MUST TRIUMPH!
A host of "certificates"—many from the Press, from eminent Medical Faculty, and from well known Horsemen from all parts of the Union, might be given showing the superiority of McEckron's Liniment, over all other external remedies; but a fair trial is better proof to the afflicted than a volume of recommendations. Selling 4 ounce bottles for 25 cents; 12 ounces for 50 cents; and in Quart bottles for only one dollar.
