MRS. BEECHER'S
Home School for Young Girls,
COS COB, CONN.

It is intended to offer here to a few girls, under fourteen, the unusual combination of an excellent school, with the special training in manners and morals that can only be found in a true and happy home.

The location is perfect with regard to health and to all its surroundings. In a small village on Long Island Sound, in the town of Greenwich, it is thirty miles from New York City, on the New York and New Haven Railroad, and near the larger town of Stamford.

The house, which is called the "Old Oak Homestead," has four acres of ground about it, is elevated, well drained, and within a few minutes' walk of the salt water.

There is accommodation for only twelve pupils. This gives the school a family character, and enables each pupil to receive in detail the necessary and loving attention required by her tender age.

This place, therefore, presents special advantages to those who are too young, too delicate, or too backward for the larger boarding schools, and also to those who are, for any reason, deprived of a mother's care.

Mrs. Beecher is an experienced and successful teacher, and has that love for children without which no one should undertake the instruction of the young. She is assisted by very able teachers, both in music and in the ordinary branches of learning, and the most approved methods of teaching are used.

The school is now in its tenth year.

The terms are $300 for the school year, which commences the middle of September and closes in June—to be paid in sums of $100 in the middle of each of the three terms. There are no extras except music and drawing. The pupils remain through the vacations for the entire year when it is desired.
