POETRY.

Payne Kenyon Kilbourne.

BY ALBERT STODDARD.

His harp is unstrung on the willows; His soul has ascended to God! He has safely passed over life's billows, And now rests in a heavenly abode!

The pen and the harp are now resting—
Their words and their music are hushed!
And friends are their sorrows attesting,
Not in words—but in hearts deeply crushed.

Hisspirit, here, filled with devotion To the Creator, the world and his race!
His pen, fired with kindly emotion,
Was used with effect and with grace!

Poesy mourns his transition,
For his was the bright path of song;
Now, he treads the fair fields of elysian,
Why weep that our brother has gone?

HISTORY grieves that his labors are ended, ART mourns that his efforts are o'er; Our sorrows with gladness are blended, The record he left was all pure!

He has passed from our midst, but his numbers Will enliven the heart's saddest thrill! While the grave claims humanity's slumbers, His memory is green with us still!

Though the wheel was broke at the cistern,
And death loosed life's silver cord—
Though the golden bowl failed at the fountain;
His spirit now rests with the Lord!

The Farmer's Girl.

The farmer's girl leads a happy life, As she trips o'er the grassy lawn; With an eye as bright and a step as light As that of the agile fawn.

The farmer's girl is a merry maid With cheeks of a rosy hue; She sits on the stile, a sweet sunny smile Darts out from her eye so blue.

There's a magic in her winsome roice That "drives dull care away ;' That "drives dull care away;"
She can scrub or scour, or at evening hour,
The sweet-toned harp can play.

She would grace the walls of a mansion high, Or the porch of a lowly cot;
She will make the home of her chosen one
A most delightful spot.

Young men! choose a wife 'mong the farmers

If happy in life you would be; They are gentle and kind, just to your mind, Sing! A Farmer's Girl for me.

Pike's Peak Humbug.

Mr. George Goss, of Jackson, Mich who has just returned from Pike's Peak has given us, says the American Citizen, a full account of how things are managed there. He says he was one of the first men in Gregory's diggings after the discovery was announced, and remained some three weeks. At the outset, the dirt was brought down from the mountains and yielded, apparently, This prospect induced him to buy a ceeds but a few steps, when he experiabout 15c to 30c per pan of fine gold .claim, and the day after he bought it the ences strange sensations. Mr. Greeley dined at their camp and made a speech there in the evening. Mr. Goss says that Greeley was less than one day in the "diggings," and and asks, liable to turn five days or so at Denver City. The reports of Mr. Greeley about seeing the gold dug, are very amusing to Pike's Peakers. It seems that speculators got hold of Greeley, and first took him to a claim "salted" with the pyrites or false gold where they washed their largest gings and they would find gold in it .-Greeley dug some earth and Gregory washed it. It yielded from ten to 15c per pan. Greeley was satisfied-so were the speculators; but Greeley's back was hardly turned when it leaked out that Gregory had the "gold" secreted in his sleeve, and allowed it to sift into the pan while he was washing the dirt .ly sold.

> ular agencies in the Territories and States, and carriers, who distribute all the big humbugs they manufacture to another. Mr. G. discredits the statements made in the letter of Warren Green, published three weeks ago, and for very satisfactory reasons. Green says he is going to buy up all the claims he can get and keep them, &c. Mr. Goss says the law of miners is that no man shall keep but one claim at a time, unless he discovers the "lead" when he may keep two claims. This and other things seem to cast a shade of doubt over Green's statements. Mr. Goss says there are hundreds of poor fellows there so much to say about the church being who are nearly starving and can get a good enough temperance society for nothing to do. The claim-owners do them, would go into the rum shops and not wish to hire for they cannot dig seek to win the lost into the church.good gold enough to board a man. "Sun-Struck"—A Cincinnati Panic.

The late dreadfully hot weather caused a number of cases of sun stroke in Cincinnati, and, says the Times, a panic on the subject ensued ;-every person taken sick, everybody in the least "under the weather" was pronounced affec-ted with sun-stroke and dealt with accordingly.

Mrs. Jones is troubled with the hippo. She walks down to Fifth street market one forenoon to buy a quart of blackberries, and after she had purchased the article she imagines serious internal derangement, and resting her head against the tail of a market wagon, gives one of her usual grievous grunts.

"What's the matter?" enquired fifty tongues.

Mrs. Jones is instantly seized and carried into the first drug store, and by the time she gets there she is satisfied in her own mind that she is sun-struck. Ice is applied to her head, wet rags are wrapped around her wrists, and an immense amount of ice water poured down her throat, while a gaping crowd press around her so closely as to prevent her from receiving fresh air. The poor woman is nearly killed, and finally conveyed home in a carriage, more dead than

Mr. Smith is a fat man. His corpulence is genuine, for he never indulges in strong drinks. The weather gets so hot, however, that Mr. Smith is in misery. He drinks ice-water until he is bloated into excrutiating misery. Contrary to his general habits, he persuades himself to try a change of drink He takes a cobbler. [For the benefit of the verdant, we will state that a cobbler is a mixture of strong liquors, sliced pineapple, or berries and ice.] The cob-bler proves refreshing to Mr Smith, particularly as he drinks it through a straw He feels it cooling him "all the way down." JAMES HUMPHREY, Jr., Editor.

Saturday, August 13, 1859.

Our Adien!

Having reached the end of his short but pleasant summer "engagement" with this paper, the Editor takes this opportunity, upon dissolving his connection with the Republican, to make his "obesiance" to the world of his readers, and as at the beginning, respectfully to lift his editorial beaver, and crave the indulgence and kind wishes of his present patrons.

To him the weeks have passed away swiftly and pleasantly, and if he has in any way contributed to the pleasure and profit of those for whom be has labored, his work will have been accomplished and his ambition attained. With this issue then, the Ed of Barkhamsted, by the Conn. Legislature. itor retires from the scene where he has played his brief part, and the curtain rises (next week,) under a new-or rather the old management.

And so we bid our friends and patrons, a hearty adiec from the editorial stage, andas the boy said, when the schoolmaster set him on a sharp stone-" Here then we rest."

Village im provements.

Ours is so prosperous a village, combin ing so many attractions for the visitor, and so numerous advantages for the resident, that a simple statement of some suggested improvements to render still more attractive and advantageous its natural prosperity, may be of some interest and importance to its inhabitants and to our readers generally.

And first, in order to its rapid advancement there is needed, we think, an augment ed degree of enterprise, which can be easily used and would be productive of almost unthought of benefit.

We have, it is known, or a company of which has only to be carried out, and made use of, to reap the greatest and most favorit, and to the community in which is lies.

The large and magnificent canal, whose beginnings are laid from the height of the great Fall of the Housatonic, and whose walls are formed of solid masonry, still lies untouched and unused, in the most advan tageous position which could be desired for works and manufactories of a size and now er to rival anything on the busy rivers which inter-penetrate and enrich our enter prising State. Something should be done to erect upon these sites some large and extensive factories, whether of woclen or cotton, of iron, paper or whatever else would seem best adapted to these ample resources. to increase the velocof unoccupied land and water privileges here, and pay the original stockholders and proprietors of the works.

And any or all of such manufactories would PAY, if any such will in the state; for aside from the great advantages of the water power itself, our position directly upon the line of a regular railroad, and our near proximity to some of the largest and most enterprising factories of various merchantile success, and the desirableness of a position, which shall be the centre of a flourishing and enterprising manufacturing commu-

There are other objects which would add largely to the advantage of the resident pastor of the church. population, and which could be obtained with comparatively small expense, and two of these are the introduction of, what has nowa-days become almost the necessities of civilization and comfort, an abundant supply of Water and Gas. The first of these has already been successfully introduced into some of our dwellings from springs which rise at no great distance from the houses to which they are carried. If we had water brought into every house and manufactory frem some large acqueduct in some of the hills around us, how great would be the comfort at least-and how great, at times, the advantage. Happily we are tolerably free from fires, but should a conflagration occur in the business portion of our place, what would prevent a serious destruction of property, or perhaps even worse results?

The latter institution proposed, that of Gas, must commend itself at once, to those who have been witnesses to its use, and especially to those who have worried out their lives with oily lamps and greasy can dles, and especially with that last filthy, gummy, smoky abomination, styled "The Vesper Gas Light."

There is still another enterprise which is much needed in our village, which would enhance the value of other property for building purposes, and would increase the desirableness of the village for summer visitors-and which we have reason to believe. will be accomplished before another sum mer-and this is the erection of a large and substantial Hotel. This will be filled with visitors from abroal, who will then find no more attractive or pleasanter village than ours -and the building of such a hotel we are happy to state from good authority is a "sure thing "

In locating here, the settler has many advantages. He is within a few hours ride of the great cities of New England and Middle States, he is near his old friends and associations, he is in a settled country where every improvement of comfort and civilization is at hand. He can buy every article he wants at the cheapest price and sell his produce for the highest, (in the West this is reversed.) he has schools for his children, divine service, and will only an open winter, and delignified climate, where fevers are utterly unknown. NORTH CORNWALL, CONN.

Farewell. A few months since in Arbordale, In a sunny remantic vale, In a mourning and pensive room,

Thus a Father addressed his son.

To-day I leave you to Jwell on high, Soon my soul to Heaven will fly, I mourn brave youth to leave you here, Who have been to my soul so near.

But when in sorrow you shed a tear, As you pass along the flying year, Please crown a wreath for your Father

And go and lay it upon my bier.

Ard when you mourn and cease to smile, And are silent and sad awhile, Then take the wreath and lay it where I offer my last earthly prayer.

And let it be a sacred spot, To you. when to others, I am forgot, Often too my memory to save, Lay the fresh wreath upon my grave.

These Machines sew from two spools, as purchased from the store, requiring no re-winding of thread; they Hem, Fell, Gather, and Stitch in a thread; they Hem, Fell, Gather, and Stitch in a comprehensive but sufficiently detailed, free from comprehensive but sufficiently detailed thread; they Hem, Fell, Gather, and Stitch in a superior style, finishing each seam by their own operation, without recourse to the hand needle, as is required by other machines. They will do better and cheaper sewing than a seamstress can, even if she works for one cent an hour, and are, unquestionably, the best Machines in the market for family sewing, on account of their simplicity, durability, ease of management, and adaptation to all varieties of family sewing—executing either heavy or fine work with equal facility, and without special adjustment.

As evidence of the unquestioned superiority of their Machines, the Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Company beg leave to respectfully refer to the following

These Symptoms if allowed to go on—which this medicine invariably removes—soon follows Loss of Power, Fatuity, and Epileptic Fits—in one of which the patient may expire. Who can say that these excesses are not frequently followed by those direful diseases—Insanity and Consumption? The records of the Insane Asylums, and the melancholy deaths by Coussumption hear ample witness to the deaths by Cousumption, bear ample witness to the truth of these assertions. In Lunatic Asylums the most melancholy exhibition appears. The countenance is actually sodden and quite destitute—nei-ther Mirth or Grief, ever visits it. Should a sound of the voice occur, it is rarely articulate.
