Republican State Convention.

The Republican State Convention was held at Hartford yesterday, and the proceedings are published in to-day's paper. They were very harmonious throughout. On the evening previous to the Convention, an informal meeting was held at a large room in the United States Hotel, where topics of general interest were discussed with great ability and candor by delegates and other Republicans from various parts of the State. The light thus thrown enabled the delegates to act with a better understanding in the Convention. Even the loyalty of Mr. Coit, the Union candidate for Treasurer bad been doubted; but it happened that a letter was found which he had written to a friend as early as September last, in which he expressed, in eloquent terms, the duty of all good, citizens in the present crisis of public affairs. This letter, so eloquently expressed, satisfied all present, that Mr. Coit was a good and true man. His nomination, together with that of the Hon. Roger Averill, was received by acclamation in the Convention; so that there is now but one Union ticket in the field, and we doubt not that it will be elected by five to ten thousand ma-

> After debate on the merits of the plan proposed, the resolution was tabled. Mr. Miller, of East Haven, moved that the Convention go into County meetings, to select two names from each County for State Com-division of the question, as he wanted the Convention to settle the number of the Committee before going into County Conventions. He spoke forcibly against a large Committee as tending to injure its efficiency.

Mr. Buell, of Clinton, urged the importance of having two from a County, so that if they met with the Committee from the People's Conrention they would not be in a minority.

Mark Howard, of Hartford, hoped gentlemen would bear in mind that this is a Republican Convention, and that we are not here to take care of another organization. He thought the different organizations could take care of their own affairs. To abandon our organization would weaken us, as the Republican party was the only one to successfully carry on the campaign.

Mr. Storer, of West Hartford, thought that under the call, all Union men were invited to join in putting down the rebellion. He was in favor of joining in Committee work with the people's organization. Samuel Austin of Suffield was not willing to give up the Republican organization, as it was the only party to save the country.

David S. Calhoun of Manchester thought the Convention should appoint its own Committee, and he did not believe it was the design to consolidate with any other organization. He thought that for all purposes a small Committee was the most efficient. The proposition to select two from a county for a State Central Committee was voted down by a large majority. The resolution offered by Mr. Watrous was taken from the table.

Mr. Hammond of Killingly moved to strike out the portion which provides for a Committee o select the State Central Committee.

Mr. Starkweather of Norwich spoke of the mportance of an efficient State Central Comnittee. He would keep the organization complete but would not forget that another Union organization existed, and should appoint a Committee which would cooperate with the other Committee. He would ppoint a good man from each county, and then a Chairman at large, who would devote his time, energy and means to the cause, through he whole campaign.

Mr. Clark of Winsted offered a resolution as substitute, providing that the Convention in county meetings select eight members of the Committee, and then in Committee of the Whole select a Committee.

Mr. Hammond thought the eight committeemen were the best persons to select their Chair-Mr. Clark replied that there was a rivalry beween the counties of Hartford and New Haen, and the subject of the chairmanship revived that rivalry in the Committee. Samuel Austin spoke in favor of allowing he Committee to select their own Chairman. The substitute resolution of Mr. Clark was

Mr. Godfrey explained that the gentlemen had had time to reflect, and had come to the conclusion that it was better to leave the matter to the Committee. The motion was carried, and the Committee vas authorized to appoint their own Chairman, and also to fill vacancies in their number. Mr. Godfrey moved to adopt by acclamation

First, the charter was secured at $10,000 per month—we to pay every expense. per month—we to pay every expense. This propeller. As compared with the purchases kansas.

| Kansas | Covernment | Used | Description | Descri had the Government used her with ordinary dispatch in the business for which she was chartered, viz. : to run between New York and gant. I doubt if she could be duplicated at this Washington, she would have made three trips per month; and as the lowest terms that I could secure an application at the N. Y. Marine Insurance Co.'s on the day of the charter, was 4 per cent. per trip, the cost for insurance would have been 25,400 per month, and the company would actually have suffered a loss on the charter. But it was our good fortune that they kept her quite a large part of the time at For tress Monroe, at no risk for insurance, and very little expense for fuel.

Now as to the sale. I admit we received ar advance on her cost that looks large; but had our money been in many of the materials of which she was constructed, it would have paid us much better. Take one article for an illustration: The yellow pine used in her construc tion, cost $20 per thousand. When we sold her, it was in great demand at from seventy to eighty dollars.

But it is enough to satisfy every one that can be satisfied, that it is possible to be honest and have anything to do in providing the Government with means to put down the rebellion, when I say that Captain Charles Mallory, of Mystic, the constructor of the Stars and Stripes, has within a few days launched another steame from his yard, almost the exact counterpart of our steamer, with a few feet in length added; and I am informed by the owners, that she cost so near $100,000, that they would rather keep her than sell her for one dollar less than that num; and had I charged the Government as somewhat heavier, she would have realized us Lieut. Knight, of the 1st Maine regiment a much larger sum than $60,000-what I thought she was richly worth at the time I made the sale, and what I now know would regiment and a private. Nineteen citizens also only have been a fair price.

As to my charge of $10,000 for effecting a sale, were it not sufficient answer to say that it was a matter of unmistakable agreement between myself, the directors and stockholders. the romance of the case all vanishes when the thing is understood.

Two thousand dollars of the amount was paid for coppering the steamer; over $2,600 of the amount was my own part of the dividend-as nearly one third owner of the steamer: $1,373 was the regular ship brokerage that I paid Mr. Morgan; $240 was the amount I paid discount on treasury notes. A modest charge for salary as President, and for traveling expenses during the year would have been at least $1,900, so that the enormous sum of $1,885 remained as the temptation to induce me to defraud the other stockholders on the steamer.

If any one thinks that sum is sufficient, I modestly say to him that he may add to the amount $8,000 and it will not cover what it has been my privilege to cheerfully and freely contribute to companies, regiments and individual y, to help put down this wicked rebellion; in aware that all the energy and means at my disposal have been devoted to provide them adequate facilities to attack the rebels in their strongholds, and to defend our coast against any foe; and I am confident that our success wil ere many days make the heart of every patrio rejoice, and the knees of every enemy tremble Allow me in this connection to say one word in regard to Government contracts: So far as contracts with the Navy Department are concerned, I have the means of knowing-not guessing-that there has been more money lost than made during the last nine months, in

C. S. BUSHNELL Secretary Welles in his special report says Among the large number of purchases that vere made under the mercantile usage, which the report alluded to denominates a "remarkable arrangement," that of the Stars and Stripes is selected as furnishing the most pointed testimony that the policy of the department was wrong, and the agent an improper person to be elected for that duty. As presented by the Committee, and in point of fact, it is probably the strongest, and perhaps only case that can be adduced in their behalf. The Committee say they desire to present . A simple instance of deception practised apon Mr. Morgan, in the sale to him of a new vessel, the Stars and Stripes, which had been afloat less than two months. This vessel cost its owners but $35,600 to build her; had earned under a charter to the United States, in that two months, $15,000 net, and was then sold to Mr. Morgan for $55,000, making a clear profit to her owners of $34,000. This was done by making Mr. Morgan believe that it cost $60,-000 to build her.

The Stars and Stripes was a new and popular vessel, commended to the department by naval officers as one particularly well adapted to per form effective service in the blockade. Morgan was therefore directed to purchase her if he could, on reasonable terms. To do this it was attended with some difficulty, for the vessel was at the time under charter to the War Department for $10,000 per month. Mr. Morgan succeeded, however, in purchasing her for $55. ally cost the owners but $25,600, and there is no doubt that under an extraordinary combina-Resolved, That the Supreme object of the United States has manifested on all proper ecasions a conscientions and unflinching determination to prosecure this war, in absolute good faith, for the sole purpose of saving the Nation by restablishing throughout the land the supremacy of the Constitution; and that realmly, caution ly and faithfully carrying out his high puress without permitting himself to be swerved from his disign by friend or foe, he is entitled to the respect, the caniflence, the sympathy, and the unway, ring suport of every loyal citizen.

ANNUAL

FANCY DRY GOODS, MILLINERY, CLOAKS, SHAWLS AND GENT'S

FURNISHING GOODS, &c. &c., COMMENCING MONDAY, JANUARY 13, 1962.

EDWARD MALLEY

Respectfully infimates that, in accordance with hisuniform practice at this period of the year, he will commence on MONDAY, Jun. 13, 1882, his great and unreserved Annual RED FIGURE SALE; and on this occasion, being desirous that the clearance should be total and complete. I have subjected to enormous and incredible reductions; not only the Fancy and uneassonable Goods, which may have accumulated during the past season, but have also applied the same unmeasured scale to most all the plain and useful Goods throughout the whole of the departments of the Establishment. In order to make a clear, awaren of all our Establishment. In order to make a clean sweep of all our Fall and Winter stock, we can afford to sell, at least once a year, Five or Six Thousand Dollars worth of Fancy Dry Goods at about half the usual prices. This is what nakes this celebrated Establishment, conducted under the management of the proprietor so popular.

Some idea may be formed of the extent and nature of the eductions, by referring to the following quotations: reductions, by referring to the following quotations:

Three astonishing lots Black Silk Bonnet Velvets, $2 75,

It appears from an assault and battery case now pending at the police court, and from intelligence furnished us by the officers, that four Irishmen living on the hill and in Morocco street, are banded together for the purpose of getting "free drinks" in the saloons in that neighborhood, and of beating inoffensive individuals who are unfortunate enough to be passing through that part of the city. Their plan is to enter a saloon, get what drinks they want and give the proprietors a good, strong "mauling" in the way of change. They also assault any individuals they may meet in the street, by way of pleasant pastime, first knocking them down and then stamping on them. An unfortueste German was the last victim. His case is still on trial.

The place is full of adventurers and speculators, spies and traitors. Villainous treason stalks abroad, and the fair and frail are among the lists.

The half finished capital itself stands a liv ng monument of magnificent ruin. Its lofty olumns and arches are bedaribed with dust, and its untenanted rooms converted into stupendous bakeries for the supply of the army. The beautiful avenues and shade walks are filled with mule teams and baggage wagons, which rattle and rumble from dayinght till midnight, like the muttering of distant thunder of Commodore George Washington Nutt of The once elegant repose and quiet dignity of our national capital is changed to confusion and business clamor, and the principal thoroughfares show more life in its way than even Broadway. It was no time for delay, and the General spoke rapidly and with earnestness, occasionally referring to some one on the right or left for information and cooperation. Thus carefully and explicitly were the movements and marches, the sallies and sorties, and the whole plan developed, so that every one seemed to understand. But presently a flaw was discovered, something was wrong and I saw by the perplexed look of those around the table that a very serious mistake had been made, but from what cause, my knowledge of military affairs did not enable me to judge. dispute arose between some Colonel and the Engineer-in-Chief in regard to the position and of the surrounding country. Letters received in this city from prominent amilies in South Carolina even state that their nembers are heartily tired of the experiment of ecession: that they went into it as a matter f enthusiasm and State pride; but that noth ng save misery and ruin has attended it, and that they long for the protection of the old Stars and Stripes. Our prisoners just released from the Richmond prison houses bear united witness to the existence of strong Union feeling in that city, the seat of the rebel Government, where nearly all the mechanics and work ing men are the secret friends of the nation, and took every opportunity they could get for conversing with our men and declaring their real sentiments. ANNUAL RED FIGURE SALE!

ANCY DRY GOODS, MILLINERY CLOAKS, SHAWLS AND GENT'S FURNISHING GOODS,

COMMENCING MONDAY, JANUARY 13, 1862.

EDWARD MALLEY

Res pectfully intimates that, in accordance with his uniform practice at this period of the year, he will commence on MC NDAY, Jan. 13, 1862, his great and unreserved Annual RE D FIGURE SALE; and on this occasion, being desirous that the clearance should be total and complete, I have sub jected to enormous and incredible reductions; not only the Fancy and unseasonable Goods, which may have accur aulated during the past season, but have also applied the same unmeasured scale to most all the plain and useful Goods throughout the whole of the departments of the Est ablishment. In order to make a clean sweep of all our Fall and Winter stock, we can afford to sell, at least once a year, Five or Six Thousand Dollars worth of Fancy Dry Goods at about half the usual prices. This is what nakes this celebrated Establishment, conducted under the manage ment of the proprietor so popular.

Some idea may be formed of the extent and nature of the red uctions, by referring to the following quotations:

Three astonishing lots Black Silk Bonnet Velvets, $2,75, 7 Three astonishing lots Black Silk Bonnet Velvets, $2 75, $3 and $3 25, will be affered at $2, $2 25 and $2 50.
