Taxing Newspapers.

The proposition to tax newspaper publishers on their circulation, will prove disastrous to a large number of the journals of the country, and tend to give the monopoly of the newspaper business to a few leading journals of the larger cities, and establish a great central power not in harmony with our political institutious We believe that publishers as a class are williog to be taxed on their property, on their machinery, their capital in business, and on their net receipts as heavily as any other class of men. But to tax their mere circulation would be oppressive to most of them, and tend to break down their business. The life of a news paper is in its advertising. If any portion of their business must be separately taxed, let i fall upon that which is best able to bear it There is probably not one newspaper out o I venty whose subscription list pays the cost of printing. Some of the New York papers have Leen sold at less than the cost of the paper and printing, and their Publishers, through their advertising, have done a profitable busines These publishers clamor for a tax on circula tion, and would be willing to pay full half a cent on every paper they issued, if they could thereby break down two-thirds of the provinvincial journals, and thus take the place of them, and get their advertising.

When it was proposed to drive all the news papers into the mails in order to get the postnet up a terrific howl. They saw that such a system would lessen their circulation by railroad, &c., and that the country journals would thereby derive an immense advantage, for they would be circulating by carriers at home, while the New York journals were being distributed from the mails. The monopolizing publisher of the larger cities therefore denounced the plan and recommended as a substitute, a tax upon the circulation of all newspapers, which they raid would be the fairest thing in the world We hope there are practical minds enough in Congress to see the operation of the several plans proposed, and that they will not permit the country journals to be crushed by laws recommended by their rivals.

Do the members of Congress from the rural districts want to be written up or written down by the central press of the cities? Do the members from Connecticut want to have the New York Herald decide, so far as newspaper influence can do it, whether they shall be elect- my, he was compelled to remain an inactive ed or defeated, when in nomination for seats in the councils of the nation? The next day Marahall tried to silks and cloths at the retail stores in New York, drown himself and his mortification in the San injures himself, even if he can buy in New Juan river. Such was Clay's revenge upon the York ten or lifteen per cent less than he can buy here, for he discourages his own tenants and thereby depreciates his own rents. Our dealers says that a resident of that place has recently here pay taxes to the town, city, and state, pay changed his residence from faction. There is for advertising, for rents here, and yet see, day the house, or change a thing in it. Cassius M. Clay and Tom Marshall, The following capital story told of Cassius M. Clay of Kentucky, has never before been in print. It will be remembered that Mr. Clay served as Cantain of a company of Kentucki ans in Mexico until, taken prisoner by the eneparade, much to the disgust of all, and greatly to the disorder and breach of all discipline in the regiment. Capt. Clay, though the strictest as soon as he became "officer of the day, when his command was second only to that of lia, and riding up to the guard house, he cried All these propositions for stamp duties, for out in a loud voice: "Officer of the guard! with impunity." Yesterday a delegation of seventeen contrabands came over from "Secessia" in a boat, having a white flag stuck up amidships, and landed safely inside of General Mansfield's Division. Some of them were armed with navy revolvers, others with smaller pistols, all primed and ready for use. It seems that rather than be retaken by the rebels they came to the conclusion to fight for their lives. Some of then look determined enough to make a good fight. One of them sold a nice revolver to a soldier in the camp for one dollar. The question arises where did they raise the weapons? In my mind they stole them, now and then, and have probably been weeks preparing to make this move. They are now safe at all events.

THIRTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS. FIRST SESSIO

Washington, Jan. 1862.

Mr. Nixon of Mo., presented the credentials of Jno. B. Henderson, to fill the vacancy cause by the expulsion of Polk. The credentials were read, and Henderson took the oath. On motion of Mr. Anthony, a resolution was taken up, providing for the distribution of certain documents belonging to seceded members among the present members of the Senate, and adopted.

Mr. Howe offered a resolution calling on the President for the number of cavalry mustered into the service, distinguishing those mounted ov the States, and how many are necessary for efficiency in the service; adopted.

Mr. Hale offered a resolution for taking down and breaking up the ships Alabama and Vir inia; referred. On motion of Mr. Sherman of Ohio. joint resolution for secret sessions in either House was taken up. Mr. Sherman offered the following as a substitute: That during th present rebellion, if any member of the Senate r House of Representatives shall arise in hi place and state that the President desires im mediate action on any matter pertaining to the suppression of the rebellion, the galleries shall be cleared, and members shall state the action to be desired, and the reasons, and such House shall determine without debate whether to proceed to its consideration. If decided in th affirmative, debate shall be confined to the subject matter, and limited to five minutes and vote taken before adjournment, unless twothirds otherwise decree, prouided this rule shall not interfere with the previous question. On the suggestion of Mr. Collamer of Vt. Mr. Sherman's amendment was modified so a to strike out the clause requiring a final vote before adjournment - adopted

On motion of Mr. Collamer an amendment vas adopted punishing any member who reveals the proceeding of the secret session, by expul The resolution as amended was the adopted.

On motion of Mr. Wilson the bill in relation to sutlers was taken up. The question was on the amendment of abolishing sutlers.

Mr. Wilson said that, on consultation wit officers and others, he had come to the conclu sion that the original bill, which permitted sut lers, but limited them to certain articles, preferable to the bill abolishing sutlers, moved an a amendment to the first section of the original bill, allowing the Inspector-Gen erals te permit certain articles to be sold b sutlers. GEN. LANE'S EPPEDITION. The following general order issued by Ger Hunter, has caused considerable sensation at "An expedition is about to be started from this department, called in newspapers General Lane's expedition. It is the intention of the General commanding this department, to command in person, unless otherwise expressly ordered by Government. Transportation no having been supplied, we must go without it. Ali tents, trunks, chairs, camp tables, camp clothes, &c., must be at once stored or aband oned; the General commanding takes in his valise but one change of clothing, and no office or soldier will carry more. The surplus roon in knapsacks must be reserved for ammunition and provisions. Every officer and soldier will carry his own clothing and bedding. deneral commanding has applied to Government for six Brigadier-Generals, that his command may be properly organized, and until their arrival it is necessary to appoint Acting Brigadiers from senior Colonels, and each Col will at once report the date he was mustered

FOREIGN NEWS. ARRIVAL OF THE

ANGLO SAXON. PORTLAND, Jan. 30, 1862.

The Teutonia arrived out on the 12th; the time; adopted. America and Nova Scotian on the 13th, and the Edinburgh on the 15th. The news is meagre and unimportant. It is umored that the Nashville has been sold to etery in the District of Columbia, so that bodies English ship owners. The Tuscarora continues of deceased soldiers may be within the reach of the blockade still.

Cotton had declined from 1 to 3 of a penny, osing dull; the sales for the week were 40,-000 bales; sales on Friday, 5,000. Flour delined six shillings. Wheat declined 1a2d. Corn easier-market closed steady, and with a forward tendency for wheat.

The frigate Warrior was expected at Plymouth in a day or two, on her way to the North American station. But little business was doing at Lloyd's in war risks. There was continued activity in all the departments of the Portsmouth dock vard.

The Federal gunboat Tuscorora, and the rebel steamer Nashville, remained in statu quo at Southampton.

It was stated that the Tuscarora's movement n leaving her moorings on the 13th inst., was to prevent the Nashville from getting under weigh for 24 hours. It was understood that the Tuscarora's orders were never to lose sight of the Nashville, to blockade her in Southampton, and if she should leave to chase her as long as she is at sea.

In addition to the frigate Dauntless, the wa teamer Argus had been placed at the mouth of the Southampton docks, to watch the movenents of the two vessels.

Additional correspondence had been published in regard to the Trent affair, including Lord John Russell's reply to Mr. Seward's dispatch, dated January 11. It expresses much satisfac tion at the conclusion arrived at by the Washington Government, which it considers most favorable to the maintenance of the most friendly to day. All the streets of Sacremento are navigable for small boats, every house having water over the lower floors. The weather has been pleasant two days. If it continues two weeks, stages may again run to the interior. Sandwich Island dates of the 9th, are unimportant. In 1860, one hundred and thirty whalers recruited at the Island; in 1861, only sixty-nine, while the whole number north, was only seventy-six; and, in 1862, the whole fleet north, so far as known, will only be thirtythree, while the coming spring we can only expect seven whalers to recruit here.

AN AMERICAN CITY WITH NAVIGABLE STREETS _DECREASE OF THE WHALING INTEREST San Francisco, Jan. 24, 1862. The Legislature holds its first session here

Com. Rowan Awaiting Orders.

Washington, Jan. 30, 1862. Official dispatches from Commodore Goldsborough, dated Jan. 26th, addressed to the War Department, arrived this morning.

Seventeen of the naval vessels were at that time in the sound, over and beyond the Bulkhead, under the immediate command of Commodore Rowan, in full readiness for operations of any kind.

Gen. Burnside was preparing his forces to move in connection with the fleet. Com. Goldsborough says things now look hopeful, and I incerely trust we shall soon be at the enemy.

Any decided approach new to this quarter on the part of the rebels, with all the force they can muster, would, to a moral certainty, result in their speedy capture and destruction.

The utterances of a few abolitionists have up by the other agitators here, and sent down be admitted who are not every way competent her mind concluded to come to New Haven. to the South, until the conspirators found, as for the service. epirators themselves began to believe that their cause was a just one.

the two factions. They play into each others hands with the greatest industry and zeal, although they know that the minds of nine-tenths of the people of all the loyal States are fixed like adamant in their purpose of restoring the Government to the condition in which the rebels found it when they began their work of anarchy and desolation

A few abolitionists in Congress seek to keep up the old party agitation there, while on the other hand, in the New York Legislature, one Mr. Doyle of Albany, a Democratic member, wants that body to declare that the members of Congress should not advocate emancipation. He is the first person who has attempted to get up an agitation on the slavery question in that petition was presented by certain citizens of Legislature. His occupation, and that of his Illinois that John C. Fremont be deprived of associates, would be gone if they could not get up an "abolition" quarrel among the loyalists stated that the petition was presented in the the worst partizans of the day, who care more and that he accompanied the presentation with for party success than the restoration of the this remark: "that he had some hesitancy in the Ohio Senator drew himself up rather stiffly was extended to the enemy's wounded which country from the despotism and outrages of the presenting the petition, but he understood that and remarked to President Lincoln: "Sir, you was given to our own. Why, therefore, should we not restored to a command in the army. all be equally satisfied. The power of the great dagon is already gone. Let us be thankful for that, and not attempt to carry more than we can possibly stagger under.

The Braggarts.

The rebels are as good as ever at gascona ding, notwithstanding they are so effectually closed in. One of their newspapers admits that they are in a "tight spot," and suggests a remedy as follows -

Now this appears very brave in print-but we should like to see the rebels begin their work of "cutting through." Zollicoffer's forces tried it, and were obliged to "cut stick." The valiant chivalry have nowhere shown the prowess of which they boast. They have a wide spread reputation for their victory at Bull Run : but it now appears that although they had four soldiers to our one, and fought behind entrenchments, they were on a disorderly retreat for Richmond until they heard that our small army, after winning the battle, had in a panic, abandoned the fruits of their hard labor. Then the chivalry returned and crowed! In no single instance have they been successful, unless entrenched or supported by larger numbers than Watch, Hill reef, and taken into Stonington.

the army which attacked them. We should like to see the rebels start for Ohio, or Maryland, or any where else in front of an equal number of Federal troops.
