[From the N. Y. Tribune.] THE BANNER

BY SAMUEL ECKEL, OF EAST TENNESSEE Unfold thy hues, O banner bright!

Let every star be seen; For where the stripes in blood are drawn, In white, are stripes setween. We'll teach the world what Freedom means Where'er the stars are sent; ach rebel, too, will soon be taught That both the stripes are meant. The Red shall float o'er battle field,

To cheer the true and brave:

And brightly glow, while drooping low

Above the warrior's grave. Thy emblem White, so purely bright, Outfloating to the breeze, A spotless type of Peace for all, Upon the land and seas.

So, when the weary soldier falls In battle for the free,
May his last thoughts be of his God,
Beneath the folds of thee!

The Pittsburgh Battle.

The attack it appears was made by the rebels on our camps at 4 o'clock, Sunday morning; it was attended with success in part as our forces were driven back to the river, when the gunboats checked the enemy by their fire. Gen. Grant then came up from Savannah, and two divisions of Gen. Buell being reported on the way, inspirited our troops. Our loss, in killed and wounded on that day was heavy, and embraced our camp equipage and 36 field guns.

Our troops, 80,000 strong, the next day, assumed the offensive, and at 2 o'clock, p. m., had retaken our camp (Beauregard not having destroyed our equipage as he expected to use It has been ascertained that the rebel leaders it) and batteries, with 40 of the enemy's guns, and a number of prisoners; soon after which the change of programme in the disposition of the enemy were in full retreat. Medals for Troops.

The World says: The New York Chamber of Commerce has ordered bronze medals for the officers and privates who defended Forts Sumter and Pickens and their presentation will take place on the 12th or 13th, the anniversary of the Fort Sumter battle. There are 168 medals the two largest bearing the names of "Robert Anderson" and "Adam J. Slemmer." Gen. Anderson's has the inscription:

The Chamber of Commerce of New York honors the defender of Fort Sunter.

The Patriot, the Hero, and the Man.
It also contains Gen. Anderson's bust. Lieut. Slemmer's medal has on the reverse a "dog of war" chained to a fort repelling the attacks of secession canines. The other medals have the inscription:

The Chamber of Commerce, New York, honors the defenders of Fort Sumter—the first to withstand treason. Messrs. Samuel Bowles and Benjamin F. Bowles, of the Springfield Republican, sailed from New York yesterday, for Liverpool, in the new English Cunard steamship China.

Our Coast Defenses. The Secretary of War has submitted to Congress a communication on the Northern coast lefenses, enclosing an elaborate report from Edwin F. Johnson of Connecticut, well known as a practical civil engineer, and connected with the joint commission of 1817 and 1819, for dary line.

Mr. Johnson recommends the passage of Sentor Morrill's bill, and the adoption of the policy of placing in the hands of the President the necessary power to accept loans of money from the several States for public defense as therein proposed. Among the modes of defense conemplated, is the use of railways and of floating ball proof batteries, in addition to the ordinary em of fortifications.

His report is the result of careful examination of all the matters in question, including a long list of documents based upon a thorough acquaintance with the physical geography and he topographical flatness of the country.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION. It has pleased Almighty God to vouchsafe signal victories to the land and naval forces engaged in suppressing an internal rebellion, and at the same time to avert from our country the dangers of foreign intervention and invasion. It is therefore recommended to the people of the United States, that at the next weekly assemblage in their accustomed places of worship, which shall occur after the notice of this proclamation shall have been received, they especially acknowledge and render thanks to our Heavenly Father for these inestimable blessings. That they then and there implore spiritual consolations in behalf of those who have been brought into affliction by the casualties and calamities of sedition and civil war, and that they reverently invoke the divine guidance for our national counsels, to the end that they may speedily result in the restoration of peace, harmony and unity throughout our borders, and hasten the establishment of fraternal relations among all the countries of the earth. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed

WM. A. BUCKINGHAM. The Last Great Battle.

The great battle at Pittsburg Landing will probably be one of the most memorable of the present war. For desperate valor on both sides, few contests in the world's history have sides, few contests in the world's instory have exceeded it. The improvements in arms and newspaper editors or correspondents, be referbird, with blue tail; a large turtle; a small almodes of warfare have been so great within red to Col. Edward S. Sanford, military super- ligator, and an adder. Next an owl grasping courage now is far more severe than it ever was before, even in those times when battles were decided by "hand to hand" conflicts. The exploding shells, the rifled cannon shot, the deadly rifles all now carry death and desolation, where before only a few wounds were made. In the midst of terrific showers of these fatal missiles the comparatively little band of Gen, Grant preserved their lines until the arrival of Gen. Buell with his reinforcements which turned the tide of battle, and sent the rebels backward in a disordered retreat. We hardly know which most to admire, the gallant men under Grant, who slowly falling back against superior numbers still held out and kept the enemy at bay, or the bold and masterly advance of Buell's men, who, impatient for the fray, dashed into the thickest of the fight and sent the half victorious rebels back to their defenses. The men of the South have by this time learned that the men of the West and the men of the North can fight and will fight when their cause is just, and that if henceforth they are to be hated they will never be despised.

The Southern troops have shown that they are not cowards. They can fight fiercely and desperately; yet for dogged firmness, for unyielding tenacity, they have found more than their equals. It is of these traits in the Northern character that the rebels now complain. But these are always the traits of Northern men. The more they are pressed, the more determined they become. If they had been beaten in half the battles they had won, they would be no more ready to yield than they now are. The disaster at Bull Run perved them for the conflicts they have since turned into glorious victories.

The Orphan Asylum. MESSES. EDITORS: I have been requested to make statement respecting the Orphan Asylum, as there was not a case of sickness requiring medical aid : then, one child was taken down with the measles. The household consisted of 104 persons. Twentyfive took the measles-six died. In three of these fatal cases, scarlet fever seemed to intervene. In the other three the fever assumed a typhoid form. There are now eight on the sick list; of these five are decidedly convalescent; three are seriously sick, exciting some anxiety. The general health of the children is good. No one would notice that there were any vacancies in the well filled shool com. There have been no other cases of sickness as I am informed, but the above mentioned. JOHN S. C. ABBOTT.

Gallant Exploit of Col. Roberts at Island No. 10, --- Spiking the Enemy's

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune gives a graphic description of the gallant exploit of Col. Roberts of the 42d Illinois regiment, and his expedition, which managed, on the night of the 1st., to land on Island No. 10 and spike six of the rebel batteries. As will be recollected, the night in which this daring act was performed was fearfully stormy, the wind blowing a gale, tearing madly through the woods and snapping the branches of the trees like pipe stems, and hurling them about. Several of the federal steamers were damaged by the hurricane, which was the most violent ever experienced on the Mississippi by the oldest naviga tor of the fleet. The account specified, says:

"It was during the height of this storm that Col. Roberts performed his daring mission. Yesterday morning the flag-officer, Capt. Phelps, Col. Buford, Secretary Scott and other officers, held a conference upon the flag ships, at which it was decided to make a night reconnoisance of the upper battery, the details of which were left to Col. Buford. He selected Col. Roberts and 40 picked men of his regiment to be the chosen few. Each gunboat furnished a yawl, manned by six of their hardiest seamen. At two o'clock, in the very thickest of the storm. the little party embarked. The Flag Officer and his subordinate, with Col. Buford stood upon the deck of the Benton, giving the final orders. The yawls set out upon their perilous journey, and they retired anxiously awaiting

Col. Roberts had previously made several very close reconnoissances at night by pulling through the overflowing brush, and had wel ascertained the locality of the battery.

Each of the cutters carried a coxswain, and was manned by two men. The boats were all in charge of the first master, Johnson of the St. Louis. The soldiers were picked men of Co. A., each man armed with a five shooter Colt

The following was the plan laid out : The poats were to approach the battery in line, pulling slowly till at the point of the bar, after which, when 500 yards off, the St. Louis, Benton and Pittsburgh should run abreast, the Cininnati and Mound City in the rear as reserves, and this plan was carried out to the very letter. With muffled cars and under cover of the friendly darkness, the boats advanced cautiously along the edge of the bank. Owing to the furious violence of the storm and darkness, they passed the bend unperceived, until they were within a few rods of the battery. For an in stant a blinding flash of lightning glared across the water, revealing to the rebel sentinels dark bjects approaching them. The next instant impenetrable darkness closed in. The sentinels fired wildly three or four times, the shots passing over the boats without doing any damage, and then incontinently fled to their tents, which were pitched upon a high ridge some distance pack from the battery, evidently impressed with the idea that the whole Lincoln fleet was upon them, and that immediate annihilation stared them in the face. Our boats made no reply. Not a word was spoken. In two or three minutes they touched the slope of the earthworks. The boys sprang over the parapet, sledges and files were busy, and a few vigorous strokes told the fate. In less than ten minutes' time all the guns in the battery were spiked completely and thoroughly. They were six in number, all of large calibre-two sixty-fours, three eighties. and one of them a splendid nine inch pivot gun with cushion lock, which received the personal attention of Col. Kobert's brawny arm. It was undoubtedly the Lady Davis. In an unconceivable short time the boats were on their way back, ploughing a path through the surging waves at the imminent lisk of submersion, as the current was washing against them with fearful velocity. Other Details of the battle of Pittsburg. The Chicago Tribune has a special dispatch from Cairo giving facts and incidents of the fight at Pittsburg, Tenn., and are important: We are just begining to get some reliable de-tails from the great battle at Pittshurg. From several gentlemen who were on the field after the fight, the following is gathered: Gen. Prentiss' brigade, consisting of the 61st Illinois, 17th Wisconsin, 24th Indiana and 71st Ohio, were attacked while eating their break-

12 o'clock the entire line was engaged, but in full retreat. At four o'clock the enemy had taken Schwrtz's battery of six guns, Dresden's battery of four guns and Waterhouse's battery, also two Ohio batteries, names not known Thousands of our soldiers who had taken refuge under the bank of the river, utterly refused to fight, and in fact they could not, as offcers and men were mixed in inextricable confusion. The army at this time seemed to be utterly defeated. At this juncture the gunboats Lexingand shell upon the enemy, and kept it up every half hour during the night. Some of the shells set the woods on fire, and many dead rebels were burned. At seven in the evening the firing had generally ceased. About midnight the rebels attempted to plant a battery within three hundred vards of our siege guns, but were driven away by the gunboats and siege guns, supported by three regiments of Gen. Mitchell's division, which had arrived and crossed the river about 6 in the evening. Our informants persist in estimating our loss on Sunday at 3000 killed and 5000 wounded, as being a low

During the night the rebels were reinforced by Gen. Van Dorn and Price from Arkansas, with a very large force. Gen. Lewis Wallace came up with the 11th and 28d Indiana, 44th llinois and 8th Missouri, and Willard's battery, and in the morning fiercely attacked the nemy's left wing. They went into the fight at the double quick, with tremendous shouts, and did terrible execution. By 10 o'clock they ad driven the rebels back two miles. At about 10 o'clock the rebels were reinforced, and for a few minutes our men were forced to yield. The other divisions of Gen. Buell's army now appeared and at once became fully engaged. For two hours all the destructive elements of earth seemed to be striving for the mastery on this fatal field, but at last the Southern chivalry broke and fled in all directions. Gen. Buell followed the flying foe, with 12,000 troops, mostly cavalry, smiting without mercy those who would not surrender. He was reported to of arms and ammunition. The rebel troops harrass the enemy. They rarely miss their were mostly from Texas, Mississippi and Louishave taken Corinth with all its immense stores iana, with many from Georgia and Alabama. Our informants say that they could ride forces were through the battle field where our posted, but the dead were so thick in the eneny's lines that they could not do it there. They assure us that the rebels occupied our camps Sunday night and took care of our sick and vounded, destroying nothing, expecting confidently to have our entire army the next day. They thought the battle already fought and confusion of the rebels' retreat on the second day's fight. Our total loss is about 7,000. This s the estimate of the military commanders who were in the engagement. Of this number, about 2,000 were taken prisoners; the balance are killed and wounded in the usual proportions. Wallace, of Illinois, is reported dead, as it was thought he could not live; he was living on Wednesday, and improving. He was shot in the back of the ear, the bullet coming out of his nose.

On Monday Gen. McClernand cut his way through the enemy that had surrounded him. Most of his troops behaved with great gal-lantry, but the 58d Ohio were ordered to the rear in disgrace, for refusing to fight. Our informants state that John C. Breekinridge is taken prisoner. They say they saw him pass to the general headquarters.

Rebel Outrages on Our Dead. The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, says:

"The Committee on the Conduct of the War ave been taking testimony as to indignities and outrages perpetrated upon our wounded on the battle-field at Bull Run, and upon the dead at subsequent periods. The testimony is full and trustworty, and confirms all that has been published. Several surgeons who were taken prisoners, Capt. Ricketts and others, have sworn to acts committed by the rebels on our wound-ed soldiers, that would disgrace a nation of gain, and wanted $1,500 more—wanted a $1,- ed soldiers, that would disgrace a nation of 300 and a $500 Note; but finally agreed to savages. He was about to retire when the lady remarked, 'Pray remain. I would not wish the invalid to lose the comfort which a clergyman might afford.' The lady retired, and the clergyman found lying on the bed a book with texts of Scripture adapted to the hat the Confederates are in the condition of the sick; and he found that out of that book porblack. The lady was the Queen of England.
