For Representatives, CORNELIUS S. BUSHNELL, DAVID J. PECK.

VOTE EARLY.

If the friends of the Union knew how much they could facilitate the labors of the Committees, and increase the Union majority by voting early, they would not fail to do so. By waiting until afternoon, there is confusion and uncertainty, and great discouragement. Vote early.

THE REPRESENTATIVES. The nomination of the Union Representatives last evening occasioned considerable discussion, tude of speech. We have confidence in the especially the presentation of the name of Mr. PECK, who, until recently, has been identified the voters, that they will cure these evils in las was a candidate for the Presidency, when or thumb screws-not even in Fort Warren he joined that wing of the party. When the punishment except in cases of extreme necestraitors fired on Fort Sumter, Mr. Peck took as sity and in defense of the Government. The strong ground against the Eatonians and Loomisites as any Republican, and even raised a tive of free discussion-in fact, laid itself open company for the war at his own expense, and to a public prosecution for articles of a danger like Governor Buckingham, watched over ous tendency, however innocent may have been them, attending to all their wants until they its intentions. ### ALL IN FUN!

The Eatonian Democrats make loud preten sions of patriotism and lovalty, until their real sentiments are discovered. When the overwhelming proof of their disloyalty appears, in language that cannot be mistaken, they say they were only joking! This is the excuse of Mansfield, the candidate for Councilman of the Third Ward. He has, through the year, given vent to the most disloyal sentiments, expressed in the most vulgar manner; and now when arraigned by the freemen whom he expects to vote for him for Councilman, he says "O, I was only joking!" Can the true friends of the country endure such sham patriots as these?

Complaints of the Times. The Hartford Times is lecturing the Republican Press on good manners! It does not like to have its party spoken of as demoralized, although thousands that once belonged to it have quit it for that reason. Really, the Times is getting to be exquisitely sensitive. When it was proposed to take away the living of the editor on account of his indiscreet articles-articles of a truly dangerous tendency at the time they were published, we interposed a few words of objection. We felt for it just as we feel for Wendell Phillips and William Lloyd Garrison, when they indulge in too much latipeople, in a sound public opinion, especially in with the old Democratic party. The chaplain came at last to a cot set some what by itself outside the wards. Here, reclining at length, was a young man, whose face bore slight traces of suffering. It was flushed with a hue like that of health; the eyes were undimmed, and only the position of his hands which were thrown over his head, and locked in almost spasmodic tightness, told that he was He was unusually noble in countenance. His brow was broad and fair, and the thick locks that clustered back from the temples curled like the ringlets of a boy. He knew not why, but the chaplain experienced an un-usual and sudden sympathy for this young man, struck down in his beauty; still he felt there was no immediate danger in his case. "How is he wounded?" he asked of the sur

"I trust so, Sir; the doctors say it is a bac yound, but will yield with care. I only wish had my mother here. She has heard of it and, doubtless, started before this. It wil seem so comfortable to see her; you don't know how I long for her."

Ah! mothers, you are first thought of when the hardy soldiers feel the pang of pain. It is your name he calls, your form he sees through the mists of delirium, your voice he hears in every gentle word that is spoken. He knows whose touch will be tenderest, through the sympathy of suffering; he knows who has borne the most for him; and on the tented field the holy name of mother receives a fresh baptism of love and beauty.

"I can imagine how you feel," said the chaplain, "and I have no doubt you will see her soon. Meanwhile, you know there is a friend who will be to you more than mother or father, sister, or brother.

"I realize that, sir," said the young man "I am a professor of religion, and have been for years. The hour of midnight had struck from the great hall. Slowly and solemly it knelled th departing moment, and its echo rolled through the hall, vibrating on many an ear that would never hear the sound of the striking hours again. The chaplain still sat up in his own room, writing letters for three or four of the wounded soldiers, and a strange stillness fell around him as he closed the last sheet and sat back with folded hands to think. He could not tell why, but do what, and go where he would, the face of the young volunteer with whom he had spoken last haunted him. He arose to move to the window where the breeze was cool er, when a knock was heard at the door, and a rapid voice cslled "Chaplain!" He hurried to lift the latch. The surgeon stood there, looking like a shadow in the dim moonlight that crept into the passage.

"Chaplain, sorry to disturb you, and more sorry still to give you an unpleasant duty to perform. "Why what is it?" was the quick rejoinder

The Election.

The result of the election in this State will parts of the country, for the reason that the the party supporting Mr. Loomis against Mr. Buckingham, does not heartily sustain the present war, and that it would prefer a dissolution of the Union, or a reconstruction on rebel terms, to any further efforts to subjugate the ease with which they mould the more patriotic to their mere party objects, gives occasion for alarm whenever they appear to be receiving the least sign of favor from the people.

We have no serious doubts of the success of the Union and Republican State ticket, and of a majority of the same party in the Legislature, although there has not been half the labor performed on that side to bring about such Gen. Halleck's Headquarters to report, and will copies. a result that has been expended in the same direction in times past, for the reason that it has not seemed to be necessary. The question before the people has been that of sustaining an earnest, vigorous loyalty to the Government, or Gen. It would seem movements of the array of the west at that as if with an issue so plain and so important, there could not be a doubt of the result by an overwhelming majority. Mr. J. T. Bishop while passing from New London to New York over the Shore Line Route a few days since on arriving at New Haven missed $150 dollars and supposed that he had been robbed. Mr. Samuel S. Hearing of Mr. Bishop's loss Mr. Calhoun, Superintendent of the road, on Saturday proceeded to New London and returned it to the owner. The New London Star noticing the fact says: We are happy to record this instance of good luck and honesty.

City Election.

It is impossible to conjecture with any satisfaction the probable result of the city election. The one ponderous element that weighs so heavily upon us, generally, will probably weigh us down as usual. It is hard, but we cannot help it. In some of the Wards, however, we shall succeed as usual. There is a bare hope of a majority in the city government; yet hardly

Three steam tugs arrived at Fortress Monroe on Saturday, having left Newbern on Thursday. They brought on a large mail and dispatches. Fort Macon is to be besieged, the garrison still holding out. There was a rumor that Gen. Burnside had been notified te evacuate Newbern in six days, and that Burnside returned reply that he would meet the rebel commander at Goldsboro and Raleigh.

On the return of Gen. The Quartermaster came to Gen. Sigel to know what should be done about it. Col. Warmoth was present, and the General asked him whether the man was a loyal citizen. The Colonel replied that he was a conditional Union man at first, ter, then do you sympathize with the Government." It is hardly necessary to add that the Secesh farmer did not obtain what he came for. At a council of war in which Curtis, Jeff. C. Davis, and Sigel participated, intimated that a surrender was inevitable whereupon Sigel remarked with startling em "Mine friend! mine friend! give me Dayis and the command, and I will show you who has the field in three hours."

Davis was earnest for fight to the bitter end and Curtis gave consent that Sigel should have it all his own way. The responsibility of the subsequent movements, and the glory of the next achievements really belong to him

The Newspaper Tax.

A Washington dispatch says that the "tax upon newspaper advertisements has been fixed three per cent., to be levied upon all papers This is a boon to the publishers o country newspapers, and "so far is so good." The city newspapers of large circulation will not gramble at the imposition of the three pe cent. tax upon their advertising receipts, if th tax upon paper is abandoned. We submit that the advertising tax is as much as newspaper publishers ought to be required to pay, and would of itself yield a handsome revenue to the Government. A tax which would enhance the cost of newspapers to readers, would be unwise Boston Journal

Among the prisoners taken at Pea Ridge was the Rev. Marcus Arrington, of the S. M. E. Church. He had taken the oath of allegiance but violated it without hesitation. One can scarcely avoid the reflection that if ministers of the gospel, in the rebellion, so lightly regard the oath of allegiance and the promise not to take up arms against the government, it is of very little use to administer it to those who are supposed to have less regard for moral obligations and the sacredness of an oath in the sight Cincinnati Commercial.

Maple Sugar.—It is now hard upon the first of April, and not a sugar orchard in the country, so far as we can learn, is in running order. THE COMING OF SPRING. BY NICHOLAS MITCHELL.

She comes, she comes! your sunny portals Unclose, ye chambers of the South! Green life for nature, joy for mortals, She laugheth from her rosy mouth; Northward she travels, deftly twining A rich hued rainbow o'er her head, The very air around her shining, Beams from her limbs of beauty shed; Before her white doves wheel and glance, Behind her light-heeled fairies dance.

She comes, she comes! hoar Winter seeing,

She comes, she comes! hoar Winter seeing, Gives a last groun, and seeks hs tomb; Away the King of Frost is fleeing,
The Tempest spreads his wings of gloom; Before her sunshine softly breaketh,
And genial airs are warting balm; No more the famished bittern shrieketh,
The thrush soft piping 'mid the caim; She makes a mirror of each stream,
On walking, an incarnate beam.

She comes, she comes! no'er bowed or hoary,
Her form enduring as the sun,
Which gives her face a softened glory;
And light as she had just begun
To tread the vales and skim the mountains,
Her silver-sandal'd feet are seen;
Her eyes, like stars behind in fountains,
Are mildly brilliant and sevene:
Her hair, in ripply waves outrolled,
Is floating wide in living gold.

She comes, she comes! and earth is showing

A resurrection neath her eyes; Where her white foot is falling, glowing, Flowers from the dead, dark soil arise; Where her hand waves, the forest quickly Puts on its c oak of leaves and bloom, And the wide heath, late dun and sickly. Is gay with coladine and broom; And still, as glides fair Spring alon Heaven is all fragrance, earth all song.

She comes, she comes! sweet angel shining 'All fresh from Eden: round her brow With rose-tipped fingers, garlands twining, The only angel left us now; Oh yes, a paradise she bringeth, Glad earth again seems young and new. Glad earth again seems young and new And as the heart of Nature singeth, The soul of man is lightsome too: Away dark thoughts our spirits fling, Rejoicing with rejoicing Spring.

Skirmishing in Virginia.

On Friday afternoon the enemy unmasked a section of their battery 3 of a mile from our right wing battery, under Capt. Huntington, a mile to the west of Edinburg.

The object of the enemy was to drive in our ickets beyond Stony creek, which divides Edinburg, as well as to retard the operations of our bridge builders. Capt. Huntington shelled hem out in very short order. During the day the enemy concealed his force in the ravins. but his videttes were in sight and very active. One of them was killed at a distance of 600 yards by a sharp-shooter of the Wisconsin 3d egiment. A detachment of the signal corps, under Lieut. Rowley, obtained an excellent view of the enemy encamped near Mount Jack-

Maj. Gen. Wool telegraphed Secretary Stanon on Saturday, that the Merrimac was ex pected out with two more guns of large caliber. He further says "all goes on smoothly: I do not believe the army of the Potomac will find many troops to contend with."

THE LATEST. There is authority from the War Department for saying that dispatches from Fortress Monroe, dated 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, have been received by the department. A reconnoissance had heen made towards Yorktown. The headquarters of our army are about 5 mile from Yorktown. There had been some cannon ading, but apparently without any injury on either side, and no engagement had, up to that ime, taken place. A flag of truce Saturday afternoon, brought down the following released prisoners of war from Richmond:—Col. Blouford, Lieut. Van Horn, Capt. Bliss, U. S. A., taken in Texas last summer, and Col. Woodruff, 1st Kentucky regiment, taken in Kentucky.

Heroic Chaplains.

We proudly gather several reported instances of heroic devotion on the part of chaplains.

They are not exceptional instances. We doubt not that a weekly record, longer than this and conspicuous, could be presented, if we could merchant, and J. R. The Rev. John L. Lenhart, the chaplain of the Cumberland, remained at his post with the surgeons among the wounded, and went down with his ship, nobly dying at the post of duty Brother Lenhart was a Methodist minister, and had been in the navy since 1847. He was greatly beloved by the officers and crew of the #### Opinion of the Attorney General Relative to the Pension Law.

Attorney General Bates has given his ion that the acts of January and August, 1813. granting pensions for wounds or disabilities are applicable only to the forces thereby created and will not cover the cases of those called into service by the act of the 22d of July last; nor are their widows and orphans entitled to Pensions under the act of the 4th of July, 1836. Grave doubts may be suggested, whether the existing laws make provision for pensions to the widows of those now in service, who may die from disease or be killed in battle, and upon the whole question, the Attorney General inclines to the opinion that there is no adequate provision of law by which such widows are entitled to pensions in addition to the bounty conferred by the act of July last.

The militia received under the President's proclamation of the 15th of April, 1861, which was in accordance with the law of the 2d of August, 1813, are, in cases of wounds and disabilities, entitled to pensions under its pro-
