The School Fund. The Commissioners of the School Fund report that the fund is well invested and interest promptly paid except in two or three cases.

State News. The Norwich Bulletin thinks it a sign of good morals, that, with a handsome jail and a good jailer, only fifteen individuals—nine males and six females—can be persuaded to reside there.

State News. The Bridgeport papers notice the death in Stratford, of the venerable and respected Mrs. Ellis Thompson, widow of John Thompson, in the 98th year of her age.

State News. Eighteen of the most eminent surgeons in Connecticut have volunteered, at the call of Gov. Buckingham, to visit any battle field and do professional duty.

State News. On Sunday, at New London, a house, the property of the Rev. Mr. Bull, of Cheshire, located at No. 65 Main street, was discovered to be on fire, but the flames were speedily extinguished with but trifling damage.

State News. The total debt incurred in the prosecution of the war up to May 10, is $224,000,000 instead of a thousand millions, as Vallandigham's address falsely and maliciously asserts.

State News. Suffolk, Va., 17 miles from Norfolk by railroad, and 25 miles by the road, was occupied by the Union troops at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

State News. The proposed Fire Law was read, amended and passed, and Messrs. Sperry, Woodward and Partridge were appointed a Committee to procure its passage by the Legislature, as an amendment to the charter.

State News. Five hundred copies of the by-law licensing non-resident peddlers, were ordered, the by-law having passed.

State News. The new Fire Committee were requested to inform the Council whether any one is employed by the Fire Department contrary to law.

LOCAL AFFAIRS. The Canal Railroad. The Summer arrangement on this road takes place to-morrow. It will be seen that the morning train will leave New Haven 30 minutes earlier than heretofore.

State Hospital. We are requested to state that the Hospital in this city is in need of the following articles for the sick and wounded soldiers: sheets, small pillows and cases, bed-sacks, blankets, comfortable, (old and new,) towels, undershirts, drawers, india-rubber cloth, or oil cloth, cotton silk, old linen, night shirts, slippers, cotton socks, &c.

Police Matters. Patrick Gallagher started for the Post-Office on horseback, but having a heavy cargo of liquor on board, fell from the deck of his craft, and was picked up a total wreck in the gutter.

Police Matters. Timothy O'Reagan, a young man, addicted to rhyming, and like most men of poetical genius, having a strong appetite for drink, was allowed to leave town to go to Prospect, where he hoped to have work.

Police Matters. Edward Miller, a sailor, shipped too much liquor last night, and made port in the watch-house, $1 and costs.

Police Matters. Mary Creamer, a young woman under 20 years, pleads guilty of drunkenness, and in default of payment of a fine of $3 with costs, was committed to jail.

Police Matters. Mrs. Mary Cahill, an old customer, just out of jail, was committed for sixty days further, for common drunkenness.

Police Matters. Professor Anderson had a good house last evening, and entertained his audience with some feats of a most surprising character which were not included in the list of his Wednesday evening performance.

Police Matters. The scene in the evening was like some romance of imagination; the lurid glare of the camp-fires with the flitting objects passing to and fro, before the masses of dense foliage in the background, seemed like some fairy scene, and the quiet of evening seemed strangely antagonistic to the purpose within the breasts of these great armies facing each other with threats, like some great antediluvian monster.

Police Matters. To-morrow, I shall pass on to Gen. Pope's division, in the extreme left, and advance of our army, of which more hereafter.

Police Matters. Occupation of Suffolk, Va. Suffolk, Va., 17 miles from Norfolk by railroad, and 25 miles by the road, was occupied by the Union troops at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

Police Matters. The Seaboard and Roanoke railroad has been found in good condition to Suffolk, only a single bridge having been destroyed. The road will be repaired immediately, and rolling stock put in condition as soon as possible.

Police Matters. The legitimate conclusion is therefore well stated by the Progress, thus: "Some of our Northern capitalists would do well to establish themselves here, buy up and manufacture the material, and ship it for a market."

Police Matters. The Twelfth Annual Report states that at no other period has the school been more efficient and progressive than during the past year.

Police Matters. The whole number of pupils has been 174; new members, 103; had taught before entering 92; towns represented, 75.

Police Matters. As the experience of the trustees has shown that the institution cannot be sustained efficiently and successfully for less than $5,000 per year, they ask an appropriation of that sum for its continuous support.

Police Matters. Vacancies in the Board of Trustees for the counties of Fairfield and New London are to be filled by the present Legislature.

Police Matters. The Commissioners of the School Fund report that the fund is well invested and interest promptly paid except in two or three cases.

Police Matters. The capital of the fund was on the 2d of September, 1860, $2,050,400 49, in which the income was nearly six and one-half per cent. The sum of $130,950 00 has been paid out for the benefit of schools the past year.

Police Matters. The Norwich Bulletin thinks it a sign of good morals, that, with a handsome jail and a good jailer, only fifteen individuals—nine males and six females—can be persuaded to reside there.

Police Matters. The Bridgeport papers notice the death in Stratford, of the venerable and respected Mrs. Ellis Thompson, widow of John Thompson, in the 98th year of her age.

Police Matters. Eighteen of the most eminent surgeons in Connecticut have volunteered, at the call of Gov. Buckingham, to visit any battle field and do professional duty.

Accidental Death. The Bridgeport Standard mentions the death, on Monday, of Henry Eaton, of East Bridgeport, who was killed by the accidental discharge of his pistol while he was cleaning it.

Accidental Death. By the President of the United States, a proclamation: Whereas there appears in the public prints what purports to be a proclamation from Major General Hunter, in the words and figures following, to-wit:

Accidental Death. H. H. Hunter, Department of the South, Hilton Head, S. C., May 3rd, 1862. General Orders, No. 11: The three states of Georgia, Florida and South Carolina, comprising the military department of the South, having deliberately declared themselves no longer under the protection of the United States of America, and having taken up arms against the said United States, it became a military necessity to declare them under martial law.

Accidental Death. David Hunter, Major Gen. Commanding. Ed. W. Smith, Acting Assistant Adj.-Gen. And whereas the same are producing some excitement, and misunderstanding, therefore, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, do hereby declare that the Government of the United States has no knowledge or belief of an intention on the part of Gen. Hunter to issue such a proclamation, nor has it yet any authentic information that the document is any other than a counterfeit or person has been authorized by the Government of the United States to make proclamation declaring the slaves of any State free, and that the supposed proclamation now in question, whether genuine or false, is altogether void, so far as respects such declaration.

Accidental Death. The resolution in the language above quoted, was adopted by large majorities in both branches of Congress, and now stands an authentic, definite and solemn proposal of the nation, to the states and people most immediately interested in the subject matter.

Accidental Death. The Twelfth Annual Report states that at no other period has the school been more efficient and progressive than during the past year.

European Gossip. Here is an anecdote of a confidence man, told by M. Pasquier, who was a Prefect of Police in Paris under the first Emperor: A magnificent carriage drove up, one day, to the door of a rich jeweller in Paris, and a well-looking, important, and not over-dressed gentleman alighted from it.

European Gossip. The jeweller's messenger called at the appointed time, and was shown into an apartment in the second story. There were five or six liveried lackeys in the antechamber, one of whom escorted him to the Prince, who received and examined the ring, paid for it, and presented the joyfully congratulating jeweller having a wealthy and liberal customer.

European Gossip. The Prince quitted the room, saying that he would immediately return. The polite jeweller begged that he would not hurry himself. Twenty minutes elapsed, which seemed like three hours to the jeweller, when a valet in a black frock, and a gentleman in a top hat, entered the room. The latter, on his Highness, he thought. No; it was the master of the hotel, who asked if he was waiting for any one? For the return of Prince Gargarin, the jeweller answered, 'I have just sold him a set of diamonds for 200,000 francs. Are you his secretary?' The maître d'hotel shook his head and sadly said, 'Impossible! The diamonds are shut up in that secretaire. Besides, look at this money.'

European Gossip. The poor jeweller, nearly ruined by this robbery, had to remove his much-diminished business to another part of Paris, where his name was sunk in that of his partners. Many years after, he received a letter from one Mons. Teron, in which he had, as a gentleman holding an official situation, who desired to purchase some rings. Instead of sending a clerk, he went himself, and was shown into a partially lighted bed-chamber, where, in the invalid in bed, he recognized his old customer, the cidevant Prince Gargarin. The recognition was not mutual, and the jeweller held his tongue and bided his time.

European Gossip. From the rings exhibited, a few were selected, to the value of 6,000 francs, and M. Teron, declaring that he had not the means to pay in cash, asked if the jeweller would exchange against a curious old snuff box, which he declared to be of great value. This was an octagonal-shaped China snuff box, with ten miniatures by Clinchskill, set in gold and ten rubies. No one knew its history, or where it was, or how it was obtained, except the jeweller, who had been stolen from himself shortly before Prince Gargarin's visit. Moreover, he knew what few others did, that it had a secret spring, by means of which all the miniatures could be taken out of their setting, and their reverses on which were painted subjects treated, with admirable skill, in the indelicate style peculiar to the age of Louis XV.

European Gossip. "Without hesitation, the jeweller valued the box at 50,000 francs, which was much more than M. Teron expected. The jeweller, on the other hand, said it was probably worth even more, and made this proposal:—'Take the rings you have chosen, and put the box in an envelope, stating it to be my property,—if it does not bring more than 20,000 francs, you shall have the rings for nothing.'

European Gossip. "Gratified at the idea of being able to obtain the rings without opening his purse, M. Teron assented. Two of his neighbors, one of them a notary, were for the jeweller, who asked, 'Who shall fix the price of the box?' 'You,' said the jeweller. 'I will lay a wager that you will value it at 500,000 francs. Let me tell you in private a circumstance connected with this box, which will enable you to perceive its real value.'

European Gossip. "M. Teron, curious and anxious enough now, gave consent, and the two referred retired. Then the jeweller said, 'sixteen years ago that snuff box was stolen from me, when I traded on the Boulevard des Italiens—a few days before I was robbed of 200,000 francs' worth of diamonds by yourself, under the assumed name of Prince Gargarin. My evidence relative to the loss of the box is on the records of the police. You now declare the box to be yours. I have already sworn that I purchased it at a public sale. The man who sold it to me is still alive. I know a secret about the box which will further prove my ownership—a secret which you have not discovered. Unless you fully repair all the wrongs you have done me, I shall at once have myself arrested as a thief. I give you five minutes to deliberate on this matter, and the two referred retired. The man who sold it to me is still alive. I know a secret about the box which will further prove my ownership—a secret which you have not discovered. Unless you fully repair all the wrongs you have done me, I shall at once have myself arrested as a thief. I give you five minutes to deliberate on this matter, and the two referred retired. Then the jeweller said, 'sixteen years ago that snuff box was stolen from me, when I traded on the Boulevard des Italiens—a few days before I was robbed of 200,000 francs' worth of diamonds by yourself, under the assumed name of Prince Gargarin. My evidence relative to the loss of the box is on the records of the police. You now declare the box to be yours. I have already sworn that I purchased it at a public sale. The President's Proclamation. We gave yesterday the Proclamation of the President, modifying that of Gen. Hunter.

On the other hand, those who favor that policy, not only believe it to be a genuine edict, but think that it ought to be sustained.

When we say that there is some force in the arguments employed to sustain the views of Gen. Hunter, even if it had been authorized, may have been altogether premature.

As we have referred to, will not be satisfied with universal emancipation. They will be made dumb in the sight of their persecutors at home, or be exasperated to find the predictions of the leading traitors have proved true.
