How it Works in the South. The proposition of President Lincoln to re move slavery from the Border States by the joint action of Congress and the people of those States, is being discussed among those having the most direct pecuniary interest, with a good deal of earnestness. A letter in the Baltimore American takes strong ground in favor of the proposition. The following is an extract:

"Some blame the Abolitionists; some the nullifiers; others both these parties. But the time for this disputation is past. Whether either or all of these parties, and others, have done wrong, and undoubtedly they have, it is not now material to indoubtedly they have, it is not now material to inquire. All practicable men are now sensible that slavery so affects the people, whether it ought to do so or not, as to make it a terrible institution to our race. They see that it imbrues a brother's hand in a brother's blood, and invites foreign despots to plant monarchies on our Continent. With this result before us, the only inquiry should be how to get rid of an institution which produces such miseries.
Some urge instant and universal abolition as the effective and proper course; but the President adopts the recommendation of our great Southern statesthe recommendation of our great Southern statemen, made before slavery became a political hobb ame a political hobby viz.: gradual emancipation, with compensation and the separation of the races. Many of our people and especially the secessionists and those who without having any property interest in it—hav found their account in slavery as a political hobby will oppose Mr. Lincoln's policy, and so do the best to bring upon us the more violent alternativ But the people of the State will sustain him."

The editor of the American takes similar ground. After imputing the troubles of the country to the Southern demagogues who made slavery a hobby for their schemes of personal aggrandizement, he says:

"They have aroused a thousand enemies to slavery where it had but one before; and their course has been especially fatal to the States that were to serve as their bulwark.' They dared to make the issue—they eagerly threw down the gauntlet, and the loyal portion of the nation, called upon to repel their aggressions, has taken it up. And now, after the monstrous crimes of which the and now, after the monstrous crimes of which the cotton States have been guilty, after shrouding the whole nation in mourning, and almost burying it under a load of debt, they dare to insult heaven and earth with their indignant cries because retribution threatens that institution which they avowed should dominate the Continent under the lead of Toombs and Stephens, and the Rhetts. Had the evils thus provoked fallen on them alone, the case would not have been so bad, but it has fallen heavily on us; and as the letter we have given truly declares, the institution here has escaped only through that habitual 'respect for the laws' characteristic of our people."

The iron despotism of the oligarchy has been so firmly riveted upon the people of the South, that they are not allowed even to consider the expediency of emancipation in the conservative manner proposed by the President. Once it was not so. Once the halls of the Virginia and the Kentucky Legislatures echoed to the voices of the advocates of gradual and safe emancipation; but the demagogues, who have contrived the present rebellion, would not tolerate the consideration of the subject. They proscribed as enemies of the State, every man ure which was earnestly believed to be the most beneficent that could be desired for the welfare of the individual States and of the Union. The same tyranny is now exercised as far as it can be, and the same demagogues cling to the institution as if it had not covered the land with blood and mourning. But truth and justice will prevail, and the border States will, in due time, become free, prosperous and happy.

GEN.: Have you had a call yet from our "Wandering Joe?" He is off on a mission! If he hasn't visited tide water, he will. Passage money and cigars found. You know Joe? He is rather young, but is a very free associate with all our elderly men, or such of them as do not take offence at his familiar style. He has a carte blank from our association for the disposal of all the offices in the State for the next five years, and is particularly interested in settling the question of United States Senator. Speaker of the House, &c., &c. It was concluded by the politicians who have had the state in charge, or have lately tried to have it so, that Joe was the best man for their purposes, especially to send into the country. He is to canvass all the towns, each of which is to have a United States Senator on certain conditions which I am not permitted to name, and Speaker likewise. Ten thousand dollars are pledged to foot the cigar bills. So you see we are to have lively times. The members of the association have struck on the right man, he being one of our shrewdest politicians, and a fine classical scholar and largely read in an cient and modern history. His enemies say he lacks four months longer. The garrison of 150 men modesty; but that is only his way of talking. Members of the Committee say that it is true, according to the testimony of Governor Sprague and many others, that n some cases the graves which contained the bodies of our soldiers were opened, and the hones of the dead carried off to be used as trinkets and trophies for secession ladies to append to their guard chains, etc., while skulls were used for drinking cups. ## The Negroes at Port Royal, itself daily on our notice. I am edified by the conflicting testimony of different persons on the subject of their character and behavior. Some see in them nothing but an inferior race, given to laziness, theft, and all manner of petty vices. Others discover no difference between their ca pacity and morals, than those of whites of the ame grades. In fact the verdict uniformly takes the color of the prejudice through which the case is examined. My own opportunities for judging have been too limited to warrant my giving, at present, anything like an opinion; but, observing them for several days. working here in every capacity, I have yet to notice an instance of conspicuous ill-conduc As a rule, those whom I have seen are civil, quiet, hard-working people, apparently needing only good employers to make them useful, While I write, in Gen. Benham's quarters, a party of joiners are erecting a cooking and mess room near by. Of these workmen four are negroes-I should say of pure blood; and if there are four more docile, ready, industrious men on the job, I have failed to see them. The countenances of the negroes here are pleasant and cheerful; and though only a portion touch their caps when they meet you, yet I have not seen a solitary instance of apparent insolence.

Prize Vessels Arrived at Baltimore. The steamer Hercules arrived at Baltimore nearWycomico, which have been engaged in contraband trade with the rebels a long time. On the Velina was found a mail of about two hundred letters, a large number of which were addressed to persons in Baltimore, and more to various persons in Maryland. There were also found $2000 in old Virginia bank notes. Her passengers and crew were Capt. Lankford and three others, including a part owner, as crew.
The passengers were John G. Little of New

The latter burned his commission remnants of which were found, when he acknowledged it, and also that he was engaged in the battle of Manassas. The passengers were from Richmond bound to Baltimore, to which the sloop was returning after having landed her cargo of provisions in Virginia. She had made many similar trips, but has always cleared for some Maryland port. The passengers and erew of the Velina were taken to Fort McHenry Monday afternoon.

THE BATTLE IN TENNESSEE.

The correspondent of the Cincinnati Time rives the following additional particulars of the battle at Pittsburgh Landing:

As near as I can estimate the entire force en gaged in this conflict, I have set it down at the opening of the battle as being about sixty thousand on the rebel side, with a somewhat smalle number-say over fifty thousand-on ours from the testimony of the rebel prisoners taker to-day, the reinforcements to the enemy were about eight thousand men, more than half of whom had been left at Corinth when the troops moved from that point on Saturday evening

The intricate knowledge possessed by the enemy of every foot of the contested soil on which the battle was fought, gave them a greater advantage than was awarded us by the trifling increase in numbers; but, on either side, the battle was fought with a desperation cilmen Watrons, French, Riley, Wilcox, Mix and and after extreme suffering, he died with an illminds of men, unless in cases of strong personness of but a few hours. He was a worthy and al grievance. The determination appeared, which I could not have believed to exist in the even under the most galling fire, to be victory

In regard to those troops raised in our vicini filled with honesty and fidelity various offices ty, I must say that all acquitted themselves most valiantly. The Forty-eighth, under Col. was invaded, and even after the regiments of either side had fallen back, they retired in good order, fighting every step of the way, to th line of the Second division. It should be re membered that this is the first time they wer ever brought into battle, and from the sudden ness of the attack your readers may judge that the introduction was not one calculated to steady the nerves of raw troops. At one time during the contest it was rumored that every field officer of the Forty-eighth was killed, by they turned up in time to gather their men, to the number of two hundred and fifty, and after a bivouac upon the wet ground last night they led them again to the field to-day.

The Sixth Ohio, under Lieutenant-Colone Anderson, occupied a dangerous position from the time of their arrival to the close of the bat tle; and I could see no difference in their man ner and mode of bearing to that of the famous Eighteenth Illinois who had borne the onslaughts on the left wing the day previous. Every man did his duty well

The First and Second Kentucky, in the figh o-day, were the men for the position they oc They, as well as the Sixth, were un der a galling fire for not less than five hours vet when the enemy thought proper to turn their faces toward the "most sacred soil or Mississippi," they were ready and eager to folow, which they did with great alacrity.

One strange feature in the battle was, tha neither yesterday nor to day have I seen many prisoners. On our side it did not seem to be contest for captives. It was a life and deatl struggle to us, and the rebels seemed to enter tain the same idea as to themselves. I do not believe that more than one thousand prisoner were taken to the rear during the battle of bot days. All I know is, that if prisoners were taken, I do not see how they disposed of them

Fighting at the West. A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. who is an officer under General Pope, commun The negro question is one which here forces icates from New Madrid 28th ult. the following incidents connected with the reduction of Island No. 10.

The next night my own regiment (46th planted both the big guns about two miles farther down the river, in the midst of a terrible rain and darkness impenetrable. They not only planted the guns and protected them by the necessary earth-works, but dug 90 riflepits, each capable of holding two men, and 250 ruards in the rear of the pits dug two long and leep trenches, capable of holding 300 more mer as a support, and likewise dug a large pit and

These dispositions were made about sunrise, and after the pits, &c., were completed. The enemy's gunboats lay about two miles above us around a point of timber on the north side of the river. The firing this time was commenced by our guns opening on one or two transports (steamboats) passing up Until we opened fire, the enemy did not appear to be aware of our new position. Their gunboats soon fired up, however, to attack us, as ness of the negro to acquire a knowledge of me-chanical art, and illustrates by some of the best important military depot, unless we were drivconsent, Col. In the intervals between the discharges, more or less of them would rise up to look around; but when th smoke on one of the boats told them shot or shell was coming the cry was "down," and every head disappeared. Notwithstanding the hissing, screaming and whistling of the shot, round and conical, and the bursting of shells around and over them, they indulged in jests, and many of them were found deeply engrossed in games of cards. The remnants of shells fell into several of the pits; one pit was knocked in by a 32-pound shot, and buried the men in it a foot deep in sand. They kicked out and laughingly dug out their pit anew. It is almost a miracle that none of them were killed. I am proud of them. The enemy withdrew down the river about 1 p. m.

Capture of a Pretty Rebel Girl. A daughter of the proprietor of the Tredegar Iron Works at Richmond was captured by our advancing forces last week, beyond Great Bethel, in the act of signaling our approach to the enemy. She braved all the consequences of her acts, and is now in Fort Mc Henry, paying the penalty of her feminine rashness, but is not in he least abashed by her conduct-on the conrary, she manifests all the usual symptoms of he rebel disease, which are unblushing impudence and hectoring swagger. She is a pretty girl of some eighteen or nineteen sumn

Among the incidents of the splendid siege esulting in the capture of Island No. 10, not he least praiseworthy was that of Col. Bissell's ngineer regiment, in cutting a passage for the gunboats across the point of land from New Madrid, a distance of 12 miles. Col. Bissell is a man of energy, who rises above all obstacles. and Connecticut may well be proud of him. The subjoined account is furnished to the Rochester Union, by one who was connected with the enterprise, under date of March 31st. It may be proper to state that this regiment was one of Fremont's extravagant enterprises, and that owing to a refusal of the Government to supply it with tools, Col. Bissell was obliged to rnish them from his own means:

After the surrender of the forts at New Madid, we (Col. Bissell's Engineer Regiment) were engaged for four days unspiking guns, changing batteries, establishing new works, and other engineering matters. Then we were sent over early in the morning, but soon returned. Gen. Pope to ascertain whether it was not acticable to establish batteries opposite Island No. 10, so as to enfilade their works on the Kentucky shore. We spent three days in the swamps in canoes, with darkies as guides, but found the project impracticable. Col. Bissell, owever, stated that he could by hand labor get teamboats and flatboats through the woods and payous, and by that means land our forces near opposite New Madrid, and take all the ene works in the rear. Gen. Pope at once ny's works in the rear. Gen. Pope at once FORT MACON TO BE REDUCED r four steamboats, six flats, and such guns as ould be spared. They sent the steamers 3. Terry, John Trio, Gilmore and Emma, with the barges, a quantity of lumber, &c., and one eight-inch columbiad and three thirty-two pounders. Tools we did not need, for the regiment carries everything from the heaviest ropes and screws down to fine steel drills for spiking

Our route is about twelve miles long, of which two miles were through thick timber, and the remaining ten through narrow, crooked ayous grown up full of brush and small trees We have cut our way right through, the track being fifty feet wide, in which thirty feet are equired for the hulls of the boats. The timber cut four feet below the surface of the water n one short stretch we cut seventy-five trees thus deep, not one less than two feet through. The machines were rigged from rafts and our lowest flats, and worked each by about twenty nen. In the first place three large launches vent ahead to cut out and push out the track the underbrush and driftwood, then three rafts followed on which were the men who cut down and cut off the trees; then the saws, then two large barges, then one of the steamboats. Very large lines were provided to run from the cap stan of the steamboats and haul out by snatch locks what the men could not handle. followed the rest of the fleet, men being enaged all the time converting the flat boats infloating batteries. From the river to the levee the distance is about 500 feet: here the water was shallow and the route full of stumps; t took one whole day to pass this-then the ut in the levee. Here the fall was over two eet and the rush of water was tremendous The largest boat was dropped through with five lines out ahead. Then a cornfield, overflowed from the cut in the levee. Here was something of a channel cut by the swift water, and we got along well nearly a quarter of a mile to the woods; here was the labor-two straight and long miles to the nearest point in the bayou. This it took eight days to get through. Then Wilson's Bayou, then East Bayou, then St. John's Bayou which empties nto the Mississippi at New Madrid. If you have never seen a southern swamp you have no idea how thick it is; a New en tree across the bayou. Such a place as that kept us all back, as none of the rafts or flats yards back as a reserve, to be brought forward could get by and all had to wait. The water. after we got into the woods, was about six feet deep, with a gentle current setting across the peninsula. In the East Bayou the current was tremendous and the boats had to be checked down with heavy head lines. Here we found $830,286, and of circulation $305,802. some obstructions caused by drift heaps, but cutting off one or two logs would start all down This is the hardest job I have ever seen un dertaken, but Col. Bissell is so far down now as to call it successful, for we are in sight of the fences on the "tother side of Jordan.

When the saw runs right we have cut off stump two feet in diameter in 14 minutes. Often it pinched and run crooked; then a gang would be two or three hours on one of the FORTRESS MONROE, April 14, 1862. A flag of truce from Craney Island brought Norfolk papers, which were taken to head-quarters, and every effort made to keep the good news of the fall of Pulaski from representatives of the press.

Col. Olmstead telegraphed on the previous evening that no human being could stand upon the ramparts a single moment, and that a thouand large shells had exploded within the fort. The Republican gives no particulars as to the number of men or officers in the Fort at the time of the surrender; but says none were kiled, and but four wounded. A Richmond paper contains an editorial in imating that the Monitor, Naugatuck and Galena and all armed vessels, might easily com up the James river and by their invulnerability and powerful guns, take and keep possession of

FROM NEWBERN.

New York, April 15, 1862. The steamer Jersey Blue, from Newbern on the 11th, has arrived.

She brought the Rev. Horace James, Chapain of the 25th Massachusetts regiment, havng in charge John L. Mayo, of Co. K, with left arm amputated, and Leonard Hadly, of Co. B, with right arm amputated.

They were taken in charge by Col. Howe at the New England headquarters, and forwarded to their homes this afternoon.

Capt. Clark, of Co. B, of the same regiment, also returned, having resigned. The horse of the late Lieut. Col. Merritt, also arrived, in charge of a private of the 23d.

The body of Capt. Lee, of the 11th Conn. also arrived and was forwarded immediately home by Col. Almy, the Conn. agent. Several privates of the 24th Mass., and 11th lain of the latter, and Lieut. Shipman, of the quantity of rosin. They reported leaving same regiment, resigned, are also passengers. The health of the troops at Newbern is excellent, and active preparations are being made to reduce Fort Macon. The steamer Albany will soon leave for New York with 300 rebel prisoners.

Railroad Bridges South of Corinth

Destroyed. FLIGHT OF REBEL CAVALRY

PITTSBURGH LANDING, April 14, 1862. A force of 4,000 on five transports left here on Saturday night, accompanied by the gunboats Tyler and Lexington, and proceeded up the Tennessee river to a point near Eastport,

They landed and proceeded to Bear Creek bridge, and destroyed the two bridges on the Mobile and Ohio railroad.

A force of 150 rebel cavalry there, after having four killed, "skeedadaled" in the most approved southern style. The expedition returned n Monday night without losing a man. This cuts off all communication of the main rebel body at Corinth with Alabama and the rest of rebeldom except New Orleans. A flag of truce arrived at our posts yesterday with a son of Governor Johnson of Ky.,

asking for his father. Com. Dupont's Report.

Washington, April 15, 1862. The Navy Department has received dispatches from Com. Dupont, enclosing a comunication from Commander Gordon, dated U. S. steamer Mohican, March 30th, from which it appears that on the 17th ult., with the launches and other armed boats, he entered Jekyl Creek, and proceeded to Dubignon's place. where he discovered a deserted battery of three guns, commanding that stream, and the remains of a camp of some 200 men. A considerable number of cattle remained or the Island but were very wild upon our men approaching them.

On the 22d the Bibb made her appearance and Capt. Boutelle at once commenced placing buoys for the Bar and chanels. Commander Gordon says contrabands continue to come to us. I sent a number on the Potomski to Fernandina and also several by the Connecticut. We landed our field pieces and a strong force on Colonels Island and obtained what we needed and that night after again firing a shell or two at Fancy Bluffs proceeded to St. Simons.

There I landed all the contrabands with their corn, provisions, tools, etc., and having housed them, set them to work. Already they have planted potatoes; to-morrow they will begin to prepare the land for corn. They have set up their mill, and I have told them they are to plant cotton and thus to become of use to themselves. They seem contented; but without a vessel at the other end of the island they are in danger of being interfered with, by soldiers landing in that direction and approaching them at night. St. Simons is a fine rich island, about 10 niles long; on the north end is the village of

It is said to be healthy and a thousand blacks could be usefully employed here and made selfsupporting. Such a colony properly managed, would do much good. Those now here, some forty in number, live on T. Butler King's place, under cover of our guns.

On Tuesday, Beauregard sent a flag of truce requesting permission to bury his dead and saying, "owing to the heavy reinforcement you received Sunday night and Monday, and the fatigue of my men, I deemed it prudent to retire and not renew the battle." The Next Senator. The Hartford Press of last evening copies telegraphic dispatch sent from some newsmon ger at Washington in the following words: The Connecticut men here report Senator Dixon's re-election as certain. There is no opposition to it. A Washington Dispatch.

The Press thinks this sort of news is forestalling the action of the Legislature in an im proper manner, and objects to it. The editor

"Washington manufactures a great many good things, and some that are not so good, in the political line. It is not, however, unwilling to attempt any thing. It gives us postmasters, (for some of whom we never can be enough grateful,) collectors, judges, and it will presently give us tax-gatherers. That it is quite ready to choose the United States Senators for the different States we do not doubt. surrender its right of choice in the matter of Sena-tor we do doubt."

We ourselves regretted that such a dispatch because we had any fears of forestalling the Legislature, for the members of that body are altogether too wide awake to be forestalled in that way-and not because we object to the temperate discussion of the whole subject in all its bearings, inasmuch as the choice of a Senator for such a State as Connecticut is altogether too important a thing to be smuggled through the two Houses without a full and fair canvass of the claims of the candidates: and no man can be elected that has not abundant qualifications dispatch for the reason that some enemy of the pired, might be malicious enough to say that the dispatch was concocted and forwarded through some connivance with the Senator himself, who we doubt not was more annoyed the dangers of the Union, when he took strong if possible, than the editor of the Press, by Border-State Compromise ground. Yet we find such a boyish paragraph. If Mr. Dixon's po- that men who have held such views receive no wich and Oyster Bay, E. Miner; Cold Spring, sition is so weak as to require such a support more sympathy from the rebels than the straight | Woodbury and West Hill, W. Gothard; Hunas that, we should feel sorry for him.

We saw in the New York Independent about a fortnight since, a very supercilious paragraph, setting forth that at this peculiar crisis Connecticut required a Senator of great practical experience and business talents, one who could adapt himself to the times, which required financial ability of the highest order. It was further oracularly announced that such a man would doubtless be sent in the place of Mr. spleen to be noticed, and therefore did not notice it. We have heard men before this argue in favor of some "everlasting great man" for a particular place, when they were laboring incessantly by night and by day to boost some fourth rate man into a position for which he one of the ablest men in the State should not be elected to the Senate at the approaching session of the General Assembly. On the contrary we agree heartily with the Press in all that it expresses in the following paragraph:

"Never since the Government began has Con-necticut had more need of her very ablest sons in the United States Senate; statesmen and patriots, whose experience and virtue combine to give them both skill and fortitude in the arduous conflicts before us. Questions not second to those that ag fundamental, radical questions of Government, will hold the attention of the Senate during the next six years. It is a task from which ordinary men may well shrink. It is the duty of every State to send its best men to the Senate at all times, but i

It is not often that we can combine in a lawyer all these qualifications, and yet a lawyer with such practical business talents is the kind of Senator wanted at the present time. We further concur with the Press in the opin ion expressed in the following paragraph: "The Legislature will, we trust, candidly look the whole field over and send to the Senate the best tative of the State, whoever he may prov

That the Legislature will do this, we have not a doubt. We have heard several excellen names mentioned for the place. We shall make no war upon any one of them. Let each voter present his own preference and urge it to the best of his ability without treating rudely the preference of his neighbor. Let us frown upon all secret intrigues to compass the defeat of any candidate by threatening to expend large sums of money in such an unholy crusade, or by sending emissaries about the State with large offers of gains and emoluments to such as will enlist in a war against anybody's candidate: for that would be a kind of forestalling against which all honorable men will revolt. We are quite sure that the Press will sanction no such outrages, but will treat other men's candidates with the same respect and even generosity that

THE SPEAKERSHIP .- The Hon. J. M. Carter of Norwalk, will, we suppose, without doubt, be the Speaker of the next House. Mr. Carter has twice been a member, and on both occasions was Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, the most laborious position in the House. He is well known in this County as a leading member of the Bar, and throughout the State as a most efficient legislator. throughout the State as a most efficient registator, and a man of most incorruptible integrity. His age and experience, his ability and character alike entitle him to the position of Speaker of the next House of Representatives.

We have already expressed our own opinions of Mr. Carter, and they are none the s emphatic than the above. We have also alluded to the Hon. John S. Rice of Farmington, whose name is deservedly prominent from the Northern part of the State. New London county has material of the very highest order, in Mr. Adams of Norwich. There are besides Gen. Pratt of Rocky Hill, A. Catlin of Harwinton, E. C. Scranton of Madison, D. W. Plumb, of Derby and A. Treat of Bridgeport. Mr. ing Post states that the repopulation of Virgin-Treat is of the same county as Mr. Carter and ia, in the rear of our victorious armies, by set- the late George W. Benedict, Esq., of Wateris one of the ablest men in the House.

Union House Restaurant. Mr. Allis of the Union House, has connected with his hotel a fine restaurant where the choice articles which his larder usually contains are served. For the accommodation of the public the restaurant is kept open day and night; for travelers on the late trains the latter arrangenent must be very convenient.

Hamilton Park Opening. Hamilton Park will open for the season on Thursday afternoon, 17th. Mr. Eli Hill, the well known restaurateur, has leased the buildings on the park and will keep the usual refreshments of a first-class house. The grounds we learn are to be at all times open to the public without admission fee except on exhibition days, which we presume will be duly noticed by advertisement. The Park may be classed as one of the city attractions, and persons visiting the city should by all means drive out there. Thursday will undoubtedly be improved to take a look at the pleasant grounds thereabout.

Attempt at Rape. George Patterson, a resident of Madison and alleged offense of attempt at rape on the person of Mrs. Jane Mallum of Killingworth. Pref. O. M. Mitchell, the distinguished astronomer, it will be recollected about the time Place, R. M. Hatfield; Pacific-st., of the breaking out of the rebellion, was journeying through the South, and when in Alabama, expressed an opinion that secession was wrong. He was mobbed therefor. Gen. Mitchell, who is the same individual, at the head of a column of loyal troops, has just emphasized his opinion of the highest order. But we regretted the at Huntsville, by taking about 100 miles of a railroad route, which will cause the rebels some present Senator, whose term has nearly ex- trouble, as it is one of their main east and west thoroughfares.

What "Rip-Raps" Means. Many persons have, since the war begun made inquiry as to the origin of the term "Rip-Raps." For the benefit of the uninitiated we give the following information : In engineering, a "rip-rap" is a foundation obtained by throwing stones together in a heap without order, in deep water or on soft bottom. The battery on the channel between Fortress Monroe and Sewell's Point is constructed on Dixon. We thought the paragraph, like the such artificial foundation, and is therefore styled telegraphic dispatch, too silly an emanation of the "Rip-Raps." The fortification was begun about twenty years ago. Loose blocks of gran-ite were piled up to a height of 20 or 30 feet, and permitted to remain for years, for the purpose of settling the foundation The Rebel Commander at Pulaski. Col. And I feel so strange to night:

Something hurts me here, dear mother,
Like a stone upon my breast;

And I wished He'd come and take In His arms, that I might sleep. "Just before the lamp was lighted. Just before the children came,
While the room was very quiet,
I heard some one call my name.
And at once the window opened,
In a field where lambs and sheep,
Some from out a brook were drinking
Some were lying fast asleep.

" But I could not see the Saviour,

Though I strained my eyes to see; And I wondered if He saw me, Would He speak to such as me? In a momeat I was looking On a world so bright and fair, Which was full of little children, And they seemed so happy there?

They were singing, oh I how sweetly! Sweeter songs I never heard! They were singing sweeter, mother, Than can sing our yellow bird. And while I my breath was holding,

When He said, 'Come here, my child !

"Come up hore, my little Bessie!
Come up here and live with me,
Where the children never suffer,
But are happier than you see!'
Then I thouget of all you told me
Of that bright and happy land;
I was going when you called me,
When you came and kissed my hand

"And at first I felt so sorry
You had called me?—I would go—
Oh! to sleep, and never suffer!
Mother, don't be crying so!
Hug me closer, closer, mother,
Put your arm around me tight;
Oh! how much I love you, mother,
But I feel so strange, to-night!" And the mother pressed her closer To her overburdened breast;

These coated strands, thirteen in number, are then laid around the core spirally, by the usual machinery, and the finished cable asses out of the covering machine into tanks illed with water, there to wait till the whole length is ready for shipment. Water tanks will also be provided on board ship, so that from the very infancy of the cable to its final submersion it will be continuously every moment under tests of the most certain and delicate de-

All was done for my relief that circumstances would permit, yet I suffered terribly during the journey, but before I reached this place unconciousness relieved my agony I am far better now, though you see how trem ulous is the hand which pens these lines. But trus me, our army will yet make a desperate stand, and prove, despite our late reverses, that we are not cowards.

"As for me, C——, I may not leave this blace alive; for though I am so much better than I have been, the doctor tells me that danger is not yet past, and that if I persist in exerting myself as I am now doing, in writing this long letter, fever may supervene and result fatally. Let it come. I have no wish to live and see the South subdued, and through uture years to be scorned as a traitor. If I re cover, the moment I can wield my sword I will eturn to my post, and at least die like a man. I do not say this in boasting or defiance, for really regret that I ever participated in rebell ion; but I have done it, and cannot retract with honer. Therefore, if our cause must fall, I hope to fall with it.

o'clock, Monday morning, arrived at Washington on Tuesday. She went about 8 miles up the York river on Sunday night, anchoring off Gloucester Point where the steamers Penobscot, Marble Heart and Wauchusett were already lying. The rebel batteries at the point said to be 100-pounders rifled, tried the range of their guns on the steamers at 3 o'clock, Sunday afternoon, the shot falling a little short of the Marble Heart. The vessels dropped down the stream and the Yankee opened fire at 3 of a mile distance, upon some rebels who were building a battery on the north bank. She fired some 60 or 70 shot and shell driving the rebels to the refuge of the woods and behind some log houses. When the Yankee left the Marble Heart was sending some boats ashore to burn the houses behind which the rebels were

During the engagement, a battery up the river fired some 8 or 10 shots, but they fell far short of them. The guns in the batteries at Gloucester Point, are said to be only in a position to reach vessels below them in the middle of the river, and light draught vessels can approach within a short distance of the Point with safety by hugging the shore. PROGRESS OF THE SIEGE-STRENGTH AND POS

TION OF THE REBELS. Monday morning about 2 o'clock, a section of artillery was posted within half a mile of the rebel works near the river, supported by sufficient infantry to prevent their being captured. Fifteen shots were fired into the rebe earthworks before they were able to bring their guns to bear, when our men withdrew without damage. A fine view was obtained on Monday. of the position of the rebels, both at Yorktown and Gloucester, from Fairchild's House at the mouth of Wormlith's Creek. Twenty-four guns were seen in the water battery at Yorktown, and nine at Gloucester. At the latter place a large number of workmen were engaged in erecting new works. At Yorktown, the old works used during the siege of 1780, were still visible and readily listinguished from those of recent construction Heavy guns were mounted on their walls, and the rebel flag was flying from its battlements. The principal wharf was covered with commis sary stores, while the river was dotted with sails. Every one appeared to be busy, as though the coming struggle depended upon his ndividual exertions. Late in the afternoon a schooner, anchored a short distance above the wharf, was burned. The flotilla was engaged Monday afternoon in shelling out a body of rebels who were engaged in constructing a shore battery about four miles below Glouceser. The result of the firing was not known. SECOND EDITION. 3 1-2 O'Clock, p. m. Gen. Grant's Official Report of the Battle of Pittsburgh.

CAPTAIN: It becomes my duty again to reort another battle fought between to great arnies, one contending for the maintenance of the best Government ever devised, and the other for its destruction. It is pleasant to record the being disabled by the enemy's shots, and some success of the army contending for the former losing all their horses and many men.

On Sunday morning our pickets were attack- killed. ed and driven in by the enemy. Immediately the five divisions, stationed at this place, were drawn up in line of battle to meet them. The battle soon waxed warm on the left and center, varying at times to all parts of the line. There was the most continuous firing of musketry and artillery ever heard on this Continent, and it tion and desertion. was kept up until night fall.

The enemy having forced the entire line to fall back nearly half way from their camps to the landing, at a late hour in the afternoon a desperate effort was made by the enemy to turn our left and get possession of the landing, transports, etc.

This point was guarded by the gunboats Tyler and Lexington, Captains Gwynn and Shirk, commanding, with 4 twenty-four pounders, parrott guns, and a battery of rifled guns. As there is a deep and impassable ravine for artillery or cavalry, and very difficult for infantry at this point, no troops were stationed here except the necessary artillerists and a small infantry force for their support,

Just at this moment the advance of Maj. Gen. Buell's column, and a part of the division portioned and healthy men, and all things considered, such splendid materials for an arroy se named both being present, an advance immediately made upon the point of attack, and the enemy was soon driven back.

In this repulse much is due to the presence of the gunboats Tyler and Lexington, and their able commanders, Captains Gwynn and Shirk. During the night the divisions under Gene als Crittenden and McCook arrived. Gen. Lew. Wallace, at Camp Landing, six miles below, was ordered at an early flour in the morning to hold his division in readiness to nove in any direction it might be ordered.

At 11 o'clock the order was delivered to move it up to Pittsburg, but owing to its being led thousand regular and Kit Carson's regiment, by a circuitous route, it did not arrive in time to take part in Sunday's action.

During the night all was quiet, and feeling that great moral advantage would be gained by becoming the attacking party, an advance was ordered as soon as day dawned.

The result was the gradual repulse of the enemy at all points of the line, from 9 o'clock until probably 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when it became evident that the enemy were retreating. Before the close of the action, the advance of Gen. T. J. Wood's division arrived in time to take part in the action. My force was too much fatigued from two days' hard fighting, and exposure in open air to a drenching rain, during the intervening night, to pursue mmediately.

Night closed in cloudy, and with heavy rain, naking the roads impassible for artillery by the next morning. Gen. Sherman, however, A flag of truce from Norfolk brought down followed the enemy, finding that the main part two ladies; also the sword of the captain of the of their army had repated in good order. Banks' division are supplied to themselves and the cause. Gen. Prentiss was taken prisoner on the 1st day's action, and

W. H. L. Wallace was severely and probably mortally wounded. His assistant Adjuta-General, Capt. Wm. M. Michael, is missing and was probably taken prisoner.

My personal staff are all deserving of particular mention, they having been all engaged during the entire two days, in carrying orders to every part of the field.

It consists of Col. J. D. Webster, chief of staff, Lieut. Col. J. B. McPherson, chief of engineers, assisted by Lieuts. W. L. B. Jenny and nation among the rebels, who were unaware of Wm. Skossac, Capt. J. A. Rawlings, Assistant General W. S. Heilger, W. R. Rawley, and C. B. Lagon, Aids-de-Camp, Col. G. Pride, Volunwhich fell among a number in the camp who teer Aid, and Capt. J. P. field. He displayed, as always heretofore, both skill and bravery. At least in one instance he was the means of placing an entire regiment in position of doing most valuable service and where they would not have been but for his ex-Lieut. Col. McPherson, attached to my Staff as Chief of Engineers, deserves more than a passing notice, for his activity and courage.-

All the grounds beyond our camps for miles have been reconnoitered by him, and the plans carefully prepared under his supervision, give the most accurate information of the nature of the approaches to our lines. During the two days battle he was constantly in the saddle, leading the troops as they arrived to points where their services were required During the engagement he had one horse shot under him. The country will have to mourn the loss of many brave men who fell at the battle of Pittsburgh, or Shiloah more properly. The exact loss in killed and wounded will be known in a day or two.

At present I can only give it approximately at 1,500 killed, and 3,500 wounded The loss of artillery was great; many pieces
