The Movements in Virginia.

The army of Gen. McClellan has safely evac uated Harrison's Landing, and the advance has already reached Williamsburg. The immediate destination of the army is supposed to be Yorktown, from which place the troops will embark in transports and proceed to Fredericksburg, following the course of Burnside, and join the army of General Pope. This movement has been made without any loss on our part, either of troops, ammunition or baggage. The contrabands, a portion of troops, and most of the baggage were sent down the river in vessels; while General McClellan and his staff with the remainder of the army, went by land across the Peninsula to Williamsburg. It is pleted in eight days. stated by some correspondents that McCiellan was strongly opposed to this movement, believing that, the forces of the enemy being withdrawn for the purpose of resisting the ad-Harrison's Landing to take Richmond. But General Halleck seems to have been of a different opinion. The Union forces when concentrated will number not far from 200,000 men, and will be sufficient not only to insure the safety of our own capital, but to endanger that of the enemy It is quite clear that Stonewall Jackson was thoroughly disappointed at the result of the battle of Cedar Mountain. The number of his forces, the extent of his trains and the manner of his advance, all indicate an expectation on his part of driving back the whole army of Pope. Indeed, he had promised his soldiers an advance, and that they should be in Culpepper on Sunday. The firmness with which he was met, and the constantly increasing forces at Pope's disposal, have destroyed his expectations of success, and he now retreats towards Richmond, at which place, it is to be hoped, Gen. Pope and his army will soon join him, for the se of relieving him from the further car of the Confederate Capital.

General Butler in New Orleans.

General Butler is proving himself most admirably qualified for the post which has been assigned him. What his abilities may be as a General in the field we have had little opportunity of judging. But he is evidently just the man for a Military Governor. The very effective manner in which he relieved his soldiers from the insults of the women of New Orleans is still fresh in the public mind. The propriety of his order on that occasion has been doubted by some, the taste displayed in it has been criticised by many, but no one has denied its efficacy. It did precisely what Butler designed it should do. It silenced the women of the city, and made them treat his soldiers with respect.

More recently General Butler has given new evidence of his capacity to punish traitors. There being in the city a large number of poor people who needed aid, he laid on the wealthy secessionists an assessment of a forced contrisubscription paper by which a million and a the city against the United States forces he it in the South. obliges each subscriber on that paper to pay one-fourth of the amount there subscribed, for the object of charity. He also assesses heavily in sums from five hundred to one hundred dollars, the cotton brokers, who in last October published a card advising planters not to send forward their cotton to New Orleans, in order that foreign nations might by the want of it be compelled to interfere.

One assessment on the first list is as high a $75,000, and the whole amount thus raised for the poor is nearly $350,000.

The rich rebels having brought on the and overwhelmed their poor neighbors with misery and want, it is but even justice that out of their abundance they should now contribute to the support of the suffering. But notwithstanding the evident equity of this course, it is safe to presume that no officer in the United States Service is more thoroughly detested by the rebels than General Benjamin F. Butler. Their maledictions, however, do not seem to disturb him much, and are not likely to diminish his popularity with loyal men. North Carolina Election.

The result of the recent election in North Carolina is certainly cheering to Union men. Col. Vance the successful candidate for Gov ernor was nominated by the opposition as an old Union man, and throughout the canvass the Raleigh Standard, the leading organ of the Union opposition party kept it before the people that he and the other candidates of the party were "old Union men." The Democrats reiterated the same thing in their speeches, having nominated for their candidates fiery secessionists upon the ultra secession platform. by 40,000 majority, the same majority by necessaries of life.

which the State once refused to go out of the Union. The verdict of the people of North Carolina is the more significant in this case, from the fact that Wigfall, Yancey, Toombs and Pryor, with many others of the same stripe, stumped the State against Vance. The old Whig State of North Carolina was never taken out of the Union by a vote of the people. When our armies again get possession, it will be found that loyalty is not dead there yet.

Charles C. Judson, Esq., of the firm of Sawver & Judson, 84 and 86 Chambers street, New York, some two or three weeks since offered a pecial bounty of $10 each for thirty volunteers from his native town, Woodbury, in this State. This offer was made before any bounties were offered by the town but the action stimulated others and the town and the volunteers were raised and Mr. Judson has promptly paid his three hundred dollars. An engrossed copy of a vote of thanks, unanimously passed at town meeting, has been forwarded to this genuine son of Connecticut by the Town Clerk of Wood-

A very large war meeting was held in Stamford on the evening of the 15th. Hon. William T. Minor, presided. Hon. James C. Loomis of Bridgeport, reviewed at some length the history of the war, pronounced the rebellion a causeless and unholy war, declared that the time for any possible settlement except by the sword had gone by, and urged the necessity of a general rally around the old Flag. Mr. Loomis was listened to with the closest attention by the large and intelligent audience present, and at the conclusion of his speech, three cheers were given for him by the assembly.

Speeches were subsequently made by Cyrus Northrop, and Frank Leeds, Esq., and a nun ber of recruits were obtained. The interest manifested was deep and the same spirit of patriotism which prevails in most part of the country is found in Stamford.

The town of Norwalk raised its second com pany for the 17th regiment in three days, filling it to the maximum number, and is now raising a third company for the nine months' service. The town of Ridgefield has sent into camp sixty men in the last week, and has nearly fernished its quota under the two calls. Greenwich has furnished one entire company for the 17th regiment. The company was com

A new enrollment of militia is to take place in New York and Brooklyn, and three hundred men in the former city and one hundred vance of Pope, it would be easy for the army at in the latter commence the duty to-morrow. The State law exempts an enormous number by its provisions, including school teachers and students, justices of the peace, and those who have served their time in the militia. It has however, been decided that those of the latter class are liable, it being held that the present is a 'time of insurrection;" the three months men are also held liable, having been mustered out of service, but not "regularly discharged."

The Richmond Enquirer publishes a spicy correspondence between Gov. Brown of Georgia, and Jeff. Davis, relative to the conscription act, Gov. Brown claiming that it is unconstitu tional, and in violation of the doctrine of State enroll citizens of Georgia in the Confederate service. Ten columns of the Enquirer are de voted to the correspondence.

found on the field the sword of John C. Breck-the following vote: precipitate flight he had thrown away his sword which probably is as near to losing his right arm as the traitor has yet come.

An anonymous denizen of the other world, in reply to a complaint that the spiritual proph ecies touching the progress of the war had not been fulfilled, communicated the following to a circle recently: "There are so many traitors in your councils it counteracts everything for the time." We go in for that spirit, whatever we may think of the others, for he talks honestly and sensibly.

Edson B. Olds, formerly a Democratic Mem ber of Congress from Ohio, having represented the Ninth District in 1849, and the Twelfth District in 1855, has been arrested and sent to Fort Lafavette for discouraging enlistments, and other treasonable practices. > It is said that the report of Hon. Reverdy Johnson, who has lately returned from New Orleans, concerning the official acts of Gen Butler, in seizing certain large amounts of treasure in the custody of foreign Consuls, will be made in a few days, and his decision in the cases is such; as, if concurred in by the government, will remove all danger of difficulty, arisng from Gen. Butler's action.

The Hartford Times having as serted that the Palladium "calls upon Mr. Lie acoln for a ne gro-liberating proclamation," and having been requested by the Palladium to q note the para graph in which such call was made, replies that it has "not the particular paragra ph at haud." We thought not. The particul ir paragraph does not exist except in the excited imagina tion of the Times.

When the Times proceeds to quote from what one of our correspondents said, it travels beyond the question. An old Dernocratic Judge wrote that "this is no longer a war to restore the Union as it was. It is a war to make the Union what it never was, but what it ought to be." We printed it as, "an example" of the changes this war was working in public sentiment, without further note or comment, sup posing that Democrats had not heretofore en missioners of New York, has given one year's tertained such views. If we were mistaken in salary, twenty-five hundred dollars, for boun- this we certainly beg the Times' pardon. Now that we think of it, we believe that when the war first broke out and the Times was reported to be in favor of letting the rebels have their own way, the above was the sentiment of those Democrats who wanted to make the "Union what it ought to be" in a pro-slavery view, and establish it on the basis of the Montgomery Constitution. If there has been no change in public opinion since then up in Flartford, we shall cheerfully make the correction. By the way, if the Times proposes to criticis the sentiments of the Palladium, would it; not The Fifth Connecticut.

CAMP NEAR CULPEPPER, VA., Aug. 13, 1862. Messes, Editors: Since I wrote you the 5th C. V. have kept up their reputation for locomotion tolerably well. We arrived in this vicinity the 24th of July. The 10th Maine, the 46th Pennsylvania and 28th New York arrived some days previous to our arrival. We found here a number of regiments of cavalry and two or three batteries of artillery, which were encamped on the surrounding hills about here. We went into camp and remained quietly performing the usual routine of camp duty, oicketing, &c. We were aware that the rebels were in force at Gordonsville, and that their cavalry were scouting all the way from Gordonsville to the Rapidan river, a distance from Culpepper Court House of some twelve miles. During the forenoon of the 8th of August the contraband arrivals in the town, mounted on advance of the enemy's infantry and cavalry, who were approaching this point, and who were of some prisoners about this time, who were marched to the Provost Marshal, gave a semblance of truth to the idea that something was going on. Mounted Orderlies were seen riding rapidly through the town to the various camps, and soon the bustle noticeable in camps at a distance gave notice to us of a movement afoot. Within half an hour after the arrival of courier, our regiment was on the march through the town, with the 10th Maine, 28th New York, and 46th Pennsylvania, comprising the first brigade of Gen. Williams's division, Gen. Crawford's command. The day was hot and sultry, and the men suffered from the extremely hot weather and quite a number fell out of th ranks sun-struck. The brigade marched about six miles out of the town and halted for the night in the rear of a battery of artillery, planted on the top of a hill about three-quarters of mile from a range of hills in front of us, called "Slaughter's Hill," or "Cedar Mountain." This range of hills extends from the south side in a semi-circle around on the west side, and of labor. was covered mostly with heavy timber. The position of the 5th Connecticut for the ight was on the extreme left of the line, eas of the battery, and within 20 or 30 rods of it. Our men, exhausted by the heat, were soon usleep on the ground, without blanket or covering. Morning come; coffee was made by those who were provident enough to have it with them; breakfast over, the men gathered under the shades of the trees, smoking, discussing the probabilities of a fight, &c. Others were of the look-out around the vicinity of the battery for rebels who showed themselves on the brow of a hill two miles or more distant. Some where near ten a. m. the rebels opened on our battery within a mile's distance; it was immediately replied to by our battery, when the firing ceased. About 3 p. m. a line of skirmishers was seen advancing. Our battery opened on them, which was replied to by a sheet of flame from the front clear around on Too bad, but Baxter is positive. the west side of our position. The firing was incessant. Troops had been coming in on the east side of the hill for an hour or so, taking po sitions on the left of us, and in the rear two three batteries had come up, and were quietly waiting the opening of events. Orders came for the first brigade to take position on the right of the line. We marched around a distance of two miles or more and took our position on the east side of a belt of timber, where we halted. The order to advance into the woods was soon given, and the regiments in line of battle advanced. After passing through this belt of wood, an open wheatfield, and woods beyond, and as soon as our regiments heavy fire of musketry in front and right flank Steadily our men moved on, not a man flinched and at "charge bayonets," over the fence, int the woods, where a most desperate conflict ensued hand to hand, with a force six times in number to the assailants. We steadily gained ground for quite a distance, till the overwhelmig number of the rebels compelled the gallant first brigade to fall back, which was done, presenting a front to the rebels that they did not like the looks of well enough to follow up. The night within a mile of the scene of their terrible conflict. The loss of the 5th was heavy. Yours truly.

Gen. E. W. N. Starr. It was stated in an article in the Palladiur last week, that Gen. Starr of Middletown was reported to have said that for every gun fired towards the South he would fire one towards the North, and that he would not march further South than Washington. It always gives us pleasure to relieve any one from the charge of disloyalty, when it is possible, and we cheerfully give place to the following letter from Gen. Starr:

MIDDLETOWN, Aug. 18, 1862. EDITORS PALLADIUM-GENT. : My attention has just been called to an article in your pape of last week, in relation to the appointment of Major-General of our State Militia, wherein you strongly intimate my disloyalty to the dovernment. All that I propose to say at thi time, in reply to your charge is briefly this that in common with numerous other Union men, I did, at an early period of the rebellion deprecate a subjugation of the Southern states believing that all differences should be adjuste by compromise and concession; but after the open acts of hostility precipitated by the South my sympathies for them ceased, and I have, the best of my feeble abilities, advocated th crushing out of this inhuman insurrection by the raising of a force so overwhelming that an serious resistance by the South would not l

To Horse Owners. DR. SWEET'S INFALLIBLE LINIMENT FOR HORSES is unrivaled by any, in all cases of Lameness, arising from Sprains, Bruises or Wrenching, its effect is magical and certain. Harness or Saddle Galls, Scratches, Manage, &c., it will also cure speedily. Spavin and Ringbone may be easily prevented and cured in their incipient stages, but confirmed cases are beyond the possibility of a radical cure. No case of the kind, however, is so desperate or hopeless but it may be alleviated by this Liniment, and its faithful application will always remove the Lameness, and enable the horse to travel with comparative ease.

Every horse owner should have this remedy at hand, for its timely use at the first appearance of Lamness will effectually prevent those formidable diseases mentioned, to which all horses are liable, and which render so many otherwise valuable horses nearly worthless.

Capt. Rose was one of the very few men among us whose lives date back to the days of the Revolution. Born at that eventful priod, educated under Dr. Dwight at the celebrated school on Greenfield hill, a conservative by birth and education, he was progressive from principle, and his last y ars witnessed to the world the pleasant and somewhat rare spectacle of a mind that in old age, instead of becoming fossilized by fixed lides, grow broader and more liberal in all that relates to the great moral and political questions of the aby. He was, we think, at the time of his death, the last surviving member of the Convention, and for many years he represented his native town in the State Legislature, faithfully and truly according to hisconvictions of the right. To the last hours of his life, Capt. Rose retained his consciousness, and his interest in the progress of the war to put down this most excerable rebellion, ceased only with his breath. Honest and true, canestly striving to fuffill his cb igations to God and men, he has carried to the grave the affection and respect of his relatives and acquaintances, and the best of all memorials—the record of a life well spent.

FLAG SHIP HARTFORD, BATON ROUGE, Aug. 7, 1862. SIR: It is one of the happiest moments of my life, that I am enabled to inform the Department of the destruction of the ram Arkanpartment of the destruction of the ram Arkansas, not because I held this iron clad in such terror, but because the community did.

On the fourth inst. I sent the Tennessee up

On the fourth inst. I sent the Tennessee up

On the fourth inst. I sent the Tennessee up to Baton Rouge, with provisions for Commander Porter and the gunboats stationed at that place. On the night of the 15th she returned with nformation that the enemy had made a combined attack upon Baton Rouge by the ram and the two gunboats Webb and Music, and calling for assistance at daylight the Hartford was under way for this place, with orders for the other vessels to follow me as fast as they were ready. arrived here to-day at 12 o'clock, noon, it ompany with the Brooklyn, Westfield, Clinton, Jackson, and Sciota. I had sent the Cayuga up before, agreeably to a request of Gen. Butler, in consequence of guerrillas firing into transports.

On my arrival, I was informed by Commande H. D. Porter that vesterday morning at two o'clock, the enemy's forces under Gen. Breckin ridge attacked Gen. Williams and drove in his pickets, &c. Gen. Williams having had ample warning, all was prepared for him. The fight was continued with great energy on both sides until ten a. m., by which time the enemy had been driven back two or three miles, but unfortunately the gallant Gen. Williams, while cheer ing on his men, received a minnie ball through the heart.

Gen. Williams had informed Lieut. Commanding Ransom, the eve before, of his plans. and requested him not to fire a gun until he no-When he did, our gunboats, the Kinee and Kathaden, opened with fine effect, throwing their shells directly into the midst of the enemy, producing great dismay and confusion among hem. Lieut. Ransom had an office in the State House which overlooked the adjacent country and could direct the fire of every shell. As soon as the enemy was repulsed, Commander Porter with the gunboats went up stream after the ram Arkansas which was lying about 5 miles above, apparently afraid to take her share in the conflict. According to preconcerted plan, as he came within gunshot e opened on her probably soon disabling some of her machinery or steering apparatus, for she became unmanageable, continuing, however, to fire her guns at the Essex. Commander Porter says he took advantage of her presenting a weak point towards him and loaded with incendiary shells. After his first discharge of this projectile, a gust of fire came out of her side, and from that moment it was discovered that she was on fire, which continued his exertions to prevent her from being extinguished.

They backed her ashore and made a line fast, which soon burnt and she swung off into the river, where she continued to burn until she blew up, with a tremendous explosion, thus ending the career of the last iron clad ram of the Mississippi.

more are approaching from Mauchac and others from Vicksburg.

I keep in constant communication with the Commander-in-Chief of the troops here, ready to open fire when and where he may desire Commander Porter says the Arkansas had a crew of 180 men, and mounted 10 guns, six eight inch, and four fifty pounders rifled. The gunboat Essex, commanded by him, mounts 7 guns, and had only forty men on duty at the time of going into action. Admiral Farragut also reports :

FLAG SHIP HARTFORD, NEW ORLEANS, August 16, 1862. We have picked up a number of prisoners rom the ram Arkansas, all of whom I have catechised very closely. They agree very well respecting her exit from the Yazoo and her passing the fleet. They also agree as to the number of killed and wounded on each of these occasions, making in all 18 killed and a large number of wounded. At Vicksburg they plated the deck with iron, and fortified her with cotton inside She then came down commanded by Lieut, H K. Stevens-Lieut. Brown having been taken sick at Vicksburg. It was their intention to make a combine attack with Gen. Breckinridge upon Baton Rouge, but her port engine broke down. They repaired it in the course of the day, and went out to meet the Essex. The next morning when they saw her coming up, the starboard engine gave way, and they ran her ashore, she being perfectly unmanageable. They say that when our gunboats were seen coming up and the Essex commenced firing, the captain set the ram on fire and told the crew to run ashore

They also state that the gunboats Webb and Music were sent for to tow her up stream, but did not come. Admiral Farragut also reports destruction of Donaldsonville by the Brooklyn on account of attrcks made there on our steameas by guerillas.

A PROCLAMATION. By virtue of a resolution of the General Assen bly, approved July 10th, 1862, directing the payment of a bounty of Fifty Dollars to volunteers enlisting before August 20th, 1862, and authorizing me to extend, before said day, the time within which persons shall be entitled to the benefits of said resolution, I hereby extend the time within accepted into its service, and turned over into the service of the United States, shall be entitled to re ceive said Fifty Dollars to and including the 25th day of August, 1862.

Given under my hand and seal of the State Hartford, this 19th day of August, A. D., 1862. WM. A. BUCKINGHAM.

By His Excellency's command, J. H. TRUMBULL, Secretary of State.

Southern Love of Power.

In almost every revolution the world ha witnessed, the elements of disturbance have been found most abundant among the poore classes. They who have no property, naturally feel that in the commotion of a revolutionary period, something may occur to their advantage. Their condition in life can be rendered no worse; and the zeal with which they attach themselves to the revolutionary party may find its reward in the wealth and possessions of those who have adhered to the government. Such is generally the reasoning of multitudes who plunge into revolution without having any clear ideas of the principles for which they are fighting. On the other hand, power is always conservative. The man who has all he wants thing to lose. It was this which rendered many aristocratic families in '76, loyal to Great Britain, and not merely the power of association and relationship linking them to friends in the

How then shall the fact that the present rebellion was commenced by the wealthy men of the South be explained? Is it really an exception to the rule, or is it the old law still worklaw, and by public faith, it would be even more known land of freedom, the instances of such escape would be vastly multiplied when an invading army of liberators should enter the South. Yet the men whose wealth consisted in this most unreliable of all kinds of property have been the foremost in creating our present troubles. The merchants and traders of the South have followed, not led. Power like almost every thing else is relative. What makes one man perfectly happy ings of another. Every one has a standard of excellence, of wealth, of influence, by which his efforts are governed. The man of humble origin, gradually rising in the scale of influence and social position, experiences a pleasure far greater than he who derives honor and riches from his ancestors. To the latter these are mere necessaries; to the former they are luxuries. To the latter they are simply a part of life without which life itself would be unendurable. To the former they bring new experiences and new joys, every day, but the old power of living without them remains. The Slaveholders of the South belong to that class to whom power and influence are the necessaries and not the luxuries of life. They have the poor whites have lived by sufferance rather than by right. By them the same authority was exercised over the negro as over the beasts of the field. They were the politicians. They were the candidates for office. They forme the legislatures, made the Governors, chose th Senators and Representatives in Congress Nothing could be more convenient, Scorning manual labor as servile, the sons of the aristoc. racy were provided with positions in Congress or in public life at home with the greatest facility. A few planters meeting together for Christmas Festival on one of the plantations could perfectly arrange the whole matter. And at the close of the festivities this planter's son, who was expected to marry that planter's daughter, was as certain of a seat in Congress as if the people had already voted upon the subject. Nor was this all. Not only did these Slaveholders govern every thing at home, but their influence was all powerful in the counsels of the nation. And so long as they ruled the South, and the South ruled the country, they were perfectly content. Foreseeing as they did that the period must arrive when this power would pass from their hands through the growth of the free north, they prepared to sunder the ties of the Union whenever that hour should come. For thirty long years they plotted And when at last the sovereign people elected a president, without asking their leave, they at once applied the torch to the train that had long been laid, and lighted up our country with the lurid flames of civil war. What was the loss of a few negroes, or of all their property to

For this they were willing to submit to losses. But that they anticipated the difficulties they now encounter, or expected that their four millions of slaves, their only title to aristocracy and power would disappear amid the shock of arms, and they themselves be reduced THE DAILY PALLADIUM IS THE OLDEST to the condition of poor whites, and forced to DAILY PAPER IN NEW HAVEN, AND BEING AN toil for their daily bread, we can hardly suppose.

Organize Victory!

It has been proposed that, in addition to the 300.000 volunteers now being enrolled, and the of human invention far in the shade. OUR MERCHANTS DERIVE A LARGE AMOUNT OF THEIR 300,000 militia just called out, the loyal States TRADE, AND IS THEREFORE PARTICULARLY WORTHY be called on to organize their whole force for active service, and thus to hold at least a millon men in readiness for the possible contingencies of the immediate future. The proposition is worthy of consideration for though it is not probable that another man will be needed to put down the rebellion after we have a force of the city for a short time and left the harbor at 5 1,200,000 men in the field, yet the moral power of such an organization would be the best ar gument that could be offered to European powers to induce them to keep "hands off" in this struggle. The military force at the command of the loyal part of the nation is probably fully which persons who shall enlist in this State, and be 3,000,000 fighting men; and the knowledge that a large part or all of this vast force could be in a last contingency brought forward, would be a pacifier that would settle that question be yond dispute. And in case of reverse to our arms a hundred well drilled regiments might be put into service at a few hours call.

Let the government organize victory!

It will be seen by an order of the Governor in another column that the State bounty of fifty dollars will be paid to all who enlist on or before the 25th inst. The time limited by law expires to-day, but the Governor was authorized to extend the time if he saw fit. He has very wisely done so. Those who wish to secure the bounty must volunteer before the 26th, as it is not probable that the time for paying the bounty will be He is an accomplished drill-master, and will make further extended.

Lieut. Henry M. Dutton.

The career of Licut. Henry Melzar Dutton, of New Haven, who fell in the gallant charge of the Connecticut Fifth at Cedar Mountain, Va., is worthy of a more extended mention than it has yet received. In that bloody conflict Dutton bore a gallant part, and offered up his life. He was pierced by a ball through the heart, as he was bravely fighting near his country's flag in the brigade which Gen. Crawford commanded. His body was subsequently discovered and buried on the would be totally inadequate to satisfy the long-field. In just another month he would have been twenty-four years of age.

Those who have known Lieut. Dutton well since his military experience began, bear hearty testimony to his patriotism and valor. It would seem as if the excitements and perils of this new life had matured and developed all the manly traits of his character. He was already distinguished for his efficiency and determination, and there is no doubt that a longer career. if it had been granted to him by Providence, would have added to the laurels which now adorn his early and lamented grave.

> One of the Chapel street merchants suggests that all business men close their stores and offices at a suitable hour in the afternoon, say 4 o'clock, and unite their efforts in soliciting enlistments until September 1st. This plan has been adopted elsewhere, and with great success. The quota of this town can be easily filled by such a procedure.

ENLIST FROM YOUR OWN TOWN .- We are told of an instance where two men left the town of Clinton and enlisted in Branford, the latter town offering $200 bounty. When the town bounties were to be paid, Branford did not recognize such men, and Clinton had already completed her quota so the sharp volunteers feel rather dull at losing all town bounty. Clinton may be generous to her sons yet, though.

It is stated that it is not the intention of the government to put the last three hundred thousand troops in the field immediately, but to keep them as a reserve corps in the different States. The various rendezvous will be camps of instruction, in which the men will have a fine time for the remainder of the summer, receiving the same pay and bounty as those in the field.

The following passage from the Federalist by James Madison, is significant of his opinion of the capacity of the slaves to sustain or deo be their interest:

some of the States, who, during the calm of regular government, are sunk below the level of men, but who, in the tempestuous scenes of civil violence may emerge into the human character shot down upon refusing to surrender to the and give a superiority of strength to any party Rebels. with which they may associate themselve

It is evident that Gen. Pope, in foraging h forces on the enemy, is only doing what the most renowned general of modern times thought by parties of our men who went under a flag of must be done to ensure perfection in any army for Bonaparte at St. Helena, when reviewing his military career, said to Las Casas:

"It would not be possible to form a perfect rmy without a revolution in the manners and ducation of the soldier, and perhaps even in he officer. This could not be accomplished with our ovens, magazines, commissaries, and carriages. There can be no perfect army until, n imitation of the Romans, the soldier shall re eive his supply of wheat or barley, grind it in is hand mill, and bake his bread himself. We annot hope to possess an army until we abol ish all our monstrous trains of civil attendints." Every word of priceless trath.

Well hast thou said-John Crittenden! Albeit the prophet's lottier ken
Be still denied to thee—
"If Abraham Lincoln dave to stand,
The People's Chief—and save this land—
Where Washington towers calmy grand,
There will his statue be!"

I hail thy words, O Crittenden! And if thy faith goes with them, then
That faith goes far with me:
But while THY Lincoln's niche awaits The quarryings of our "Border St. tes,
My Lincoln guards the Union's gates,
And there his niche shall be! Beneath that niche—John Crittenden! His name was graven by History's pen,

When Freedom's sunlit sea,
Upswelling from Potomac's wave,
Bore b. ck the slave-mart and the slave:
And there—where life to souls he gave—
There shall his statue he!

In vain, in vain, John Crittenden! Thy Border States and Border Men Like Canute, mock the sea: Above their whips and chains it rolls, In billowy tides of loyal souls—

And where, at FREEDOM's feet, it shoals God grant that LINCOLN be O silver-tongued John Crittenden! O suyer-tongued Jonn Crittenden!

Bweet are thy words to thoughtful men,
Though hellow sounds from thee:
Where loyal arm and loyal prayer
The standard of this land would bear,
Let ABRAHAM LINCOLN mount—and thei
There will his statue be!

When Lincoln's hand, O Crittenden! Shall dip within his HEART the pen That writ-s this Nation FREE Then, towering where the angels climb, His starry soul shall stand sub-line, throned upon all Future Time, There shall his statue be!

WAR NEWS.

General Orders No. 107 allows officers of the regular army to receive leave of absence, to accept the rank of Colonel in volunteer regiments but not lower grades. Non-commissioned of ficers and privates will be discharged on receiving commissions in volunteer regiments.

The oath of allegiance is not to be administered to any person against his will, but both this act and that of parole of honor must be voluntary acts of the parties interested. All property seized and used for subsistence, transportation for pillage embezzlement or misapplication of

The Battle of Cedar Mountain. There was no close infantry fighting in the pattle of Saturday, except in Williams's division, on the right wing, and the hottest was in Crawford's brigade. The trees at the rear of where this brigade—led by one of the Sumter defenders—made its awful charge, and where Gordan's brigade afterward came to the fight on a run, are scarred and shattered in a marvelous manner. Almost every tree is struck-in thick woods-small ones cut down, large ones hit stroy the government, according as they find it many times, as in one case I counted nine of these scars on a single upright trunk! How "I take no notice," he says "of an unhappy species of population (the slaves) abounding in here the grave of Adjutant Smith of the 5th Connecticut was identified to-day, and we marked a shingle and placed it near the head of

The pillage of the successful Rele's upon the oodies of our dead is represented as having been horrible and repulsive. The next day scores of our dead were found naked in the wheat field truce to bury them; and in money the enemy must have reaped a harvest. Everybody had been sacked of something. Shoes were taken almost invariably. The battle-field looked as if the victors had held high carnival over it. The excuse was hardly broad enough to cover the desolation—the apology which the Rebel General Stewart made to Gen. Crawford, when the latter, pointing to the plundered and naked bodies, asked, "What does this mean?" "Sir," replied Gen. S., with an air of offended innocence, "there are pirates in our ranks whom we had much rather were your prisoners; men who not only rob you but rob us.

The following is said to be a most excellent remedy for that painful and fatal disorder-

"Half oz. rhubarb; one oz. Peruvian bark, pulverized; two nutmegs, grated, boiled in; two quarts of water over a slow fire until reduced to 1 qt.; strained through coarse strainer and sweetened with loaf sugar, say 4 oz.; add sufficient cider brandy to preserve it if you wish to keep it any time. Dose-one wine glass full once an hour until it operates."

The report in a New-York paper that Gen. H. W. Benham has been dismissed from the army is exaggerated. The probable truth is, that the General has been dropped from the list of Brigadiers. This will reduce him to his prev ious rank of Major in the Corps of Engineers of which corps he has long been an able and use ful member.

Comfort for the Drafted. The drafted men of 1814 received no bounty out, on the contrary, had to furnish their own equipments, including gun, knapsack, canteen cartridge box, and twenty-four rounds of ammunition. Their pay from Government was $8 per month. Offers of substitutes were nu merous, but very few were accepted.

The Louisiana regiment in New Orleans al ready numbers 900, and is commanded by Major Holcomb, of the 13th Connecticut.

Mrs. Partington on the New Military

A shadow passed our window, the door ppened, and looking up we saw the form of M:s Partington before us. "I've just dropped in," she said. Dropped in! and she weighs one hun dred and fifty if she does an ounce. She held out her snuff-box as she said "Good morning, filled with Rhode's Delectable. Ike was by her side, and before we had time to prevent it he had both arms stuck to the fly-paper on the desks before us. "I've just dropped in to ask," she said, as we looked up inquiringly, "what sort of a crop the cessasionists will be likely to get from planting cannon, that I see something about in the papers? I don't believe it will come up."

"Perhaps it may," we said, favoring the idea, "as we see many sprouts about in uniform that are evidently sons of guns, and if, as Mr Field has said, a soldier's sire and grandsire may be a sword, why not a gun its descend-

"May be so," said she, brightening up "may be so; it isn't the most unlikely thing that never come to pass, and that may be why guns wear breeches. I declare that I never thought of that before.'

The Theological Opinions of Statesmen. Mr. Dicey, an intelligent Englishman, traveling in the United States, indicates, in a letter to the London Spectator, the difference between The Attorney General of Massachusetts in a America and England in respect to the importance placed on the theology of public men. He says:

"Throughout the whole period of my residence here I never met in any newspaper with any allusion to the religious opinion of any public man, nor have I ever seen any question connected with religion discussed in the press I don't suppose one American in a hundred ever asked or thought of asking what church Mr. Lincoln, Mr. Seward, or Mr. Stanton belonged to. I believe the first is a Baptist, the econd an Episcopalian, and the third a Unitarian; but I am by no means sure that I am correct in so thinking, and as nobody I meet would know anything about the matter, I have no means of discovering, if I wish it, what denomination a public man belongs to."

It is said that a great European power has ordered 50,000 breech-loading rifles from an American concern which has san
