Over the past several months there has been a tremendous amount of rhetoric concerning abortion. The pros and cons have been so vast, if one was to try to remember it all, the brain would be swimming in words. It isn't my intent to voice my opinion concerning this subject. It is, however, my contention to make you, the reader, aware; that the moment we speak of human life, no matter what quarter, we speak of all human life.

A short while ago I saw a series of pictures concerning abortion. These pictures were absolutely astounding. It is almost unbelievable to think of the fetus (a Latin word for "young one") as having life in as little as two months. These pictures should be seen by everyone, then we would be in the position to decide (judge) what we wish to do, but honestly. Not just because someone said something, that something being what we wanted to hear. Because in reality isn't that what we listen to most, and then make our decisions from?

I read an article in "The Catholic Transcript" this past week. It was a letter from a doctor. Its title: "Lack of Reverence For Unborn Threatens Reverence For All Human Life." A beautiful title; however, for the most part, haven't we already developed a lack of reverence for most human life? The doctor began his article; "Just as a rose is a rose by any other name, so murder is murder, no matter the name." For years I have had many thoughts concerning life, this first line plus the article we printed last week (Electric Chair Awaits Revived Death Penalty) brought my faculties into full perspective regarding this subject.

Also from the same paper, the Archbishop - John F. Whealon's column, said, "Respect Life? Animal life in the Connecticut wetlands is protected by law but human life in the womb is not. Human life simply as human life is an all important value. Any good and true society will not allow respect for life to be removed from even the smallest segment of the population." Albert Schweitzer, who gave his life to serve others, said; "If a man loses his reverence for any part of life, he will lose his reverence for all life." These two quotes make the restoration of the death penality a mockery of all those who oppose abortion yet sanction the death penality. They speak of life, yet hold it with little regard when they can sanction the taking of any life regardless of the reason. I can not understand how man, especially those of the hierarchy, can say this and attempt to pass laws preventing abortion, yet will work just as dilligently to pass laws allowing legal murder. As was stated earlier, taking of a life "...murder is murder, no matter the name."

I love life, I believe in life, more I beleive in its preservation, to say it is wrong on the right hand, then say it is right on the left hand is as inconsistent as we can possibly get. I don't believe anyone anyone is more against the death penalty than I. To me it is inconceiveable to take the life of a full grown man. One with all his faculties, one who is aware of what is happening to him. The psychological effect this has on the individual has to be worse that the actual act of taking his life. In speaking of abortion to word cruel and inhuman comes into the conversation, not together, but seperately; it is cruel to take the life of an unborn child; those who allow it and perform it are inhuman, yet what is more cruel and inhuman than to take the life of an individual after several months or possibly years of planning it.

For the most part society made us what we are. Our socialization process is the greatest factor in our behavior, whether it be good or bad. There haee been thousands and thousands of dollars spent on each individual during his lifetime; then when society fails in its attempt to make a man conform to its norms, senctions, rolls and rules and he becomes deviate, it is society's duty to take whatever measures are necessary to bring this man back into the accepted ways of the society. How can society say, "worthless: Take his life:" where did man get the athority to take the life of one of his own, regardless of the reason?

If an unborn child's life is worth saving, isn't it much more feasible to save the life of a full grown individual? If a person is orientated to that of deviate ways, then, why can't thw same individual be desocialized, reorientated and made into a decent human being? This will take a tremendous amount of effort on the part of those socalled concemed indiv: iduals in the hierarchy. I am not naive enough to believe this can always come to pass, but I am realistic enough to know that as long as there is life there is always the possibility of change. With death there is nc chance, and who among us has the RIGHI to take a life, regardless of the reason.

Apostle Fisher took the bag from the woman "There's roots in here? He Opened the bag and snatched out a round object rapped in white tissue paper. "This is the Devil!- Satan! This woman has went to the Devil to help her with her children. It's she that needs the help!"

He pulled out another tissue wrapped object.
"OohJesusmyyGodd..!" grasped the congregation.
"BlessHissgreatName! "
"...the work of the Devill Jesus gives me the power to take the Devil's work and destroy it. The Devil can overpower you and I but he cannot stand up agaisnt the Lord. Bless His Name!" Apostle Fisher threw the whole of the bag on the floor. "The power of God! whe power of God!"
Luther's stomach tightened, as if a girth was strapped to his waist, the lace being wrenched, forcing his breath up through his throat, his head. His mind grappled for an explanation= the props- how? why? was this real?

Placing one hand on her shoulder, Apostle Fisher poured oil on the woman's head.
Devill in same of God, Christ the King! command you to leave this Woman, be gonel
The woman shook, swayed back and forth, her children sobbing, the congregation wailling, Apostle Fisher spastic. coccleanse her! free her! save her! have mercy, kooAtsoTainm! ... ${ }^{\text {an }}$

He loosen his grip on her shoulder and told her that she need not ever again go see the root lady. Jesus was her protection.

She returned to her seat trembling and her children, wimpering.
Luther stepped up to Apostle Fisher; bold, defiant, his head sucking the air from his lungs.
"Son," Apostle Fisher said solemnly. "You don"t beleive what you have just seendo you? You don"t believe I have the power to know what's in your mind, Read you! Do you?"
"Mo." Luther's answer was timid.
ryou thinkthat I arranged for that woman to come up here-don ${ }^{\circ} t$ you?"
The girth was puiled tighter. Luther felt as if his head would burst. "I-I-.." How did he know what he was thinking?
"-Son, I'm going to pray for you. I want you to believe what you saw, in me, in God. I'm going to ask Jesue to put in His heart."

He poured oil on Luther's head in a torrent, the oil soaking through his thick hair, until it plunged to his scalp, cold, dripping down into his eyes, streaking his cheeks and filling the corners of his mouth.
",.Save this boy God..."
Luther closed his eyes. Something struck his forehead with a slap; not hard but strong, a sting. He felt his head being squeezed, something first messaging then grinding, pressing, burrowing through his hair.
"o.bless this boy Lord- help him see your light! Remove the work of the Devil from his soul! !..."

Tuther felt the air from his lungs now being sucked up by his mouth. He wanted to cry out, shout his darkness. What gripped him? Run fooll Run! The props- where are the props?
"n make him see Lord that he cannot live without You.." Apostle Fisher took his hand from Luther's head and whipped the dripping oil from his forehead and cheeks. He enclasped his hand in his fleshy moist palms. "Jesus will take care of you, son. Trust him."

Luther walked to his seat. His ears were flooded with the ecstasy of the congre gation; hands clapping, feet stomping, laughter, moans. Christina Bmiled at him, tears dazzling her face, her eyes like pieces of cooled ore. He felt the urge to tell her what be had experienced, but her gaze told him that she knew, had been with him.

Someone lead off with a song and he rese to his feet. He took the tambourino from Christina and dirumed it eagerly and sung loudly. He could hear himself, could feel the word as they rolled off his tongue and blended with the voice of this people, could feel that he was one of them, had shared their darkness, their confusion, their fear, their helplessness.

PERSPECTIVE, HARTFORD, CONN. - being in the situation for many years I can appreciate what the Correction Officer Trainees felt when they were locked up. Perhaps this will give them a little insight and in turn a little more compasion for those whom they must deal with. THE PIONEER NEWS, CHINO, CALIFORNIA - your Gravel Club sounds like a fantastic idea. I wish you had given more details about it in your article. I also believe your Drivers ${ }^{\text {a }}$ training Course is a terrific idea. I have always advocated the like here, but to no aveil.
ABOUT FACE, COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA - enjoyed your publication, it is altogether Your By-line "Prison Should Be A Highway, Not A DEAD END" brought back the old memories of our first Correction Department Commissioner. He brought that slogan with him when he left your system.
NEW VIEN, C.C.I. OSBORN, ENFIELD, CONN. - I read your publication from cover to cover this week. What an improvement. Keep up the good work!
THE PRISON MTRROR, STILIWATER, MINNESOTA - after reading your article Advisory Council: Visiting - Health - Furloughs, which I enjoyed very much, and believe it is a step in the right direction. About extended time for visits; we had done that here a few years back, and instead of crowding the visiting room it seems to have the reverse effect. It has worked real good for us.
HILI TOP NEWS, IONIA, MICHIGAN - your Red Cross Course seems like a fantastic idea. I'm sure most of us have been in situations where we wished we had some knowledge of what to do and how to do it.
THE SPECTATOR, JACKSON, MICHIGAN - you people certainly had your problems. I enjoyed your last two issues, but I'll hold my opinions concerning your situation. Hopefully your back on some semblance of normaley
TTHE TIER TRIBUNE, BROOKLYN C.C.C., BROOKLYN, CONN, - waiting for a full report on your "In Concert." I am sure it was well received. That is a trememdous idea of teaching those residents who have the desire to learn to cook. That has to be a first. BEAUTIFUL: Good Luck and Best Wishes To All,

The SIX Most Important Words:
"I ADMIT I MADE A MISTAKE"
The FIVE most important words:
"YOU DID A GOOD JOB"
The FOUR most important words:
"WHF TIS YOUR OPINION?"
The THREE most important words:

The TWO most important words:
"THANK YOU"
The ONE most important word:
"WE"

The LEAST important word:

One of the major headaches of every sizable poli, department is the common drunk. In most cities, the routine treatment of those charged with what the statutes call "Public Intoxication" is essentially the same as Hartford's. They are carted to the police station and put in a police cell to dry out overnight. The next morning they appear in court where, depending on the circumstances and the attitude of the judge, they get ten to thirty days in jail.

Occasion&lly, a wino may be sent to Norwich State Hospital for treatment or be put on probation. But the chronic drunks-and the police estimate there are some 600 of them in Hartford-typically serve a brief sentence and are released, nily to go through the same cycle of arrest, drying out in jail and release again as soon as they can raise the price of a bottle of cheap liquor.

The chronic drunks are a nagging nuisance to the police and courts who are all too familar with the problem. But the routine treatment of arrest and drying out in jail is primarily a matter of getting them off the streets and into relatively safe surroundings. And so for generations, they have been picked up and put away as much to safegaurd them as anything, simply because society hadn't anything better to do with them. Scme understandably committed suicide in their cells. Injuries were not uncommon. But the cycle did nothing to help the chronic drunks, nor in fact was it designed to. It was and in most communities still is simply a mechanism for getting them briefly off the streets and out of sight.

Next month, Hartford will start experimenting with a ne and more enlightened method of dealing with drunks who have nothing else against them but public intoxication. Taking advantage of a two year old state law, which hitherto has not been implemented, helpless drunks will be taken to a new 60 -bed center being used at the old Jones Home at University-McCook Hospital. There they will get care and medical attention for at least a brief period while they are detoxified. They will get professional diagnosis and counseling before they are released, hopefully with better prospects than most of them have had in the past.

The program has been organized and planned by the energetic and ambitious Hartford Institute for Criminal and Social Justice with the cooperation of the hospitals in the area. It is funded with federal, state and local contributions. It will not provide longterm treatment, although it will serve as a referral agency when further treatment is indicated. Only the wildest optimist could hope for dramatic results in returning chronic drunks to useful society. But at least there will be humane treatment and medical care for the unfortunates whom, in the past, have been indiscriminately swept under the rug by a callous society.

PROPOSALS EYED FOR ALCOHOLICS
The first draft of proposals for a range of services for alcoholics and alcohol abusers in the Bridgeport area was presented to a meeting of the alcohol advisory committee of the Greater Bridgeport Mental Health Council yesterday.

The proposals include establishment of a central entry point to which alcoholics and other alcohol abusers can go for detoxification and have the extent of their problem evaluated.

The proposal is part of the committee's three-part study for the state Department of Mental Health on the extent of the alcohol problem in the Bridgeport area, a survey of existing services and recomendations for coordinating and further developing the services.

Eugene G. Michael, executive director of the Mental Health Council, stressed that the proposal for a central entry point and a number of other proposals are tentative and "highly theoretical."

As to how close at hand most of the suggestions are to actual implementation, Mr. Michael said that there is still the problem in coordinating the operations of existing services. Furthermore, he predicted that any Federal funding for the proposals would be bottled up in appropriations fights between the Congress and President Nixas.

"A THOUGHT ON TIME

Of late I have been fascinated with the concept of time. Being incarcerated, one is always informed that he is doing time and until recently I took that for granted. However, after reflecting on what time represents for me, I arrived at a very interesting theorem. Time is the measured relationship between motion and space. Therefore, it is not that I am doing time, it is that I am time itself. I must conclude this by the nature of my very theorem. I say this because of the fact that I am in a constant state of motion and I occupy space. Time cannot be for me until it is experienced. I live in the now with the hope that there will be life for me an hour from now. I say hope because of the realization that I can never know if I will be alive but I hope I will.

Time is a very illusive phenomena also. In setuality it is the same time everywhere, at the same time it is not the same time. A simple example of this is two trains that leave the same station simultaneously. If one of the trains arrives at its destination before the other then those individuals who have arrived view their arrival as faster time because they are occupying a different space than the train passengers who haven ${ }^{\circ} t$ yet arrived. Even though if it is $3: 30$ by their watches at the arrival station, it will also be $3: 30$ on the train which has not yet arrived. More than anything else those persons who have arrived, are experiencing one of the dimensions of time. They experience the subjective reality of occupying a different space than their counterparts. Time exists where you're at - at adifferent rate than where you're not, but yet at the same time. You dig?

It's like we are always rapping about how fast things are happening outside the prison gates but when it's $4: 00$ in Hartford it's also 4:06 in Somers. What does that mean? It clearly states that time is measured by where you "re at and what is happening in that space.

I got into this head trip to convey the idea that I don't have time for waste in my lifes' experiences. I am about creating favorable time situations for me to work/play/learn and BE in. Thus since my arrival here at Somers and having to occupy this space, I chose the most construc, ive endeavor to channel my energies into, which happened to be my partcipation in Empathy. To say the least it has been, up to this time, a rewarding experience and if I remain keenly aware of the conditions I must return to, it is a $n_{4}$ cessary experience.

Effective immediately, the Operations Division and the Electronics Department will no longer loan out radios or televisions that have been left to either areas for the aforementionsd purpose.

An individual leaving the Institution by reason of transfer; parole, or discharge will have the following options available to him prior to leaving the Institution:

1. He can leave the radio or television to be picked up by a visitor.
2. He can have same sent out by parcel post.
3. He can take same with hira upon release.
4. He can donate same to the Blectronics Department for parts.

The only exception to the above regulation will be that in the event an individual is transferred to us from another Correctional Institution with a televison or radio which would create a problem in terms of repair, he will be given the opportunity, upon request, to borrow a radio and/or television.

White to play and mate in two.
HAVE FUN:

The convict strolled into the prison administration building to get assistance and counseling for his personal problems. Just inside the main door were several other doors, proclaiming: Parole, Counselor, Chaplain, Doctor, Teacher, Correction, and Therapist.

The convict chose the door marked Correction, inside of which were two other doors: Custody and Treatment He chose treatment and was confronted with two more doors: Previous Offender and First Offender. Once more he walked through the proper door, and again, two more doors: Democrat and Republican. He was a Democrat; and so he hurried through the appropiate door and ran smack into two more doors; Black and White. He was black so he walked through that door - and fell nine stories to the street.

He added, however, that it would be wise for the conmittee to continue working out on paper the coordination and development of area services in order to be prepared in the event of funding.

The proposals, in addition to the entry point facility, include a series of operations to handle emergencies, food and shelter, intensive care and therapy, referral, job assistance, financial, housing and legal services, information and educational services and special programs for youth and the poor.

Some of the services can be provided through existing agencies such as the Greater Bridgeport Community Mental Health center, the Greater Bridgeport Regional Narcotics Program, local hospitals, Fairfield Hills Hospital and the soon-to-be-established halfwey house, he said.
(PP|) The Jets, defense, inspired and determined held the potent Colt offense to 42 total yards in an Intramural League game Sunday.
From the opening kick-off it was a défensive struggle of the upmost variety. With strong gusts of wind playing havoc with the passing game, the offense of both teams was resigned to their running games. In the ist quarter, with Price punting from his 5 yard line, the Colts defensive unit charged in with the wind and dust. And when the dust had cleared there was one Vinnie Esposito lying atop the ball in the end zone for the only TD the Colts were to score this day. The PAT attempt was blocked at the one, leaving the score 6-0, Colts. For all intents and purposes, that was the game until late in the 4th quarter when Lenny Wynkoop blocked a punt and recovered the ball on the, Colts one. 2 ensuing rushes were stopped, but the Jets were not to be denied this day. John Lewis ran the ball over for the score on the next play, tying the game at 6-6. And a tie it was to remain, as this time it was the Colts defense which rose to the occasion, stopping the PAT attempt short of the winning score. One can not say enough for the defensive unit of the Jets. This was the same Colt team that had run ub more than 200 yards on their previous meeting this year. inspired, yes, and more. Downtrodden and downcast they played their best game of the year, leaving spectators wondering where they had been all year. For the Colts, the tie was a startling blow to their championship hopes, leaving them in a mustwin situation next week against the Redskins.
