

SHAKEN BY AN EARTHQUAKE

IT WAS PLAINLY FELT FROM DELAWARE TO THIS STATE.

Crockery Was Thrown From the Shelves of Houses and the Residents Greatly Alarmed—In One Place People Were Shaken From Their Beds—Effect Appeared to Be Worse in New Jersey—Stamford Had a Good Shaking Up.

Highbridge, N. J., Sept. 1.—An earthquake shock was felt here at about 6 o'clock this morning, and from reports received here it appears to have been felt all through the Hunterdon county. Buildings rocked, beds were shaken, rudely arousing people who had not yet risen, and, in a number of houses articles fell from shelves—much to the alarm of nervous people. The shock was greater in the upper part of the county.

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—A distinctly perceptible earthquake shock was felt here this morning about 6 o'clock. The vibration did not last longer than a second or so, but was severe enough to awaken people from sleep and to shake ornaments hanging on walls. The direction of the shock was from southeast to north northwest.

Rahway, N. J., Sept. 1.—Two distinct shocks of earthquake were felt here early this morning. The first at 3 o'clock, was light, but at 6 o'clock the shock lasted five seconds and was accompanied by a rumbling noise resembling thunder. No damage has been reported.

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 1.—Quite a severe earthquake shock was perceptible in Plainfield this morning at 6 o'clock, lasting about seven seconds. Buildings quivered, people were thrown out of bed, ornaments were scattered from mantels over the floors and other evidences of the vibration were observed.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Three distinct earthquake shocks were felt by the residents of Brooklyn about 6 o'clock this morning. No damage to life or property is reported from any section of the city. The districts of East New York and South Brooklyn received the greater shock, but the earthquake was also distinctly felt in the other districts. Those who heard the rumbling sounds declare that they died away in a low grating noise. The shock was pretty severe on Coney Island and many persons there were awakened from sleep. Pictures, crockery and even furniture in many houses were dislodged from their positions.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 1.—An earthquake shock was felt here this morning between 5 and 6 o'clock. A loud, rumbling noise was heard, houses shook perceptibly and window panes rattled. The shock is said to have lasted some three or four seconds. Many persons who were asleep were awakened.

Atlantic Highlands, N. J., Sept. 1.—At daybreak this morning there was an earthquake shock here that shook houses and people. It was accompanied by a low, rumbling sound that resembled thunder. Many people arose from their beds in terror. The shock lasted for several seconds.

Englewood, N. J., Sept. 1.—An earthquake shock was experienced in this place this morning at about 6:10 o'clock. The wave seemed to pass from the north to the south. Mirrors were swayed on the walls of dwellings, clocks were made to strike out of time and people in bed were awakened by the vibrations of the earth. The shock was accompanied by a noise as if a big roller was being run over the streets.

Port Jefferson, N. Y., Sept. 1.—An earthquake shock was felt here very perceptibly at about 6 o'clock this morning. No damages were done.

Northport, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Shortly before 6 o'clock this morning an earthquake was distinctly felt here. Houses rocked like cradles and people still asleep were awakened by the vibrations. The rumbling lasted for several seconds.

New York, Sept. 1.—According to the officials of the weather bureau the earthquake which disturbed New Jersey passed on to New York, but only a few people could be found who would admit having felt a shock. Distinct shocks were felt at White Plains and Mount Vernon. Houses in these places rocked and sleeping people were awakened.

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 1.—A slight earthquake tremor was felt here at 6:10 o'clock this morning. The duration of the shock was about one second.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 1.—Earthquake shocks were distinctly felt at New Brunswick, Paterson, Camden, Morrisstown, Asbury Park, Long Branch and other places. At Long Branch the earthquake was felt more distinctly than at any other place along the coast. The residents in several instances ran out of their houses, thinking the buildings were about to fall. A prominent resident said his house rocked violently to and fro.

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 1.—A decided earthquake shock was felt here this morning at 6:05. Buildings shook their foundations, dishes rattled, and the wave lasted several seconds. No damage was reported.

Destroyed 50,000 Postage Stamps. By the bursting of a water pipe in the money order department of the postoffice Friday night, 50,000 postage stamps were destroyed and damage to the amount of $100 was done. The stamps were in the cashier's vault, but the water flooded this and covered the floor of the department. The girl clerks took refuge on top of the desks until the water subsided.

Italians Shot and Stabbed. North Brookfield, Mass., Sept. 1.—Four Italians were shot and stabbed here to-day by Giovanni Saccante, a fellow countryman. Gaetano Delconte will die. They quarrelled over a case of beer. Saccante is under arrest.

MRS. LEACH FOUND.

Missing Since Saturday, She Is Found on Elm Street.

Mrs. Susan Leach, wife of Lyman Leach of 1 Clark street, was found yesterday afternoon at the home of Mr. William Merle, at 619 Elm street. Mrs. Leach has been missing from her home since Saturday and the police have been on the alert since her disappearance.

Mrs. Leach is partly demented and seems to have a strong desire to run away from home. She has run away from home several times. Last Monday during one of these escapades she fell from a Dixwell avenue car and sustained severe bruises on her left side and face. She was found in the gutter, where she had fallen.

Mrs. Leach is not violent, but is so persistent in her strange desire to run away that constant watch is kept on her. Her husband keeps both front and back doors locked and also keeps the keys. Saturday he left the key in the lock of the back door. His wife was in the front room at the time and he did not remove it immediately as he was occupied for the moment. When he returned the door was ajar and Mrs. Leach was gone.

Mr. Leach made a hasty search of the neighborhood, but his wife was nowhere to be found, although a very short space of time had elapsed since he had left the door locked.

When she was brought home yesterday Mrs. Leach said she had slept in the woods somewhere Saturday night, but she could not specify the location.

KILLED IN THE WATER.

Lightning Struck Samuel Searle and His Son Near Greenwich.

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 1.—John Whowell, foreman in the Blckenseder typewriter factory, took a sail in his catboat yesterday afternoon with his assistant foreman, Samuel A. Searle, the latter's son, Samuel, aged nine, and Willie, aged five, and Edward Burnett, aged twelve. They went in bathing on Greenwich Point beach and subsequently went in the boat, letting it drift 400 feet from the shore. The vessel capsized in a squall at 6 p. m., but the party were not alarmed, but clung to the side of the boat. Soon Searle proposed going ashore to get their boat and right their craft. He started to swim, taking his youngest child on his back, with his arms clasped about his neck.

The others saw them start, then a vivid flash of lightning came and when they turned around to look again the man and boy were not visible. Whowell swam ashore and saw the bodies of Searle and his son floating near the beach. Doctors and men on shore tried till near midnight to resuscitate them, but without avail. Marks on Searle's breast and elsewhere lead to the belief that he was struck by lightning. He was a good swimmer and could wade ashore within two hundred feet of Searle and his son floating near the beach. Searle was on his back when he was buried a son on Friday. He was thirty years old.

Was Stricken at His Desk. Washington, Sept. 1.—Major Richard K. Sylvester, a well known newspaper writer, died here this morning in his sixty-third year. He was a native of Vermont and the principal editorial writer on the Post. He was stricken at his desk in May of last year, shortly after the sudden illness which carried off his chief, the late Frank Hatton. He rallied slightly, but had been more or less an invalid for sixteen months. The cause of death was heart disease, probably due to some extent to kidney trouble.

Excise Law Enforced. New York, Sept. 1.—The Sunday closing law was more successfully enforced here to-day than on any previous Sunday. Only a few saloons were doing business under cover. The number of excise arrests made dropped from thirty-seven last Sunday to thirty, probably the smallest number made in the city on a Sunday during the past five or six years.

ALL GERMANY CELEBRATES

SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BATTLE OF SEDAN.

Houses in the Principal Streets of Berlin Decorated With Evergreens, Masses of Flowers and Bunting—The Emperor Did Not Notice the German-American Veterans or the German Veterans When He Let the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church.

Berlin, Sept. 1.—The inaugural ceremonies to the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the battle of Sedan, the final engagement of the Franco-Prussian war, took place to-day. The houses along the principal streets here were decorated in a fine manner. There were long lines of evergreens, masses of flowers and a profusion of flags and banners. Thousands of people arrived here early in the morning and continued arriving until noon when the Berliners were crowded out by the Provincials, who thronged the streets. The police had taken extraordinary precautions to avert accidents. The weather was cool and clear throughout the day.

The program in this city included the inauguration of Kaiser Wilhelm memorial church. Crowds lined the streets from Bellevue in the Tiergarten over the Hercules bridge to Kurfurstendamm. Galleries were erected opposite to the main entrance to the church which were occupied by 2,000 girls attired in light colored dresses. The church was completely covered with flags, banners, flowers and garlands.

Troops lined the roadway in front of the church and the German-American veterans held a position around the porch commanding the entrance. This was really the position of honor. At 9:50 o'clock this morning the ringing of the church bells signaled the emperor's crossing of the Hercules bridge. His majesty rode with the empress in an open carriage with outriders and escorted by a squadron of body guards. The crown prince and his next younger brother, Prince Eitel, were seated in the carriage opposite the emperor and empress. Their majesties were received by prominent officials. When the emperor reached the top step of the entrance to the church, Herr Von Wedel, minister of the royal house, addressed him, saying:

"Upon the anniversary of Gravelotte the foundation stone of the monument to the great Kaiser Wilhelm I was laid. Now the fifty anniversary of the Sedan your majesty opens the church which was built with the funds contributed by the poor and rich equally throughout the country in memory of the emperor, who in his simple and religious feelings attributed all of his great deeds and victories to God, giving us all in the coming ages, an impressive example of trust and belief in God, without whose aid we are unable to stand. May God's blessing be upon us all, coming into this church. Will your majesty now please receive the key from the architect?"

A procession then entered the church headed by the kaiser. The grand duchess of Baden and the empress followed the emperor and then came the imperial princes. The colors of the regiments to which the royalties belonged were placed on the right and left of the altar. The emperor, empress and other members of the royal family sat in chairs placed at the left of the altars. Court Chaplain Faber delivered an address sketching the life of William the Great.

After the liturgy Superintendent Lange, who presided at the organ, began the musical part of the ceremony. Through some misunderstanding he started the music before the "Amen" had been pronounced, causing an awkward break in the services. Dr. Mueller preached a sermon from the text of the 25th psalm.

After the ceremonies at the church the emperor, the empress and the rest of the royal party, preceded by Herr Von Wedel, left the church by the eastern aisle. As they got outside the side of the church the children, arranged on each side of the walk, sang "Die Wacht Am Rhein." The soldiers, who had been stationed at various points in the vicinity of the church, headed by bands of music and with colors flying, then passed before the emperor while the children sang "Hail Der In Siegesskirmantz." While the children were singing the emperor and empress entered their carriage and drove away amid the cheers of the people.

After the departure of the emperor the high officials left and the German-American veterans, together with their banners, entered the church and marched up and down the aisles. The veterans were followed by the children and several singing societies. The emperor, contrary to arrangements previously made, did not walk along the line of German-American veterans or the German veterans, nor did he notice either of them.

Dispatches received here this evening show that almost everywhere in Germany the twenty-fifth anniversary of the capture of the Sedan from the French was celebrated with much enthusiasm. At Frankfurt-on-the-Main the celebration was especially noteworthy. Eighteen thousand veterans, with bands and banners, marched to the zoological gardens, where a grand banquet was given. Enormous crowds thronged along the route followed by the veterans and cheered them again and again as they passed.

In Munich there was a similar celebration. The city was decorated with flags and bunting, and the streets were crowded with the inhabitants of the place and people from the surrounding towns and villages. Everywhere the patriotism of the people found vent in cheers for the men who took an active part in the events that led to the founding of the German empire.

DEFENDER IN DRY DOCK.

She Attracted Thousands of Persons to the Erie Basin.

New York, Sept. 1.—The Defender attracted thousands of people to Erie Basin, where she was dry-docked this morning to have her hull put in shape for the coming contest with Valkyrie III. The yacht was taken in the dock before 6 a. m. The pumps were set to work and at 9 o'clock the hull was dry. Captain Hoff and a small portion of her crew were present. Mr. Iselin and his guests and the bulk of the crew were at New Rochelle. They arrived later and the sailor boys were set at work rubbing down the hull. The manganese bronze underbody was in very good condition, but men worked at it all day, polishing the metal with sandpaper and filling down boltheads until it presented a perfectly smooth and shining surface.

The upper part of the hull, which is made of aluminum, was rubbed down and given a coat of white enamel paint. Instead of being a dead white the paint has a decidedly bluish tinge. While this work was going on below other men were busy on deck. The goose-neck was strengthened by rivetting a flat plate to it, so that the great strain on the strap that attaches the boom to the mast will be amply met. Wooden caps were made and fitted into the outer ends of the new boom and gaff. These spars are hollow steel tubes tapering from center to end, and are made of steel plates, three-sixteenths of an inch in thickness, rivetted together as a boiler is made. The boom is 106 feet long and has a diameter of about sixteen inches in the center and eight inches at the ends. The spars worked well yesterday and practically don't buckle at all.

The boom does not look to be half as heavy as the lighter one of the two which Lord Dunraven's boat has used. As hollow steel booms were first used in England, and the fact that the Valkyrie was to have one was kept secret until almost the last moment, the Yankee ingenuity which has taken up the English idea and vastly improved it in time to fit Defender with both boom and gaff about sixteen inches in diameter is to be commended. To Nat Herreshoff is due the credit.

There were absolutely no signs of injury to the hull from the groundings of Defender at Hog Island and Newport. Aside from the work on the new boom and gaff and rubbing down and painting the hull there was nothing done on the boat to-day. Crowds swarmed about the deck and watched the crew fitting their ship for next Saturday's race. Early to-morrow morning the Defender will leave the dock and go to Sandy Hook for a spin.

The Valkyrie remained at the dock close to Defender all last night, as the storm prevented her from being towed to the Horseshoe yesterday afternoon. At 8:30 a. m. she was towed out of the basin and across the bay to an anchorage off Stapleton. For once the custom of giving the British crew a rest on Sunday was broken. At 11:40 a. m. the mainsail was hoisted, jib and staysail were broken out, and the Valkyrie sailed down past Quarantine out through the Narrows and with a light westerly wind reached down the lower bay. At 1:30 the Valkyrie anchored in the Horseshoe.

DEATH OF AN AGED CITIZEN.

Augustus Parker Passed Away at His Residence on Mansfield Street, Saturday Evening—Ninety Years of Age—Descended From Strictly Puritan Ancestors.

Augustus Parker, who died at his home on Mansfield street on Saturday evening after a painful illness of three months borne with the greatest fortitude, had nearly reached the age of ninety years. He was born December 8, 1805, in Meriden (then Wallingford), Conn., in the house where his father was born before him and in which his grandfather and great-grandfather had lived, it having been built by his great-grandfather, Arnon Parker, in 1747.

Descended from such sturdy men as John Beach and Dr. John Hull of Stratford, Edward Parker, Abraham Doolittle, and many others of the early New Haven planters, some of whom, later on, settled Wallingford and signed the plantation covenant, Mr. Parker pronounced till the end of his life the most pronounced type of the old-fashioned colonial settler, unimpaired by modern changes and cherishing old memories as his greatest interest. Even in his sickness his last pleasure was to tell over how his forefathers fared in war and prison-ship and in the great privations and hazards of the early time.

He was married in 1843 to Jane Stirling, daughter of Eliphalet Hotchkiss of Derby and Nancy Gloriana Folsom of Stratford. She died in 1870, leaving one child, the wife of John W. Alling. For the latter half of his life Mr. Parker was a member of the Methodist church, but until nearly fifty years of age he had been an Episcopalian.

His funeral will be conducted from his late home by the Rev. Henry Macbeth of Trinity church to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, with burial in the Evergreen cemetery.

The First Eli Whitney.

Georgia and the entire south are under greater obligations to the elder Whitney than to any other inventor. He made it possible for the despised cotton crop of his day to become the king of agricultural staples. It has built up the states south of the Potomac and their product is now manufactured in all the leading countries of the world, clothing and supporting countless millions of people in every quarter of the globe. Before Whitney's days cotton was comparatively an unimportant product, and in Georgia it was subordinate to rice, indigo and even silk at one period.—Atlanta Constitution.

WAS RAIDED SUCCESSFULLY

THE GRAND AVENUE OFFICERS CAPTURE MIX.

Seven Men Found Drinking in a Hamilton Street Saloon—Two Escaped and the Proprietor to be Arrested. Nothing has proved so efficacious in the enforcement of the Sunday liquor law as arrests under the recent statute, which makes it a crime to be found in a saloon on Sunday.

Yesterday afternoon Officers Caulfield and Poronto raided the saloon of John J. Maher at the corner of Myrtle and Hamilton streets. In the saloon they found seven men drinking and Maher serving the liquor. All were in a rear room of the saloon, in which a temporary bar was erected.

Officers Poronto and Caulfield were in civilian's dress and their entrance was hardly noticed. As soon as the crowd realized what had been done a mad rush was made for the door.

Of the eight men in the room only two escaped. The others were arrested and brought to the Grand avenue precinct. They are Caspar Belz of Hamilton street, Bernard Ward, Thomas Kelleher, Thomas Doyle and John Hansman, Maher, the proprietor, will be arrested as soon as the warrant is issued by the prosecuting agent.

Belz and Hansman were released on bonds of $50 each.

The success of the raid is due to Officers Poronto and Caulfield. They came upon the place from a yard on Franklin street. In this way they eluded the "spotters," who could not recognize them in civilian's dress. The surprise was complete, but still when a determined effort was made to break away the officers kept six of the eight in the place prisoners.

BUFFALO'S ACADEMY GUTTED.

The Historic Old Play House Totally Destroyed. Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The academy of music, Buffalo's old historic playhouse, was gutted by fire early this morning. Besides the academy part the store of P. C. Millet, the saloon of Jacob Fried, the furniture and hat store of George W. Comstock and the variety store of the William Vaughn company, all in the academy of music block, were damaged.

The fire started in the variety store of the William Vaughn company at 1 a. m. and gave the firemen a fierce fight. At 1:44 the fire was believed to be under control, but later it blazed up again. It seemed for a time that the adjoining buildings toward Seneca street must go. They are old ramshackle tinder boxes. Several streams were kept busy wetting these buildings down and everything of value was removed to places of safety.

At about 3 o'clock one of the floors of the academy building fell with a crash and the flying glass and timber injured several firemen. Those who required treatment at the hospital are: William Hart, struck on the head by flying glass, serious; A. G. Stewart, injured in chest and arm; Simon O'Donnell, badly cut by glass and timber; A. Rock, hands cut, arm fractured.

A rough estimate of the damage to the buildings and contents places it at from $250,000 to $300,000.

FOOT GUARDS TO RAISE $1,500.

A Chance for New Haven Citizens to Show Their Public Spirit—Details of the Proposed Atlanta Trip. The members of the Second Company of the Governor's Foot Guard have agreed to subscribe $4,500 of the $6,000 necessary to pay the total expense of the proposed trip to the Atlanta Exposition. The remaining $1,500 a committee of business men will endeavor to raise from those public-spirited citizens who have local pride enough to wish to see our city represented in a manner befitting her position as the chief city of Connecticut. The organization is made up of a class of citizens who would convey a just impression of the city to southerners, and it is to be hoped that no difficulty will be met with in securing the necessary amount. An opportunity is now presented for patriotic citizens to loosen up their purse strings and contribute to an undertaking, the complete success of which is undoubtedly desired by all New Haveners. The Second Company, if this money is raised, will be enabled to represent our city as fittingly as the First Company will represent Hartford. The proposed trip will occupy seven

THE SUMMER CONVENTION

Of Christian Workers Held at Cheshire, Cheshire, Sept. 1.—Cheshire has, we believe, been uplifted and blessed by the convention of Christian Workers held here during the past week.

The meetings began on Tuesday morning in Odd Fellows' hall with a prayer and Bible service addressed by Mr. Pope and Mr. Paddock. Their earnest words of allegiance to Christ and His cause gave the keynote which rang through the whole convention, calling many hearts into a deeper love for Christ and a more consecrated service.

In the afternoon, after warm words of welcome from resident pastors and ministers, Mr. H. S. Gillette, a Hartford evangelist, gave in his simple, graphic way, an account of some of the men whom he had won from a life of degradation to a life of faith in God. In the evening he spoke again, appealing to the unconverted to enter a better life, and some of his redeemed men belonging to a Yoke Fellows' band came down from Hartford to add their testimony to those of the recent converts in Cheshire, proving the wonderful power of God to change and purify the human soul.

Another interesting Bible service on Wednesday morning was led by Rev. Mr. Hoyt. In the afternoon came a great disappointment in a telegram from Mr. Miller, another Hartford evangelist, announcing that his sudden illness would prevent his filling his engagement to speak that afternoon and evening. But Mr. Pope and Mr. Paddock were equal to the emergency for the afternoon and through their helpful messages to the waiting assembly. At 4 o'clock Mrs. Lee of Wallingford in a simple and beautiful talk, showed a crowd of attentive children how to live a Christian life.

Mr. Gillette, who had left that noon, was summoned back by telegram to take Mr. Miller's place for the evening, and a deeply interesting meeting was held. In spite of the heat, attendance had increased until Odd Fellows' hall was taxed beyond its utmost capacity, and the convention held its meetings all day Thursday in the Congregational church. When that day, "the great day of the feast," had come, another inspiring prayer and Bible service was held in the morning, in which the chief message of cheer and encouragement was given by Mrs. Paddock in a Bible reading on Paul and Silas. This was followed by many touching requests for prayers in behalf of brothers, sons and friends.

In the afternoon a large audience listened to an address by Rev. Asher Anderson of Meriden, vividly illustrating the power of God's word. He was followed by Mrs. E. M. Whittemore of the Door of Hope mission, New York, whose radiant face and words glowing with the power of the Holy Spirit, showed her hungry audience what a life of faith in God could mean. In the evening, after short addresses and testimonies from pastors and lay workers, she spoke again to an audience of four hundred and fifty, picturing with God-given power, the work of the Spirit in redeeming the lost.

Strangely apathetic would be the hearts of those who could sit in these meetings and go forth without a deepening faith in Christianity and a growing hunger for the divine life so clearly portrayed.

The fine music by the choir from the three churches was appreciated by all. J. R. P.

UNIVERSALIST CONVENTION.

Will be held in Meriden, October 22, 23 and 25.

Meriden, Sept. 1.—Arrangements have been perfected for the annual meeting of the Universalist general convention in this city, October 22, 23, 24 and 25. Rev. Dr. Perkins has the matter in charge here and will see that the large number of Universalists from all over the world, who attend the convention in Meriden, are well taken care of, so far as entertainment goes. The convention includes Universalists from all quarters of the globe, not only those of the United States, but of Canada, Scotland and Japan.

In order to bring Meriden its attractiveness and its general interest before the Universalists, Dr. Perkins will prepare for the Christian Leader an article on Meriden, which will shortly be published. At previous meetings of the general convention in other cities the attendance has been from 800 to 1,000, including delegates and their friends. The chances are that the attendance here will be fully as large as that of former years.

The estate of the late George K. Whiting. Application will be made in the probate court, probably to-day, by Charles S. Whiting for letters of administration upon the estate of his father, the late George K. Whiting, who died a few days ago.

Mr. Whiting died intestate and leaves a widow and two sons, among whom the estate will be divided according to law.

Mr. Whiting was one of the largest real estate owners in the city, holding large quantities of it, especially in the Ninth ward, along Dixwell avenue and vicinity.

He owned many houses in New Haven at the time of his death. The value of the estate is estimated at $75,000.

The two children, Charles S. Whiting, his sister and Mrs. Whiting will receive the entire estate. Mrs. Whiting some time ago received a large bequest from a Bridgeport estate.

RIVAL CIGAR NINES.

Baseball in Allingtown—There Was Lots of Fun.

An interesting and exciting game of baseball was played in Allingtown on Saturday afternoon. It was between the Osterwels and the Grave cigar manufacturers, and was replete with tremendous batting, base running and costly errors. The star player was Billy Meyers of the Osterwels team, who covered first base in an excellent manner. The game was of such an exciting nature that only five innings were played. Darkness prevented further play, with the score 25 to 14 in favor of the Osterwels club. Another game will soon be arranged.

RED MEN'S FIELD DAY.

To be held at Hanover park, September 19. The State Red Men's Field association will hold its first annual outing at Hanover park, Meriden, Thursday, September 19, and a large crowd is expected.

This association was formed in Meriden last week, and as yet only four tribes are connected with it. After the field day it is expected that the twenty-nine tribes will be glad to become associated with it. The officers of the association are: President—W. M. Risley of New Britain. Vice president—W. D. Hotchkiss of Hartford.

Secretary—D. T. Lyon of Meriden. Treasurer—Thomas Chalmers of Meriden.

The committee in charge of the outing is: W. D. Hotchkiss, W. S. Davis and J. F. Lehr of Souquassan, Hartford; W. M. Risley and H. G. Parsons of Mattabessett of New Britain; D. T. Lyon, William Benziger and J. E. Parsons of Sawsonuck of Montowese; H. S. Clark, Thomas Chalmers and W. B. Morley of Souquassan tribe.

Circulars will be sent broadcast among the state Red Men and Daughters of Pocahontas, and all will be welcome. With the families and all a crowd of five hundred or six hundred is expected. There will be no dinner served, except what the park people serve, each one being expected to bring their own regular picnic fashion. Sports will be arranged for the day and everything that will tend to add to the pleasure of the day.

At the meeting of Montowese tribe and the Haymakers Friday night the matter was talked up.

Entertainments.

HYPERION.

Peter F. Dailey will appear on Wednesday night in his new play, "The Night Clerk," and those who have seen it unqualifiedly pronounce it Mr. McNally's happiest effort, and one of the funniest and most humorous of farce comedies. Its fun is clean and excessively amusing. A most elaborate equipment has been bestowed upon "The Night Clerk," and as a production it is far better than any farce comedy thus far presented.

Three superb acts of scenery, many novel and original electrical devices, and startling effects of all descriptions are included, while the company, which will include Miss Jennie Yeamans, is a capital one. Sale of seats now open.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Tompkin's "Black Crook" comes the first three days this week in all its glory and after its brilliant successes at the Academy of Music, where it had a great run for one year and at the Boston theatre one-half year, and at McVicker's theatre, Chicago, during the world's fair. The stage effects are gorgeous spectacles. The transformation scene is a triumph of scenic art and mechanical skill. The ballets may be classed as poetical dreams, and the musical numbers are gems. The premier, M'le. Kraske and M'le. Mavroff, from the leading theatres of Europe, are unsurpassed as exponents of terpsichorean revels, and will be supported by a bevy of beautiful and graceful corymbes. The "Stalactae" will be impersonated by Miss Leslie Mayo, endorsed by the ablest critics to be the most beautifully formed woman on the American stage. Her statuesque grace and art are indeed a superb foil for the bold machinations of the wily Herzog (Black Crook).

Among the many novelties will be the celebrated Bixford brothers, in a European specialty, and the great American comedy, "The Great Impersonation," which will be impersonated by Miss Leslie Mayo, endorsed by the ablest critics to be the most beautifully formed woman on the American stage. Her statuesque grace and art are indeed a superb foil for the bold machinations of the wily Herzog (Black Crook).

There will be a special holiday matinee to-day and the regular matinee on Wednesday.

"A Green Goods Man" will be here at the Grand Opera house on Thursday evening next for one night only, as he is afraid the police may interfere if he makes too long a stay. He will show how it is done.

Morrison's original famous scenic and dramatic production of "Faust" will be presented with all the original wonderful scenic electric and calcium effects, including the marvellous "Brooken" scene will be presented at the Grand Opera house Friday and Saturday evenings, with matinee Saturday.

POLI'S WONDERLAND THEATER.

The marvelous Rossow midgets will begin a week's engagement this afternoon. Their unprecedented run of ten months at Koster & Bial's, surpassing even Carmenita's record, stands as an imperishable recommendation of their extraordinary merit. They are the smallest men in the world, and besides give a phenomenal exhibition of acrobatic agility, athletic force and scientific boxing. The appearance of their father, who is six feet four inches tall and weighs 265 pounds, as the referee of their boxing bout, creates much additional interest. A strong specialty bill is also given. George H. Wood, Miss Nellie Waters and the Navens being regarded as head liners in the vaudeville profession. The Crane brothers, Terry and Elmer, Miss Belle Darling, and Huber and Alyne are likewise prime vaudeville favorites.

LABOR DAY CELEBRATIONS

GREAT ATTRACTIONS AT ELM CITY PARK.

The Horse Guards' Military Bicycle Meet—The List of Entries for the Contests—Thousands Will Visit Savin Rock—Labor Picnic There and Athletic Sports—Two Ball Games—Volunteer Sailing Club Regatta—Y. M. C. A. Wheel Club Races—The Harugari's Picnic—A Dry Sunday at the Rock—West Side Club Races—The Post Office, Etc.

To-day is Labor day and while there will be no general parade of the labor organizations there will be a number of interesting athletic contests and sailing races, the great workmen's picnic at Savin Rock and the big military bicycle meet of the Horse Guard at Elm City Park. There will be two band concerts by the Second Regiment band, the first at 2 p. m., and the other between 5 and 7 o'clock in the evening. An excellent athletic program has been arranged, which includes a ball game at 4 p. m., between the Mt. Pleasant and Atlantic nines.

The Bakers' union will give a parade in the morning, headed by the Second Regiment band. A great event will be the grand bicycle tournament to be given at Elm City Driving Park under the management of the Second Company, Governor's Horse Guard. A dispatch from St. Louis on Saturday stated that Cabanne and Titus had been suspended from the League of American Wheelmen, but a member of the committee stated that they would positively appear to-day unless a notice was received from Chairman Green that they could not. The Horse Guard have made arrangements with the Strain's Bicycle company to have their tandem team ride an exhibition trial against time. This team holds the world's tandem record of twenty-five seconds for one-quarter of a mile.

There can be no doubt of the success of the event in every sense. The officers of the meet are: Referee, W. H. Hale; starter, W. M. Frisbie; judges, Dr. E. C. Ross, F. M. Kinney, F. C. Tuttle; timers, G. K. W. Wade, J. Edward Heaton, William C. Dole; announcer, W. M. Frisbie; scorers, John Hugo, G. W. Adams, J. P. Forbes; clerk of the course, George F. Pratt; assistants, H. Powell, D. B. Parle, Robert Pratt, umpires, J. B. Gobbie, Lewis Hurley, L. E. Reif, C. J. Atwood; official handicapper, Henry Goodman.

The races will begin at 2 p. m. There will be a concert by the Governor's Foot Guard band from 1 to 2 p. m. The Edgewood electric road have had an opening made in the fence and roadway made at the park and will have all their cars stop there, making a direct entrance to the park, which will be a great public convenience.

club will be sailed to-day over the regular four-mile course on the harbor, starting at 10 a. m. The race will be for the three class cups offered by the club in '94, to be raced for on Labor day of each year and must be won twice in succession before becoming the property of the winners. The first race for these cups occurred on Labor day of last year, the present holders of the trophies in the different classes being as follows: The open cat boat Whisper, B. L. Rhea, is holder of the cup in class A. In class B, Bernard McDermott's 16-foot sloop Ta-Ra holds the trophy, while J. Danhauser's sharpie Vigilant will sail as cup defender in class C. Some good racing is looked for among the sloops of class B, as four new boats have been added to this class since the last race, the largest of these is the 21-foot sloop Mayflower, the property of John Danhauser. The Fannie is an 18-foot sloop of the Connecticut River type, recently purchased by Fleet Captain Haldinger, who expects to make it interesting for the larger boats in his class.

Messrs. B. and H. Schless are the owners of a 21-foot sloop, also of the Connecticut River type, this boat is of handsome model and is looked upon by many as a sure winner. Samuel J. Bennett's recent acquisition is the Daisy Bell. She is the smallest class B boat—14 feet in length. What she lacks in size she makes up in speed and quality, as she captured first prize in the spring regatta. In a good breeze these four boats, together with the remainder of the class, will make a very close and exciting race for the class B cup. Vice Commodore Duncan's Euroda and C. S. Edwards' Luella will both strive hard to wrest the cup from Whisper in class A.

In class C the boats are all of the sharpie model, ranging from 15 to 30 feet in length. The boats which will compete for the cup in this class are as follows: Dolphin, J. B. Alcott; Norma, J. H. Joos; Corinthian, Commodore Johnson; Comma, L. M. Cooney; Viking, H. Hawken; and Vigilant, J. Danhauser. The committee having the race in charge is composed of the following members: W. A. Pfleger, chairman; W. T. Duncan, J. H. Joos and L. M. Cooney. The handsome sloop launch Plover, Captain Charles Smith, will act as judges' boat and follow the fleet over the course. To-day's race will practically and the fourth sailing season of this young and energetic club.

THE HARUGARI'S. The Harugari sailing society will go on a picnic to Weidemann's park. Y. M. C. A. WHEEL CLUB RACE. H. C. Thompson and William H. Hartung, the committee in charge of the five mile road race of the Wheel club of the Y. M. C. A., have received the following entries for the race to-day: Lawrence Sullivan, Edward Coxeter, William Monroe, Ira Yale, Harry Terrell, William Hartung, Dwight Thomas, F. J. Bevelly and Stanley Smith. The prizes include a bicycle coat, a cycle pump, a cylinder, a silver mounted cane, and a gold toothpick. The race will be held over the five mile Westville course, the start being made at the corner of Whalley avenue and Blake street at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning. The race will be a handicap affair, but the handicaps will not be announced till just before the start.

THE DAY AT SAVIN ROCK. How the Day is Celebrated by the Central Labor Union—Ball Games, Etc. The season at Savin Rock is on the wane, yesterday being practically the last Sunday of the season. A great falling off has been noticeable for the past week and although a throng is expected to-day, fakirs and others are making ready for departure. To-day will be the grand finale of a season whose success has been not above the ordinary.

The railroad company will offer many attractions for the public until the middle of this month. It is for this end that they have secured Professor Gorman and his wonderful horses and propose to hold an equine carnival, opening to-morrow, Tuesday, free to all. There will be daily exhibitions by the horses, most of whom have been taught tricks greatly amusing and interesting. There will be a grand balloon ascension at Savin Rock to-day at 4:30. Yesterday was a dry Sunday at the Rock. Everywhere the side and back doors were strongly barred. The precaution seemed to be needless, however, as there was a remarkable scarcity of the patronage which tempts the liquor dealer to risk the danger of capture by minions of the law.

To-day will, if fair, attract the last large crowd of the season to the west shore, and to-morrow will witness the departure of some of the catch-penny devices. CENTRAL LABOR UNION PROGRAM. The program of the Central Labor Union picnic at the shore to-day is not very extensive. There is to be a balloon ascension and parachute drop by S. P. Baker, New Haven, 130; G. A. Matthews, Jr., New Haven, 150.

ALL AT SEA. But Finally Rescued from Danger. Result of Taking a Friend's Advice. There are thousands of women to-day entirely at sea, so to speak, as far as their ailments are concerned. They are overtaken by some female complaint, and send for their doctor in all haste. He usually tries this and that without success; he is all at sea, and his poor patient is with him. Suddenly!

A lady friend tells the sufferer to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because it has cured her. The following letter shows the result of that trial, and is a sample of thousands of similar cases happening daily. "I had been very sick for a long time; doctored with many prominent physicians. They pronounced my case dyspepsia, and said there was a tendency to cancer of the womb. There was a sense of fullness and weight in stomach after meals, loss of appetite, and offensive belching of wind, dizziness, 'all gone' feeling in pit of the stomach; headache, heartburn, palpitation at times, urine high colored. A lack of interest in all things. 'The doctor's medicines gave me but little relief. I was almost in despair, when a friend advised your Compound. I took it, and am now perfectly well. I can recommend it to all women. A number of my friends and neighbors have taken it on my recommendation, and have always found relief.'—Mrs. JAMES CRANKSHAW, Frankford, Pa.

Solve the Babies. Protect their little lives from the ravages of Cholera Infantum by giving them proper and sufficient nourishment. The dreaded diseases of children which come with hot weather are unknown when Bovinine is used. Add a few drops to baby's milk. Thousands of eminent physicians are continually recommending it for this purpose.

Salva-cea (TRADE MARK) the modern curative, Hits The Mark EVERY TIME. HARRY BEECHER, late Captain and Quarter-back Yale Foot Ball Team, writes: "NEW YORK, May 13, 1895. 'I have found SALVA-CEA the very best remedy for lame muscles or bruises. I can recommend it to Foot Ball players especially.'"

Ozomulsion TRADE MARK. is a perfect food for invalids. It is also a medicine. It contains Ozone and Gualacol. These make appetite. Appetite creates a desire for food. Cod Liver Oil—the basis of Ozomulsion—supplies it. It is the best nutrient known. By nutrient, is meant anything that promotes growth and repairs waste. Ozomulsion does this. That's why invalids like it. They like it also because it is easy to take, easy to digest, easy to assimilate. This makes it a perfect food. Then it does not nauseate like ordinary Cod Liver Oil. Does not cause eruptions, that is, belching of wind from the stomach. It does nourish, refresh strengthen and fortify. That's another reason why it's an ideal food for sick people. But above and beyond all it is best, not because its basis is Cod Liver Oil, but because it contains Ozone and Gualacol. That's the point. That's why PHYSICIANS PLEASURE IT for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, the after effects of Pneumonia and La Grippe and all Pulmonary Complaints, General Debility, Loss of Flesh, Anemia and all Wasting Diseases.

A Hanover, Michigan, man felt so jubilant over recently experiencing religion that he published a card in the county papers telling what a nasty, drunken brute he used to be and what a nice fellow he is at present.

To-day will be a sad day in Chicago. The price of beer in that city is to be advanced to-day. This is the result of the settlement of the contest which has been waged for a year or more between the breweries owned by English capitalists and the newer independent breweries of the city.

A factory in Anniston, Alabama, has received the contract for equipping the city of Tokio, Japan, with water pipes. Factories in England, Germany, Belgium and other European countries competed in the bidding, but the Alabama contractors were successful. The water pipes are shipped to Tokio by way of Liverpool.

Italy's harvest this year is satisfactory. The yield of all cereals is only an average one, but as the quality is excellent the value is $4,000,000 more than 1894. Wheat, corn, oats, and barley are all good in quality, with a yield above the average. The rice fields are promising, as the disease called risone has been stamped out; so are olives and hemp. The vineyards are attacked by peronospora, but the dry July killed the pest, and while the vintage will be below the average, the quality of the wine will be good.

It is now said that there was no William Tell, but a magnificent statue of him, in marble, has been unveiled at Auldorf, on the spot where he refused to salute the ducal hat of Austria suspended from a flagstaff. It shows Tell in easy walking position, with his little son, and is placed in relief against the tower which long has marked this place. The monument was unveiled with imposing ceremonies, delegations from all the Swiss cantons being present. The three original cantons appeared in delegations of thousands.

A number of Hebrew tradesmen at Springfield, Massachusetts, are going to petition the city government this month for leave to keep their stores open and sell their goods on Sundays. They will quote in support of their prayer this proviso of a Massachusetts statute of the present year: "Whoever conscientiously believes that the seventh day of the week ought to be observed as the Sabbath, and actually refrains from secular business and labor on that day, shall not be liable to the penalties of this section for performing secular business and labor on the Lord's day if he disturbs no other person."

Two east-iron lions after the British heraldic pattern which adorn the hall of records at Oakland, California, are to be removed, by order of the county clerk, county treasurer and county superintendent. "We had heard," observes the San Francisco Argonaut, "that Britain rules the waves, but never knew that she ruled the entire animal kingdom as well. But it seems she does—in the minds of Populist officials. We would suggest to these gentlemen a much better plan than 'bouncing' these alleged British lions. Let the present tails be removed; let the other and movable tails be affixed; let these tails work on a powerful toggle-joint; let the Populist officials each day take turns in twisting these toggle-jointed tails; thus shall the indignation of the American nation be appeased and the Populist vote in Oakland be largely swollen."

The Chicago plan for improving the lake-front has led to a series of important negotiations between the city and the Illinois Central Railroad company concerning the changes in grade of tracks and location of stations which the new plans will make necessary. Great expense, both to the city and to the railroad, is involved. It is now announced that a compromise has been effected, the terms of which in brief are these: The company is to depress its tracks, the depression to begin at grade at Park row, reaching a point four feet below grade at about Peck court, and rising to grade again at Randolph street. The company is to provide the retaining wall for the depressed tracks and build such a system of viaducts as may be agreed upon. In return for these concessions the company asks the grant of a space 200 feet long by 50 feet wide for the erection of an underground passenger station, another grant of a little over an acre of new-made land at Park row, and a third concession of about six acres for its congested system of tracks at Randolph street. These land grants are of great value, being situated in parts of the city where property is held at high rates, but the changes which the city requires the company to make, on the other hand, will entail great expense and not a little inconvenience to the traffic of the road.

A GENTLE REMINDER. A mild but extensive earthquake in the eastern part of this country figures in this morning's news. It appears to have been as severe at Coney Island as anywhere, and those who have visited that halcyon and vociferous spot this summer will realize that there has been load enough on that part of the earth to make it tremble. Mild as the earthquake was it was severe enough to call attention to a danger which has not been taken into account by those who have built the great cities of this country. Thus far there has been no startling loss from this disregard of a danger which nobody knows much about, but yesterday's shaking will make many wonder if there will not be such a loss sometime. A violent earthquake would make a great difference in the appearance of New York, and would greatly discourage the modern babel-builders. And after it the people who might survive it wouldn't want to live and do business in the tenth or eleventh story of a tall building. But it is not a good plan to borrow trouble, and perhaps there will never be an earthquake strong enough to overturn mighty New York. Still, after what the new Police board of that city has done, and after yesterday morning's shakeup, there is no telling what may happen there.

Nothing is dearer to an Englishman than his rights, and many Englishmen think that one of their rights is to refuse to be vaccinated for the public good or for their own good. But an outbreak of smallpox that has assumed almost the proportions of a real epidemic is causing much anxiety in London. It began some months ago, and since then has been slowly spreading from one slum to another, until now the health officials find themselves confronted with a task of no little magnitude, for cold weather is approaching and the disease is one that is much more easily handled in summer than in winter. The Lancet, in discussing the matter, explains the prevalence of the malady by stating that at no time within the present generation has there been in England such gross and criminal carelessness in enforcing obedience to the vaccination laws as within the last six years. This, in turn, is due to the fact that a royal commission, appointed in 1888 to investigate the whole subject of vaccination, has done its work with such amazing deliberation that even now it is not ready to make a report. Meanwhile the boards of guardians are constantly declaring that until the question is settled one way or another they do not feel called upon to enforce with vigor the provisions of the vaccination acts.

The right to have smallpox is truly a most precious one. Formerly it was not so considered, but that was when the danger of having it was more appreciated than the right. Since vaccination has been found to be efficacious in removing the danger the right has grown in importance.

Several years ago Grover Cleveland, then president of the United States, issued a letter to the heads of departments in the service of the general government, in which he rebuked officials guilty of "offensive partisanship," and remarked: "The influence of Federal officeholders should not be felt in the manipulation of political primary meetings and nominating conventions. The use by these officials of their positions to compass their selection as delegates to political conventions is indecent and unfair, and proper regard for the proprieties and requirements of official place will also prevent their assuming the active conduct of political campaigns."

Grover Cleveland is now president of the United States, and as it is known that he never recedes from an advanced and a noble position when he has taken it, he is, of course, of the same mind to-day concerning "offensive partisanship" that he was when he first preached against it. But it was noticed the other day at Springfield, Ohio, that there were many "offensive partisans" present at and taking part in the Democratic State convention. Among them were: Joseph H. Dowling, collector of internal revenue at Cincinnati; George W. Hull, collector of internal revenue at Lima; Lewis Ohlinger, collector of internal revenue at Cleveland; Samuel McMillan, collector of internal revenue at Springfield; F. M. Senter, postmaster at Columbus;

Joseph H. Newton, postmaster at Newark; Henry D. Lemon, surveyor of the port at Cincinnati; Michael Ryan, sub-treasurer at Cincinnati; Michael Devanny, United States Marshal for the southern district of Ohio; George W. Crites, special agent of the treasury department; C. D. Crites, United States bank examiner; Albert Carille, inspector of furniture for the treasury department; Robert T. Hough, solicitor of internal revenue; Charles Q. Davis, deputy revenue collector; Herman Cellarius, deputy revenue collector; John Dowd, deputy revenue collector; Charles Ely, postmaster at Dayton, Rudolph Brand, postmaster at Toledo; F. M. Hutchins, postmaster at Cleveland; Harlan Cleveland, United States attorney for the southern district of Ohio; S. D. Dodge, United States attorney for the northern district of Ohio; Joseph H. Outwalte, member of the United States bureau of ordnance; Robert B. Palmer, postmaster at Washington Court-house; Lewis Adams, immigrant inspector; Thomas Wallace, postmaster at Springfield; William Dobson, postmaster at Akron; John E. Monnet, postmaster at Canton; J. E. Lohman, postmaster at Hamilton; J. P. Salmon, postoffice inspector; W. E. Boden, United States bank examiner.

When President Cleveland gets back to his fall work there will probably be trouble in Ohio. That is, there may be unless he thinks that it will not be wise to openly discourage "offensive partisanship" until next year.

Communications. The Oak and the Vine. To the Editor of the JOURNAL AND COURIER: I have never been able to see the beauty of the comparison of the relation of man and wife to the oak and the vine. It has always seemed to me to be quite unworthy of woman. We cannot derive our opinion of the significance of this relation from any root meaning. If primitive man thought the vine supported the tree, so much the worse for primitive man.

We do not see here two similar plants, each strengthening the other, each stronger united than it would be alone. But we see rather a plant of one species preying upon a plant of another species.

The vine twines around the oak; you say it symbolizes marriage. The snakes that twine around the iacocoon group would symbolize marriage quite as well. The vine is not seeking the good of the tree, but its own. It gives the tree nothing, while it takes from it all that is most dear. Its roots absorb the moisture from the soil. Its branches run out over the limbs of the tree and shut out the sunshine. It breaks off the smaller branches by the weight of its leaves and fruit. It spreads its broad leaves like sails to the cyclone. The tree with a vine upon it has not half a chance in the battle of life. With a dead tree the case is no better. The vine does not make the dead tree beautiful. The dead tree serves merely as a trellis for the vine, and it is to the vine our admiration is given. A dead tree may stand by itself in weird grandeur for half a century, but a tree with a vine upon it will be rotted down in a dozen years.

No! If woman is a vine, man do well who do not make his broad leaves like sails to let him go out in the orchard and take counsel of nature as to effects. A vine will kill a peach tree in three or four years; and an apple tree will not survive much longer. But woman is as much the oak as she is the vine. Does man sustain woman in the physical battles? Woman quite as truly sustains man in the moral struggles. Do the tendrils of woman's heart reach out for something to cling to? Has not man's nature as great a need of love? The oak and the vine stand for strength and weakness; man and woman for different kinds of strength. H. S. C.

FASHION NOTES. The Wash Dress That Survives. When in the early summer the stylish young woman looked at a dainty ready-made gown, she found it was all lace, frills and bits of ribbon, and she seemed doubtful. "It is a little fanciful for a wash dress, isn't it?" she asked. But the clerk said it was not. At which she brightened. "I suppose it will go in the tub all right?" she inquired, and he declared it would, but as she went out putting up her change she said musingly: "But no one knows how it will come out." That was nearly three months ago, but since then countless women have found out how well—or to be truthful, how poorly—the elaborate wash dress will bear washing. So with the first of September the horn-tipped and fancy wash dresses were all called in. There remains, however, dresses of pluses, which promise to hold favor at least till the end of the month. These are usually plainly made, the model pictured here being a favored type. Its full and deeply pleated skirt is trimmed at the bottom with three bias folds, and its jacket bodice is short in the back, stopping abruptly at the wallet, but in front is cut into sharp points that are ornamented with three buttons each. A sailor collar square in the back but of fanciful shape in front, trimmed with a bias fold, completes the jacket. The blouse front to be worn with the gown is of white silk with applique trimming of duchesse lace. Considering dresses now coming in and that will last in winter it will be found that hip pieces, either full or set on after the manner of the flat shoulder epaulettes that will still hold their place, are a feature of many of the new models. This sounds like an imperative invasion of novelty, but it offers a chance to transform the round bodice already in hand into the latest by the discreet tacking on of such adornment as either hip pieces or a simulated coat skirt that sets out jauntily in the back from the edge of the round waist and lies flat at the hips. Nightingales Near London. It will probably be news to many people that nightingales may be heard singing by the roadside in a London suburb within six or seven miles of the city. We have always had them here in private grounds, but this year they seem unusually numerous, and some have come out and established themselves in more public places. One lives in a little copse down the road about 150 yards from my window, and he sings regularly every night. My next door neighbor has just returned from his honeymoon, and among the wedding presents was evidently a very fine flock. It marks time with a sonorous note which reverberates impressively in the dead of night, and being unused to the sound I hear rather more of the passage of the hours than is altogether to be desired. However, it enables me to note the habits of the birds. Regularly a few minutes after the clock strikes two the nightingale begins. It is still dark then, but the faint gray light which never leaves the northern sky this month is spreading toward the zenith. The bird sings well and strong, and as he has the whole concert to himself for a good hour I can hear him quite plainly. The only interruption is a shrill and querulous interjection, thrown in occasionally from some nest as though to say, "Oh, do shut up that row and let a fellow get some sleep!" But the nightingale never hears it, and goes on disturbing his neighbors with the sublime egotism of a great artist.

Few institutions burdened by fame so great and ancient live up to it so well as the nightingale. He is equal to his tremendous reputation. Other song-birds surpass him in some respects: the skylark sings with more fire and passion, the blackbird has a mellower pipe, the thrush is more dramatic, and many of the smaller singers have their own special merits; but the nightingale possesses a mastery of means and a nobility of style which make all the rest seem common. And yet all kinds of birds are constantly mistaken for it. Indeed, many people call any bird which they hear singing well a nightingale, especially if it is in the evening and in their own garden; but that is because they are thinking about themselves, not the singing. They do not care to own a black-crow or a linnet, but to have a nightingale on the premises is rather distinguished. On the other hand, I have seen scores of people pass within thirty or forty yards of one singing in full blast and never know it. But when their attention was drawn to it they showed nearly as much interest as if it had something to do with royalty or a murder, which are the only things that really interest the great British public. A very moderate gift of observation, however, suffices to distinguish the nightingale song from any other. Apart from its singing in the dark—it sings very often in the daytime—the manner is quite peculiar. The voice is not so rich as that of some of the larger song birds, but very full, round, and clearer than any—a ringing voice without the least shrillness, and of great compass. The execution is faultless; wide intervals, trills, and shakes are thrown off with a brilliancy and perfection of tone unequalled by all other songsters. A delicious low gurgling shake, in particular, is most characteristic. But what chiefly sets the nightingale apart is that it sings continuously, yet with a copious variety of phrase; whereas other birds either sing in snatches, like the blackbird and the thrush, or else monotonously, like the lark and the canary. The nightingale often sings in snatches, too, particularly in the daytime; but when in good song and undisturbed it will pour forth a continuous stream of melody made up of perhaps a dozen distinct phrases uttered one after another, and then repeated, but in a constantly changing order. Not all these phrases are peculiar to the bird, but the combination is quite unmistakable; and it gives an effect of fullness and finish to the song unapproached by any other warbler. I fancy the rest are jealous, after the manner of singers. At any rate, I have known this to happen. A pair of nightingales built their nest and had laid three eggs, when they were driven off by blackbirds, who built their own nest on the top of the other, eggs and all. Was this professional jealousy or revenge for being disturbed at night? Poets have often spoken of the nightingale's song as a "lullaby." Strange idea! The famous auctioneer's phrase, "din of the nightingale's," better describes the bold, clear, ringing strain. And why do they call the bird "melancholy" and "complaining"? It is the poet that complains, not the nightingale. His is a joyous song of courtship and the honeymoon; for when the eggs are hatched and the cares of a father are upon him he sings no more, but subsides into a croak—as well he may, poor fellow. No, not a lullaby, but a serenade if you like; or an air, as the case may be. My nightingale has been singing regularly this June towards dawn, but not so much late at night, though that is a favorite time with them. I think they choose these hours in order to have the field to themselves undisturbed by inferior performers, for I notice that mine drops off as soon as the other birds begin their noise. He has about an hour to himself without a sound; then at 2 o'clock or so the rooks make a start for their feeding-ground, cawing as they pass overhead. Very soon the cuckoo pipes up; and he has been in wonderful song this year, by the by, like all the other birds. After the cuckoo, the young starlings—greediest of feathered things—wake up and begin crying for breakfast; the blackbird brings out a few phrases before starting to forage; various small birds twitter to the growing dawn; and, lastly, the lark, the sparrow, who do not stir a feather until half-past three or four, resume that tremendous jabber of gossip with which they always begin and end the day. By this time our patriotic singer has had enough of the piebald uproar and retires disdainfully from the platform. The nightingale is not shy, but proud. He likes an audience and human society reasonably near, but he shrinks from personal contact and hates to be disturbed. So he prefers the untrodden thicket to the trim shrubbery, nor will any cajoling presume him to alter his mind.—St. James' Gazette.

A Warship's Race Across the Atlantic. Looked at from whatever point of view, the recent performance of the United States cruiser Columbia, in crossing the Atlantic, from the Needles, near Southampton, to Sandy Hook Lightship, off the American shore, in a little less than seven days, is unparalleled in naval history. We have become so accustomed to hearing of phenomenal bursts of speed of warships of all naval powers on measured mile runs, only to be told in almost the same breath that these speeds are never really counted upon as possible of attainment in subsequent regular work, that a seven-day trip across the Atlantic by any man-of-war was, until now, considered quite beyond the realms of likelihood. Trial trip records, it must be remembered, are made with the ship fresh from the dry dock, with a clean bottom, a picked crew, picked coal, and the best of weather, and with every possible human precaution taken to get, in the short period of four hours, the utmost that is in the vessel in point of speed—something far above the average. Once through the trial, the ship, which has thus attained the rank of a 22-knot vessel, mayhap, often settles down to a plane of comparative mediocrity, and is not apt to be again called upon to practically demonstrate that she was at one time capable of doing that with which she has been credited by the official records. In the machinery of the modern fighting ship much has been sacrificed to a

THE CAMBRIDGE TEAM

THE NAMES OF THOSE WHO WILL COMPLETE WITH YALE.

Interesting Facts Concerning the Various Members of the Team—Johnston, the "All Around Man"—Horan, the Long Distance Runner—Two Freshmen on the Team.

The team of Cambridge athletes who are to meet Yale October 5 and who will be in this city in training in a few days is made up as follows:

One hundred yard dash—G. Gomer Williams, Jesus college, and E. H. Wilding, Pembroke college.

Three hundred yard dash—W. Fitz Herbert, Trinity Hall, and C. H. Lewin, Trinity college.

Four hundred and forty yard—Messrs. Fitz Herbert and Lewin.

One-half mile run—F. S. Horan, Trinity Hall, and probably Mr. Lutyens.

One mile—W. E. Lutyens, B. A., Sidney college, and H. J. Davenport, Trinity college, with possibly Mr. Horan.

Two mile—L. E. Pilkington, King's college, and W. M. Fletcher, Trinity college.

Hammer—A. B. Johnston, Pembroke college, and F. M. Jennings, Calus college.

Weight—E. J. Watson, Trinity college, and probably Mr. Johnston.

High jump—Messrs. Johnston and Jennings.

Long jump—W. Mendelson, Jesus college, and probably W. Edg. Hemling, King's college, now with Mr. Mitchell's cricket team.

Alan Brooke Johnston is probably the best "all-around man" making the trip to the United States, as he has excelled at football, cricket, hurdling, hammer-throwing, weight-putting, jumping, lawn tennis, volunteering and other sports.

Last December he very nearly obtained a place in the Rugby team that opposed Oxford, and is well known as an ardent volunteer, holding a captaincy in the C. U. R. V. C., while he has passed the army preliminary examination.

Of his record at athletics for the "varsity," it speaks for itself, he having carried off prizes in four or five departments.

Frederick Seymour Horan, who will represent Cambridge in the half mile run and the races at the longer distances, is the president of the Cambridge University Athletic club and one of the oldest men on the team. During his three years' residence at Cambridge he has taken part in thirty-two matches, of which number he won twenty-two, was second four times and third on three occasions. His forte is long-distance running, and he holds the record for three miles for the inter-varsity games (14.4 3-5) and the Cambridge record for the same distance (14.45 4-5). He also holds the Cambridge two-mile record of 9:43 4-5.

Mr. Horan is a son of the late Lieutenant Colonel T. Horan of the Forty-third Light Infantry, and was born at Edinburgh on August 27, 1870, so that he attained his twenty-fifth birthday on the day that the team sailed for this country.

William Enderly Lutyens, who will be the first string in the run at a mile, is the retiring president of the Cambridge University Athletic club, and, like Horan, is studying for holy orders. He is one of the best of the English university athletes, and holds the inter-varsity mile record of 4:19 4-5 and the Cambridge record for the same distance of 4:20 1-5, as well as the Cambridge half mile record of 1:56 4-5. He never placed his ability as a runner in jeopardy by participating in football, and may justly be styled one of the most indefatigable presidents the University Athletic club ever possessed. During the summer months, when not reading, he has played lawn tennis. He took his B. A. degree twelve months ago.

Horace John Davenport, son of Horace Davenport of the best known "sports," having in his younger days astonished the swimming world by his doughty deeds, was born on January 11, 1875, at Surbiton. He passed five years of his life at the Rev. H. J. Wilson's school, from whence he went to Repton, and from 1889 remained at that establishment for four years. When very young he showed great promise as a swimmer, and won races for boys at Surbiton. He also won the long and short distance races at Repton four years in succession, but, having little chance of practice, abandoned a game-time with which the name of Davenport will always be associated.

Charles Herbert Lewis, the quarter-miler, is a native of London, and a Bachelor of Arts of the university. As an athlete he has participated in thirty college events, of which he has won nine, has been second in ten, and third in three.

Mr. Lewis did not devote much attention to running until his second year's residence at Cambridge, when he shot suddenly into prominence. Just as he was showing exceptionally good form, one leg "gave way," and except on very rare occasions, he has failed to do himself justice. His ability is undisputed, and he may do well in America. He will on the 10th of September attain the age of twenty-three. He is a son of Mr. Frederick A. Lewis of Harcourt Terrace, West.

For some years he was at Winchester, and afterward entered Trinity college in October, 1891.

Eustace Henry Wilding, son of the Rev. Charles Wilding of Arley Bewley, in the county of Staffs, was born on March 6, 1873, and, after being privately educated, was sent to Warwick. In due course he entered Pembroke college in October, 1892, and has just taken his B. A. degree. He was slow in taking up sprinting, and did not get his blue until this year. In the opinion of most critics he was beaten by Gomer-Williams. Some people believe he is the best of the pair. Certainly he has beaten the Jesus man three times, once in the "Varsity" trials.

Lionel Edward Pilkington, during his three years' residence at Cambridge, has made hurdling his specialty, though he is a good all-round athlete in the games that are the favorite with the English lads. His university records in individual contests are fourteen victories in twenty-six events. In his other attempts he was second on two occasions, third on three, and unplaced in six.

Edward John Macartney Watson, son of William Watson, J. P., of Dublin, was born in Ireland on November 22, 1872. He is the only Etonian on the team. Mr. Watson came "up" to Cambridge in October, 1891, matriculating at Trinity college. He first tried his luck with the weight in the following last term, but did not aspire to his "blue" until he had been "up" fifteen months, when he obtained second place, but was not awarded his colors until the following year. On that occasion he could only put 23 feet, 6 1/2 inches, but this year he fully atoned for his previous failure, and landed the shot 37 feet, 9 inches, which has only been beaten in the Oxford and Cambridge meetings three times—in 1874, at 37 feet, 11 inches; in 1883, at 37 feet, 10 inches; and in 1886, at 39 feet, 1 inch.

Francis Montgomery Jennings, who has been on the books of the university for three years, though only in residence there for a year, makes a specialty of the high jump. He has participated in seventeen university events, winning but four of them, and running second in nine, and unplaced in the remainder. He is a brother to T. Jennings of Cork, Ireland, who was the president of the University association, and a famous athlete in his day, winning for Cambridge at the long jump, the high jump, and the hammer.

George Gomer-Williams of the Lodge Florence Road, Ealing, Middlesex, is celebrated for once having, on the same afternoon assisted by a breeze, negotiated the 100 yards in ten seconds flat, and the 120 yards on level time, also. Mr. Gomer-Williams was educated at Wellington, but on leaving school did not go straight to the university, and it was not until October, 1893, that he found himself at Jesus college. At times a very dashing sprinter, he is a most inconsistent runner. He plays a little cricket and football for different clubs.

Walter Morley Fletcher, late Exhibitioner of Trinity college, is a distinguished scholar in natural science, and obtained a first-class in both parts of that study. He is a brother of Dr. H. M. Fletcher, who was president of the Cambridge University Athletic club in 1887, and who won the 100-yard race twice for Cambridge against Oxford.

Of remarkable type of athlete is Wallingford Mendelson, whether at path work or on the cricket or football field. He has won five of his six college contests. He and Mr. Davenport are the only two freshmen making the trip.

An accident and the hard frosts which interfered with training have prevented Mendelson from showing what he is quite capable of.

The Sacred Congregation and Electricity.

The telephone and the electric light have been the subjects of serious discussion by the Sacred Congregation of Bishops and Regulars in Rome. Asked whether the installation of the telephone in a convent might be permitted, the congregation decided affirmatively, with the double stipulation, however, that the apparatus should only be used on "grave occasions" and that the communications should only be made in the presence of two of the sisters. Regarding the employment of the electric light in churches the congregation decided that although it might be used for the illumination of the building, it must not serve directly in the celebration of ceremonies strictly belonging to the act of worship. In other words, when a light is prescribed by the liturgy for any ceremony, candles are obligatory, and electricity is proscribed.—Westminster Gazette.

Are Englishmen Gluttons? Are Englishmen gluttons? The question is suggested by a paper at the International Geographical Congress by General Arsenoff.

From a table showing the consumption of the principal articles of food per head for the various European countries, it appears that we stand far above all nations as consumers of meat, sugar and salt.

The Hollanders drink almost three times as much tea and coffee, and consume only half as much meat as we do.

It is certain that by comparison with other countries our working classes are over-fed. In comparison with Russia, we must confess to be wallowing in plenty; yet we are not content.

The consumption of food of prime necessity is four times greater here than in Russia; and while we can comfort ourselves with ninety-one pounds of tea and coffee, the poor Russian has to be content with six pounds.

How can nations expect to live in amity while some are well fed and others half starving?—The Realm.

WALLINGFORD.

Tom Barry had a narrow escape from a terrible death in front of the depot Saturday evening. The limited express going south shortly after 8 o'clock had just passed this station and a freight train pulled out from the side track and was slowly passing the depot when Barry stepped on the track and tried to jump on one of the cars, but failed.

While he was attempting to catch on another when the stone train going north came along. Barry was caught among the moving trains and the many people who were standing on the depot platform supposed the man was surely cut to pieces. As the last car on the stone train passed along Officer Mooney and Baggage-master Stewart seized Barry, who was laying on the track, and carried him to the platform and found that he had escaped serious injury.

DR. PARKHURST'S ADVICE.

Make the Child a Moral Vertebrate—Develop an Oseous Shaft. The first and fundamental thing that the home has to do for the child in the way of education is, then, to help make of him a little moral vertebrate, writes the Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D. D., in a vigorous article on "The Training of a Child," in the August Ladies' Home Journal.

There needs to be developed an osseous shaft running up and down him that shall form the axis around which his growing personality shall gather itself to compactness and flexibility. That will make the boy mean something, and make him mean more and more till the end of time, and clear on into eternity. It is the only thing that will make him worth calling a personal integer.

To learn to obey in the hardest even as it is the most valuable lesson a child can ever acquire. It is not only valuable for what it is in itself, it is also valuable for what it serves as the basis of. One of the first things told us of Jesus was to do with this same matter. It is related to us that He was subject to His parents; and the narrative immediately after goes on to remark that He grew in wisdom and in favor with God and men.

The close juxtaposition of the two seems calculated to teach that obedience was the seed kernel out of which His intelligence and holiness waxed.

HELPING THE PEOPLE AT HOME. Having Some One Else to Care for is Much to the Credit of the American Girl.

There are very few of us earning our living who have not some one else to care for, and that is much to the credit of the American girl, writes Ruth Ashmore in a very sensible article on "The Girl and Her Money," in the August Ladies' Home Journal.

Sometimes it is a younger sister who is to be helped with her education, but always a helping hand is needed. You laugh at the idea of making a will, but no matter how little you have, if it is nothing but your gold watch, you ought to attend to its disposition.

And if there are people depending upon you, old people, stop the soda water, stop the candy and have your life insured. You will not die any the sooner, and you will feel that the mother or the young sister you love so dearly will not, when you cease to be here, depend upon the hard charity of strangers.

Narcoti-Cure

CURES THE TOBACCO HABIT IN 4 TO 10 DAYS OR MONEY REFUNDED.

Use All the Tobacco You Want Till Your "Craving" is Gone.

NARCOTI-CURE is the only remedy in the world that acts directly on the nerves and drives the nicotine from the system in from four to ten days. It leaves the patient in better health than before taking, and is warranted free from any injurious ingredients.

NARCOTI-CURE is popular because it allows the patient to use all the tobacco he wants while under treatment, or until the "craving" and "hankering" are gone. It is then no sacrifice to throw away tobacco forever.

NARCOTI-CURE is sold at the uniform price of $5.00 a bottle and one bottle cures. Money refunded if a cure is not effected when taken according to directions.

Prof. W. N. Waite, of Amherst, Mass., chewed tobacco for 40 years, and was cured by Narcoti-Cure.

TOURING THROUGH EUROPE

IT WAS WITH REGRETS THAT AN ADIEU WAS BID TO GAY PARIS.

A Ride Through a Beautiful Country—Agricultural France is Unsurpassed by Any Other Land—Trunks Packed Into by the Customs Officers—At Last in the Metropolis of the World—London.

London, August 4, 1895.

To the Editor of the JOURNAL AND COURIER: From Paris we had arranged to visit the Channel Islands. These are reached by train in five hours to St. Malo or Granville and from thence by steambot to St. Heliers in two hours.

We decided, however, to change our plans and to come on to London, as we heard that the heat in the islands is often excessive in summer. We intend to spend two or three weeks here and find a cool resort on the English south coast for a few weeks.

We left in the through express at 10:30 a. m. "Schnee zug," as they say in Germany, and we arrived at Rouen at 1 p. m., having ridden through a beautiful country; agricultural France is unsurpassed by any other land; lovely meadows, glistening streams and pleasant fields stretched about us as far as we could see.

Rouen is a fine old city with a grand historic cathedral and many other interesting buildings. The history connected with Rouen is unique and very interesting. After leaving Rouen we began to feel that we were approaching the sea-coast. There were certain and sure indications of this and in due time the sand dunes appeared, sea birds seemed to fly high in the air, trees and shrubs seemed to grow to one side as is often the case on a breezy coast line, and before we had realized it we had arrived at the quaint old French town of Dieppe, full of peculiar houses and peculiar little fisher people; many French jugglers with bright red sails were hauled up on the flat beach and I noticed that there is a very great rise and fall of the tide at that little seaport.

There is much to interest one in Dieppe, and it is a popular sea resort for French and English "trippers" as they are called. On Bank holiday in August it is crammed with English bank clerks who run across the channel and rest on the bright sands and breathe in the pure ozone as it comes full freighted from the open sea; that is something which they rarely ever experience in London. Many steamers ply between England and France, and as the channel is often very boisterous, good sea boats are necessary, and such are the steamers which sail from Dieppe, Calais, Ostend, &c. We were in the new French steamer "Taxis," and had a successful crossing; there were two hundred of us and I called it a smooth trip, although some English friends considered it "very rough, don't you know," "so lumpy."

The distance from Dieppe to New Haven on the English coast is sixty miles, and we fairly played leap-frog over the tops of the waves and made the distance in three hours, which was pretty good steamship time against the wind and current. It did really seem delightful to be once more afloat on the bosom of old Oceanus, and to view a clear horizon of blue water all about us; and then the steamers, ships and briggs of all nations which we met. I was glad to see the sailing craft. Great painted posts of the French and English ships were coming to us from the countries lying in the full bellying canvases with every hempen rag set aloft and aloft, cracking on and doing the best to take advantage of a good old fashioned ten knot or greater. Little fisher craft were to be seen in great numbers scurrying away with slacked sheets, anxious to get their reward of toll to market and thus to the great market halls of Paris and London.

How few of us do delight to dine on the flimsy dainties of the great deep-sea old fellows who dwell in Yarmouth or Boulogne fisher craft, who spend their whole existence in baiting their hooks and pulling in their prey. Many steamers and majestic ships of all rigs were stretching their mid-channel course out to the grand Atlantic ocean, bound to far away continents and islands. About the one and one-half after leaving the low lying coast of France we made the white chalk cliffs of Swasset far ahead, and Albion's white hills fairly gleamed like pure silver in the sunlight. Just so those blanched hills appeared when Tyrian ships came to England to load tin, and when Julius Caesar threw his panoplied Romans on the south coast of Britain. We passed Beachy Head and the Selsey Peninsula, arriving at last at the wharf in New Haven, a pretty English village which probably gave its name to our home in Connecticut.

Again the customs officers poked away at our trunks and bags trying to find the dreadful playing cards, alcoholic beverages and tobacco. The ideal As if every man, woman and child must go about incessantly drinking cognac, smoking noxious tobacco and playing whist or poker. They found none of the above, and their examination at least was a slight one, and having entered our carriages we flew like lightning over the lovely rolling country of Sussex and Surrey, hastening towards the metropolis of the world—London.

For nearly two years we had scarcely with few exceptions heard the English language spoken, by officials never, and it was a treat indeed to sit and listen to the guards talking in our own tongue, even if they did drop and add aspirates we gladly forgave them. Every foot of England is filled with history, and wherever one travels here he is sure to pass over historic ground. No wonder the Druids dwelt among and worshipped the trees of England. I have never seen such trees and in such abundance; they remind me of Virgil's wonderful tree which extended as far under the ground as its great branches grew above it. "The oaks of England" are mighty in their strength, and so tough and gnarled and knotty are they,

and so deeply rooted in the earth that not even a hurricane could uproot them. They are aged plants and many of them remind me of those ancient trees in the Garden of Gethsemane. If iron battle-ships of war plough the main again—and this may happen—England's oak will surround the nation with a perfect bulwark of strength in the shape of those wooden walls for which she has been renowned for a thousand years. The ivy and greenward of England are wondrously beautiful. London is the most populous city in the world and it possesses a very interesting history.

There is no authentic evidence as to its earliest history, but it was a "city" when Tacitus wrote of it as Londinium nearly two thousand years ago; it was called such from the ancient British name Llyn signifying a "pool" and din or dun meaning a strong place. The pool is called such to this day and the strong place, probably a stronghold down near the neighborhood of the Tower, which is built on the side of the pool.

Some learned men declare that the first settlement of London was made fully two thousand years B. C., judging from certain very ancient remains. The population is nearly six million souls, and if one takes his stand on London Bridge at noonday and beholds the tens of thousands of busy people passing and repassing, or if he presses through the crowds on the Strand or Fleet street, or Ludgate Hill towards the city, or along Piccadilly, he will get an idea of the enormous population of this very big city. Very many avenues are jammed with cabs, hansoms, omnibuses and foot passengers, and a perfect babel of life, for six million people take up a deal of room and create a deal of bustle and noise.

Well may the English look with pride upon St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey. In what country will one find a church of this magnitude? The English are proud of their many magnificent buildings, and such grand tombs as they contain. There are the centers about which beats the life not only of London itself, but of the British empire. I have a number of times visited the Poet's Corner in the Abbey. I could linger long there. Nay, I could dwell there in the company of Shakespeare, Pope, Addison, Tennyson, Goldsmith, Longfellow and other great names. Statesmen, poets, men of letters, soldiers and sailors steep quietly there and England points, to their memorial stones with gratified pride.

The British museum, Royal Academy, National gallery and many other places demand a deal of time, and I find little can be done in careful sight-seeing in the short space of two or three weeks; and then the trips to Oxford, Hampton Court and other places are to be made; these latter we defer till September and October, when we return from the south coast. The omnibuses of London are a study; how they thread the crowded thoroughfares, how they mass about Trafalgar Square beneath that gigantic column which a great nation erected as a mighty trophy to the general of England's greatest sailor; hundreds of "buses" are to be seen on Hyde Park corner near the Albert House, in front of which stands the grand memorial to the Iron Duke, the hero of the Peninsula, the warrior who not only pressed back the French at Waterloo, but obliterated the French army led on by their emperor (of short stature). What a blessing to Europe that Napoleon was packed off to St. Helena; it saved a deal of further trouble to many nations.

I am surprised to find that the English have such a passion of bill posting on "buses," in the railroad stations and in short wherever I am confronted by the most starting posters. I have, I feel, become well aware that Nestlé's Swiss milk is the very best for infants. I know all about the cleansing merits of Hudson's soap, and since coming here I have discovered that Beecham's Pills, although costing but one shilling and sixpence, are the best of their kind in any box, so at least state thousands of circulars all over London. There are many fine equipages here in our neighborhood, for we are dwelling in Gloucester Place, Portman Square; the Duke of Five lives at No. 15, Lord Portman dwells on the corner and a host of fashionables have fine houses all about us; the butlers, footmen and coachmen with curled and powdered wigs and backs as stiff as ramrod American wire crushing, at least to the English who admire such distinctive attire.

Many of the nobility dwell in London in houses without outside cornices and built of plain smoke-stained bricks and no window caps; such ugly buildings I have never seen; whole streets look like rows of mean factories; but the interiors of these dwellings are magnificent. I went to Downing street yesterday to look at Gladstone's house. No. 10—the one he occupied when he was prime minister; the front of that little narrow house could not have cost over one hundred dollars.

The cob system in London and in Continental cities is admirable; a fine Hansom will take two people a long distance for twenty-four cents, and to get to and fro it is quite cheap, as compared to the mode of getting about one's American cities.

The underground railway is a great convenience to Londoners. From Baker street you can go to the Tower for five pence (ten cents), which is cheap for so long a ride. Many thousands travel underground to all parts of the city, and it is a pretty rapid way of getting about, and of course it is very popular. The clubs are famous and numerous; the "National Liberal" is a fine structure situated on the Victoria Embankment; it has sixty-five hundred members. What is known as "the Pool" is the port of London and such it has been for many centuries. I passed through the Pool yesterday on my way to Greenwich, and it was crowded with many steamers and ships of all nations, excepting our great country across the water. For the American flag seems to have gone out of fashion upon the high seas. The Docks are splendid structures and are filled with majestic, state-of-the-art sailing ships. Clarke Russell in one of his tales remarks, if any one thinks the merchant marine has ceased to exist in the shape of sailing craft, let him go to the Docks and he will find that the sailing ships have more than one "shot left in the locker," as it is in other words, they have not all been crowded out of existence, but continue to survive in great numbers, and his statement is true. While the ocean tramp steamer—that ugly, black sided, omnivorous cormorant—has driven many ships from their element, many are still left, as witness the great Docks at London. We arrived here during the throes of a general election; the excitement was very great; streets and street corners were crowded with people anxious for the latest returns. The Conservatives, as the English say, have been "kicked out" and sent "to grass"; the great Union party have now one hundred and fifty majority; there has been a great upheaval of the whole nation; every one I have met has been an Enlistee; I have not met one of the old party. Such excitement I have never seen in the United States in election times.

A word as to the "Almighty Dollar." I believe it was Washington Irving who coined this expression in reference to the love of money by all in America. I lived years among the English in the oldest colony which Great Britain possesses, and I know that the average Englishman adores an English shilling. The English are great traders and famous dealers and operators in the markets of the world and cut closer than their American competitors. Where an Englishman spends a shilling an American will spend a dollar. The love of money is quite as strong or stronger in the Englishman than with his cousin over the sea. European bankers state that the Americans spend an amount more than equal to one hundred million dollars, a vast sum which ought to be kept in the United States.

The English spend a larger amount in Europe, for their number is very great. The continent lies but two hours distant from England and the English have an idea of the enormous population of this very big city. Very many avenues are jammed with cabs, hansoms, omnibuses and foot passengers, and a perfect babel of life, for six million people take up a deal of room and create a deal of bustle and noise.

It is a delight to watch the fine carriages passing through Hyde Park, Rotten Row is the finest riding avenue in the world; it is just inside Hyde Park and is just inside Hyde Park. It is daily crowded with many lady and gentlemen riders. The drive is filled with handsome carriages driven by powdered and bewigged coachmen; the Lady's mile where the coaching clubs and four-in-hand clubs meet. No place in the world can show the beautiful women and stylish turn-outs that can be seen in Hyde Park every afternoon. A few mornings since I went there to see the review of the Foot Guards by the Duke of Cambridge; there were four battalions and it was the last occasion His Royal Highness will be present as head of the army, and a great number of officers and ladies and gentlemen were present to look on. At the saluting point were Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, Lord William Seymour, General Herbert and many distinguished officers. Lord Methuen was in command of the first and second Grenadier Guards, the first Coldstream and second Scots, altogether twenty-five hundred men, who were in their best and brightest uniforms. The battalions stood in quarter columns to receive the commander-in-chief with royal salute.

The commander was attended by Sir Redvers Buller, Sir Evelyn Wood and Lord Falmouth. The drill seemed absolutely perfect and such precision, such firing and marching I have never before witnessed. The tall beef-fed soldiers in bright scarlet, wearing their great buskins, made a very fine appearance. They certainly have no equal in soldierly bearing in any country in Europe. The march past closed with a grand movement in line with quarter columns as military men style it, after which the musketry and bayonet exercise were performed very efficiently.

Now came the volley firing when twenty-five hundred muskets sounded as they were discharged like a single great musket; then followed the inspection, ending with an advance and royal salute. The duke rode out to the brigades and commended them for their good qualities. When the royal standards were lowered and the band played "God Save the Queen" off came the officers' hats and thousands of spectators doffed their hats, and for a moment all was silent when the review was pronounced over. England is proud of her soldiers and of her sailors; one can see that they feel "cockey."

"They have the ships, they have the men, and they have the money, too," and it is palpable that England is well aware of this fact. VIATOR.

PLANTING LILIES IN THE FALL. Order Your Bulbs Early in the Fall and Plant Them as Soon as they Arrive. I would always advise fall planting, writes Eben E. Rexford in the September Ladies' Home Journal. My experience has been that lilies kept out of the ground during the winter season, no matter how much pains has been taken with them, are sure to be weakly. They may recover to a certain extent, but seldom make satisfactory plants until new bulbs have been formed about the old ones, and even these, because of lack of vitality in their parent, are not likely to give complete satisfaction. To have good specimens it is imperative necessary that you plant strong and vigorous bulbs, and these you will not find among those that have been long out of the ground. I would advise ordering bulbs very early in the fall. An early order is sure of early attention, and you will be sure to get your bulbs as soon as possible after

A LOSS OF $80,000,000!!! Labor-saving inventions or discoveries have often been violently opposed on the ground that they take workmen's bread out of their mouths. Although experience has shown the fallacy of that theory the feeling, or fear, was natural.

But it is not so much the lack of work as the inability to work that causes poverty and suffering. In England and Wales every workman averages ten days of sickness every year, with a total loss of wages for all of about $80,000,000 per year. In this country the loss is much greater. In all countries the prevailing disease is indigestion and dyspepsia and its consequences—such as rheumatism, and other ailments resulting from impure blood; a result of dyspepsia.

No thorough, rapid and trustworthy cure for this universal and obstinate malady existed until the Mt. Lebanon (N. Y.) Community of Shakers placed upon the market their now famous remedy called the Shaker Digestive Cordial. It is prepared from roots and herbs cultivated solely by them. Nothing more certain, safe and palatable can be imagined. It expels the impurities from the body by means of the bowels, kidneys and skin, and imparts vigor and tone to the stomach—upon whose proper action all our strength, activity and endurance depends. For many years the Shakers have given earnest attention to this subject, and their final success is gratefully admitted by the English who have been cured by the Cordial after all other means have failed. Their high reputation for skill as herbalists, for honesty and religious sincerity guarantees whatever they recommend.

No invention can ever take your work from you if you are able to work. Health and strength are the vital considerations. In order to find whether the Shaker Digestive Cordial is adapted to your case try a small bottle. Its effect is immediate. For sale by nearly all druggists.

they reach the dealer. If you take my advice about getting your bed ready as soon as you send off your order there need be no delay about getting them into the ground on their arrival, and an examination will show you that your bulbs are plump, juicy, and with a heavy feeling which indicates a liberal quantity of moisture stored up in the thick scales. Another reason why early planting is desirable is this: If you get your bulbs into the ground a month before cold weather sets in they will have time to form roots and become established in their new quarters. Late-planted bulbs cannot do this. If you make any delay you must not expect very much from them in the shape of flowers next spring.

A NEW HAVENER'S TRAVELS.

An Interesting Letter From Switzerland—The Grandeur of the Swiss Mountains—Among the Glaciers—A Wonderful Piece of Engineering—The Attractions of Jerusalem. The following letter was recently received by a gentleman in this city from a friend, also a New Haven gentleman, who is traveling in Europe. The letter was written from Chateau d'Oex, Switzerland:

We landed at Glasgow and from there visited Ayr, the birthplace of Burns—a very interesting spot. The next day we took a trip through Lock Lomond, Lock Katrine and the Trossack to Edinburgh, where we stayed three days. From there we went to Melrose Abbey, Dryburg and Abbotsford, thence to Durham, where we stayed one night and one day to see the fine cathedral and the fine old castle built by William the Conqueror. Next we went to York, which has a wonderful cathedral. York is said to have been founded in 983 B. C. In 150 A. D. it was a great Roman station. It is one of the old walled cities and is an extremely interesting place. I had been there before, but enjoyed a three days' stay there this time very much. From York we went direct to Antwerp and Brussels, remaining there three days, and then to Paris, where we were thirteen days, sightseeing most of the time, with trips to Versailles and Fontainebleau. From Paris we came direct to Lausanne, Switzerland, 388 miles. This is one of the pleasantest and best situated towns in Switzerland. As it is built on hills, with fairly steep slopes about the center of Lake Leman, it overlooks the beautiful lake in almost its entire length and on the opposite side we get the high peaks of the Bernese Oberland mountains, covered with perpetual snow. After a two days' stay here we went to Geneva for three days, then train to Cluses, twenty-six miles, when we have to take diligence drawn by six fine horses for the balance of the way to Chamounix, twenty-eight miles. This is a grand ride through magnificent scenery all of the way. The climb up the mountain sides is a hard one for the horses, which are changed for fresh ones about half way.

At Chamounix we stayed three days, doing some mountain-climbing and mule-riding. We did not climb Mont Blanc. I thought best to save that trip until I was younger. From Chamounix we had another grand carriage ride of thirty-eight miles, taking eight and a half hours over the Fete-Noise pass to Martigny. Here we stayed over night and at 10:50 a. m. took train for Visp (an hour and a half's ride) on our way to Zermatt. From Visp to Zermatt is twenty-seven miles, and this railroad has only been running about two years and is a most wonderful piece of engineering skill. It is what is known as the rack and pinion system and is said not to have its equal. It starts from Visp at an elevation of 2,100 feet and goes up to Zermatt, which is 5,315 feet high, taking two hours. Through this long gorge from Visp to Zermatt is the river Visp, which is formed and fed by numerous glaciers. The railroad passes through this most romantic part of this picturesque valley, or gorge, sometimes ascending the dizzy slopes of the sides of the mountain or penetrating to the bottom of gorges flanked by the rushing, foaming waves of the torrent, now and again crossing the precipitous overbridges and through tunnels of surprising construction. Zermatt, a little town of 525 population, is at once a meeting point for mountain climbers and a climatic station of beneficial salubrity. Spacious hotels of the first order and fitted with every modern improvement, electric lights, etc., furnish the traveler with all comforts. Carriages, mules, horses and experienced guides are all to be found here in full force. There is no place amongst the Swiss Alps that has more attractions than that of Zermatt. It is here that the highest summits of the Valaisan Alps rise. The Dome, the Mischabel, Monte-Rosa, Weisshorn, Lyskanu, Breithorn and the Matterhorn, all giants, form at the head of the valley a giraffe of rocks and snow and ice of incomparable grandeur. In the midst of this splendid circus Zermatt is so situated that the tourist can in a few hours, either on foot or by mule, attain the central mountains of glaciers which overlooks it. The Goernergatter, 10,290 feet high, which I climbed to the top of on foot, is a point from which the eye can take in at a single glance the grandest and most imposing views which nature displays in the Alps. A new hotel is now nearly completed on the very top, which is owned and managed by the Seller family, who are owners and managers of eight of the best houses in and near Zermatt. When I was there they were full. I left there July 25 after a week's stay, regretting the necessity of having to leave the enchanting spot, but I had engaged rooms at this hotel, so had to go. This is a genuine Swiss village in a lovely green valley 3,500 feet high, surrounded by mountains. It is very cool here. Yesterday at 5:30 a. m. the thermometer stood at 52 and in the afternoon there was a shower, followed by hail and on the mountains a good covering of snow. This hotel is the largest in the place, there being ten in all and all are full. GLEN ISLAND EXCURSION. A Special Trip for Families, Sept. 3 and 5. The excursion trip of steamer John H. Starin to Glen Island September 3 and 5 affords a good opportunity to all those persons desirous of enjoying a quiet and pleasant sail to the Eden Island of the sound. On these trips there will be no societies of any kind, the object being to make the trips sort of family reunion. To this end the company have made every arrangement for the accommodation and safe keeping of children, and mothers will find everything on board requisite for their comfort. The success and popularity of such trips are manifested by the high words of praise of those that attended them last summer. $2.50.
