GUNBOAT HELENA LAUNCHED.
Sister Ship to the Wilmington—Plant Linc's Big Passenger Vessel Also Afloat.
Newport News, Va., Jan. 30.—The United States gunboat Helena was launched here to-day in the presence of Admiral Bance's mysterious squadron of evolution. The Helena is an exact duplicate of the Wilmington, launched with the cruiser Nashville from the adjoining ways of the Newport News Ship-building and Dry Dock company on October 19 last.

She is a thirteen-knot vessel of about 1,400 tons displacement, 253 feet long, with the slight draft of nine feet, adapting her for service in shallow rivers, and when in commission she will carry a complement of 170 officers and men. A main battery of eight four-inch quick-fire rifles and two Gatlings, is designed more for attack against unfortified positions than for combat against other naval vessels, for it is intended that vessels of this class shall be kept in Chinese waters and the harbors of countries near the tropics. For this purpose the Helena will be equipped with refrigerating apparatus and other appliances for the health and comfort of the crew.

This vessel, like her sister ship, is electrically lighted throughout. The cost was $380,000. Her godmother, who christened her to-day, is Miss Agnes Belle Steele, daughter of the mayor of Helena, Mont., who was in attendance with an escort of fourteen women and men, having come east solely for today's function.

Assistant Secretary McAdoo, Rear Admiral Jewett, Naval Constructor Taylor, Assistant Judge Advocate General Lauchheimer, Lieutenants Niblock, Veeder and Knapp and several others represented the navy department at the launch and were among the distinguished guests of President C. E. Orcutt of the shipbuilding company at luncheon following the ceremony.

The big coastwise passenger vessel of the Plant line, which preceded the Helena into the water to-day, in some respects is also a valuable addition to the American navy, as she is constructed in compliance with the government requirements for auxiliary cruisers and is adapted for arming and commissioning whenever occasion arises. She is a steel vessel 400 feet long, with 47 feet beam, and besides a large freight carrying capacity has accommodations for 300 first class and 400 second class passengers. One of her novelties is the installation of water tube boilers supplying steam to 7,000 horse power engines, which should drive her at the rate of twenty knots.

The Newport News dock yards, although one of the youngest concerns in this country, has the most modern plant in the country and was successful recently in securing contracts for the two battleships Kearsarge and Kentucky in competition with older American ship-builders.

The sub-marine torpedo boat for the navy is also under construction here and keels will shortly be laid for two more of that class of vessels.

Assistant Secretary McAdoo and other officers spoke at the luncheon to-day following the double launching.

Will Meet Monday.
The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Seamen's Friend society will be held Monday, February 3, at 2 o'clock p. m., at Center church chapel.

Shadow Play.
On Tuesday evening, February 4, the guild of St. Paul's church will give a shadow play and musical program in the parish house to which a small admittance fee will be charged. Cake and chocolate will be sold, and an art gallery can be visited for a nominal sum.

The proceeds of the entertainment will go toward the Easter offering of the guild.

The New Psychology.
The first of the series of addresses on educational subjects, to be given under the auspices of New Haven teachers, will take place this evening, Dr. G. Stanley Hall of Worcester, Mass., will be the speaker. Dr. Hall's subject will be "The New Psychology; its Methods of Work and some of its Applications to Pedagogy."

These lectures will be held in the United church chapel at 8 p. m.

THE ST. PAUL STILL AGROUND.
Efforts to Float the Steamship Produce No Results—Big Cable Broken in the Endeavor to Move Her—The Question of Salvage Between Two Wrecking Companies.
New York, Jan. 30.—The most concentrated effort to haul the big American line steamship St. Paul out of her helpless condition on the beach at Long Branch was made this morning, and after two hours' hard labor, the work was temporarily suspended on account of the tide.

The attempt resulted in the St. Paul moving very little. The change in her position at the end of two hours, as it appeared from the shore, was not more than five feet. The men in charge of the work of the Merritt Wrecking company are now almost discouraged, for they had depended upon an extraordinary high tide this morning. The direction of the wind, however, prevented the water from rising to the desired height. All the other conditions were about the same as yesterday.

The wrecking company's men began to make ready to haul on the big ship at 5 o'clock this morning. The two tugs, Jones and Merritt, took up the position they held yesterday—a quarter of a mile astern of the ship to the north of her with her position in the sand. They were arranged in tandem fashion, with a huge hawser leading from the stern of the ship attached to the stern post of the Merritt. Off to the port side of the St. Paul was the tug Hustler with another big hawser. Then there were five hawsers leading from the port quarter deck of the ship to the kedge anchors in the sand.

Captain Merritt gave the signal at 7:30 o'clock, three quarters of an hour before it was high water, and the tugs began to work. They pulled and hauled without any let up, but the helpless ship did not give an inch.

A gang of men on the ship's deck began hauling in on the anchor hawsers until it seemed as though the giant ropes, the strongest known, would snap like cotton thread. But the St. Paul said "no" and would not move.

Some idea may be had of the immense strain on the hawsers used in hauling at the St. Paul by a big one which now lies on her deck worn, comparatively speaking, to a thread. This hawser when first pressed into the service yesterday morning was a twenty-three inch rope. It has now been reduced to fourteen inch hawser, and consequently is almost useless.

There was, as usual, a crowd on the beach, watching the tugs at work on the St. Paul this morning.

The tugs, after they had started, did not let up until the signal to abandon further work was given. The St. Paul did not assist in the work herself. Her keel, from stern to stern, was hard in the sand—as hard as it ever was.

The wind was blowing at the rate of six miles an hour. Every effort was made to haul the ship off, but there was no sea to assist the tugs. The ocean was calm. If there had been a heavy east wind to kick up swells, the tugs would have succeeded in moving the St. Paul a considerable distance, as they worked harder this morning than they have at any other time since the big liner came up on the beach.

The general command here in daylight she wouldn't budge had any crew.

"We were about fifty miles from Block Island," Conley continued, "when the ship sprung a leak. It had been smooth sailing before this. Almost immediately the pumps gave out so that there was nothing to feed the boiler with. Then the bilge pumps went, too, and every one was put to work at the buckets. The only idea was to keep the tops on the day-light. And by day-light the seas were running as high as a house. The Hawkins was on the point of going down."

All night long the precious cases of revolvers and rifles, and Hotchkiss guns and ammunition and dynamite had been following each other to the bottom of the sea. There was no hope to beach the boat and save them.

General Garcia was perfectly cool and collected when the time came to take to the lifeboats. He ordered his men to do just what they were told to do and nothing more.

When the first boat was launched the captain ordered Conley into it. He had only a sextant. In a minute twenty-six Cubans had piled in after him.

"Let go the painter," yelled the captain, fearful lest the boat would be overcrowded and sink.

The painter was let go. Conley took his place in the bow to keep the boat's head to the wind. He commanded the men to tie down. Not one of them understood how to use an ear. Not one of them could speak English. Conley was substantially alone.

For three hours they drifted about. The schooner Crosby went by them. But the Beebe took them aboard. "Just you say about the captain of the Beebe," said Conley, "that he's the finest gentleman in the world, and that he knows his business. General Garcia and his boat's crew—the second—were the first to be taken aboard. We were the second. And it was our job getting those Cubans safely on the Beebe."

When the third boat had come alongside it was thought that she would surely capsize. There was not a man in the boat, apparently, who knew how to make a line fast. Conley dropped from the rail of the Beebe and fastened the ropes around the Cubans before they were drawn over the side.

One man, in his eagerness to get aboard, fell into the water. The Beebe's mate plunged in after him. Another sailor went to his assistance and the man was saved.

Lack of knowledge of seamanship was what caused the last boat to capsize. Two engineers, two firemen, the ex-blockade runner and five Cubans were drowned.

The firearms that were thrown into the sea from the Hawkins were not purchased in New York. They were brought here, and they were not marked firearms either.

When Conley went aboard the Hawkins he had a friend with him.

"You're not going on such a trap as that," said his friend.

"I've promised," was the answer, "and I'm as good as my word." "And so I went," said Conley. "I've been on pretty bad traps before and got out all right. But I wouldn't have gone for any money if I had seen her in the daytime."

"Those men Smith and Linsley are to blame. She was only a trap to drown somebody. She couldn't have passed Hatteras in the easiest weather, nor lived in the Gulf Stream for two hours. And whoever booked her crew knew it. The swell of a ferryboat would have

WHEN you open a bottle of POLAND WATER you get plain, pure water, in exactly the state that nature herself produced it.

The properties it contains which the highest medical authorities declare to be peculiarly beneficial to kidney, are nature's own.

Poland Water needs the hand of an expert chemist to add a little of this or that to make its analysis toe the mark.

Nature did all that when she first formed the spring.

HEADS OF BICYCLISTS

Indicate Personal Character, Say the Phrenologists—Cranium of a Scorching Self-Esteem, Timidity, Resoluteness, Fugacity and Many Other Things are Indicated by the Cyclist's Manner of Riding.

top speed, preferring to go along moderately. Such ones are called timid by scorchers, and sometimes the term is properly applied. More often, however, their conduct is better defined by the word cautious. In the case of reckless daredevil riders the top head is clinched and narrow above the ears, while that of the careful and slow-going wheelman is wide and full at that point, signifying good-sized cautiousness. Its exact location is where the head begins to round off to form the top on a perpendicular line with the back of the ear, and its size can usually be estimated with little trouble. Cyclists with large crown should, and generally do, avoid crowded thoroughfares for their own sake. A ride of only three or four miles, say on the avenue or any of our busy streets, might so tax the nerves of such a person through constant fear of accident as to fatigue his whole body, while he would hardly feel a spin of fifteen miles on a clear road. For this reason any one who has cautiousness very large may expect little comfort on the wheel in such places. Moreover, unless he is an exception to the rule, he will spend the best part of his time looking after his own condition and that of his machine.

STRANGE CAUSES OF WAR.

Follies and Caprices That Have Led to International Slaughter—Venezuela Dispute—Origin of the Seven Years' War—The Omen of the Twelve Vultures—Spits Wars—Nations Ruined by Whims.

"The German bear," as the Italians called him, was better than his name, and on the whole the most humane of all the swash-buckler partisans who crossed the Alps in the days of the great wars. He would not stand to hear the groans of his troops undressed, and once offered a skeptic a bet of several thousand dollars that he could overpower the Duke of Milan within ten weeks after the declaration of war. The money was guaranteed by a syndicate of the dissenter's friends, and the Bear won his wager within the proposed time, but only by forfeiting the sympathy of his Italian allies, who had flattered themselves with the hope of an enduring peace.

To Save the Few Remaining Buffalo.

Secretary Langley, of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, has directed attention to the reports which are coming from the Yellowstone National Park, which seem to make it certain that the herd of several hundred buffalo reported last year has been reduced to fifty or less, and indicating that it will soon be destroyed unless steps are taken for its preservation.

A SERMON TO STUDENTS. REV. MR. MILLS AT DWIGHT HALL YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

ARMORY HELD LAST EVENING—ADDRESS TO YOUNG MEN—OTHER MEETINGS YESTERDAY—TO REMEMORATE MR. MILLS—PROGRAM OF SUNDAY MEETINGS.

The usual large audience was present at the Grand opera house yesterday noon to hear Rev. Mr. Mills speak, the subject being "War on Christian Principles."

Previous to the address cards were passed through the audience that a sum for free will contribution could be subscribed on them with the name of the donor. Rev. Dr. Twitchell, chairman of the executive committee, announced that the sum subscribed would go to Mr. Mills and that this was all the compensation he would receive for his work in this city.

Mr. Mills spoke as follows in his address: "Perhaps the greatest enormity in this world is the willingness of nations towards war. People of all ages have proclaimed the coming of permanent peace. War will be forever put away and it is for us to say when that time will come. We may so live and exist that we will hasten the time when this shall be." The United States has all the opportunities for the transformation of this country into a nation of this character. First, it is the sacred duty of the people to be at the heart of the church to teach the nations of the world that the teachings of individuals as given by Christ should and must be applied to all forms of industrial and national organizations. The cure for all ills among men and nations is Christ's teaching, "Peace on earth and good will towards men." I believe in the spirit of Jesus that states shall be called upon to make sacrifices for each other as individuals have. Some of the bitterest of wars have been over the difference of religion. Let the Church of Christ use no methods of introducing religion except through the methods of Christ.

"What a shameful thing it is to see the so-called Christians petition to our government at Washington to send an army to protect Christian missionaries in China and Turkey. Think of bringing religion before those people in that way. What an idea of the gospel of Christ! It is the duty of the church to teach that war is always wrong. There was never a righteous war and there never will be. "Don't tell me not to criticize the president and congress. I will, but with a loving heart and not for the sake of political reasons, but for the blindness and infidelity as regards humanity in the teachings of God I do criticize them. Just think of utterances of some men in congress and even the chaplain of one of the houses praying to make us quick to resist injury. "If I thought that the stars and stripes meant blood and war, I would curse it. If the nations of the world believe in Christ they will have fought their last battle."

LAST EVENING'S MEETING. The available room at the armory was occupied last evening when Mr. Mills rose to speak at 7:45 full 4,700 people being present. The meeting began with a praise service of half an hour. Rev. Mr. Mason of the First Baptist church offered prayer, after which Mr. Mills sang a solo, "Where Will You Spend Eternity?" Rev. Mr. Biederwolf announced that Mr. Mills would preach at the Grand Opera house at noon to-day on "Property in Its Relation to the Kingdom of God"; at Center church at 3:30 p. m. to-day; to-morrow afternoon Mr. Biederwolf will speak to children at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the First M. E. church, seats to be reserved for members of the Junior Endeavor society; Rev. Mr. Murray will speak to-morrow evening at the Calvary Industrial Home.

Mr. Mills preached last evening from the text, II Samuel 13:22: "Is the young man safe?" Mr. Mills said: "This question was asked by a brother-hearted father concerning his wayward son. David's inquiry concerning Absalom has a parallel in the question of the Heavenly Father to us, but the parallel is not complete. David cried: 'Would God I had died for him' and was remorseful. There can be no remorse in the heart of a young man because God has done all He can in His loving wisdom that we may appreciate His eternal life. "Are there fathers and mothers at home to-night asking this question concerning you. God is asking it in the deepest solicitude about all of us. I want to ask you if a young man can be safe under any one of four divisions. First, can a young man be safe who is trifling with his appetites? This is a selfish question. We all know the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, how the doctor had discovered a potion by taking which all the good in his nature would show itself and by taking which again all the evil in him would burst forth. After he had tried the experiment he found that he found that while he could rapidly change from Dr. Jekyll to Mr. Hyde and vice versa very slowly until at last he found that without taking the potion he shrank up and couldn't bring himself back to his former character. The doctor, when this state of affairs arrived, shut himself up in his laboratory and began to experiment on potions to restore the goodness of his nature. Just on the point of the discovery he died. "There are young men here to-night who look in the faces of their mothers, their wives and their children and then go out and do things to make devils in hell blush for shame. It becomes harder and harder to do right and easier and easier to do wrong. No man ever lived who intended to die a drunkard or to let licentiousness ruin his moral character or his home. We are many of us like children skating. We hear the ice cracking under our feet but do not turn back and I say to you to-night young men that though you may turn back late in life, the shadow of the past will hang over you. "Second, is the dishonest young man safe? Some young men employed in business on a small salary find that various amusements call for more money than their salaries, and to obtain it resort to petty thefts. "A teller in a bank one time came to me and confessed that he had stolen thousands of dollars from the bank in which he was employed. He said he had begun while a boy in the office and his thefts had continually grown larger. He had a Christian wife and children, because he saw the miracle, but because he did eat of the loaves and were filled. Neither at that time nor since has the Saviour been seeking such to follow Him. "In the third place a gift must be irrevocable. You cannot take back a gift. You cannot give yourself to God in such a fashion as that. "Self-dedication comes before service. What God is looking for is instruments fitted to perform His will, and the thing to be concerned about is, not to do some great work, but to be fit for the Master's use. A man might preach to 10,000 people and yet not turn one soul into righteousness. On the other hand, the casting of a coal on a shivering out-cast might be the means of leading a hundred thousand people into the light of God. "What God is looking for is the things that are not—people that have made themselves of no reputation in order that the power of God may be manifested through them. "We must give ourselves wholly to Him; yes, wholly. "Will you do it now? Will you do it now?" Rev. Mr. Biederwolf preached to a large audience at Center church at 3:30 p. m.

MILFORD. Jan. 30.—Mrs. Applebee is gradually falling.

Mrs. Eugene Rand is in a very critical state of health and will be taken to the New Haven hospital, where she will undergo a dangerous surgical operation.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Van Horn are the happy parents of a very young daughter, which was born Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bailey of the MILFORD HOME are giving a reception to seventy-five of their friends Tuesday night. The evening was spent in dancing to music furnished by Russell's orchestra of New Haven. An elegant supper was also a feature of the evening's enjoyment.

Past Master Nathan E. Smith, assisted by H. G. Sperry of Bolton Branch, installed the officers of Indian River grange Tuesday night. The officers installed are as follows: Master, Harry C. C. Miles; overseer, E. G. Grand; lecturer, S. E. Frisbee; secretary, Fred W. Smith. It is expected that Professor Waterman of Storrs' college will deliver an interesting lecture before the grange in the near future.

A Coming Entertainment Chiefly by Young People. The recital to be given at Warner hall next Wednesday evening by Miss Edith Barr of this city will no doubt attract a large audience. Miss Barr is the well known child eccliotianist who won such high favor at Miss Ingersoll's Christmas carnival in '94, and will be assisted by the young violinist, Orville Bailey, ten years of age, one of Mr. Troostwyk's most promising pupils; and by Miss Jean Coburn, who is one of the most accomplished young lady dancers in this city and is a sister of the Misses Coburn, the well known and very accomplished teachers of dancing; also by Master Freddie Smith and Baby Ruth, who were such favorites at Miss Ingersoll's Christmas carnival. Riley Phillips, a well known New Haven singer, has also been specially engaged to sing a song entitled "Christmas Night," composed by Miss Barr's father, Mr. O. H. Barr, who is one of our "Darkest Russia!" Theatrical company, now playing in the west. Tickets at Loomis' and Hauff's. Ice cream and cake will be served after the entertainment.

LECTURE IN OSBORN HALL. By Dr. Morgan of Bristol, England—"Emotion and Instinct." Dr. Morgan of Bristol, England, lectured on "Emotion and Instinct" at Osborn hall last evening. The lecture is one of the course in philosophy and Dr. Morgan appeared on request of Dr. Buckner of Yale. The lecture was very interesting, as Dr. Bristol is a deep and thorough student of every department of natural philosophy. He is regarded as a leading authority on "Natural History." Several of the teachers in the local schools were present, as was the superintendent of Schools Kendall. The lecture was very entertaining and thoroughly appreciated.

Favorable Report Ordered. Washington, Jan. 30.—The house committee on merchant marine and fisheries to-day ordered a favorable report to the bill of Mr. Payne of New York, repealing the reciprocity clause of the present law relating to tonnage dues. The measure also amends the law of 1884, so as to read as follows: That in lieu of the tax on tonnage of 30 cents per ton per annum imposed prior to July 1, 1884, a duty of two cents per ton, not to exceed in the aggregate ten cents per ton in any one year, is hereby imposed at each entry on all vessels which shall be entered in any port of the United States from any foreign port or place in North America, Central America, the West Indies, the Bahama Islands, the Bermuda Islands or the coast of South America bordering on the Caribbean sea, or the Hawaiian Islands or New Foundland. A duty of six cents per ton, not to exceed thirty cents per ton per annum, is hereby imposed at each entry upon all vessels which shall be entered in the United States from any other foreign port, not, however, to include vessels in distress or not engaged in trade.

NOT FIT TO BE FLOATED. Charles M. Smith, Who Detached the Hawkins, Says She Was Unseaworthy. Greenport, L. I., Jan. 30.—Charles M. Smith of this village is the man who designed the steamship J. W. Hawkins, which was wrecked in the Long Island Sound off Montauk point on Sunday night. Smith says that the steamship J. W. Hawkins was unseaworthy; that she would bend like a whip and that any one was crazy to go to sea in her. He says that he does not believe it was intended to go to Cuba with the Hawkins, but that she was to wait off the Long Island coast for another steamship and that the cargo was to be transferred. Smith says he thinks that the Hawkins foundered because she was not fit to be floated.

SONG RECITAL. A Large Audience at United Church Chapel. Miss Villa Whitney White gave her second song recital to a very large audience at United church chapel last evening. The program consisted of folk songs of Ireland, Wales, England and Scotland. She prefaced each group with a few words of their history and national characteristics. Miss White's singing is enjoyable, and she is a thoroughly conscientious musician. After her delightful rendition of that quaint seventeenth century lyric, "Phyllida Plouts Me," she was presented with a bunch of roses and induced by continuous applause to repeat the song. In the Scotch songs "Bonnie Doon" and "Charlie is My Darling" were re-demanded. Miss White will always be a welcome visitor.

LOVERS OF MUSIC WILL HAVE A FEAST. An exchange says of the banjo work of Mr. Alfred A. Farland, who is to give a grand banjo concert in Warner hall next Thursday evening, February 6: "The banjo as an instrument of music is little thought of, but in the hands of an artist it can speak in language so earnest and pathetic as to enthral the listener. Such was the case last night at Odd Fellows' hall, where a banjo virtuoso, Mr. Alfred A. Farland, gave his first concert in this city. The hall was comfortably filled by an enthusiastic audience, who expectantly waited to hear the banjoist who had selections from Chopin, Wieniawski and Rossini on his program."

Doan's Rheumatic Pills absolutely cure rheumatism and neuralgia; entirely vegetable, safe. It's the Baby is Cutting Teeth.
