ENTRUSTASTIC ELECTORS NAMED THIS SCHOOL TICKET.

The Opposition to Miss Marie E. Ives Crystalized Around Colonel Morgan--His Nomination the Main Interest of Last Night's Meeting-When This Was Accomplished the Selection of the Remainder of the Ticket Was Easy-The Fight Will be Between Miss Ives and Colonel Morgan,

William E. Morgan, Frederick A. Betts and James T. Moran, the retiring there ought to come out honestly and members of the board of education, were nominated as candidates for reelection last evening at a mass meeting of school electors in Harmonie hall. The meeting was one of enthusiasm and had for its principle object the try who a few weeks ago favored the nomination of Mr. Morgan. It will be remembered that at a meeting held last week the name of William E. Morgan was not mentioned, owing to the belief that he had given out that he was not a candidate. In addition to this it had been reported that Mr. Morgan was so much in favor of Miss Marie E. Ives being placed on the ticket in his stead that he gave place to her. The friends of Col. Morgan very reluctantly believed this to be the condition

They knew that Mr. Morgan was in no sense a candidate, but they hoped to hear his name placed in nomination, failing in this there was nothing to do but to vote for Miss Ives. minds of the friends of Mr. Morgan. The meeting last evening was called to order by Alderman Rourke, who has been active in marshaling Morgan's hosts. John E. Fitzgerald, who told the electors that a new ticket was to be put in the field, nominated A. D. Sanborn for chairman.

John J. Hogan was named for secretary. He declined and Councilman Henry E. Hollis was named. Frederick A. Betts for first place on the school ticket. He made a splendid speech in favor of his candidate. John F. Shanley nominated William celving 219 votes and Mr. Betts 134. Chairman Sanborn declared Mr. Morgan nominated. "A BLUNDER OR A CRIME"

PROMINENT MAINE POPULIST ON SEWALL'S NOMINATION.

L. C. Bateman Says the Millionaire Shin Owner Will Ruln the Democratic Party-Scores Senator Allen for the Manner in Which He Notified Bryan of His Selection by the Populists as Their Standard Bearer-Bryan Must Express His Approval of the Populist Platform in Its Entirety Else He Will be Knifed.

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 17.-L. C. Bateman of Auburn, the populist candidate for governor, last Monday, also secretary of the national populist notification committee, is dissatisfied with Senator Allen's notification of Bryan of his nomination for president by the populist party.

Mr Bateman, in an interview this afternoon by a representative of the New This is a year when people have got to England Associated Press, said: "The recent election in Maine should be sufcient to convince the entire country that the nomination of Arthur Sewall was either a colossal blunder or a dark-dyed crime Until lately I have been inclined to believe it was the former, but it certainly now looks as if YOUNG MEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB, it was deliberately planned and executed as a crime.

"The presence of Sewall on the national ticket resulted in the practical annihilation of the democratic party in neeting, held last evening at the club this state. If he remains on that ticket it will inevitably result in the annihialtion of the populist party.

"Yes, I have read Senator Allen's letter of notification to Mr. Bryan. Of course it is a farce. It is on a par with all the doings of the men who are trying to sell out and disrupt the people's party. The senator is not enough of a politician, however, to carry out his scheme. He has overdone the matter and simply made himself a laughing stock. Middle of the road men are for the most part delighted at his bungling work. "Think for one moment of the idea, of telling Mr. Bryan that we are all willing to support him, but we do not expect anything from him in return; that we don't expect him to believe in anything that we do, but are sin pining for the chance to vote for him entirely regardless of any platform of principles; that we are more than willing that he should use us for a spittoon as we have no dignity of our own to preserve. "This is the sum and substance of Senator Allen's letter. After we get done laughing over the senator's mess, we shall quite likely take some steps to find out whether Mr. Bryan accepts our nomination and our platform of principles. At St. Louis all of his friends urged that we should nominate him as he was a populist and believed in all of our principles. We want to know whether these statements were true or false. We propose to find out and shall do so whether it is agreeable to Senator Allen or not. We do not at the rooms next Wednesday evenis ashamed of our principles. NEXT REPUBLICAN RALLY

SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE TO SPEAK AT THE HYPERION,

A Brilliant Speaker-The Money Issue to be Ably Presented Next Wednesday

The next big republican rally, the second of the series to be given under the auspices of the town committee, will be held at the Hyperion theater next Wednesday evening. The great feature of the occasion will be an address by United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts. The committee have been particularly fortunate in having been able to secure Senator Lodge for this occasion, who is to speak but twice in this state.

Senator Lodge is a man of much erudition, fine presence and of great force of character. His fame as a speaker and thinker is widespread and he has made the subject of currency one of much special study. He is sure to attract a large audience. Chairman Macdonald, in making the arrangements for the occasion, planned to have every feature in harmony with the affair.

An excellent orchestra has been engaged for the meeting; an interesting program will be rendered. The stage is to be beautifully decorated with the national colors, cut flowers, ferns, palms and other potted plants and fes-

The first few rows of scats in the theater will be reserved for ladies and their escorts and a corps of ushers will be selected from among the members of the reception committee of the Young Men's Republican club.

There will be an absence of brass bands and red fire, the usual characteristics of the political mass meeting. and the departure will undoubtedly prove very popular. A list of vice presidents and secretaries is now being prepared.

The committee is making arrangements for other meetings and it is expected that in a short time an immense outdoor meeting will be held in the which is to be preceded by a mammoth street procession by the various local and out of town republican and sound money clubs. ruTsdPmflwl a(F GF GWWY PPP

The New Lon-don Day says of her: "Looking at her closely one would notice the very large mast, and it was of iron, too. It stood about twenty-five feet in the air and was eight or ten inches in diameter its full length. Out of the top of this mast there came a small current of hot air and the secret was made known. The sloop is propelled by both steam and sail. Her mast is used for a smoke stack, along the side of which there is an iron rod on which the rings holding the sails move. The propellor has only two blades, and when the boat is sail-ing this propeller is placed in such a manner as not to hinder the boat's progress in the least. It is a novel idea, and the owners of the boat are always sure of reaching home, wind or no wind. The vessel was made in Noank and has a sister named Mishap. Both boats are engaged in the lobster busi-

OBITUARIES.

General Buckner's First Wife Well The Veteran Ferryman at Gales Ferry. Jared Bolles, who for many years past has conducted the ferry across the Thames river between Montville and Gales Ferry, died Monday afternoon. Since the 1st of May Mr. Bolles had been in poor health, and most of the time his son and daughter had rowed the malls and passengers over the Thames. Mr. Bolles was about sixty many Waterbury people. She died years of age. He had carried the Montville mail mail about twenty-five the course of the war. Since then years and was a well-known character. During the winter, when the river was quainted with General Buckner, but partly frozen over, he would push his boat in front of him on the ice until it broke through and then continue the journey in the boat till the ice was reached on the other side of the open space, where he would pull it out again and push it to the shore. His never falling promptness became proverbial in that part of the country. He was also for years in charge of Comstock's wharf and his genial ways are well known to all who travel up and down the river on the boats. During his sickness the mail has been faithfully transported by his daughter and son He leaves two daughters, Mrs. Charles Hope and Miss Gertrude Bolles of Montville, and two sons, Lucian H. He seemed to have a student's love of quiet, and manifested the student's serve, which is too often mistaken for coldness and indifference. Those who knew him best and were in daily association with him know that he was warm-hearted and interested in all the various concerns of life which come under an editor's notice. Those news paper workers who knew him not so well always found him responsive to the suggestions that were raised through a natural sympathy due to a common occupation. The frank statement of Mrs. Harriet Neal of 13 So. Pine st., Manchester, N. H., carries conviction. Here is what she "About the middle of last April I was so sick that I actually did not care

whether I lived or died. In search of health I had tried one kind of medicine after another, only to meet with failure in every case. I had also consulted several doctors here in Manchester, but received no benefit from their treatment. The doctors diagnosed my case as cancer of the stomach, and during the past two years I had been operated upon several times, and had spent hundreds of dollars without being relieved of my sufferings. "I passed nights of sleeplessnes and torture and days of agonizing pain. I had frequent fits of vomiting, and was often unable to retain even a glass of water upon my stomach. In fact I was without hope, when a friend asked me to try Puritana, saying: 'It cannot hurt you, and I have great faith in it.' I was at last induced to make a trial of this wonderful remedy, and to say that I am pleased and surprised at the great results accomplished by Puritana does not half tell it. I cannot express my gratitorture and days of agonizing pain. I half tell it. I cannot express my gratitude. I am now up and about my work. The convention adjourned at 2:41 p.

John Boyd Thacher was born at Ballston Springs, N. Y., September 11, 1847. He is the oldest son of the late George H. Thacher, who was for many years mayor of Albany. He graduated from Williams college in 1869 He then entered his father's carwheel works, where he was taught the trade of moulder. He subsequently became a member of the firm, and now conducts the business with his brother. In 1883 Mr. Thacher was elected to the state senate from the Albany district on the democratic ticket. While serving on the senate cities committee, charged with investigating the government of the city of New York, Mr. Thacher became interested in the sublect of tenement house reform and secured the passage of a bill appointing a commission, which was afterwards organized with the late Joseph W. Drexel as chairman. In the spring of 1886 Mr Thacher was elected mayor of Albany. In the fall of 1895 he was again elected mayor of Albany. His term will expire January 1, 1898.

Mr. Taylor has a tory to tell as usual, and this was it: "We have had a large frog here that ived on the fat of the land. He killed our small chickens. We were on the lookout. We missed the chickens. My son heard a racket at one of the coops. and on investigating, he found that the from had a chicken by the throat, and had nearly killed it. It took several yet, but that some time I shall see him blows and a good shaking before he would loose his grip on the chicken "The boy took the frog to the house and let him loose in the kitchen. He drove the housekeeper and all hands out of the room by growling and jumping at them. They flually killed him. If I had been at home I would not have had him killed for anything. I would have sent him to Dr. Knox, alive. I think he was the same frog that the doctor kept in his door yard at Patterson, to keep the school children out of the yard, when he had his menagerie." -Danbury News,

THE LITTLE LAD WEPT.

But His Tears Were Dried at Once When he Saw the Blg Police Officer A lad of four years was found on the orner of George and Orchard streets yesterday afternoon. The little chap was lost and had become excessively weary from his futile search for his way home and papa and he was shedding tears sorrowfully. Some kind friends telephoned for the police wagon and the lad was given a ride to the or-ganized charitles building where he was kindly cared for and in a short time, to his great joy, his father whose name is King, came and claimed him. The neighbors who gathered to console with the lad when he was found in the street were full of praise and complimentary words for Signal Officer Ricey Beegan and the wonderfully kind way in which he watched and cared for the little fellow who seemed to think at once that in the big and genial hearted police officer he had found a good friend for certain, that would help him out of his troubles, and the cold world at once reassumed a roseate hue to the young-

MY DREAM.

I do not usually attach much importance to dreams, but there is one that has visited me twice, and I would not care to have it repeated.

I dreamed that a certain man had een accused of stealing money,-from whom I cannot say. He insisted that he was innocent, and would not, even when convicted confess that he had stolen the money.

I should know the man if I met him, and I know that we have not met as and know that he is the man of my dream. He was about five feet six inches in height, with slightly curly light brown hair; large eyes of deep blue, full of an intensely beseeching expression-the most beautiful eyes I have ever seen. He wore a black Derby hat, a black oat apparently new; a gray and white negligee shirt, and a pink silk four-inhand tie.

I was the only person permitted to visit him in his cell, and when I went n he came to meet me

The first words I said were, "Did you take that money?"

I can feel even now the chill and surprise it gave me when he answered,

Quick as thought I replied, my hand grasping his arm, "Well, if you did take it don't say that you did. Continue to say that you didn't. I had rather die than to take back what I had once said, and it would be much more noble to keep to your word."

He looked up, his face white, and hose piteous eyes turned full upon me. "I am going to die," he said, as if it vere wrong in me to doubt it. "I am shot," If he had dropped dead before me I could not have been more prised, for although I had heard that he was convicted. I did not know what sentence had been. After this all was a blank until the day of the execution. Then a man who seemed to be a sheriff came to me and told me that he was to shoot the prisoner. The sheriff, prisoner and I went to a house which had been named for the place of death. The execution was to take place at two clock, and until that time I deternined to try to save the prisoner's life. Another person entered my dream at this time.

He was a little, short, fat men, with a smooth putty-like face and very winkling eyes when he laughed.

This man and I began to try to stay the execution so that the prisoner might have a chance of being pardoned, although there was small hope of it, and we both knew him to be guilty

This little man sat down at a table in an upper room of the house and I stood behind him. Strangely enough the oom was quite dark.

He was to fill in blanks and I was to sign my name to an official document, which, if handed to the sheriff, would ave the prisoner for a time. In fact, acted as a kind of respite, but in my dream I remember of reading plainly the word RECHARGE on the bottom of the paper. The man began to write, and while he did so I knew and he knew that it was almost time for the execution to take place. While I stood behind him I kept saying, "Faster, faster; do try to write faster!"

He hurried as much as it was possi-ble for a slow fat man to hurry, and after we had signed our names we read it over to be sure that it was right.

At the time I read the prisoner's name distinctly, but I cannot now re-

When we had read the "Recharge we rushed down stairs to the sheriff. The little man laughed loudly behe thought he had saved the prisoner (and I remember how I hated him for laughing at such a moment.) Then the sheriff said to me, "It is quarter of two now, and at two o'clock

-you know what will happen." I turned to my companion and he shouted in the sheriff's ear "But we've got a recharge; we've got a recharge!" The sheriff took the document and read it. I shall never forget how the cold drops of agony stood on my forehead as he turned and said slowly: This is not a pardon for the prisoner, but, if anything, would accuse him again of the crime. Come; he is here." He led us into a room where the pris-mer stood calm and apparently unmoved. The sheriff took a silver-mounted revolver out of his pocket, saying as he did so, "It is one minute of two now." street, died suddenly to-day at York Harbor, Me. No details were given, "Good-bye." Then I turned to the "Good-bye." Then I turned to the sheriff and said, "For Heaven's sake, do not shoot until I am out of hearing.

a I will whistle when I am ready.' I rushed to the staircase, ran up as fast as possible, and went through room after room, each one black as night, and finally reached one as far away from the execution room as possible. There, shining yellow through to this city early in life, where he at the darkness in one corner of the room, lay a human skull grinning at me. I paid no attention to it, but rushed over note at the New York bar. He was to the place where it lay and stood there. Pressing my hands to my ears so hard that it almost made me shrick with pain, I gave a long, shrill whistle. Instantly I heard very faintly two distinct pistol shots,-then silence

I took my hands down and started for the door, but invisible hands seemed to be holding me. I tore myself York Yacht club, and Williams Alumni away, and as I passed through the black rooms, bony fingers touched mine, and in descending the stairs a long bony arm, with pieces of flesh clinging to it, was held before me. I reached the bottom at last and rushed into the execution-room. What a sight met my gaze!

The sheriff was standing facing the loor and me, the smoking pistol in his hand. At the other end of the room, his back turned to me, stood the little man with his hands clasped. There, on the floor at his feet, lay the risoner,-dead! I could not believe it, but bent over him and called his name. There was no answer, and then I knew that it was As I turned to rise I noticed the little nan looking at me and laughing. I sprang to my feet, wilder anger taking the place of wild grief, and looking the man full in the face, I cried, "How do you dare to laugh at "You fool! Don't you see that he is dead,-dead and lost to me forever?" The little man laughed loud and long, and prancing up to the sheriff he danced about him, screaming at the same time,-"We've killed him; we've

The sheriff then told me that the prisoner would not be blindfolded, but

He had been killed at the first shot, but the sheriff had fired again to make sure. He had told me all, and I turned to leave the room. As I did so I awoke, Such was the dream that haunts me. The next day I looked up the meaning of "Recharge," having neither seen no heard the word before, and found that It means, "to accuse again."

CLERGYMAN WEDS AT NEW-BURYPORT.

Bride is the Daughter of the Rev. Dr. H. C. Hovey, Formerly of New Haven, the Groom the Rev. R. W. Ravmond of This State.

The Old South church, Newburyport, Mass., was the scene of a brilliant wedding Tuesday evening, when Miss Clara Louise Hovey, the youngest daughter of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Horace gains at our low prices. Are selling C. Hovey, (a former pastor of the Second church, Fair Haven), and the Rev. Royal Wilkins Raymond, son of Franklin M. Raymond, a well-known and prosperous business man of Westport, this state, were married.

The church was filled with a large company of invited guests. The floral lecorations were arranged by a committee from the Christian Endeavor soclety, under the direction of Miss Mattie Jaques, and were unusually fine. Directly in front of the altar was a beautiful arch made of evergreen and hydrangeas. Beneath this the and groom stood while the service was being read.

All about the church were placed bouquets and potted plants and banks | SPECIAL. of cut flowers. While the guests were assembling the organist, Mrs. Isidora Flanders. Flanders, played selections from "Tannhauser" and "Lohengrin." At 6 p. m. the bridal procession was formed, and to the famous "Lohengrin" march marched down the broad aisle.

Miss Ellen Graves led the way, carrying a white satin kneeling cushion, followed by the six ushers, Messrs. George H. Jaques, William Binley, Jr., Walter S. Binley, Chester Hanson, Harry Watts and Austin Wakeman, The flower girl, Miss Thetig Questrom, came next. She wore a delicately flowered slik dress and a hat trimmed with pink and blue flowers, and carried a basket with floral offerings.

Next came the maid of honor. Miss Edith Sawyer of this city, who was gowned in pale pink taffeta, with Marie Antoinette fichu of chiffon and point applique lace. The bride was escorted by her brother, Dr. Edmund Otis Hovey of New York (late of this city), and was attired in what was her mother's wedding gown, of white India muslin with a white procaded sash and a tulle vell. As the procession approached the pulpit it was met by the groom and his best man, Dr. Albert Emery Loveland of New Haven. The bride was given in marriage by her brother. The mony was a modification of the familiar Episcopal form, and was very impressively rendered by the father of the bride, the Rev. Dr. Horace C. Hovey, and immediately the bridal party went in carriages to the parsonage, 60 High street, where a reception was held that was limited to their relatives. Refreshments were served by young women friends of the bride and members of the Christian Endeavor society. The parsonage was beautifully decorated with wisteria and nasturtiums. In one room were arranged the presents received by the happy couple. Among the gifts were ten shares of stock in a street railway company, from the groom's parents, a set of silver tableware from the bride's parents, and Mr. Raymond's gift to the bride, a grand

The Rev. and Mrs. Raymond left on an evening train for Boston, whence they will go by steamer to Old Point Comfort, Va. They will make their home at Southport, where Mr. Raymond has a ministerial charge in connection with the Methodist Episcopal They will be at home to their friends after October 20th. The bridegroom is a graduate of Wesleyan university and of Drew Theological seminary, and is regarded as one of the most gifted and promising of the younger ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church. The bride is a general favorite on account of her natural gifts and varied accomplishments. She was educated at Wellesley college, and is especially known for her rare musical abilities.

The musical instrument which was made of the borns of animals in bible days has had a recent revival, and the royal court instrument maker at Berlin. Mr. E. W. Moritz, has just tested a beautiful horn made from an antelope horn over four feet in length. The emperor was so pleased with the new acquisition that he ordered it to be further tested. The horn allows of beautiful decoration and ornamentation and, when fitted with the ordinary mouthpiece, is said to give forth a remarkably sweet sound. It has already been artistically employed in a representation of Wagner's "Rienzi" at the Royal opera house, where it was heard with great effect in the overture and later in the call to arms. It is expected that the horn will soon be in popular use in parade-ground and concert hall.

Some say there is no such thing as luck. A Chicago contractor, one E. R. Brainerd, who had for some years been prominent in public work in that city, met with financial reverses last spring and "went to pieces." After settling his affairs he found among "the remnants" a piece of land at Lyndhurst. Virginia, of about five hundred acres which he had taken for a bad debt, and which had been too poor or too insignificant to go into the general distribution of his effects. A local paper reports that this Virginia land has suddenly become valuable through the discovery upon it of a mine of manganese, the most valuable ever found in the Good authorities say that there is $1,000,000 worth of the metal in sight and a company has been formed to operate upon it. Manganese is used extensively in iron working and the find is an important one to the iron industry as it is to the fortunate man upon whose land it lies.

Mississippi negroes are specially invited to participate in the agricultural, mechanical, and stock exposition of West Mississippi, to be held during the second week in November. The managers express the hope that the negroes of the Mississippi valley will take advantage of the opportunity to show what they can do, and what they have says, "to place their fine stock beside and stock-raising, with the needle, with two degrees square. As many as 11,027 the brush, at the plow and in the plates are required to cover the entire workshop, at the forge and on the farm." In addition, a day is to be set apart to be known as "Negro Day." The newspapers of the state heartly endorse the idea and urge the negroes to participate. "Nothing is more certain," the Vicksburg Commercial Herald says. "than the fact that they can get up a good exhibit if they will combine to make the effort "

The American congress of liberal religious societies, of which Dr. H. W. 'homas, of Chicago, is president; Drs. Hirsch, Savage, Heber Newton and William M. Salter are vice presidents, and Jenkin Lloyd Jones, of Chicago, secretary, will hold its third annual meeting in Plymouth church, Indianapdis, November 17, 18, and 19. The Rev. Philip S. Moxom, of Springfield, Mass., preaches the opening sermon. Among other speakers are Edwin D. Mead, of Boston; the Rev. Messrs. Reed Stuart. of Detroit; William C. Gannett, of Rochester: Drs. Hirsch, Canfield, and Thomas, of Chicago; Dr. Rexford of Orator and his supporters will see Columbus, Ohio, and many other prominent representatives of various denominations. The congress is a direct outcome of the world's fair congress of religious societies, the initiatory step having been taken during that meeting. It is an attempt to amellorate the dogmatic spirit and to minimize the sectorian divisions in communities.

ACTION BY OTHER PEOPLE. This is a great year for the people. They appear to be waking up all around. And astonishing as it may seem and is, the people of New Haven are really taking an interest in school matters. A week ago last night three or four hundred people, many of whom were and are bright and beautiful beings, met in Harmonie hall and nominated a school ticket, one of whose members was especially chosen to represent the aforesald bright and beautiful beings. All was as merry as wedding bells rung in honor of the marriage of tact and taste to hard common sense and executive ability. But the action of the people who did the business at that meeting was not pleasing to all the people, and as soon as the merry wedding bells stopped ringing there were other and less merry noises. Last evening there was another meeting of people at Harmonie hall and the bright and beautiful beings were not who were neither bright nor beautiful like the shining ones who were at enough to nominate a ticket which ple. The truth concerning the recent election in Arkansas has been rather slow in leaking out of the State, but it now appears to have leaked out. And it is quite as significant as that which hannened in Vermont or Maine, Nothing encouraging to the cause of honest money was expected from Arkansas. and so when a great silver victory was reported from there no questions were asked. But it now appears that the Popogratic plurality is only 38,640 instead of 80,000. The Republicans cast 20,000 more votes for their gubernatorial candidate, Remmel, than they gave him in 1894. The combined Democratic and Populist vote of 1894 was 99 350 and this vote should have been exceeded in view of the Popocratic combine of 1896. But there were thousands of Democrats in Arkansas who would not support the revolutionary ideas of the Popocratic leaders. We are told that great numbers of Democrats remained away from the polls, refusing to vote because Colonel Jones, the Popocratic gubernatorial candidate, had proclaimed from every stump in the State that he would not support the nominee of the Chicago convention if he happened to be a gold man or was nominated on a gold platform. This late and good news from Arkan sas means that the causes that influenced the vote in Vermont and Maine also influenced the vote in Ar kansas. They will influence the vote in all parts of the country in November, and they will so influence it that the country will be saved from that which at first seemed so threatening. Popocracy is a failure, and it well merits the repudiation that awaits it.

STARS.

That is a very interesting plan which was formed by a congress of astrono mers that met recently in Paris. Two thousand years ago Hipparchus made a catalogue of 1.022 stars. Present catalogues contain over 1,000,000. But the effort of the astronomical congress is to make a photographic chart which will contain all the thirty or forty mil-Homs of stars that can be found with the light gathered by a telescope 31/4 yards long, having an object glass done. Some of the plates are to be exposed to the heavens for five minutes; others for an hour. The shorter exposure will give material for a chart to be revealed by the longer exposure it is impossible to say until the 11,027 sections have been pieced together and the aggregate made un after careful inspection. It will doubtless contain many whose existence has hitherto been unexpected. The long exposure will produce a record of stars, or suns, so distant from us as to be of the seventeenth or eighteenth magnitudestars whose light requires millions of years to reach us. FASHION NOTES.

Changes in Ball Dresses.

The cut of ball gowns for the winter is not certain yet, but pompadour hair is sure to call for square neck, and the tight sleeve effect is likely to produce the long bare arm and shoulder strap for evening dress. This is not so pretty as the off-shoulder styles. There is ne hope that an effort will be made introduce the long dancing skirt. Waltzing becomes graceful when the dancer is followed by the sweep of a beautifully cut skirt, and ball rooms cannot be so crowded when skirts must considered. Men are obliged to one more carefully, and the many girls to whom the bobbed off dancing skirt of the last few seasons

Trimming skirts about the hem is being a good deal resorted to, and in some gowns a very odd effect is thereby created, though the dresses are in undeniably good taste. The unusualness of such trimming soon ceases to impress the observer, and what at first seemed oddity becomes tasteful ornamentation. In the original of to-day's picture one of these striking effects was attained, and it came from putting two ruffles of figured silk at the bottom of a skirt of pearl gray cloth. The vest, stock collar and frill were of the same silk, and the remainder was from the cloth. The odd revers reached from shoulder to waist line, the sleeves were shirred along the inner seam and a short positilion basque showed at

The emerald is the popular stone at present. It is quite a fad to wear several rings of one kind of stone on the hand, and women are going in for collections of one kind of gem. All this well to know, for though you may not have a ring of your own, it is a great comfort to authoritatively criticise the woman who wears a lot of different stones these days.

SOME AMENITIES OF RUSSIAN TRAVEL.

Much has been written about the German bed. But how much might not be written about the Russian bed? Nay, how much has not been written already? Even in decent country houses in Russia, the sleeping-place is often merely a couch or the top of a of drawers covered with a rug. But in the towns, and especially in the hotels in the towns, there are beds, and such beds! The German bed, as most people are aware, if not from personal experience, from Mr. Jerome K. Jerome's description of it, is placed in deep box, into which you climb, and then pull the bed on top of you. The whole contrivance is so designed as to keep one-half of the body perspiringly hot and the other half shiveringly cold, and to suffocate you if you are not constantly on the alert. Its grand redeeming feature is that you cannot tumble out of it, however much you toss about, The Russian bed, on the contrary, is an affair out of which, or rather off which, you cannot possibly help tumbling, however still you lie. It is an iron or wooden frame, perfectly destitute of rails, and about the width of an ordinary coffin. Upon this is placed a mattress, and the entire arrangement is deposited in the middle of the room. To get on to it is easy enough, for it quite low. But to fall asleep on it is inevitably to fall on the floor. It is too narrow to turn in, and there is nobody who does not turn in his sleep, unless he is a Russian, who, one may assume, has been weaned from the habit by countless flops in the days of his youth. when he didn't mind that sort of thing. He has brought himself into harmony with his environment, as the evolutionists say, and is comfortable. The stranger has not, and suffers accordingly.

people before they enter the land of Nod are apt to dream that they have fallen over a precipice, and are going down, down, down; and just as they are about to touch the bottom wake with a start, and have a sigh of relief as they realize that they are on nothing harder than feathers. In Russia that dream has a terribly actual termination. The visionary wakes with a start to find that he has "gone in a very literal sense, and is wallowing among his trunks. A cunning man will shift his bed from the center of the room to the wall. That saves him on one side. But he is still open to disaster on the other; and a bedroom companion of mine at Moscow used to fall out of bed three times regularly every night, and after the third time lie talking in his sleep until day-light, dreaming, I fancy, that he was about to break the record by falling out again. The parrow bed is general where beds are employed at all. Even the Imperial residences are furnished with them, and the couch upon which he murdered Alexander breathed his last, still shown to visitors to the Winter Palace, is of the same type. The Russians, like their Teutonic neighbors, have a good deal to learn about

Bedfordshire. "But what about the bedclothes?" it will be asked. Well, they are much more easily described than the bed, the fact being that they are invariably conspicuous by their absence. It is not the fashion in Russia to supply bedclothing, even in the best hotels. The traveler is expected to bring his sheets and blankets with him if he requires them, and the same is the case in private houses. A Russian would more think of offering you second-hand bedclothes than you would of offering him a second-hand tooth-brush. rallway officials now supply one pillow, one sheet and one blanket to each firstclass passenger. Elsewhere, however, as stated, the stranger, let him be invited guest or paying lodger, is understood to provide his own bed-clothing There are considerations which render the system highly desirable. But it is not without its drawbacks; and, when we remember that the mean annual temperature of northern Russia is below freezing point, it will be admitted that no one should be left in ignorance of the custom. Its discovery created no small consternation among the English tourists, who were quite unprepared for it, and who arrived at Moscow at midnight, tired to death, and found themselves with nothing to sleep in, and with next to nothing to sleep upon. How did they manage? One slept for eight days in his topcoat; another wrapped himself up in his dignity and his dressing-gown; while a third reposed in a borrowed railway

Guests at a Russian hotel, or in private house for that matter, ought, if WATCHES they are particular, to fasten their bedcoom doors before engaging in serious ablutions. Russian servants and waiters, male and female, give no warning of their approach. It is no more the custom to knock at a door than it is to supply bedclothes; and a boots or a chambermaid will invariably enter room without any intimation, "as if," as one writer has expressed it, "intentionally ignoring such obstacles to movement as doors." The fact that the room is a bedroom makes no difference whatever. This free-and-easy style may not annoy a Slav; but it is apt to provoke embarrassing situations among Englishmen, whose morning toilet is a very extensive affair, embracing every part of the man from the crown of his head to the soles of his eet.-Correspondence Newcastle (Eng.) Chronicle.

MAFIA DUELS IN SICILY.

The young members of the Mafia go through a regular course of lesson with the knife, their peculiar weapon. Matches take place in some obscure locality, generally a low dancing-room under the superintendence of veterans of the society. Should warning be given of the approach of the police, the knives are quickly hidden, and the company is found enjoying an innocent dance. The chief qualities needed in a good fighter are a quick eye and nimble limbs. The only parry to a knife thrust is with the left hand, and should one of the parties have a longer knife than the other, the latter tries to close; nicent. Think of it-thirty-five hun-1 but the trick is very difficult. Being so lows that duels are incessant among are employed, each being confident of fair play. On meeting at the appointed spot, they first argue on the reason of their quarrel, and it is a point of etiquette that during the argument no in jurious terms shall be used. Should one of the duellists be convinced that he was in the wrong, he apologizes, and there is an end of the matter; otherwise, one invites the other to draw and the duel proceeds. Formerly it was the custom for one of the combatants to bring a pair of knives, which were stuck in the ground, and each man, bending at the same moment, seized a at haphazard. But now the trusting chivalrous spirit is disappearing, and each man brings his own

Then the combat commences, the men advancing, reateating, leaping and twisting like cats till one is wounded. The victor immediately cries, "Throw down your weapon;" and when he sees that this is done he pockets his own knife and runs to help the wounded man, or, if the latter is mortally hurt, to receive his last words. Not seldom is this extreme case a kiss of reconciliation is asked and granted; but it rarely that a man is killed on the spot When seconds are employed a fifth man is chosen as umpire; in this case also the preliminary discussion invariably takes place. If a duel ends in immediate death, the High Mafia proceeds to the spot to hold an inquiry. Should find that there has been treachery, they pass sentence on the murderer, and very often the sentence is death. If the duel has been fairly fought, a ceremony takes place in some church to make peace between the survivor and the family of the dead man; and if the affair is arranged, it is impossible for the police to obtain any information from the relations of the vic-tim. When a wounded man is taken to a hospital the Masia finds means to have him watched and prevented from betraying the name of his adversary. Members of the Mafia are proud of leaving a hospital without having denounced their enemy; and when a man has died in hospital without betraying his murderer, the Mafia pronounces menced like a man and ended like a It will surprise no one who has heard anything of the prevalence of the art tatooing among Italians to learn that it is a favorite fashion with the Sicilian Mafia. The members of that association adorn their bodies with emblems of their loves, their hatreds, their scorn and their religion. Above the heart of the notorious brigand Botindari was tattooed the figure of a woman surrounded by a frame, and the words, "Holy Mary, pray for me!" Another man tattooed on his side the boast that he had killed his enemy without assistance. A symbol ofrevenge was tatthe body of a young man whose father had been murdered: it was in the shape of a heart, with the

was in the shape of a heart, with the motto, "This thou must eat," the heart, of course, representing that of the murderer.

The members of the Mafia rather despise firearms, thinking it cowardly to kill a man from a distance; and the weapons tattooed on their bodies are generally daggers and knives. One old convict in a Sicilian prison has tattooed on his person a pyramid of skulls, the symbol of a church dedicated to execute persons. A frequent figure is the head of Saint John, whom the Mafia consider to be the especial protector of convicts. The figures of the patron saints of the various towns are often found. Saint Asatha for the Catanis. found; Saint Agatha for the Catanians the Madonna for the people of Traeanl, Saint Resalle for inhabitants of Palermo, while the Infant Jesus or the cross is used by the inhabitants of Monreale. MAN THE EXTERMINATOR.

Animals That are Extinct or are Becoming so-The Birds and Beasts Slaughtered for Fashon's Sake-Effect of Man's Presence Upon Some Species-Causes of the Extermina-tion of Some Birds and Animals. Washington, Sept. 5.-Professor

Frederic A. Lucas, the assistant curator of the Department of Comparative Anatomy of the United States National Museum, has made a very interesting study of the animals of America and other countries which have become extinct within the last ten or twenty years, as well as those threatened with extinction in the near future

"It is not perhaps generally realized," said Professor Lucas, "how extensive and how rapid are the changes that are taking place in almost the entire fauna of the world through the agency of man. Of course, changes have perpet-ually taken place in the past through the operation of natural causes, and race after race of animals has disappeared from the globe, but there is this wide difference between the methods of nature and man; that the extermination of a species by nature is ordinarily slow and the place of one is taken by another, while the destruction wrought by man is rapid and the gaps he creates remain unfilled."

The cause of man's slaughter of animals is in general the desire for their various products, but there are other simple and destructive forces at work. For instance, the erection of telegraph wires, especially in sparsely wooded has proved very destructive to birds, and a deadly, though restricted, source of danger is found in elevated electric lights, against which birds dash themselves during their nocturnal cow and great auk, the almost complete extinction of the buffalo, and the seal, and the greatly reduced numbers of the walrus are attributable to the hand of man. Those species used for decoration, or having an economic value, suffer the most. The fashion in wearing apparel affects some and others are necessarily destroyed for the protection of man. Year by year halibut is growing scarcer and scarcer, the lobster canneries find difficulty in obtaining necessary supplies, and there is already a dearth of oysters in the once seemingly inexhaustible waters of Chesapeake Bay. The Fish commission is doing a good work in keeping alive some of the species. The Atlantic salmon have been greatly reduced in numbers, and the same is true of shad in many localities. The shad and the cod are receiving the attention of the National Museum: the Fish commission, and they will be The West Indian set kept in existence by artificial culture.

One reason for the growing scarcity of some species is found in the belief held by the great mass of people that because some species of animals exist in large numbers, the supply is unlimited, and those most directly interested in the preservation of game are The lobster catchers and dealers object The Potomac fishermen complain bethe spawning ground. Nevertheless wherever laws have been put into force the result has been within a comparatively short time so to increase the spethose who protested in the first in.

The dictates of fashion are the cause of the destruction of fur-bearing mammals for clothing and of birds for millinery purposes. In 1885 peccaries were seem everywhere. About this time hog-skin goods being in favor, a price of fifty cents each was offered for peccary hides, with a result that five years afterward peccaries had become practically exterminated. This shows how short a time is required to cause the practical extermination of a species in a community. A yearly record of the sales of some London firms would indicate clearly the whims of fashion. Some of the present tendencies are shown by the fact that 30,000 monkeys skins and 250,000 Australian opossums were disposed of at a single sale. Among the items at one sale of birds were 6,000 birds of paradise, 5,000 Impeyon pheasants, 360,000 skins from India, and 490,000 humming birds. The number of birds disposed of on this one ocasion exceeded that contained in all the collections, public and private, of the United States. The fashionable the United States. The fashionable sealskin cloaks demand a yearly slaughter of about 185,000 fur seals. To supply the world with ivory for a year necessitates the death of 100,000 elephants. If these were placed in single file they would make a procession over one hundred and eighty miles long. Henry M. Stanley makes a still more extraordinary statement. He said that the death of an elephant was but a portion of the price paid for ivory, eve ry pound of which had cost the life of a man, woman or child, while every twenty tusks had been obtained at the price of the destruction of a district, with all its people, villages and plantawolf and coyote were poisoned for the preservation of sheep. Following this ecessary destruction there comes the innecessary but unavoidable loss caused by the domestic animals which are brought by the new-comers, such as the more or less complete extirpation in certain parts of the country of rattlesnakes that followed the introfuction of hogs. While the extermination of rattlesnakes is a consummation greatly to be desired, it is none the less a case in point. Among some of the larger game whose extinction is threatened by the rifle of the sportsman is the true zebra, now confined to small area in South Africa. The giaffe is rapidly disappearing from the ame cause. The same may be said of almost every variety of the large game of North America. The only parrot of the United States, the Carolina paroquet, will probably be extirpated in Florida, and the eastern pennated grouse is restricted to the island of Nantucket, although long ago laws were framed for the protection of the Heathen," as the compositor caused he bill to read.

In western Kansas jack rabbits are on the increase, owing to the fact that the bounty on coyotes is two dollars, while the price of a rabbit scalp is only five cents, a difference that has resulted in the rapid decrease of the rabbit's natural enemy, the covote. Western Kansas, too, affords another excellent illustration of the direct influence of population upon the increase or decrease of the larger animals. Up to 1884 that region was very sparsely settled. Antelope were comparatively abundant and mule deer were frequently seen. During 1885 and 1886, under the impression that western migrations. The extinction of the sea | Kansas was suitable for farming purposes, there came a tide of immigration from the east, and before the wave of increasing population the mule deer disappeared entirely and the antelope became extremely rare. The country, so far as farming was concerned, having been tried and found wanting, an ebb tide of emigration took place, and as the farms were abandoned by man their former occupants again took possession, and by 1888 and 1890 antelopes became not uncommon, while the mule deer appeared in localities where none had been seen for years. Here is a list compiled by Professor Lucas of some of the animals which Atlantic to the Pacific coast. The anihave recently become extinct or the which seems imminent, with descriptions of them and the mode of their extinction, based on papers and specimens among the collections of

The West Indian seal, the range which was from the Bahamas to the Gulf of Campeache, is supposed to be very near extinction. This seal was discovered in August, 1494, when the flotilla of Columbus was among the West India Islands. The sallors then called them sea wolves. Few of these animals have recently usually the most bitter opponents of been seen by naturalists, and it is difany measures for their own protection. ficult to tell just how few there are left. As far as food, climate and suitcause they are not allowed to prevent shad and herring from ascending to erything is favorable to its existence, and it may in time fill up its now decimated ranks. The professor says, however, that, on the other hand, when a species has been reduced below a cercies that it has been of the greatest tain point it seems, like a stone rolling benefit pecuniarily and otherwise to down hill, to pursue its downward course with continually accelerated speed until the bottom is reached and the species exists no more.

The California sea elephants, the largest of the seals, having a length of from twenty to twenty-two feet, are abundant in certain parts of Texas | now very scarce, considering the forthat their well-worn trails were to be mer abundance of these animals on the everywhere. About this time | California coast, and from the fact that og-skin goods being in favor, a price very little is ever seen of them it is

> The walrus is well known, but the walrus of the Atlantic and Pacific differ in many respects. As the whale decreased in numbers the whaling men directed their attention more and more to the walrus, and between 1870 and 1880 there were brought to market nearly two million gallons of oil and nearly four hundred pounds of walrus ivory. These amounts represent the destruction of about 100,000 animals. Although it is far inferior to elephant it war, the demand for walrus tusks is sent and the control of the bowels, and when this is done their use may be discontinued. They are not ment to supersede. Nature, but to help her, and that is all she needs. There are druggits who for the sake of a slightly greater profit, will endeavor to sell you something else which they say is "just as good." They are trying to make a profit at the expense of your health. For the physiology of women, in health and disivory, the demand for walrus tusks is nevertheless great; and while the price by the pound was in 1879 only 40 or 45 cents, it was in 1880 from $1 to $1.25, and in 1883 from $4 to $4.50. The walrus being a stupid animal under favor-able conditions,* it is slaughtered in much the same manner as the buffalo was killed by the skin hunters. The Pacific walrus is in greater danger of extinction than the Atlantic walrus, owing to the fact that the range of the species is restricted, while its haunts are regularly resorted to by the North Pacific whaling fleet. The Arctic sea cow, or rytina, is extinct. This animal was nearly related to the existing manatee and dugong. Ds. Steineger has succeeded in mounting a skeleton of the sea cow in the National Museum.

The California vulture disputes with the condor the claim of being the largest of the new world vultures, for, while the condor is more strongly built, the California vulture has a greater spread of wing, large specimens having a wing spread of ten feet. Four of these birds have been known to drag the carcass of a young bear, weighing one hundred pounds, for a distance of two hundred yards. Its threatened extermination is due indirectly rather than directly to the agency of man, for its suspicious nature has always rendered it difficult to capture, and the breeding places are in out of the way and often inaccessible localities. Although the Mexican miners of Lowe California are said to kill the bird that hey may use the quills as receptacles for gold dust, this is not the main cause of their reduction in numbers. The use of strichnine in ridding the cattle ranches of wolves and coyotes pert, and who now makes a Specialty has, more than anything else, caused the disappearance of this bird, which has been poisoned by feeding on the | See his beautiful $10.00 Sets.

The Labrador duck is one of the many sea ducks which during their southern migrations furnish considerable sport to gunners along the coasts. These ducks range southward in winter to the coasts of New Jersey and Chesapeake Bay. The Labrador duck seems never to have been very common, and many of them died during the winter of 1876 and 1877, and although their numbers have since inreased they have never attained their former abundance

The great auk, the largest member of the auk family, distinguished not only by its size, but also by being the only bird in the northern hemisphere ncapable of flying, was confined to the north Atlantic, ranging from Greenland to Virginia. It has been completely exterminated, and its more rapid extinction seems to have been due to the fact that it was very gregarious in its habits and had only a few large breeding places. Had the bird bred in small colonies scattered along its terri-tory, the scientists think that it would been in existence to-day. Just when the great auk ceased to exist in America is unknown, for there were few naturalists on this side the water when it was being done to death. Few birds have received more attention than has the great auk since it became extinct, and it has been the subject of many papers, both popular and scentifie, while its remains bring extravagant prices whenever chance brings them into the market. The last skeleton brought $600 the last skin $650, and an egg brought $1,250 and was then resold for $1,500.

Every one knows of the frightfully rapid extinction of the American bison or buffalo in this country. This, acsaddest of all cases of the extinction of species. The wild buffalo is practically gone forever, and in a few more years, as Professor Hornaday, the superintendent of the National Zoological Park, has said, "when the whitened bones of the last bleaching skeleton shall have been picked up and shipped east for commercial uses, nothing will remain of him save his old well-worn trails along the water courses, a few um specimens, and regret for his fate." The area once inhabited by the American bison extended almost from the mals were gradually shot off in the eastern and middle sections of the United States, Canada and Mexico, and in 1870 they were divided in two herds which ranged through parts of Kansas Colorado, Texas, and New Mexico, Da-kota, Montana, Wyoming and the of the Dominion. In 1880 the herds were still further diminished; they occupied only parts of Wyoming, Montana, Dakota and Colorado, gether with a small breeding ground to the north in Canada. The greatest slaughters were in 1870 and 1873, and from 1880 to 1883, at which time the herd was reduced to a small number in the Yellowstone Park, another small herd in Montana, and a third small herd to the north in the Dominion of Canada.-New York Sun.

DEATH OF HENRY LINES.

For More Than a Quarter of a Century a Prominent New Haven Carriage Manufacturer-Passed Away Last Evening.

Henry Lines of the firm of Kean & carriage manufacturers, died last night at his late residence, 23 Home place, after an illness of two months. Mr. Lines was born in New York state in 1825, and moved to this city about 50 years ago. He entered the employ of Hersey Hoadley, a noted carriage manufacturer in his day and remained with Mr. Hoadley a number of years, next engaging in business for himself and forming a partnership with the late B. H. Merriman and Mr. Kean under the firm name of Merriman, Kean and company. When Mr. Merriman retired the partnership now term inated by Mr. Lines's death was formed. The deceased married Miss Wilmott, of this city 50 years ago next Wednesday. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Jonh J. Jacobus. He was a quiet, unostentatious man, of very kindly spirit, an excellent citizen and was much respected by all. In his death the city looses a good business man and valuable citizen.

WALLINGFORD.

The Fair a Decided Success-Yesterday's Trotting Events-Hubbard Hose Com panp's Victory-General News. Although the weather was threatening and misty yesterday afternoon, there was another big crowd at the fair. There was only one trotting race on the program; but betwen the heats it was announced that there was an opportunity for a contest between as many horses as might enter in a scrub race. Several availed themselves of the chance and there was a lively half-mile spin, which was won by C. N. Jones' horse driven by J. W. Olderidge, time, 1:261/2. The mile race was for the nearest to four minutes and was won by Selden Munson in 3:59. The trotting was interesting and resulted as follows:

Story of Her Majesty's Yeomen of the Guard-A Corps Four Hundred Years Old-Queer Uniforms Worn by It-Its Ministry-The Yeomen Guard the Tower of London.

The first and only standing forces employed by our kings until the Restoration were their personal bodyguards. These, however, although they accomtheir numerical strength were more than to effect great operations in war. Such as these were the Sergeants-atwho were attached to his person period of nearly four hundred various titles, but it was after a long guishing badges of office therefolore train of civil commotions and when he seeming to have been the halberds, ates, "that it might be thought rather a matter of dignity than diffidence appropriate to his own case, he made it to be understood for an ordinance not temporary, but to hold in succession and sleeves with garter blue velvet. forever." It is said by some writers and on their breasts and backs is the of the time that the nation was jealous Union Rose, ensigned with the Crown of this establishment, and that the Royal embroidered with gold." The king was restrained, and only permitted to constitute this corps as a protection for his person on condition that it should not increase to an army; that the crown, not a terror to the subject. He this as it may, the original complement of the body was fifty archers under the command of a captain, and the following is the account given by Hall, the chronicler of the institution of this "Kyng Henry being made wyse and expert wyth Troubles any Mys-chiefes before passt, remembered yt was Wis-dome to feare and provide for the crafty Wyles and lurking Trappes of his secret Enemyes.—Wherefore, for the save-guarde and Preservation of his awne body, he constituted and or-deyned a certain Nombre as well of good Archers as of diverse other Persons, being hardy, stronge and of Agilitie, to geve dailye attendaunce on whom he named Yeomen of his Garde; which President (precedent) Men thought that he learned of the French Kyng when he was in Fraunce;

for Men remembre not any Kyng of England before that tyme which used such a Furnyture of dally Souldyourf." Henry VIII, seems to have enlarged or diminished the numbers of the Yeomen of the Guard according to circumstances. On his accession he raised them to two hundred, of which half were furnished with horses; and when he led them at the siege of Terouenne in 1513 (the first occasion of their proceeding on active service), he was atsame year, when Tournay fell into the king's hands, he left among other forces for its preservation four hundred archers of the guard. Queen Mary kept up the strength of the guard, and expended a great sum on the ornamentation of their uniforms, as may be learned from an order preserved among the Harlelan MSS, at the British Muse um, which runs, "Deliver to Peter Richardson, maker of the spangles for the rich coats of the Queen's High-ness's guard, the sum of £1,000, also 7,175 ounces of spangles gilt for embroidering their coats." Elizabeth and James I. continued the Yeomen in Ordinary to the number of two hundred, reducing the extra yeomen to one hundred and seven. During the Commonwealth, like other royal appendages the Veomen of the Guard disappeared, but Charles II., in 1668, restored them to the number of one hundred, which has continued to be the establishment of the corps down to the present day.

Since the Restoration the captaincy has always been held by a peer, and he Captain Goes Out of Office With the is the only officer of the corps who vacates his post on a change of ministry. Originally he received no pay, his only emolument from the crown being a gown of the value of £14. Charles II, changed this for a salary of £1,000 per which in 1835 was raised to panied the sovereign when he took £1,200, as in that year all fees payable ommand of the army in the field, from to the captain on appointment to the corps were abolished. Finally the red hose, with the ruff of Queen Elizabeth's era, were restored to them by George IV. the only other change being that of re-settes of red, white and blue ribbons instead of red leather ones, which last in 1785 superseded the old silver shoe

It is presumed that no mention of the Yeomen of the Guard would be considered satisfactory without some reference to their more popular designation of "Beefeaters." That this word comes from the French "buffet," because the men were supposed to serve at table or stand at the cupboard where the plate was displayed, must it is feared, be discarded. like so many other fancies of our teaching of early days. Skeat, Pegge and a host of others, who have given the subject consideration, all dissent from this derivation, alleging, among a number of reasons too plentiful to reproduce here, that the Yeomen had nothing to do with the care of the buffet, that duty devolving on officers of superior rank, namely, the gentlemen ushers. The balance of authority is now in favor of the theory that their sobriquet arose from their well-fed appearance.

present establishment of the Guard consists of a captain, a lieuten-ant and an ensign, four "exons," a clerk of the cheque and adjutant, and one hundred and forty yeomen. The extra forty act as Wardens of the Tower, and were in olden times a branch of the Guard itself. Six of the corps hold the ancient additional office of Yeomen-Hangers, and two that of Yeomen Bedgoers. The duties of the former were to take down and put up the royal tapestry or arras, which was always carried with the king when he went from one dwelling to another; and the latter had charge of the king's bed and bedding. They had also care of the king's tent and camp equipage, and went with George II. to Hanover in

In conclusion it is only right to say that during the whole of their history no body of men has by its behavior more justified its existence near and in attendance on the sovereign than the Yeomen of the Guard. But twice in over four hundred years have any crimes been imputed to any of their number. In the Harleian MSS. we "July 14, 1554-This day Richard Smith, one of the Yeomen of the Guard, for spreading abroad lewd and seditious books, was committed to the Marshalsea, his coat being taken from his back and he discharged the ser-And Hall the chronicler gives a case at the beginning of the sixteenth century of a murder by one of the Yeofor which "the king, abhorring that deed and setting aside all affection, caused him to be hanged in the palace of Westminster, where h hong two daies, in example of other."-Pall Mall Gazette.

Stocks Were Dull But Strong on the Ex change Yesterday. New York, Sept. 17 .- Stocks were dull

but strong to-day. Operators who were generally arrayed on the bear side yesterday made a complete change of front and were moderate buyers throughout the session.

At the start the market was stimu lated by more favorable advices from London regarding the political situation in the east and by the announce ment that the governors of the Bank of England had not advanced the rate of discount after all. Near the close it was rumored that Lazard Freres had engaged a big block of gold abroad for shipment to New firm in question had secured four millions of the metal. This brings the total on the way engaged and arrived since August 28 last up to thirty-six millions. This new engagement had a strengthening effect and the shorts.

Manhattan and Sugar were the paricularly strong stocks. The former advanced from 81% to 85%. The rise was attributed to covering of a long outstanding short interest. Sugar bounded up from 109% to 111% and was in sharp demand throughout. The grangers, internationals, Tobacco, Chicago Gas and Leather preferred advanced 1/2 to 11/2 per cent, and closed at or near the best figures of the day.

The unfavorable developments were the dearness of money, 8 per cent, being paid for call loans in some cases, and the decrease of $112,500 in gross earnings of the St. Paul for the second week of September. Neither had any influence, however, and speculation closed strong with an upward tenden-

FUSION IN TEXAS.

Populists Combine With Republicans to Defeat Bryan.

Dallas, Texas, September 17.-Wright Cuney, the colored republican leader of Texas, said yesterday: "Fusion between the republicans and populists of Texas is now virtually effected." It was known several days ago that fusion had become a foregone conclusion, and that announcement of it had been delayed as a matter of policy until Bryan should decline to knife his running mate. Now the populists declare that the letter notifying Bryan of his nomination does not meet with the approval of Texas populists.

E. Woods, state lecturer of the populist party, after attending a republican committee meeting yesterday, said: 'The populists who first declared that they would vote for Bryan and Watson now take higher grounds, and say they will not vote for Bryan at all, unless Sewall has withdrawn from the race, and the democrats are pledged to support Watson. The letter written by Senator Allen to Bryan notifying him of his nomination we utterly repudiate, calling attention to the fact that it ignores the letter written by Butler to Watson which expresses the sentiments of Texas Populists."

It was learned at republican headquarters that arrangements are being made to at once put into the field forty republicans and double that number of populist speakers.

Mr. Hicks was formerly Meriden's city attorney and owns a great deal of property here, including several valua-ble business blocks. He also owns much real estate in Bridgeport and New York city. His legal residence is in Tolland and he represented that town in the last legislature. After the legislature adjourned he declared that he was a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, but subsequently he changed his mind. Mr. Hicks' second wife, who is the plaintiff in the suit, was a western lady reputed to be very wealthy, whom he married a year or so ago. The last convention held was that for grounds for instituting the divorce suit are not known.

Races Postponed Until To-day. The races which were to be given by the New Haven Driving association at Elm City park yesterday afternoon were postponed until to-day on account of the weather, and the program which had been arranged for this afternoon will be given to-morrow afternoon. In the 2:45 and 2:27 classes, which are to be trotted to-day there are some local entries and considerable rivalry exists between them, which promises to make the contest the more interesting and thorough trials of speed will be the result. The track is in fine condition and good for fast work, as can be seen from the fact that during the workouts of the past few days the horses have been stepping miles close to 2:20 and halves in 1:10 or better. The officers of the meeting are to be Dr. E. C. Ross, starter; John O. Shares, F. S. Oakes, A. E. Mack and G. Treat, timers and judges. The interest that is being taken in these races guarantees the success of the meeting, which, it is likely, will result in a revival of horse racing in this city after a lanse of five

"The talk about the democrats having made no effort to carry Maine is They fought it out in every county in the state. All the free silver literature that could be obtained was distributed and more than 700 meetings were held. It was in fact the most vigorous campaign the democrats ever made in the state. What is more, their campaign began two years ago, when they started the distribution of free silver documents, while our campaign was not begun till the Chicago convention had adjourned. We could not begin, you see, until we knew what the chief issue of the campaign was to be I calculate that four thousand demo crats voted directly for our ticket, while at out eighteen thousand stayed at The sound-money democrats who are with us this year seem to be even more pleased with the result than the republicans are.
