FIBROID TUMOR

Expelled by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. B. A. LOMBARD, Box 71, Westdale, Mass., writes: "I have reason to think that I would not be here now if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cured me of a fibroid tumor in my womb."

"I had been in my usual health, but had worked quite hard. When my monthly period came on, I doved very badly. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did me no good. He said the flow must be stopped if possible, and he must find the cause of my trouble."

It can be truthfully stated that such a result can be accomplished by no other remedy upon the market, and forcibly proves the peculiar virtue of the Vegetable Compound.

Work of University and Freshman Crews During the Week—Criticism of Freshmen. The work of the crews during the past week has been handicapped by the winds and bad weather which have prevailed, and consequently the University crew has been compelled to confine itself to rowing short stretches on the river.

Mr. Cook is devoting all his time to the University and Freshman regatta and is giving additional coaching to the candidates in the pair oars daily.

No changes have been made in the order of the Freshman boat for several weeks, but several men will probably be shifted soon after the spring regatta.

More than half the depositors in the savings banks of France are women. In 1896 the savings banks held $680,000,000 belonging to their customers, who received interest at the rate of 3 1/2 per cent per annum on their balances. Many of the banks have, within the last three years, reduced the maximum individual deposit from $50 to $200. There are more than 2,000 savings banks in the republic.

The annual report of the Italian State lotteries shows a total revenue of nearly 68,000,000 lire, which, after the deduction of 38,500,000 lire for prizes and expenses, leaves a total gain to the exchequer of nearly 27,500,000 lire, or an increase of 175,718 lire as compared with last year. It is fully recognized by many enlightened Italians that this form of revenue is pernicious, but the impossibility of replacing the money thus obtained by any equally popular source of income makes them despair of ever being able to abolish it.

We shall have a real navy sometime. Three first class battleships, four big monitors, sixteen torpedo boat destroyers and twelve torpedo boats, thirty-five boats in all, are included in the lot for which plans have just been made and bids solicited, under authority of the naval bill. This is the largest number and represents the greatest expenditure for war ships at one time since the new navy was begun. It doubles the number of the big monitors, and almost doubles the number of battleships in actual service, not counting unfinished ships.

A fine club has been started in Rochester, New York. It is for women, it rests on an assumption of ignorance, and its motto is, "We know nothing, but seek knowledge." It is called the Fortnightly Ignorance club. Each member of the Ignorance club is privileged to display all the ignorance at her command. A paper is read, questions follow, and the subject chosen for the next meeting is one of which the members know little. There are now several hundred members and the president is Dr. Sarah R. A. Dolley, one of the first women in the country to study medicine. Miss Susan B. Anthony is an honorary member and often adorns the meetings. At present, however, a difference exists between Miss Anthony and some members of the club over the suffrage question.

With increased transportation facilities market gardening is making rapid growth in the Texas coast country. This spring that section enters the field as a large producer of cantaloupes, and its climatic conditions, it is claimed, enable it to be first in the market, to the great profit of the gardeners, who have sold their ungathered crop of breakfast fruit at prices that will net them from $90 to $125 per acre. This price is expected to awaken an interest that will largely increase next year this season's acreage of seven hundred. The entire crop has been bought by a St. Louis firm, which has also cornered the late cantaloupe crop of Rocky Ford valley in Colorado. The early and the late crops are the desirable ones, as the middle crop is extensive and must be sold at low prices.

The city of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, has an inventor, Senor Bonteau, whose newly devised method by which photographs may be taken under water has attracted no little attention. The light for this purpose is furnished by an incandescent lamp placed in a steel case in the diver's headpiece, the luminous rays being reflected by a reflector placed in the rear of the steel case, and the electricity provided by means of a small dynamo carried in the boat above. The photographic apparatus itself consists of a common camera placed within an India rubber envelope, the front of which is glass, and the machine is regulated and pictures taken by pressing buttons through the India rubber covering. The result is such as to be pronounced an achievement that is, through experiments made in the bay of Rio de Janeiro, it is demonstrated that pictures can be taken under water of objects at a distance of ten or twelve feet as easily as they can be obtained above in the full light of day.

MORE MAGIC. Yesterday was another great day for the magic warships of Spain. They were all over creation at the same time and going in all directions at once. They were as numerous as the waves of the sea and as elusively flitting as a feverish flea. If the Ancient Mariner were alive and in these parts he would have more fits than he had when he was alive. He only had one ghostly and ghastly ship on his mind. What would he do if his fate compelled him to try and keep track of the millions of Spanish ghost-ships that are everywhere appearing and disappearing as queerly as "the vanishing lady?"

The magician who is managing the appearances and disappearances of the Spanish ships is a good one. There is only one way to beat him. He must be taken off his guard some fine day and the ships he is working be made to disappear downward, where they belong and whence he cannot raise and redistribute them. He is more irritating than a mischievous Mahatma.

A QUIET TIME. The government is making a success of its plan to suppress premature news of its military and naval operations. The press censorship at Key West was the first step, then followed the press censorship at Tampa, then the prohibition of elpher messages over cable lines, then the prohibition of messages over the Haytian cable and the Anglo-American cable, whether newspaper or private, that would give information as to the movements of our war vessels. Then the officers of the navy and war departments stopped talking, and there has been little real news since.

The comparative quiet is pleasing to all but those who are so insatiate that they would be glad to have "the news" even if their getting it involved the getting of it by the enemy. We shall all know what happens when it has happened. It will do us no good to know it beforehand. The government can be trusted and it should not be hampered even by majestic "special correspondents." Waiting for real news is not more discouraging than buying extras adorned with "news" and the simultaneous denial of it.

A NEW MONROE DOCTRINE. In presenting his letter of recall to President McKinley Minister Mendonca, of Brazil, had something to say about the Monroe doctrine, and his remarks are well worth the consideration of those who wish to see that doctrine permanently established. Senor Mendonca does not, it seems, consider that the doctrine, as accepted by other American republics, gives any special rights of leadership or control to the United States. Each republic, be it great or small, is to have an equal voice with every other, so that in the parliament of American republics Costa Rica may kill the vote of the United States. Senor Mendonca said: "It has been my aspiration before leaving your country to sit again at a table around which all the American republics would re-enact, on a more solid basis, the agreement outlined by the unratified treaty of the 28th of April of 1890, distributing the responsibilities of the policy of Monroe, by the members of the compact, as is due to their sovereign character. Blessed be the day which shall witness the meeting of such a congress, the first step for the establishment of an American diet, a high court of the international affairs of our continent." The "responsibilities," he says, are to be "distributed," not concentrated at Washington, and this distribution is to have regard to "the sovereign character" of the individual republics in the Pan-American council.

This isn't exactly the Monroe doctrine that most people have in mind, but it cannot be denied that there is some sense in what Senor Mendonca says.

RUSSIA'S NAVAL PLANS. When the great naval roundup comes Russia will be conspicuous in it. The new Russian naval programme includes the building of three first class battleships on the Neva, 12,675 tons each, of the new type of the sister ships Oshibaya and Peresviet, now under construction, which are to be launched this summer. The new cruiser Pallada, 6,630 tons, will be launched almost immediately. Other vessels now being built at St. Petersburg are the Improved Rossia, called the Gromobol, 12,196 tons, and two sister-ships of the Pallada, named respectively Diana and Aurora. The battleship Poltava, 10,960 tons, will have her trials this summer, and possibly also her sister ship the Sevastopol; while the third of this class, the Petropaulovsk, though tried last autumn, is actually further from completion than the Poltava. All these three vessels have been fully six years in the hands of the builders. At Nikolai on the Black Sea the Prince Potemkin Tavhitchesky has recently been laid down. She is a duplicate of the first class battle ship the Three Saints. It is further stated that two or three more large battleships of about 13,000 tons, armed with 12-inch guns, and a number of torpedo-boat destroyers on the English model are to be built in the United States. The naval authorities also contemplate giving orders in France and Germany. Among smaller vessels in course of construction in Russian dock yards are twelve torpedo-boat destroyers, all sister vessels of the famous Sokol, which was built in England. These, it is reported, are intended for use at Vladivostok and Port Arthur.

FASHION NOTES. Squared in Goods or by Trimming. A rage is on for plaids. Plaid cases are made for the humble solid-color umbrella, parasols are all plaid, stockings are plaid, whether of silk, tulle or cotton, and you might as well give up and stay in bed if you have not a plaid petticoat. Then silk for lining is plaid, and the very prettiest summer effects are secured by smothering brilliant plaid in yards and drifts of lawn and lace. Plaid effects are made by barring plain material with ribbon of different colors, the colors crossing each other, and braid is plaided and used for trimming on plain goods. Since several dresses have recently been used for the hair, it is a wonder that women who seize upon such devices don't try an experiment with plaid hair. As bright plaid goods have had more or less vogue for several seasons, this recent revival of liking for squared designs finds the plaid effects a bit more stylish than the goods thus copied. A type of these arrangements is put here by the artist. It was a bodice of pale blue liberty satin plaided with black velvet ribbon, and in the centers of the squares thus formed were placed turquoise ornaments. The fronts parted to show a vest of ecru lace lined with the same shade of taffeta, the epaulettes were of lace, and the sleeves were shirred at the seams. Around the waist was a blue satin belt, and a big bow of blue chiffon was put at the throat.

White neckties are still much worn, and those of very fine wash point despit, made a quarter of a yard wide and a yard and a half long, are especially pretty. They are edged with pleating of the despit, finished with narrow valenciennes lace. Do remember that sewing, material and lace should all be of very delicate description for the neck scarf, as anything like coarseness shows very plainly under the chin and is very unpleasant. THE DECLINE OF WHALING. Almost Complete Failure of the English Catch This Year.

With the return of the Davis Straits vessels it is possible to estimate the results achieved by the Scotch whalers during last season. The catch on this ground is worth $14,000, of which $12,000 represents the so-called "whalebone" and the balance oil. On the Greenland ground the season was an almost complete failure, one vessel (The Braena) having caught only one fish, which gave twelve hundredweight of bone and sixty tons of oil, worth in all $2,300. In order to fill up, in default of whales, the ships turned their attention to Franz Josef Land, where walrus are plentiful, and the Balena captured a round six hundred, whose skins will bring in $6,000. So far as this one whaler is concerned, last season's operations do not involve a loss of money, but we doubt if the Diana's 80 walrus and seven bears, the Active's 70 walrus and 40 seals, and the Polar Star's 351 seals and two bears, will bring in sufficient money to compensate for their several outfits. To any one acquainted with the past history of the whaling industry, these results are astounding. As compared with last year, the Davis Straits return shows an increase; but both grounds have yielded less than in 1894; when from Davis Straits the ships brought home 355 tons of oil and 124 tons of bone, and from Greenland 102 1/2 tons of bottle-nosed whale and seal oil, and 1 1/2 tons of bone, worth in all about $31,800.

The introduction of steam forty years ago marked a new era in whaling, and enabled better results to be obtained. But, unfortunately, by that time the number of fish in the sea—"right" whales in the north and sperm whales in the south—had begun to thin, and the use of steam in the capture of the cetaceans has only served to decimate them the more rapidly. In the ten years prior to 1858 (when steam was employed for the first time) the average annual number of whales taken by Peterhead, Dundee Aberdeen and other Scotch ships was 10, which yielded 2,300 tons between them $124,000. It will be seen what a falling-off there has been between 1857 and 1897. But go further back, and the contrast becomes far more pronounced. During the four years 1814-17, the number of voyages made from Scotland was 194, and the total catch was 1,683 whales, which yielded 18,684 tons of oil and 891 tons of bone. English ships in the same four years made 392 voyages, and the total catch of whales was 3,348.

The average of the Davis Straits fishers was about two-thirds of this, and the gross value of the freights of the two fleets (including the Government bounty of 30s. per ton, with oil at $32 and whalebone at $20 per ton, exceeded £700,000 for the one year. Whalebone to-day is worth $1,800 per ton, and oil $20 per ton. The price of oil has diminished, owing to the progress of gas and other illuminants and to the substitution of mineral oil in manufactures. But the value of bone has advanced for over seventy years past, and, as no really effective substitute has yet been found, the price bids fair to go up still higher in proportion as whales become more rare.

Sperm whaling is in even worse case than "right" whaling. A few small schooners go out from Colonial ports after that variety, and the American fleet spend some part of the year in the Pacific looking for it. But neither can boast of much success. We in this country were long behind the men of New Bedford and Nantucket in searching for the "spermacetty," and we went out of it long before them. But it is to the enterprise of an Englishman that the nations were indebted for the sperm whale fishery having been opened out to its greatest extent. An attempt made to establish this branch from London in 1775 was a failure. Ten years later the English shipmasters discovered the haunts of the sperm whale, and in 1783 as much as 727 tons

KILLED IN A BOXING MATCH

FRIENDLY BOUT RESULTED IN DEATH OF IRVING WEBSTER.

Unfortunate Affair Occurred at New Haven Manufacturing Company's Shops Yesterday Noon—The Two Men Were Boxing to Pass Away Time During the Noon Hour—Webster Died About Three Hours After.

Irving Webster of 153 Blake street, this city, was killed yesterday in a boxing bout with his friend, James Egan, at the shops of the New Haven Manufacturing company. Webster was rendered unconscious in the bout, which occurred at noon yesterday, and died at his home on Blake street at 3:45 yesterday afternoon. Webster was employed by the New Haven Manufacturing company until a few weeks ago, when he left, and since then he had been going about the state participating in boxing bouts. Wednesday he returned to New Haven and went to the New Haven Manufacturing company's works to see his former co-workers. At the shops he wanted to box, and finally asked Egan to box with him. Egan did not care to box then, but said that he had at home a new set of boxing gloves, which he said he would bring around yesterday to the shop and would box with Webster at noon yesterday.

Accordingly Webster was on hand at the noon hour yesterday and after the men had finished their lunches a ring was formed in the shop and Egan and Webster put on the gloves. All went well for two rounds, neither of the two men getting pounded much, but in the third round Egan in dodging one of Webster's blows struck his head against a jutting piece of machinery and cut a gash over his eye from which the blood flowed. Referees and timekeepers had been chosen in regulation style, and when the time was up at the end of the third round time was called and the men stepped into the ring for the fourth round. Webster staggered as he walked into the ring and as he reached the center of the ring sank to the ground.

The men standing at the edge of the ring walked up to Webster and raised him up. He was unconscious and efforts were made to revive him, but without avail. Dr. Elliot was called to the shop and seeing the serious condition of Webster ordered his father sent for. The father arrived and the police ambulance was summoned and the unfortunate man was removed his home on Blake street. Dr. Conway was called to the house, but all efforts at resuscitation were unavailing and Webster did not regain consciousness. The only external bruise noticeable on Webster was a slight bruise over the left eye, and it is probably the blow which caused this that produced the concussion of the brain, the undoubted cause of his death.

Egan was arrested after the bout had terminated so suddenly and was locked up at police headquarters. He was visited by the coroner after young Webster died and was questioned as to the accident. He said that he had noticed during the third round that Webster appeared groggy, but he did not think that he had been seriously hurt. He felt very badly over the result of the affair and sobbed while telling the coroner his story.

Coroner Mix stated last evening that he could not say whether or not Egan would be held for manslaughter. He said that he would be held until the affair had been thoroughly investigated. Medical Examiner White was notified after Webster's death had occurred and made an examination of the body. He stated last night that he was in doubt as to whether death had resulted from a concussion of the brain or from the bursting of a blood vessel in the brain. He thought that death undoubtedly ensued as the result of a blow on the head.

Young Webster was twenty-one years of age and was the son of Charles F. Webster of 153 Blake street. Egan is employed as a smith's helper at the New Haven Manufacturing company's works. MISS MARIA LOUISE POOL. Rockland, Mass., May 19.—Miss Maria Louise Pool, the authoress, died at 4 o'clock this afternoon, after an illness of several weeks. She was born in East Boston, now Rockland, in August, 1841, and was a daughter of Charles and Lydia Pool. She was educated in the public schools of her native town and later taught school. She early developed a liking for literary work and ultimately became one of the prominent writers of the country. She was particularly successful in depicting sketches of New England life and rivalled in this respect Miss Mary E. Wilkins. Miss Pool's first writings comprised the Ransome letters in the New York Tribune. Miss Pool had lived in Brooklyn and Philadelphia. Among her books were "The Two Salomes," "Tenting on Stony Beach," "Rowana in Boston," "Boss and Other Dogs," "Against Human Nature," and "In a Dyke Shanty."

MATINEE WHIST CLUB.

Pleasant Reception Given in Lenox Hall Last Night.

Sixteen young ladies of the city who compose the Matinee Whist club, and who have spent many pleasant evenings during the past winter in the fascinating game of whist, decided to conclude the season of card playing with a reception. This reception was given in Lenox hall last night and was a charming affair. There were about twenty couples of young people present, and they thoroughly enjoyed dancing to the music of Robinson's orchestra. The programme contained twenty dances.

Among those present were Misses Mabel Evelyn and Daisy Johnson, Alice Thompson, Susan Veitch, Gussie Mochler, Fannie Culver, Jessie Hall, Hannah Hubbard, Lottie and Elia Weaver, Helen and Florence Wheat, Hasselbach, Hunn, Hannan, and Alfred Johnson, Francis S. Hamilton, jr., and Messrs. Seward, Camp, Roberts, Seelye, Hunn, Best, Norton, Moore, Strack and Howshild, and Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Howe.

DEATH OF FRANCIS M. GALLAGHER.

The death of Francis M. Gallagher occurred at 7 o'clock last evening at the home of his brother, Patrick Gallagher, No. 18 Edwards street. The deceased was about fifty-five years of age and was a bachelor. He had been employed for many years by the Consolidated road and was a trusty and valued employe of that company and most estimable neighbor and friend. Mr. Gallagher had been ill about one year with stomach troubles, which caused his death. The deceased was a member of the Knights of Columbus. The funeral will probably be held on Saturday, although no definite arrangements have as yet been made. The brother of the deceased, Patrick Gallagher, is an employe of Malley, Neely & Co. The deceased was a member of and regular attendant at St. Mary's R. C. church.
