

FURTHER DETAILS OF MEETING OF THE TWO GENERALS.

Probably No Attempt to Make a General Landing for Several Days-Small Bodies of Troops to be Put Ashore Which Will Give Shafter an Opportunity to Become Familiar With Work Before Him.

(Copyright, 1898, The Associated Press.) On board the Associated Press dispatch boat Dandy, off Santlago de Cuba, Monday night, June 20, via Kingston, Jamaica, Tuesday, June 21, 11 a. m .- As soon as the fleet of transports had arrived at a point about twenty miles off Santiago this afternoon the steamer Seguranca having on board General Shafter and his staff left the other vessels lying to and steamed to the flagship of the American fleet in order to visit Rear-Admiral Sampson.

The general went on board the flagship and the Seguranca then went to Acerraderos, a little over seventeen miles west of Santiago de Cuba, near which General Garcia is encamped with 8,000 Cuban soldiers. General Shafter and his staff and Rear-Admiral Sampson went ashere and proceeded to General Garcia's headquarters, about a mile inland, where they spent several hours in consultation with the Cuban general. At the conclusion of the conference General Shafter and the other officers had little or nothing to say regarding the plans for landing the American troops or for the co-operation of the Cubans. The best information obtainable is that there will be no attempt to make a general landing for two or three days; but, small bodies of troops will be put ashore, probably to-morrow, at several points, both east and west of Santiago de Cuba, including Acerraderos. This will give General Shafter an opportunity to become more familiar with the work before him and to ascertain the best place for a general landing.

The transports and the warships which convoyed them here came close in-shore this afternoon, in full view of the lookouts on Morro Castle, and they will lay to-night fifteen miles out from Admiral Sampson's fleet, guarding the United States and Spain according to entrance of the harbor of Santiago de The result of Rear Admiral Sampson's investigation of the various proposed landing places was also laid of that period finds nearly 16,000 United fore the army officers, but General Shafter is not prepared to announce a definite selection without investigating the matter further himself. General Garcia gave the Americans assurance that they need have no fear of contracting diseases on the southeastern coast of Cuba, as the climate there is not unhealthy, only extremely hot at this season of the year. The Cuban general declared that his own troops, ill fed and clothed as they were, were in good health and therefore the Americans need not fear fevers or other se-

General Shafter examined the condition of the Cuban soldiers during his visit and was impressed with their hardy and soldierly appearance, though he recognized the fact that they need clothes and provisions, both of which were given them during the day. The interview closed with the understanding on the part of both generals tha small bodies of troops are to be landed at once at several points along the coast, where they will be safe from any serious attack by the Spaniards. and will be able to keep the enemy in doubt, for the present, as to their ultimate intentions. Among the troops which will be landed first are a number of men from the engineer corps, who will begin work at once preparing for the movement of the main body of General Shafter and General Garcia will consult further to-morrow.

GENERAL LANDING OF TROOPS.

Sampson Says Will Necessarily be De layed Several Days.

(Copyright, 1898, The Associated Press.) Mole St. Nicholas, June 21 .- Rear Admiral Sampson says that the general landing of the troops of General Shaf ter's expedition on the coast of the province of Santiago de Cuba will necessarily be delayed several days. Reports published in the United States to the contrary are pure guess work.

REINFORCEMENT OF SHAFTER. Government's Determination in Matter -Expeditions to be Sent at Once.

Washington, June 21.-The govern ment has now determined to send heavy reinforcements to General Shafter at Santiago. The first expedition will leave Newport News Thursday morning, carrying Brigadier General Duffield's separate brigade of the Second army corps, made up of the Ninth Massachusetts, the Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Michigan and the Third Virginia regiments, in all about 4,000 men. Expeditions will follow rapidly by way of Tampa, for while Fernandina and Miami are considered to have Pherson, Atlanta.

The next forces to go will include those of Brigadier General Garretson of the Second brigade of the First division, Second army corps, embracing the Sixth Illinois, the Sixth Massachusetts and Eighth and Ninth Ohio regiments. Brigadier General Henry, a distinguished cavalry officer of the regular army, arrived here to-day from Tampa and the present plans are for General Henry to command a regiment made up of the brigades of Generals Duffield and Garetson, this division comprising 3,000 men, to be for the speedy reinforcement of General Shafter. It will at once swell the American forces at Santiago de Cuba to about 24,000 men. But the expeditions will not stop at that number, as there is a determined purpose to send forward a sufficient force to crush any Spanish command which can be concentrated at that point.

SPANISH FORCES AT SANTIAGO. About 14,000 Troops in the City-10,000 More 100 Miles Away.

Washington, June 21.-The reports from Santiago that about 41,000 Spanish troops are in and about the city do not agree with the reliable estimates in the possession of the war department. According to these figures, there are not more than 14,000 Spanish troops at Santiago de Cuba, while one hundred miles away to the northwest, at Holguin, the Spanish corps commander, General Pando, has 10,000 men. war department is satisfied that the Cuban forces under Garcia can keep Pando from reinforcing Santiago. Should this not be accomplished the Spanish forces at Santiago would be augmented to about 25,000 men. are well armed, well disciplined, seasoned to the climate, know the fighting grounds of that locality and are probably as good an all-around fighting force as the Spaniards can bring to bear. There is no purpose on the part of the authorities to leave General Shafter with an inadequate force to meet these seasoned Spanish soldiers.

London, June 22.—The Havana correspondent of the Times says: "General Linares, in command of the province of Santiago de Cuba, telegraphs that six- and shops." ty vessels, supposed to be carrying the American expeditionary force, have arrived off Santiago de Cuba. General Blanco is sending six battalions to protect the coast of the province of Santiago de Cuba. Great enthusiasm prevails in Havana. Order is maintained and no yellow fever is reported."

PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

What the Government Has Accomplished Stace Hostilities Opened.

Washington, June 21.-Two months ago to-day war broke out between the the proclamation of the president and the declaration of congress States troops lying off Santiago, preparing to land: it finds cable commu nication established between the government at Washington and the advance guard of the expedition in Cuba and it finds Cuban territory in the possession of United States marines backed by a squadron and nearly all of the commercial ports of Cuba blockaded. This is all apart from Dewey's great victory at Manila and from the splendid results achieved in organizing several armies now in the camps Therefore the officials of the administration feel that they have a right to look back with pride over what has been accomplished in the short space of two months, working in a large part with raw material in both the army and navy.

HAD AN ELECTRICAL EFFECT. Announcement at Trans-Mississippi Exposition of Shafter's Arrival.

Omaha, Neb., June 21.-A most dramatic event to-day interrupted the Illinois day exercises at the trans-Mississippi exposition. Just at the close of the Illinois building to the exposition, Colonel Carr announced that Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, had a bulletin to the effect that General Shafter's forces had arrived at Santiago. The effect was electrical. In an instant the immense throng present was on its feet cheering madly. In the midst of the dir came the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner" played by the Marine band. The audience joined in singing. Then the Apollo club of Chicago sang "Illinois." and without pause at the end started up "America," in which the audience again joined. This was followed by the Marine band again in "The Voice of Our Nation" a collection of patriotic airs. The scene that followed was one of the most remarkable

Key West, Fla., June 21.-United States Marshal Horr received instructions for Attorney General Griggs to day to hold all persons captured on Spanish prize ships until further orders. The order created much surprise among officials here as all but military prisoners had been recently paroled and were to have sailed for Spain this week. The prisoners concerned have been penned up on the prize ships in the harbor ever since they were captured. There are more than 200. The military prisoners are at Fort Mc-

MINISTERIAL CORREO POINTS OUT INJURY WAR IS CAUSING.

It Also Says That the Government's Decision to Pay Exterior Coupons and Interest on Cuban Bonds in Pesetas Will Leave Treasury No Recourse Except to Increase Taxation-Queen's Valuables Removed to Vienna.

Madrid, June 21.-The ministerial Correo, without openly championing peace, which would be considered unpatriotic, calls attention to the injury the war is causing trade and industry, especially in the Catalana districts, where the factories are closed or are running on half time. It also points out that the government's decision to pay the exterior coupons and the interest on Cuban bonds in pesetas will leave the treasury no resource except to increase taxation. In the chamber of deputies to-day Senor Sagasta declined to give his consent to a discussion of the government's international policy.

London, June 22.-The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: "The Spanish queen regent's jewels and valuables were brought to Vienna, but it is declared in official quarters here that though the situation is precarious she will remain in Spain."

ANOTHER BOMBARDMENT.

Dispatch From Havana to Madrid Says 150 Shells Were Fired.

Madrid, June 22.-1 a. m.-An official dispatch from Havana says: "An American vessel bombarded the town of Casilda, province of Santa Clara, about five miles south of Trinidad, with which it is connected by rail, for three hours. She fired 150 big shells. The troops and the gunboat Dependiente co-operated in a brilliant defence and the American vessel was obliged to retire, after damaging some houses

Madrid, June 21.-4 p. m.-An official dispatch from Havana says that about fifty additional ships, many of them loaded with troops, have appeared off Santiago de Cuba, and that a battle is imminent with the Spanish forces occupying the coast.

GRADE OF LIEUT-GENERAL. Military Affairs Committee Report Favorably Reviving the Grade. Washington, June 21 .- The house committee on military affairs to-day favorably reported a joint resolution viving the grade of lieutenant gen eral in the army. It authorizes the president whenever he deems it expedient to appoint a lieutenant general to be selected from those offic military service distinguished for courage, skill and ability, the limitation in the bill as to choice from officers below the grade of major-general' being stricken out by the committee. The committee disclaims any idea of having any single military commander in view and aserts the object is to permit the selection by the president to command the armies of the United States or one who should have higher rank then any other officer essential to efficiency of management. Major-General Miles has frequently been urged for a lieutenant generalship the members claim that his name has not been mentioned and everything will b left to the president.

AN ALLEGED AMERICAN SPY.

Spanish Government at Corunna Takes Measures to Arrest One.

Corunna, June 21.-The Spanish commandant here has taken measures to arrest an alleged American spy, who arrived here on the British steame Hornac (?). Up to the present time the commandant has been unable to find the man he is looking for, but the latter is believed to be hidden on board.

The identity of the British steamer 'Hornac' could not be established by reference to the different maritime registers available.

CLEVELAND SPEAKS OUT. His Views on the War and the Matter of Annexation.

Lawrenceville, N. J., June 21 .- Grover Cleveland delivered the annual Founders' day address at the Lawrenceville school this afternoon. He took for his subject "Good Citizenship," and during the run of his speech gave his views on the question of the day, the war and annexation. He said in part: 'Never before in our history have we been beset with temptations so dangerous as those which now whisper in our ears alluring words of conquest and expansion and point to us fields bright with the glory of war. You will probably be led by your reflections and studies to the conclusion that our government was formed for the express purpose of creating in a new world a new nation, the foundation of which should be man's free government, whose safety and prosperity should be secure to its absolute freedom from old world complications and in its renunciations of all schemes of foreign conquest and whose mission should be the subjection to civilization and industrial occupation of the vast domain in which it has

"If you believe those things, do not permit any accusation of ultra and progressive conservatism to trouble you. If, then, the suggestion is made that the time has come for our nation to abandon its old landmarks, to follow the lights of monarchial hazards, and that we should attempt to enforce the simple machinery of our popular and domestic government to serve the scheme of imperialism, your challenge of the proposition is entirely in order. If you are satisfied that foreign conquest and unnatural annexation are dangerous perversions of our national with banners, you will not be necessari-

ANNEXTION OF HAWAII.

Senator White Makes a Skilful Speech in Opposition to It. Washington, June 21.-Interest in the discussion of Hawalian annexation, which is proceeding in the senate already has begun to lag. Early in the question behind closed doors for six weeks. During that time a majority of the speakers were accorded close attention. It is evident from the proceedings to-day that the senators will not become enthusiastic over arguments which are not now new to them. To day Mr. White, dem. of California, the leader of the opposition, spoke for three hours and a half. His argument was skillful and was presented with oratorical ability, but it failed to command the attention from senators it really deserved. Mr. White had not concluded his argument when the resolutions were laid aside for the day. He will resume his speech to-morrow. Mr. Mitchell, dem., of Wisconsin, opened the discussion to-day with a brief speech in opposition to the resolutions.

A SERIOUS FREIGHT WRECK.

Occurred Last Night at Naugatuck Junction of the Consolidated.

Naugatuck, Junction, June 21.-One of the most serious freight wrecks that has taken place on the Consolidated railroad for some time occurred near the Naugatuck Junction at about 9:50 p. m. The train was an extra going west and the accident was caused by the pulling out of one end of a car. The train was thus separated and again came together with disastrous results. Five cars were pfled up on the bridge and many others were wrecked, completely blocking travel. There are sev eral passenger trains stalled on eith side of the wreck and it is impossible to transfer the passengers. It will be several hours before travel can be resumed. The train was made up of fifty cars and the damage to rolling stock and freight will be heavy.

Gales Ferry, Conn., June 21 .- The rowing authorities among the many well known Yale graduates who have gathered at "Broadview" this evening are in high spirits as to the showing that the sons of Eli will make in tomorrow's great contest. The confidence of the undergraduates is also infectious and the feeling here to-night is one of more than hopefulness. Coach "Bob" Cook, who has from the first preserved a sphynx-like silence as to the probable outcome of the race, this evening departed from his customary procedure and granted an interview. substantially as follows: "When you ask me as to the probable outcome of to-morrow's race you propound a quention which is impossible for me to answer. The Cornell crew on form and apparent speed are most formidable opponents, and Harvard is rowing beautifully. The question of Harvard's success rests largely on her ability to maintain that form throughout a long and very trying contest. As to Yale, I may say that the men are in splen-did physical condition. However, I would have preferred to have a little greater interval between the exa tions and race day as it can hardly be expected that men who are strung up by trying mental work are quite as fit for hard physical work as they would ordinarily be. To sum it up Yale is relying upon her form and ability maintain that form for four long Courtney's three crews went out on the river at 5 p. m. and were sent up the course to the two and one-h mile flag, the men chiefly paddling though occasionally they were coached a bit. The work was intended, how ever, simply as a sort of a muscle stretcher for the night before the race. The men returned to the boat-ho about three-quarters of an hour later and they were immediately hustled into their clothes and up to quarters for supper. It was apparent that Mr. Courtney had no misgivings as to the race his men would put up to-morrow and he expressed himself freely and with great confidence, though without braggadocio. In speaking of the phy sical condition of the craws he said: "The crews are in fine shape this year and I am not afraid of any crew in the world with them. This society has just entered upon its ninetieth year of benevolent service. From the first it enlisted the co-operation and support of the leading statesmen and philanthropists of the commonwealth, Governor Smith of Sharon being its president during several years Its history is divided into three periods. From 1809 to 1848 it appears to have been the leading society of the points. country in procuring the printing and circulation of the Bible. The records of its directing committee are replete with illustrations of its enterprise and Not only did it undertake to see that all the Sunday schools and every family in Connecticut were supplied with the Bible, but it donated Bibles to nearly or quite every state in the Union, including Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, New geant Chappell, is obtaining recruits at York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Missourl and Louisiana. It sent them also to France, India and China and to the Sandwich Islands.

THE OLD GUARD BAND.

The Old Guard band is about to bloom forth in brand new uniforms, made by E. Jones, the Meadow street mer chant tailor. The coats are of dark navy blue, handsomely trimmed with heavy black braid. The caps are the regulation style with "Old Guard" inscribed on the front. They will be worn for the first time on the New Haver Steamboat company's excursion to the boat races at New London. This puts the band in possession of two fine uniforms, which, with its extensive musical library, puts this organization on a splendid footing. The membership consists of twenty two local musicians under the able leadership of William Goldenblum Mr Goldenblum took charge of the band on August 5 last and his success at the fire chiefs' convention won for himself and the band national fame. Great credit is due the members for their maids as she entered her carriage. which are paid by themselves without aid from any organization. The follow ing list of musical talent shows the excellence of the band: William Goldenblum, piccolo and leader; H. E. Button Thomas Bruce, M. W. Meaney and W J. Weinz, cornets; P. R. Schirner, H. E. The wedding party was led by the six ushers-Wilbur F. Day, jr., George D. Seymour, John L. Hall, James E. Wheeler, Edward G. Clark, all of New Mayen, and Charles P. Kellogg of Waterbury. The bridegroom and his best man, Harry G. Day, met the procession at the altar.

The maid of honor wore sheer white organdie over pink taffeta, while the gowns of the bridesmaids were white over pale green, with collars and sashes to match the underdresses. The skirts were covered half way to the waist with narrow valenciennes trimmed ruffles, while the low bodices openhigh-necked, long-sleeved ed over guimps made of val lace and insertion Short veils of tulle, fastened low to the side of the coiffure with black velvet bows, fell to the waist and finished the most effective costumes. Their bouquets were large bunches of white

The bride wore a superb gown of soft white satin, a material known as liberty satin. The skirt, ending in a very long sweeping train, was finished at the bottom with a wide circular flounce, which merged itself into the train. Around the corded satin bodice and joining it to the shirred guimp of chiffon was a splendid bertha of rare old point lace. The long, narrow sleeves like the guimp, were of shirred chiffon. A long veil of tulle was held in place with a simple sprig of lilies of the valley, which blossom composed the bridal bouquet, a huge affair in seven parts, which the bride flung to her brides-ceived her guests in a costume of grey at, of Boston, publishers. It is a capibrocade crepe, worn over rose-pink taffeta, the bodice trimmed with beautiful will interest all the boys. It covers 62 old point lace. Mrs. Breslin's (Mrs. pages and concerns stirring events in Clark's sister) gown was of grey silk, the bodice finished in violet velvet with times when Washington with his beleasteel and jet spangled net.

Immediately after the ceremony and until 7 o'clock was held a reception, to country with the news of the victory at which about sixteen hundred persons had been bidden. Because of the large number of guests invited the reception was held largely on the spacious lawn under two immense canvas tents. Sherry of New York served the refreshments. There were two orchestras under the direction of Weil. One was stationed in the north drawing room and which played during the ceremony while the other furnished music for the reception which followed and was in one of the tents.

The presents received were elegant in the extreme and consisted of furniture, china, solid silver services, bric-a-brac pictures and two silver loving cups, on from Corbey Court, a Yale law school society of which the groom is a member, and the other to the bride from a number of her classmates at Miss Porter's school.

The bridesmaids were each the recip ients of dainty stick pins in the design of flags, enameled with the national colors, while the ushers received cuff links of a similar design from the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Buckland left last night at 8 o'clock for a month's wedding trip and for the present will reside at the home of the bride's parents.

"Paul Kruger and His Times," by F. Reginald Statham, author of "Blacks," Boers and British," "Mr. Magnus," "South Africa as It Is," etc.; publishers, London: T. Fisher Unwin and Boston, L. C. Page & Co. This is a valuable contribution to recent history, and despite the author's preliminary re-marks as to the difficulty of writing the lography in question owing to President Kruger's reluctance to talk of his career, the result is highly satisfactory simplicity, and the nuptial knot was life and times of the sturdy, earnest, indomitable hero and patriot in question. The book, which is a well-bound volume of three hundred pages, is accompanied by a fine frontispiece portrait of President Kruger, and an excellent map of the South African republic and the Orange Free State, together with a plan of Pretoria. The author in concluding the volume, after picturing the dangers which menace the South African republic, says: "There is, however, a brighter side. There is the hope that by President Kruger's tact, his firmness, his watchfulness from hour to hour over the course public events, he may be able to hold at arms length the destruction that threatens, until even the diligence of his enemies grows weary and public opinion in Great Britain swings around once more to its normal position. It have rendered not only to South Africa, but to the British empire, a service utterly beyond the power of thanks—a service the value of which will appear greater and greater as the generations roll by. "The Pineboro Quartette," by Willis Boyd Allen, author of "The Gold Hun-rica." etc., is a very pretty story of how a quartette of young people, suddenly left fatherless and almost nenniless and obliged to seek a home with a relative with a large family of his own, succeeded, through the timely aid and wise counsel of a Chicago millionaire newspaper publisher, whom the eldest boy had rescued from impending death in a railroad wreck, in starting a little paper in a country town, and ultimately, through enterprise and pluck, in extinguishing a rival weekly of no merit, and establishing a successful and paying country journal. "In Kings' Houses, a Romance of the days of Queen Anne," is a charming story by the well known and successful writer, Julia C. R. Dorr, author of "Po-ems," "The Flower of England's Face," "A Cathedral Pilgrimage," etc. It is a work of 375 pages, illustrated by Frank T. Merrill and published by L. C. Page & Co., of Boston. While the story tells of kings and princes, of the homes of royalty, of plots and counter-plots, and marplots, and is of distinctly historic interest, the central attractions are Robin and his little lady, and last but not least. Dame Dorothy, a motherly, lovable woman, of strong individuality and unswerving loyalty, who from a quiet country life was taken to be come the nurse of princes and princesses, while her little grandson Robin became the sworn companion of royalty. Mrs. Dorr has in the life of Robin and his girl love and of Dorothy drawn a sweet and tender picture. The book is worthy of a wide perusal. It presents an artistic and beautiful story. Trenton. "The Continental Dragoon, a Love Sto ry of Phillipse Manor House in 1778," by Robert Nellson Stephens, author of "An Enemy to the King, and illustrated by H. C. Edwards; L. C. Page & Co., of Boston, publishers. A very interesting and well-told romance of revolutionary days in which love, chivalry, war and mystery are very happily blended. Red-coats and Continentals, Light Horse Harry, the first families of Virginia, the Hessians and Tories figure in the story and all ends happily; love triumphs over odds that seemed insurmountable. "Anita, the Cuban Spy," by Gibson Willets, author of "His Neighbor's Wife," etc.; published by F. Tennyon Neeley, New York and London. This is another addition to Neely's highly popular imperial library. It is a graphically told romance illustrative of the terrible times in Cuba just previous to the breaking out of the present war, and vividly pictures the deeds of brave men and heroines in behalf of suffering Cuba and the horrors of Spanish mis rule. Love, mystery, sensation and historical facts are happily blended.

"Noah's Log Book," by George R. Howell, of Albany, N. Y., published by F. Tennyson Neely, New York and London. It is a romantic tale of the adventures of two brave and philanthropic young Americans possessed of much money and leisure, and of their excursion to Mount Ararat, where by means of modern explosives they unearth the remains of Noah's ark, which they find in a wonderful state of preservation. The amazement of the native guides and burden bearers, and the big sensation generally produced in the Ararat region are graphically pictured. Interwoven with the tale is a well told story of how the Americans won the hearts of two fair ladies after unravelling a family mystery. All ends happily, although no measures are taken by the amateur explorers to transfer the ark to Central Park, where it might be gazed upon by admiring millions and might set at naught the theorists who opine that no vestige of the ark remains. The romance is of very readable character. "His Pretty Cousin, an Idyl of Normandy," adapted from the French of Gaston D'Hailly, by Katharine Schuyler Baxter, is indeed in all respects a most charming story, and an admira-ble translation. It can be heartly commended as a delightful book. D'Hailly's vivid pen-pictures of rural life and scenes are capitally presented. The story breathes the air of France and the reader dwells for the time imong the people of a Normandy town, their ways, habits of life, customs dwellings and social life being lucidly depicted in the telling of a beautiful story of love and devotion; the sudden elevation of wealth of a poor but worthy family by the generosity of a rela tive in Africa, himself suddenly lifted from struggle and penury to great

The evil that men do and its after efects are a feature of the story. No one should miss reading this artistic and beautiful story. All of the above stories published by Neely are inexpensive in popular covers.

"Doctor Sphinx," by Caroline C. Walch, F. Tennyson Neely, publisher, London and New York, is a handsomely bound volume of about four hundred pages. This is a very interesting story from the pen of a new writer, who has a message to her times, and is not afraid to declare it. The story is naturally and fluently told, with an agreeable variety of scene and description. It has, besides, a strong savor of probability. It seems to proceed straight from the experience and the heart of its author, and this, perhaps, is its best and strongest quality. The heroine is an interesting type of woman, liberally educated and stable in principle, who voluntarily becomes self-supporting and casts herself in the way of hardship and danger. She sees "the seamy side of life" in New York city, where she is employed as the confidential clerk of a Wall St. investment company. Throughout her painful career, as told in "Doc tor Spinx," she is sustained by her unwavering love for a man whose actions constantly pique the curiosity of the reader, until his real character is revealed in the last chapter. While the book does not aim to be a treatise on religion, ethics or economics, under cover of a romance, it yet deals with the burning questions of the day, and, in every instance, it espouses the cause of truth, justice and good morals, "The Vicar," by Joseph Hatton, author of "When Greek Meets Greek" and "The Banishment of Jessop Blythe." Published by J. P. Lippincott & Co. Philadelphia; for sale by Judd. Joseph Hatton in this book well sustains the reputation of his previous works. It is an admirable story of English life, the characters cleverly drawn and the book is interesting and entertaining. The character of Lady Berwick, the artful, scheming, designing and attractive widow, who wants to marry Lord Cleeve, is perhaps the masterpiece of the book, but the sympathies center with the heroine, the pure minded, beautiful heiress, who unsuspectingly loves the handsome rascal in the story. a young man who has brought ruin upon a trusting, loving girl and winds up to robbing his uncle, the vicar. He has been led to make love to the helress through Lady Berwick's work, she thinking to win Lord Cleeve with Susannah married to the young roue and rascal. All ends happily. Susannah discovers the true character of her pretending lover and falls into the willing arms of Lord Cleeve, who is only too glad to win at last the treasure of her affections. The discomfitted Lady Berwick therefore remains a widow. "Joseph Jefferson at Home," by Na than Haskell Dole. Estes & Lauriat, of Boston, publishers; a beautiful monograph on Joseph Jefferson and his home surroundings. Illustrated with sixteen full-page half-tones from photographs taken with the permission of Mr. Jefferson in and around his famous summer home. Mr. Jefferson being recognized as the leading American actor, the appearance of this small volume will be very interesting, and throwing as it does a new light on him. as a painter as well as an actor, and giving new ideas concerning his home life, it certainly should receive a warm welcome. Thin octavo, gilt top. $1.50. The book is very readable and will be a welcome addition to any library.

MADISON COUNCIL.

The Action Taken Yesterday Regarding Rev. Mr. Brown and Its Complimentnry Words.

The council of neighboring Congregational churches at Madison June 21 acquiesced in the action of Rev. W. T. Brown and his church in reference to a dissolution of the pastoral relation, to take effect August 1, and in connection submitted the following:

"In coming to this conclusion the council is reminded that this is the first occasion of the dismission of a pastor from this church in its history of nearly two hundred years, and we hereby extend our sympathy to the church in the hope that it may soon be divinely guided in the choice of another pas-

Rev. William T. Brown, on accepting his call to the Plymouth Congregational D., LL.D., of Cornell university, who church of Rochester, N. Y., on May 14 delivered the oration. His subject was presented his resignation to his church in Madison in these words: Madison, Conn., May 14, 1898. To the First Congregational Church and Ecclesiastical Society in Madison. Conn.:

My Dear Friends-After a long period of earnest thought upon the matter I am convinced that duty requires the dissolution of the formal bonds that bind us together as pastor and people, and I hereby resign my position as pastor of this church and society. The assumption of such a relationship as that which has existed between us requires the exercise of patience and forbearance on the part of both pastor and people. I desire to bear witness here to the unfailing patience and kindness which you have shown me during my entire pastorate. I can find no words in which to express at all adequately my appreciation of the freedom of utterance which you have always given me and without which no ministry can realize its highest value. It was impossible and undesirable that we should in all things think just alike But no difference in thought on my part has abated in any degree your cordial friendship and your loyal sup-

I am satisfied that the time has come when I must find another and a different field for the ministry to which I feel called. I do not question the value of what may be called a personal ministry-a ministry to individual souls from the point of view of an individualistic conception of the gospel. But that is not for me. I believe more strongly than ever in a personal minisbut it is that kind of ministry which summons the individual not to think of himself, but to think of his fellows. To me the very heart of the gospel has been the life and words of Jesus. And when I have turned my thought to those words and that life, I have found myself dwelling inevitably and unceasingly upon the needs and wrongs of my fellows, especially the problems of "even these least." not wipe out of my soul the vision that has been burned there of the suffering and hardship of men and women, my brothers and sisters, much of which the frank and free acceptance of the of love-the law of brotherhood, which our confessed faith in a divine Fatherhood makes imperative-would render impossible, and for this and other reasons much of the ordinary routine of church work seems to me a waste of time and a misdirection of

The time has now come when I ought to speak the message of gospel elsewhere. Of the future of Madison church I have no fear. EUROPE.

It is said that Alexander Obrenovitch the young king of Servia, has fallen into a condition of health which causes acute alarm in his family and among his subjects. Indeed, it is asserted, in a way which is unusual when kings are the subjects of diagnosis, that there is no reasonable hope of his permanent recovery. We do not usually notice such statements, more especially when they are peremptorily denied, as this is by the minister of Servia, but they remind the world of the forgotten fact that peace really hangs upon the life of that young man. King Alexander of Servia has no heir, his father, Milan, being declared to be "impossible," and his death, therefore, would leave the throne of the Servian kingdom open to any powerful pretender. It is hardly possible that, under such circumstances, Russia and Austria should not support rival candidates, and not very difficult to foresee who they would, in all probability, be The Russian government, always keenly interested in Servia, as being essentially Slav, would put forward Prince Nicho las of Montenegro, whom it has always favored, and now regards almost as a prince of the imperial house. He himself makes no secret of his ambition. and, it is said, promises the Servians that if he is elected he will restore the ancient though short-lived glory of the Servian "empire"-that is, will stretch his dominion over Bosnia and northern Bulgaria, and seat his kingdom at once on the Black Sea and the Adriatic. The prince is a man of ability and ambition, he is accustomed to govern and successful in government, and he can dispose of forces which, if not numer ous, are inured to war, and are dreaded throughout the Balkans and in European Turkey for their bravery and devotion to their chief. As the only crowned Slav, except the emperor of Russia, he would be a most formidable candidate, and would, it is believed, be most acceptable to the Servians, who are possessed with the idea that they ought to recover their ancient patrimony, and, above all, to reach the sea, To the Austrian government, on the other hand, such a candidature would be most unacceptable. The Hapsburgs are always sensitive, with good reason, about the freedom of the Danube, which a Danilo dynasty seated in Belgrade would be able at will to threaten, and always hope that an extension to Salonika would give their subjects the means of becoming rich through Aslatic trade. With Servia in the hands of enemies, and Bosnia threatened, that extension would finally be They have no intention of surrendering Bosnia, which they have turned into a flourishing province, or of renouncing their claim to equal influence with their secular rivals in the whole peninsula. They would be almost compelled either to occupy Servia for themselves, as the Servians fear they will one day do, or to support a candidate of their own, who could only be the king of Romania. who is the one prince in eastern Europe possessing both more capacity for military enterprise and larger resources for war than the Prince of Montenegro, and the only one in whose success the Hohenzollerns would feel something more than a "benevolent" interest. The city of Como, Italy, the birthplace of Alexander Volta, is preparing to celebrate in 1899 the hundredth anniversary of the invention of the voltaic, or electric, pile. To commemorate this important event, which has led to some of the greatest discoveries of the present century, there will be held at Como from May 15 to October 15 an international electrical exhibition, to which will be annexed a national exhibition of the manufacture of silk-a branch of trade much developed in Como-and an international exhibition of the machinery, preparation and progress of working the same. Italian and foreign electricians are invited to a congress which will be held for the purpose of discussing the progress and applicacations of electricity.

It seems that the additional tax of a dollar a barrel on malt liquors had come at a rather inopportune time for the brewers. According to statistics presented at the recent annual convention of the brewers of the United States there has been a marked decrease in the consumption of beer for the year closing with June. In fact, the consumption was 1,403,000 barrels less than for the preceding year. This was all the more discouraging because there had been an average reduction of a dollar a barrel in price during the past year, so that, according to this official authority, the dollar now added on account of the new tax will put the price per barrel back where it was a year

THE INVASION OF CURA. General Shafter's army of 16,000 has arrived off Santiago de Cuba, and as direct cable communication has been established between the United States and Guantanamo Bay we shall know what happens soon after it has happened. It is not expected that the general landing will take place for several days yet, and when it does hard fighting is expected. Spanish infantry, cavalry and guerilla forces to the number of 30,000 or 40,000 are stretched along the coast and Spanish honor will demand that they do the best they can to prevent the Yankees from landing and planting the flag of the free on Cuban soil. But when the shooting and the shouting are over that flag will be victoriously waving unless the confidence that prevails in the army and navy of the United States and in the people who are relying on them is unwarranted.

ADMIRAL CAMARA'S SOUADRON. If the latest reports are true the seas are not to be again thickly dotted with Spanish spook ships. The talk is that "the Camara Obscura squadron" after making several appearances in several more or less probable places has returned to Cadiz. Various reasons are given for this move. It is said that the Minister of Marine has abandoned his intention to send the squadron to the West Indies. It is also said that there is no enthusiasm about sending it to the Philippines. It may be needed at home and it may not be in condition to go far from home. Not long ago it was reliably reported that three English engineering experts who went to Cadiz to examine and report the condition of Admiral Camara's squadron found things in a terrible state of disorganization. The Cadiz arsenal and the ships of the squadron were defective in almost every particular, the latter especially having been grossly neglected. This they found to be particularly true as to the ships' engines, the power of which was greatly impaired. The vessels were also short of ammunition and armament. These deficiencies

JUST TREATMENT OF NEGROES. There is more talk in the North about to follow his example. Two hattallons bers, will be turned over to the United States government as at present organized. Governor Tyler holds that the colored companies, being organized under the same laws as the white companies, and their officers having passed all examinations creditably, are entitled to the same privilege accorded to white companies-that of having officers of their own selection. The Richmond Dispatch says that, after earnest thought over the question, Governor Tyler "is thoroughly convinced that to pursue any other course than the one he has marked out for himself would be a violation of his oath of office. wherein he is pledged to make no distinction on account of race or color." The Dispatch dissents from the view that this course is required by either sound public policy or the laws of the land, but it accords to the governor incerity of motive and conscientious desire to do his duty as he understands it, and adds that "this is a case where no one can suspect him of bending his opinion to gain popularity." Governor Tyler is a thorough Democrat, but he seems to have as straight ideas as a Republican governor could

BOTTLED UP.

The "bottling-up" of Admiral Cerve ra in the harbor of Santiago de Cuba has given rise to some discussion concerning the authorship of the phrase "bottled up," which was applied to General Butler's position in the campaign preceding the slege of Petersburg. The matter seems to have been settled by General Grant in his book. It appears that General Barnard, An expedition under the direction of Grant's chief engineer, had been sent position between the James and the Appomattox rivers. He reported that

This struck me as being very expressive of his position, particularly when I saw the hasty sketch which General Barnard had drawn; and in making my subsequent report I used that expression without adding quotation marks, never thinking that anything had been said that would attract attention-as this did, very much to the annoyance no doubt, of General Butler, and, I LORD HOWE AND THE FIRST OF know, very much to my own.

So General Barnard was the man, but possibly Admiral Noah or General Adam had said substantially the same thing before him.

JUNE

The battle of the first of June, in one The great American convoy was not intercepted; afterwards, indeed, crossed the waters where the great fight had raged, and found them strewn with the wrecks of the fight, and reached Brest in safety. Howe, has been blamed for not making most of his victory. He had at least one-third of his fleet in perfect fighting condition, yet he allowed Villaret-Joyeuse to carry off five dismantled ships in safety. The truth is, Howe himself, a man nearly seventy years of age, was physically prostrate with the long strain of the fight and of the manoeuvres of the preceding days; and he had reason to complain of some of his captains. But the first of June was a great and memorable victory, The total loss of the British in killed wounded was less than twelve hundred; that of the French was not less than seven thousand. The moral effect of the victory, too, was immense. It was the first great naval engagement of the Revolutionary war, and it gave to British fleets a confidence and prestige which powerfully influenced the whole history of that war. The battle abounded in picturesque and even amusing incidents. Pakenham, for example, who commanded the Invincible, was a daring but somewhat reckless Irishman. He drifted through the smoke on a French ship, and opened fire upon her with great energy. After a time the fire of the Frenchman died away, while that of the Invincible grew yet more furious. Pakenham, however, was dissatisfied with the circumstance that the Frenchman made no reply, and he halled her to know if she surrendered. The Frenchman replied energetically, "No!" whereupon the gallant Irlshman inquired in tones of disgust, "Then, -- you, why don't you fire?" Gambier, another of Howe's captains, was the exact opposite of the hare-brained Pakenham; a fine sailor, a brave fighter, and of sober and puritanic temper. His ship, the Defence, of seventy-four guns, fought gallantly, and had two of her masts shot away. when, through the smoke, the tall of a French three-decker were visible bearing down upon her. A lieucried to Gambier, "-my eyes, sir, but here's a whole mountain coming down upon us! What shall we do?" To which the unmoved Cambier answered by asking how his officer dared at such your guns, sir," he added, "and enlike British tars!"

restrained by any regard for prosale harl, in the northern part of which gi-accuracy, of Barrere. Barrere reported raffes live the whole year, although the convention went down with all her colors flying, scorning to surrender, "Vive la Republique, and a universal volley from the upper deck, being the last sound she made." "Glorieuse affaire du Vencaur" became for the French a national myth when you know just what those are. It has inspired innumerable French songs. A wooden model of the Vengeur was solemnly consecrated, and placed in the Pantheon. Carlyle embodied the story in his "French Revolu-"Lo!" he wrote, "all streamers, jacks, every rag of tri-color that will yet run on rope files rustling aloft. The whole crew crowds to the upper deck, and with universal soulmaddening yell, shouts "Vive la Republique,' sinking, sinking." Carlyle later on discovered how wild a flight of fiction the whole story was. Harrere was a liar of Titanic scale; but the Vengeur myth. Carlyle declared, must be pronounced "Rarrere's masterpiece: largest, most inspiring piece of blague manufactured for some centuries by any man or nation." At the time the Vengeur went down the battle had ceased for some hours; her captain was peacefully getting his luncheon in one of the cabins of the Culloden, and some four hundred of her crew had been reseued, much to their own satisfaction. by the boats of the various British

But Howe belongs to the type of men who are the strength of the state. Unselfish, loyal, hysterics that healthy hysterics, in single-minded, putting duty before glory and the state before self. He was known as "Black Dick" among his crews, from his dark complexion and hair, and he was loved as few British leaders, by either sea or land, have ever been loved. And the secret of the affection he awakened lay not so much in his patience and gentleness of temper or his keen regard for the health comfort of his men-it was found in the crystailine simplicity and sincerity of his character, his calm indifference to

TANTS. Only one degree less incorrect than the idea of their submarine origin is the notion that deserts consist of unbroken tracts of sand. It is true that such tracts in certain districts may extend on every side as far as the eye can reach, and even much farther; but, sooner or later, ridges and bands of

And it is these exposed rocks which form the source whence the sand was, and still is, derived. Such mountains naturally attract what moisture may remain in the air, and in their valleys are found a more or less luxuriant vegetation. it is in such spots that animal and vegetable life attains the maximum devel opment possible in the heart of the desof the Libyan desert the sand is blown into large dunes, which are frequently flat-topped, and show horizontal bands consolidated rock; and between these are open valleys, partly covered with sand, and partly strewn with blocks of er may journey for days without see sense, failed of its strategic object. ing signs of vegetation, or hearing the call of a bird or the hum of an insect's wing. But even in many of such districts it is a mistake to suppose that vegetable and animal life is entirely absent throughout the year; in the western Sahara, for instance, showers gen erally moisten the ground two or three times a year, and after each of these s short-lived vegetation springs suddenly up, and, if no other form of animal life observable, at least a few passing birds may be noticed. Among the most important and extensive deserts of the world we have first the Great Sahara, with an approximate area of sixteen thousand square miles, nearly connected with which is tract extending through Arabia, Syria, Mesopotamia and Persia. By means of the more or less desert tracts of Baluchistan, Sind, and Kuch, this area leads on to the great Rajputana desert of India. More important is the vast Gobi desert of Mongolia, and other parts of central Asia. In southern Africa there is the great Kalahari desert, of which more anon. In orth America there is a large desert tract lying east of the Rocky Mountains, and including a great part of Sonora; while in the southern half of the new world there is the desert of Atacama, on the borders of Peru and Chili. Lastly, the whole of the interior of Australia is desert of the most arid and typical description. But among these are deserts and deserts. Tracts of the typical barren sandy type are, as already said, extensively developed in the Sahara, as they are in the Gobi and the Australian deserts. Between such and the plains of the African veld there is an almost complete transition, so that it is some times hard to say whether a given tract rightly comes under the designais afforded by the South African Kalahari. Although there are endless rolling dunes of trackless sand, and rivers are unknown, yet in many places there is extensive forest, and after a rain large tracts could scarcely be called a desert at all. Mr. H. A. Bryden, for instance, when describing the Kalahari. writes as follows: "And yet, during tenant hurried to the quarter-deck and the brief weeks of rainfall, no land can assume a fairer or more tempting aspect. The long grasses shoot up green, elbow-deep: spangle the yeld in every direction; the giraffe acacia forests robed in a fresh a moment as that to come to him with dark green remind one of nothing so an oath in his mouth. "Go down to much as an English deer park; the bushes blossom and flourish; the air is ourage your men to stick to their guns full of fragrance, and pans of water lie on every side. Another month, and all is drought; the pans are dry again, and connection with the first of June is the travel is full of difficulty." traveler of the last century Hearne, tells how an Indian of his es cort was smitten by paralysis. The medicine-men cured him-by Christian science-they performed mummerie and the invalid arose and hunted. But first they provoked faith. One of them, totally naked, and in public, swallowed, before the patient's eyes, a long board of wood, many times too large to enter his mouth. Hearne stood beside the conjurer, and saw the thing done. He supposed it was by legerdemain, bu could not detect the act. The patien argued that a medicineman who could swallow a broad board of wood could also cure paralysis, so the patient was cured. If Dr. Charcot could have swallowed a cradle (as the medicineman did on another occasion), he need have sent nobody to Lourdes. The Christian scientist ought to swallow a cradie, but she produces her effect mor simply by an imposing jargon. If the lobster can develop a new claw by mere force of will, much more, then, ought bald man to be able to grow a fine head of hair, merely by believing that he can do so, or by disbelieving that he is bald, on Christian science principles. Prob-June, does not stand in the first rank of ably "hair-restorers" owe their efficacy, British admirals. He had no touch of if any, to suggestion, but it would be a Nelson's electric genius for war, or of crucial experiment to make hair grow without a patent hair-restorer.

Unluckily, men suffer most from baldness, and men are seldom Christian scientists. They have other things to ics to cure them. On the other hand moderation, ought really to be welcomed. They provide an occupation something to be in earnest about, and with occupation they bring health. On the other side, the devotees are bores with their doctrine, but not such bores as when they were always physicking themselves on sofas; and not so expensive as when they were always sending for the doctor. The worst of this tolerant doctrine is that when it becomes accepted the victims of hysterics and hypochondria will not recover. They will lose faith as they lost faith in the electric belts that were devoid of electrical properties. For the present writer much physic has been prescribed at divers times by many physicians. He never buzzed the bottle, in fact h threw the physic to the dogs, yet re covered by the mere process of not caring. This was Christian science reduced to its most simple expression.

It is all a question of degree. Montgeron proved that a lady was cured of what contemporary science called a cancer, and also of paralysis, by using earth from the grave of the Deacon Paris. Charcot says that she was cured, but not of cancer; of something else under the same name. However cured she was, and Montgeron, for saying so, was cast into a dungeon "somewhere," says Hume. St. Augustine tells a pathetic anecdote of a man cured of a fistula by dint of "such prayers as if God hears not I know not what prayers He will hear," says the Saint, in effect. The anecdote, obviously veracious, is in the 'Civitas Dei,' in a se of examples very curious and well worth reading. The sceptical theory would be that the man had no fistula, that the thing was imaginary. Still, he escaped a terrible operation by imagination working in the reverse direction About Christian science we may conclude that imaginative diseases ore healed by imaginative means, that healthy hysteries and wholesome hypochrondria may banish the ordinary sorts, and that cheap metaphysics have a beneficent result in the minds dies whose education has not included a course of Hegel and Aristotle, Fichte and Plato. It is improbable that Caristian science would heal a malady of the Master of Balliol.-Andrew Lang in

If the hose is made of old rubber boot and overshoes, as is sometimes evidently the case, it will hardly be worth mending; but if it's a good hose it will pay you to invest in a box of Hose Menders and mend the leak. The New Haven Archdeaconry of the Episcopal church held its annual meeting in St. Thomas' church yesterday morning. There were about twentyfive delegates, both laymen and clergy,

The total receipts of last year were reported to be $3,314.15, $1,900 of which was spent in the work of the New Haven county missions. The remainder was forwarded for use in the general missionary work of the Episcopal church. It was voted that the assessment should be increased 10 per cent. over that of last year in order to raise a larger sum for the general fund.

The following officers were re-elected: Secretary and treasurer, the Rev. W. A. Beardsley; standing committee, the Rev. A. T. Randall of Meriden, the Rev. Stewart Means of New Haven, Thomas L. Cornell of Derby and Frederick C. Earle of New Haven. The meeting then adjourned.

DIED FROM EATING PILLS. The fourteen-and-one-half-months old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Hogan of No. 15 Poplar street died suddenly yesterday about noon, as is thought, from the effects of eating pills. The child's mother had been working about the house when she noticed the child with an empty pill box in her hand. She took up the child and found part of a pill in its mouth. The child went to sleep soon after, but awoke in about an hour in convulsions. The mother ran to the office of Dr. E. K. Roberts, near-by, with the child in her arms. It grew vorse, howeer, and died at the doctor' office a few moments after. Medical Examiner White was called and after hearing the facts decided that no blame was attachable for the child's death,

POLICE IN PARIS.

The Thoroughness of the Spy System Upon Strangers.

More curious than all its strange callings and its strange customs is the police system in Paris. When an Englishman gets to his hotel, he remarks, probably, to his wife, "Well, now, Martha, we can do as we like. No worry about what Mrs. Brown would say if we had met her at Brighton. Here we are free, and nobody knows who we are or cares who we are." But the police know that he is in Paris, and his name is inscribed at the Prefecture. Every hotel must keep a register of all foreigners and hand it over daily to the special officers who are sent around to collect them. In the case of the English or American citizen little interest is taken, unless their expenditure is noticeably extravagant, and then a friendly interest is taken in them, and their deccription sent to Scotland Yard.

It is almost impossible to conceive the thoroughness of the French police spy system. You never know who is a mouchard in France. The waiter who serves you, the man who shaves you, the cocher who drives you, are as likely as not to be in the police pay. They know everything, and they know every-Children's day was observed here last | body. Here is an instance that occured to a friend of mine only the other day. The schools have closed for the sum- He received from the Prefecture an order to appear on the following day, So far as he knew he had done noth-New Haven, is building an attractive ing particularly out of the way, and summer house on the old Clinton place, even if he had, he had done it unintena short distance north of F. Tyler's tionally. The magistrate invited him residence. It will be a shingled house, into his private room, and put him at his ease at once by explaining that the affair did not concern him personally, but he wanted some information on two or three of the English colony with whom he was associated. The answers were perfectly satisfactory, and, in leaving, he turned to the magistrate. and said, laughingly, "Now, why don't "But I know all about you," he replied. Would you like to know what you did on any particular day within the last three months?" My friend replied at random: "Take last Friday week I haven't the remotest knowledge as to what happened. The magistrate looked ver his dossler and replied: "You go home at 2:30 in a cab that you had taken at the Madeline. You rode out on your bicycle at half-past nine. You lunched at Cafe de l'Esperance," and so on, throughout the day he recounted everything that had passed. There was no reason to have made the inquiry as there was not the slightest mark on his dossier, but it suited the police to know just how he passed his time. A casserole-that is to say, a mouch-

hard who has, by some indiscretion, let his connection with the police become cream parior at Meadows' End near known, and is accordingly valuelessonce told me a lot about the working of the system. I had pointed out to on Saturday, charged with stealing $15 him that it seemed to me thoroughly from Petetr De Groot, was brought be- impossible that I could have my footsteps dogged during a whole day withanswered: "Naturally. This, for instance, is how I should have acted if I a good time and De Groot got slightly had wanted to find out all about your movements. When you left this cafe, I should have followed you till such time that I knew you had noticed that I was at your heels. Then I should have passed the signal." "To whom?" I suggested. "Have you ever noticed," he said, "that round all the big cafes there are men offering novels out of date, but who are always scanning closely the faces of those on the terrasses? Well, I shoul have passed the signal on to one of those men. He would have followed you in a cab, if necessary, and on seeing you enter a cafe would have followed on the pretence of selling wares, and handed you on to another of the band. And so it would have gone on. After all, are the French police wrong. The foreigner comes here and inscribes his name at the Prefecture of Police. We are not like you in England. We have only just enough money for our own poor, and we do not encourage the out-of-works of the world to come here. Neither do we want to harbor criminals. Accordingly the police trace the man, and if they find that he is honorably earning his existence he is left in peace; but if there is a shadow of suspicion against him, his dossier gets heavier every day and one morning he finds that he has forty-eight hours in which to quit the country. It is owing to this system that the police find it comparatively easy to arrest criminals. The vilest class of ruffian, and the painted women you meet in the night cafes, are all useful-the women especially. Your own servant may be spying on you. Your concierge certainly is." He hesi-tated for a minute, and then said to me, in a semi-whisper, "Watch that particular, except that he seemed very intent in his newspaper, "That's a mouchard," he continued, "I'm presared to bet he has heard every word that has passed. If you had eyed him is closely as I have, you would have noticed that he has been looking at he same paragraph for over an hour." The man paid for his drinks and went out. Next morning, I suppose his re-port was sent in. The ruses of these nen in finding out persons who are 'wanted" have no limit. Only the other day the English police had sent over the description of a man they would like to put in the dock. As he spoke French without the slightest accent, and as it was certain that he vould be disguised out of all recognition, the task was a difficult one. One afternoon, two of these detectives noticed a well-dressed man, and suspected him. One of them took off his vercoat and hung it up side by side with his. A few minutes later they got up to leave, and the wrong coat was out on. In the most fluent and polite French the suspected man pointed out the error. The mouchard took it off, and looked at the name of the maker, and saw that it was a London firm. They had found their man.-To-Day. BERMUDA WOMEN.

Peculiar Laws Which Apply to Them

as Property-Holders. There are, perhaps, a larger number of spinsters in Bermuda in proportion to the population than in any other place on this side of the Allantic and it is a curious fact that this is the law of the land.

The semi-tropical climate of islands and their isolation have made of the inhabitants of English stock a quiet, almost sluggish, folk of a simplicity nearly Arcadlan. The women especially, many of whom live very narrow lives, never leaving these slands, are remarkable for their oldfashioned hospitality and a natural ease of manner which seems to rise from an entire faith in those with whom they come in contact. Perhaps the fact that it would be very difficult for a criminal to escape from the islands may account for it, but, at any rate, crime is very rare there.

Bermuda women are excellent house wives and bring up large families of children, some of the most favored young folk being sent to the United States for educational advantages. In matters of etiquette they are far more strict than Americans. As a rule, they are well-to-do, and live comfortably while some of them possess ample means and enjoy much luxury. In Bermuda, as in England, property, especially real estate, remains in the same family for long periods, and some of the descendants of the first settlers still possess lands which have never passed out of their families. It is just conservatism about property which causes the superabundance of spinsters. No alien can acquire a title to land in Bermuda, either by purchase or inheritance. This is chiefly a precautionary measure against the Portuguese, who flock to the country go in largely for onlon growing But the law provides that if a woman marries a foreigner she shall lose her landed property, and shall also become incapable of inheriting any. This law is naturally not popular with the women, who see their brothers mate with Americans and other aliens, and would fain have the same liberty. Occasionally Bermudan girls renounce their birthrights for love's sake, but, as a rule, the charms of penniless maidens are not sufficient for young men to desire them for wives and thus many girls are doomed to single bleessedness in Bermuda simply by the law of the land.—Boston Herald.

BUFFALO MEAT COMES HIGH.

Buffalo beef, and especially buffalo veal, has been a not uncommon diet of Tekonites and despite the efforts to put a stop to the destruction of the flock of the many half and quarter breed buffalo, the meat still comes into town occasionally, brought by the Indians from the reservation Idaho, almost adjoining Tekoa.

A splendid six month old calf, handsomely marked and with splendid hair well-defined hide, was brought in this week and sold to a ideal butcher who wise enough to appreciate its worth, wired larger markets of his prize, and was rewarded by an offer of 40 cents a pound-head, pelt, and all. The head was not brought in, and the butcher would not dispose of the pelt so a second offer of 3314 cents a pound for the carcass, shorn of pelt, was accepted, the purchaser paying the freight. "If the calf had been brought in two months earlier," explained the butcher, "I could readily have sold the carcass for $1 a pound to Chicago parties, and had I taken the precaution to preserve it in cold storage and figured with caterers while the meat was ripening, I might have done as well at this date." The carcass of the calf caused no little comment, owing to its superior appearance. The pelt is really superior to that of a full-blooded buffalo, as the hair was as fine as silk and quite long, the coloring perfect, and the marks without a blemish or mistake.-Morning Oregonian.

SOME FOOD ADULTERATIONS.

A French analyst some time ago, says the British Medical Journal amused himself by constructing a menu of the dinner of one who greatly daring would dine at a cheap restaurant at Paris. The exact items do not matter, but the general idea was that the diner, after swallowing soup made from a meat extract preserved by the addition of boric acid, was regaled with fish preserved from putrefaction by the same means that his vegetables had been preserved in a bottle and given, by the addition of copper, a bright green color which produced a delusive appearance of freshness, that his sweet was made from fruit preserved in a solution of salicylle acid; that he ate with his cheese, which itself was loaded with mutton fat or cotton oil, margarine spread on bread whitened with alum, and made from flour to which plaster of Paris had been added to give it weight in the scales. These delectable viands were washed down with a plastered wine colored with fuchsine, while the liquor, with which he hoped to correct the evil effects of the rest, was made of crude spirit Legion of Honor in his butttonhole." I sweetened with beetroot sugar and The annual rose festival of the La- looked at him, but noticed nothing flavored with a coal-tar product. His coffee-but the analyst refused to discuss the coffee; the subject, he said was too complex. M. de Nansouty has been without drawing the veil which conceals the composition of coffee in France. He tells us that even the careful man who buys his coffee in the green berry is not altogether safe; very inferior berries are dyed to match the better sorts, or some of the berries are made of clay moulded and dyed to look like the genuine berries with which they are mixed. If he buys his berries roasted he is more easily deceived. The artifical berries in the case are made of coffee grounds mixed with baked flour. The berries, false and true, are then roasted with a little fat, white of egg, sugar or molasses, and acquire a beautiful brown varnish "pleasing to the eye." The weight of both green and roasted berries is increased by exposing them to steam so that they imblbe moisture. But the man who buys his "coffee" ground is indeed rash. The list of constituent parts is long; chiccory (which itself is sometimes adulterated!), beetroot, turnip, parsnips, carrots, dandelion, ácorns, horse-chesnuts, hazel nuts, figs, couch grass, pistachios, prunes, almonds, walnuts, peanuts, dates, apples, pears-all these substances, generally in "damaged" condition, are mixed together, ground, and roasted, and mixed with a little real coffee.

MR. GLADSTONE AS SIGNALMAN. During Mr. Gladstone's illness the Irish express going to Holyhead was several times stopped at Sandyford in order to put down the doctors. There is a Hawarden tradition related by the London Daily Chronicle, to the effect that Mr. Gladstone once stopped this express by pulling the signal against t with his own hand. The narrative is that Mr. Gladstone had been hurriedly summoned south by the Queen. He frove over to Sandyford-the date is supposed to be years and years agoand asked the official there to have the train stopped. "No. sir," was the timorous reply, "I cannot stop the Irish express without orders, and as interests of the nation I must get to London with the least loss of time. Therefore I shall take the responsibility of stopping the train myself." With that he went to the lever and pulled it, saying: "In the Queen's name."

AN EXTRAORDINARY ADVENT-

URE WITH A LION. Mr. Ernest Brockman recently had a breath escape from death while employed on construction duties on the African Transcontinental Telegraph Company's new line in British Central Africa. At two a, m. on October 3 last, a full-grown lion entered the hut in which he was sleeping, grasped him by the thigh, and carried him off towards the bush. An alarm being raised, Brockman's colleague, the only other white man in camp, to the rescue and under cover of a fire kindled by the natives approached to within a few yards of the beast, who was mauling shot through the eye. Brockman was nursed back to life at the Livingstone Will close out both stocks at about Mission station at Bandame, Lake Nyassa, receiving the greatest possible kindness at the hands of the missionaries, and after being carried to the coast, a distance of 700 miles, the journey occupying twenty-five days, took steamer at Chinde at the mouth of Zambesi, and arrived home on March 1. He is now at Brighton, resting, and is recovering, though slowly. He seems to have borne a charmed life, and his experiences since leaving

A FLOATING WAR STUDIO.

Photography on an Ambulance Ship-An Odd Enterprise of the War Department Mainly for Surgical Cases -A Permanent Record Wanted-Pictures of Battles From Balloons.

"Yanko-Spanko war," as they call it in England, is to have its photographic side, and this aspect of the teresting, as well as picturesque.

In fact, the government is going to dio, which will make pictures of every possible incident in the great conflict that is now beginning. It will be equipped, regardless of expense, with all kinds of apparatus and appliances for work of this description. Thus the of the part. Unquestionably during history of the war with Spain will be the civil war a great many legs and recorded for the benefit of future generations not only in writing, but also in schoolboy.

The war department is managing this exclusively as such; it would scarcely be regarded as neutral by Spanish ships of war, and one or two explosive adopted of placing the whole affair on board of an ambulance ship.

In a word, the war studio is to be made a department of a vessel that voyages under the Red Cross. The craft is the John Englis-renamed the Relief-which now lies at the navy yard in Brooklyn. She is a steel passenger steamer of about four thousand tons, and was recently purchased by the government. Her speed is eighteen knots, and in every way she is excellently adapted for the nurpose in view. Just at present she is being fitted up as an ambulance ship, with cots and other paraphernalia sultable for carrying side to distinguish her as a non-com-kept of the "cases" treated, which is of Havana. expected to be of the greatest value to medical science. The taking of snapshots of injured men is no exhibition of heartlessness, but a scheme for obtaining knowledge that will save suffering to others in the future.

The name of the government photographer selected to take charge of this work is not permitted to be mentioned at present. Suffice it to say that he is a man of the highest distinction in his profession, and better equipped for such business probably than any other living expert. He is also a practical electrician and a bacteriologist of note -both of which accomplishments will have special value for reasons presently to be mentioned. His acquaintance with electricity will be of particular use in the management of a biograph or vitascope apparatus, by means of which it is hoped to get moving photographs of various interesting incidents of warfare. It may not be practical to secure moving photographs of big sea battles for reasons that are somewhat obvious. Smoke in volumes is apt to obscure such a scene, and the ambulance ship, unlike the hospital vessels, will not follow the war fleets. There is a distinction between the ambulance ship and the hospital ship, the latter being especially a naval adjunct, intended for the accommodation of wounded sallors, while the former is for army use. The Relief, for example, will be in effect a transport between Cuba and the United caring for sick and injured soldiers.

However, the expert photographer in expects to get some blograph views of land engagements-possibly of those in cidental to the siege of Havana-and The Steamer Richard Peck Will Leave scope series of glimpses of a naval fight off-shore. What a marvel, indeed, would be a moving photograph of

There was an election of fifteen new members, as follows: A. B. Simpkins, J. H.Buckley, jr., T. B. Hull, Harry Good, V. M. Dow of New Haven, J. A. McEnerny of Ansonia, D. B. Stanley St. John of Danbury, W. F. Schlagg of Hartford, W. L. Lloyd of Naugatuck, Robert Walker of Waterbury, R. G. Cleveland of Waterville, E. K. Taft Stafford Springs, N. P. Forcier of Meriden, L. C. Pelter of Hartford and John E. Curran of New Britain.

President Savin then read his annual address, and after being referred to a ommittee was accepted and his recommendations adopted.

The treasurer's report showed $387.26 on hand and it was adopted, after being audited by a committee of two. R. H. Kimball of Hartford, after the report of the legislative committee, read a lengthy paper on "Pharmacy and Queries.

Vice President John W. Lowe, chairman of the executive committee, reported on the membership of the organization. He said that the number of members registered at the last meeting was 280. Since then there had been fifteen elected, five dropped, four deceased and three resigned, making a present total of 283. Adjournment was taken at 1 o'clock.

The meeting was again called to or-der at 2:45, when Mayor Farnsworth made an address welcoming the dele gates and tendering them the freedom of the city. This was followed by short peeches by the visiting delegates.

The pharmacy commission then read There were seventy-two its report. candidates for examination in pharmacy, of whom fourteen passed with an average per cent. of 74.9. Seventeen were licensed as having been grad-uated from colleges of pharmacy. There were 729 renewals during the year. The w. A. Durant of this city, brother of 319.05, leaving balance of $390.20, which, according to th pharmacy law goes to the state. This caused considerable dicussion and it was decided to instruct the legislative committee to use their endeavors in having the law so amended that this and other balances will revert to the treasurer of the association and not the state. An able paper written by C. F. Williams of Thomaston on 'Apothecaries in Great Britain Versus Apothecaries in the United States" was read by W. L. Kimball.

A H. Barnes was re-instated on the ayment of all dues. Adjournment was then taken until 9 o'clock this morning.

Shortly after adjournment yesterday afternoon a number of the members of the association joined a party of about a dozen ladies, wives of the members, in a carriage ride about the dity. The principal points of interest out—By Mansfield, 2; by Johnson, 2. were visited and the party returned to Passed balls, Luchia. Wild pitches, the New Haven house for supper

State League. New Haven was defeated by Waterbury at Elm City park yesterday afternoon. The game was close and interesting throughout, and was closely followed by an audience of about 500 people. During the first three innings New Haven played a magnificent game, not allowing one Waterbury man to reach first. But a three-bagger and a single in the fourth sent them up in the air, and when they settled down at the end of the fifth Waterbury had scored six runs off of three hits and a base on balls. This practically won the game for Waterbury. The main trouble with the team is the way it goes to pieces at critical times. With one or two old men in the team to hold it steady at such times New Haven would soon be at the top of the column. Johnson pitched a good game and with proper support would have won easily. Pfenninger evidently had a day off making four errors out of six chances. The fielders on both teams fielded ground balls poorly, and several times al-lowed singles to be stretched into

Duffy and O'Brien both made star catches and Parent played his usual championship game. He accepted ten out of eleven chances and made four runs and three hits, a single, a double and a home run out of four times at

AT NEW BRITAIN.

New Britain, Conn., June 21 .- When New Britain got ready to line against Danbury this afternoon Lynca who was scheduled to pitch and O'Brien, the shortstop, had not come out to the field. These men, with the rest of the team, were paid in full last night by Manager Gilbert, and they showed their appreciation by deserting. By putting in the spare pitchers the full nine men were secured and the game was somewhat close, notwithstanding the change in positions of several of the players. The score:

AT NEW LONDON. New London, Conn., June 21.—The Colts are to be somewhat excused for their defeat from Derby this afternoon as the team was in a highly crippled condition. It was necessary to work the three pitchers and the two catchers in different positions. The game was slow, but was really won by Derby on merit. The score: New London. 0 0 0 0 0

AT BRIDGEPORT. Bridgeport, Conn., June 21.-One of the best crowds of the season gathered at Newfield park this afternoon and witnessed the ball game between Meriden and Bridgeport, which resulted in the leader's getting an additional cinch on first place. In the first inning a bad error by Doherty resulted in two runs for Meriden in the second inning, a wild throw by Giblin and what the Bridgeport "rooters" termed very questionable decisions by the umpire, resulted in three runs more for the visitors, which won the game. The score: Bridgeport... 1 0 2 0 0 0 0 0 0 0-3 Meriden.... 2 3 0 0 0 1 0 0 0-6 Hits-Bridgeport, 9; Meriden, 5, Errors-Bridgeport, 4; Meriden, 1. Batterles-Giblin and O'Rourke; Howells and
