A Mistake Very Probable. San Francisco, Cal., April 20.—The mail advices received here by the Associated Press on April 17 from Apia, Samoa, and dated March 24, told of a little incident which occurred just be fore the bombardment by the American and British warships commenced. The German man-of-war was about to leave the harbor on some mysterious mission when Admiral Kautz signalled her to return and take care of the German residents, as the bombardment of the city by the American and British was about to commence. The German returned to her position and during the shelling of the vicinity took on board many German residents. This incident combined with the arrest of a prominent German planter for aiding the

It is suggested that the steamer's cred had heard of the arrest of the German manager of the plantation where the American and British sailors were ambushed and had concluded that the person arrested was the German commander. It is pointed out in official German quarters that the arrest of the commander of one warship by the commander of another ship is an absurdity, and, moreover, in cable advices which have reached the embassy much later than those which a steamer could have brought to British Columbia no such action was disclosed. The British embassy also is without any information of such an oc

Chief Arthur described the Cleveland, 2-6-1, Batteries—Dowling status of the locomotive engineers as and Powers; Sudhoff and Clement, quite satisactory in most respects both as to their organization and relations Woods; Taylor and Chance. with the railway companies. His order had written agreements with 90 per cent. of the railways as to the conditions of work. Strikes had been severe and generally successful in the past, but were on the decrease. Their strike fund had not been touched for several years and now amounted to $100,000. other funds were set aside, one for curent expenses and the other for the re lief of widows and orphans. Of the latter $42,000 was disbursed last year. The insurance feature of the order was important, $8,000,000 having been paid on this account. The pay of engineers was about the same as for the past fifteen years, but the added purchasing power of the dollar made it practically larger. Certain practices of the railroads in putting age limits to employment and n enforcing extra severe physical examinations were not approved by the brotherhode, but the strength of the organization made the railway companies reasonably considerate in dealing with its members. Mr. Arthur said that 90 percent, of the 36,000 locomotive engineers of the country belonged to the brotherhood. The order was strict in maintaining a high standard of morals and efficiency, discharging in one year 172 members for cause. This evidence of a desire to furnish only high class men made the railroads look with considerable favor on the order.

Mr. McGuire said the carpenters and joiners' organization had been known and more on less dreaded as a striking organization because it was chosen by the Federation of Labor to inaugurate the great strikes for the eight hour day from 1882 to 1887. Since 1883 the carhad won 908, compromised 67, and lost 61. The necessity for striking had decreased owing to the strength and determination of the organization. In purchasing power, the carpenters wage the large centers. They lived better, in better houses and were better clothed. Dreyfus Persistently Protested His Innocence and After Being Condemned Repeatedly Asked for a Revolver, Declaring That His Only Crime Was in Having Been Born a Jew.

Paris, April 20.-The Figaro, continuing to-day its publication of testimony offered before the court of cassation in the Dreyfus revision inquiry, devotes twenty-four columns to some twenty depositions of minor officials, most of which are favorable to Dreyfus. It gives also a fac-simile of the bordereau. Major Forsinetti, who was director of the Cheriche-Midi prison in 1894 at the time of the condemnation of Dreyfus. persistently protested his innocence and after he was condemned he repeatedly asked for a revolver, declaring that his only crime was in having been born a

The witness said that after the petition for a revision of the trial by courtmartial was rejected Colonel Du Paty de Clam visited Dreyfus and tried his utmost to draw from him a confess ty communication of documents to a foreign power. Dreyfus energetically protested that he was not guilty, and Colonel Du Paty de Clam said in part-ing from him: "If you are really innocent you are the greatest martyr of the century."

Major Forsinetti told the court that he questioned Captain Lebrun-Renaud regarding the alleged confessions Dreyfus, but Captain Lebrun-Renaud promptly denied that Dreyfus had confessed anything. Major Forsinetti added that although he and Major Atteles were on terms of great friendship, the latter had never mentioned any con sion to him. Forsinetti declared that he was convinced of the inno Dreyfus. Many others testified for and against Dreyfus. AN OLD CERTIFICATE.

Recalls Facts About the Founding of Wesleyan University.

A certificate of stock in the old Literary, Scientific and Military Academy of Middletown was recently donated to the Wesleyan university library by Charles R. Woodword. The certificate was made out to Henry Woodward, uncle of the donator, and signed by three of the trustees of the academy. It calls o mind some facts about the founding of Wesleyan university, not very generally known. In 1824, the citizens of Middletown made offers looking toward the location of a college there. Two institutions were candidates. A college about to be tains in the front room had caught fire established by the state under Episco-and threatened to result seriously. It pal auspices (afterwards Trinity college) considered the offer for sometime, but later, accepted more liberal offers and located at Hartford. Norwich Military Academy, located at the time in Norwich, Vermont, accepted the terms and removing from its old quarters, prospered in its new location for five years. Failing in 1828 in an attempt to obtain all the powers of a college, the trustees of the academy sold their property for $5,000 to the New York East Methodist Conference. and moved back to Norwich. A denominational school was established in 1829 which was able to obtain from state legislature what the academy had He told of his receiving from Coroner Mix a number of Internal organs said to venient for the people who live in the a college. AN APPEAL TO PHILANTHROPIC NEW HAVENERS.

Funds Needed to Carry on the Very Commendable Work Inaugurated Last Summer-Plea Approved by Superintendent Kendall-Play Grounds for Poor Children Urged as an Almost Absolute Necessity.

The committee on vacation and public playgrounds have addressed the following circular to the public: It is selfexplanatory:

"With the ending of the school year, hundreds of children in the poorer districts of our city are thrown into the streets. From the unclean, over-crowded roadways, there come physical disease and moral deterioration. this resulting demoralization of childlife, by providing clean, airy surroundings, and healthful occupation, the larger cities are opening their public school buildings and grounds for the use of the vacation school and the pubplayground. During July and August, the schools are open for half-day sessions, five times a week; the playgrounds are open, both morning and afternoon, six days a week. In charge of these are experienced teachers who instruct the children in nature study, manual training and similar branches which supplement, rather than duplicate, the work of the winter. All attendance is voluntary. The approval of the parents, the eagerness of the children and their improved condition of the measure. In New York, the board of education has adopted this vacation work as a part of the regular school system. Philadelphia is following her example, while in Chicago, Brooklyn, and elsewhere it is as yet supported by private subscription.

In New Haven, through the efforts of association and by means of the generosity of individuals, a similar work was started in July, 1898. Two public playgrounds, those of the Eaton and Zunder schools, were kept open during July and August, with an average attendance of 350 for the yards, isfactory was the result of this beginning that it has been deemed best to continue the work during the coming summer, and also to open one of the public schools of the city for a vacation school. The location of the school will be in one of the most crowded districts, and remote enough from the playgrounds to reach a different set of

The board of education will contribute the use of the buildings, grounds and some of the necessary apparatus; for support, the school and playgrounds must, for the present, depend on the generosity of the public.

To maintain one school of ten rooms, allowing forty children to each room. a fund of $1,000 is necessary. To maintain the two public playgrounds, in addition to the amount saved from last year's contributions, $200 must be rais-

Although this sum seems large, we confidently appeal to your public spirit to respond to this need. It is desirable that subscriptions should be made before to April 1, 1899, in order that the committee may know what resources are to be at their disposal.

Mrs. James Kingsey Blake, chairman, for the committee on vacation schools and public playgrounds, New Haven Woman's School association.

Advisory committee-Eli Whitney, president of the board of education; C. N. Kendall, superintendent of public schools; A. B. Morrill, principal of Normal Training school; T. W. father, principal of Boardman Manua Training school; Professor H. W. Farnam, Yale university.

Superitendent Kendall is in full ac cord with the proposed plan and has written the following letter in support of same: "On June 30 our public schools close and will reopen in September. More than 14,000 children will have a vacation of ten weeks or seventy days. Some of these children will go to the country, some to the shore, and still others will, in their own city homes, find recreation or employment There are, however, hundreds of children in certain crowded parts of the who will be forced to spend most of their daylight hours during the summer in the street, because their homes are small or crowded or unattractive. The street is the only "out-doors' known to many New Haven children. All through the long, warm months of July and August it is practically the playground for these children. What life in a city street does for a child it is not necessary to say; teaches little that is good or helpful. These children go back to school in early September, perhaps the worse in morals because of a vacation of enforced idleness.

The school buildings are exclusively for children, and for all children, yet these buildings erected by the city for the use of children are under present financial conditions necessarily closed and idle during the summer months. The funds at the command of the board of education are insufficient to keep them open and, therefore, in use, for such children as would make use of

The vacation school is a movement to better this condition of affairs by opening for three hours a day, during six weeks in the summer, schools to those children who may choose or wish to attend. Such schools have been carried on with success in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Newark and other cities. I believe there is need of vacation schools in a few congested districts of New Haven. This was perhaps not true here a quarter of a century ago, but now our city has become in part both cosmopolitan and crowded. In the vacation school the regular work of an ordinary school is not carried on but such subjects as music, reading, drawing, nature study, manual training, sewing, etc., all of which as a rule appeal greatly to the interests of the children, constitute the exercises of the day. With such a programme there is no difficulty in securing the attendance of children. On the contrary, although the attendance is voluntary, embarrassment arises in turning away children who would like to attend and who cannot be accommodated; such has been the experience in other cities.

The plan of the Woman's School association to establish and maintain a vacation school here during the coming summer is, therefore, I believe, de-

This is all, I presume, the board will be able to do. the women of the association are able to carry out their plans for the establishment of a school, the lives of many children will be enriched, and a beginning made which may grow into large results in the future." FELL THROUGH A WINDOW.

Mishap of a Drunken East Shore Resi dent.

Frank Durkee, who said he lived at Silver Sands, on the east shore, just east of Lighthouse Point, was arrested last night on Chapel street, just above Orange street, by Patrolmen Winchell and Murphy, on the charge of being drunk. Durkee about 9:30 last night entered a phonograph shop on Chapel street, near Orange, and as music was being played in the place he began to dance. The man who runs the place objected to this, and ordered him to Durkee refused, and the proprietor undertook to eject him from the place. During the scuffle which ensued Durkee fell through a plate glass window, a 3 by 8 feet, completely shattering it. A large piece of the window glass as it fell struck a small boy named William Crome standing near by and cut through his coat sleeve, but fortunately did not cut his arm. The piece of glass was a heavy one, and

The stepson of Stevenson, the novelist, Lloyd Osborne, ex-United States consul at Apia, says that the London Missionary society's antagonism to Mataafa as a Roman Catholic is the "whole cause of the quarrel." Mr. Osborne describes Chief Justice Chambers as a man of the "narrowest evangelical views," and as "wholly in the hands of Osborn. The attitude of Herr Rose, the German consul at Apia, he characterizes as "commendable throughout," and he stigmatizes the Americans and British as "brutally wrong."

A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Last evening Richard Mansfield played "Cyrano de Bergerac" at the Hyperion before an audience which has perhaps not been exceeded in number and quality since Patti sang here. As usual some of those who demand that an actor shall also be a speechmaker were on hand, and at the end of the second act their clamor rose and resounded. Mr. Mansfield came before the curtain four or five times and bowed low in acknowledgment of the applause, more Belgian capital was employed in but did not incongruously and inartistically snatch himself out of the character he was portraying and make a speech. But a representative of his did come before the curtain and make a much to the point. It was: "Mr. Mansfield deeply regrets that he cannot drop the character of 'Cyrano de Bergerac' and thank you for the generous applause which he so much appreciates." This quelled the somewhat unreasonable tumult, and the audience did not have its pleasure lessened by the destruction of the spell which Mr. Mansfield's art had cast upon it.

In not making speeches to the audience while he is "Cyrano de Bergerac" Mr. Mansfield is true to his art and sets a good example. It is an example that should be imitated by all actors who are serious and who wish to make and maintain the deepest and most satisfying impression. Few great actors can make good speeches. But those who can and those who cannot make a large mistake when they reveal themselves to an audience in the middle of a play

WILL TRY TO PAY THE FIDDLER Although cast down Spain isn't hopeless and she is going to make a well planned effort to get her finances into better shape. The total expenses of the recent colonial campaigns, in Cuba and the Philippines, the war with the United States and the return of Spanish troops to their homes, are estimated at $500,000,000, about half of which sum is due to the Bank of Spain for its repeated advances to the treasury. All these liabilities it is proposed to consolidate into one debt, with the result of adding about $25,000,000 to the annual interest charge. As this charge in 1898 was over $98,000,000. Spain's burden after the addition just mentioned will be a formidable one.

To balance revenue and expenditure. it is proposed to reduce expenses by rigid economies and to impose new taxes. In 1896-7 the total expenditure was $151,000,000. This sum, increased by the $25,000,000 of new interest on the war debt and diminished by economies, represents what Spain will need annually. Repudiation of part of the interest charge is proposed in some quarters but this is said to be vigorously opposed by most Spanish statesmen. Nine-tenths of the Spanish debt is owned, it is said, in Spain itself, so that powerful influences will be exerted to cent, will be imposed on income derivducted from the interest payable on the bonds held abroad. French holders argue that Spain cannot to her profit thus United States mail carriers have their tax, in effect, foreign holders of her se-vor of the foreigner. The financial capabilities of Spain have been studied carefully by M. Thery, who was sent last February by the the high mandarins in that city and French government to report on the entire situation. Besides holding large amounts of Spanish bonds, French citinquiry by the postal authorities as to izens have large interests in Spanish railroads and commercial undertakings. The result of M. Thery's inquiries-which have been very thoroughis the conclusion that Spain's economic rounds, an anonymous letter which and financial condition is much better than foreigners generally suppose it to be. As quoted by the correspondent of the London Times, M. Thery thinks "Spain can perfectly well meet all her engagements" and holds that "the rev. enue necessary for this purpose can be raised by an increase of taxation. which, if properly distributed, will not be injurious to commerce or overburdensome to the people." The measures actually contemplated by the ministry are said to be as follows: The suspension of the sinking fund till the financial position is re-established; an in-

An Expansionist. As Expansionist

Expansion is all right, my boy;

I know, for I have tried.

Just listen what it's done for me
And see if I have lied.

When I first started to expand

I measured thirty inch;

But I got a job directly—
Counting votes—It was a clack.

When I'd expanded six inch more
I got elected then
Assistant tax assessor

By majority of ten.

Six more inches made me burgess;
Six more made me county clerk;

A more made me compty clerk; ix more made me judge of probate; After that 'twas casy work. Ix more laches made me counsel Six more inches made me counsel. For the Squawown Valley Road; Slx more landed me in congress. If they didn't I'll be blowed. Sixty inch and sill expanding. ### PRACTICAL.

"You need a long rest this summer," said the doctor thoughtfully. "In no circumstances must you attempt to go to any summer resort,"-Chicago Post.

"You ought to be more careful, Willie," said the teacher in admonition. "Don't you know what will happen to you if you keep on telling stories?"

"Yes, mum," answered the young American; "when I grow up I'll be invited to all the big dinners and made a United States senator from New York. -Kansas City Star.

Side Lights on History.-The mole connecting the mainland with the island on which that mighty city, Tyre, had stood invulnerable for centuries was at last complete, and Alexander the Great was overseeing in person the work of the great battering-rams that had been placed in position and were thundering against the walls of the beleaguered city. "Your majesty," said a flunkey, respectfully touching his paste board helmet, 'dinner is served in the royal tent.' "I shall eat no dinner.' replied Alexander, with a look of noble resolve on his youthful but majesti face, "till I have punctured the enemy" Tyre!" Out of this incident grew the custom of alluding to Tyre as the Windy City.-Chicago Tribune.

THE MONGOOSE.

The Little Animal Has Made the West

I am not aware that there is the tops of the mountains of the interior, but is more abundant in the lowlands. The animal's native home is in India, where he has a great reputation as a killer of snakes, and especially the co

bra. He was brought by some enter-prising individual from India to Jamaica for the purpose of killing off the rats that caused great injury to the sugar cane. About 1877 a sugar planter in horrid things about overdresses and Porto Rico, who also was troubled by declaring that they simply rats, conceived the idea of bringing the mongoose into that island. On all of had in mind the humpy draped things the plantations a number of dogs and men were kept busy killing rats. Some-

Latimer & Co. undertook the introduction of the mongoose. They brought over three or four pairs from Jamalca, lily idea is kinder and quite as apt. and arranged to keep them in captivity on an estate a short distance outside of San Juan. They intended to breed them until they had multiplied and then release them. It was not long, however, before the little animals found the door to their cage carelessly left open and escaped from the inclosure. They multiplied very rapidly, and in the course of a few years they were plentiful in that They have since spread over the entire island.

The traveler nowadays sees them frequently gliding across the road from the hedge on one side into that on the other. It is customary to use for fences the ordinary barbed wire, stretched on posts, and beside it to plant a species of brumillia, which has stiff leaves three inches wide and about four to five feet long. with keen hooks half an inch or more in length thickly distributed over the outer edge, with their points sticking toward the top of the leaf. As each plant has from twenty to forty leaves growing up somewhat like a century plant, and as they soon multiply and additional plants spring up until the hedge becomes from fifteen to forty feet wide, it can readily be seen that it makes a most complete barrier and as the same time the finest of covers for the mongoose. It is practically impos- USE

Into the contest for life, and now build This has the throat swathed close un-der the chin, the swathing curving up cocoanut palm when it can be had, and to points in front of the ears, then in many places the trunks of these trees sloping just enough to allow the ears have been encircled by a wide band of room, and again following close and tin or sheet-iron, which prevents the high the line of the neck. That is the rats from climbing. Rats also live to latest fashionable idea, and if it were some extent in other trees, especially in

The closest relative to the mongoose goods are worn, women might well be-gin to be uncomfortably thoughtful con-sel. The mongoose is about twenty sel. The mongoose is about twenty inches long, of which a little less than half is tail; has rather short legs, a nose a little more pointed than that of the weasel, and is covered with a thick coat of coarse, rusty gray hair. It is called by the people of Porto Rico an ardilla. which is the name given in Mexico and the southwest to the squirrel. It is also known as the mongosts.

While introduced for the purpose of killing rats, the mongoose has shown a lively appetite for poultry, and has be come a pest to the natives, nearly all of whom raise more or less fowls. The animal east all kinds of small animals living on the ground, including spiders snakes and lizards. The island of Vieques, off the coast of Porto Rico, and pelonging also to the United States, has had the mongoose a much shorter time and the people there say that before the animal was introduced snakes were quite common. Now one is rarely seen. On the Island of Culebra, close by, there s no mongoose, and snakes are quite common.

The snakes of Porto Rico and the adincent islands include one small boa and one or two species resembling our common garter snake. None of them are poisenous. It may be said that no poisonous snakes are found in any of the islands this side of Martinique.

While Porto Rico has an abundance of big centipedes and some very large spiders, their bites seem to be less polsonous than those of the corresponding species in our own southwestern states. There is a small scorpion found there however, whose sting is perhaps worse than the bites of either of the others. Judging by the habits of its species, the mongoose lives in a nest in the hedge, although I must say that I have never seen a nest. It is probable, however, that their nests are lined with soft grass and material of that kind. Wherever there is a crevice in the rocks conveniently at hand they make their home. The habits of the mongoose are similar o those of the weasel. It preys mostly at night. It is said that in Jamaica the has so largely exterminated nongoose the ground birds and other animals that live on insects that the ticks have in-creased in number until they threaten to out down the numbers of the mongoose But in Porto Rico there is no sign of the iongoose being troubled by ticks. The pelt of the mongoose has no commercial value, so far as I know, and I could not learn that they were hunted to any ex-tent. It may be that natives who have loss of chickens through the visits of the mongoose'retaliate by hunt-

This is the name of the Laundry Soap that we have sold as our BEST for over twenty years. It is made with the same care to-day that it was when we first began to handle it and stands without equal in this age of competition. It is put up Mich. in 16-Oz. BARS (the average soap being from 10 to 12 ounces), and 75 bars constitute a box. It will last longer, do better work, and wash clothes more thoroughly than any other soap. This is perhaps a strong statement, but our customers will bear us out in it. "Once a customer always a customer" applies to Boston Extra Soap. If we knew of a better soap we would buy it.

have decided to build the trolley line to Southington. It will not be built through the streets of Plainville, but will be on private property which the electric company is to buy. The proposed line will join the line of the Central Railway and Electric company of Mountain View, some distance out of

Plainville, and will run east of Wilbur

Higgins' property for some distance and hence to Dunham's corner in Southington. There will be no objection from the people of Southington as to the construction of the line from that point on in Southington street.

By adopting this route the company

vill save several thousand dollars, as it can use 41-4-inch rails and will not have to macadamize between the tracks

A distance of three-fourths of a mile will be saved and fifteen minutes in runn'ng time. People living in Plain-

There was a great deal of applause and evidence of genuine enthusiasm for Mr. Mansfield's fine performance and for the exceptionally fine production of the piece.

"Cyrano de Bergerac" was the dra-matic sensation of last year. Coquelin's success in the piece was hailed as the climax of his career, and the fame of the piece spread abroad. The Parisian critics quite lost their heads over Rostand and declared him a gentus of the first rank. But in the matter do not appear to have been very great, for the public has heard little or nothing like the one before it, which related t a new mine in Wales, die a natural the next will be like unto it, and also the next after that. In fact, every rumor of the kind this century, with only one solitary exception, has demised in the same way. The exception was the Welsh gold mine, the discovery of which was believe, due to Pritchard Morgan, M. P. This, from all accounts, was a really valuable find, and one which would have returned very handsome profits indeed had it not been for the government ex-ercising its rights and claiming a royalty on the output. Wales, however abounds in gold, though in so scattered a state as to be unworkable. But at one time there was plenty of the pre lous metal in a sufficiently concentrated form to attract the Phoenicians, who dld not come to England only for copper and lead, but for gold also, and for anything else they could find. Nor did this race confine their efforts to such take the other's measure. Four sharp take the other's measure. These mines were very extensively worked, and one car even trace more or less the method of working from the galleries cut in the rock. They were so shaped that one and the charme of the original text man could walk along them carrying a basket of ore on his head, but we do not ertheless Mr. Mansfield has given a know what method of extraction was but got up strong and hammered magnificent piece of acting, strong, used. The whole mine is surrounded by a Roman camp, and is intersected by a Roman road. But the Romans knew long before the time of Commodus that gold in fairly plentiful quantities was to be found in Britain. In Tacitus' "Life of Agricola" we read: "Fert Britannia aurum et argentum et alia metalla, pretium victoriae gignit et oceanus margarita, sed obfusca et liventia," etc. There was plenty of gold, comparatively gold coins were once struck made from metal found in the district. All over England and Wales, too, the British barrows which have been opened have

This being so, it is not at all impossible that there is a rich deposit somewhere which has not yet been discovered, and that an expert 'pocket's miner might perhaps reap a points southwest. For full particulars, rich harvest by a little judicious prospecting. Scotland has plenty of gold in it, and it has been worked in fits and starts for over two thousand years, The Duke of Sutherland recently made an attempt to work the Kildonan mines, and, though the amount of success at tending his efforts has not been made public, it was probably not very great. or it would have been heard about. the district was at one time exceedingly rich in gold. In the Clydesdale district alone there were recovered in the reign of James V. of Scotland no less than one hundred thousand ounces, the value of which amounted to nearly ing all obtained in small grains "washing" the Clyde and its tributa'ies.

The bulk of Scottish gold is in this form, the largest nugget found weighing only twenty-seven ounces, and being at present in the Hopetoun collection.

In 1562 there happened to be a great pendent Order of Heptasophs, will hold gold craze, and a German company obtained a lease of the district for a period of forty years, its object being to find company found about one hundred and thirty ounces, which were coined, and Some years later, after the accession of James VI., there was another craze, the result of which was that the "wisest fool in Christendom" spent a sum of thirty thousand pounds in looking for a fabulous deposit of gold which, according to a book written by a man named Atkinson, was to be found on Crawford Morr. He found about three ounces, and those were probably "planted" by an enterprising servant who wished to obtain the reward for "first blood." After this gold finding was at a discount, until a small find of a couple of hundred ounces in the Lanarkshire district revived matters, and the coronation medals of Charles I. were struck from Scottish gold. Then came the Nithsdale rush. which produced nearly seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds' worth, and the mines were worked at intervals for a long time-until the reign of George III., in fact. In the reign of Henry III. we find the first mention of Westmoreland gold in a charter granted by that monarch, and directed upon the Kes-wick gold district.

Most of the writs of early times, how ever, seem to have been directed upon mines further south—those in Devon, Cornwall, Essex and Dorset. one, however, in the reign of Edward which is directed on a couple of mines situated in Gloucester and Shropshire The Mines Royal of Elizabeth are well known. So soon as Good Queen heard of a mine, of whatsoever kind, she promptly annexed it, on the plea that it might contain gold or silver. If it did, she took unto herself the lion's a good attendance and the proceeds will share. If not, she granted the mine to one of her favorites to work, probably on commission, for the Virgin Queen had very good eye for business. In this way the Earl of Leicester was the lessee of several copper and lead mines, and the Duke of Northumberland of several thers, the major portion of the profits of which probably went into their royal nistress' pocket.

Very little, strangely enough, has been heard of Irish gold; yet Ireland was once a center of civilization far in advance of England. Despite the fact that King John squeezed a vast quantity of gold out of the Irish, and also that the remains ornamented with gold found in bogs, barrows, etc., must have demonstrated conclusively that there ought to be a large quantity of the precious metal in the country, nobody seems to have given a thought to prospecting it until he year 1796.

In that year a schoolmaster named Donahoe found a quantity of small nuggets at Croghan, in County Wicklow, but was laughed at when he told of his discovery. He did not further attempt to convince the natives, but used to wander ab ut in the early mornings, and collected a considerable quantity of gold, which he sold to a goldsmith. At last mother man, crossing a brook, found a palf-ounce nugget, and this, coupled with the fact that the schoolmaster was becoming rapidly rich, convinced the unbelievers, and canded a rush to the place. Government stepped in then, but a little too late, for before they could get to work the peasants and others who had flocked to the spot had cleared off the bulk of the gold. It was calculated that in the few months between the finding of the half-onnce nugget mentioned above and the interference of the government several million pounds' worth of gold was secured by the peasants and others, and all that the government got was 2,666 ounces. The big-gest nugget found measured four by three inches, and was about half an inch thick, its weight being twenty-two |PI ounces. The government continued to work the deposit, but as they obtained only four thousand pounds' worth in two years the effort was abandoned London Evening Standard.

The regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Republican club was held last night. Fifty-five new members were elected. No other business of importance was transacted.

The Stock Market, New York, April 20 .- Most stocks today gravitated slightly below yesterday's level. Influences affecting prices were the continued strength and rising of sterling exchange and reports of damage to winter wheat, accompanied by strength in the wheat market. There was some show of strength about the opening, but the small outside demand encouraged the bears to put out short lines, the selling movement being most confident around delivery hour, impression on values was not very large as a rule, and a covering move ment left the net changes of the day moderate. Trading was of a listless sort, and although the dealings were about half a million shares, little interest was manifested in the uncertain vibrations of stocks. Except for the grangers which were sensitive to crop advices the railways generally moved within narrow limits. Anaconda Mining advanced 61/2, the purchases being in some volume for London account, where the demand was reported to be to cover sales of privileges which would be called. Among the specialties Continental Tobacco dipped sharply, closing nearly 2 points off. The Flower stocks were under pressure, but left off with narrow changes either way, Southern Railway and Louisville and Nashville on their joint purchase of the Birmingham Southern rallway held firm against large London sales, Amercan Smelting and Refining opened strong on its first day's trading in the unlisted department and then sold The market closed steady. The increased activity and strength in the ound market reflects investment buying which is very heavy in some of the newly issued mortgages. Total sales $4,000,000, United States 2s registered advanced % the 2s registered the new 4s registered 16 in the bid price.

Injury. Yesterday's Hartford Post says: "Dr. D. F. Sullivan of this city had two of the rarest experiences in his professional career during the past twenty-four hours. Last evening he was called to 77 Windsor street to attend Willie Russell, a six-year-old boy, who fell from the roof of a three-story building. Naturally the doctor took with him all the appliances for a broken neck, crushed skull and other damages likely to result from such an accident. Upon his arrival at the scene of the accident he found the boy apparently uninjured. He learned that he landed in an ice box. At noon to-day the doctor was called to 108 Mather street to attend the three year-old child of Officer Sheehan, who had fallen from a two-story window, The result was practically the same as in the previous case. The child with the exception of a few scratches was uninjured. It fell in a plot under the window a few inches from the side-
