

KILLED HIMSELF IN MANILA

LIEUT. PEARCE OF THE SIXTH U. S. ARTILLERY.

In the City on Leave from His Command at Iloilo—Failed to Reply to Commander's Telegrams and Was Placed Under Arrest—Shot Himself Through the Head.

Manila, June 7.—7:10 a. m.—Lieutenant Frederick W. Pearce of the Sixth United States artillery committed suicide here this morning. He came from Iloilo a week ago on leave, but lingered here beyond the limit and failed to reply to repeated telegrams from his commander. Yesterday he was put under arrest on his commander's order. This morning another officer called to see him, when he suddenly pulled a revolver from under his pillow and shot himself through the head. His friends say that his mind was affected by a recent sunstroke.

A Spanish paper asserts that Colonel Arguelles, one of the two members of the original Filipino military commission, who were placed under arrest at Tarlac last month after returning to Luna's camp from their conferences with the United States commissioners, has been court-martialed and sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment for "friendship displayed toward the Americans."

FITZSIMMONS-JEFFRIES FIGHT.

Chief Devery Says He Will Stop It If It Becomes Brutal.

New York, June 6.—Chief of Police Devery to-night gave out the following statement relative to the action he will take in the Fitzsimmons-Jeffries fight next Friday night if it resolves itself into a brutal slugfest: "From certain published statements of experts on prize ring and boxing matters, and from various sources, it would appear that the two would-be pugilistic champions who are down for a sparring contest at the Coney Athletic club on Friday night next, or their backers or managers, intend to have, under the guise of a Horton law sparring contest, a genuine, old-time slugging match or prize fight. If no such slugging match is intended, then the inference is that these statements and impressions are spread for the sole purpose of gulling and imposing upon the public.

"Considering the parties to the contest, their respective weights, 210 and 156 pounds, and other attending circumstances and condition, it is almost a physical impossibility for the two individuals referred to to carry on a lawful contest for points on the coming occasion. The very nature of things tends to an out-and-out prize fight. I shall be present at the contest, and I shall personally see to it that the law is observed and that there will be no slugging nor heavy hitting; nothing but a clean-cut, lawful sparring exhibition for points. Any person who permits himself to be gullied or imposed upon by thinking otherwise will find himself much mistaken. It will be well for the public to understand that the first heavy blow struck will mark the end of the fight."

FITZSIMMONS' TRAINING WORK.

Champion Compelled to Let Up a Little on Account of Heat.

New York, June 6.—Bob Fitzsimmons was compelled to let up a little in his training work to-day owing to extreme heat. Martin Julian advised the champion to take things easy. Instead of boxing with his sparring partners in the barn, Fitzsimmons had a canvass enclosure erected in the rear of his residence and there he fought nine rounds with Dan Hickey, Jack Everhardt and Yank Kennedy. Fitz appeared to be on edge and his fighting looked to be trained for a title fight. His work with the gloves was all that could be desired by his sanguine adherents and when he turned in for a shower bath and a rub down "Bob" showed no signs of fatigue, while the other three pugilists were winded considerably. Fitz is now about the middleweight limit and chock full of confidence in his ability to win from the young Californian, who will have an advantage in weight of nearly fifty pounds when they meet next Friday night at Coney Island. The early morning work was also reduced and with the exception of punching the bag and a turn with the medicine ball Fitz did not exert himself. After eating a hearty dinner this evening Bob took his usual run of twelve miles and as soon as he had another rub down retired. Martin Julian, who is looking out for the interests of the champion said to-night that Fitz was in rare good condition and that from now on the work would be diminished gradually as he felt that his man was on edge and there would be no further use for exhaustive training.

JEFFRIES CONFIDENT.

New York, June 6.—The two remaining days which Jim Jeffries will have before going to New York for the fight will be given up to light work. He is in good form. Jeffries says: "I will defeat Fitzsimmons and establish my claim to the championship."

OVERCOME BY THE HEAT.

Daniel Smith, a Stone Mason, While Working on a Building.
Rockville, Conn., June 6.—Daniel Smith, aged fifty-five, a stone mason, while at work building a wall on Market street, was overcome by the heat at 3 o'clock this afternoon and the attending physician says there is not chance for him to recover from the sunstroke. He was taken to his home on Cottage street in an unconscious condition and he could not be resuscitated.

THE MAZET COMMITTEE.

Effort to Show Corrupt Practices by Captain Price.

New York, June 6.—When the Mazet committee resumed its session to-day the first thing done was to declare that in the future none of the witnesses subpoenaed to appear before the committee should be represented by counsel. This was followed shortly after by the excluding from the court room of Police Captain Price's counsel, H. C. Henderson, who created a slight sensation at the previous sitting of the committee last week. The committee then, in an attempt to show corrupt practices by Police Captain Price, in the Tenderloin district, brought out from John C. Ellis, former proprietor of a Sixth avenue resort, a story of "protection" that did not protect. His statement involved ex-Alderman A. B. Waite. Ellis stated that Waite came to his house in West Thirty-eighth street last October and collected $200 for police protection of the resort he was running in Sixth avenue. Ellis said he offered Waite a check for $50 to make up the agreed monthly installment of $250, but that Waite refused the check. Ellis said that he took the cash to Waite's house that night. The payment, he said, did not secure the "protection" promised, and the police harassed him as much as ever. Ellis then placed the matter in the hands of a lawyer and had two summonses issued for Waite, but the latter did not answer them. Another proposition made to him, Ellis testified, was by a man who was described to him as Chief Devery's stand-by in times of trouble, who wanted half the receipts of the resort which Ellis was then proprietor of. Another offer came from a man who, he was told, was a central office detective, who wanted him to back a policy game for $7,000. The witness said he was forced out of business.

Other testimony related to the payment of political assessments by candidates for judges and to the sale of liquor on Sunday and alleged violations of the building law by a third rate theater. When William Nelson was called to the stand he immediately started in to show his contempt for several of the Mazet committee. He gave his testimony defiantly and at one time accused Mr. Moss of attempting to blacken his character. At this Mr. Mazet pounded his desk vigorously and called the sergeant-at-arms, Nelson said he had given bonds for many persons in the Tenderloin district and sold whiskey to several resorts in that locality. Later this afternoon Marjorie Olmsted issued a warrant for the arrest of H. C. Henderson, Price's counsel, charging him with disorderly conduct. The charge was preferred by Counsel Clarke and Sergeant-at-Arms Crawford and was the result of the wrangle at the session last week. Mr. Henderson gave bail in $500. The committee will resume its hearings to-morrow morning.

ACCIDENT TO THE DEFENDER.

Big Cub Tapsail Falls During a Trial Off Newport.

Bristol, R. I., June 6.—The big cub topsail of the Defender fell from the deck this afternoon while the yacht was on a sailing trial off Newport, and narrowly missed killing a number of the crew. As it was a big hole was torn in the mainsail and the pole of the topsail went through the deck into the cabin below, but fortunately did not injure the underbody. The yacht was brought up here for repairs. The yacht had been out but a few minutes when her mainsail and top jib blew up when the crew started to set the cub topsail. The sail went up all right until the crew began to sway on the upper halyards when the rope parted and the big sail came down. The pole is forty feet long and on the way down the end struck the mainsail, tearing a large hole. The pole went clean through the deck. The yacht came up to the Hartshoff dock under stormy sky and rain. It was thought that it will take four or five days to repair the damage. Mr. Iselin came over to-day from New York and spent the afternoon looking over the Columbia. He expressed himself well pleased with the progress of the work, and said there was no doubt that the launching would occur at the stated hour on Saturday evening. He refused to say who would christen the new yacht.

CHRISTIAN SCIENTISTS.

Mrs. Eddy Founder of the Faith, Welcomed in Boston.

Boston, June 6.—The interest in today's meeting of the Christian Scientists, and, in fact, of the entire week's convention, centered in the appearance this afternoon of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the leader and founder of the denomination. Her address, though brief, was listened to with rapt attention and with the greatest reverence. Mrs. Eddy arrived in the city yesterday from her home at Concord, N. H., and this afternoon, much to the delight of a great concourse, attended the meeting at Tremont Temple. As she entered the auditorium the audience arose and remained standing respectfully until she was seated. She was attired in an elegant gown of gray satin, covered with exquisite black lace. Judge Hanna made a brief explanatory address, in which he stated that Mrs. Eddy came rather to hear than to be heard. He asked the audience, then, to sing a hymn written by Mrs. Eddy entitled "Shepherd, Show Me How to Go," and this was done with enthusiasm.

EVERYONE IN TOWN FINED.

Peculiar Outcome of a Suit in Princeton, Ky.
Princeton, Ky., June 6.—Every man in town was fined to-day for contempt of court. A petition had been signed by all of them asking the grand jury not to indict the insurance companies and no indictments were found. The commonwealth's attorney moved to proceed against the companies for contempt of court. After considerable argument the judges fined every man in town one cent and the decision was applauded by the defendants.

MINISTER CRUELLY TREATED

THE REV. GEORGE HIGGINS OF LEVANT, MAINE.

Seized by a Mob and Hidden on a Rail for Two Miles—Stripped of His Clothing and Tared and Feathered—Leader of a Peculiar Religious Sect—Absurd Stories.

Bangor, Me., June 6.—The Rev. George Higgins, the leader of the "Holy Ghost and Us" sect in Levant was tarred and feathered late Monday night by an unknown mob. To-day the authorities of the county are making every effort to establish the identity of the offenders. The affair was a most serious and brutal one. It transpires to-day that an attempt was made to burn Higgins after the feathers had been applied, matches being applied three or four times, but some of the cooler headed ones put out the blaze each time.

Rueli Clement, who was seized with Higgins, was rescued by friends after he had been maltreated. Two other prominent male members of the sect were abused by the mob. Higgins was ridden on a rail for about two miles. All his clothing was stripped off on the way except his shoes and socks and his collar, which had resisted the scuffle. He was wounded in many places, but bears his sufferings with remarkable fortitude, quoting scriptures in reply to expressions of sympathy.

Absurd stories are floating in Levant about the scourging of children and the killing of animals by the Holy Ghost people; also the giving away of property. All these stories are without foundation. The sect made no disturbances and there was no persecution of children. They did kill the swine, believing them to be unclean, according to Moses. The best element in Levant is greatly stirred up over the case.

RE-ELECTED CHAIRMAN.

Theodore H. Macdonald Honored by Republican Town Committee.

The republican town committee met last evening in the committee rooms in the Headly building for the purpose of electing a chairman to hold the position for the next two years. All the members of the committee were present with the exception of Thomas M. Gurney of the Twelfth ward, who sent James Johnson as a proxy, every ward being therefore represented. Major D. A. Blakeslee of the Second ward presided at the meeting and S. J. Weil of the Seventh ward was secretary. Theodore H. Macdonald was unanimously re-elected chairman of the town committee. It was voted to authorize him to appoint a finance committee.

It has been complained for some time that the halls in which the courasses and held are too small to accommodate all who desire to attend and that often many are unable to get in. The adoption of the primary system, such as used by the democrats, has been talked of for some time in order to do away with this objection. The matter was talked over last night and it was voted to authorize the chairman to appoint a sub-committee of three to consider the matter and report to the town committee whether or not it is advisable to adopt the primary system. In case the committee recommends in favor of the primary system the question of its adoption will be submitted for vote at the next town convention. Chairman Macdonald did not appoint either the finance committee or the special sub-committee last night.

The present town committee consists of the following members: Charles H. Minor, D. A. Blakeslee, V. P. Clark, J. S. Teal, J. E. Pearce, J. V. Rattlesdorfer, S. J. Weil, O. P. Ives, F. K. Loveland, G. E. Hall, J. R. Carle, T. N. Gierding, M. Dingswall, L. Ludington and E. A. Lovesay.

KRUGER-MILNER CONFERENCE.

Despatch from Bloemfontein That It Has Proved Abortive.

Bloemfontein, Orange Free State, June 6.—The conference between President Kruger and the British high commissioner, Sir Alfred Milner, who is also governor of Cape Colony, was concluded to-day. ## A Prizefighter Overcome.

New York, June 6.—The twenty-round boxing bout between "Mysterious Billy" Smith of this city and Tommy Ryan of Syracuse, which was to have taken place before the Lenox Athletic club a week from to-night, will have to be postponed. To-day while exercising on the front near College Point, L. I., Smith was overcome by the heat. When physicians examined him it was seen that he was suffering so from the sunstroke that Smith's manager, Billy Roche, immediately notified the club representatives, telling them that Smith would not be able to enter the ring for at least two weeks.

Killed Her Child.

Somerville, Mass., June 6.—While in a deranged state of mind, Mrs. Annie M. Roberts to-day gave her nine-months-old daughter a large dose of ether, and then drowned her in the bath tub, after which she attempted to end her own life by taking nearly a quarter of a pound of the volatile fluid. She was discovered in the bath tub with her dead babe by her husband, and with the assistance of two physicians she was returned to consciousness, but not to reason. Mrs. Roberts was removed to an insane asylum this evening.

BASEBALL.

State and National League Games—New Haven, Conn., Reported.

Bristol, June 6.—Notwithstanding that Johnston pitched a first-class game this afternoon, his support was so poor that the home team was enabled to make eleven hits off of him and easily win the game. In the fourth inning Heckman, New Haven's second baseman, injured his hand so badly that he was forced to retire from the game. He had two errors to his credit, however, before retiring. Ashe was also guilty of two costly errors. Mack replaced Heckman. The score:

LOST $400 AT A FUNERAL.

The Grave Dig Up But the Money Not Recovered.

Clinton, Conn., June 6.—Enoch A. Sawyer, a doorkeeper of the state senate, who resides in this place, after assisting at the funeral of Henry Woodstock on April 25 missed a roll of bills amounting to $485 and three $5 gold pieces, and since then he has been unable to get a trace of the missing funds although a liberal reward is offered. Sawyer acted as a bearer at the funeral and since that time it has been frequently suggested that in stooping over he might have lost the roll which was in his hip pocket, into the excavation, and at the urgent suggestion of different parties Mr. Sawyer had the funeral director and sexton reopen the grave and examine the burial case containing the body. A thorough search was made and the earth at the bottom of the grave dug over before reentering the remains, but the missing roll was not found.

OVERCOME BY THE HEAT.

George Smith Taken Suddenly Ill Last Night at No. 24 House.

George Smith, electrician at the Grand opera house, was overcome by the heat about 11:30 o'clock last night while standing in front of No. 24's engine house talking with Captain Chapman. He fainted suddenly and fell, and his brother-in-law, a fireman at No. 24's house, was called. The police ambulance was summoned and Mr. Smith was taken to his home at the corner of State and Bradley streets, where he resides over Bronson's drug store. Mr. Smith has not been working since the Grand closed and yesterday he went clamming. He became ill and overheated, and his sudden illness last night is thought to be due to that. Dr. Wright was called and he pronounced the case one of heat prostration.

FIGHT WITH TRAIN ROBBERS.

The Men That Held Up Union Pacific Train—Sheriff Killed.

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 6.—Sheriff Hazen of Converse county and the posse in pursuit of the Union Pacific train robbers had another fight with the bandits late yesterday, news of which has just been brought in. The robbers were surrounded in a gulch, when they were forced to abandon their horses, which were captured. They hid behind rocks and made a desperate fight. Sheriff Hazen was shot through the body and died at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon. Reinforcements for the posse are going out from Casper as fast as the men can be mounted and armed. The entire country is aroused and the prospects are good for capturing the train robbers.

Rev. A. J. Gammack Harried.

Stamford, Conn., June 6.—Rev. A. J. Gammack, an Episcopal clergyman of New Haven, was married at 4:30 this afternoon to Miss Mary T. Bridgman. The ceremony took place at St. John's church and Rev. James Gammack, D. D., of West Hartford, was the officiating clergyman, assisted by Rev. Charles Morris, rector of St. John's church. A sister of the bride was maid of honor, and George Gammack was best man. A large company attended the wedding in the church, including a number of clergymen from New York and this state.

ANNA ESCHHOLZ IS FOUND

THE LITTLE HARTFORD GIRL WHO DISAPPEARED SUNDAY.

Discovered Lying Near a Tree About a Mile From Where She Was Lost—Had Apparently Been Without Food—Had Green Strawberries in Her Hand—Her Disappearance Not Explained.

New Britain, Conn., June 6.—Anna Eschholz, the six-year-old daughter of Herman Eschholz, a Hartford baker, who mysteriously disappeared from a resort in the suburbs of the city where Mr. Eschholz and members of his family and a number of other people were spending the day, was found this afternoon about a mile from the scene of her disappearance.

Though it was the belief of many that the child was kidnapped searching parties have been active in trying to get some trace of her, as a reward of $150 had been offered by Mr. Eschholz for the recovery of the child, dead or alive. Robert Volght, son of the town treasurer of New Britain, who was in a searching party, found the little girl lying near a tree, and as the vicinity had been previously gone over thoroughly without success the unexpected finding of the girl adds to the mystery.

The child was in a feverish condition when found, and her talk is so incoherent that little can be learned from her. While in a greatly weakened condition Dr. Cahoon says it is a most remarkable case if she had been without food for forty-eight hours. When found she had some green strawberries in her hand. She was in a high fever undoubtedly resulting from exposure, and her shoes gave evidence that she had done considerable walking, while on the other hand her garments do not show the wear that would be expected if she had wandered about the woods.

The finding of the girl does not yet clear the mystery, but it is believed that after the little one gets thoroughly rested and overcomes her evident fright she will be able to tell definitely whether she wandered away or was kidnapped. Albert Volght, who is entitled to the reward for finding the child, announced that he would not accept it.

The news of the finding spread rapidly, and a number of the employees of different firms began their work to visit Mountain Grove to see the child. She was carried to the Doerr house, and Mr. Doerr, the proprietor of the resort, was so gratified that the little one was no longer among the missing, that he kept open house for the remainder of the afternoon. As soon as the child was found Chief-of-Police Johnson was notified and also a physician. The little one was kept at the Mountain house in the grove until nearly 7:30 o'clock when she was taken to her home. When the train arrived in Hartford there were a number of school children to meet it and though a number of questions were asked by the children nothing could be learned how Anna had spent the intervening time. Many people think that the sudden departure of a gypsy train from here might have something to do with the solution of the case. Mr. Eschholz credits the kidnapping theory, but he cannot imagine what was the motive.

HOT IN NEW YORK.

All June Records Broken—98 Degrees at 9 p. m.

New York, June 6.—The record for the hottest June day in New York since the foundation of the weather bureau was established to-day. From early morning, when the thermometer stood around 78, until late in the afternoon the mercury scrambled by gradually one or two degrees an hour. The biggest jump was made between nine and ten o'clock in the morning, when the mercury expanded from 82 to 87, a rise of five degrees. Between one and two o'clock in the afternoon the mercury jumped two degrees, and in the next hour it reached 98 just at three o'clock. One or only two days in the past twelve years has the temperature reached anything like it to-day. In the year 1888 and also in 1893 the maximum for June was 96. The highest record at the weather bureau to-day was 88 degrees. From the street it was several degrees warmer, and the atmosphere was oppressive. The opening of the heated season with the record-breaking temperature was accompanied by an unusual number of heat prostrations for this time of the year. In New York city and several of the near-by towns there were thirty-one prostrations recorded. Twenty-three of these occurred in New York city. Only two cases were women, the remainder being mostly workmen. In Jersey city six prostrations were recorded, one of these being a woman. In New York city only three deaths occurred.

Cleveland Not Ejected.

New York, June 6.—Richard Watson Gilder said to-day that the story printed to the effect that former President Cleveland had been ordered from the fishing grounds of Frank Johnson, a farmer of Torrington, Conn., was untrue. Instead of being ordered away, Mr. Gilder said Mr. Cleveland was on Mr. Johnson's land as the owner's guest and there was no unpleasant incident whatever in connection with his trip there.

Search for Harry Hough.

Boston, June 6.—Search for Harry Hough, treasurer of the Coheco County National and teller of the Coheco County Savings banks of Dover, N. H., who is wanted on a warrant alleging embezzlement, began in earnest here to-day, and there are reasons to believe that Hough came to this city last Sunday morning.

YALE CREW ON THE THAMES.

First Day of Their Training on the River Quite Successful.

Yale Quarters, Gale's Ferry, Conn., June 6.—To-day's sweltering heat did not prevent the Yale crews from putting in some hard practice on the Thames and when the varsity crew left its shell shortly before 8 o'clock tonight after a four mile pull every man felt that the first day of their final training was not wasted. They showed the effect of the sun, however, and there was not one of the men but was considerably more tanned at the close of the day than upon his arrival here yesterday. The first spin of the season was taken about 10 o'clock this morning and lasted an hour, after which the remainder of the day until early evening was spent in lounging around and studying. The mercury at times flirted with the one hundred mark on the thermometer at the quarters, but the fitful breezes during the afternoon seemed to have an exhilarating effect. It was 6:15 o'clock when the crew got aboard the launch and started to tow their shell down to the finish of the four miles course and when the men stepped out on the float and got into the shell they all appeared to be in fit shape. On account of tugs and other boats that were plying up and down the river the crew was somewhat delayed and it was 6:55 before the oarsmen got under way. The water was as smooth as could be desired and, so, the tide aided the rowers. Coaches Cowles and Armstrong followed in the launch and did some effective coaching. Mr. and Mrs. McKee also watched the work of the crew as they spun over the course. The men pulled a 30-stroke, and though no time was given out it was apparent that it was satisfactory. The coaches said that no significance should be attached to the time, even if it was given out, as this was the first day the men had sat in their shell since last Friday. The varsity four was given considerable practice this evening in the pair oars and with the arrival of their shell to-morrow they will work regularly in that. The men retired early to-night and none of them seemed any the worse for their severe work.

THE RACES AT Poughkeepsie.

To Be Rowed in the Middle of the Stream.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 6.—It has been finally and positively decided that the intercollegiate boat races, June 26 and 27, shall be rowed over a course in the middle of the river instead of close inshore, as heretofore. Every one of the board of stewards who attended the conference here last Saturday are in favor of the change. It has been manifested that this is a better course.

Harvard Substitutes Chosen.

Cambridge, Mass., June 6.—The principal event in Harvard boating circles to-day was the picking of the four men who will not only act as substitutes to the varsity crew, but who will probably row a race with Yale substitutes on the morning of June 29. The four men are Blake, Pickins, Kernan and Endicott. They will go to New London a week from to-day with the crew.

DREYFUS' GREAT JOY.

The Conveying of the News to Him of the Revision.

Port de France, Martinique, June 6.—When the despatch boat Geoland, bearing the superintendent of the prison and the commander of marine artillery, who were designated by the French government to notify Dreyfus of the revision of his trial, arrived yesterday from Cayenne at the Isle du Diabie, Dreyfus was waiting on the shore. Although endeavoring to maintain his self-possession he received the official intelligence with a countenance radiant with joy.

The News from Paris.

Paris, June 6.—M. Clemenceau in the Aurore, asserts that after the testimony of General Herve, in the prosecution of M. Paul Deroulede, before the court of assizes on charges of inciting the troops, M. Loubet summoned the prisoner and said: "I expect to be defended by Punish Herve, or make him apologize. Otherwise I will send a message to the chamber of deputies."

La Petite Republique gives details of the royalist plot of Sunday and asserts that the Duke of Orleans has been in Paris since Saturday. The paper says he is at the residence of Count d'Harcourt and only goes out at night disguised. It asks why the government has not yet acted.

Halifax, N. S., June 6.—Advice has been received here that there is every probability of Admiral Ford's North Atlantic fleet meeting Admiral Sampson's North Atlantic squadron at Sidney during an aquatic carnival there, August 5, 6, and 7. It is understood that Admiral Sampson has instructions to be at Sidney provided that the British fleet will meet him there.

Record Run From Havana.

New York, June 6.—The Ward line steamer Havana, Captain Stevens, arrived to-day from Havana. The run was made from Morro Castle to the Sandy Hook lightship in two days fifteen hours and fifty minutes, the best day's run being 545 knots. This great run cuts down the record by four hours and ten minutes.

SOUTHERN RACE QUESTION

FIRM WORDS OF REV. DR. W. HAYES WARD.

Spoken Before Connecticut Valley Congregational Club—Belief in Superiority of Anglo-Saxon Race Not Borne Out by Facts—Were He a Negro He Would Kill First Man Who Attempted to Kill His Friends.

Easthampton, Mass., June 6.—An interesting session of the Connecticut Valley Congregational club was held this afternoon in this town. In the absence of the president of the club the first vice president, Rev. H. T. Rose of Northampton, took charge of the meeting. He introduced Rev. Dr. William Hayes Ward, editor of the Independent, to speak upon the subject, "The Race Problem in the South." After a few remarks, Dr. Ward spoke, in part, as follows:

"This subject is a particularly interesting one to me and I always feel that it should be to others. However, as I look about me I see few in the audience who can have a real knowledge of the conditions which this subject implies. Only those whose hair has become grey can know of what the conditions were in the years before the civil war. In 1853 anti-slavery was not by any means a popular profession. The war ended slavery, but it did not end the conditions which have continued to the present time, and will continue until fairly met by sturdy opposition. I do not regard this as really a race problem, but rather as a problem of conditions. I believe that the fibre of the human brain is the same in all races. I do not believe that there is a special brain structure for the black man. There is a large ability in all races. It is conditions and opportunities which make the difference between people. There is a general feeling that the Anglo-Saxon race is far superior to any other race on the earth, but this is not borne out by facts. We have no right to set ourselves up on a pinnacle and say that we shall not consider the black man, nor the yellow man, nor any other race of men on a level with ourselves."

"In some states they have made laws preventing the negroes from voting, and they call it constitutional. There are more negroes in Alabama than white men, yet they must not vote, so say the whites. Such action is in direct opposition to the United States constitution and the time has come for opposition to such methods. The whites made no bones of the purpose for which they enacted these laws. The system adopted to disfranchise the negro is not a test of intelligence, but one of color and an ignorant white may vote while a negro is refused the right. Some time there will be a clash, it is bound to come as the inevitable result.

"The negro leaders never fail to condemn the perpetration of such crimes as we read above, but if the laws of the south were anywhere nearly executed there would be no need of the mob violence. Were I a negro in the south I would shoot the first white man or any kind of a man who, with an unprincipled mob, attempted to take the life of my friends of my family. I consider self-defense and self-protection righteous. The only way to solve this problem and to give the negroes power is by educating them. Give them culture, refinement, education and knowledge and the problem will solve itself."

LOOKING FOR TEACHERS.

Supt. Kendall Aways Seeking Some to Fill Vacant Positions.

Superintendent Kendall of the city schools is away looking up teachers to fill vacancies which will occur in several positions next year, including a supervisor of drawing to take the place of Miss Skinner, resigned. It was stated by a member of the board of education last night that there would probably be no meeting of the board Friday night, the regular meeting night, as Mr. Kendall would probably not be ready then to make recommendations for appointments. The meeting will probably be postponed a week. The building committee of the board was out inspecting school buildings yesterday afternoon.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

SENATE VOTED AGAINST THE APPROPRIATION FOR STORRS.

Bill for Half Fare for School Children on Trolley Roads Passed by the House - Advocated by Mr. Bree - Bill to Amend Railroad Taxation Act Passed by the House - Other Matters Acted On.

In the house yesterday Mr. Bree of New Haven introduced a substitute bill providing for the issuance by trolley companies of half fare tickets to school children. Early in the session Mr. Bree introduced a similar bill which was reported upon adversely by the railroad committee. In presenting the substitute bill yesterday Mr. Bree advocated its passage in an able speech. Mr. King of Willimantic spoke in favor of its passage, as did also Mr. Kenealy. The substitute bill was then passed by the house. The text of the bill is as follows:

All street railway companies operating lines in this state shall issue and sell to school children attending the public schools at convenient times and places for use on cars of said companies and from the schools which they attend, such number of tickets for the sum of $1 as shall be requisite to make the rate of fares of each ride one-half that required of adult passengers on said lines, which tickets shall entitle the holder thereof of all rights of transfer given to other passengers.

Said companies may provide that the tickets so issued and sold shall be used only during those hours when the public schools or school in the town, city or borough where the lines are operated shall be in session and for one hour preceding and one hour following said session.

The bill to provide for the appointment of milk inspectors by common councils of cities, wardens and burgesses of boroughs and selectmen of towns and for the registration of milk dealers, was passed after a long discussion.

The house took a recess at 12:30 until 1:30, and reconvened about 1:45. After the recess it was voted, on motion of Mr. King, to adhere to the previous action of the house in voting an appropriation of $20,000 to Storrs Agricultural college, the senate having voted unfavorably on the bill. A committee of conference was asked for by the house, and Messrs. King and Merriam were appointed members.

House bill No. 625 concerning fishing with set lines was taken from the table and amended so as to exempt private ponds and tide water ponds. The bill as amended was then passed. It provides for a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $25 for anyone caught fishing with set lines in other waters than ponds as excepted in the amendment.

The bill concerning the annual report of the railroad companies was taken from the table and amended as to the time when reports must be submitted and was passed as amended.

House bill No. 78 providing for the exemption of cash on hand from the items required in tax lists of railroads was taken up and discussed at length. It was opposed by Mr. Fillman or Hartford and Mr. Pratt of Torrington. Mr. Kenealy, Mr. King and Mr. Tucker spoke in favor of the bill, which was passed by a vote of 59 to 55. The vote did not disclose a quorum, but a count of the members present showed that 159 were present, enough for a quorum, and the bill was declared passed.

The senate passed the bill appropriating $175,000 for good roads for each of the two ensuing years. The bill also provides that not more than $4,500 shall go to any one town in the same year.

On motion of Senator Welch, who has opposed any unnecessary expenditure this session, and who has been dubbed "the watch dog of the treasury," the bill to increase the salary of the labor commissioner to $2,500, as recommended by the committee, was passed. The senate had previously fixed the rate at $1,500, but this action was reconsidered.

The bill to provide for the recording of notice of all accidents in factories, in the office of the factory inspector, was rejected on unfavorable report from the labor committee. The senate adjourned until 10:30 to-day.

SELECTING FOOD TO BRING ABOUT CERTAIN RESULTS. Farmers select certain food to bring about desired results in their animals, but it is not so easy a matter with the complex machine, called man, (or more highly organized woman).

The food specialist, however, has been at work, and in Grape-Nuts we find a food containing delicate natural particles of phosphate of Potash and larger quantities of albumen. These unite in the human body, forming the peculiar soft substance which fills the cells of the brain. Therefore, when one desires to use a food directly intended for brain building, the food Grape-Nuts may be depended upon.

The Lebanon correspondent of the Norwich Bulletin says: "The Rev. George F. Proutis, pastor of the Davenport church of New Haven, was present at the Memorial day exercises in Lebanon at the Grange hall and gave an address which was listened to with the closest attention. Spirited singing of patriotic songs added much to the interest of the occasion. Instrumental music was also a prominent feature. The music was arranged by Charles Briggs. The graves of the heroic dead were decorated by the veterans, who marched in a body to the cemetery. A large attendance of citizens encouraged the veterans and all enjoyed the exercises. The Rev. George F. Proutis has been engaged to deliver the address in 1900 at the memorial service."

BUTTERFLY FETE.

At the New Haven Lawn Club—Continued To-Day. The "Butterfly Fete" at the New Haven Lawn Club on Whitney avenue yesterday afternoon and evening, in aid of the New Haven Young Women's Christian Association's Exchange for women's work, was a success in every particular. There was a large attendance of those interested in the grand exhibit the feature being the butterfly collection of the Denton Brothers of Wellesley, Mass. They are both of them enthusiastic naturalists and they now have mounted a collection of between four and five hundred butterflies and moths from all parts of the world. Sherman Denton, one of the brothers, was present yesterday and gave an interesting address upon the subject of butterflies, explaining their characteristics, where they are found and the variety of specimens. It was interesting not only to the scientist but to every one present.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDINGS.

A Number of Young Couples Made Happy Yesterday. June is decidedly the month of weddings. Year after year it has noted a larger number of couples made happy than any other month. This year will be no exception, in New Haven at least, and if the way in which it has started off it is to be taken as an indication the record will certainly surpass that of previous years.

At the home of the bride, 58 Garden street, last evening took place one of the prettiest weddings this season—the marriage of Miss Colwell, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Colwell, to William Franklin Odell of Bridgeport. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. Lee Mitchell of the Fair Haven Congregational church. The groom was formerly of this city, but now holds an excellent position with the Wild Manufacturing company of Bridgeport. He is the third son of Mrs. Maria Odell of Fair Haven.

The bride was most becomingly attired in a pearl grey gown of the new and very lovely goods imported this season. It was trimmed with white chiffon and embroidered chiton vest over white silk. The bride's hat was pearl grey, fancy straw, with liberty silk of the same shade, with large pink silk poppies and foliage. She carried a bouquet of white bride roses with white ribbon.

The maid of honor was Miss George Odell, the groom's sister. The best man was the bride's brother, William Colwell. Immediately after the ceremony a reception followed, to which about two hundred invitations were issued. After a wedding tour up the Hudson and to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Odell will settle in Bridgeport, where a newly and prettily furnished home awaits them, and where they will be at home to their many friends after July 4.

Another pretty ceremony was the marriage of Edwin Erwin Allen of this city to Miss Gertrude Louise Bishop, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bishop of 73 Henry street. Only the relatives of both families were present at the ceremony.

The Rev. Allyn K. Foster of Olivet Baptist church was the officiating clergyman. There was neither best man nor maid of honor, but the two ushers were Homer Perkins and Homer Bradley. The house was decorated with ferns and hundreds of daisies. All the mantels were banked solid with ferns and daisies, and the bridal party stood under an arch of palms.

The bride wore a gown of pearl white tulle, the bodice trimmed with embroidered bands of pearls edging a yoke of mousseline de soie. Her towers were white roses. She also wore the bridegroom's wedding gift, a pair of diamond earrings. To his ushers Mr. Allen gave scarf pins in the design of a pearl wreath. Mrs. Bishop received her guests in a costume of black silk combined with white chiffon and steel embroidery. Mrs. Henry F. Bryant of Boston, Mr. Allen's sister, and Mr. Bryant assisted Mr. and Mrs. Bishop in receiving their guests.

At the ceremony were present Herbert Goodwin of Willimantic, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. William Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Bishop and Miss Bishop of Providence, Miss Nellie Goodwin, Henry L. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac W. Bishop, Earl Clark and Miss Ethel Clark.

The gifts were numerous and included much solid silver, cut glass, Haviland china and pictures. From her parents the bride received a handsome and massive solid silver tea service of five pieces.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Allen left for a trip through the Berkshires, and returning they will live at 73 Henry street. Mrs. Allen wore as traveling dress a costume of gray whip cloth, tailor made. John P. Buckley, assistant registrar of vital statistics, was married at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at St. Francis' R. C. church to Miss Nellie G. Foley. Miss Foley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Foley, No. 49 Clay street, and is a niece of Frank Foley, formerly alderman for several terms in the Twelfth ward. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Thomas Blake of St. Francis'. The bride's sister, Miss May Foley, was the maid of honor, and Thomas F. Coffey stood with Mr. Buckley as best man. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home, to which only the relatives of both families were bidden.

The many beautiful presents were shown. At noon Mr. and Mrs. Buckley went away for a week's trip. They will live at Lloyd and Clay streets, where a pretty home has been made ready for their reception when they return, and where they will give a reception to their large circle of friends later.

MILFORD.

June 6.—Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bentley spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Miles at Burns' Point. Walter C. Oviatt, until recently assistant postmaster in Milford, is at present employed in Trinity church by the rector, the Rev. Dr. George Pomeroy Allen. Only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom will attend the wedding. DeForest Baldwin, the bridegroom's brother, will be best man. After a short trip Mr. Baldwin will bring his bride to New Haven and they will live at No. 260 Crown street.

The engagements are announced of Miss Anna Holmes Galpin, only daughter of William Dwight Galpin of Ansonia, to Nelson Arthur Howard, Yale '99 S., son of Captain Arthur L. Howard of Brownsburg, Quebec, Canada.

WAS OVER ONE HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

Eastampton, June 6.—Mrs. Abigail Foote Loomis, one of the oldest residents in this section of the state, died this morning. On the 26th of this month she would have reached the age of 101 years. Old age was the cause of death.

BUTTERFLY FETE.

At the New Haven Lawn Club—Continued To-Day. One of the large butterflies that was mounted is known as the "Attaeus Atlas," or giant race from Assam, India. Its wings were over six inches in length and it was of a beautiful old gold color with brilliant spots. Then there was the "Trama Crossa" from China, which was also very brilliant. Then there was the "Ornithoptera Priamus" from Australia. Another was the "Caligo" from South America, which was very pretty. Then there was a handsome specimen of the lunar moth, which attracted much attention. There were specimens from all parts of the world. They were handsomely mounted in paper boxes with glass covers.

The rooms were very handsomely ornamented with flower palms, grasses and the like. To select from among the 575 specimens any special one or collection, for the collection is divided into smaller collections for the purpose of exhibition, is a difficult matter. The butterflies are shown each in a little white case of glass and are in a state of absolute preservation, as regards not only color, however delicate or gorgeous, but form as well. On the lawn the children were entertained by a novel "grass" contrivance in charge of Miss Dowers and Miss Lindley. Gorgeous paper butterflies were hung out, each butterfly concealing a prize, but the child who would own one of these had first to catch it in a butterfly net. Rita Wheeler, Majorie Trowbridge and Harriet Moseley, three diminutive helpers, assisted in the entertaining of the small visitors, and Miss Cornelia Welch, assisted by a boy of young girls, served ices and fruit punch and lemonade on the lawn and cool piazza.

FIFTH CONGRESS.

Of the Mutual Provident Union. New London, June 6.—The second session of the fifth congress of the National Provident union opened in this city at 8 o'clock this morning and will continue until 6 o'clock Wednesday.

To-day its sessions were consumed in the presentation of reports and the consideration of amendments to the constitution. At the opening of the meeting this afternoon Mayor Beckwith extended a welcome to the delegates.

From the reports presented the membership of the union was shown to be 3,274 on April 30, 1899, a loss of 252 during the year. There are five councils of the order in Connecticut located at New Haven, Bridgeport, Hartford, Norwich and Milford. The organization also works in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Illinois, Kentucky and South Carolina.

About seventy-five delegates are in attendance at the congress.

A PET DOG'S FATE.

South Norwalk, June 6.—Willie Morton, aged eleven years, until two months ago was an inmate of the town children's home. Since then he has been employed by Miss Sarah L. Davenport of Wilton. Sunday a pet dog owned by Miss Davenport died. It is said she accused him of poisoning the dog, and according to the boy's story, lashed him with a horse whip as he lay in bed. The boy returned to work yesterday morning. He says she tied him to a board and beat him with a club. After this punishment he ran away. The case has been reported to Agent Thrall.

What is so hot as a day in June? It is said that something like $65,000,000 of insolvent indebtedness has been wiped out or discharged since the federal bankruptcy act went into effect.

All the young Americans are not little Americans. Ralph Horne of Philadelphia, who was fifteen years old when he enlisted last February, with the consent of his father, is now in the Philippines, a member of the Twelfth United States Infantry.

The United States Coast Survey has completed the geodesic survey across the continent on the thirty-ninth parallel, and the results are shortly to be published. An elaborate system of triangulation was employed, and so accurate has been the work that the distance, which is about 2,825 miles, has been fixed without an error of 100 feet, or less than one-half inch to the mile.

Horses are becoming worth something in the West. Buyers are now paying $15 in the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Minnesota for animals which were considered two or three years ago fit only for the abattoir. The improvement in the horse market is due to an increased demand, particularly from the government, for animals for use in the military service, and to a reduction in the supply. Under the low prices recently prevailing many horse breeders went out of business, and the short life of the animal for practical uses speedily stripped the market. It is stated that the demand for fast harness horses is also improving.

Governor Ellerbe of South Carolina, who died of consumption last week, was the youngest man ever elected to a general office in that State. He was born in 1822 and became comptroller general at the age of twenty-seven. In 1896, when he was only thirty-four years old, he was chosen governor without formidable opposition, and in 1898 was elected to the same office again, this time against the will of a horde of disappointed office-seekers, sore-heads and members of the two Democratic factions, radical and conservative, whom he had failed to please. In his endeavor to satisfy everybody and be the governor of the whole State instead of a single faction he made many enemies.

School officials in Germany are considering the advisability of adopting for children's use an expurgated edition of the Bible. Parts of this book, they argue, are more utterly unsuited for the young person than the average problem novel of to-day. They declare that to its pages numbers of boys and girls have recourse only for reasons scarcely acceptable to either parent or clergyman. Consequently upon this course of reasoning, an edition of the Bible, carefully expurgated, has long been in use in Prussia and the northern provinces. It is known as the Bremen School Bible, and makes a book about half the compass of the entire Scriptures. Now the movement has spread to South Germany, and the Wurtemberg Bible society has received orders for a large edition of a similar work.

The majesty of the law has been invoked in an endeavor to obtain satisfactory compensation for having been made the victim of a series of practical jokes by Mr. Brov, of the cafe in the Place de Clichy, Paris, and the facts seem to warrant his demand. Some time since 3,000 bottles of beer arrived at his place with a bill to be paid. He had not ordered them. Nor had he ordered a bathtub that shortly followed. It was the same way with a wet nurse who presented herself next day. A summons from a magistrate made the poor wretch hope the law would aid him, but the magistrate denied sending for him and threatened to commit him if he persisted in his appeals. Upon his dejected return home he found waiting a banker's clerk to collect bills he had never signed. Then came 300 urchins to get a place as errand boys, and Mr. Brov sought his lawyer. He remembered two customers who were always present when the "jokes" were "sprung," and suspecting these men, he has brought suit against them to recover $2,000 damages.

THE ROBES. The judges of the Supreme and Superior Courts of Connecticut are, it is said, soon to appear in robes white on the bench. There seems to be a difference of opinion concerning the size of the addition which the robes will make to the majesty of the judges, and some go so far as to seem to think that the robes will not make any addition to the majesty. As it is too hot to have a heated discussion about this momentous matter we shall not attempt to encourage one. We will simply pause to remark that it will suit us if the judges will stick to the simple and severe Mother Hubbard and not get gay and put on shirt waists.

ONE OCTOPUS NEATLY TRAPPED. Those of our readers who lie awake nights for fear of the octopi and in vain regret that the law can't get the better of the awful animals will feel cheered by the story of how one unaided but pretty smart man did get the better of one of them. The story comes from New Jersey by way of New Orleans, but that is nothing against it, and besides it is said to be absolutely true. It appears that the smart man was at the head of a small concern making—let us say—car wheels, and about a year ago he got a private hint that the other car-wheel people were arranging a combine. He said nothing but immediately communicated with several of the largest consumers, and by offering confidentially a reduction of about 15 per cent, secured advance orders that would occupy him over two years to fill, running at full capacity. At the price named every wheel would be made at loss, and his partners were badly scared. He told them to keep their mouths shut and wait. In a few months the trust was organized, according to program, and one day a bland agent dropped in and offered him a fair price for the plant. He said he didn't care to sell. The trust thereupon proceeded to put on the screws in the usual fashion. In other words, they cut rates, but, strange to say, the little wheelmaker didn't seem to care. Then they made another and much larger cut, with the intention of freezing him out at one fell swoop. That was just what he was waiting for, and through a third party he placed orders with the trust covering all the contracts he had made at a figure that left him a handsome margin of profit. Without suspecting that the large orders came from their intended victim, the trust people became alarmed at the losses incurred in the freezing out process and made him another and much better offer for his plant, which he accepted. Now the trust has the concern and is obliged to run it day and night to make wheels at 25 per cent, under actual cost for the man it tried to ruin. As fast as he gets them he turns them over on his contracts, and reaps an intermediate profit, while the trust magnates howl with anguish every time they make a delivery. The little wheelmaker got enough out of the sale of the plant to retire for life, and he is carrying out the rest of the campaign merely for sport. He says it's great fun to see a trust on the grill.

Gentle reader, yet savage hater of the octopi, go thou and do likewise.

RICH, BUT UNHAPPY. This is good weather for wishing to be rich, and it is also good weather for contemplating the luck of those who are rich enough to go to the shore every minute if they want to and order ice-cream soda every second. In the June issue of Alnsted's magazine Mr. John Glimmer Speed tells us that in the whole United States there are 4,000 men who are worth $1,000,000 and upward. Of these no less than 1,400 are in New York city, while the remaining 2,600 are scattered throughout the country. Of those in New York city one has in excess of $100,000,000, one in excess of $75,000,000, one in excess of $50,000,000, three in excess of $40,000,000, six in excess of $30,000,000, five in excess of $20,000,000, three in excess of $15,000,000, eighteen in excess of $10,000,000, seventeen in excess of $5,000,000, thirty in excess of $4,000,000, fifty-four in excess of $3,000,000, 159 in excess of $2,000,000 and 1,050 in excess of $1,000,000. Outside of New York in the country at large one man exceeds $50,000,000, one exceeds $40,000,000, one exceeds $20,000,000, eighteen exceed $10,000,000, thirty exceed $5,000,000, fifty-nine exceed $3,000,000, 193 exceed $2,000,000 and 2,207 exceed $1,000,000.

Taken altogether, the wealth of these 4,000 millionaires amounts to $5,587,000,000, while the value of the real and personal property of the United States is about $90,000,000,000, showing that the great millionaires own only a small fraction of the accumulated wealth of the country. Indeed, if to their possessions should be added the possessions of all men having more than $100,000, the total would be about $12,000,000,000, leaving $78,000,000,000 to be divided among those with modest fortunes or a competency.

One of the most interesting of the tables prepared by Mr. Speed is the one showing the manner in which the fifty richest men in America accumulated their fortunes. Twelve gained wealth by "building and operating railroads and speculating in railroad shares." Ten may accredit their fortunes to an "increase in the value of land." Seven got rich in "producing and refining petroleum." Seven owe their accumulations to "commerce and subsequent investments." Three waxed wealthy in the business of "sugar refining." Five only are listed as gaining their fortunes in the mining of "gold, silver and copper." Two made their fortunes out of steamboating. One is a meat packer, one an insurance king, one an iron dealer, one a telephone prince and two are very rich from "banking and other investments."

There's still room at the top. Let us strive to get there on $4 a week. But let us remember that riches do not bring happiness.

You'll Never Be Missed. You man of the majestic mien, all swollen up with pride, Who feels that none can estimate your worth, Who treads the streets with kingly air and pomp, As if you held a mortgage on the earth, Come down for just a moment from your rather dizzy perch, And let this little old lodge in your head; This world was a pronounced success before you saw the light, And will move on just the same when you are dead.

The Master who created you and placed you here on earth, Gave life unto the man of labor, too, And, though you may be favored with the beam; In every manly virtue and in honesty that's true, Be your superior, though grand you seem. Though you may look with proud disdain down from your lofty height, On men who labor for their daily bread, Remember that the world was here before you saw the light, And will never even miss you when you're dead.

There'll be no aristocracy in heaven, you will find, If you should chance to make a landing there, And lie to whose existence on the earth you are so blind, Will be your equal in those realms so fair. Come down from off your pedestal and show your manly worth, From out of cloudland pull your kingly head; The powerful machinery of this revolving earth Will never slip a cog when you are dead. —The Deaver Evening Post.

FASHION NOTES. As SILKS are Combined, The new figured silks in blue and white recall the microbe patterns of three years ago, but are different and light in style. There is endorsement, too, for their employment as the only material of a gown, but they are at their best, considered as to stylishness, when made up with another silk in the manner this picture suggests. Here overskirt and jacket bodice were lilac-blue and white fuchsia, while under-skirt and the lower part of the front were of plain lilac-blue silk, the latter portion arranged in deep bias pleats. Tucked white chiffon furnished the yoke. This proportion of figured goods to plain stuff does not vary much, for although it seems as if a little of the fancy material should go a good way, there is usually much more of it than of the plain weave.

The lilac-blue of this silk set the color for the hat to accompany it, the fancy straw and the paradise feather aigrette both being of that shade. White roses and green foliage made up the other trimming. Such use of a feathery aigrette on a hat whose greatest dimension is width is a new and stylish characteristic. Manila straw is being used in many hats, and the chiffon and black net that was too easily made to escape undue popularity, so such are rapidly losing distinction. Hats of folded wicker lace straw are very stunning in bright butter color trimmed with a bow of lilac velvet. Theater hats of white tulle in Henry the Eighth shape are trimmed with black paradise sweeps and rhinestone buckles. They are likely to remain stylish for some time. Boat-shaped hats that swell over the forehead and with sides very high are the most popular form of the down-tipped hat. The found hat tipped over the nose is no longer good form. Hats flared from the face are worn but need careful selection. Blue is most often seen in hats, but that by no means means that it is the most exclusive selection. Hats harmonize in color with the gown, though black, gray and blue hats are worn with any color of dress. FLORETTE.

A Stimulus to War.—"Does your son feel that his heart is in this war in the Philippines, Mrs. Smith?" "I should say so. He writes that every time he fires at a Filipino he remembers that he owes him a grudge for making him miss the cherry-pie season at home."—Chicago Record.

Wealth.—"Yes, her hat was certainly lovely, though it had cost but $18.12; quite as lovely as that Smith woman's, which had cost nearly a hundred." "But the Smiths are able to own a more conspicuous pew in church than we are," faltered her husband. "Well, they can't come in any later than we can, I guess!" she exclaimed, radiantly.

With us, wealth confers no distinctions at all comparable to those which it does not confer.—Detroit Journal.

MEN WHO HAVE MADE TOWNS. English Industrial Centers Resulting From Individual Initiative. Although it falls to the lot of few men to be, like Cecil Rhodes, "empire-builders," there are many men living to-day who have either founded large and flourishing towns or have nursed them from small beginnings into great things. Jarrow-on-Tyne, with its population of over thirty-four thousand, is the child of Sir Charles Mark Palmer, still a hale old man of seventy-six. In the forties "young Mr. Palmer" was a clerk in his father's office, and Jarrow was a tiny village with never a dream of the growth which was awaiting it.

It was in 1852 that Mr. Palmer, who had already blossomed into a coal manufacturer and colliery owner, built the small screw steamer John Bowles, which was the cradle of the fortunes of Jarrow, and largely of Newcastle itself. His success was so full of promise that Mr. Palmer, in partnership with his brother George, commenced ship-building on a small scale, with the result that to-day their works cover the hundred acres seven thousand men find employment in building ships, as many more are supported by the Palmer's mines of coal and iron, and Jarrow has developed in undreamed-of proportions.

Just as Sir Charles Palmer made Jarrow, Lord Armstrong is the father of Elswick, with its busy thousands of workers. When Sir Charles Palmer was acting as his father's clerk the future founder of Elswick was a Newcastle solicitor, without any suspicion of the fame and fortune which were awaiting him in quite another field of labor.

He had already invented the hydraulic crane and the hydro-electric machine, and his brain was teeming with other important inventions. In 1847 he abandoned the law and started the Elswick Iron Works to develop his inventions, but it was the discovery of the famous Armstrong gun that brought fortune to him and to Elswick.

To-day Mr. Armstrong's works on the Tyne-side spread over seventy acres and give employment to more than fifteen thousand hands, thus supporting a population of something like sixty thousand people.

Burton-on-Trent, with a population of nearly fifty thousand, owes its existence and prosperity to old William Bass, the carrier, of the last century, and his capable descendants. It was in 1777 that William Bass, while acting as carrier for a small brewer called, Princeton, saw the fortune that lurked in Burton beer. He opened a small brewery on his own account, and thought his fortune made when his yearly output amounted to six thousand barrels. To-day, through the skill and enterprise of his descendants, the six thousand barrels have grown to nearly fifteen hundred thousand, while nearly two hundred and fifty million betting labels are used every year. The minimum stock-in-trade is six hundred thousand casks, eighty-five thousand acres are required to produce the supply of barley and hops, and an army of over 250 men are employed in the brewery and its offices.

Manningham, with its population of over thirty-five thousand, was a scattered village when Lord Masham, then plain "Sam" Lister, breathed on it and made it live and grow. Young Mr. Lister, in spite of all legends to the contrary, began his business life with a considerable endowment of wealth.

He was industrious and inventive, and chose to lead a laborious business life. His wool-combing machine, which cost him in experiments more than one hundred thousand pounds, was the basis of his fortune; but it was his discovery of the method of converting silk waste into rich velvets, plushes and silks that made a millionaire of him and a prosperous town of Manningham, where he built his colossal mills.

Even Birmingham scarcely realizes the debt it owes to the present colonial secretary. Quite apart from the impetus which Mr. Chamberlain's prosperous business gave to its growth, he has infused new life into all its veins.

THE GEORGE H. FORD COMPANY, authorized Time Inspectors for the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, make a specialty of the repairing, adjusting, and sale of watches for RAILROAD USE.

When Mr. Chamberlain first came on the municipal scene Birmingham was faithfully described as "a miserable, insanitary, overgrown village." To-day, thanks principally to its most gifted citizen, it is a city of fine streets, stately buildings and excellent sanitation.—London Mail.

THE "PHYSIC GARDEN" TO BE SAVED. It is good news that the old "Physic Garden" at Chelsea is to be rescued from the clutches of the speculative builder, though it seems strange that the rescue should have to be effected, as a last resource, by the trustees of the London Parochial charities. No doubt the study of botany deserves encouragement, but we should hardly have thought that it came under the heading of a parochial charity. To criticize the means by which the gardens have been saved, however, is but looking a gift horse in the mouth; for of the benefit there can be no doubt whatever. It is true that the "Physic Garden" had long outlived its original purpose. When Sir Hans Sloane presented it in 1721 to the Apothecaries' company he thought, no doubt, that he was providing them with the means of perfecting their professional attainments for all time. But the modern physician has little need to go hunting about in a garden for "simples" to cure diseases, and so the "Physic Garden" at Chelsea has gradually declined to the position of one of those things which guides to London describe as "well worth a visit," but which, nevertheless, nobody visits. Unfortunately, too, a physic garden cannot be kept going without expenditure, and as decade after decade passed without restoring any of its lost utility and prestige to Sir Hans Sloane's garden, the Apothecaries' society naturally became desirous of getting rid of what had proved to be a white elephant. Happily, its sale for building has been postponed by the decision of the trustees of the London Parochial charities to expend the necessary eight hundred pounds yearly.—London Globe.

DANGER IN SODA. Serious Results Sometimes Follow Its Excessive Use.

Common soda is all right in its place and indispensable in the kitchen and for cooking and washing purposes, but it was never intended as a medicine, and people who use it as such will some day regret it.

We refer to the common use of soda to relieve heartburn or sour stomach, a habit which thousands of people practice and one which is fraught with danger; moreover the soda only gives temporary relief and in the end the stomach troubles get worse and worse.

The soda acts as a mechanical irritant to the walls of the stomach and bowels and cases are on record where it has accumulated in the intestines, causing death by inflammation or peritonitis.

Dr. Harlan recommends as the safest and surest cure for sour stomach (acid dyspepsia) an excellent preparation sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These tablets are large 20-grain lozenges, very pleasant to taste and contain the natural acids, pepsines and digestive elements essential to good digestion, and when taken after meals they digest the food perfectly and promptly before it has time to ferment, sour and poison the blood and nervous system.

Dr. Wuerth states that he invariably uses Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all cases of stomach derangements and finds them a certain cure not only for sour stomach, but by promptly digesting the food they create flesh and strengthen the action of the heart and liver. They are not a cathartic, but benefited only for stomach diseases and all stomach troubles except cancer of the stomach. All druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at 50 cents per package.

A little book describing all forms of stomach weakness and their cure mailed free by addressing the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

TAX ON COUNTRY CHECKS.

The Subject Discussed by New York Country Bankers.

New York, June 4.—The bankers of group VI of the New York State Bankers' association held their spring meeting yesterday at the Murray Hill hotel. This group takes in the territory of seven counties along the Hudson river, north of New York county. There was first a business meeting, then luncheon, and finally, over the cigars, a series of informal addresses. C. F. Van Inwagen, the chairman of the group, presided, with Frank Barber as secretary. Mr. Van Inwagen is the president of the First National bank of Port Jervis, and Mr. Barber is the cashier of the Sullivan county National bank at Liberty.

When the informal speaking began, after the luncheon, it was soon made evident that the recent action of the New York Clearing House in imposing a charge for handling "country checks" was a subject close to the hearts of most of those present. Even the New York City bankers who were present as guests had something to say on the subject. Mr. Van Norden, who was introduced as a man who had had "some experience in our line of business," took up the subject at once. He made a number of jocose remarks on banking in general and the relation of the country banker to the city banker.

Among other speakers were Alvah Trowbridge, president of the North American Trust company, who discussed the country check subject in this wise: There are two sides to this question—and perhaps three. First, there is your side, and then there is ours. We all understand that. But there is a third person, who makes the trouble for the other two, and that is the man who makes a check when he has not got the money in bank to meet it. He sends the check to New York and calculates that by the time he gets back to his town—six, eight or ten days later—he will be able to raise the money. Three-fifths of the checks that come to New York are not good when they start. You may doubt that, but I know it to be true. Well, some fine day a customer comes to you and explains that you will get a check of his the next day, and he has no money to meet it. "Oh, no," you say, "it came in to-day." And such men send in more checks than others, because they have to buy in smaller quantities. Of course, your customer promises to make good tomorrow and the question is, Are you in order to make twenty-five cents going to accommodate him? It is the same way with drafts and notes, and you have more of it than we do.

There is another thing to be considered. Banks in New York are not selling merchandise. We don't care whether cotton goes up half a cent or whether it goes down a cent, yet because we try to make an arrangement that shall make our business pay, we are accused of trying to antagonize the business interests of the whole country. Still another point is the position of the postoffice and the express companies. Often while a country banker is trying to make a little business with two or three checks, the express companies will send him money orders at 7 or 8 cents a piece. In 1898 more than 70,000,000 postoffice money orders were issued payable in New York, and the express companies did nearly as much business in that manner. They come to us by the basketful.

I give you this to think about. While your customer is pestering you with checks that are not good the man whose check is good pays 8 cents to the express company. Let the country banker and others get together and talk this over.

The chairman read a letter from W. E. Frew of the Long Island City bank. Mr. Frew advocated the establishment of a country clearing house, which would attend to these country checks. He said that such a clearing house would cost less proportionately than the New York city clearing house.

Mr. Pugsley talked on currency reform. He declared that this country should have a fixed standard of value unchangeable, and the best standard in the world.

Mr. Rhodes spoke briefly returning to the check question. He said it was simply a matter of business and of getting educated up to the situation. If the country bankers fall to educate the New York bankers up to the point of giving up their new regulation, he supposed they would have to educate themselves to get round it.

While in New York, Dr. McDonald took occasion to call upon his old friend, Vicar General J. A. Mulcahy, at St. Vincent's hospital. THE DEAD MAN'S EYES. The Mysterious Story of a Miner's Buried Treasure.

Virginia City, Nev., in the flush days of the great Comstock Lode: A man strolled down C street one June evening and then struck into a trail which led upward along the slant of Mount Davidson. He was a large, broad-shouldered, full-bearded man. At a point where the trail diverged he stopped as if for a short rest, and with his hat in his hand, turned to view the scene below him.

ders were true. Why was it he had no partner and worked his claim alone? Was there any truth in the rumor that Jim's claim was paying well and that he was keeping his money hid instead of banking it? As to his own claim—well, Gus was a good and uncomplaining worker, and the cabin was all right to sleep in. Mining was a gamble anyway, and so was faro. Still, one knew there was money in faro. If the cards came right, but this evening Jose Casandra was broke. A week before he had won a thousand dollars at a single sitting.

After a while the object of his gaze moved on, and Casandra followed, keeping well in the rear. When he arrived at Sanders' cabin Jim stood in the doorway.

"Hello, Joe!" "Hello, Jim!" "How they comin'?" "Darned bad," savagely.

"Better leave the chips alone, Joe—there's nothing in it," said Jim, philosophically. "Why don't you help the poor Dutchman out? More money in that, Joe."

"Advice is cheap, replied Casandra, ill-natured. "D'ye think y'd be willin' to give me anythin' else?" "I might," said Jim, calmly knocking the ashes out of his pipe against his boot heel.

"Then lend me a hundred dollars." "No, Joe, I won't; it wouldn't do ye any good."

"To hell with you and your advice!" exclaimed Casandra, angrily, striding swiftly away and up the trail to the cabin he shared with Gus.

The next morning, on his way to town, he stopped at Jim's cabin. In his mind was a half-formed resolution to say some commonplace thing to Jim which the latter might accept as an apology for his rudeness of the previous evening. There was no sense in making an enemy of him. He threw away his cigarette and hesitatingly approached the door, which stood ajar, and looked in.

He saw that Jim was lying on his side on the bed, with one arm thrown up over his head. His big gray eyes were wide open, and seemed to be looking Casandra full in the face.

"Mornin', Jim."

There was no response—not even the quiver of an eyelid. Casandra watched him uneasily for a moment, and then turned and went on his way to the town. He wondered if Jim always slept in such a queer fashion, and if such a sleep was a sound one. It was late in the night when he passed the cabin again. The door was still ajar, and all was dark within.

The following day, shortly after sunrise, found him before the partly opened door. He had a premonition of what he would see as he suddenly pushed it wide open. Jim was still lying on his side with his arm over his head, the open eyes fixed on the doorway. In two steps Casandra was beside him. He put out his hand, involuntarily withdrew it for a second, and then, with an effort, placed it on the forehead of the man in bed. The touch was icy cold. Down over the heart went the hand; there was no response from that fountain head.

Then Jose knew he was not looking upon a sleep, murder or suicide? He threw off the bedclothes, expecting to see blood, but there was none. Just then he saw a sheet of writing paper lying on a table by the bedside. Picking it up eagerly, he read:

"Dear Brother: I have been taken suddenly ill to-night. If the worst should happen, when you come on, go at once into the shaft. In the second drift, exactly twenty-four feet from the shaft, lie."

In an instant the paper was crushed in his hand and thrust in his shirt-pocket. Furtively he looked around, as if in fear of being detected. He never thought of the body in the bed until his wandering gaze fell upon the pallid face and the distended eyes staring fixedly at him. Nervously he moved to the door; the eyes followed him. He stepped almost behind the bed, and yet felt himself within range of the awful vision. Many dead men he had seen before, but some one had always closed their eyes for them. These eyes seemed to move like those of some old portrait.

It was late in the afternoon when he notified the coroner of his discovery. The body was taken down to the undertaker and the coroner decided an inquest unnecessary. Sanders belonged to a Masonic order that took charge of the funeral arrangements. The fact that Casandra left Virginia the night of the day the body was discovered was noted by some, but no especial significance was attached to his departure.

Two months later in a gambling-house at El Paso:

A crowd of men sitting and standing three deep about the faro table; the dealer pushing the cards out of the nickel-plated box, unconcernedly paying the lucky bets and accepting away the others; every one oppressively silent; all eyes on the different stacks of chips and the fateful box before the dealer; the money-drawer of the table pulled far out, disclosing the shining tv... and Jose Casandra "keeping cases," betting heavily and losing.

But he was too old a gambler to betray by an expression which way the weather was a fortune pointed, and when he had lost three heavy bets in succession not a muscle of his face changed as he calmly put a large stake on the ace to win and "copped" the king for an equal amount. A hand reached over the fringe of the crowd and placed a modest number of chips on the same cards. The ace won; the king lost.

Like all of his superstitious fraternity, he was quick to notice the slightest incident connected with a change of luck, and now waited for the hand before making his next venture. Again it came over the heads of the crowd, and this time played a combination of the five, six, seven, eight and nine to win, and the queen and Jack to lose. Instantly Jose had two hundred dollars on the same bets. Once more he was successful. When it came to call "the turn" the party behind him bet "revenge." Jose did the same. The tray and deuce came out in the order named. Then he cashed in his chips, a winner, and, getting up from the table, pushed through the crowd to see who it was he had so luckily followed.

The man was in a distant corner of the room by himself. Jose's dark face became suddenly livid, for he found himself looking into the eyes of Jim Sanders. The eyes were in the head of a tall, heavily built and smooth-faced man.

"Who-are-you?" weakly gasped Jose, backing away.

"Who am I?" replied the other in a jocular way, although his eyes belied it. "Who am I? Why, don't you know me?"

"Not—not—Jim?" came Jose's hoarse whisper, as he gazed in incredulous fright. But the blood was slowly coming back into his face. The voice was different, it the eyes were not.

"No, I'm Tom—Jim's brother. Jim's dead, you know."

"Yes, I know, but your eyes? Damn, you! Where'd you get those eyes?" The other advanced a step. "My God! It is Jim!" he almost screamed, as he cringed in abject terror against the wall.

"Say, what kind of a feller are ye anyhow, to be so skeart about a feller's brohter? S'pose I've got Jim's eyes? Ain't they good enough? Jim had a little the best of me—he was a half-hour older. I jest kem from Virginia. Everybody thought Jim left a stake, but he didn't, poor feller—leastways, none that I could find. How long since you been there?"

Some of Jose's confidence was returning. He muttered an unintelligible reply.

"How much money you got?" The casual impudence of the question would have astounded a far stranger. Jose looked angrily amazed. He started to reply with an oath, when suddenly his face changed.

"Don't talk at me like that!" he whined.

"How much money you got?" repeated the big man, calmly but remorselessly.

Jose struggled with himself to keep silent; but the cold, deliberate and judging eyes compelled him to speak and tell the truth.

"Four—thousand—dollars," he faltered, barely above a whisper.

"So you've got four thousand dollars now?" echoed the other, in tones of great satisfaction.

Adject freight again swept into Jose's face. Four thousand? Why, that was exactly the amount he—

The thought was not even finished in his mind. He saw that the eyes read guilt in his own. By an almost superhuman effort he broke the hypnotic spell of the dreadful gaze and looked hurriedly about him for help. He tried to cry out, but his throat was dry. Then his hand shifted nervously behind him for his revolver.

"None of that! None of that!" cried his captor, warningly. "I've got my eyes on ye, and I've got good eyes—Jim's eyes, you call 'em Jim's eyes, but I've got his eyes in my head, and I kin see with 'em, too. I kin see you're guilty—guilty of stealin' four thousand of Jim's good money. I want that four thousand ye got."

Jose, blanched and terror-stricken, made a gesture of denial.

"No use of denyin' it," resumed his Nemesis, coldly and sternly. "For I warn't in Virginia nothin'. I heard of you thar. I was in that drift with ye as yourself. Ye left a wide-open trail. Ye don't think I been follerin' ye for keepin' my eyes—Jim's eyes—on ye to let ye git away from me now? Come outside and give me that money. Come on, now!"

With his face toward Jose he opened the door and stalked out. And Jose, powerless to resist, followed him into the night.

Hiram Camp Division—Pleasant Visit to Shelton—The Hot Spill—The Weather and the Gardens—Marine Notes—Other Notes.

A party of Hiram Camp Division, No. 14, S. T. of Shelton, Monday, in a barge, under the excellent management of Edward Gunn. The team started at noon and returned in the small hours yesterday morning. Those who went were Edward Gunn, Martha Hall, Watson Shepard, Herbert Shepard, Bertha Allen, Hattie Waters, Mrs. Hudson, Mr. and Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Wacker, Mrs. Butler and W. H. Follard, Mr. Butler and Arthur Darby rode up on their wheels. The members of Shelton division entertained the visitors, serving ice cream and cake. Everybody complained of the weather yesterday, while standard thermometers only indicated 90 to 92 degrees, others marked 95 degrees and over. The coolest localities were on the Fair Haven bridges, but the breeze was unusually warm.

Local gardeners complain of the dry weather and say their plants are suffering greatly for want of rain. It is feared the strawberry crop will be lighter than usual owing to the dry weather. Captain Cassel of the steam barge C. L. Haynes has towed out the barges E. D. Fiske and Charles Ryan, which for nearly a week were lying in the Quinnipiac river, and will return with two more barges under the management of W. A. Warner & Bro. These boats formerly ran on the Erie canal, but Captain Cassel for the past two years has secured sound freights and has not run on the canal during that time. He says the freighting on the canal is not as good as it used to be and his boats can secure better earnings on Long Island Sound. He says the competition of the railroads has killed the boat and freighting is poor business. In consequence, no new boats have been built in several years.

The Home Mission alliance of New Haven will meet at the Grand avenue Baptist church on Thursday at 3 p. m. The exercises will include an address on "The French in New England," by Rev. J. Williams. Some months ago music boxes were donated among the six Sunday schools which are represented in the alliance and a report will be made on this special offering, which is to be devoted to the Alaska orphanage. The tug William of the New England Transportation company is nearly ready for launching at Grave's yard. She has been on the ways about three weeks and has been partially rebuilt, having received a new keel and considerable new planking. The boat has a new bow and her speed will be somewhat increased. Although this boat was built in 1852 with her overhauling she is about as good as a new boat. For the past eleven years the boat has been under the command of Captain William Wilson, with Frederick A. Williams as engineer.

A few days ago C. G. Ames, superintendent of the rubber shop, and W. F. Payne, engineer at the shop, visited the works of the General Electric company at Schenectady, N. Y. A large party went up from New York upon invitation of the company, leaving New York on a special train of eight Pullman cars. The inspection of the large works proved very interesting.

AT COSEY BEACH.

Professor Hoyt's Dancing Pavilion is a popular place. The attractive and spacious dancing pavilion recently erected by Professor Franklin Hoyt at Cossey Beach was the scene of a festive gathering last night. The intense heat of the city caused many people to seek the cool shore and in consequence there was a very large crowd of young people present. Dancing in the cool breezes of the shore was indeed a luxury and was thoroughly enjoyed. The new pavilion is an ideal place for dancing and will doubtless prove a decidedly popular place this summer. It is large and roomy, accommodating about seventy-five couples. It is equipped with all modern conveniences. A number of both rooms have been constructed immediately beneath the dancing floor and there is also a refreshment stand, where ice cream and soft drinks will be sold. Professor Hoyt proposes to have a dance every Tuesday and Friday afternoon and evening. Admission is only by invitations, which have been personally distributed by Professor Hoyt. The reputation of this popular dancing master will insure all that no objectionable characters will be admitted. A splendid view of the sound can be secured from the pavilion.

NOT ALL PLEASURE.

The Lot of a Public School Teacher Not a Happy One. "The life of a school teacher," said one of them the other day, "is not all roses. For a long, sharp, omnipresent thorn let me commend you to the average parent, particularly the average mother. One mother can make more trouble in a school than twenty children."

"If I have entertained one complaining parent at this desk, I have entertained a hundred, and without exception they have all made the same identical remark: 'Mary, or Johnnie, or whatever the name might be, is a very nervous child!'" "If anyone should ask what I consider the greatest menace to the country, I should unhesitatingly answer, 'nervous!'" "But is, I am to believe what I am told by the parents of the coming generation. Sometimes I think I must have a school of freaks, because I am confidentially informed by the parents of the country, who of course ought to know, that their individual progeny is of a 'very peculiar temperament.'"

Yesterday. She was very much distressed and unable to sleep last night. Now, there is just one thing about my daughter. She has a very peculiar temperament, and she cannot stand sarcasm. She is very sensitive, and if she cannot be treated with kindness I shall remove her from the school.

"If he only would! But he won't. As for notes, we have them of all kinds. The mothers send advice, complaints, threats and excuses until the capacity of our wastebaskets is taxed to the utmost. "But that is just the way with parents. They interfere when they should not, and when you ask them to interfere they have 'nothing to say.' I've had mothers come here and roll their eyes to heaven as they declare they must believe the school's story rather than the teacher's, because they had never known their child to tell a lie. "A few years ago I had a boy who would simply dance up and down and howl if anything did not suit him. And I had another who would lie down and pound his head on the floor if his will was crossed. Imagine such a pair in a school room! They would demoralize any fifty of the best behaved children you could get together. The first week that I had these twin stars I celebrated the discovery of my first gray hair. The wonder is that I didn't turn white in a single day. When Frank was quiet John was dancing and howling like a wild Indian, and when John settled down from their weariness, Frank was thumping his head on his desk or the floor. Occasionally they both broke loose at the same time. Then I sat still and wondered if there was a shot gun in the building.

"The second day I sent notes to the two women who had the awful responsibility of being the mothers of those wild animals. Wednesday morning came. So did Frank and John. But the mothers did not put in an appearance. I really didn't blame them. I'm sure I should have drowned myself rather than appear an answer to the charge of having such children. But I smothered my feelings of pity—that is, Frank and George did it for me with repeated howls and thumps. I sent two more notes, but Thursday the wild animals came and still no mothers. The notes that night were commands, and Friday morning two complacent, comfortable dames appeared in such close company with Frank and George that I could not mistake the fact that they were the presumably unhappy mothers. "I had expected to see women worn and haggard, as I was fast getting to be. But these two careless creatures took my breath away. I stated the cases to them, however. They laughed rich, unctuous laughter, which made me want to dance up and down and howl as Frank had so well taught me it could be done. It seems that Frank's father had a cheerful little habit of stamping around and swearing in thunder tones whenever anything displeased him. Consequently Frank's mother had always said that he was just like his father and had to let him rage like the most abandoned heathen. And as for George, he, too, was just like his father, who, when he recovered from a spree which had absorbed all his wages, would pound his head against the wall to get even with himself.

"I went to see these women the next day, and I found them with their heads down of the sun before I could convince them that they ought to check the howling and thumping resemblance of those boys to their respective fathers.

"As for children themselves, they always select a time when their parents are present to show off their teaching in the most unfavorable light. I remember that one time I spent all of one afternoon in explaining the punctuation marks to my pupils. The last thing I put on the board was quotation marks, and I wrote out the definition and I had the school say it over and over. The next day there was to be an examination, so I was particularly careful. In the morning the quotation marks were still on the blackboard, so I reviewed the pupils a little. They said the definition word for words: 'Quotation marks show that the words they enclose are taken from some other author or speaker.' I thought they would remember it till they were 100, if they lived that long. The trustees came, and the parents came, and the examination was begun. Finally I asked the class to explain the meaning and use of quotation marks. They looked blank—perfectly blank—all but one boy, who hopped up and down, he was so anxious to tell.

"Well, Johnnie?? I said. "Quotation marks show that the words are taken from some other author or speaker!" shouted Johnnie in triumph. "Everybody else shouted, too, and—well, I didn't hear from Johnnie's mother later! In another school I had girls about fifteen or sixteen years old, and in connection with their rhetoric was having them read selections from Shakespeare. One mimicking little miss brought me a note from her mother one day, in which I was requested to excuse Mary from any class involving a study of Shakespeare. She did not want Mary's morals to be contaminated. Oh, it's a fact! I assure you! It's all right for poets to talk of 'what is home without a mother!' But I can tell you that a school without a mother would be a blessing to teachers. As for me, my next position shall be in an orphan asylum."

An Insurance Deal.

Boston, June 6.—It was learned today that the Merchants and Manufacturers' Life association of Westfield, an assessment concern, will transfer its risks to the Colonial Life association of Boston to avoid the large assessments which would be consequent upon placing under the company on the old line basis under the law passed this year. The company has about $3,000,000 in policies in force.

The Stock Market.

New York, June 6.—Business was on by far too small a scale on the stock exchange to warrant very well defined conclusions as to the general temper of speculation or of a just reflection of business and financial conditions. But there was a very notable hardening of values in railroad securities which was followed up, as the day progressed by a rise in prices which embraced pretty much every railroad stock deal in this strength started in Louisville, which was very conspicuously bought for London account. The bidding up of the prices in this stock in the course of executing buying orders, imparted strength of the whole railroad group, Southern Railway preferred and Norfolk and Western preferred, being the first to respond and the graneros, Pacifics, Southwesterns and even some of the trunk lines following this lead. Pennsylvania Railroad, C. & O., St. Louis rose from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 the latter, however, losing all but 1/4 of the advance. The motive assigned for the buyers was the possibility that a more liberal policy toward stockholders and less insistence upon reinstatement of resources in equipment might follow the change in administration made necessary by the death of the late President. But the market part was profoundly apathetic and there were minutes at a time when no tape came from the ticker. The attention of professional traders was all centered on Sugar and the utterly erratic movement of this stock disclosed the entire uncertainty regarding to-morrow's dividend action. Advocates of the regular dividend and of a reduction seemed equally confident and equally numerous so that the stock dipped deeply below last night's level and rebounded far above it. The extreme range was 3/4 points, and the close was at a net gain of 1/2 and within 1/4 of the top. The eccentricities of this stock are typical of the industrial class and go far to explain the lack of activity in the rest of the market. Notwithstanding the regularity of dividends on this stock for over four years past, the general public is utterly in the dark as to what resources the company has in hand for the conduct of the current trade war or for the maintenance of dividends. An incident of the trading to-day was largely due to the fact that to-morrow's dividend declaration would be at the regular rate and offers on the other hand to sell the dividend on large amounts of stock for less than the regular rate. Some distrustful attitude is maintained towards the iron and steel stocks, notwithstanding semi-official intimations as to the rate of coming dividend declarations. The normal advances that current earnings are for in excess of the proposed dividend disbursement. Even the preferred stock of industrials, however regular may have been their dividend records, continue far below the prices of ordinary dividend-paying railroad stocks, which make the same returns on money invested. The distrust of industrials seems to be the most important element in the present dullness and heaviness of the market. A further small shipment of gold to-day was as wholly without influence in the stock market as well as in the foreign exchange market as those that have preceded it from the same institution. The conviction is general that the outlook is the result of special conditions and not of the general exchange situation.

There was a bruise back of the left ear and blood was flowing from the ear. The left leg was also broken. The identity of the man has not been discovered and no one can tell how the accident, if such it was, happened. The remains were taken in charge by a local undertaker on orders from Medical Examiner Johnson of Naugatuck."

DEATH OF ROBERT C. ARNOLD. Occurred Last Night at His Home on Day Street. The death of Robert C. Arnold, a well known citizen, occurred last evening at his home, No. 102 Day street. JULY 15TH NAMED FOR THE MEET Cycle Races Will Be Held Under the Auspices of the Olive Wheelmen.

The Olive Wheelmen, an organization recently formed and having about sixty members, will give a race meet at Elm City Park July 15. It will be held under N. C. A. rules, as the best riders now belong to that body. Among the cracks in this city who belong to the N. C. A. and who will ride here on that date are George H. Collett, Edward C. Hausman, William A. Rutz, Edwin S. Collett, and J. P. Jacobson. Richard F. Kelsey of Hartford is the chairman of the district board of control for the N. C. A. and issues permits for meets under their control in New England. Mr. Kelsey was for many years a prominent L. A. W. official in this state, but was among the first to break away from the league. It was through his efforts that the above named riders joined the N. C. A. Mr. Kelsey will act as handicapper. An endeavor will be made to secure the entry of the best riders in the east and make it the largest meet ever held here.

BICYCLE RACES IN MIDDLETOWN. A mid-summer bicycle meet will be held under the auspices of C. S. Henshaw, the crack professional, at the Crystal Lake Trotting Park, Middletown, Saturday, July 1. There will be two professional and two amateur events and besides special events will be arranged. One mile world's table—First prize, gold, $50; second prize, gold, $25; third prize, gold, $10.

FRESH CYCLE NOTES. The fact that electric automobiles are well out of the experimental stage is regarded as of special significance to physicians. An always reliable self-propelled carriage would certainly have a tendency to lighten the burdens of many busy city doctors. The Pope factories at Hartford furnish employment to about four thousand men. The demand for the company's bicycles this season has been unprecedentedly large. The size of the demand for chainless wheels this season shows that the new form of power transmission has favorably impressed a great many riders. Automobile exhibits form one of the most prominent and interesting features of the electrical exhibition at Madison Square Garden, N. Y. city. Hard inflation lengthens the life of a tire and increases the efficiency of the machine on good riding surfaces. Certain authorities on men's wear say that fashion in knickerbockers shows a tendency backward towards the close-fitting garments which were in vogue a few years ago. The story of the development of the chainless forms one of the most interesting chapters in the history of the cycle industry. The new driving gear has been adapted to practical use in a manner thoroughly typical of the best product of American invention supported by the business energy and skill of great corporations. In Germany, no rider considers himself a full-fledged bicyclist unless he belongs to one or more wheel clubs. The Germans are essentially a fraternal people, and if the Teutonic brother is denied admission to one club, he is pretty sure to find another to take him in. Agents and dealers here and there are attributing some loss of business to the prevalence of the scorching evil in their respective localities. Their argument is that although considering the total number of cyclists, accidents are very rare, timid riders decline to go into the question from the actuarial standpoint, and in numerous instances do not buy wheels because they are afraid of getting knocked over by the fast ones. At the same time it is admitted that the favorable testimony of fast riders greatly helps the sale of any wheel, and the trade is usually slow to endorse measures looking towards the enforcement of speed regulations. The trade would undoubtedly gain by organizing a campaign against reckless riding of all sorts and favoring properly sanctioned road racing, or the setting apart, under the local option which rests with most city and town authorities, of certain roads for the sole use of roadways. This has been done in a number of cases to the satisfaction of both wheelmen and the public.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER. It Was a Hot Day Yesterday—Cooler Slightly To-Day. The local weather bureau last night promised that the weather to-day would be a little cooler than it was yesterday. Cooler weather prevailed in the northwest and it was expected that it would reach New Haven to-day. There is a probability of showers this afternoon. The thermometer at the local bureau registered as follows yesterday: 6 a. m., 68; 8 a. m., 74; 10 a. m., 86; 12 m., 90; 2 p. m., 92; 3 p. m., 94; 4 p. m., 95; 5 p. m., 94; 6 p. m., 91; 7 p. m., 88; 8 p. m., 85. It was as is generally known hereabouts the hottest day of the year yesterday. There was a general rush to the trolley cars to obtain cooler breezes and exertion for man and beast was tiresome and enervating. The soda water fountains fizzed and fizzed for perspiring customers. The hitherto despised straw hat came in vogue again, and the dealers sold many of these head-protectors. The ice man had a busy day, including the man who rides about on an ice laden wagon, lustily shouting "ice!" "ice!" and accepting orders with the greatest alacrity. The ice cream dealers found a great awakening of trade and the coal merchants reported that they had had a very quiet day. The big thermometer on the telegraph post at the corner of Chapel and State streets was consulted by a countless number of passers-by yesterday. It registered 96 in the shade late in the afternoon. It was hot in the newspaper offices, especially in the typesetting machine rooms, where the heat from the fires and the red hot metal were suggestive of a fiery furnace. The thermometer recording nearly 100, the rush on the trolley cars to the shore resorts was simply great and the crowds returned home apparently refreshed.

FOR GRACE HOSPITAL

Annual Donation Day To-day—Reception This Afternoon.

To-day's annual donation day for Grace hospital from 4 to 6 there will be "open house" and at that time donations will be received. Money is greatly needed by the hospital society and any donations of such will be gratefully received. Among articles needed are china, glassware, bed and toilet linen, and kitchen utensils, while small individual articles such as cups and saucers and pitchers are needed. Those who call during the "open house" hours this afternoon will be received by Mrs. B. H. Cheney, president of the woman's board of the hospital, assisted by Mrs. J. B. Sargent, Mrs. E. S. Gaylord, Mrs. Henry Warner, Mrs. S. W. Hurlburt, Mrs. Luman Cowles, Mrs. Sherman Foote and Mrs. E. L. Austin. Tea will be served free of charge on the lawn in front of the hospital. If it rains this afternoon the donations will be received and the reception postponed to the next fair day.

CROWDS OF PATRONS

Enjoy Patronizing the Fine Soda Fountain at E. A. Gerner & Co.'s. Not the least to be considered during the sultry weather of the summer months is when to get a glass of fine fine cream soda. This very necessary adjunct to a mortal's comfort at this time of the year can be obtained at numbers of places in the course of a walk about the city, but at some of them after one has drunk he does not seem to experience the same feeling of satisfaction as others. Now nearly everyone has a choice of his own in such matters, but very often their choice is likely to suffer by comparison. The soda fountain at Apothecaries Hall, 882 Chapel street, is one that will stand comparison. Only the purest fruits, syrups and ices are served from this fountain, and for a drink of any kind to be enjoyed it is to be compared to this, so, a cooler or more comfortable place to sit for a few minutes during the heat of the day would be rather hard to find.

PUBLIC SALE OF SEATS FOR MAUDE ADAMS. The public sale of seats for Miss Maude Adams' engagement in "Romeo and Juliet" at the Hyperion on Saturday, June 17, opens at the box office of the theater this morning at 9 o'clock. Not more than ten seats will be sold to any one person. Miss Adams and her excellent supporting company has captured every city where she has appeared and our heterogeous have an opportunity to see this great production through G. B. Funnell's efforts to have New Haven made one of the cities to be visited when the company is on tour. There are still good seats for sale and application should be made at once by those proposing to attend the production.

GRADUATION OF NURSES

Diplomas Received By Twenty-three Young Ladies Last Night. The exercises attendant upon the graduation of the class of '99 of the Connecticut Training School for Nurses took place in Gifford chapel at the New Haven hospital last night. The roomy chapel was well filled with friends and relatives of the members of the class and the event was a very pleasant one. General S. E. Merwin, president of the hospital society presided and after a selection by an orchestra and prayer by the Rev. Dr. E. S. Linn, a few introductory remarks were made by General Merwin. A song by Dr. Bergen was followed by an address by the Rev. Dr. Lines, in which he made reference to the future work of the nurses that have just completed their course of training. He said that they would be called to minister to the needs of persons of all conditions of life and that they must be prepared for all this. Mr. Hanford, a member of the class, gave a pleasing piano solo and then Miss Betta, secretary of the school, presented the twenty-three graduates with their diplomas and badges. The badges are of a very neat design. Another selection by the orchestra and then Dr. W. W. Hawkes made an address to the graduates, talking from a medical point of view. His talk was decidedly interesting and doubtless all the members of the class will profit by it and the advice which he gave. Miss Hogan rendered a vocal solo very acceptably and the annual address of the president of the school, Mrs. Virginia Curtis, was read by Miss Betta. The distribution of flowers and other presents was a pleasant feature of the evening's programme and the graduates were all literally loaded down with flowers from friends. At the conclusion of the exercises all present repaired to the nurses' home, where a reception was held from 8:30 until 10:30. The hours were spent in social intercourse. Dancing to the music of the orchestra was indulged in by a few. Refreshments were served. Most of the graduates will go to the nurses' club on Trumbull street for the present.

Words—And the Muslin Underwear Sale.

Big words do not make big occasions. Our saying that this is the greatest event of the year would ring hollow if such a statement were not re-enforced both by the serious importance attached to the words in our store news and by the extent, character, and prices of the great showing of garments. Little stores can use high sounding phrases. No one takes them seriously. But the "Big Store's" merchandising is conducted on such a monumental scale, under such a perfect system that carelessness in one place would lead to carelessness everywhere. And what were discipline, system and store then! When, therefore, announcements are made of such magnitude as are called forth by this exceptional Muslin Underwear event, it will be realized that every word is in its proper place--that faith has been kept.
