If you believe that they act in good faith, if you believe 10 per cent. to be enough, if you believe that they will pay the 10 per cent. for a year, you must decide whether to return to work. On the other hand, if you reject the offer and continue on strike John Mitchell will be there to help you do it. I do not expect that that he has said over 580,000 words to proposals of the second German note, this one strike will cradicate all the wrongs from which you suffer. I do not believe that the accumulation of forty years of injustice can be wiped out at , but I do believe that you have established an organization here that with each succeeding year will give you improved coditions of employment.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 9.-The leaders of the United Mine Workers of this part of the anthracite coal fields do not speak as hopefully to-night of a settlement of the strike by the Scranton convention as they did yesterday. Some of those interviewed are afraid that the offcer of ten per cent, increase in wages made by the companies may not last long, and that after the men are back at work for a while and the market is pretty well supplied the operators may reduce wages to the old figures.

In making the advance in wages the operators did not act in concert, but as individuals. So that if the convention insists upon a definite understanding clapse before the views of the operators can be had. It is more than probable that the rules governing the conferences between the bituminous operators and their men will govern the Scranton convention. St. Louis, Oct. 9.-St. Louis' vast exposition collecum was crowded to-night in honor of Governor Roosevelt, who spoke a little more than an hour. He was greeted with tumultuous applause. He was introduced by the mayor and was cheered enthusiastically throughout his speech, at the conclusion of which he was escorted to the Union station, where he took his special train vere executed by order of the empress for Chicago, whence, to-morrow morning, he will start on his Indiana tour. In part the governor said:

I appeal to you less as republicane than as citizens of this great country, for I feel that in this year we have the same right to appeal to all men without regard to their political past, as we had in 1864, thirty-six years ago. Then as now the issues at stake were so great that they superceded all questions of mere party affiliations.

I have to ask you to look at just two sides of these issues—the material side and what is greater than the material side, the moral side; the side of the greatness and honor of the nation.

Now one moment as to the material side. Ladies and gentlemen, it is a bit difficult to know what lesue to discues because our opponents change the paramount issue so often. #### STATE EXPENDITURES.

A COMPARATIVE STATEMENT FOR 1899 AND 1900.

Over $96,000 Less Expended Last Fiscal Year Than in the Previous Year-Increased Expenditures in Same Lines Through Permanent Improvements.

Comptroller Grant and his clerks have compiled the expenditures of the state for the fiscal year ending Septem-ber 30 and the table is published here-The total amount expended by the state on orders drawn by the comptroller on the civil list funds is $2,325. 481.79, as against $2,442,136.94 in the pre vious fiscal year, a reduction of $96,655. The previous year was the year of session of the general assembly and the expense of that body, $147,355.08 does not appear in this year's disbursements. This would indicate that the state has spent on regular account $51. 699.93 more than in the fiscal year 1898-99, but such is not exactly the fact. The increased expenditures have been in special lines, mainly permanent improvements authorized by the general assembly. The judicial expenses in-clude the salaries of the clerks of the superior court, a new feature, and the fees paid into the state treasury, which formerly went to the clerks, do not appear on the comptroller's books. They will be shown in the treasurer's account of receipts. The increase in the item of capitol and grounds is accounted for by the expense of removing the restaurant and fitting up a new one in the top of the building with new committee rooms, etc., and the building and equipping a new elevator in the east wing of the building. The increase in the item of humane institutions is accounted for by the large expenditures authorized for Improvements at the Connecticut hoepital for the insane at Middletown, $70, 000, and for money paid to hospitals which were formerly not on the list of those supported by the state. The expenditures on account of sick and wounded soldiers include $12,000 for new buildings at the Soldiers' home at Noroton. Other Items of Increased expenditure include the state prison, where considerable money has been spent on new buildings, fish and game commission, special commissions authorized by the general assembly, the building and loan commissioner, etc.

During the year the state has paid off $100,000 in bonds, thus reducing the Ha-bilities or debt of the state by that amount, and the net result of the financial management of the state during the fiscal year ending September 30, has been a large gain, showing good management of public funds and care in expenditures and supervision. following is the abstract of expenditures for the fiscal year just endedand the corresponding period 1808-99: 1899.

At the Monday evening service Rev. Mr. Steup of New York city occupied the pulpit. At all the serchurch was filled to overflowing. Flowers and palms were used in abundance and in front of the church a large memorial window had been placed. At either end at the rear of the church memorial windows from the vestrymen and the ladies' society were in position. The memorial windows were very beautiful and betokened exquisite taste with the rest of the church which had been beautifully decorated and painted. The whole church had been altered from top to bottom and nothing had been left undone. For the interior of the church over $10,000 had been expended, and for the exterior of the church nearly $3,000. The money to pay for beautifying the church had

BRIDGEPORT INVESTORS.

Alleged to Have Lost $25,000-New Haven Men Also. Bridgeport, Oct. 9 .- Owing to the Fiancial embarrassment of the Cape Nome Sando Mining company, which was until recently considered a gilt edged investment, Bridgeport capital-ists have lost over $25,000, while prominent business men in various parts of the state have likewise been victimized.

Archibald McNell is perhaps the heaviest loner in this city. He had between $14,000 and $15,000 invested in the company, the stock of which is now said by investors to be worthless. Hen ry R. Parrott is said to have lost $2,500. John Sterling, traveling representative of the L. B. Sterling Oil company, is other alleged victim, and Stephen C

Osborne is another. The company was organized in New York city under most favorable circumstances less than a year ago. A large number of Bridgeporters invested in the company when it was organized, at which time it was considered a bonanza. The idea involved was to extract the gold from the sand at Cape Nome, Alaska, and the most flattering offers were held out to investors. There are other stockholders in this city who have lost money in the vanture whose names could not be ascertained The amount may greatly exceed $25,000 when the true state of affairs is made known, New Haven, Harford, Waterbury, and other cities in the state have their lists of victima and the amount of stock held by residents of this state would reach a very large flaure.

HENRY S. JOHNSON,

The announcement of the death of Henry S. Johnson, though not wholly unexpected, will come as a shock to many who have known and respected him during all or a part of his long and successful business career in this city. Mr. Johnson was a man was well entitled to the prominent and stable place he occupied in the business life of New Haven. He was a man of large ability, and he did business with diligence, skill and thorough integrity. There was nothing flashy about his work. He built well on strong foundations, and he merited and enjoyed the confidence of all with whom he came in contact. He was a good citizen, devoted to his family, and a firm and loyal friend. He will be much missed by all who knew and appreciated his solid character and his upright life.

NOT THE RIGHT DAY. "If," said Mr. Bryan in his speech at Salem. Illinois "the election were held to-day there is no doubt that we would have a majority in the electoral college and on the popular vote."

If Mr. Bryan has reached the conclusion that all that will save him is an immediate election day he is gaining in perception. Perhaps later on he will be enabled to see that even that would have done him no good, and then his perception will be improved. We do not believe there has been a day during the last five years when Mr. Bryan could have been elected President, and we do not believe there will ever be a day when he can be. Moreover, he ought to be satisfied with having two election days in which to test his strength. He will not be willingly given another, and if he gets another he will have to be a more absolute dictator than he says Mark Hanna is.

HE SAW IT AND STOPPED IT. Often when a gambling game that is prohibited by law is going on there is great difficulty in seeing it. Those whose duty it is to stop it can't see it unless their attention is called to it, and when their attention has been called to it they find insuperable difficulty in the way of getting evidence enough on which to act against it. JUST A POSTMASTER'S BOY

Complaint and Answer from Missou ri Involving the Postal Service.

The postoffice department had occa sion recently to call the attention of a postmaster in a small Missouri town to complaints made to the department regarding the conduct of his office. In esponse to the department's letter the

"The postmaster and complainant dents, providing that in the event of which he has a varied and interesting ual initiative. This initiative comes

One day, inspired by the imps which are charged in mystic lore with being responsible for all the wickedness the world, these boys invelgled the emplainant's cats into a race with a neighboring dog, from which pastime the cats returned in a somewhat ruffled and dilapidated form; whereupon complainant became exceedingly wroth, and at the first opportunity interviewed elative to the said cat race, and, notwithstanding the boy's earnest denial f any participation in the sport, backed by an offer to prove an adbi by showing his presence at the swimming plainant continued to charge him with wrong doing and to revile him in heated nd forceful language until the boy, stung by charges of which he was not guilty, gathered sundry old tin cans. iscarded boots and dried vegetables in the back alley, and when the shades of night were falling fast elevated them into the air at an angle which caused them to fall in complainant's back yard; since which time the administration of this postoffice has utterly failed to find favor in the sight of said com-plainant."-The Sun.

Oh! the ship o' state's in peril, where she's often been before.

She's driftin' with her rudder gone upon a rock-bound shore;
The exclone of calamity is roaria' overhead,
An' on the smashed an' battered decks all hope is lyin' dead.
The ship o' state's in peril, an' the day o' wrath is here.

It never fails to come around a Presidential year.

Oh! the ship o' state's in perll, an' the snake armed octopus is reachin' out its slimy coils to grap an' swallow us. Its awful, fear-compellin' form above the wave appears.
As it shows up unfailin'ly in Presidential Years. An' if the grand ol' ship keeps on she's certain sure to go.
To wreck an' ruin on the rocks, jest like four years ago.

Oh! the ship o' state's in peril, where it frekently is found.
The Bryan howlers all can hear her keel grate on the ground.
They see the signal of distress a dyin' at her mast,
An' watch to see her swallowed up amid the shrighth' blast.
But they'll be disappointed, fur the crow sets up a cheer,
An' puts out in the nick o' time—each Presidential year.

THE WORLD'S BEST ARMIES. One of the most powerful lesson Boer war in South Africa is that the efficiency and formidableness of an army-a gathering under central control of thousands of fighting men-de pends not so much upon the pipe-clay details of professional soldlering as upon the spirit with which the fighting nen are animated. It may not fairly be denied that the patriot army of Boor recruits, farmers and herdsmen, taken from their fields and flocks, was superior in fighting ability, numbers being equal, to that of the British. That it was also better generalled, being finally defeated only by overwhelming numbers, must be ac knowledged on the facts in the case And yet it was purely a volunteer arm; and was opposed to what the world be lieves to be the finest of all standing armies-professional soldiers commanded by leaders who had all their liver been studying and practising the art of

The meaning of this is that the best fighting, now, as in the days of Thermopylae, is done by men whose cause stimulates them to supreme effort. An army of patriots arrayed in defence of their native land can in a marvelously short time be transformed into coldlers capable of successfully resisting anything like an equal number of men fighting merely as mechanical soldiers for a certain wage per day. The best most truly from individual aspiration not a bad boy, as boys go—but just and resolution. There is no training boy. Other neighbors have other possible to military schools or camps which can so fit men for stubborn and effective fightingss they are made fit by the knowledge that they are fighting for a holy cause, for their native country, their homes, their wives and chil-

> This is a lesson which has been unfailingly taught by the volunteer armics of the United States. In the Revclutionary war, in that of 1812, in the war with Mexico, in the bloody conflict between the States, and in the war with Spain for the liberating of Cuba, the American volunteer proved that for a man to be a supremely good soldier it is not necessary that he shall spend his life soldiering. Indeed, there is reason to believe exactly the contrary, that the world's finest soldiers are produced just this manner-by the sudden springing to arms of men who fight for principle, and who, when principle has been manfully contended for, are willing to go back into the ranks of producing workers instead of burdening the people with a cost for maintenance and training which is not justified by re-sults.—St. Louis Republic (Dem.)

CONFESSED HORSE THIEF

CAPTURED LAST NIGHT BY DETECT- church. IVE FREY OF STATION 4.

Thomas F. Kelly of Collis Street Admits That He Stole Arthur May's Horse-The Outfit Sold for 912 to a Local Livery-

Detective William J. Frey of the Dixwell avenue police station last night captured a horse thief for whom the local police and detectives have been searching for the past week. He arrested Thomas F. Kelly of No. 7 Collis street on the charge of stealing the horse and wagon and harness of Arthur May, a painter, of No. 23 Vine street, on October 1.

On that day Mr. May hitched his team in front of a house. When Mr. May left the house his horse and wagon were gone and he thought at first that the horse had broken loose and wandered away. He scarched the neighborhood and not finding the outfit notifled the police.

Detective Prey ascertained that the horse, wagon and harness, all worth about $150, had been sold to the proprietor of a livery stable on Orange street near Court street for $12. Frey secured a description of the man who had sold the outfit and from that description spotted Kelly, whom he arrested on Collis street about 9:15 o'clock last night. When first arrested Kelly dmitted that he had sold the horse. wagon and harness, but said that he and found the rig, the horse wandering about the streets. Later he confessed to having stolen tham, but in extenuation of his action pleaded that he was intoxicated at the time.

Kelly is about twenty-three years of age and conducted a grocery store on Collis street not long ago. More re-Collis street not long ago. cently he had been employed as a grocery clerk. He is a single man. His capture by Detective Frey of the Dixwell avenue precinct is considered by police officials a very clever piece of work. The stables where the horse was sold is within half a block of police headquarters in the territory of the first precinct. Frey has recovered the wagon and harness and expects to get the horse in a day or two. The man to whom the horse was sold has traded him to a man living outside the city.

Now gentlemen, some people say that the silver issue is dead. Silver cannot be dead when people are uncertain as to how a candidate of one of the two great parties would pay the obligations the government. No issue is dead when you cannot tell whether a creditor, or a pensioner, whoever he may be, is to bet forty-eight cents or one hundred on the dollar. It is dead to the extent that nobody ventures to argue But if they paid our debts in forty-eight cent dollars, we would care little as to the precise arguments by which they reached the conclusion that warranted that con-

When these things were pointed out to Mr. Bryan the other day, and it was shown to him that we were prosperous, he answered that it was not the republican party but Providence that made us so. There have been evtls and there are now evtls; they have got to be cut out, and they are going to be cut out, not by oratory but by common sense and resolution. In accordance with the provisions and purposes of the constitution, the states now have complete control of the corporations. I am not familiar situation here in your state. I am familiar with it in my own state. Two years ago I ran for governor of New York. Against me ran an exjudge, Van Wyck. He was nominally the man who ran. The real master and leader of the democratic party of New York, the party under which our home imperialism has reached such an extraordinary development, was the Hon. Bicnard Croker. Mr. Van Wyck and Mr Croker were extreme in their denunciation of trusts and corporations, They went much farther than I was willing to go, because I was hampered by the fact that I intended my deeds to square my words. Dwells Somewhere Near Lobster Luke and Weighs Over a Ton. Here is a moose story, as told in the

Boston Transcript:

The enormous moose that has been wonder of all sportsmen and the terror of all the superstitious woodsmen of northern Maine since 1891 has again been seen, and this time under ever before. A bleyclist came close to the monster in the road between Sherman and Macwahoc, and was obliged to abandon his wheel and climb a tree for safety. After carefully examining the bloycle the moose trotted away into the woods, while the wheelman sat perched high in the tree and had a near-by view of the fabuous animal that for nine years has been roaming the Maine woods, a terror to every human being that ever got within sight of him:

Every story that comes from the north woods concerning this moose makes him a little bigger than before, north and many people profess not to believe in the startling statements of his size, but from reports brought to Bangor by reliable men, not given to exaggerating the truth, it is certain that no moose ever killed in this state, or, so far as known, anywhere else, has approached in stature or weight, much less in spread of antiers, this "specter moose of Lobeter Lake." He is called "the specter moose," because of the weird appearance which he presents at night. his color being a dirty gray.

was in 1391 that this moose was first seen in Maine, by Clarence Duffy, of Oldtown, a guide, who was cruising around Lobster Lake. Duffy did not get near enough to the monster for a shot, but he could see him plainly, and gave a detailed description of the animal when he came back to town. Everybody laughed at the story and Duffy was set down as the greatest romancer of his time. Not many months after that, however, John Ross, a prominent Bangor lumberman, was at Lobster Lake, where he had camps, and day, while crossing between Big Lobster and Little Lobster lakes in compawith the foreman of W. L. Maxfield's campe he saw the big moose. Mr. Ross is no remancer, and when he the etory of the monarch of woods people began to believe that there was something up there worth shooting at.

For some years hunters searched the woods in vain for the big fellow, for it would be worth a small fortune to any to bring him down. Not until 1895. however, was the monster seen again. In that year Granville Gray, a Bangor taxidermiet, got sight of the moose, at some little distance, and since then he has had a second view. In 1899 Gilman Brown, of West Newbury, Mass., got nearer to the monster than had any of the others, actually getting shot at him. Mr. Brown came to Bangor and told a stirring story of his meeting with the moose. Mr. Brown, in company with Harry M. Pope, of Hartford, Conn.: James Busfield, of Taverand E. W. La Croix, of Lynn, hunted in the Roach river country and came out with three moose and seven deer. It was on the last day of their two weeks' stay that Brown saw the big gray moose, and he declared that would never forget the sight. He averred that the moose stood fully fifteen feet high and that he had antiera ten to twelve feet across. Like most of the others who had a sight of the monster, Mr. Brown saw the moose at dark, but the animal's gray cont showed plainly and Brown ot several shots at him, none of which, however, inflicted serious injury. He was so close to the animal that he could count twenty-two points on one side of his antiers, and thought at the time the protected bottom. The result was that there were more. This is a greater that the pontoon was blown to pieces. number of points than has ever been known on any moose, here or elsewhere.

This year the first sight of the big moose fell to George Kneeland, of Sherman, who is taking charge of his brother's lumber camp on Gulliver brook. telling of his experience. Kneeland eaid:

"I had to go to Macwahoc on business last Thursday and so procured a bloycle and starred about four o'clock in the afternoon to go down through the woods. As I was riding along I saw a fox come out into the road, and before I had gone much farther two more made their appearance. When they caw me they started straight down the road. I gave a whoop and started in pursuit. I kept so close that they tumbled over each other in their effort to escae, until at last they went end over end out of the road. I laughed to my self at their fright, and kept along. Well, I went to Macwahoc, got through with my business there, and started to return. As I reached the you careless and then you take cold. stretch of woode, which is about eight miles long, and neared the place where I had seen the foxes, I caw a fox in the road, and had some fun chasing him. Then coming to a long piece of rising I dismounted and walked. I had got to the top of the hill and was just about to remount when I saw what I took to be a horse standing in the road some distance ahead. Wondering what a horse could be doing there, I stopped and gave him a good look, when I found, to my surprise, that it was not a horse, but a moose-and will cure your cold before more serian immense one, too. I waited a bit to see what he was going to do, but I ous trouble ensues. 250, 500, $1.00 hadn't long to wait, for he lowered his per bottle; the largest size cheapest, head and came straight for me with the speed of a locomotive. I should think they would measure eleven feet all right enough. Well, as I eaid, he came tearing down the road, making straight for the bicycle, and, planting his forward paws either side of it, he stopped to examine the wheel, smelled of it to his satisfaction, raised his head, gave a tremendous enort and raced off into the woode, breaking down the small growth saplings as though they were rushes. the wind was blowing toward me, and that is probably the reason he did not discover me. I waited ten minutes in the tree, and then, finding that he had really gone, I slid down and mounted my wheel, and the way I streaked it for home was a caution."

The average size of moose shot in Maine is eight to nine hundred pounds, with antiers spreading four feet to four and one-half feet, and not often more than eight to twelve points on a side, while the bell, as the appendage under the animal's neck is called, is generally eight or nine inches long. All who have seen the big moose of Lobster Lake, however, aver that he must weigh at least twenty-five hundred pounds, that his antiers spread not less than ten feet, while the bell is declared to be not less than eighteen inches long,

RUSSIAN TORPEDO

MENTS. The Kotlin states that some experiments with torpedoes were carried out on an uninhabited island in the Trans Sound an inlet of the Gulf of Pinland A square galvanized iron hut was erected and a torpedo tube charged with a Whitehead torpedo, was placed inside it with the head of the torpedo protruding as it might from the side of a ship. The first experiment was to fire a shot into the air chamber of the tube, where there was an air pressure of eighty atmospheres. Some sheep were allowed to graze around the hut, so that the effect on them of an explosion be seen. The shot penetrated the wall of the but and entered the air chamber of the tube, but no explosion took place, the air rushed through the hold made by the shot, and in doing so made a terrific noise, but beyond the hole in the tube and in the wall of the hut, there was no damage done. The next experiment was to explode one hundred and eighty-seven pounds of gun-cotton inside the hut near the protruding head of the charged torpedo. The explosion was effected by a twenty-minutes' time fuse, which enabled every one to get away from the island before the explosion, but the sheep were still left grazing about the The officers belonging to the torpedo instruction class were on a neighboring island from which they could observe what happened. The explosion of the gun-cotton, followed, no doubt, by the explosion of the charge in the torpedo, blew to pieces the torpedo, the tube, the shed and the sheep in the immediate vicinity. One sheep, however, at seventy-five paces distant escaped unhurt. The officers on the neighboring island experienced a very strong concussion of air. In the third experiment a pon toon protected underneath by four thicknesses of armor plates was placed in shallow water, and a torpedo was discharged from a tub, so as to strike There was a large attendance of officers and men to witness the experiments.

force will also be needed in the Board-man school. We estimate that there will nearly two hundred more pupils in the Boardman school next September than there are at present.

For the last five years the average annual increase in the average number of children registered in the schools has been nearly 400. The average annual increase in the number of teachers has been ten; the average annual increase in the number of school rooms has been ten. From present indications it seems that the increase next year will not be | relics. Evarts Cutler & Co. | o10 2t quite as large as the average for the last five years.

There is no place in New England where teachers begin their work at such a low salary as $300 per annum and New Haven would not be able to employ teachers at that rate were it not for the provision in the rules that salaries would be increased $50 a year until the maximum was reached. Under this rule a teacher must work at least four years before she reaches a salary of $500 per annum, a sum which you gentlemen must acknowledge is not more than living wages.

While there is an increase in the expense for teachers' salaries of between $2,500 and $3,000 a year on account of these increases, it is a fact that our annual salary list would be much larger if it were not for the provision which makes these increases necessary. There are in the schools below the high schools 229 principals and teachers, not including teachers in ungraded rooms, whose sularies amount to $183,320. Of this number 128 received $500 or less per annum, 108 receive between $500 and $600 per annum, seventy-one receive between $600 and $700 per annum and twenty-two from $700 to $1,000 per an-

Attention Fixed on the Problems of the International Money Markets,

New York, Oct. 9 .- The attention of the financial and speculative world rekept under careful scrutiny to detect upon the outcome of the contest, now inaugurated, for the possession of the available money supply. The engagement of £50,000 in gold and its withdrawal from the Bank of England for shipment to New York marked the beginning of the contest and confirmed yesterday's estimates that sterling exchange at New York had failen within the margin of profit for gold imports. The withdrawal promptly precipitated an advance in the Bank of England's price of gold, gold bars and American engles both being marked up 1-2 penny an ounce. The margin of profit on imports to New York was thus wiped out. Continental exchange both on Berlin and Parls weakened notably to-day, on account of the heavy continental demand for cotton buying from that source having superseded for the time being the English demand and in the afternoon, it was announced that 1,000. upon the outcome of the contest, now Twenty teachers, grade 7, second drawal from the Bank of England for If all the above teachers were paid yesterday's estimates that sterling ex-

afternoon, it was announced that 1,000,.. 000 francs had been engaged in Paris for import to New York. It is taken for granted that the Bank of France will interpose an obstacle to the drain Son inaugurated to-day upon the Paris market gold supply. As for Berlin, to-day's weekly statement of the Imparial bank shows that it has lost nearly $2,000,000 in cash during the week, in spite of receipts of gold from London, although It has contracted above half of the ormous note Issue of the of last week's loan expansion, which exceeded $25,000,000. It is clearly evident, therefore, that New York will have to make a more urgent call to effect a movement hither of gold on any considerable scale. Meanting the last of the la coneiderable scale. Meantime the local money market continued to harden and the proportion of call loans placed at | 3 1-2 per cent, was considerably greater in a Liverpool theater some time ago than yesterday. To-day's transfers of a melodrama was performed which had currency to the interior through the ters of a million dollars and the banks have lost to that institution since Friday $2,275,000 Speculative action was considerably It ought to have come down, but it paralyzed, pending the solution of these money market perplexities and the movement of prices was narrow and unimportant. There was a notable movement in the iron and steel group, pretty much all the members of the group coming into the movement as the day progressed, with advances, of from 1 to over 2 points. This movement and the announcement of the engagement of gold in Paris served to overcome some of the early depression. Strength in the local traction group was also a factor. But the market closed dull and irregular with few net changes of importance. The movement in the bond market was narrow and irregular. Total sales, par value, $680,000.

United States refunding twos, the threes registered and new fours declined 1-4 per cent. on the last call. NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.
