

PAUNCEFOTE'S SUCCESSOR.

HON. MICHAEL HENRY HERBERT PROBABLY THE MAN.

Is Now Secretary of the British Embassy at Paris—The Only Question is the Approval of King Edward—Salary Will be Raised to That of the Highest Ambassador in the British Service.

London, May 30.—Hon. Michael Henry Herbert, who is nominally secretary to the British embassy at Paris, will probably be the next British ambassador to the United States, in succession to the late Lord Pauncefote.

Mr. Herbert's appointment to this post will probably not be announced until the remains of Lord Pauncefote arrive in England. The only question in regard to Mr. Herbert's selection for the Washington post is the approval of King Edward.

While there is no reason to believe that King Edward will object to Mr. Herbert, who has the official backing of both English and American diplomats, there must always remain an element of doubt in the matter until the suggested appointment receives the royal sanction.

The matter of Mr. Herbert's going to Washington has been still further complicated by the unexpected delay in sending over Lord Pauncefote's remains. The British government, officially, fully expected Lord Pauncefote's body would arrive in England prior to the coronation of King Edward, and it is not a little disconcerted by the receipt of despatches announcing that the obsequies in England will not occur until July.

The determination to select Mr. Herbert as ambassador to the United States was reached after many consultations with those who are best fitted to voice an opinion in the matter.

Mr. Herbert's marriage with Lella, daughter of Richard T. Wilson of New York, as a result of which he became closely related to the Vanderbilts, the Ogden Goetzels and the Astors, will not in any way interfere, according to opinion here, with his usefulness as Great Britain's ambassador at Washington.

Mr. Herbert's record at Washington as charge d'affaires from 1888 until 1893 and as secretary to the British legation there from 1892 to 1893 and his work as British agent on the Venezuelan commission eminently fit him, so official belief inclines, for his proposed new and important duties.

At Paris Mr. Herbert's present position is somewhat curious, for, while holding the rank of a full fledged minister, he has to take second place when Sir Edmund J. Monson, the ambassador is resident in France.

A curious feature connected with all the British diplomats who were considered by the British foreign office as possible candidates to fill the vacancy at Washington, is that they all have American wives.

ADMIT PEACE IS SECURED.

Report That Boer Delegates in Europe No Longer Deny It.

Brussels, May 30.—It is said here that the Boer delegates in Europe now admit that peace in South Africa has been secured and that the settlement between the Boers and Great Britain will be signed in the name of the former citizens of the two former South African republics who are now in Europe.

London, May 30.—The government has not yet received the decision from the Boer conference at Vereeniging, Transvaal, which was expected to-day and which was to enable Mr. Balfour, the government leader in the House of Commons, to make his statement concerning peace next Monday.

A despatch received here from Pretoria says the British columns in South Africa, especially the horses, have been greatly benefited by their long rest.

Washington, May 30.—Miss Alice Hay, daughter of Secretary Hay, was thrown from her carriage to-day, owing to the horses being frightened by a passing car, and suffered injuries that were painful, but not at all serious.

ENDORSE THE COAL STRIKE

ENGINEERS, FIREMEN AND PUMPMEN HOLD MEETING.

Every Colliery in the Wyoming Valley Represented—Resolution Upholding the Strike Adopted by a Vote of 315 to 57—Same Action Taken at a Meeting in Scranton.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., May 30.—A largely attended meeting of the engineers, firemen and pumppmen was held to-night. It is said every colliery in Wyoming valley was represented.

Representatives of the coal companies doubt the correctness of the vote. They claim there were not that many men at the meeting and that an overwhelming number of those present were firemen.

At Paris Mr. Herbert's present position is somewhat curious, for, while holding the rank of a full fledged minister, he has to take second place when Sir Edmund J. Monson, the ambassador is resident in France.

INTERCOLLEGIATE CONTESTS

RESULTS IN THE TRIALS AT BERKELEY OVAL.

Harvard and Yale Lead All the Other Colleges—Former Wins Nineteen and the Latter Eighteen Entrances to the Finals—Princeton Third in the List—Plaw's Showing a Disappointment—Dewitt of Princeton Distinguishes Himself.

New York, May 30.—The showing made by the athletic collegians in the preliminary heats and trials in the track and field contests which took place at Berkeley Oval to-day gives promise that some unusually clever performances will be seen when the semifinals of the inter-collegiate championships are decided to-morrow.

Harvard is the favorite in what little betting has been done so far, but if the protest made by Yale against Schick, the Harvard sprinter, who won his trials in the sprints to-day rather easily, should be sustained Yale would gain a decided advantage as Harvard would lose either eight or ten points.

Arthur Duffey of Georgetown and Schick won their individual heats in the 100 yard dash in even time. But if the track remains in good condition and there is an absence of wind either or both will equal and probably break the existing record of 9.4-5 seconds.

The president has not instructed our legation at Madrid to ask for explanations of the reported course of the Spanish government towards Senor Arana, and in fact the administration is without any information concerning the alleged purpose of Senor Arana to send a congratulatory cablegram to the president and his frustration by the Spanish government.

THE ANNUAL REGATTA

SAILED OVER A TRIANGULAR COURSE YESTERDAY.

Heavy Sea and Rough Wind on the Sound Caused Two Entries to Withdraw—Typhoon Won the Trophy.

The annual regatta of the New Haven Yacht club was sailed yesterday. The start was from the Purdee buoy and the course continued to a point off Savin Rock, to Adams Buoy, thence to starting point. The wind was blowing at fifteen miles at the beginning and freshened considerably after the craft got well under way.

The boats that did enter the regatta were the schooner Southern Cross, Commodore Modore Charles S. Hamilton; the sloops Hoodoo, Vice Commodore E. N. Searles; Kathryn, Rear Commodore James E. Smith; Typhoon, Fred T. Catlin. Owing to the unexpectedly rough weather and choppy the Hoodoo and Kathryn withdrew from the race, thus narrowing the contestants down to three.

Accompanying the races were James H. Parrish with the steamer yacht Ceres and the tug J. C. Codd. The Codd is a twelve foot ocean going tug from Richmond, Va., and is part of the craft engaged in dredging the harbor.

Yesterday J. C. Shaffer, who has charge of the dredging, had a large party of friends aboard, who enjoyed the cruise immensely.

While off Savin Rock the sailors were the guests of Henry S. Parmelee on board the Alert. The Alert is the most palatial yacht ever attached to the New Haven Yacht club and the hospitality of Mr. Parmelee added a phase of bon homie to the outing that was intensely enjoyed and felicitously commented upon.

It was said last evening at the club house that the wind yesterday was the roughest and heaviest ever experienced by the club in all their annual regattas, but although a typhoon was not blowing the Typhoon was being blown over the course at a most rapid clip, greatly distancing the other boats. She was the winner of the trophy, which is a souvenir cup.

In the afternoon two crews composed of Naval Militiamen raced over a short cruise in the harbor and at 6 o'clock the members repaired to the dining room, where a banquet was served. Amid the curling smoke of fragrant cigars most of the boys sauntered and sat around the boat house for a social hour recounting tales of fast cruises and admiring the lapping waves as they rolled onward to and broke against the tide wall.

SAVIN ROCK THEATER.

Banta Brothers' Minstrels. The minstrel show played to packed houses yesterday and the company gave universal satisfaction. The first part was very nicely arranged. A. W. Banta, F. A. Crocker, C. J. Fletcher and W. A. Johnson were the end men and it goes without saying that the jokes and songs were brain new. The first part finished with an original flag song.

Doran and Carroll, acrobatic dancers and talking comedians, did some very fine trick dancing. Marvin Bates, bicycle expert, did some very clever tricks and gave a fine exhibition of fancy riding. The Banta Brothers' musical act made a pronounced hit and the closing act, "Fun on the Levee," introduced the Clover Leaf quartette and their band of pickaninny dancers and the entire company in a fantasia entitled "The Hack Brigade." Manager Hendrick of the company must be highly praised for the excellent manner in which the company showed up. They will continue to-night and every night next week at 8:15.

If a man is killed by an automobile his estate may collect damages to no greater amount than $5,000. If he is merely maimed there is no limit to the damages. This is manifestly unjust, being class legislation in favor of the comparatively few chauffeurs who have perfect control of their machines, and can always be sure of killing their man.

MEMORIAL OBSERVANCE.

FINE WEATHER ADDED MUCH TO ITS SUCCESS.

Many Soldiers' Graves Decorated by O. G. M. Veterans—The Parade in the Afternoon—Exercises at Yale—Big Crowds Went to the Shore.

Yesterday nature seemed to have prepared just the kind of weather to permit the holiday crowds to fully enjoy the day's relaxation from every-day work, and New Haven people were not slow to take advantage of the opportunity offered. Thanks to the kindness of nature and the responsiveness of the people the trolley lines did a big business, and the facilities of the various lines were taxed to their utmost.

All day long large crowds, laden with flowers, went to the various cemeteries to decorate the graves of loved ones and many extra cars were on the Sylvan avenue line to accommodate those who desired to go to Evergreen and Mapledeale cemeteries.

At Savin Rock there was an enormous crowd which made the resort take on a very summery aspect. The ball game in the afternoon and the vaudeville show at the Savin Rock theater were well patronized by big crowds. All the East shore resorts were well patronized also.

The programme of the Grand Army for the decoration of soldiers' graves was carried out according to the arrangements. The flowers donated by school children and citizens were left at Music hall, where they were arranged into bouquets by ladies of the women's relief corps. The donation of flowers were generous and an ample supply was received. The details for various cemeteries left the Grand Army headquarters at Music hall about 10:30, escorted by Boy's Brigade companies, and drum corps. The details consisted of the following veterans:

The exercises at the cemeteries were in charge of committees of veterans as follows: Grove street—Fred S. Snow, Samuel P. Crafts, John A. Hutchinson, Horace H. Raymond, Elliott Littlejohn, Michael E. Wilson, Mart. V. Tallman, George P. Holt.

Evergreen—William Gillilan, William H. Nichols, George E. Dudley, William J. Miller, Charles K. Cadwell, Daniel Ackley, Jacob Andrea, Arthur P. Smith, G. Leroy Gilbert, Henry L. Dorman, Daniel W. Albee, Henry B. Platt.

Mapledeale—George E. Dudley, Peter E. Bowman, Franklin A. Curtiss. Fair Haven—William E. Morgan, Luzerne F. Barnes, James E. McGuire. Cedar Hill—William L. Benton. Montross—Charles M. Barnes, Hector W. Storrs, Dennis W. Tucker.

West Haven—Edward G. Mansfield, Nathan Hale, William E. Augur. East Haven—Calvin C. Kirkham, Henry J. Barrows, William H. Robinson. North Haven—Sheldon B. Thorpe, Isaac L. Doolittle, Henry D. Todd.

Whitneyville—William F. Smith, N. F. Burlingame. Hamden Plains—Richard H. Rawling, Fred J. Colvin. Centerville—Wilbur C. Ives.

At Grove street cemetery 145 graves were decorated. There were special memorial exercises, as usual, at the graves of Admiral Foote and General William H. Russell. General Russell at the time of the war was in command of the militia and many of the veterans had attended his military school on Wooster Square. He was made an honorary member of the post.

There were also appropriate exercises at Evergreen cemetery, where about 500 graves were decorated. At East Rock park the exercises were held at the monument and included the usual memorial service of the post and remarks by Rev. W. F. Mossman. The monument was decorated with floral pieces.

At the Fair Haven cemetery about 140 graves were decorated. The exercises here included a short address by Rev. Dr. Streeter. A parade was held yesterday afternoon starting from Music hall at 2:15 and was reviewed at City hall by Mayor Studley and other city officials. The formation was as follows: Platoon of Police, A. O. U. W. Band, Marshal, Edward E. Bradley.

Aides—clerk—Benjamin R. English, Frederick B. Farnsworth, Michael Sonnenberg, John C. North. George W. Hasselman of Sons of Veterans, Frederick H. Lincoln of Boys' Brigade. Assistant Marshals—Veterans Benjamin Jensen, Leonard E. Peck, Jonathan J. Bartholomew, John H. Norman.

STATE POSTOFFICE CLERKS

ANNUAL MEETING HELD HERE YESTERDAY.

Officers for the Year Elected—Classification of Salary—Bill Now Before Congress Endorsed—Amalgamate With Other Labor Organizations—Banquet in the Evening.

The fourth annual convention of the Connecticut branch of the United National Association of Postoffice Clerks was held in the Red Men's hall, this city, yesterday afternoon. There was a good representation of the members, who are principally from the first and second-class offices in the state.

One of the important matters considered was the classification bill which is now pending before congress and relates to the hours and salaries of the clerks. After considerable discussion it was unanimously voted that the association endorse the bill and use every effort to secure its passage. The clerks desire what is known as the forty-eight hour rule, which they claim, will put them on about the same basis as the carriers. They also ask that they be paid overtime at the same rate per hour as their salaries, at all work done more than eight hours in twenty-four.

Their work is of such a nature that it cannot be done by working eight hours at a stretch, but must be broken up into periods. They also passed a resolution looking towards legislation relative to the cost of their bonds. As it is now, the clerks pay about $1,500 per $1,000, while the carriers, it is said, pay only about 50 cent for the same amount. They desire an equality of cost.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President—A. L. Clark, of Middletown. First vice president—H. C. Brown, of New Britain. Second vice president—E. R. Scott, of Hartford. Secretary—T. P. McDonald, of Bridgeport.

Treasurer—E. A. Parent, of Willimantic. Organizer—W. F. Leahy, of Meriden. Delegate to the annual convention of the national association, which is to be held in Kansas City in September—George O'Malley. Finance committee—W. A. Doolittle, of New Haven, H. McAllister, of Norwalk, and P. Barry, of Waterbury.

It was voted to leave the matter of affiliating with other labor organizations with the representative to the national convention. This is a matter of much importance and is a step in a new direction. Letters of regret were read from all of the representatives in Washington who had been invited to attend the session and also the banquet. A vote of thanks was tendered the present congress for its legislation regarding the salaries of the clerks and other post-office attaches, which legislation makes room for a number of new clerks and in consequence decreases the amount of work which each has to do.

The meeting adjourned at 6 o'clock to partake of a banquet, which was served at Butler's Lighthouse Point resort. Postmaster Howarth was the guest of honor. In his remarks he called the attention of the clerks to the justification of the classification bill, and said he hoped for its passage at an early date in the future. He said it would be as great a help to the postmaster as it would be to the clerks. The clerks, he said, were not remunerated proportionately as other employees of the government and the work performed by them was as onerous as any governmental work in the country. He also spoke of the deeds we commemorated yesterday and paid his respects to the Grand Army for the grand work done for the country forty years ago.

Letters of regret were read from Senators Hawley and Platt and Congressmen Sperry, Hill, Russell and Henry. They all sent their good will and stated that owing to the rush of business at the capitol and the short adjournment they were unable to get home and attend.

Other addresses were made by ex-President Howard Crocker, of Hartford, George O'Malley, of Meriden, and W. J. Bray, of Bridgeport. The lady delegates from out of town were Miss Mary Bee, Miss Elizabeth O'Reilly, Miss Mary Christie, of Bridgeport, and Catherine Code, of Stamford.

After the banquet dancing was enjoyed. The next state convention will be held in Middletown. The national convention will be held at Kansas City September 1.

HONEST DOCTOR

Speaks of Coffee Drinking. About coffee drinking, Dr. Hewet says, "I have the best of reasons for naming coffee as among the most dangerous of slow poisons. My own personal experience outside of the general experience gained by my practice has taught the truth.

At about 16 I became a member of a young people's society whose pledge barred the use of all intoxicants, tobacco, tea and coffee, until the age of 21. I kept my pledge and early temperate habits were formed. Up to about my 30th year I was an athlete; no one had better health or spirits.

A short time after passing thirty I began the use of coffee at breakfast with an occasional cup at evening parties. The first symptoms of ill health I remember came soon and later, sore mouth and stomach trouble. Finally well marked dyspepsia supervened. My bowels sympathized, of course, also my nervous system became impaired. Dizziness attacked me, and tremulous hands rendered writing exceedingly difficult. My diet had to be restricted. Experienced medical advisors forbade all fruits.

Several attacks of gastritis troubled me and bowel complaint became quite frequent. The shadow of melancholia menaced me and caused me to wonder why a man of my lineage, strength and endurance and temperate habits should be thus afflicted.

Eminent specialists named it "miasm," others as noted said, "microbes." I now say, "coffee arabica." Why? Because for the first thirty years I did not drink coffee and enjoyed good health, the second thirty years coffee drinking became a habit and illness more than kept pace with the indulgence.

I am now past 60 years of age. About 15 months ago I saw a shrewdly written statement of Postum Cereal Coffee. I gave it careful reading and thought, and as an experiment substituted Postum for Java and Mocha. For the first three days of the change I felt, keenly, the loss of the stimulant, after that the nutrient quality of the drink more than compensated the deprivation, and an astonishing change came in recurring hunger three times daily; I could scarcely wait for meals, a sensation I had not had for more than thirty years.

Now my health is excellent. I eat fruits of all kinds and food as my appetite demands. I am regaining my nervous tone and my strength is increasing daily. Except my change from coffee to Postum I have made no change in the mode of living.

Do you wonder that I name coffee as among the most dangerous of slow poisons? I believe there are thousands suffering as I suffered with a better excuse for ignorance than I can offer." A. C. Hewet, M. D., 491 W. Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

INDEPENDENCE POSSIBLE.

SIGNIFICANT WORDS BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

The Philippine Question the Burden of His Address to Veterans at Arlington.

Washington, May 30.—The Memorial day exercises at Arlington cemetery were notable for President Roosevelt's address, in which he discussed the work of the army in the Philippines. In the course of his speech he made a very striking statement as to the possibility of independence for the island.

"We believe that we can rapidly teach the people of the Philippines not only how to enjoy, but how to make good use of their freedom, and with their growing knowledge, their growth in self-government shall keep steady pace. When they have thus shown their capacity for real freedom by their power of self-government, then, and not till then, will it be possible to decide whether they are to exist independently of us or be knit to us by ties of common friendship and interest."

The greater part of the address was a plea for the army in the Philippines; a plea that cruelties had been inflicted upon the Filipinos except in comparatively rare instances, and an appeal for common justice in the consideration of charges against soldiers who were doing their duty under peculiarly trying circumstances. The president's address in full follows:

It is a good custom for our country to have certain solemn holidays in commemoration of our greatest men and of the greatest crises in our history. There should be but few such holidays. To increase their number is to cheapen them. Washington and Lincoln—the man who did the most to found a Union and the man who did the most to preserve it—stand head and shoulders above all our other public men and have by common consent won the right to this commemoration. Among the holidays which commemorate the turning points in American history, Thanksgiving has a significance peculiarly its own. On July 4 we celebrate the birth of the nation on this day, the 30th of May, we recall to mind the deaths of those who died that the nation might live, who waged all that life holds dear for the great prize of death in battle, who poured out their blood like water in order that the mighty national structure raised by the far-seeing patriotism of Washington, Franklin, Marshall, Hamilton and the other great leaders of the Revolution, great framers of the Constitution, should not crumble into meaningless ruins.

For whom I address to-day and your comrades who wore the blue beside you in the perilous years during which strong, sad, patient Lincoln bore the crushing load of national leadership, performed the one feat the failure to perform which would have meant destruction to everything which makes the name America a symbol of hope among the nations of mankind. You did the greatest and most necessary task which has ever fallen to the lot of any men on this western hemisphere. Nearly three centuries have passed since the waters of our coasts were first furrowed by the keels of the men whose children's children were to inherit this fair land. Over a century and a half of colonial growth followed the settlement; and now for over a century and a quarter we have been a nation.

During our four generations of national life we have had to do many tasks, and some of them of far-reaching importance; but the only really vital task was the one you did, the task of saving the Union. There were other crises in which to have gone wrong would have meant disaster; but this was the one crisis in which to have gone wrong would have meant not merely disaster but annihilation. For failure at any other point atonement could have been made; but had you failed in the iron days the loss would have been irreparable, the defeat irremediable. Upon your success depended all the future of the people on this continent, and much of the future of mankind as a whole.

You left us a reunited country. You left us the right of brotherhood with the men in gray, who with such courage and such devotion for what they deemed the right, fought against you. But you left us much more even than your achievement, for you left us the memory of how it was achieved. You, who made good by your valor and patriotism the statesmanship of Lincoln and the soldiership of Grant, have set the standards for our efforts in the future both the way you did your work in war and the way in which when the war was over you turned again to the work of peace. In war and in peace alike your example will stand as the wisest of lessons to us and our children and our children's children.

Just at this moment the army of the United States, led by men who served among you in the great war, is carrying to completion a small but peculiarly trying and difficult war in which is involved not only the honor of the flag but the triumph of civilization over forces which stand for the black chaos of savagery and barbarism. The task has not been as difficult or as important as yours, but, oh, my comrades, the men in the uniform of the United States, who have for the last three years patiently and uncomplainingly championed the American cause in the Philippine Islands, are your younger brothers, your sons. They have shown themselves not unworthy of the support of all men who are proud of what you did.

These younger comrades of yours have fought under terrible difficulties and have received terrible provocation from a very cruel and very treacherous enemy. Under the strain of these provocations I deeply deplore to say that some among them have so far forgotten themselves as to counsel and commit, in retaliation, acts of cruelty. The fact that for every guilty act committed by one of our troops a hundred acts of far greater atrocity have been committed by the hostile natives upon our troops, or upon the peaceable and law-abiding natives who are friendly to us, cannot be held to excuse any wrongdoer on our side. Determined and unswerving effort must be made, and is being made, to find out every instance of barbarity on the part of our troops, to punish those guilty of it, and to take, if possible, even stronger measures than have already been taken to minimize or prevent the occurrence of all such instances in the future.

From time to time there occur in our country, to the deep and lasting shame of our people, lynchings carried on under circumstances of inhuman cruelty and barbarity—a cruelty infinitely worse than any that has ever been committed by our troops in the Philippines; worse to the victims and far more brutalizing to those guilty of it. Then men who fail to condemn these lynchings, and yet clamor about what has been done in the Philippines, are indeed guilty of neglecting the beam in their own eye while counting their brother about the mote in his. Understand me. These lynchings afford us no excuse for failure to stop cruelty in the Philippines. Every effort is being made and will be made to minimize the chances of cruelty occurring.

But keep in mind that these cruelties in the Philippines have been wholly exceptional and have been shamelessly exaggerated. We deeply and bitterly regret that any such cruelties should have been committed, no matter how provoked, by American troops. But they afford far less justification for a general condemnation of our army than these lynchings afford for the condemnation of the communities in which they have taken place. In each case it is well to condemn the deed and it is well also to refrain from including both guilty and innocent in the same sweeping condemnation.

In every community there are people who commit acts of well-nigh inconceivable horror and baseness. If we fix our eyes only upon these individuals and upon their acts, and if we forget the far more numerous citizens of upright and honest life and blind ourselves to their countless deeds of wisdom and justice and philanthropy, it is easy enough to condemn the community. There is not a city in this land which we could not thus condemn if we fixed our eyes purely upon its police record and refused to look at what it has accomplished for decency and justice and charity. Yet this is exactly the attitude which has been taken by too many men with reference to our army in the Philippines; and it is an attitude both absurd and cruelly unjust.

The rules of warfare which have been promulgated by the War Department and accepted as the basis of conduct by our troops in the field are the rules laid down by Abraham Lincoln when you, my hearers, were fighting for the Union. These rules provide, of course, for the just severity necessary in war. The most destructive of all forms of cruelty would be to show weakness where sternness is demanded by iron need. But all cruelty is forbidden, and all harshness beyond what is called for by need. Our enemies in the Philippines have not merely violated every rule of war, but have made of these violations their only method of carrying on the war. We should have been justified by Abraham Lincoln's rules of war in infinitely greater severity than has been shown. The fact really is that our warfare in the Philippines has been carried on with singular humanity. For every act of cruelty by our men there have been innumerable acts of forbearance, magnanimity and generous kindness. These are the qualities which have characterized the war as a whole. The cruelties have been wholly exceptional on our part.

The guilty are to be punished but in punishing them, let those who sit at ease at home, who walk delicately and live in the soft places of the earth, remember also to do their common justice. Let not the effortless and the untempted rail over-much at strong men who with blood and sweat face years of toil and days and nights of agony, and at need lay down their lives in remote tropic jungles to bring the light of civilization into the world's dark places. The warfare that has extended the boundaries of civilization at the expense of barbarism and savagery has been for centuries one of the most potent factors in the progress of humanity. Yet from its very nature it has always and everywhere been liable to dark abuses.

Behold us to keep a vigilant watch to prevent these abuses and to punish those who commit them; but if because of them we flinch from finishing the task on which we have entered, we show ourselves unworthy of the support of all men who are proud of what you did.

Behold us to keep a vigilant watch to prevent these abuses and to punish those who commit them; but if because of them we flinch from finishing the task on which we have entered, we show ourselves unworthy of the support of all men who are proud of what you did.

we show ourselves cravens and weaklings, unworthy of the sires from whose loins we sprang. There were abuses and to spare in the civil war. Your false friends then called Grant a "butcher" and spoke of you who are listening to me as mercenaries, as "Lincoln's hirelings." Your open foes—as in the resolution passed by the Confederate Congress in October, 1862—accused you, at great length and with much particularity, of "contemptuous disregard of the usages of civilized war;" of subjecting women and children to "banishment, imprisonment and death;" of "murder" of "lawless cruelty;" of "perpetrating atrocities which would be disgraceful to savages;" and Abraham Lincoln was singled out for especial attack because of his "spirit of barbarous ferocity." Verily, these men who thus foully slandered you have their heirs to-day in those who traduce our armies in the Philippines, who fix their eyes on individual deeds of wrong so keenly that at last they become blind to the great work of peace and freedom that has already been accomplished.

Peace and freedom—are there two better objects for which a soldier can fight? Well, these are precisely the objects for which our soldiers are fighting in the Philippines. When there is talk of the cruelties committed in the Philippines, remember always that by far the greater proportion of these cruelties have been committed by the insurgents against their own people—as well as against our soldiers—and that not only the surest but the only effectual way of stopping them is by the progress of the American army. The victories of the American army have been the really effective means of putting a stop to cruelties in the Philippines. Wherever these victories have been complete—and such is now the case throughout the greater part of the island—all cruelties have ceased and the native is secure in life, his liberty and his pursuit of happiness. Where the insurrection still smolders there is always a chance for cruelty to show itself.

Our soldiers conquer; and what is the object for which they conquer? To establish a military government? No. The laws we are now endeavoring to enact for the government of the Philippines are to increase the power and domain of the civil at the expense of the military authorities, and to render even more difficult than in the past the chance of oppression. The military power is used to secure peace, in order that it may itself be supplanted by the civil government. The progress of the American arms means the abolition of cruelty, the bringing of peace and the rule of law and order under the civil government. Other nations have conquered to create irresponsible military rule. We conquer to bring just and responsible civil government to the conquered.

But our armies do more than bring peace, do more than bring order. They bring freedom. Remember always that the independence of a tribe or a community may, and often does, have nothing whatever to do with the freedom of the individual in that tribe or community. There are now in Asia and Africa scores of despotic monarchies, each of which is independent, and in no one of which is there the slightest vestige of freedom for the individual man. Scant indeed is the gain to mankind from the "independence" of a blood-stained tyrant who rules over abject and brutalized slaves. But great is the gain to humanity which follows the steady though slow introduction of the orderly liberty, the law-abiding freedom of the individual, which is the only sure foundation upon which national independence can be built. Wherever in the Philippines the insurrection has been definitely and finally put down, there the individual Filipino already enjoys such freedom, such personal liberty, under our rule, as he could never even dream of under the rule of an "independent" Aquinaldian oligarchy.

The slowly-learned and difficult art of self-government, an art which our people have taught themselves by the labor of a thousand years, can not be grasped in a day by a people only just emerging from conditions of life which our ancestors left behind them in the dim years before history dawned. We believe that we can rapidly teach the people of the Philippine Islands not only how to enjoy, but how to make good use of their freedom; and with their growing knowledge their growth in self-government shall keep steady pace. When they have thus shown their capacity for real freedom by their power of self-government, then, and not till then, will it be possible to decide whether they are to exist independently of us or be knit to us by ties of common friendship and interest. When that day will come it is not in human wisdom now to foretell. All that we can say with certainty is that it would be put back an immeasurable distance if we should yield to the counsels of unbridled weakness and turn loose the lawless butchering and blood-thirsty butchers who are revoltingly cruelly our betrayed friends, and shed the blood of the most humane, the most enlightened, the most peaceful, the wisest and the best of their own number—for these are the classes who have already learned to welcome our rule.

Nor, while fully acknowledging our duties to others, need we forget our duty to our own country. The Pacific seaboard is as much to us as the Atlantic; as we grow in power and prosperity so our interests will grow in the farthest west, which is the immemorial east. The shadow of our destiny has already reached to the shores of Asia. The might of our people already looms large against the world-horizon; and it will loom ever larger as the years go by. No statesman has a right to neglect the interests of our people in the Pacific; interests which are important to all our people, but which are of most importance to those of our people who have built populous and thriving states on the western slope of our continent. This should no more be a party question than the war for the Union should have been a party question. At this moment the man in highest office in the Philippine Islands is the vice-governor, General Luke Wright, of Tennessee, who gallantly wore the gray in the civil war and who is now working hand in hand with the head of our army in the Philippines, Adna Chaffee, who in the civil war gallantly wore the blue. Those two, and the men under them, from the north and from the south, in civil life and in military life, as teachers, as administrators, as soldiers, are laboring mightily for us who live at home. Here and there black sheep are to be found among them; but taken as a whole they represent as high a standard of public service as this country has ever seen. They are doing a great work for civilization, a great work for the honor and the interest of this nation, and above all for the welfare of the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands. All honor to them; and shame, thrice shame, to us if we fail to uphold their hands!

A farmer died near Wichita, Kansas, and left his property by will to the members of his family. In this will he provided that the farm should be preserved intact and that it should be rented. "It is my instruction to my executors," says the will, "that they may rent this farm to any fair appearing stranger, but that under no circumstances shall it be rented to any relative of myself or my wife." The old man had seen the manner in which kinfolk pay rent.

The clock in the Houses of Parliament is of huge dimensions. Each dial measures twenty-three feet in diameter, and covers a superficial area of sixteen feet. Most of the wheels are constructed of cast iron, and the hands and their appendages turn the scale at a couple of tons. The four dials are lighted by two hundred and forty gas burners, between which and the face of the clock there is a narrow chamber for the official lamp-lighter.

John D. Williams, a retired miner of Nanticoke, isn't seriously disturbed by the coal strike. He has a mine in his back yard. It is an outcropping which developed into a vein two feet by twelve, and from which he has been taking coal for seven years. It was given to him by the Susquehanna coal company, and he has mined it seventy-five feet without either powder or dynamite, picking it out with wedge and bar. He has never allowed anyone else to mine it, and now is giving coal to those of his friends who need it. He produces a couple of tons a week.

The making of ice in this country is no longer an infant industry. Thirty years ago the census found only four plants in the whole country for the manufacture of ice, and they were all located in the southern States. In 1900 the number had increased to 757 (not counting concerns which manufacture ice for their own use exclusively), and only about one-half of them are located in the South. Since 1890 the amount of capital invested in this industry has increased from $9,846,468 to $38,204,054, or by 288 per cent.; while the value of the product has increased from $4,900,983 to $13,874,513, or by 185 per cent.

After seeing Booker Washington's school at Tuskegee, Sidney Ormond of the Atlanta Constitution pronounces it an ideal negro community. "The expression will give but a vague idea to the average Southerner," he says. "I have visited many college towns and studied the work of many colleges. I have never seen one which approximates Tuskegee in many respects. During the two days spent at Tuskegee I never saw tobacco used in any form, I never heard the suggestion of profanity, I did not detect the semblance of immorality, and the boisterousness and disorder which one instinctively associates with the negro was absolutely lacking. Perfect order, neatness, self-respect and absolute politeness prevailed everywhere. The absurd affectation of the average educated negro was not noticeable. These negroes had been educated in the broadest and best sense."

The Paris correspondent of the London Times, in writing of the departure of President Loubet upon the visit to Russia which he has just concluded, directs attention to the wonderful change in the condition of public sentiment during the three years which have elapsed since the hostile demonstrations with which M. Loubet was greeted upon his return from the congress at Versailles. At that time he could not stir abroad without an escort, and the peace of France, if not of Europe, was thought to be in great danger. Now M. Loubet is able to leave the country without the least apprehension of anything untoward happening during his absence. The Nationalists have been subdued and the Imperialists reduced to impotency, while the republic has been established upon surer foundations than ever existed before. The correspondent also notes the suggestive fact that none of the royal or imperialistic pretenders ventured to attempt any reply to the various public addresses which M. Loubet delivered in his capacity of head of the republic.

There was not even a Bonapartist proclamation. Another reassuring sign is the recent speech of the Bishop of Quimper on the wisdom and duty of obedience to the form of government generally recognized.

A GAY DAY. Yesterday was Memorial Day, and a gay day it was. There were ball games, golf games, ping-pong games and all the other games, including, we fear, some gambling games. But we are a lively people and must be amused. Memorial Day is too long to be spent solemnly any more, Fast Day is Farce Day, and Memorial Day has joined the merry-ground. What's the use of having long faces, or even stopping to think, when we can have continuous fun? This is a gay old world, excepting the region around Mont Pelée, and excepting several other spots where having fun is not just now the predominant industry. But on with the dance, let joy be unconfined. Let us eat, drink and be merry, for to-morrow we die. Then all of us will be "saved," according to the Universalists, and some of us, according to other "ists." Lord, what is man that Thou art mindful of him?

THE UNEXPECTED. Of all sad words of tongue or pen the saddest were those of Princeton men as they talked over last evening what befell their pride and joy yesterday afternoon. This is well known to be an uncertain world, and baseball is well known to be about as uncertain as anything in it, but if there were any who went out to the field believing that Yale would win their belief had much more of faith than of reason in it. All the probabilities, the figuring and the betting were the other way. But the Yale players fell on the Tigers very much as the poet said the Assyrian was over the famous untwistable tail was so twisted that it will take some time to get the kinks out of it.

Those who lost money by betting on Princeton can console themselves with the theory that it is not wicked to bet. Judging from some of the talk last evening that is about all that some of the confident ones had left to console themselves with.

THE IRRECONCILABLES. The irreconcilables among the constitutional reformers don't seem to think on their merits, or even that they have any. But the plain truth is that they came out of the convention much less scathed than there was reason to think they would be. For instance, the proposed Constitution provides for an increase in the number of senators from 24 to 45. The senatorial districts are to be made as nearly equal in population as possible. The new arrangement would give the cities and large towns control of the Senate. It is further provided that amendments to the Constitution can originate in the Senate. So it would seem to be not difficult to get some more reform through the Senate under the new arrangement. If any more should be needed. And the chance of getting more reform through the House would be at least as good as was the chance of getting the permission for a Constitutional Convention through.

We admit that it is noble to die in the last ditch, with photographers taking the faces turned grimly toward the foe, and stenographers taking "the last words" as they flow from mouths about to close, but we would respectfully ask if in this case it is strictly necessary, or wise? Why throw away positive and important advantages that have been gained because they are not all that was demanded? In other words, why refuse to play in a yard because the game doesn't go exactly as you want to have it?

A LITTLE HOPE FOR SOME BABIES. The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church South, which has just closed its session at Jackson, Mississippi, adopted the following declaration: "This assembly is fully persuaded that the language employed in Chapter X, Section 3, of our 'Confession of Faith' touching infants dying in infancy does not teach that there are any infants dying in infancy who are damned, but is only meant to show that those who die in infancy are saved in a different manner from adult persons who are capable of being outwardly called by the ministry of the word. Furthermore, we are persuaded that the Holy Scriptures, when fairly interpreted, amply warrant us in believing that all infants who die in infancy are included in the election of grace, and are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit." Commenting on this one of the members of the assembly said: "We can say positively that children of believers who are included in the covenant of grace are saved, but in regard to the children of unbelievers, especially the children of the heathen, it would be difficult to prove from the Scriptures that they are safe."

The Graduating Dress. Stand still, ye whirling planets! Ye have no need to whirl! We have no eyes for thee, they're on The graduating class! Beribboned and beaded she Is just about to show Your brightest constellations A thing of two, I trow! Now clips she with her scissors And wields the silver thread, While visions of home triumph Are racing through her head— And on her finger nimble, She fits the festive tulle, A cozy, blushing symbol Of youth to conquer speed. Back, all ye weighty questions And problems of the day! We have no time for you now, No matter what you fight! Let business complications And great affairs of state, Stand back; we're near commencement, And other things can wait! Let armies vie with armies, Let nations fall or rise, But for these hours, none triumph We have no ears, nor eyes; We're deep in admiration Of such a festive tulle, For early graduation And incident surprise.

A BIT OF A BROOK. How delightfully inexhaustible are the possibilities of a live brook! You may walk along the bank of one every day in the year, and each time enjoy some new and interesting experience. Mystery is always fascinating, and a brook is always mysterious. You may live beside one all your life, without the least danger of learning all its secrets. It is much more satisfactory than a pond in some respects, for the greater depth and width of the latter often prevent one from examining its interesting features. A brook you can jump across or wade across, and you can not only see every part of it, but you can see it thoroughly well. There is scarcely a bird or beast in the forest, which you may not see along the bank of a brook, for besides the many creatures which make their homes in and about it at all seasons, nearly all the other wood-folk come there to drink at least once in the twenty-four hours. Even if the animals are not actually in view, you will generally find some indication of their recent presence. A scarlet feather floating in a sun-lighted eddy may mark the spot where a tanager has been taking his morning dip; fresh hoof-marks in the mud show where the deer have been down in the gray dawn to drink, or a newly opened mussel shell will tell you where and on what the muskrat dined last night.

And it is surprising, too, to see what large creatures often make their homes in a tiny brook. Trout weighing a pound or more are frequently taken from streams scarcely a foot in width, and a few days ago I saw a large sucker which had been caught in a steel trap set for mink in a little stream no wider than a handspan at the spot where the fish was taken. Last week I walked for perhaps a mile along the banks of a brook which I could and did step across whenever I cared to do so. As I approached the little stream, I saw on the opposite bank a muskrat busy gathering a mouthful of green grass. She had evidently just come from the brook, for the water was dripping from her long brown fur, which edging her body and glistened with the moisture. She bit off several tufts of grass, fairly close to the ground, and then came waddling back to the brook with a neat little sheaf the cut ends in her mouth and the blades all extending to the right. She came down the bank, launched herself gently, and without a sound, and after swimming up stream for two or three yards, dived and disappeared. In a less than two minutes she arose near the spot, in a place where she had entered the water, and again began to cut the grass blades in her business-like way. I was less than forty feet away, and it was about nine o'clock on a dull morning, yet she seemed to have no suspicion of my presence. When she dived the second time, I advanced about ten feet, and when she returned she paid no more attention to me than if I had been a stump. The next time she disappeared I crept into the alder bushes at the side of the stream and presently she arose to the surface and began to swim to the landing place. But she didn't reach it, for she either saw or smelled me and she sank out of sight without a sound. She was evidently engaged in making a nest in a burrow in the bank, and as the opening was under the water she was obliged to dive in order to reach it. A few days later, no doubt a litter of young muskrats were born in that nest, and if we had dug them out when they were less than a day old, we should have found perhaps half a dozen chunky little blind babies, weighing about three-quarters of an ounce apiece, with very short, dark furry hair on the back and none at all underneath.

As I wandered along up the brook, startled frogs leaped into the water, and after taking a few emphatic strokes, either disappeared under the bank, or clung, half floating, amongst the water plants. Most often it was a green frog, colored with several shades of olive, and sometimes, as he leaped, he uttered a grating cry. At another time it would be a little brown frog which dived gracefully into the swift running water, and twice or thrice I saw that beautiful creature, the leopard frog, with his yellow-margined, oval spots of olive green. Several times I saw small turtles wigwagging up and down the stream, or trying to scramble out of sight beneath the ferns which hung over into the water. Some were spotted turtles, black with bright spots, and others were the painted turtles, dark brown with irregular yellow markings around the plates of their shells. A muskrat swam into the water and captured one of these; he was a large one, and probably quite old, for there was moss growing on his back. In front, the edge of the shell was bi-symmetrically toothed or spiked, the longest pair of spikes being in the middle. This spiking is not common. I think it may possibly be peculiar to very old specimens. Rounding a bend of the stream I surprised a great blue heron fishing, but he slowly rose, and with his long legs trailing in his wake, flapped away above the tree tops. All through the moist fields which bordered the stream, the turf had been channeled by the feet of meadow mice, and here and there I came across the little domes of grass which mark the nests of these gentle creatures. None of the nests contained young, but once I saw a half-grown mouse scurrying away through the short grass. Some of the nests were old ones and in two of these I found that bumble bees had taken up their abode. An humble bee opened up one of them and when I opened it I found a large drop of clear, sweet-smelling honey, and a little lump of a yellowish, wax-like substance, in which were imbedded a number of white larvae. Coming home along the brook again, I noticed a spot where the water moved in a peculiar way, and as I looked I saw what at first appeared to be a log, drifting close to the bottom. Another look and I saw that it was a huge snapping turtle, perhaps hunting for an easy place to leave the stream that she might wander off into the ploughed fields to lay her eggs. I picked up a stick which was lying near and drove it into the middle of the brook a few yards ahead of the turtle and then cut off possible escape in that direction, and as she was too large to turn round I had a chance to capture it at my leisure. After finding the exact position of its tail, I seized it and dragged it out, kicking and snapping. Turtles may be slow, but if there is any other animal which can move its head as rapidly as a snapping turtle can, I don't know it. It waits until the object to be snapped at comes within reasonable distance, and then the already open mouth shoots forward like lightning. The sharp horny jaws close with a vicious snap, and if the desired object has been seized the head is instantly withdrawn with the jaws locked and the eyes closed tight in the desperate effort to bite harder. With considerable difficulty I lugged my prize to the nearest farm house, where it tipped the pumpkin scales at a little over twenty-eight pounds. ERNEST HAROLD BAYNES.

The manager of our art bureau has thought out a splendid scheme for the children's supplement. "Eh? What is it?" "He has had one of the artists draw a full page picture of Mont Pelée in action, and then right at the summit he has rubbed a lot of explosive chemicals. When a match is touched to the stuff the eruption occurs. The child under five years whose photograph shows the smallest amount of hair and eyebrows after the explosion gets the first prize. Great idea, isn't it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

METHODIST EVOLUTION. The charge is made that Methodism is losing in modern days the austerity and simplicity which marked its beginnings and which have been in its power large measure the secret of its power. The church has grown rich; its membership is no longer made up of the humble and the lowly; its invitation is now to the rich and the great as much as to the classes to whom Wesley and Whitfield more directly appealed. Its houses of worship are no longer of the plainest type, but are furnished with Episcopal and other churches, which have never made simplicity and severity rules of practice. The more recent Methodist architecture more, perhaps, than anything else marks the departure of the church from its old standards. Its steeples climb to the clouds; its windows reflect the latest and the richest in art; its ornamentation is marked by those studies in harmony and in ecclesiastical history which it was the special mark of old-fashioned Methodism to avoid and condemn.

The dress of Methodist congregations used, two generations ago, if not more recently, to manifest by its outward severity a religious disregard, if not contempt, for the frivolities of fashion. To-day a Methodist congregation is not to be distinguished from any other. Its devotion to the fashion is as marked as that of any other church; and in the attitude of the people there is no reflection of the rules which Wesley gave to his people, and which for several succeeding generations were regarded as embodying an imperative rule of practice for all members of the Methodist church. Among these "general rules" drawn up by Wesley for the government of Methodism and still nominally recognized by the church are these prohibitions: "Do what we know is not to the glory of God in: The putting on of gold and costly apparel: The taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus. The singing those songs or reading those books which do not tend to the knowledge and love of God; Softness and needless self-indulgence; Laying up treasures upon earth. It was the spirit of these rules which gave to early Methodism its tremendous power, both in England and in this country. It carried the Methodist "out of the world," gave the tone of seriousness and devotion to his daily walk, separated him from other men, and bound him to his own people, and in a thousand ways gave to the church the strength of the devotion and co-operation of all its members. All this, of course, is lost under the conditions which now prevail, when the Methodist is not to be distinguished by any outward circumstance nor, perhaps, by any inward feeling from any other Christian man; when himself and his family make no study of Methodist simplicity of life, but, on the other hand, rather despise it as a mark of "bad form."

There is, of course, a curious significance in this incident. It implies that Methodism is changing with the times; that it is casting off the things which belonged to another age, and taking on the spirit which belongs to the twentieth century. If this, indeed, be so, it is hardly a matter for criticism; but it is not without interest for those who seek to mark the progress of the world by comparison of the practices of different and differing times.—Portland Oregonian.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Funeral of W. J. Scranton.

There was an immense attendance yesterday at the funeral of the late William J. Scranton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Scranton, which took place from his late residence, 21 Lake Place, and later from St. Mary's church, where the Rev. Father Thauente officiated.

Pol's Wonderful Theater.

Memorial day at Pol's was a busy one. Perhaps every person in New Haven who enjoys good vaudeville has seen it at the late hour of the engagement, but then, again, perhaps not, and if there are any such it will be a mistake on their part not to give Pol a call.

FOUR years ago, when we agreed to take on the VARTRAY goods (after it had been demonstrated to us that they were the best yet made in America) we little thought that the world was going to agree with us—yet it is true—for VARTRAY Ginger Ale took the Gold Medal at last year's Paris Exposition, in competition with the world—including the Ginger Ales made in Belfast, Ireland.

YESTERDAY'S BALL GAMES

YALE DEFEATED PRINCETON IN FIRST GAME OF SERIES.

Blue Took the Lead at the Opening—Princeton Made Great Up-hill Fight—In the State League New Haven Won Two Straight from Meriden—Large Crowd—Other Games.

On Yale Field, yesterday afternoon, Yale won the opening game of the series with Princeton by trouncing the Tigers, 10 to 6, in a loosely played, yet exciting match. The game was a typical holiday, college affair. The audience numbered fully six thousand people and the pretty gowns of college girls from Smith, Vassar, Wellesley and other schools and colleges blended attractively with the light, summer attire of the Yale and Princeton graduates and undergraduates. Yale flags were everywhere conspicuous. The orange and black pennants were not by any means absent and what the Princeton contingent lacked in numbers it more than made up in enthusiasm. The Yale university band added to the occasion its repertoire of selections, the Yale "Boo-boo," and other college pieces being played with force and enthusiasm. The game, while technically not first class, was decidedly interesting from a Yale point of view and the good plays of the players were heartily rewarded.

Yale assumed the lead from the start but Princeton made a fine rally in the last three innings and came near overthrowing the Blue. Garvan was batted heavily, the Tigers getting eleven with a total of thirteen hits. Stevens kept the hits pretty well scattered but they were sandwiched in with several of Meier's most lurid errors.

Yale began scoring as soon as the game opened. Metcalf, Wear and Barnwell filled the bases in the first inning on errors of Meier and Stevens. Cote made himself solid at once by poking out a clean single into right, slaming Wear and Metcalf across the plate. Guernsey smashed Barnwell home with a long fly to right and Cote scored on Wells' muff of Littlefield's hit. In this inning Winslow and Miller were given bases on balls but loose batting by Yale failed to score any more runs.

Princeton got her first run in the second inning, Davis reaching first on a sharp hit which Guernsey failed to negotiate. He stole second and scored on Garvan's wild pitch.

Yale really put the game on the shelf in the third. Guernsey poked one through Meier, Miller, Garvan and Metcalf singled, two runs resulting.

In the fourth Princeton got another on Brown's hit to Miller, which was thrown to Littlefield, who forgot to keep his foot on first base. He stole second and scored as Miller threw Davis' hit wild.

In the fifth Littlefield singled. Metcalf and Barnwell followed with safe hits, and Meier's error coming along opportunely netted four more runs. Yale was blanked in the fifth, not a man reaching second base.

Princeton made a fine batting rally in the sixth. Meier, Wells, Davis and Stevens hit safely and Miller's wild throw gave the Tigers three runs. Princeton scored her last run in the eighth on Wells' triple and Stevens' single.

The features of the game were the fielding of Metcalf and Winslow for Yale, that of Captain Steinwender for Princeton, and the batting of Stevens and Meier. The score:

STATE LEAGUE GAMES.

New Haven Won in Morning and Afternoon—The Other Games.

New Haven made it two straight in the State League series, yesterday, by defeating the Meriden team in this city in the afternoon after having easily vanquished the Silver City team in Meriden, in the morning. The game on the Savin Rock grounds was attended by fully 3,000 people and the enthusiasm displayed was very encouraging to the players and also to the management. The contest was closely fought up to the fourth inning and then the New Haven men scored four runs, on two men hit by pitched balls, two singles and a base on balls, followed by a two bouncer by Braun. Meriden played an uphill game and in the sixth and seventh innings scored a total of six runs, leading the Blues by one run. The home team scored three runs in the eighth and the game ended with the score 10 to 8 against Meriden. The score by innings:

WAS A NOTED MAN HERE

DEATH OF GEORGET NEWHALL IN ORANGE.

Was a Famous New Haven Carriage Manufacturer for Many Years—Newhallville Named After Him—Spent His Last Years in Farming. George T. Newhall, a man who was a prominent figure in New Haven and a leading carriage manufacturer for many years, died at his residence in Orange Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Newhall in the height of his prosperity did a splendid business in his line, his carriages finding a market largely in the southern states and being known all over the union. The Newhallville section of New Haven was named after him, his factory contributing much to the building up of that section. Newhall street was also named in his honor.

The late Mr. Newhall was born in this city and died at the age of eighty-one. His father was Merritt Newhall, George's grandfather, the trade of carriage body making at the Hooker & Osborn factory, which was on Park street, and when quite a young man embarked in business for himself and he continued in the carriage business for over forty years, most of the time without a partner.

He had for a few years a partner named Joseph Pardee. In later years Singleton Carrington was in partnership with him. About eight years ago he bought a little farm in Orange which he conducted until his death. He had been an invalid for the last year or more. He was in middle life a prominent member of the First M. E. church. He leaves three sons and three daughters. Two daughters and one son reside here; the others in Hartford. His three daughters are Harriet, wife of George A. Reynolds of Hartford, formerly of New Haven; Miss Imogene and Miss J. Adele, who reside at 88 Wall street, this city, and the sons are George T. Newhall, Jr., of Hartford and two younger sons. Mr. Newhall's wife died about two years ago. His wife was a descendant of Governor Leete, one of the governors of Connecticut in colonial times.

Statue Unveiled to McKinley.

Muskegon, May 30.—One of the most impressive memorial day ceremonies ever carried out in this city was the one leading up to the unveiling of the bronze statue of the late President McKinley to-day. The massive granite monument together with the large bronze figure of the martyred president is a gift to the public schools of Muskegon by Charles H. Hackley, a millionaire lumberman of this city. It was erected at a cost of $30,000.

COLLEGE PHYSICAL CULTURE.

The examination of many students shows that the man of perfect physique is next thing to non-existent. The average man is badly developed above the waist. His arms are not well muscled. He stoops and carries his head too far forward. One shoulder is a trifle higher than the other. He lacks in breathing capacity. There is also weakness in some of the leg muscles, but this is not so marked. Now, at first thought it would seem an easy matter to correct these weaknesses.

SHARES EXCHANGED.

The stockholders of the Winchester Avenue Railroad company are acting under the offer of the Fair Haven road made May first and are exchanging their holdings in the former company for stock of the latter. Up to the present time of the thirty-two thousand shares of Winchester Avenue stock that may be exchanged for stock of the Fair Haven road have already been offered for exchange, and it is likely that before the 18th of June, the time limit for taking advantage of the offer, all of the exchange will have been made.

And Now, the Malley Sale of Undermuslins. Easily Supreme in Value. Easily Supreme in Variety.

OUR Thirty-Second Semi-Annual Sale of Muslin Underwear opens Saturday morning. This is an announcement which no woman within reach of this store can read with indifference.

It is unnecessary to say that our preparations are larger than ever before. Of course they are. Progression is the natural law of every successful store.

In quantities, we have increased our stock by twenty per cent over that of last year. In value, you will be the gainer by from five to fifteen per cent over the best we could do last year, and last year, (as this) our values-for-prices were the greatest ever known in New Haven County.

There is much foolish talk and some fraud in undermuslin selling. The semi-annual sales have become a part of the regular programme of every store. As a matter of fact, these are logically possible only to a few of the very largest stores. They have for their sole excuse,

Extraordinary Value-for-Price

and that, in common sense and business law can come only through heavy purchases made possible by the very largest outlet.

Stores lacking this advantage seek to make it up by absurd claims, loud talk, heavy type and unworthy goods. There are makers of trash who sell garments resembling good underwear a low price. These, skimpy in size, carelessly chopped out, hastily sewn, trimmed with flimsy embroidery, masquerade (in type) as "dainty lingerie". The loss is the customer's.

This is a practice abominated by this store, as well as by other good stores in this vicinity who have followed our methods as closely as possible.

But we command the situation, and we use our power to the utmost in such a movement as this Feats of strength are easy to the strong. In giving you supreme values and an over shadowing display, we do only what is to be expected of the leading store of the state. If we did less than lead we should do less than our duty. If we were less than supreme we should be less than the Malley's you have known so long.

We Maintain Our Supremacy

In evidence of all this, we invite you on Saturday and succeeding days to see

WE shall not follow on this occasion the usual practise of printing detailed descriptions of each garment;—partly because such descriptions are pale and cold and unconvincing;—unworthy of the dainty elegance they seek to depict—partly because our variety in this sale is so great that detailed description is utterly impossible. It would take this entire page to describe our styles in Night Gowns alone.

But the general features of the garments may be summarized as follows:

1. Every garment has been made especially for us, to our own specifications, and under our own supervision.
2. Every one of them was made in a factory noted as a model of its kind;—a factory as clean as your own dining-room, in which the operatives are picked experts; a factory in which the employees dress with the scrupulous neatness of a trained nurse, a factory in which there is not only a flood of light and air, but birds, flowers and occasionally music. There are no "Song of the Shirt" horrors stitched into these garments.
3. The styles of the garments are all new, all exclusive with us, and many of them are as carefully studied as the design of a ball costume. The cutting and making are worthy of the designing. Accuracy and thoroughness are the mottoes of the factory. You cannot yourself do or hire any such sewing as you will see in these garments.
4. The laces used are of the best class. None of the cheap, machine-made lace is permitted, because it invariably ravel in the wash tub. This is one of the marked points of difference between our undermuslins and the cheap stuff that flaunts itself in some sales.
5. There is no skimping in sizes. On large orders, it is possible to save hundreds of dollars by cutting an inch from the length or width of a gown. None of this for us or for you.
6. The prices run from ten to twenty-five per cent UNDER the lowest prices you can find on goods anywhere near their equals, and from twenty to thirty per cent UNDER what it would cost you to make up the garments yourself, even taking your own time at regular "sweat-shop" rates.

THE BRANFORD RACES

ENJOYED BY A VERY LARGE AND FIRST CLASS ATTENDANCE.

Auspicious Opening of the Driving Park for This Season—Liberality and Excellent Management Noticed at the Beautiful Resort—Compliments for Proprietor—Good Races.

The programme of sport which was provided by Louis A. Fisk, proprietor and manager of the picturesque driving park at Branford, Conn., was sufficient to attract a very large crowd to his resort yesterday afternoon. The regular trains carried many passengers to the trotting course, but the largest number of patrons went by the very convenient special train which left this city at 1:30 p. m. This train of ten cars was sufficient to seat all that were on time and was well and comfortably filled. On the return the cars were taxed to their limit. From the driving park station horse cars carried passengers by a short and direct route through fields, farms and forests fragrant with spring flowers and fresh verdure. It was a beautiful and romantic ride through the woods to the park gate. Many improvements were noticed both outside and inside the park.

The covered grand stand was soon filled with as fashionable an audience as it ever contained. Attractive women with spring dresses and hats of various colors and scores of pretty girls, both with and without escorts were numerous on the elevated seats that were occupied by many well dressed gentlemen. The bleachers and many vehicles were also occupied. The following gentlemen assembled in the judges stand and called for the horses entered in the 2:30 class. F. L. Newton of this city, who officiate as starter, was credited for efficient work. He succeeded in starting the horses in fair positions without tiresome scoring. Other officials were F. S. Oakes, Robert H. Menschen, G. E. Osborn, and F. A. Finch. Particulars of the half mile races are told by the summaries: 2:30 Class—Trot or Pace—Purse $150. McGavock, b. s. by McEwen. Wm. Donnelly 1 4 2 1 1 Gilbert D., b. g. H. W. McIntyre 3 1 1 2 3 Able, ch. g. by Garnet Rock. T. McMinis 2 2 3 4 4 C. O. D., ch. g. by Anderson Wilkes, A. Risk 4 3 4 2 2 Sparrow, s. g. G. F. Shaver 5 4 McGavock, owned in this city, had his first race yesterday. He is regarded as a good prospect and came originally from a section of the country that furnished some very low record pacers. He was bred by Campbell Brown of Tennessee, and was sired by McGavock 2:18 1/2. McGavock's dam was of the famous Tom Hal stock. Time—1:13, 1:11 1/2, 1:13, 1:11 1/2. A very interesting vaudeville performance on the elevated stage entertained the patrons between the heats. 2:50 Class—Trot—Purse $150. Mary R., br. m. by Guy H. Brunsie 2 1 1 1 1 Clinton Girl, b. m. by Hamlin's Almont, Jr., H. S. Reynolds 1 2 2 2 2 Sly, b. g. by Rickard, 9:14, W. F. Piper 3 3 3 3 3 Johnnie B., b. g. Crouse Klock 4 4 4 4 4 Time—1:12 3/4, 1:12 1/2, 1:12 3/4. The liberal proprietor furnished two bands of music that discoursed all the music desired. The next races at the park are to be held on the third and fourth of July. GUN CLUB TOURNAMENT. Successful Affair at Schuetzen Park Range Yesterday. The New Haven Gun club conducted a very successful tournament at their range in Schuetzen park yesterday. The shooting began at 9 o'clock in the morning and, the weather being propitious, there was a very large attendance and some good scores were made. There were fourteen regularly scheduled events and a number of extras were also given. There was to have been a five-men team race, but it was withdrawn. All of the birds' angles were unknown. Some of the scores are as follows: First event, ten targets—Claridge, first, 10; Whitney and Savage tied at 9 for second. Second event, ten targets—Edgerton, first, 10; Whitney, Kelly, Savage and Robertson tied for second with 9 birds each. Third event, twenty targets—Claridge, Savage and Kelly tied for first with 18; Whitney and Edgerton tied for second with 17; Bradt, third, 15. Eleventh event, ten targets—Claridge and Kelly, first, 10 each; Savage, second, 9; Whitney, Phelps and Bronson, third, 8 each; Edgerton, Bartlett, Holman and Dudley, fourth, 7 each. Twelfth event, fifteen targets—Claridge, Whitney and Bartlett, first, 14; Bronson and Kelly, second, 13; Dudley and Edgerton, third, 12. The Highwood fire department will decorate the graves of deceased members on Sunday. The organization will attend memorial services to be held in the Hamden Plains M. E. church in the morning. Sciatie Rheumatism Suffered For ten Years of Suffering. "I have been afflicted with sciatie rheumatism for fourteen years," says Josh Edgar, of Germantown, Cal. "I was able to be around but constantly suffered. I tried everything I could hear of and at last was told to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I did and was immediately relieved and in a short time cured, and I am happy to say it has not since returned." Why not use this liniment and get well? It is for sale by all druggists.

WOODMONT-BY-THE-SEA.

DECORATION DAY FINDS MANY OF THE COTTAGERS.

Some of Those at the Shore or Soon Due There—A Number of Interesting Events—Other Notes.

Woodmont-by-the-Sea is stirring with life and activity, and the season for summer residents has begun fully a month in advance this year. Many more of the cottages are occupied this year before Decoration day than in other years, and the cottages are renting more rapidly and commanding better prices.

The summer colony are highly pleased at the promised introduction of gas, although there is some disappointment at the delay, as the circuit will probably not be completed before the middle of June, two weeks or more later than was promised. The main and pipes are laid through Woodmont and as far as Oyster River. From this city the pipes are laid as far as Rocky Beach, which leaves a distance of about a mile still to cover.

The hotels are beginning to register guests and everything promises well for the season. There have not been as many new houses built as in former years.

Mrs. Sarah Blinn has her new house completed and is occupying it temporarily, and four others have been built on Merwin's Beach, two on Burwell's Beach and two at Oyster River.

Some of those now at the shore and country are: Mr. and Mrs. William H. Merwin, of 45 Elm street, Miss Jennie Merwin, Mrs. Walter Davis and Miss Evelyn Davis spent yesterday at their cottage, Sea Breeze. They will occupy it for the summer next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Tinkley have taken a cottage near Oyster River for the summer. They were there yesterday making preparations for occupancy in a couple of weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John Denning go to their cottage as soon as school closes. Frank Smith, of the New Haven Window Shade company on Orange street, and family have been occupying their cottage, Bon Air, since the first of May.

Andrew Smith and family will come to the same cottage in a short time. Frederick Carleton, the plumber who has the contract for the introduction of gas into the village, is living with his family in his cottage. His son, Frederick Carleton, and family have been occupying the Parmelee cottage since May 1.

Mr. Carleton has charge of the work at the Woodmont end of the route and has a store near the postoffice for the sale of gas stoves and accessories.

F. E. Hoadley and family, of Ansonia, have rented the Lum cottage on the bluff and were there yesterday for the first time.

Mr. Markle, the grocer of this city, and family have rented one of the Clark cottages and will go there to occupy it June 1.

E. G. Merwin, the banker, of Columbus avenue, and Mrs. Merwin, were at their cottage Monday.

Lewis Tyrrel and family, of Derby, came Monday and are in the Schneller cottage. Mr. Tyrrel's brother, Alton Tyrrel, has rented Colonel Wooster's cottage and will be there shortly.

Frank Bartlett, of the Trust company, and family are occupying another of Colonel Wooster's cottages.

Levi Gilbert, the coal dealer on Church street, and family are living in their fine cottage in the New Haven colony.

Colonel Tolles and family, of New Jersey, are occupying their cottage for the season.

Robert T. Benham and family have just returned from the south and are in their cottage.

Herman Smith, the real estate dealer, residing on George street, and his family have been in their cottage for two weeks.

Senator Hawley and family will occupy their cottage the last of June, Mrs. Hawley and daughter are now in Europe, but are expected back at that time.

Frederick Stevens, of Bridgeport, one of the proprietors of the Bridgeport Standard, came with his family to his cottage on Merwin's Point Tuesday.

Dwight Baldwin, the carriage manufacturer on Park street, and his family have been in their cottage for two weeks.

Professor Woodford and family were in their cottage last week.

L. F. Anshutz, of Ansonia, will occupy their cottage on the shore front in a few days.

William H. Downs, the author of Boston, and family will occupy the cottage owned by his father, William E. Downs, of Whitney avenue, at the close of the school sessions.

Dr. Ferguson, of College street, and family will occupy Harry Merwin's cottage June 1.

Mr. Bennett and family, of Philadelphia, were at their handsome cottage on Merwin's Point Wednesday making preparations for their occupancy for the summer.

Mr. Tolles and family, of Naugatuck, are getting their house in order for their residence shortly. Their house is next to the Bennett house.

Mrs. Edith Johnson, of New Britain, will take possession of the old Merwin's Point house, for a hotel and boarding house for the season, to-day. She will reside there through the winter.

Leroy Haskell, of Derby, has rented the Sanford house and will open June 16. Mr. Haskell formerly had the Bonilene for two years several seasons ago and is a popular and genial host.

The Bradley house on the bluff has been open several days.

The Hotel Pembroke has been open for some time and guests are sending their effects and everything is being put in order for a booming summer business.

ANCE BUSINESS IN THIS CITY, AND FAMILY HAVE BEEN IN THEIR COTTAGE NEAR THE Pembroke hotel since May 1.

Mrs. Cowles and her son-in-law, Mr. Bliss, of Ansonia, were at their cottage Monday and will be there permanently in a few days.

J. I. Doellittle and family, who board in Milford through the winter, have been in their cottage since the first of April. Mrs. Doellittle held a reception Thursday from 2 to 5 in the afternoon for the Woodmont people. The reception was given in honor of Rev. Sherwood Roosevelt, the new rector of St. Peter's church, Milford. The house presented a very charming appearance with beautiful cut flowers and many potted plants for decoration. There was a large attendance of callers and a very nice collation was served.

The suppers at the Woodmont chapel during the winter have been very successful and have attracted many people from this city. The last supper will be given about the middle of June and a large attendance is expected.

Rev. Mr. Upson, of Plymouth church, Milford, is occupying the pulpit of the church through the months of May and June. Through the summer months the shore people have charge of the services and supply the pulpit.

Miss Jeannette Treat, whose father was formerly a resident of Woodmont, came from her home in Iowa two weeks ago to spend the summer with her father's relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Merwin, of 52 Bishop street, spent yesterday with John W. Merwin at the old Merwin homestead at Merwin's Point.

Rev. Dr. Anderson and family, of Waterbury, are staying in their cottage temporarily, but will come later for the season. Dr. Anderson's son, Lawyer Joseph Anderson, and wife, who reside in Porto Rico, have been visiting Dr. Anderson, but are now visiting Mrs. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lewis, of Woodbridge. Mr. Lewis formerly conducted a gentlemen's furnishing store on Chapel street.

Woodmont people will be pleased to learn that Walter P. Hatch and family, of Stamford, were at Woodmont yesterday and will occupy their cottage this summer.

Andrew T. Smith, of this city, the needle manufacturer, was at his cottage yesterday making ready for occupancy.

Miss Spencer and Miss Kitty Spencer, of Waterbury, are in the Little cottage.

Ex-Mayor Peck and family, of this city, are occupying their cottage at Oyster River.

Mrs. Webster and daughter, of Waterbury, are in the Flint cottage for the season.

Henry Smith, dean of Yale college, and family are in their cottage near the Bonilene.

Walter Bradley and family, of Meriden, have been in their cottage since early spring.

Thomas Birdseye, of the Derby Shingles bank, has his cottage, situated in and graded the land around it, and will be there later permanently.

John Brewster, the dry goods merchant of Derby, has raised his cottage and greatly improved the surroundings.

Some of the Woodmont residents were aroused from their slumbers about one o'clock Tuesday morning by the sound of a disturbance and loud altercation in the road. The next morning a phonon was found standing near the Hotel Pembroke minus a horse or driver and with one wheel smashed. The carriage still stands there and the owner may read this item and find his property.

IN AND ABOUT THE COURTS.

INQUISITIVENESS OF A JUROR CAUSES A NEW TRIAL.

Replevin Suit of Minor Importance Goes on Record as an Important Exception—in Bankruptcy Court—City Court News—Other Items.

The replevin suit brought by Charles Klunko of Ansonia against Lengen & Ambricks of the same town will have to be tried over again in the civil side of the common pleas court because of the action of one of the jurors. C. LeRoy Mitchell of Southbury, who talked so much that Judge Cable granted the request of Judge Munger, counsel for the defense, to have the jury discharged. It is probable that the matter will be heard at the June term of the court. The case is not an important one, not more than $50 being involved. The action of Juror Mitchell was most unusual, however, and occasioned much comment in the court room and among the lawyers who learned of the facts.

When the lawyers began to sum up the inquisitive juror did not relax his vigilance and constantly interrupted Judge Munger to remind him that he failed to comment on certain aspects of the case. He also took issue with the defendants' attorney on a number of points. When it became evident that the juror's mind was apparently biased as far as issues involved were concerned, Judge Munger addressed the court and asked that the case be dismissed. Judge Cable granted the motion of Judge Munger and the case will be heard again. Attorneys who have practiced in the county courts for years say that it is the first time a case has been taken away from a jury for the reasons given.

IN BANKRUPTCY COURT.

Referee Newton yesterday morning appointed Attorney B. E. Lynch receiver for Michael E. Congrove, the Church street shoe dealer who filed a petition in bankruptcy on Wednesday. The receiver will have full charge of the business until a trustee is appointed in the bankruptcy court. This will not be done before June 12, when the creditors will hold their first meeting. Attorney Lynch furnished a bond of $10,000. The appraisers appointed are A. B. Greenwood, Michael Myers and Louis H. Strouss.

Attorney Samuel E. Hoyt has been appointed receiver for J. H. Kearney, proprietor of the Edgewood Grocery and Provision company of Edgewood avenue. The creditors will elect a trustee at their first meeting.

Detective McClair, who with three of his detectives was fined in the Bradford court on breach of the peace charges, states that the entire defense was not put in at the court, but the matter would be fully and completely aired in the superior court in June. He said that the testimony for the state charged him with being in a saloon and drinking, a saloon that he never entered in his life.

CITY COURT NEWS.

When Michael Furey was sent to jail on Tuesday for drunkenness, his wife, Mary, got $347 which he had. She posed as a much injured woman. After she got the money she went home and celebrated. Thursday Mary McCabe and Mary Sullivan called on her and the crowd had a general celebration. In the afternoon all three were arrested for drunkenness, and the additional charge of keeping a disorderly house was preferred against Mrs. Furey. She was fined $15 and costs. The Sullivan woman's case went over until this morning, and judgment was suspended in the case of the McCabe woman.

The cases against Albert Friend, charging him with passing fraudulent checks, were continued to June 6. Minor cases were disposed of as follows:

Williams, drunk, $5; Charles Taylor, vagrancy, continued till to-morrow; John Nolan, violation of the liquor law, $50 and costs, appealed under $200 bail; Joseph Tendler, violation of the liquor law, nolle. He was formerly employed at Winchester's, but for a year has not contributed to the support of his wife, and a few months ago went to Bridgeport where he earned good wages. Mrs. Seeley was obliged to enter service to support herself, and has been employed in a family in Gilbert street. A child is in an orphan asylum.

Whooping Cough.

A woman who has had experience with this disease tells how to prevent any dangerous consequences from it. She says: "Our three children whooping cough last summer, our baby boy being only three months old, and owing to our giving them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, they lost none of their plumpness and came out in much better health than other children whose parents 'not use this remedy. Our oldest little girl would call lustily for cough syrup between whoops—Jessie Pinkey Hall, Springfield, Ala. This remedy is for sale by all druggists."

There was considerable interest manifested in the two games yesterday between the Wallingfords and Dublins of Meriden. The morning game down here was won by the Dublins by a score of 16 to 12, and the game was a hot one as both teams done some heavy batting. The afternoon game was played in Hanover park, and was won by Wallingford by a score of 9 to 3. Each team raked in about $12 by the two games.

Judge Francis Dean Syrick, of Richmond, Va., is a prominent attorney of Washington, D. C. In a recent letter written from 1841 L. Street, Washington, D. C., he says:

"I have for some time been troubled with a malarial condition of the system thus making me susceptible to colds and rheumatic conditions.

"A friend recommended Peruna to me some time ago and I commenced taking it and after a few days I felt the beneficial effects of the medicine. I am going to continue taking it for I can say without hesitancy that it is one of the best tonics that I ever took."—FRANCIS DEAN SYRICK.

THE SECRET.

How Doctors Protect Themselves From Contagious Diseases.

Doctors rarely catch contagious diseases. Almost everybody knows this, but few know how they escape. Many believe that the doctor has some charm or antiseptic which protects him. Dr. Hartman lately made the truth of this matter public, that all might realize its benefit. Contagious diseases are conveyed by minute organisms known as disease germs. These germs find their entrance into the system through a perfectly healthy mucous membrane. Doctors know this and therefore guard against it. This is all the secret there is about it.

into the system. If the mucous membrane is affected by catarrh the germs find easy access. Catarrhal secretions furnish exactly the material upon which they thrive and multiply. To get rid of the catarrh and thus preserve the mucous membrane healthy, is the only way to be safe from contagious diseases. This explains why it is that some people catch diseases easier than others.

Every one is exposed just the same. Not every one, however, falls a victim to contagious diseases. A disease germ cannot enter the system through a perfectly healthy mucous membrane. Doctors know this and therefore guard against it. This is all the secret there is about it.

The best cure or preventative known to the medical profession up to date for catarrh in all its conditions is Peruna. During the uncertain weather of spring-time it is an unnecessary hazard for any one to neglect to guard himself from taking disease, by taking Peruna. Send for free catarrh book. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

FAMOUS CROSS AGAIN STANDS.

Historic Landmark in Santa Clara, Cal., Replaced.
The ancient cross which for more than a hundred years has stood as a landmark in Santa Clara, says the San Jose (Cal.) correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, has been replaced with great ceremony. It was blown down by a windstorm in March last. The fragments were carefully saved and fastened together so that the cross now is stronger than it was before.
Father Kenna, who conducted the excavation, told briefly the history of this great mission, one of the most successful, if not the fairest, of them all.
The first foundation, January 12, 1777, was near where now stands the residence of Peter Donohue, on the Laurelwood Farm. Here, after the first mass celebrated in the valley, Father Pena planted the great mission cross and began an adobe church, which was ruined by the flood of 1779. The undaunted men at once chose a second site, where in 1781 rose the second mission church. This was badly shaken by the great earthquake in 1818, and again the friars sought another and better site, the one on which the present church now stands.
Here in 1822 the venerable Dr. Serra came to bless and open the church on August 11, the eve of St. Claire's feast, and here the great mission cross was again erected, and around it many a time the pious padres gathered their dusky neophytes and told them in loving and burning words the ineffable story of their Divine Master and Saviour, breaking to them the bread of life.
Father Kenna, then spoke of the cross, of how it braved storms of long years, and, though several times thrown down, still, as to-day, it was reared again by faithful hands. He spoke of the many and wondrous doings of which the cross had been a silent witness during 125 years.

LIBERTY BELL COUNCIL, O. U. A. M.

At the meeting of Liberty Bell council No. 3, Jr. O. U. A. M., Thursday night, one candidate was initiated and three applications for membership received. An entertainment will probably be given by this council in the very near future.

IN A DRESS SUIT CASE.

Some Carpenters Now Carry Kits of Tools About in Style.
Without being in the least bit ashamed of his trade, whatever it may be, the modern mechanic, when he has occasion to go about the city to and from a job carrying a kit of tools, is very likely to carry it in a manner less conspicuous than formerly. His garb also, unless he is engaged in some trade that leaves its mark on one's clothes, is just like that of the majority of the men he meets.
So there was met the other day, going back to the shop, apparently, from some job that he had been at work on somewhere, a carpenter, who might have been thought to be somebody going traveling, if it had not been for the end of a saw sticking out of one end of his dress suit case.
A million years ago, more or less, when a carpenter went anywhere in the city, he carried his tools in an open box, having a handle at the top of a lengthwise middle partition in it, this box being much like an exaggerated knife tray. One end of the long slip saw that is an inevitable part of the carpenter's kit projecting beyond the end of the box, resting in a slit cut there to receive it.
But this up-to-date carpenter had everything packed in a narrow and more convenient compass, in a dress suit case, and not only out of the way, but out of sight, all but about a foot of the rip saw, which projected from one end in the case, through a slit made for it.
It did seem at first glance a little odd, no doubt, to see a man carrying a suit case with a saw sticking out of one end; but there is no manner of doubt all the same that this is the very latest and most strictly up-to-date method of carrying a kit of carpenter's tools.

MEMORIES OF A BURGLAR

SQUEAKY BOARDS THE WORST THING.
He Has Had to Contend With—Says the Police in Different Places Have a Graft That is Much Better Than Burglary.
Frederick H. Weber, the stylish burglar, whose trunks were found to contain many hundred dollars' worth of stolen property, will in all probability, says the Denver News, be sent to Kansas City for trial.
Weber has several aliases, according to the press dispatches, but the prisoner claims that Weber is the only name he ever went under, except once, when he gave the name of Blahr.
'What's the difference? A thief by any other name would steal as quick,' remarked Weber, with a twinkle in his eye.
Weber is a remarkable man in some respects. He is a type of the chap with which silly women become infatuated on account of his complexion and rosy cheeks. He is a bit effeminate, dresses well and wears his hair cut pompadour.
'I have burglarized many houses, and there is nothing in it,' he said, as he curled the ends of his long light-colored mustache. 'I am not a kleptomaniac, and I could keep from stealing if I wanted to.'
'But, then, if anyone wants to take the chances, I guess stealing is the fastest way that he can get the coin.'
'It takes lots of nerve to enter a house, especially the first one,' remarked Weber. 'I had been watching the house for several days, and then when I got a chance to enter it I was afraid to do it. When I got inside I trembled like a leaf and was almost afraid to take the watch for I had picked it up. I have done two bits.

ORIGIN OF MEMORIAL DAY.

A VETERAN'S STORY OF THE CUSTOM

Of Floral Decoration of Soldiers' Graves.

May 30 is Memorial Day, the day when pious hands the country over will place floral tributes upon the graves of the dead of the civil war.

"It was just forty years the 13th of last April," said he, "two little girls—children of a Michigan army chaplain—were the first to lay spring flowers on a soldier's grave dug in Virginia soil, and from that little act of childish impulse grew up the custom which is now nationally observed, north and south.

"I was a member of the Second regiment, Michigan infantry, Colonel J. B. Richardson commanding, which saw most of the fighting of the army of the Potomac until the war was well-nigh ended.

"On a spring day at Camp Michigan—it happened to be April 13, the first anniversary of the fall of Sumter—the little girls were wild-flower gathering.

"In a trice the two were down on their knees heaping nosegays over that bare hillock and clasping their hands in delight at their happy contrivance.

"On their way home the little ones planned to go next day, rather armful of flowers and put them on all the graves. When they were about to set out on the morrow, Josephine told Mrs. May of their project, and the sweet thoughtfulness of this child fancy appealed to the older woman as it only could have appealed to a mother who knew a hospital camp at first hand and had folded the hands of more than one young fellow in his last sleep.

"The next year they did the same thing, and the next, each time in May, and now for the soldiers who fell at Fredericksburg and other battles in the Old Dominion. What they did was noticed and soon others began to do the same.

"In 1868 General John A. Logan issued that famous order of his as commander-in-chief of the Grand Army ranks which set apart May 30 as Memorial day—a date chosen late in the spring in order to give the flowers a chance to outflank every snowbank in the north, however late the spring.

"There has been some controversy here and there as to what source to attribute the honor of suggesting a decoration day. General Chipman attributed it to a Cincinnati soldier whose letter concerning such a custom in Germany he had before General Logan.

"Chaplain May, his wife Marcia, and their two daughters lie buried in Mountain home, Kalamazoo, Mich. With the exception of one year, the chaplain's family remained with him throughout the war. Mrs. May was called 'an angel of mercy from God' for her work at Alexandria. I recall circumstances when she literally stole dying men and smuggled them into the city hospitals that she might minister to their wants.

"An attack of pneumonia left me with muscular rheumatism, headache, and pains that seemed to be all over me. I was scarcely able to move for about a month when I decided to give Dr. Miles' Pain Pills requires physical and mental ability of a high degree to withstand its hard labors. The high tension to which the nervous system is constantly subjected, has a depressing effect, and soon headache, back-ache, neuralgia, rheumatism, sciatica, etc., develop in severe form.

WOMEN AND THEIR WORK.

ABOLISHMENT OF BAR-MAIDS IN GLASGOW

And Other Cities of Scotland—Opposition Encountered by the Reform

Consistency is too much to ask of one person, not to say of bodies of people, and therefore no one should be surprised at its lack, still, when public opinion, roused to the enormities of some crying evil, strives to abate it, it seems strange that there is always a loud-voiced and persistent class who rise to its defence.

For the last twenty years and more the novelist and short-story writer, not to mention the clergymen and moralizers, have painted the temptations, the overwork, long hours and no days off of the bar-maid—yet the Glasgow bar-maid in particular, but all bar-maids, The universal and just opinion has been that the bar-maid is a young woman much to be pitied.

Good looks are a desideratum demanded by her employer; she is also required to dress well on small wages; she must be on her feet all day and much of the night, serving drinks to all conditions of men, drunk or sober, well-labeled or low-labeled. She is a helpless target for gross so-called flirtations, dubious compliments, after the pacifier of drunken rows, when good looks and youth have gone, so is her occupation surely theirs in one of the worst employments, and much public sympathy has been expressed for her in the daily press.

But now the city magistrates of Glasgow have passed an ordinance forbidding the "employment of women as attendants in drinking-bars," and London papers, and presumably the Scottish press, are inundated with papers lamenting the injustice of turning out of employment a deserving class of young women.

No one would dispute that there are many well-disposed bar-maids, but surely every one should rejoice that the law at last discourages so base an employment. One correspondent thinks that, "instead of rejecting at the dismissal of Glasgow bar-maids, we ought rather to deplore the existence of places of public resort so badly conducted as to render the presence of women undesirable."

And yet this person probably knows that Glasgow is the most drunken city in the world, and it is not possible so to conduct any drinking-place that it should be a desirable place for a woman. The sentimental objector speaks of two thousand bar-maids; the approval of the new ordinance estimates the number of Glasgow bar-maids as not more than one hundred and fifty; while another calls attention to the fact that South Australia "abolished bar-maids some years ago by act of Parliament," and adds the significant fact that in South Australia women have the parliamentary franchise.

The London Daily News says of the question: "It is declared that the magistrates of Glasgow have decided upon a crusade against the employment of women in drinking-bars. Any success in this direction would be another feather in the cap of a city already known all over the world as a model of what a municipality should be."

And the proposal has the advantage that, as a piece of practical public-house reform, it may well unite all sections of the movement, against the cause of drink. The evils springing from this one source are obvious. In addition to the direct danger of men, women and children arising from it, there are others less direct; and of these the stationing of young women in a public-house bar is one of the most serious. There are few places in which more temptation is thrown in the way of girls. There are few places in which the surroundings are more degrading, the atmosphere more insidious, the temptations more constant.

Drunkennes resorts continually to the public-house; blackguardism is constantly there, and there is no escape from one or the other. People of both sexes who never come into the lives of women otherwise employed are always in and out of the public-house; sights are witnessed and words are used that soon break down the strongest self-respect. And to any one inclined to face facts, the reasons why women are employed for this work are obvious enough. They constitute an attraction; they are chosen for the purpose—the thing cannot seriously be denied. For an example, in this respect, we have only to look to a community from which we are already learning some other lessons of national importance. In the United States, where the position of women is higher than anywhere in the world, it is, we believe, almost everywhere the law that no woman may be a bartender. Any legislation in that direction is not a model for the imitation of a more ancient and settled state, but nothing that is not good can possibly result from such a regulation as this—Springfield Republican.

FUTURE HAND ORGAN.

To Be Power-Propelled With the Organ Itself Power-Driven. "The hand organ of the future and of the near future, too," says a man who has given the subject some thought, "will undoubtedly be one carried about in an automobile, while the organ itself will be power-driven. "This will be in direct line with the trend of all modern endeavor, namely, toward the highest efficiency, with the greatest economy of operation." It is a familiar fact that the modern piano organ that is carried about on wheels requires the services of two men to operate it, one to play the organ and the other to look after the collections; while the two are required to move the organ, especially on long hauls. "There have lately appeared in the city's streets hand organs drawn by horses, a novelty that has proved a great attraction and a great money drawer, but at an enhanced cost of operation: the keeping of the horse having to be added to the wages of the two men. "Now the automobile-carried and power-driven hand organ will be a greater novelty even than the horse-drawn hand organ and no doubt a greater attraction and money drawer, and it can all be operated by one man; a greater result than ever will be achieved, with the expenditure of less labor. "The hand organ will be moved from point to point in its automobile carriage and will be operated by power from the same source that moves the carriage, which can be turned on and off at the pleasure of the operator, who, having made a halt somewhere and started the car, can devote himself then solely to the business end. "Undoubtedly this will be the next step forward in the evolution of the hand organ, and it wouldn't surprise me a bit to see such hand organs appear at any day."—New York Sun.

NEW SCHEME FOR A CHURCH

BY THE REV. JOHN W. PAIGE

Who Wants One Run on Stock Company Plan.

Rev. John W. Paige, who is fire marshal of Joliet, Ill., as well as a preacher, has a plan for a church organized on the regular stock company plan, with capital, directors and dividends. His ideals of preachers are John W. Gates and J. Pierpont Morgan. "The men of to-day," says Paige, "according to the Boston Journal, 'prefer the prize-fighter, the aggressive business man, to the mossback college professor who preaches all this rot about living as Christ would live, and that sort of nonsense. We must get the men back into the church, and into such a church that they can live ordinarily decent lives without making hypocrites out of themselves every time they turn around. It is high time that a little common horse sense was injected into the modern church government."

"Morgan and Gates would prove attractive preachers, for the reason that they have done something in this world to attract attention, and young men like to listen to a man who has something. They don't care so much what he has done, but they demand that the man who presumes to talk to them for an hour in this busy age must have accomplished something worth talking about. "The men must be brought back to a church established along lines that they will support. They will not sit year in and year out and listen to the worn-out exhortations to live as Jesus lived or to do as Jesus did. Nothing but a claim would do that. If Jesus should appear to-day, He would be an entirely different being from what He was then. He was then greatly in advance of those times. He would be greatly in advance of the time now. The men must be gotten together along present and prospective lines."

"They must not be called at for witnessing a fistic encounter. Baseball, horse racing or any other sports that are now denounced and legislated against must be recognized and not condemned. Such teachings must be given as fit the times. Hide-bound creeds that they don't believe—although they don't say so—and mossback college professors as teachers must be turned down. Such religious fad as man himself desires must be handed down to him, and not a corpse held up for him to worship. Give him something that is living, progressive, lively; something that is positive, encouraging, invigorating; something that has a revenue, some returns, and he will become interested and will help build up asylums and more churches, and more hospitals and more libraries. You have got to interest a man in your religion before he will give very much to the support of the minister. It is very often the case that the pews know more than the pulpit. "The church will grow and expand and expand and become a mightier power in the land when men will organize a stock company church and will bond the stock and pay dividends, attend its meetings and place the church stock above all others. A live man will not then go blindly to church until his horse is stolen and his purse impoverished, but will receive his dividends here where he is sure he can enjoy them."

"J. Pierpont Morgan and John W. Gates were preachers they would be attractive and instructive. They would have men, and young men at that, for their audiences, and the church would not suffer for funds with which to do good. "Give the man a chance; he can be trusted. Cease this senseless clamor against everything men do or want to do. Make the church to suit them and not try to make them to suit the church. Then men will again extend the glad hand for church support."

Paige has caused more trouble in Joliet than all the other men put together, because he is through and through an intrepid worker and fears nobody. He is of a high type of honesty, and because of his honesty a fortune has been swept away, and he is to-day, at the advanced age of 45 years, holding a political office and drawing a salary of $100 a month.

"I ascribe my financial downfall to politics," he says. "I have been too honest with myself and my neighbors to make a success of politics." For the last quarter of a century Paige has held a political job in Joliet. He has been fire marshal for several years, under all administrations. He is hated by the Democrats and despised by politicians alike, but still holds on, and none dares to discharge him, for the reason that the people would not tolerate such action, and the fire insurance companies threaten to raise the rates if Paige is removed.

He runs his department on a strictly moral plan and permits no interference with his affairs. He makes his men repair the buildings, build sidewalks, rebuild engines, who the horses and do every kind of a job that comes up in the department. Not a man on the force dares to take a drink of intoxicating liquor while on duty, and no man has ever yet worked in his department who had the courage to answer him back or refuse to carry out orders to the spirit letter. He is a general of his forces and expects every man to do his duty, and at the same time he would risk his life and his reputation to assist one of his men. He has held every office in Joliet from assessor to mayor and has never yet had the least suspicion of his way or attached to any of his official acts.

IRON AND MINING.

Growing Big Industries in the Far West—The Tacoma Steel Corporation.

An article published May 23 in the Daily Ledger of Tacoma, Washington, is interesting. It says:

The biggest deal in mining properties made by local parties for several months was consummated yesterday by the Tacoma company (steel corporation) in the purchase of 1,700 acres of mineral land on Vancouver island. The price to be paid is $20,000 cash and $40,000 in capital stock of the Tacoma company.

The property is divided into four groups containing in all eleven claims. The property owners were represented in the matter by J. L. Bledsoe, of Albern, V. I., who has been in the city for the past two days. The property is considered a very desirable one and the Tacoma company has been working up the deal for the past several months. Yesterday a definite agreement was arrived at, the first payment made, and the transfer signed.

All the groups are within three or four miles of each other and are located well up Barclay sound. Part of the property is directly on tide water and none is distant more than a mile and a half. The best of shipping facilities are offered when the time for such comes, as the depth of water to that shore will accommodate, it is said, any drought vessel.

Another reason why the Tacoma company was particularly anxious to secure the property was that it is located within six miles of the Anderson group of iron land claims owned by the Tacoma company. The developments on the Winston Seal mine in this group have proven the great extent and high quality of the ore bodies of the range. Development work on one of the new groups will be begun soon, but no effort will be made for immediate shipment or until the smelter at Tacoma is erected.

President Henry Hewitt, of the company, stated to a Ledger representative last evening that their first move in the development of the iron industry would be the erection of a 150-ton daily capacity smelting furnace in Tacoma. Smelters on Vancouver island, he said, might follow later, but not until the business had developed sufficiently to make it expedient for foreign shipments.

The ore bodies, Mr. Hewitt says, from knowledge of personal investigation of some of the new properties, are of immense extent, immense outcrops of high grade ore showing in many places sometimes for a hundred and fifty feet in extent. The ore, he states, is a magnetic, running from 64 per cent. to 70 per cent. metallic iron, contains but little phosphorus and containing in part lime as high as 7 per cent., adding to its value as a flux.

President Hewitt also stated that the company has secured options on 112 square miles of timber land on Queenan Sound, on the Northwest coast, for use in the paper pulp industry, which the company expects to establish in the near future. The timber comprises spruce, cottonwood, fir and cedar, all available woods for the manufacturing of the pulp. Two land cruisers will be sent from Tacoma this week to view the land, who will employ other assistants. Every rod of ground will be looked over, it is stated, and the tract staked off into ten-acre lots, and to be estimated separately.

This wood supply, Mr. Hewitt states, will be used for the pulp factory to be located on Vancouver island. The product of the factory is designed for foreign shipments only. It will have no direct connection, or detrimental influence, it is stated, as regards the pulp plant to be located in or near Tacoma. The company's Texada island property bids fair to turn out even more valuable than was at first supposed, judging from recent mineral developments in the surrounding country and on the property itself. The last 120 feet of shaft just put down, reaching the 300-foot level, is reported to have tapped richer copper and gold ore than any yet brought out. On the mine adjoining the 600-acre tract recently purchased from the crown an exceedingly rich gold ore strike is said to have been during the last few days.

SLOGAN OF FLESH REDUCTION

"TRY BEEF AND SPINACH" IS THE ADVICE TO FAT MEN NOW.

Wonders of a Diet That Has Taken Thirty Pounds of Avoided Puts Off a Stout Person in Six Weeks—Exercise Necessary—No Water With Meals.

This is the season of the year when the person who is anxious to lose flesh may do it with a minimum of self-denial and sacrifice. Some privations are necessary, but in the spring markets there are substitutes for forbidden foods that are not to be found at other times of the year, especially in the winter.

Every system of reducing flesh forbids its disciples to eat certain things. These are forbidden as rightly as poison would be to a person who had no suicidal plans and was trying to keep in good health. Comprehensively stated the forbidden articles are starches and sugar. In vegetables these cover peas, potatoes, beets, carrots, squash and lima beans.

Included in the list are also all kinds of bread, pastry and confections, and sweets of any kind unless they happen to be made of saccharine instead of sugar; and unfortunately the preserves and similar articles prepared with saccharine are so expensive as to be practically beyond the means of any but the wealthy. They are protected by a warning like that the Japanese butler who wanted a job put in one of the newspapers: "None but the rich need apply."

If a person of great fortitude and capable of self-denial in a high degree, should be desirous of getting thin in a very short time, there is one method of diet by which he or she could do it without the least possible doubt. It is summarized by the physician who always prescribes it as "beefsteak and spinach."

The effects of this diet are so wonderful that it is worth while to describe it, even though it is a little too rigid for the average man or woman to undertake. Practically, the only food to be taken for the month or more that one continues this diet, is the meat and the vegetable mentioned. For breakfast, when such a meal is likely to be unappetizing, toast and tea or milk or if the patient is not suffering from indigestion, coffee may also be taken. Saccharine must in any case be substituted for sugar. At the other meals only beefsteak, spinach, butter and toast are allowed.

This diet must be adhered to strictly for at least one month. Then the wonderful effects will have begun to show themselves, and how great the effect will be afterward depends on the length of time the diet is continued. Just now "spinach and beefsteak" form the motto of more men and women than ever before. If a young woman finds that her complexion is blotchy, she may go to a noted skin specialist, but the chances are ten to one that he will say to her the mysterious words, "beefsteak and spinach." If a man or woman is too stout, according to his own or somebody else's idea, and he or she goes to the doctor, he will probably say the same thing—beefsteak and spinach. It is not only a diet that is adapted to the weakest stomach, but it is wonderful also in its power of reducing flesh.

There have been cases in which a rigid adherence to this diet with a certain amount of exercise has taken thirty pounds within six weeks of a person who tried it. The effect on digestion is in itself wonderful. The French say "spinach sweeps the stomach." With rather underdone beefsteak it forms a combination which has results in no cases. That diet is becoming practically the only prescription which the skin doctors of this city prescribe for women who have blotchy complexions as the result of indigestion.

With this diet there are of course other features of living to be observed. There should be for instance, no eating of any kind between meals. No should water be taken with meals. No liquid unless it be a glass of white or red wine for persons with whom that agrees, should be attempted if the diet is to have its full effect. But between meals, in the course of the twenty-four hours, at least two quarts of water should be drunk. If more can be taken the diet is going to have so much better effect.

Of course there is no need of any such severe dieting merely to reduce flesh. That may be done without trouble if the person who is to do the work will take a few articles of diet. And when the markets are as good as they are at present, there is little trouble in finding substitutes for whatever is given up.

The list of vegetables that one may eat with impunity includes, for instance, string beans, asparagus, spinach, all kinds of salads, corn and oatmeal. Some persons think that beets may be eaten so long as they are eaten with vinegar. But there is no reason why anybody should starve or even lack enough food on a diet like this. There is no prohibition on fruits, and rhubarb unless it be cooked with too much sugar, may also be taken with impunity. If boiled without sugar it may readily be sweetened afterward with saccharine. This ample diet of vegetables is supplemented by practical freedom of choice in the matter of meats. There is none forbidden unless it be taken stuffed or covered with bread.

The amount of exercise taken during dieting time is of course highly important. The more exercise, the greater will be the effect of the cure. To persons who are not prepared to go into exercising on a very extensive scale walking is a great aid to reducing their weight. The weather now is especially adapted to exercises to reduce flesh, as fat persons readily get into a perspiration. If it is possible to take violent exercise the results will be much better. The person most ignorant of the means of reducing flesh does not have to be told that he must shun cocktails as he would the plague, that all alcohol is more or less fattening and that whiskey and soda, highballs and similar compounds are fatal to leanness. Eschew these and the treatment will have the same good effects upon all who try it.—New York Sun.
