

CORBIN ASKS FOR CANTEN

RESTORATION RECOMMENDED IN HIS ANNUAL REPORT.

Army to be Reduced by December 1 to 60,000 Men—Losses During the Year—Increased Pay for Military Attaches Abroad Again Urged—The Army and Navy Manoeuvres—Wireless Work—Lieutenant-Generals for Merritt, Brook and Otis Recommended—Early Marriages of Young Officers Deplored—The National Guard.

Washington, Nov. 7.—The annual report of General Henry C. Corbin, adjutant-general of the army, begins with a statement showing how the army is to be reduced by December 1 to 60,000 men, of which 2,877 belong to the staff departments.

The report shows that during the fiscal year there were thirty-five officers killed in action or died of wounds and disease; twenty-one resigned and sixty-eight retired. Of the enlisted men 1,277 were killed or died of wounds and disease, 35,398 were discharged on the expiration of service, 5,698 were discharged for disability or dismissed by order of court-martial, 4,667 deserted, two were missing and 293 retired.

General Corbin in calling attention to his former recommendation that the rank and pay of military attaches abroad should be increased suggests that retired officers of high rank might be selected for this service.

While the number of attaches has been decreased, the service has improved because of the reciprocal relations that have been established with the war departments of the several governments where officers are stationed.

General Corbin discusses the various schools of the army and points out the advantages which will accrue through them.

In reviewing the reports of the officers who participated in the army and navy manoeuvres last September General Corbin says that much valuable information was acquired. The general says:

"The manoeuvres have proved that the rank and file of our army can be depended upon in every emergency; that apparently impossible tasks can be accomplished under the spur of necessity, and that there is an immeasurable gulf between practice and theory."

The lessons learned by both officers and men were of more practical value than years of ordinary garrison routine and instruction.

He strongly recommends that similar exercises be conducted annually and made to embrace each year a new theater of operations, so that the benefit may be shared by the different organizations in the several fields of defense.

"Some system should be devised by which the artillery defense of forts would not be rendered helpless by a heavy fog."

The wireless work, as conducted by the signal corps, established the fact that wireless telegraphy is an important factor in the defensive operations on an artillery district, increasing by many miles the extreme distance at which the enemy's approach can be detected and his ships located, thereby affording to the artillery commander ample time in which to perfect his own offensive operations.

The conviction expressed by the commanding general in charge of the land defenses that every officer and enlisted man of the army and of the National Guard, who took part in the manoeuvres entertains a feeling of admiration for the splendid manner in which the naval part of the programme has been conducted, whereby the confidence in and affection for the sister service, ever considered to have been renewed and emphasized by this exceedingly agreeable association in prosecuting professional work of great importance to the nation, voices a sentiment heartily concurred in by the entire army."

The adjutant general has obtained the number and kind of arms in the hands of the National Guard in the several states and finds less than 4,000 United States magazine rifles in their possession. Of the multitude of the other types he says:

"The heterogeneous collection of obsolete arms is a very serious detriment to the efficiency of the entire National Guard which in organization, drill, instruction, etc., assimilates closely to the regular army and should be armed with the same arms as the latter. If called into service under this deplorable condition, much trouble and vexatious delays are involved in providing the different kinds of ammunition required and in urgent or unforeseen contingencies may lead to disastrous results."

General Corbin recommends legislation providing that Major Generals Merritt, Brooke and Otis, now on the retired list be given the rank of lieutenant general and that Colonels Gilmore and Williston be given the rank of brigadier general on the retired list. He has the following to say concerning early marriages in the army:

"The early marriage of the younger officers of the army, many of whom are entirely dependent upon their pay and allowances for support, is greatly to be deplored and should be discouraged. A young officer should have but one allegiance, and that should be to the service. Those without private means must necessarily divide their pay between the demands of their office and family. A considerable number are required for service in the Philippines, where living is expensive, and the accomplishment of their duty results in actual hardship to officers with families."

He says that it is important that a number of officers have a perfect knowledge of French, German and Spanish. He says the detail staff system has

COLORED PORTER ARRESTED.

Developments in Mystery Surrounding Death of Mrs. Dennis.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Richard Cole, a colored porter, twenty years old, was arrested to-day and committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury on the charge of committing the assault on Mrs. Ada Gilbert Dennis, a well known dressmaker, at her home in this city over ten months ago. Mrs. Dennis died of injuries about a fortnight ago without recovering sufficiently to talk rationally. Julius Van Brakle, colored, formerly proprietor of the Brunswick hotel, testified to-day before the coroner's jury that on March 10 Cole had said something to him to the effect that he (Cole) would be a happy man if Mrs. Dennis was dead, and also had said once when he looked worried, "Yes, if you had on your mind what I have on mine you would look worried too."

Van Brakle said Cole made certain statements regarding the reason why he did not care to visit the sick woman among other things that Mrs. Dennis might say something which would re-open the investigation. Detective Hartigan, who has been working on the case ever since the crime was committed, testified that Cole is the only person among those he investigated who wavered in his statements. Cole, who also testified before the coroner's jury, denied making the assault and protested that he had assisted the authorities.

SOME RADICAL DEPARTURES

TO BE EMBODIED IN BUILDING OF SHAMROCK III.

These Changes Due to an Accidental Discovery Made During the Trials of Lipton's First Two Yachts—Futon Convicted There Has Been a Fundamental Error in Construction of All Recent Challengers.

Glasgow, Nov. 7.—The Associated Press understands that in the Shamrock III. will be embodied some radical departures in the matter of yacht construction which have not appeared in any previous challenger. These changes are said to be due to an accidental discovery made during the trials of the Shamrock I. and the Shamrock II., which convinced Designer Watson that there had been a fundamental error in the construction of all the recent challengers. This discovery was made too late to admit of the remodeling of the Shamrock II., but when its nature was explained to Sir Thomas it had great weight in deciding him to try for the America's cup a third time. Both Designers Fife and Watson are convinced that they possess solid data upon which they will now be able to build a yacht superior to any previous cup racer. They are certain that they have evolved an idea which affects the whole theory of the propulsion of sailing yachts.

THE MASON CASE.

Several Striking Details in the Developments Yesterday.

Boston, Nov. 7.—In the developments of the day in the Mason case, which has puzzled the police of Boston since Miss Clara A. Morton was struck down and killed in Waverley street last Saturday there are several striking details. No further evidence, however, has been adduced which tends to incriminate in the case Allan G. Mason, the member of a prominent family who is under arrest on the charge of murder. In fact, the police are inclined to-night to the belief that Mason stood out clearer in the light of an innocent man, because of the failure of Joseph Nemser, the West End jeweler, to identify Mason as the man who had offered for sale Miss Morton's watch last Saturday night.

An important detail in connection with the disposal of the watches was the establishment to-night that the signatures on the checks kept on file by the jeweler in identification of the persons who offered him the articles, were written by one and the same person. This confirms the story that the two women were murdered by the same man.

Another late incident was the arrest to-night at Watertown of a young mulatto on suspicion. He was brought here, but Jeweler Nemser failed to identify him. The man was released.

So serious has the case become that Governor Crane has interested himself and looked over the scene of the murder while on a visit to-day to Waverley.

$400,000 in Election Bets Paid.

New York, Nov. 7.—Election bets amounting nearly to $400,000 were paid to-day in Wall street after a short delay caused by the democratic talk of contesting. Bets on pluralities in certain sections are still held up.

Brakeman Dies from Injury.

Meriden, Nov. 7.—John Edwards, a brakeman of the local switching crew, whose left leg was so badly crushed by being run over by a freight car at Lane's quarry this morning that it had to be amputated, died at the hospital this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

Barman and Bailey's Back.

New York, Nov. 7.—The Barnum and Bailey's circus arrived to-night on the steamer Minneapolis from Dunkirk.

CHATFIELD PLANT GUTTED

ENTIRE ESTABLISHMENT WIPED OUT EARLY THIS MORNING.

Strong Wind Aids the Flames and They Quickly Get Beyond Control—Seven Freight Cars Saved by an Engine Pulling Them Out from the Yard—Two Barges Taken Into Mid Stream.

Fire at 2 o'clock this morning completely destroyed the extensive manufacturing plant of the E. A. Chatfield company, which extends from 228 to 280 Boulevard. The alarm was sent in from box 125 at the corner of Grant and Plymouth streets and it was quickly followed by the second alarm. When the department arrived all the buildings were ablaze and the saving of them an impossibility.

The wind was blowing very strongly and quickly fanned the flames over the acres of buildings, reducing the entire mass to ashes.

There were seven loaded freight cars on a side track running into the center of the yard, but a freight engine was quickly dispatched from the railroad yards and drew them away just in time to save them from destruction.

The dock caught fire, and it was only by the most determined work on the part of the firemen that it was saved. There were several hundred bundles of laths stored on this dock and two large barges loaded with coal tied up to it. The barges were pushed out into West river by means of poles and saved from destruction, although their decks were covered with sparks.

The watchman discovered the fire and rung in the alarm. He first tried to get to box 125, the company's private box, but was unable to as the entire building in which it was located was in flames. In attempting to get to this box he was somewhat burned. He then went to the Grant street box. The building in which the engine room was located was first found in flames, but in less than ten minutes the entire west wing was ablaze.

The buildings were of wood, the sides alone being covered with sheet iron. This made the fire harder to fight as it made an excellent draught for the flames. The iron plates becoming red hot fell from time to time, making it dangerous work for the firemen. The cause of the fire is not known at this time, but might have been from the sparks of a passing engine. The E. A. Chatfield Co. manufacture all kinds of brinks, tiles, cupola and brass furnace fittings, clay products and mason supplies. The company has been doing a successful business for a number of years.

The officers of the company are A. F. Howard, president, H. M. Howard, treasurer, W. S. Clark, secretary, H. Howard and L. F. Conklin superintendent, none of whom could be seen last evening.

THE VENEZUELAN REVOLUTION.

Injunction Against Steel Trust.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 7.—A formal decree granting the preliminary injunction against the United States Steel corporation's $200,000,000 bond conversion plan which Vice Chancellor Emery allowed last week in the suit of J. Aspinwall Hodge and others, was signed by the vice chancellor to-day. Immediately upon the execution of the decree Richard W. Lohmeyer, for the steel trust, served notice of appeal upon Robert H. McCarter, representing the complainants. By agreement of counsel the matter will be argued at the term which opens November 18.

Foreign Notes

Berlin, Nov. 7.—By a majority of the parties in the Reichstag have reached an agreement to amend the rules of the house so as to expedite the tariff bill and overcome the dilatory tactics of the opposition. They will adopt the French chamber system of balloting and continuing business during the vote. Herr Staudthagen, socialist, made a speech of four hours on the tariff to-day to empty benches.

Sydney, N. S. W., Nov. 7.—Official statistics show a decrease in the wheat and wheat harvest in New South Wales this year has been very poor. The shortage is estimated at 11,000,000 bushels. Queensland and other states of the federation will probably also have very poor harvests.

Paris, Nov. 7.—President Loubet to-day signed the law providing for pensioning the widows and orphans of military officials who lost their lives at the time of the recent volcanic disasters in the island of Martinique.

Berlin, Nov. 7.—The Deutsche bank to-day formally announced an increase of its capital by $2,500,000 so to absorb the Deutsche-Ruhrober bank and provide working funds for its new Dresden and Leipzig branches.

CHICAGO SWITCHMEN VOTING.

Question of Striking to be Settled—Offer of the Roads.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Balloting is in progress to-night to decide whether the switchmen employed in Chicago by eighteen of the principal railroads centering here shall go on strike. A proposition was submitted to the roads some time ago by the men asking for a wage increase of five cents an hour. The railroad officials to-night offered to compromise by paying an increase of two and a half cents an hour to helpers and three and a half cents to foremen. The switchmen asked for time to consider the proposition. In the meantime a vote of the men is being taken to ascertain whether a majority favor accepting or favor going on strike. More than 8,000 men are involved. The result of the vote will not be known until to-morrow.

Mascagni's Troubles Not Yet Settled.

Boston, Nov. 7.—The troubles of the Mascagni Opera company are by no means settled, and to-day's conferences have done little toward straightening them out. A portion of the chorus has left for New York, but Mascagni and his musicians are still in this city.

AGAINST VACCINATION LAW

FIGHT FOR ITS REPEAL TO BE MADE.

The matter to be carried to the General Assembly at the coming session—Decision Reached at the Meeting of the State Anti-Vaccination League in Hartford Yesterday.

Hartford, Nov. 7.—At the coming session of the general assembly an attempt will be made to have all laws compelling vaccination repealed. This announcement was made this morning at a meeting of the Anti-Vaccination league of Connecticut held at Hotel Hartford and presided over by Dr. B. E. Munn of Waterbury, its president, others in attendance being L. W. Anderson of Waterbury, the corresponding secretary, F. K. Perry of Naugatuck, H. P. Richards of New Britain, Henry Bissell, the Rev. A. J. Culver and the Rev. Dr. C. S. Bullock of Stratford, pastor of the Neighborhood church.

It was decided to wait until afternoon for the regular business meeting. There was much informal talk by the gentlemen present, relating to the evils of vaccination. A number of cases were cited, showing where irreparable damage had been done to the health of vaccinated persons. It was suggested that the name of the league be changed to the Anti-Compulsory Vaccination league, so as not to place the league in total opposition to vaccination. This suggestion met with approval. The organization which will be completed this afternoon will aim to reach every town in the state, securing names of petitioners to the general assembly for the repeal of the law compelling the vaccination of all school children.

At the afternoon session Dr. Ripley, of Unionville, and E. P. Hiller, of Hartford, were present in addition to those who were present at the morning session. Plans for prosecuting the league's work were discussed. The membership of the league is now eighty-six in Waterbury. Stratford has about one hundred. Norwich, New Britain, Bristol, South Norwalk, Milford and other places have large numbers who are opposed to compulsory vaccination.

On motion of Mr. Perry of Naugatuck it was decided to perfect a state organization. It was decided to call the organization the Connecticut Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League. The officers of the temporary organization were made permanent, as follows: President, Dr. S. B. Munn, of Waterbury; first vice president, Dr. E. M. Ripley, of Unionville; secretary, Dr. C. S. Bullock, of Stratford; treasurer and corresponding secretary, L. W. Anderson, of Waterbury.

FRENCH AIDING MULLAH.

British Unable to Prevent Smuggling of Arms Over Frontier.

Berbera, East Africa, Nov. 7.—Colonel Swayne, formerly British commander in Somaliland, who started for England to-day, is ill.

General Manning, who succeeds Colonel Swayne, is pushing the preparations for an advance against the Mullah, but he is hampered in his efforts by the fact that the country has so few resources and the consequent necessity of awaiting supplies.

The Mullah has advanced to within a few miles of Bohotle. He is known to have 2,000 rifles, one Maxim gun, much ammunition, fifteen thousand spearmen and immense reserves of camel and sheep at his command. Bohotle is well garrisoned and has ample defenses. Guns are constantly carried to the Mullah through French territory and the British are unable to prevent the practice.

Walthour Beat Crescues.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 7.—The bad condition of the track to-day at Piedmont Park prevented anything like a record race between Crescues and "Bobby" Walthour. An exhibition mile was given, however, Walthour's time being 2:22 1-2, and Crescues' time 2:32 flat. Crescues did not go against time, as was expected, on account of the muddy track.

Proclaim Herself the Virgin Mary.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 7.—At Yorkton a young Doukhobor woman of attractive appearance dressed herself in white cotton with white canvas shoes and proclaimed herself the Virgin Mary. Many of the Doukhobors believe her story and she may cause trouble if her advice shall be in the wrong direction.

DE CASTELLANE OUSTED.

HIS ELECTION AS A FRENCH DEPUTY INVALIDATED.

Charges in Chamber of Deputies of Irregularities Sustained—The Count Accused of Abandoning All Reserve and Giving Unlimited Credit in Hotels, Inns and Drinking Places During the Campaign.

Paris, Nov. 7.—After an exciting debate the Chamber of Deputies to-day, by 278 to 225 votes, invalidated the election of Count Boni de Castellane as a member of the chamber.

The question came up when the committee on contested elections presented its report without recommendation, leaving the chamber to pass on the question. Emile Chauvin made a bitter attack on Count de Castellane, declaring that he had been guilty of irregularities, and saying that the count had accused his opponent of being of German descent and a Dreyfusard.

In the course of his speech M. Chauvin declared that Count de Castellane, in order to warm the enthusiasm of his partisans, abandoned all reserve, and through his agents, gave unlimited credit in hotels, inns and drinking places until the district was gray with fetes and merriment during the campaign.

The count replied vehemently and hurled back with indignation the accusations of M. Chauvin, which, he declared, were an attack upon the integrity and honesty of his constituency. He explained further that he had helped some poor workmen's organizations, but that he had asked nothing in return.

Count de Castellane replied, characterizing the charges as false. He said he had been accused of buying the election and practicing charity for election purposes. Nothing of the kind had ever been proved, he declared, and he closed his defense with an appeal to the chamber to uphold his election, which, he asserted, truly represented the wishes of the inhabitants of the Basses Alpes district. The vote was then taken.

During the debate there was much disorder, the members of the left applauding the attacks on Count de Castellane and jeering at his reply, while the count's republican associates gave him hearty applause. The result of the vote necessitates another election in the Basses Alpes district represented by Count Boni.

RUSH MEDICAL SCHOOL.

Chicago University Will Receive $1,000,000.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Conditional upon the raising of $1,000,000 by the trustees of Rush Medical college not later than July 1, 1903, the trustees of the University of Chicago, it was announced to-day, have agreed to receive the medical school as an organic part of the university.

The trustees of Rush are confident that the required money can be raised within the time specified. This sum will be used for the erection of new buildings, the endowment of chairs of instruction and the purchase of additional equipment. The location of Rush Medical college will continue as at present, advantageously located to the Cook county and Presbyterian hospitals. The college and university became affiliated four years ago. Rush was founded in 1837 and is one of the oldest medical institutions in the west.

FORMER WILL BE WELCOMED AGAIN.

London, July 8.—Referring to the possibility of Cornell university sending a crew to compete at the Henley regatta next year, The Daily Telegraph this morning says:

"Cornell will be warmly welcomed at Henley, but the crew would be well advised not to allow the prominence to their professional coach, Mr. Courtney, which he enjoyed upon the occasion of his visit. Mr. Courtney's attitude toward the Leander club has not been forgotten, and it need not be forgiven. Nobody at Henley wishes to have anything to do with his methods of management. Cornell's captain can do all that is required and everyone will wish him the best of luck."

TROOPS OUT TO PROTECT NEGRO.

Anniston, Ala., Nov. 7.—Orders have been issued calling out the Second Battalion of the Third Infantry, Alabama National guard, to protect Jason Bacon, a negro, who was brought here and placed in jail last night on the charge of assaulting Mrs. John Williams, near here. A mob of 400 people is gathered at the Williams home. Mrs. Williams is in a semi-conscious condition and failed to identify the negro. A negro named Landford, also answering to the description of Mrs. Williams' assailant, is now being sought by a large crowd near Alexandria.

ARRESTED FOR BREACH OF THE PEACE.

William H. Smith and Louis Hausman got in a fight last evening and both were arrested, charged with breach of the peace and Smith also has an additional charge of drunkenness against him. Their cases will be tried in court this morning.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

New York, Nov. 7.—Counsel representing Mrs. Tingley of Point Loma, Cal., in the case of the eleven Cuban children detained here, withdrew from the investigation to-day. One of the lawyers said Mrs. Tingley was to have nothing to do with the inquiry but would hold Mr. Terry and V. M. Davis of the Children's society personally responsible for the children.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Miss Rieley Seward of this city to-day introduced to the president Lady Henry Somerset who, for many years has been identified with temperance and philanthropic work in Great Britain. Lady Somerset is the guest here of Miss Seward, who is engaged in a similar line of work in this country. The ladies called merely to pay their respects to the president.

Binghamton, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Mrs. Sarah M. Jones died here to-day, at the age of 103 years. She was born in England and came to the United States ninety years ago.

DECISION FOR CONSOLIDATED.

Damage Suit Growing Out of the Long Hill Wreck.

New York, Nov. 7.—A jury in a damage suit brought against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company by William C. Crane, administrator of Joseph P. Connolly, brought in a verdict to-day in favor of the company. The suit was brought to recover $25,000 damages for the death of Connolly, who was a brakeman and who was killed in a collision between two freight trains near Long Hill, Conn., on September 30, 1901. The collision was caused by the forgetfulness of one of the engineers, who had, it was testified, been required by the company to work continuously for so long a time as to completely exhaust him, both physically and mentally. Evidence was given to show that this engineer had been continuously on duty, day and night, from 4 o'clock on a Friday afternoon until 5 o'clock on the following Monday morning, when the collision occurred—a period of sixty-one hours—in the course of which he had been able to snatch only six hours and fifteen minutes of sleep. The engineer lost his right hand in the collision.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company in defending the suit raised the technical point that damages could not be recovered, because Connolly was an employee of the company and the collision resulted from the negligence of a fellow employee. The case was tried in the supreme court before Justice Gildersleeve. Counsel for the plaintiff gave notice of an appeal.

MOLINEUX TRIAL ENDING

THE TAKING OF EVIDENCE CONCLUDED YESTERDAY.

Arguments of Counsel to be Made Monday—A Verdict Expected Tuesday—Cornish Recalled to Deny Mrs. Stephenson's Testimony—The Question of a Coat-Husband Took No Stock in Wife's Story.

New York, Nov. 7.—The taking of evidence in the second trial of Roland B. Molineux for the murder of Mrs. Katherine B. Adams was ended to-day and court adjourned until Monday when the arguments of counsel will be made. A verdict is looked for on Tuesday.

The sensational turn given to the testimony for the defense yesterday, when Mrs. Anna Stephenson, wife of a Brooklyn policeman, said she thought Cornish was the man she saw mail the poison package, was continued to-day. Cornish was recalled to the stand and was asked whether he had a brown overcoat in 1896. Mrs. Stephenson said the man she saw mail the poison package wore a brown overcoat. Cornish said he had no overcoat at all that winter, and then Mr. Black read from the minutes of the last trial to show that Cornish had testified at that time that he had only one overcoat and that it was brown.

The husband of Mrs. Stephenson testified that he had not reported his wife's story to the authorities, because he "didn't take a stock in it."

CORNELL AND HENLEY.

Former Will be Welcomed Again—Cantonians as to Henley.

London, July 8.—Referring to the possibility of Cornell university sending a crew to compete at the Henley regatta next year, The Daily Telegraph this morning says:

"Cornell will be warmly welcomed at Henley, but the crew would be well advised not to allow the prominence to their professional coach, Mr. Courtney, which he enjoyed upon the occasion of his visit. Mr. Courtney's attitude toward the Leander club has not been forgotten, and it need not be forgiven. Nobody at Henley wishes to have anything to do with his methods of management. Cornell's captain can do all that is required and everyone will wish him the best of luck."

PHILADELPHIA, NOV. 27.—The general committee of church extension of the Methodist Episcopal church to-day continued the apportionment of the church building fund among the 126 conferences. The following apportionments were made:

Colorado $4,600, Arizona Mission $500, Arkansas $550, Atlanta $300, Atlantic Mission $1,000, Austin $700, Baltimore $3,350, Black Hills $500, Blue Ridge $775, California $4,000, California German $375, Central Alabama $600, Central German $7,800, Central Illinois $2,000, Central Missouri $700, Central New York $1,000, Central Ohio $1,250, Central Pennsylvania $1,350, Central Swedish $800, Central Tennessee $300, Chicago German $1,300, Columbia River $4,000, Dakota $2,000, Delaware $800, Des Moines $3,000, Detroit $3,000, East German $4,000.

HAD BAG OF STOLEN CHICKENS.

Patrolman Nettleton shortly after midnight last night discovered a chicken thief in the rear of the house of Simon Beister, 29 Ferry street. The man had killed seven chickens by wringing their necks and had placed them in a bag, when the patrolman appeared. At the precinct he gave his name as Charles E. Meyer, of 49 Poplar street. A number of chicken coops in Fair Haven have been robbed within the past few weeks.

PROMOTIONS IN GULF BATTERY.

Hartford, Nov. 7.—Second Lieutenant William H. Hotchkiss of Guilford battery, A. C. N. G., has been promoted to be first lieutenant, first platoon, vice Spencer retired. Judson Frank M. White of Guilford to be second lieutenant, first platoon, vice Hotchkiss, promoted.

WILL NOT ACCEPT ARBITRATION.

Paris, Nov. 7.—Six thousand striking coal miners held a meeting at Livest (Department of Pas de Calais) to-day. They decided not to accept the decision of the arbitrators against an increase of the present rates of wages and to continue the strike.

You will find our advertisement of to-day on Page 2. Howe & Stetson.

TO PROTECT TELLER.

Democrats Will Cause Deadlock if Attempt is Made to Unseat Him. Denver, Col., Nov. 7.—At a caucus to-day of a number of democratic members of the new legislature, it was decided that if the republicans shall take revolutionary tactics to unseat Teller men in the house the senate, which is strongly democratic, will not meet in joint session with the house and will deadlock the legislature in order that it will be impossible to elect a successor to Senator Teller.

A committee of three from the senate and five from the house was appointed at this caucus to combat the efforts of the republicans to control the legislature by undue means.

The committee will call a joint caucus for next Tuesday of democratic house and senate members from all parts of the state with the idea of binding them in an agreement to check the efforts of the republicans to capture a majority vote on joint ballot.

The caucus sent word to all the democratic candidates for the senate, who were defeated by a close margin, to prepare their papers for a contest and to secure evidence of fraud upon which to base their contest.

The republicans were charged with being revolutionary in their early attempt to unseat the Arapahoe members in the house. The incoming legislature, according to the latest returns, will be constituted as follows: Senate, democrats, 24; republicans, 11; house, democrats, 29; republicans, 36. Total on joint ballot, democrats, 53; republicans, 47.

Should the republican majority in the house unseat the democrats elected in Arapahoe district the legislature on joint ballot will stand, republicans 52, democrats 38.

POLICE COMMISSION.

Honorable Mention to Heenan and Daly—Kelly Asks for 153 Days' Pay.

The board of police commissioners held an adjourned meeting last evening and all were present. The monthly bills were approved, the finance committee's report accepted and also that of the superintendent, and placed on file. The report of the committee on efficiency was read and accepted. Honorable mention was accorded to Officer James F. Heenan for his very creditable work in capturing a burglar a short while ago, and to Detective Owen J. Daly for efficient services performed.

The resignations of Special Constables Oscar W. Cook and Otto Slatter were accepted. Officer Beilman applied for day duty, and Officer Doherty for reinstatement to regular duty. Both were ordered to take an examination before the regular medical board. Officer Kelley put in a bill for 153 days' pay lost while he was under suspension. This was referred to the committee on finance. The board voted to hold an inspection, if pleasant, on November 21, if not on November 23.

An officer from the Grand avenue station was tried for failing to report for duty and fined ten days' pay, and one from the Howard avenue station, charged with sitting down and smoking. The charges were dismissed.

WAY UP IN THE UPPER AIR

MARVELOUS STUDIES MADE IN SCIENTIFIC

Knowledge But Scholars Are Still Groping.

In spite of the apparently marvelous strides that have been made in scientific knowledge those who have accomplished the most in that line will tell us that the scholar, the investigator, is still groping. He is, however, groping hopefully and to some purpose, each new advance seeming to throw light further than it was thrown before. We have sounded the earth and the sea, in a way. We have a certain familiarity with atmospheric phenomena. Our actual knowledge at least makes us cleverer guessers but what we really know as compared with the knowledge that yet defies us is very limited. The telescope and the spectroscope have enabled us to project our vision a little farther and to impart to our analysis a larger measure of probability; still, when all is said and done they leave us very near the earth.

To know the forces that are outside and beyond us, their movements and relations to terrestrial interests, would be knowledge, both illuminating and practical, and something along this line is suggested by Professor A. Lawrence Rotch in his project to supplement our present knowledge of atmospheric currents above the inter-tropical zone in a way to ascertain the regular circulation of the trade winds and the anti-trade winds, upon which depend accurate deductions concerning weather changes and cyclones in the middle and high latitudes of the globe. While the details are still to be worked out the idea is one which seems attractive to the scientific men of all countries, especially those which possess large maritime interests.

Navigation is popularly regarded as approximately an exact science. We have gauged and measured and sounded and charted the ocean so minutely that the skilled navigator is not permitted to have an excuse for going astray on its surface. But all that study, or at least by far the greater part of it, has been bestowed on the lower hemisphere of the globe. We have yet to attain a satisfactory reading of the upper and controlling air currents. We can understand the lower phenomena which they produce, but we have made small progress in our attempts to get up to first principles. Yet recent evidence tends to show that there are fixed movements of these currents, dependable quantities, which greater knowledge would render available as a working hypothesis for the better regulation of the practical affairs of our planet.

Less than twenty years ago it was discerned, through the great earthquake disturbances in the Java seas, that there was a powerful perpetual current traveling at a high rate of speed from east to west, many miles above the level of previous aerial explorations. The methods of determining the upper phenomena are by kites and small balloons. The more that can be learned of trades and anti-trades the closer our calculations be made by navigators and the more accurate will scientific forecasting of weather conditions become. It is only in comparatively recent years that science has taken a halting step in the determination of meteorological phenomena. It has made some gains, but it must prepare for higher flights before reaching a dependable point for everyday guidance, and if the leading maritime countries will take hold of Professor Rotch's idea more rapid progress will be made.—From the Boston Transcript.

worked well and believes that the scheme for a general staff is the best solution for vexatious friction that has been planned.

General Corbin has the following to say regarding the canteen: "The restoration of the exchange as it existed prior to the passage of the act of February 2, 1901, prohibiting the sale of beer, is desired and urged by the great majority of officers and men and by none more than those of pronounced temperate views. Numerous reports confirm the views long held by this office that the old exchange con-

AN EXPENSIVE TRIP

But the Air of Old England Failed Him. The brain is composed of thousands of little cells and these contain a vital substance which is used up during active work and can only be replaced by the right kind of food and drink.

With many people, coffee drinking excites the brain and prevents it from getting the necessary rest, and breaks down and destroys the cells and the soft, gray matter therein, nor does coffee supply the food to replace these cells and this naturally leads to mental exhaustion, and nervous prostration.

"Some two years ago, I was laid low with a very severe attack of nervous prostration, and had to resign my position with a large mercantile house of this city," writes a gentleman from Brooklyn.

"The doctors said my complaint was due to overwork, long hours and insufficient exercise, and recommended a trip to Europe. More dead than alive I followed their advice, and went to England for a short visit, but came back very little improved, and unable to work, sick and disheartened.

On my return, my wife and I went to boarding and a gentleman living in the house told me of the beneficial results he had experienced by leaving off coffee and using Postum Food Coffee.

I at once stopped drinking tea or coffee and used Postum, drinking it three times a day, and in a short time found a decided improvement in my condition and now, I am glad to say, am following my profession again. I do not feel the slightest effects of my old complaint, and I am confident that I owe my present good health to the use of Postum.

We have two children and our little girl who is now two years of age, has been brought up on Postum and Grape-Nuts, and to-day weighs 40 pounds. Pretty good for a child only two years of age." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

tributed to sobriety, health and contentment of the men. The increase of desertions and of trials for the infractions of discipline is, by those best informed, attributed to the abolition of the former previous exchanges."

In conclusion he says: "The instruction of our men in vocal music would be a step in the direction of contentment and better discipline. Every regiment should have its marching song. Frequent practice in singing, particularly during the long winter evenings, would do much to make our men satisfied to remain in quarters and away from the baleful influence of the bar-rooms that exist in too great numbers in the vicinity of all our military posts. These bar-rooms are under the protection of the license and laws of the several states and are beyond the control of the military authority."

FOR THE BIGGEST WAR-SHIPS.

At Puget Sound Navy Yard a Great Coaling Wharf is Building.

Over at the Puget Sound Navy Yard a piece of construction work is being carried on by the Puget Sound Bridging and Dredging company that is full of interest in itself, as an example of the latest move in modern engineering methods, and also significant in its magnitude of the place which the government foresees for the Bremerton yard among the naval stations of the country. The work consists of the construction of a coaling wharf and storage shed adapted to unloading coal brought to the wharf by collars, storing it until it is wanted, and then redelivering it to the war-ships at the rate of two hundred tons per hour. The entire structure, including the coaling plant and the wharf beyond, will have a length of approximately thirteen hundred feet, or nearly a quarter of a mile. This will bring the end of the wharf into thirty feet of water at low tide, and will make it possible to coal the largest battleship in the navy at any time.

When this plant is completed the Puget Sound yard will not only be highly efficient, but its advantage over Mare Island is lower cost of maintenance will be even more conspicuous than it is now. For while at Mare Island the government is under continual expense in keeping open the ship channels which the shifting bottom of the harbor continually strives to close, in Puget Sound the conditions are such that permanent improvements in widening and deepening the channels are so in fact as well as in name.

Specifications for the work were sent out in May, and on August 14, 1902, the plans and estimates prepared by the Puget Sound Bridging and Dredging company were accepted, the contract was signed, and work began immediately. Under the terms of the contract the work is to be done for $259,750, and is to be completed in ten months from the time of beginning.

The new plant will be at the western end of the navy yard, about one hundred yards east of the boundary. It will consist of two principal parts, the storage shed and coaling plant, which will be six hundred and twenty feet in length from the shore end, and the wharf which will extend for six hundred and fifty feet beyond the outer end of the shed. The shed or storage plant, will be divided into bins of suitable size for handling coal easily and quickly, and will be connected with the outer wharf by an electric-car system. The shed will be ninety-two feet wide, fifty-five feet high and six hundred and twenty feet long, with a storage capacity of twenty-two thousand long tons. The wharf, where the actual coaling operations will be carried on will be supplied with two movable steel towers which will operate along the outer three hundred and fifty feet of the wharf, leaving about three hundred feet of trestle carrying the car tracks from the main shed to the outer wharf. The towers will be eighty feet in height, and will have arms or booms of sixty feet in length that can be swung out over the deck of a collier. In coaling a war-ship the coal will be run through chutes from bins at the end of the wharf directly into the bunkers of the ship.

For three hundred and fifty feet along the coaling wharf a channel will be dredged one hundred feet wide, three hundred and fifty feet long and thirty feet deep. The material secured by the dredging will be used to fill in under the storage shed, with the result that the shed will be put practically on solid ground.

As soon as the contract was signed the contractors began the work of preparation for carrying on the work by the most improved methods of construction. Buildings were erected near the scene of the work, and a little colony of workmen moved in and took possession. Sleeping quarters and a mess-house were built for the men, a general office building for the company, and an office for the government inspector, together with a power house and shop building. Everything possible is being done by machinery. The plant for driving the five thousand piles that will be required is made of two land pile drivers with double drum engines, and three thousand pound hammers, and two floating pile drivers of heaviest construction. One of these floating pile drivers is equipped with Warrington-Nesmyth steam hammer. This is the first time this steam hammer has been used in contract work in the northwest. The hammer itself weighs five tons, and rests directly on the head of the pile, striking seventy blows a minute and keeping the pile constantly in motion until it has been driven to the desired depth. This method is particularly desirable where the pile must be driven through packed sand, for the practically constant motion prevents the sand from settling under the bottom of the pile.

For building the shed a timber tower sixty feet in height has been erected, equipped with a four-spool bridge-erecting engine. The equipment also includes a steam cut-off saw for cutting and squaring all timbers used in construction, an air-compressing plant which will furnish power for driving all wood-boring tools, and air hammers for driving spikes.

The materials to be used will include three and one-half million feet of Puget Sound fir, five thousand piles and five hundred tons of iron and steel. The piles will be treated by the "Perfection" process to protect them from the attack of the teredo.

For providing suitable quarters for the men the contractors have built two houses, one to be used as sleeping quarters and the other for the kitchen and dining hall. The building used for the living rooms is twenty-four by one hundred and eight feet, and is partitioned into rooms eight by nine feet, with two berths in a room. Through the center of the building runs a corridor which will be supplied with stoves, or some form of heating apparatus, and will be used by the men as a place of assembly during the winter evenings. The cook-house and dining room are contained in a building twenty by fifty feet. The dining room has twelve tables, with accommodations for one hundred men.—Seattle Times.

LET THE STATES

REGULATE TRUSTS—BY SUCH SUPERVISION

As is Applied to Insurance Companies.

In his recent very able and suggestive address on the supervision of life insurance, delivered before the national convention of state insurance officials at Columbus, O., John A. McCall, the well known president of the New York Life Insurance company, set forth certain principles underlying the insurance laws of the various states, which are capable of a far wider application than the speaker himself probably realized.

In his review of the history and growth of the movement for state inspection, Mr. McCall showed how the states, beginning with Massachusetts in 1855, have gradually formed a body of supervisory statutes so searching in their character and so stringent in their requirements as to financial safeguards, the security of investors and the conduct of business on sound and economical principles, that it is now practically impossible for a business anywhere in this country except on an honest and legitimate basis. Among the more important requirements now embodied in the statutes of nearly all the states are these: That each insurance company must file a certified copy of its charter with the state department; that it must submit an annual sworn statement of its business and financial status to the state insurance officials, and must also satisfy these officials that it is lawfully organized under the laws of the state where it has its home office. It is also generally required that the insurance companies shall show that they have on deposit with the treasurer of their respective states securities to the value of at least $100,000. Each company is required to appoint a resident attorney in each state, upon whom legal process may be served; it must furnish a complete list of its agents and local offices, and must give bonds that its agents will comply with all the laws applicable to their business.

These are only a few of the many regulations and restrictions imposed by the states upon life insurance companies, all of them designed to protect the citizen from imposition, fraud, injustice and other abuses which exist when no supervision was exercised and which would be likely to spring into being again were the present safeguards removed.

While some of the supervisory statutes may seem unnecessary, severe and exacting, the general result of their enactment has been the highest degree of honor and legitimate insurance enterprises. They have driven crooked and swindling concerns out of business, and left the field to those worthy of the patronage and confidence of the people. Under these restrictive laws all the better class of insurance companies have flourished as never before, and their business has grown to such vast proportions that in the total amount of capital involved and the extent of their operations they stand at the head to-day of all financial undertakings of modern times.

We have passed these points in review chiefly because it seems to us that in these supervisory laws applicable to the life insurance business we have already at hand the best possible means for the regulation and supervision of the so-called trusts. With the necessary adaptations to the differing character and methods of these trade-combinations, we see no good reason why the great body of statutes and the supervisory systems now established by the respective states might not be applied and utilized in remedying the real or alleged evils arising from these aggregations of capital. These requirements would insure that degree of publicity in trust operations now insisted upon by President Roosevelt and others as the chief remedy for trust abuses; they would furnish the guarantees, under state requirements, for that sound business management and that security to patrons and investors which have directly or indirectly helped to place life insurance on its present solid-footing and made it strong, safe and prosperous. Such restrictive laws would have the effect not only of remedying such abuses as exist or are likely to exist from the growth of trusts, but would insure to all regular and honorable enterprises of this sort a measure of protection under law and a degree of public confidence that would be greatly to their benefit.

These measures of state supervision would be far more practicable also than any amendment to the federal constitution could possibly be. To effect a change in the organic law of the nation is necessarily a long and tedious process, covering a space of many years, and this should only be resorted to in extreme cases and where principles of national and vital importance are at stake. In the regulation and control of trusts there is no need of resorting to a constitutional amendment. Let the states exercise the same authority over trade combinations that they now do over life insurance companies, and the thing will be done. This is a safe, sure and speedy method. Why not try it?—From Leslie's Weekly.

The Breath of the Vineyard

Every one knows that Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. Hence the housewife uses it with implicit confidence and without question, and she is justified in so doing.

But how few realize that Royal Baking Powder is in its chief ingredient a direct product of the healthful and delicious grape! It is the mild acid of grapes, which crystallized and ground to an impalpable powder is called cream of tartar, that forms the active principle of every pound of Royal Baking Powder.

Fruit acid is indispensable to the healthfulness of the body, and the acid of the grape is the most valuable and healthful of all.

Hence it is that Royal Baking Powder produces food remarkable both in flavor and wholesomeness.

MINING FOR RAINBOW WOOD.

A Maine Farmer's Valuable Find in a Muck Bog. The collecting of what is called rainbow wood is a comparatively new industry in Maine. Though the dwellers along the seaboard have known for years that driftwood picked up from salt water gave out iridescent tints when burned in open grates, they attached no value to the coloring of the flames until the rich summer visitors came down East and changed the picking of driftwood from an occupation akin to idleness into a profitable calling.

For five years the whole coast line of Penobscot bay has been scoured in quest of wood, and when the supply grew scarce and the prices advanced from $10 to $25 a cord, a Boston chemist grew rich from inventing a powder which, when burned with dry wood, yielded colors nearly as bright as the genuine wood from the sea.

This fall Emory Bowden, a farmer, who sold considerable driftwood in former years went to the salt meadows at the foot and began to dig his year's supply of muck, which was used as bedding for his stock and for house-banking. When he had excavated a hole about 10 feet deep he came to a flooring of great pine trees, which had been embedded in the peat for ages.

The limbs had rotted away and the bark and sawpud had gone, but the dry heart of the trees was as sound as in life. Kindling a fire about a log of the wood, Bowden found that it gave out very brilliant hues of indigo and green, showing that the aged wood was filled with salts of iodine and chlorine.

No sooner had he made this discovery than he stopped digging muck and went to mining rainbow. He loaded a schooner with cut wood and sent it to his Boston patrons, who paid him $22 a cord for the cargo and asked for more.

Since then Bowden has hired all the men who are willing to work, and is digging out the trunks in his fossil forest and selling them at fancy figures. The deposit of pine trees lies between the clay subsoil and the overgrowth of peat, and is fully six feet in depth.

As the muck bed is more than a mile in area, Bowden believes he can sell a half-million cords of wood from a forest that has been buried from view the many ages.—New York Sun.

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE.

Several insurance companies have recently undertaken to insure owners of automobiles against damage which may be found against them as the result of accidents to individuals or to horses or other property arising from the use of horseless carriages. The policies are issued to cover losses in a single instance, and are made out either for $5,000 or $10,000. Should the owner of an automobile feel that there is a possibility that he may need insurance against more than one accident, or that on any single occasion he may cause damage in excess of $10,000, he is permitted to take out what is designated as an "excess liability policy" at half the original rates.

At present it has been found to be unwise to offer rates to owners of steam-propelled vehicles. This distinction is made not because this class of automobile is in itself dangerous to drivers, or less susceptible to control, but because it has been demonstrated by the compilation of record that more accidents have resulted by horses becoming frightened by the escaping steam than from any other cause.

An electric automobile may be insured against damages to one person not to exceed $5,000 at rates from $50 to $75, or a policy providing against damage secured by a number of persons injured in the same accident will be issued on the same terms, it being agreed that the total liability shall not exceed $10,000. The gasoline automobiles come higher, the rate for the same amounts of insurance being from $60 to $90. Automobile delivery trucks are charged for insurance against the damages they may do from $75 to $125. The insurance companies in their accident and liability departments are still experimenting with the insurance of automobiles. If they find themselves to be losers the rates will be raised.—New York Times.

FIRST VIEW OF WHITE MEN BY INDIANS.

It is small wonder that the first view of a white man created terror among the superstitious Indians. A striking instance of this occurred when the Wallawalla Indians first saw Captain Clark of the Lewis and Clark expedition. Thinking to propitiate the savages and allay their fears of the white men he planned to visit a village of Wallawallas before the arrival of the rest of his party.

With this end in view, he set out to cross the Columbia river in a canoe, taking three men with him. On the way he shot a crane and a duck, both of which fell near him. He landed before five wigwams placed close to each other, but not a person was visible, and the doors, which were of mat, were closed. Holding his pipe in hand, as an indication of good will, he pushed aside one of the doors and entered the lodge. Inside were thirty men, women and children, huddled together in terror. He went to them, shook each by the hand and said some friendly words, expressing by word and manner his kindly feeling. Their apprehensions were allayed until he took out his burning-glass and lighted his pipe by the rays of the sun. Consternation again prevailed, and what might have occurred but for the timely arrival of two chiefs who knew the white men cannot be told.

It seems that the Indians had not seen Captain Clark, but they had seen the white crane which he had shot fall just before his appearance. They had also seen the duck fall at his shot. They connected the fall of the birds with his advent, and thought he had fallen from the clouds.

The sound of the rifle, which they had never before heard, they believed was a signal to announce the white man's coming. Small wonder, then, that their hardly allayed fears were again aroused when he brought down fire from heaven by means of his burning-glass.—Youth's Companion.

WALLINGFORD.

Edwin M. Hall died at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home on North Whittlessey avenue after a long illness, aged forty-nine years. He leaves a wife and four children. The funeral services will be held on Sunday at 2 o'clock at the house. The interment will be in the "In Memoriam" cemetery. The deceased has for several years held an important position at R. Wallace & Sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dyer's two and one half year old son died yesterday morning of acute bronchitis. Funeral from home on Wallace street this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Charles A. Goodwill and son Rex have returned from New York and state that the report received that his son Charles Clifton Goodwill was injured at the explosion of fireworks Tuesday night, was a mistake, as his son left New York Monday night for Syracuse.

James F. Ward, who was for a short time night operator at the telegraph office at the depot, was arrested yesterday for theft of an overcoat from Charles A. Rose of "Quinnie." The case will come before the borough court this morning. The prisoner had a paper in his possession from Station Agent Parr, certifying as to his honesty and capability. Agent Parr came up to the lockup yesterday afternoon and took back the paper. The overcoat was found on Ward's person.

The Middletown high school eleven will play the Choate school eleven here this afternoon.

Company K will attend the services at St. Paul's church to-morrow evening. Chaplain Phillips of the Second regiment, C. N. G., will preach.

Rev. Mr. Hubbard of Yalesville will conduct the services at the Masonic home on Sunday.

The price of coal has gone down to $8 a ton.

The attraction at the opera house this evening will be Mildred Holland in "The Power Behind the Throne," and those who attend will have a rare treat as the company is first class, and Mildred Holland's name is a household word and needs no especial notice.

Miss Ruth Salisbury of New Haven is the guest of Miss Esther Knopf.

Miss Irene Foran of New Haven is the guest of the Misses Bessie and May Sheehan of Center street.

H. M. Stevens of Curtis avenue was out hunting Thursday down Northford way and brought home sixteen woodcock, two partridges and one quail.

The bequest of Professor Jacobi of Berlin in the interest of education is said to be the first of its kind ever made by a man. He has bequeathed 10,000 marks to the University of Berlin with the proviso that the university shall not come into possession of the money until at least two departments are open to women as regular students.

Big gains in the Socialist vote in Massachusetts are noted as one of the significant features of Tuesday's voting. John C. Chase, Socialist candidate for governor, received 32,955 votes, as compared with 10,871 for the party's candidate last year. The Socialist Labor vote fell off materially, this party evidently being in danger of absorption by the Socialists.

A French forest inspector has achieved a process for the production of "molten wood." By dry distillation and high pressure developing gases are prevented from escaping and the "molten" condition thereby secured. When cooled the mass assumes the character of coal without showing traces of that material's organic structure. The new substance is hard, is impervious to water and acids, but can be shaped and polished at will.

The French courts are wrestling with the question, Is a frog a fish? The facts of the case were as follows: In June last two men were surprised by private keepers fishing for frogs in private waters at 1 o'clock in the morning, and they were subsequently summoned for poaching. In their defence the men argued that frogs were not fish, that consequently they were not fishing, and could not in any way be convicted according to the fishing laws. The police court adopted this view of the case and dismissed the summons. The owners of the private waters appealed, and the case was heard, an inspector of rivers and forests arguing that, although frogs were not fish, strictly speaking, they were placed in the same category by law. The appeal court declined to accept this view, and confirmed the decision of the police court, but it appears that the prosecution was not satisfied with this judgment and will ask the Court of Cassation to declare that a frog is a fish.

The editor of the Shelbyville (Kansas) Herald, who seems to know all the signs predicts a mild winter. "The corn husks are not thick, neither are they thin," he has observed. "Now Mother Nature puts on thick husks for the same reason that a man will put on an ulster when he expects a cold blast, but rests content with a shirt waist and a pair of dark trousers when warm weather prevails. Hence thin husks denote a short and mild winter. The muskrat idles around in lazy contentment, not at all heeding the lateness of the season, a sure sign that he does not expect the approach of uncomfortable weather at an early date. If he did he would now be engaged in seeking places to build his winter home and would have already made his architectural plans. The game birds are still rustivating in the far North and do not show the least desire to tend their flight Southward and instinct teaches them to scent the least unseemly kephyr."

Come South, young farmer, says the Atlanta (Georgia) Journal. "It costs more to build a house in the extreme West than to buy a farm down South, and an improved one at that. Then, again, an acre of wheat on southern farms brings to the owner a better price than the wheat grown West, and the early vegetables are sure of a good price in the market, and you can raise cotton for a clear money crop." The Journal cannot understand why the stream of emigration from New York city to the far West continues unabated, why so many are lived in, the Arctic cold endured while the southern farms continue cheap and the southern people run to town to "school" their children. "Is it the negro that keeps the northwest farmers away from us?" asks the Journal. "Then the remedies in coming to the South in such numbers and with enough industry to make these cheap lands pay a handsome profit. There is no other remedy that occurs to our mind, and the southern legislators, State and Federal, should give strict attention to this crying need of this southern country."

ONLY ONE. A painful thing happened in Denver last Tuesday. Woman suffrage prevails in Colorado, and the women there vote as if they liked to. That is, many of them do. Their influence is, of course, always on the side of morality, good government, purity in politics and all the other good things. But it is sadly true that a woman was arrested in Denver on Tuesday for "repeating." She had succeeded in voting twice, and perhaps she would have voted more times if she had not been caught. She said in explanation of her crime that she needed the money.

Of course this melancholy incident will be made the text of numerous and lugubrious walls by those who are looking for facts to support their theory that woman is no better than man in politics. But there is no need of paying any attention to these wallers. One swallow doesn't make a summer, and the appearance of one woman "repeater" doesn't show that woman ought not to have the ballot. It is bad enough and sad enough that there should be even one, but in order to see things in their true light just think of the men repeaters who were busy last Tuesday.

GOVERNOR VAN SANT'S VICTORY. One of the several significant things which happened on election day was the re-election of Governor Van Sant, of Minnesota, by an enormous plurality. Governor Van Sant has in the past twelve months antagonized the greatest railroad and financial interests in the United States in his efforts to prevent the merger of the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads. In attempting to thwart the plans of Mr. J. P. Morgan, Mr. James J. Hill and the other prominent persons who were the promoters of the proposed merger Governor Van Sant found himself in conflict with certain business interests in Minneapolis. Representatives of these interests urged him to take no immediate action against the Northern Securities company. They suggested that a "fair opportunity" be given "for testing by experience whether good or evil will come from that company."

GOVERNOR VAN SANT IS A FIRM BELIEVER in enforcing the law against all persons or corporations that do not respect the law. The Minnesota statutes forbid the consolidation of parallel or competing lines. The Northern Securities company was organized, it is alleged, in New Jersey for the purpose of evading the Minnesota law. Governor Van Sant believed it was his duty to prevent a consolidation of railroads in violation of the laws of his State. He invoked the aid of the courts to defeat the merger, and has left nothing undone to protect the interests of the people of Minnesota.

The big vote given Governor Van Sant indicates that the people of his State appreciate his courage and his efforts to protect them. For a quarter of a century the laws of Minnesota have prohibited the consolidation of parallel and competing railroads with the view of maintaining competition in rates, and Governor Van Sant and his backers want those laws respected and obeyed.

RUSSIA IN FINLAND. What Russian rule means to the people of Finland was strikingly illustrated the other day in Helsingfors, when a colossal statue of the great Finnish patriot and scholar, Elias Lönnrot, who died nearly twenty years ago, was unveiled without ceremonies of any kind. Lönnrot collected and edited the great Finnish national epic, the "Kalevala," and is celebrated as the father of the national Finnish literature. The first steps towards the raising of the statue, which was executed by the gifted Finnish sculptor Mr. E. Wikström, were taken by the Finnish Society of Literature. The society applied some time ago to the governor-general for permission to unveil the statue with the usual ceremonies, but the permission was only granted under the impossible condition that all speeches should be previously censored by the governor-general, and that the national anthem must not be sung. This being the first time that the Finnish national anthem had been formally forbidden, the society preferred that the statue should be unveiled without any ceremonies. So the figure was uncovered without formalities of any kind, but the number of wreaths, coming from all parts of Finland, which have been deposited at its feet, show how deeply the feelings of the people were affected.

NOTHING IN ATHENS. Of making many expositions there is no end, and though Athens, Greece, doesn't seem just the most favorable place for an "International Exposition of Industry, Commerce, Art and Hygiene" there is going to be one there. The opening has had to be postponed until April 7, 1903, on account of the impossibility of getting things ready before then. The Greek government wants the hearty cooperation of foreign nations in this exposition, and Frank W. Jackson, our consul at Patras, writing to the Bureau of Foreign Commerce, says that this extension of time makes possible "an intelligent display" of American products, and suggests that a little attention on our part to the Greek fair might cause Greece to show particular interest in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Mr. Jackson is of the opinion that the Greek market is open to almost every manufacture and that, therefore, displays of goods of any description would be appropriate. He calls particular attention to farming implements, various mechanical instruments and devices, including typewriters, letter and printing presses, particularly hand and foot power presses, engines, current cleaning machinery, and electrical appliances, as favorable exhibits.

Such an exposition as is proposed in Athens will do much to teach and inspire the Greeks. We hope it will be a shining success.

DEATHED REPENTANCE. He sneered at doctors, said the great professional was a fraud; Practitioners would better be all carrying said surgery was butchery, and they who should all be run into the penitentiary for life. The faking Esculapians were men of ghoul-ery, but ye gods! Grew rich by fattening graveyards on cold mortuary fees; They were in diagnosing ill, but proof could not be found, Because they buried their mistakes beneath six feet of ground.

He sneered at preachers, said they were encumberers of the soil Who preached because too lazy to engage in honest toil; Were naught but soft-voiced hypocrites supported by the church in which to show their fashionable clothes. They had but scant solitude for souls of men, but ye gods! To get their fingers on the cash that other people earned, And if there really was a heaven, a land of beauty rare, 'Twas safe to place a hefty bet there'd be no preachers there.

Along about the midnight hour one night he "wrote in pain"; His wife tried all the remedies in reach, but all in vain; Hot water bags and ginger tea and mustard plasters seemed To but augment his suffering, and in agony he screamed: Then to him came the dreadful thought he might be doomed to die, And in a piteous voice he begged his starved wife to fly.

And a doctor "Run," he cried; "If you never flew! Get every doctor you can find—and bring a preacher, too!" —Denver Post.

TWO NOTABLE WOODPECKERS. Woodpeckers belong to one of the best known of all bird families. With the exception of the two islands, Australia and Madagascar, there is no considerable tract of woodland in the world which is not inhabited by one or more of the three hundred and fifty species of which this great family is composed. Few birds are so well equipped for the work they have to do in the world and none are more persevering and industrious. Some of our feathered friends have periods of rest; times during which they perch about, doing nothing in particular, but I have never seen a woodpecker when he was not busy at something. It might be wood-cutting or it might be courtship, but he was always working as though he had no minute to lose.

As their name implies, all woodpeckers peck wood, usually the wood of standing trees, dead or living, in order to feed on insects or larvae lurking beneath the surface, to hollow out cavities in which to lay their eggs, or to produce sounds which may attract other individuals of the same species. And to observe how Nature has fitted these birds for their peculiar mode of living is to receive an instructive lesson in ornithology. In the first place, the arrangement of their toes, two in front and two behind, (except in the case of the three-toed woodpeckers), makes it easy for them to climb, creep, hang upside down and cling to upright surfaces, while engaged in their operations on the trunks and branches of trees. The tail feathers are stiff and pointed, and when pressed inward against a tree, serve as a prop and relieve the strain on the feet. The bill is strongly made and flattened toward the end to a chisel edge, forming an admirable tool for cutting wood, and the tongue, which can be projected for a considerable distance beyond the mandibles, has a sharp, horny, barbed tip, designed for spearing and drawing out the insects and larvae as fast as they are uncovered. To protect the brain from the violent jolting to which it would otherwise be subjected, it is covered with a tough and elastic membrane. Altogether, woodpeckers have been well provided for, and they seem to show their appreciation of benefits received by the enthusiasm they put into their work.

Even the small species, like the downy, hairy and red-headed woodpeckers, are very industrious, and do a great deal of work, for their size, but it is the work of niggles, when compared with the achievements of the giants of the family. Not long ago I saw a tree which had been "worked on" by a pileated woodpecker or log-creeper, and even for one familiar with the species, it was difficult to believe that any bird could do so much hard work. The trunk was about two feet in diameter and the wood, although dead, was quite solid. A channel several inches wide, and deep enough to reach the heart of the tree, extended round the trunk in a spiral, for a distance of several feet. The woodpecker had done as much work as would have been necessary to cut down three or four trees of the same size.

This splendid woodpecker, which was at one time to be found in wooded regions throughout North America, is now a rare bird in most parts of its range. In the cypress swamps of some of the southern states it is still common, but in many localities it has been completely exterminated. The great Wilson, in whose time this woodpecker was a common bird, thus pays tribute to its prowess—"Almost every old trunk in the forest, where he resides, bears the marks of his chisel. Wherever he perceives a tree going to decay, he examines it round and round with great skill and dexterity, strips off the bark in sheets of five or six feet in length, to get at the hidden cause of the disease, and labors with a gayety and activity really surprising.

I have seen him separate the greatest part of the bark from a large dead pine tree, for twenty or thirty feet, in less than a quarter of an hour." But even the abject woodpecker, powerful as he is, is but a weakling when compared with the great "Ivory bill" which inhabits the cypress forests of the south. This giant woodpecker, which is twenty inches in length, is black with conspicuous white markings and with a large scarlet crest. His ivory-white bill is an inch wide at the base, over three inches long and strengthened by beautiful ridges. One cannot appreciate what an effective instrument this is until he has seen large trees with wagon loads of bark and chips at their feet, and so deeply excavated that they frequently fall before a light wind. Fortunately this bird does not attack live trees; if he did, he would be a powerful agent for the destruction of timber.

Wilson fully appreciated the strength and courage of this bird, and he had every reason to. He once took a captive of this species to a hotel in Wilmington, N. C., and his experience with it he relates as follows: "I took him upstairs, and locked him in my room, while I went out to see my horse taken care of. In less than an hour I returned, and on opening the door he set up the same distressing shout, which now appeared to proceed from grief that he had been discovered in his attempt to escape. He had mounted along the side of the window, nearly as high as the ceiling, a little below which he had begun to break through. The bed was covered with large pieces of plaster; the lath was exposed for at least fifteen inches square, and a hole large enough to admit the fist opened to the weather boards; so that, in less than another hour, he would certainly have succeeded in making his way through. I now tried to hit his leg, and fastening it to the table, again left him. As I descended the stairs, I heard him again hard at work, and on entering had the mortification to perceive that he had almost entirely ruined the mahogany table to which he was fastened, and on which he had wreaked his whole vengeance." —ERNEST HAROLD BAYNES.

WHY ABANDON THE PONY. A Protest Against the Decision of the Hamilton College Faculty.

In prohibiting the use of "ponies" by the students of Hamilton College the faculty of that institution may be said to be in the wrong in what is might call "horseless education," which is at least in keeping with the spirit of the hour. It is good that the interdiction has the virtue, for it has no other. The "pony" has had a long and honorable career in the annals of academic institutions both here and abroad, and has indeed become so much of an institution itself that the act of the Hamilton faculty savors strongly of iconoclasm and a useless bit of iconoclasm at that, since the order is pretty certain to prove ineffective. We have not the slightest idea hat the undergraduates of Hamilton College, who have hitherto been accustomed to using these aids to a successful translation of the classics, are in the secrecy of their studies going to abandon them simply because a number of reverend professors say that they shall no longer be used. Without desiring to incite the young to rebellion in any way, we are prepared to say that were we in their place we should pay just as much heed to the prohibition as pleased us, just as offenders against unnecessary laws always do. We should assert an inherent right to make use of all scholarly aids to the betterment of our own work within our reach, and should as soon give over the well-thumbed lexicon that had carried us through our Homer in response to a demand from our Greek professor as abandon the pony upon which we had ridden into an intelligent comprehension of the classics upon the dictum of the whole faculty. In our judgement the faculty of Hamilton would be in far better ease to-day if they had encouraged the use of the pony intelligently and instructively, relying upon their own keenness of perception, as guardians of the educational interests of the young men, to see to it that the use did not degenerate into an abuse. Rightly used the pony is most assuredly a most valuable tool in the hands of students of the classics, and a professor who is equal to the responsibilities that devolve upon him should have little difficulty in ascertaining whether or not it is piled to the greatest real advantage of the individuals most concerned. Sweepingly to condemn as vicious a practice so full of real virtue is a serious mistake, and we hope the Hamilton faculty will be wise enough to perceive the fact and promptly rescind their indefensible regulation. —Harper's Weekly.

COLOR IN THE FAR SOUTH. The desert is gray and white and yellow, a background which intensifies the red shirt of the cowboy and the blanket of the Indian. The landscape of red and other also brings out all the blue there is in the sky. day the sky is clear and blue; it is always with you, and you see more of it than you ever saw before; so no wonder you say there is no blue like the sky of Arizona. But it is not the intense blue of New England; it is a pale blue, and there is a heaven-full of it every day and night. When you see a bare, red Arizona mountain a long way off, the blue and violet and purple of it seem like the work of magic. Put such a mountain in New England, put it over against the east in a clear sunset glow, and it would be more startling than in Arizona. But we have not such mountains here, and Arizona has not our atmosphere capable of giving color to the dingiest object. However, she has great local color, and great distances to change it into many tints. A field of alfalfa is the most brilliant of greens; the vermilion fly-catcher is a comet in the sky—he positively glows like a light, he is so brilliant. One has but to stand on the rim of the Grand Canyon, look across at the other wall, 13 miles away, and watch it at sunrise or sunset, in order to see color which can exist nowhere else. At the beginning or at the end of the day the great forms of which the walls are made cast their most wonderful shadows. They are so far off, and there is so much air in between that the light and shade seem unreal, like a mirage which you know will vanish in a little while. The low sunlight falls on the red towers and spires, and causes them to glow as though a light were within them, like a great thunderhead at sunset and thousands of feet down into the chasm falls the shadow, a blue from dream-land, a blue from which all the skies of the world were made.—Maxfield Parish in the Century.

ANNUITIES Prof. G. S. Grimes of Evanston, Ill., now 94 years of age carried a policy of $5,000 for many years and when he reached the advanced age of 70 he despaired of its ever becoming a claim, so he compromised with the company on the basis of an annuity of $40 per year for the rest of his life. During the past 24 years he has received his annual payments with regularity and great equanimity of mind and, having already drawn $9,840, he has come to the conclusion that he has found the elixir of life in an Annuity. At age 70, $1,000 deposited in The Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York will yield an annuity of $124.77 for life. This great corporation is the most wealthy moneyed institution in the world and more than $10,000,000 in claims has been paid in this state through the under signed. John W. Tailored Suits and Wraps.

Business is forging ahead at a rapid rate in this department, and good reason for it. Every style of gown or wrap that Europe and America calls good this year is to be found on our second floor.

Tailored Suits $11.95 to $90 Coats $5.00 to $100

Children's Coats and Dresses.

Aristocratic little garments every one cut and made by the best manufacturers in the prettiest and most girlish styles. Only one of each style.

Coats are full length, in box style, both plain and box-plaited-trimmed with fancy braid, strap-pings and buttons, lace and velvet. Materials are kersey, broadcloth, beaver, ladies' cloth, chevot, silk, camel's hair plaids, frieze, melton and velour—black and colors.

Dresses are in the full sailor blouse effect with kilt and gored skirts, also dainty dresses with long French waist, full skirt.

Materials are fine chevot, cashmere, storm serge, shepherd checks and hair-line flannel; trimmed with large pointed collars and fancy yokes, finished with narrow braid, black velvet strappings, pearl buttons and fancy taffeta.

MAD DOG

Created Consternation on State Street During Noon Hour. A mad dog created great excitement on State street, between Audubon and Trumbull, during the noon hour yesterday. The animal ran into the street when hundreds of people were returning home from the factories.

Patrolman Heenan noticed the commotion and hurried to the scene. The dog started for the patrolman without the slightest hesitation. He anticipated the rush and with a well aimed blow of his club laid the brute low. A pistol shot summarily ended the dog's career.

TO-NIGHT'S LECTURE.

Edward Howard Griggs Will Speak in College Street Hall. The second in the series of four lectures to be delivered by Edward Howard Griggs under the auspices of Yale university and the University Extension Center will take place in College street hall this evening. The doors will be open at 7:30 and the lecture will begin at 8 o'clock sharp. Mr. Griggs will take for his subject "Victor Hugo." The lecture is one of much interest and a large attendance is expected.

ACCIDENT AT SARGENT'S.

Morris Ullman Taken to the Hospital With Fractured Rib. Morris Ullman, twenty-five years old, of 44 Bishop street, was removed to the New Haven hospital yesterday afternoon suffering from an accident which occurred at Sargent's factory. Ullman fell over a truck and fractured one of his ribs. He also strained the muscles of one of his legs and his chest. He was attended first by Dr. Nadler, after which he was taken to the hospital, where he was reported at a late hour as doing as well as could be expected.

SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Happy Event Celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. John Gould. Mr. and Mrs. John C. Gould celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage at their charming home, 781 Orange street, last night. The hours were from 7 until 10 and the affair being entirely informal was thoroughly delightful. About 150 of their friends and relatives called during the hours to extend their heartiest congratulations.

A number of very fine presents were received, one of them being particularly worthy of mention. It was an elegant gold cornet of the finest manufacture and was presented to Mr. Gould by the musicians of the city. He is a popular cornetist of the Second Regiment band and is also a member of Dorset lodge No. 2 and by the Symphony orchestra and several other organizations of equal merit and he is most deservedly held in high esteem by his fellow musicians. The members of the Second Regiment band presented a handsome toilet set and many other articles were received from friends. At about 11 o'clock the members of the band who were engaged in orchestral work in the theaters previous to that time arrived at the house and proceeded to take charge of it. They made merry until the early hours of the morning and rendered a delightful programme of select music. Fine refreshments were served, to which all did ample justice.

TAKEN TO STATE PRISON.

Prisoners from New Haven County Resolved. Sheriff Dunham and a deputy took eight prisoners from New Haven county to the Connecticut state prison at Wethersfield yesterday. They were the following: Joseph Clark, assault with intent to kill, one to two years. Louis Johnson, assault with intent to commit rape, two to five years. John Lyons, theft from the person, one to five years. John Maddox, alias John Williams, statutory burglary, one to two years. Edward Matthews, theft, third offense, one to two years. Antonio Collo Ozolillo, alias Antonio Ozolillo, murder in the second degree, life. Dominick Pansa, criminal assault of female under the age of sixteen, seven to ten years. Charles Young, bigamy, one to two years.

AT THE HYPERION LAST NIGHT.

O'Neill in "The Honor of the Humble." A small audience was present at the Hyperion theater last evening to witness the presentation of the new play, "The Honor of the Humble," which has been adapted from the French by Harriet Ford for James O'Neill of "Monte Cristo" fame. The play is a romantic drama of life in Russia and is very interesting but does not give Mr. O'Neill the opportunity to display his talents until the third act, after which he received many curtain calls. The supporting company was very good. Mr. O'Neill as Rurik, the serf, was fine; also Miss May Buckley as his wife, Miss Adelaide Whytal as the Princess Helene, and Helen Tracy as Countess Suroff and John W. Albaugh, Jr., were good in their respective parts. The play lacks the vim and dash of "Monte Cristo" but was worthy of a larger audience.

EXCITING RUNAWAY.

James Heslin Thrown From Carriage and Badly Injured. An exciting runaway occurred on College street, between Chapel and Grove streets, last evening. A spirited horse became frightened by the trolley cars at the corner of Chapel and College streets and plunged wildly along the highway. The occupant, James Heslin of Congress avenue, was thrown from the carriage at the corner of College and Grove streets and the carriage became attached to a hitching post. The harness was badly broken and the horse was thrown heavily to the ground. The runaway took place about 8:30. Heslin was taken to his home and a physician summoned. His injuries consisted of a broken wrist and a large number of cuts and bruises. The horse and carriage were taken to a livery stable on George street.

NEW QUARTERS.

The new quarters to be occupied by the Eagles are rapidly nearing a state of completion. The rooms are those at the corner of Union and Chapel streets, formerly occupied by the Y. M. C. A. The Eagles are to have spacious quarters. There will be a ladies' parlor, reception rooms, reading rooms and a smoking apartment. The furnishings will be lavish and the surroundings will be made as attractive and homelike as possible. The lodge in this city and the national organization are growing rapidly and the membership numbers many thousands. In New Haven several hundred have joined the lodge and when the new quarters are finished the membership will be greatly increased.

DR. LYMAN ABBOTT

Will Occupy the College Pulpit at Yale To-morrow. The college pulpit at Yale will be occupied Sunday morning by Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott of Brooklyn, N. Y. Dr. Abbott is very popular with Yale men and his sermon in Battell chapel to-morrow morning will be largely attended. A large attendance of townspeople is also expected. Dr. Abbott will meet the students in the semi-circular room in Dwight hall between the usual hours and will speak at the university meeting at 6:40 in Dwight hall.

YALE KENT CLUB.

The Kent club of the Yale Law school will hold an important meeting in Hendrie hall next Monday evening. A topic of current interest will be debated and Professor Wetzel, instructor in elocution, will criticize the speakers. Business matters of importance will come up and the attendance of every member is desired.

THE BUSINESS WAY WITH CALLERS.

Men who direct affairs, whether their own business or a department of another's, must learn to judge the business value of callers. They must learn to enforce such judgments, and to end interviews that have passed the limits of utility. Chattering on general subjects during business hours is a sure means of spoiling one's executive efficiency, robbing one's employer, or even ruining one's own business. Men who are famous as executives seem to have an instinct for deciding instantly when a caller is announced how much time to give him. President Roosevelt is a fine example of such a man. When a man enters his office, he grasps him by the hand as if he were a long-expected friend, but along with the cordial greeting is a plain expression that business is business, and that their "dear friends" are waiting. Most of the president's visitors, therefore, state their errands concisely, and retire quickly without creating further delay.

The president of a certain large institution is known for the cordial welcome he gives to his college, but he has remarkable tact in leading them immediately to the business in hand. As soon as that is concluded, he rises graciously and shakes the caller's hand, assuring him that he regrets not having more time to give to him, and the caller, though really dismissed at the will of the busy man, goes away feeling that he has been handsomely treated, even if he has not been talking to him for over three minutes. The heads of large banks and insurance companies, and the high-salaried trust officers, are men with this faculty well developed. Influential promoters, men of commanding powers, grasp, comprehension and executive ability, are always men of comparatively few words in business and are known for their directness and conciseness. Every word they speak counts; they look upon their time as capital, and will not allow it to be unnecessarily infringed upon.

These prompt, direct, executive men make some enemies, of course, but they accomplish results—they do things. They believe in military discipline in their business, and do not want anything to do with people who do not mean business.

One of the most valuable assets of a business man is the power of compelling those with whom he has transactions to be brief. This is an indication of the successful man. Only those who have learned the value of time can appreciate its importance, and so guard against its being encroached upon by thoughtless or over-talkative people. Perhaps no one in the business world to-day furnishes such a striking example of the power of inducing brevity in others as J. Pierpont Morgan. His enemies accuse him of rudeness in this respect, but it is merely a business principle.—Orison Swett Marden in Success.

TENNIS MATCH

Between Yale Tennis Team and the Yale Faculty. A tennis match of much interest was played on the lawns of the New Haven Lawn club yesterday, the opposing teams representing the Yale Tennis association and the Yale faculty. The Yale Tennis team won four of the contests to their opponents' three. President Hadley played with the faculty team and won two straight sets. Secretary Stokes lost the first set but won the two last in his series.

Mr. Armour went over on the oyster steamer "Mabel Stevens," which has been working near the lighthouse there. Mr. Armour states that his health is much improved, but his wife has not been well this summer.

An informal dinner was given Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Walter stopped Against a Hot Bruise

A child of Mrs. Geo. T. Benson, when getting his usual Saturday night bath, slipped back against a hot stove which burned him severely. The child was in great agony and his mother could do nothing to pacify him. Remembering that she had a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm in the house, she thought she would try it. In less than half an hour after applying it the child was quiet and asleep, and in less than two weeks was well. Mrs. Benson is a well known resident of Keller, Va. Pain Balm is an antiseptic liniment and especially valuable for burns, cuts, bruises and sprains. For sale by all druggists.

The Famous Shoe For Women.

One Shoe Question

and it's a fair one:— Why should you buy "Queen Quality" shoes when there are hundreds of other kinds on sale? In other words, why should you pass by all these others and choose "Queen Quality"? Thousands of women do just this thing; so there must be a reason for it. Now what is it? It is this:—"Queen Quality" gives you what every other shoe offers you and one thing more;—that is—-an accurate FIT. The whole construction of the shoe is different. It is made in a different manner from other shoes and you recognize this when you wear a pair.

It's easy to get your share of this $5,000 in gold that Queen Quality is giving away.

The P & L Gloves at $1 a Pair come to us fresh from the French maker.

Henry Tilton of Whitney avenue in honor of their eighth wedding anniversary. Covers were laid for ten. The table appointments were extensive and the decorations consisted of quantities of yellow chrysanthemums, which were divided among the guests upon their departure as souvenirs of the pleasant occasion.

Dr. Reilly of this city, who has been visiting J. P. Deegan of Cherry street, Naugatuck, has returned.

The Kalmathean club of West Haven met yesterday at the residence of Mrs. S. J. Bryant. Mrs. Clarence B. Davis was chairman. Mrs. Davis' paper was on "Rouen Orleans and Jean Pare". Mrs. H. E. Nettleton read a paper on "Louis XI." and Mrs. D. T. Welch gave "Current Events."

Frederick Frisbie, the well known driver for the Ansoola and New Haven express, was married in Waterbury Wednesday. He has prepared a home on a Clover street, Ansonia, and will at once commence housekeeping on his return.

Rev. Howard Meserve of this city will occupy the pulpit at the Plymouth church, Milford, on Sunday. Services will be held at the usual hours. A number of delegates are soon to be appointed by the church to attend the general conference of churches, which is to be held in New Britain on November 18, 19 and 20.

The Supervising Principals' club of this city held the first of a series of meetings Thursday evening at Zander school kindergarten. The club was organized last fall and is composed of the principals of the public schools of this city. The meeting Thursday evening was a social gathering with a banquet and an address by Rev. George H. Ferris, pastor of Calvary Baptist church. Mr. Ferris spoke of the duties and opportunities of the teachers. The club will hold its next meeting Thursday evening at the office of the board of education.

Brigadier General E. F. Durand, formerly for many years of New Haven and prominent in K. P. circles in Connecticut, was in Waterbury Thursday night and addressed Durand division, K. of P. The general, as the name signifies, was the founder of the division, and will be gladly welcomed by all members. His present home is at Columbus, O., and General Durand tells many interesting facts concerning Ohio. He says that the crops this year, especially that of corn, are almost unprecedented. "I saw recently," said he, "a stalk of corn seventeen feet high, with an ear measuring sixteen inches in length and four inches in diameter. We use many gas furnaces out there, and the poorer classes burn soft coal. I can go into the cellar with a match and piece of paper at any time and kindle the furnace to burn all winter. The gas costs us twenty cents per thousand."

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wadhams and daughter Mildred will move from Washington avenue to Saybrook, the first of next month. Mrs. Wadhams will be greatly missed by her large circle of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Phillips and son Reginald of Center street, West Haven, attended the wedding of Mr. Phillips' brother, W. J. Phillips, to Miss Ethel Pinkington Thursday afternoon in Thompsonville, Conn.

Conductor H. S. Beers has removed from New Haven to Ansonia with his family and expects to be a resident of that city for this winter at least. It was very inconvenient for him to reside here for the finish of his run for the day is in Ansonia, and the commencement of his work is there also.

The West Haven Saturday Afternoon Whist club will meet with Mrs. Charles B. Warner this week at her residence on Washington avenue.

Robert Nolan of Derby was brought to the hospital in this city Thursday morning suffering from a bad ankle. It has been swollen two or three weeks and the lad cannot put his foot to the floor and the trouble has caused a good deal of uneasiness.

A NEW HOTEL.

The hotel at No. 440 State street, for so many years favorably known as the Madison House, and later as the Sel-den House, and which has been closed during the summer undergoing extensive renovation, will be opened Monday as the Hotel Jefferson.

Mr. Chauncey W. Johnson, of Yorkers, N. Y., who has come here to take the management of the hotel, has been in this business the larger part of his life and is well posted as to the needs of the traveling public. While catering for the transient trade, Mr. Johnson will make special efforts to care for the interests of permanent boarders, and assures them a quiet and home-like hotel.

The house under its new management, and with good service and a moderate scale of prices, should attract and hold a good class of custom, both transient and permanent.

HOUSEKEEPING IN DIXIE

EASY GOING WAY WITH SERVANTS.

Many of Them Required and Victims Are Plundered as a Matter of Course.

"The architecture of a country," some one has said, "is a index to the character of the inhabitants;" and so the compact dwellings of northern climates are supposed to denote the thrift of their occupants, while the rambling, deep-galleried houses of the South betray the easy-going, hospitable nature of the southern people.

In a climate where moth and rust corrupt and thieves break through and steal, it is impossible to keep supplies on hand (in spite of the universally locked pantry), and this fact gives rise to the daily pilgrimages to the public markets so dear to the African soul.

"My madam is sure a quality lady," said one sly individual; "her servants stay with her, eternally, and she don't never fuss nor go on, nor show her nose in my kitchen. She don't know no more what goes on in her house than what you does. She ain't no bother at all."

"My!" said her hearer, enviously, "I wish to gracious my madam was like that. I is layin' off to quit next mornin'; I has been studyin' about it ever since she fussed so about some triflin' little tea cakes what was missin'."

"Haughty or humble, according to the station of their employers (by whose names they are known to the market people), they go about aping the manners of their 'madams' and patronizing or reprimanding the people with whom they deal.

"Good morning, Delgado," Mrs. Ritter, the poultry dealer, called one morning to a tall "griffe" who was selling by, dressed in a stuffy starched guinea bite calico and white apron, and followed by a small darkey carrying her market basket.

"Now," replied "Delgado," loftily; "we ain't givin' no big dinner to-day; we is dinin' out, and then we is goin' to the opera."

"They is not giving a big dinner," said Mrs. Ritter, sotto voce, to a bystander. "I seen it in the society notes, but she's mad because I didn't give her lagnappe yesterday."

Lagnappe is the something over and above the amount purchased (a banana or orange, a little bag of cakes, or a handful of pecans) which clinches the bargain, and which every colored person claims as her due.

One is constantly met with the statement that wages in the South are very low; but southern housekeepers would, as a rule, gladly pay more if, by so doing, they could reduce the number of servants employed.

A little girl visiting in the North, said to her mother: "Why is it we never have anything left to eat in our house after the servants have come home at night?"

"But," I asked, "can that child earn enough to support her mother?" "She says the rent with her wages," Sylvie answered, "and she saves food to take home at night."

"Why?" I persisted (being, at that time, densely ignorant), "how can the poor child save her food? She won't have strength to work if she doesn't eat."

"Sylvie shot a sly, laughing look at me before she replied: "She eats; she don't go hungry; she's jest natchally saving."

Some housekeepers were once talking over their perplexities, when one said: "Why are you surprised at my keeping Maidina? Because she steals? Don't you suppose I know she has her chicken or her loaf of cake every time I have mine? Of course I know it, but they all do it, and she's good natured about it."

"How can you make such an assertion," one of the others exclaimed, "when you remember the faithful servants who have stood by their employers through everything, and who never betrayed the hiding-places of the valuables left in their charge?"

"True," agreed the first speaker, "and I love them. Yes, I love Maidina."

This love which undeniably exists between the southern mistress and maid is one of the many inexplicable things of our northern sisters. That a person who is neither strictly truthful, honest, nor moral, should be considered a good servant, seems incredible; that the mistress will sharply reprimand a servant and treat her as she were a naughty child, and that that same servant will return half an hour later, without the slightest irritation, and with perfect confidence in her mistress's wisdom and affection, ask for help or advice, seems strange to those accustomed only to the self-sufficient, detached personalities of northern kitchens.

Recently an old lady who had been reduced to penury after a life of the greatest luxury sold her last treasure (a bridal gift) to send her old colored servant to the infirmary to have an operation performed upon her eyes; and the incident caused no surprise, for all who heard of it and received estimates for the same thing under like circumstances. It is these ties of affection so difficult to define and yet so strong and real, that help to solve the problems of housekeeping in Dixie—Clara Boise Bush in New York Churchman.

Money More Figures in the Way of Many Wanted Presented Last Night. The board of finance held another meeting last evening and received estimates for the year 1903 from the board of education and the board of public works.

Salaries of teachers (day schools) $298,420 Salaries of teachers (night schools) 4,000 Salaries of janitors (day schools) 32,000 Salaries of janitors (night schools) 550 Salaries of officers 7,700 Clerical assistants 4,200 Fuel 5,500 Rent for next year's supply 13,900 Fuel, additional for this year's supply 7,000 Stationery 8,500 Printing 2,000 Janitor's supplies 1,600 Miscellaneous supplies 6,000 Apparatus and library 1,850 Laboratory supplies 1,200 School census 770 Gas 1,200 Telephone service 918 Graduation exercises, high school 350 Express, Carting, Travel, etc. 1,000 Electric current 1,200 Repairs and improvements to buildings, grounds, furniture, blackboards and heating apparatus 15,900

Total $416,033 The present salary list for this school year is $295,635. The increase of $2,785 is necessary for the opening of the Hillhouse grammar school, for one additional kindergarten, for an additional high school teacher, and for four substitute teachers.

The board of education stated that the greatest need is in the Webster district, and recommended that an appropriation of $50,000 be made for the erection of a twelve room school building on the site of the Oak street school. They also asked $15,000 for the repairs in the Hillhouse high school building. In view of the rapidly increasing number of children applying for admission to the schools the board of education recommended an appropriation of $2,500 for the erection of two portable school buildings.

The salaries asked for by the department of public works for the department are the same as last year; for planting new trees, $500 was asked for; for cutting and removal of trees, $18,000; for repair of park, walks, fences, etc., $9,500; for cleaning sewers and drainage, running expenses, etc., $8,500; for repair of sewers, $5,000. There were many other items specified, among which were for repairing crushed stone pavements, $60,000; cleaning streets and parks, $66,000; street sprinkling, $40,000; for maintaining city hall, $9,438, and changes in old council chamber and ante room, $3,000.

"The Little Difference" F.B.Q. Clothing for Men.

New Haven Styles.

Did you know that New Haven exercised a very strong influence upon the styles in men's clothing all over the country?

Did you know that New Haven tailors were considered as among the very best in the United States?

Did you know that New Haven men were famously well-dressed men and particular about their clothes?

Everybody in the clothing business knows these things. The in the clothing field here has been gained by a study of local wants and preferences as well as by the general excellence that makes F. B. Q. clothing as long to wear as it is good to look at.

These suits and overcoats are in styles planned to please New Haven tastes—and those are scrupulous and exacting tastes.

They are sold for little as best things can be sold. Prices begin at Fifteen Dollars.

Here are the Best Values in Black Silks We Have Ever Offered Our New Haven Public.

Ten Thousand Yards of Them--Average Saving One-Quarter.

ALLEY SILK SALES are well known; this is the third we have announced within a month. But we have touched the top note in the scale this time.

They are black silks,—all of them, but they couldn't be anything better or more in demand. There is no question of timeliness—all seasons are alike to black silks.

We get these silks from a jobber who contracted for nearly half a million yards more than he could dispose of at the regular prices. He has been easing off this over-stock by degrees—we have had some of it before. This is the wind-up.

And You Save a Fair, Square 25 Per Cent. on Almost Every Yard.

$1.50 Eyeglasses, 75c

They are not solid gold but they might as well be, for they are gold-filled and guaranteed for a longer time than you can probably keep from breaking the glasses.

They are the identical goods we sell right along at $1.50.

For this cheap price our optician makes an expert examination of the eyes and fits them properly.

If 75c isn't cheap for a new pair of gold-trimmed eyes that will see better than your "born" ones, then there is no such thing as a bargain.

Popular Books, 45c.

In looking over this list you will remember each title in it as that of a book originally published at $1.50, and selling at that figure in all "regular" book-stores, today.

But this is not a "regular" book-store, if irregular prices make otherwise. Any one of these books for 45c.

- Blennerhassett. By Charles F. Pidgin. In the Place of the King. By Marion Crawford. The Eternal City. By Hall Caine. Vanity. By Rita. Hagar of the Pawn Shop. By Fergus Hume. The Sign of the Seven Sins. By George B. McCutcheon. Cupid's Garden. By Mm. LeQueux. The Greatest Gift. By A. W. Marchmont. Bird Portraits. By Ernest Seton Thompson. Stories and Speeches of Abraham Lincoln. Sketches, new and old. By Mark Twain.

The Palm Room.

Ever since we announced that we would sell "Palm Room Coffee" in pound cans for home consumption, we have kept two girls busy filling the cans and pasting labels.

We also sell Suchard's Cocoa at 25c and 50c for quarter-pound and half-pound boxes respectively.

Here's the special menu for Saturday—

- Fresh Lobster Salad, 25c. Chicken Pies, 15c. Baked Apples with Cream, 10c. Fruit Jelly, 5c. French Chocolate Cream, 15c. French Neapolitan, 15c.

Sporting Goods--Saturday

We want men to know that the there are sections of this store equipped and stocked exclusively for their benefit.

The "Men's Store" at the Chapel-Temple St. corner is one of these sections, and the Sporting Goods Store is another.

Don't call it the "Sporting Goods Department." We never do. It is a store by itself, and as complete as money will make it.

Here are some special prices for Saturday—

Foot Ball.

- 35c canvas foot ball jacket, 25c. $2.25 calfskin foot ball shoe, $1.60.

Golf.

- Haskell golf balls, special, 45c. Thistle golf balls, $1.90 a doz.

For the Camera.

- Stanley plates, 4x5, 27c a doz. M.Q. developer, 7 for 25c. Pet Candle Lamp with three candles, 11c. Photo masks, special, 5c set. Hypo, 2 lbs., 5c. Metal pocket tripod stay, 47c. Good focussing cloth, 21c.

A Saturday Gift of a $2 Bill

On Saturday only, you may select any trimmed hat in the Millinery Show Room, the price of which is $5 or more, and hold back $2 when you pay for it.

This covers every hat in the department which is priced at $5 or above on Friday night. The tickets will not be changed—just subtract $2 from the marked price.

The choice is given from the finest line of trimmed hats that women of taste and appreciation have ever passed good judgment upon. No reservations whatever—the $25 and $30 Paris Hats (now marked $15) are included in it.

But it is for Saturday only. Don't ask on Monday.

Silk Petticoats Cheapened One-Third.

Odds and ends, to be sure, and in only a few cases more than one of a kind. But what do you care for that? You can't wear but one at a time.

Don't get the idea that these are imperfect or bad colors or mussed up. Some of them do show a little creasing, but not enough to speak about, and the colors are all right—chiefly black, in fact.

They are cheapened to close out and get new goods in their places. A perfect "snap" for the first women who come in.

$5 Silk Petticoats, $3.99 Each.

Of good quality taffeta, mostly black but a few good colors too; made with deep two-section umbrella flounce, cut circular shape, in all lengths. Good $5 values. At $3.99.

$6.50 Silk Petticoats, $4.50 Each.

In black only; a very good grade of taffeta, deep Spanish flounce, finished with wide side plaiting, edged with pretty pinked ruching. A $6 style for $4.50.

$6.50 Silk Petticoats, $5 Each.

Of very nice quality taffeta, in all the good, plain colors or two-toned effects, with deep accordion plaitings, circular flounces or two wide corded ruffles. Worth at the lowest $6.50 each. At $5.

$8.50 to $10.50 Silk Petticoats, $7.50 Ea.

Several very pretty styles in accordion plaiting or ruffled skirts, finished with tucking, straps or ruchings in best shades of green, red; two-tone combinations and black. Worth from $8.50 to $10.00 each. Choice at $7.50.

Sateen skirts from 69c to $4.75 each.

Mohair skirts from $3 to $5 each.

Moreen skirts from $3 to $5.50 each.

Right Gloves for Men and Women.

There's as much difference in gloves as there is in clothing. Some never seem to fit. They get flabby and shapeless and shabby in a single day. Others always seem neat, snugly-fitting, trim and clean.

You have noticed both kinds. It isn't altogether the price that makes the difference. A $2. glove won't necessarily fit you twice as well as a dollar pair. It's the character of the skin, the care in cutting and the care in fitting that count.

To get these, you must go where these features are given the greatest attention. To find them at their best you must examine

The Monogram Glove for men and women at $1

LaFontaine Glove for women at $1.25

The Regent Glove for men at $1.25

LaChevrette Glove for Women at $1.50

The entire line of Jouvin Gloves for Women at $1.75

The entire lines of Dents and Fownes Gloves for

We will sell boys' $1 sweaters for 75c

We will sell extra heavy Shaker Sweaters, $5 ones at $4.00

We will sell Men's all pure worsted cardigan jackets, worth $2.75, at $2.00

We will sell men's $2 cardigan jackets at $1.50

$2.00 Sateen Petticoats $1.45.

These are the fastest-selling styles we have in stock; their price is a lucky accident. They are our regular $2 goods, and you have never seen them sold for less. Black and colored, in heavy grade mercerized material with circular flounce, hemstitched ruffles and deep plaitings. Also an extra size skirt at this price, $1.45.

Last of the Men's Shoes Bargains

One is a $4 line in enamel and patent leather; hand-sewed welts. Handsome shoes and an honest $4 worth for $2.75

Another is a first-class $3.50 shoe, choice of several styles in calfskin and oak leather soles, hand-sewed welts. You may have these at $2.60

Another is our former $3 line in calfskin and box calf, Goodyear welt; double soles for winter wear. Some sizes missing in these so the whole lot goes at $1.90 pr.

NEWS FROM THE CHURCHES

FEATURES OF THE RELIGIOUS SERVICES TO-MORROW.

Rev. Dr. Hawes of Hartford at Grand Avenue Congregational Church—Rev. Dr. J. E. Adams at First M. E. Church—Sermon at Trinity M. E. Church at Dwight Place and Other Notes.

The Rev. Edward Hawes, D. D., of Hartford will preach in the Grand Avenue Congregational church on Sunday morning at 10:30. The Bible school with the adult Bible class at 12 o'clock. In the evening at 7:30 the Rev. Andrew Burns Chalmers, the pastor, will preach on "Christ and the Social Life of Man."

AT TRINITY M. E. CHURCH. The pastor, the Rev. H. Frank Rail, Ph. D., will preach both morning and evening. The morning theme will be "The Divine Perspective." The subject in the evening will be "Amos," being one of a special series of sermons on "The Prophets of Israel." Friends are cordially invited to these services.

REV. J. E. ADAMS AT FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

The New Haven friends of the Rev. J. E. Adams, D. D., formerly presiding elder of this district, but now pastor of the Grace M. E. church of Brooklyn, N. Y., will have an opportunity of listening to his eloquence next Sunday, when he will preach at the First M. E. church, both morning and evening. While presiding elder here Dr. Adams made his headquarters in New Haven, and his family were members of the Epworth M. E. church. As a preacher Dr. Adams has few equals in modern Methodism and New Haven is indeed favored by having another opportunity of hearing him.

AT ZION LUTHERAN CHURCH. The services to-morrow at the Zion German Lutheran church, corner Ward street and Davenport avenue, will be held at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The pastor, Rev. Frederick A. Ottmann, will preach at both services. The choir will sing and Organist Dressler will preside. Seats are free. Everybody welcome, especially Germans.

AT 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon the Scholastic League will hold its quarterly meeting in the church parlors. Every member is requested to be present as business of importance will be transacted.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST.

Subject—"Mortals and Immortals." Golden text: "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit; neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them." Matthew 7, 18, 20.

Wednesday evening testimonial meeting at 8 o'clock. Cordial welcome to all.

AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

The fall Sabbath show the constant increase in the attendance at the Grace Methodist Episcopal church. Sunday, November 9, Rev. Arthur J. Smith will preach in the morning from "The Wrestlers; the Heaven Man and the Earth Man," and in the evening from "A Mother's Sacred Box." All seats are free and everybody is welcome.

AT EAST PEARL STREET CHURCH.

At the East Pearl street Methodist Episcopal church the pastor, Rev. L. R. Streeter, D. D., will preach to-morrow at both services. Topic for the morning, "Lining Up." Evening topic, "Our Thinking Machine and What It Does for Us."

ADULT CLASS AT CHURCH REDEEMER.

A fine attendance last Sunday at the adult class in the lecture room of the Church of the Redeemer directly after the morning service to hear Rev. Dr. McLane of Plymouth church. At the session to-morrow Joseph R. French has been selected to speak as leader. Both ladies and men are cordially invited to attend. Mr. French will make it interesting as he has on several previous occasions.

AT CALVARY BAPTIST CHURCH.

Rev. George H. Ferris will speak on an interesting topic to-morrow evening and no doubt to a large audience. Rev. Mr. Ferris has a way of deeply interesting his audience, which is being more and more appreciated in the increasing attendance at these Sunday evening services. Seats are all free, and the public is cordially invited to come and fill them. Polite ushers are always in attendance to wait on all strangers.

Y. M. C. A. MEN'S MASS MEETING.

A great mass meeting for men will be held at Foy auditorium on Sunday afternoon, at which time Dean Alfred A. Wright of Boston will deliver an address on the subject of "Simon Peter." Mr. Wright is becoming very well known throughout New England states, especially in associations where he has been doing some splendid work for the past two years. His lecture, "How Wide is an Inch?" is one in which gems of thought are crystallized into beautiful ornaments of expression and made attractive by a great deal of common sense. The speakers for the Sunday afternoon meetings will include some of our prominent men and the outlook for the winter is exceedingly bright. Dean Wright will speak to the Boys' Moral Muscle league and their friends at 3 o'clock in the small hall.

CHURCH OF THE MESSIAH.

At the Church of the Messiah (First Universalist) the pastor, Rev. W. F. Dickerson, will preach to-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock. Subject: "The House Not Made With Hands." Sunday school and conversation circle at noon.

MUSIC AT DWIGHT PLACE CHURCH.

M. Nicolai Sokoloff, the talented young Russian violinist, who is a pupil in the Yale music school under Professor Troostyev, will assist the Dwight Place church choir on Sunday in their evening of song. Mr. Sokoloff will play an obligato to Bach's "Ave Maria," sung by Mrs. Spler. Mr. Sokoloff is playing a great deal at private musicales given by society people and has a large following the best musical people in town. His appearance at Dwight Place church will undoubtedly bring out a large number of his many admirers. Seymour Spier, who has charge of the music at Dwight Place church, is ever on the alert to please the musicians by his choice selections and innovations in church music. His choice of Mr. Sokoloff is a very wise one and demonstrates his careful scrutiny in musical matters.

AT PLYMOUTH CHURCH.

There will be morning service with sermon by Dr. McLane, with a plea for the American Board of Foreign Missions. The topic for the evening sermon, "A Great and Gracious Reception." Bible school at noon. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6:30.

ESTATE IS DISTRIBUTED.

Mrs. Umberfield Gets House on West Chapel Street. In the town clerk's office yesterday there was recorded a distribution of a portion of the estate left by the late Dennis Umberfield, the former Chapel street merchant. Under the distribution Mrs. Umberfield acquires possession of the home on West Chapel street, opposite Duncan hall. The property is worth $15,000.

CONNECTICUT B. B. LEAGUE

ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT THE GARDE YESTERDAY.

Reisling's Expulsion Sustained—Officers Elected for the ensuing Year—List of Those Present—Hofyoke's Application Rejected.

The Connecticut Baseball league held a meeting at the Hotel Garde last evening. All of the eight clubs were represented by the managers. One application for membership in the league was received. This was made by Holyoke, Mass., and was made by Thomas Howard, the old Boston American league player. The application was rejected after some discussion on the ground that there were no vacancies and that no changes would be made.

The case of Manager Reisling, of the Hartford club, was taken up. He had previously been expelled from the Capital City club and also fined $250 for his activity in signing some of the best players in the Connecticut league for the Toledo club, which he is to manage next year. The managers decided yesterday to take no action relative to the fine, as it did not come within the jurisdiction of the league, it being absolutely a matter for settlement by the club itself. Reisling's expulsion, however, was sustained, the league deciding that his action in turning over players to an outside team was treason to the league.

The pennant was awarded to New Haven. Treasurer's O'Rourke's annual report showed a balance of $50 in the treasury.

The annual election of officers resulted as follows: President—Sturgis Whitlock, of Derby. Vice president—C. J. Danaher, of Meriden. Secretary and treasurer—James H. O'Rourke, of Bridgeport.

It was voted to hold the annual meetings of the league hereafter at the Hotel Garde in this city. The following were those present: J. E. Canavan, New Haven; James H. O'Rourke, Bridgeport; C. J. Danaher, Meriden; Roger Connor, Springfield, P. Shea, New London; J. Tiche, Norwich; George Harrington, Waterbury; Manager Witte, Hartford.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

"ARE YOU A MASON?" TO-NIGHT.

Rich & Harris' comedians, headed by those comic players, John C. Rice and Thomas A. Wise, will present that laughing success "Are You a Mason?" at the Hyperion this evening for one performance. The fun in "Are You a Mason?" arises from the schemes of a young husband and an old one, his father-in-law, who are of sporty tendencies, to deceive their jealous wives by telling them that they have become Masons, and are almost slightly required to be absent at the "lodge." Each husband has concocted this adroit scheme independently of the other, and when the two pseudo-Masons are confronted, each is desperately afraid of the other, who he supposes is a bona fide member of the fraternity. They do quantities of lying to get themselves out of tight places, send a gentleman farmer who wishes to be initiated to do all sorts of impossible feats in the streets of New York and indulge in sundry other "stunts," which are sufficiently comical to bring smiles to the face of a statue.

Miss Alice Fischer, who comes to the Hyperion next Monday night under the management of Henry B. Harris, direct from her run of 100 nights in New York divided between Wallace's and Victoria theater—offers in "Mrs. Jack" the farcical comedy by Grace Livingston Furness, the study of an unconventional western woman, who is witty, well dressed, nobody's fool and disposed to spend her money. Miss Fischer aptly sustains the burden of the play, imparting to its performance so great an amount of good humor and exuberant animal spirits that her capital supporting company become infused with her infectious spontaneity and together they are the source of unflagging fun.

For the picturesque enframement of Augustus Thomas' "Arizona" to be presented at the Hyperion on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, November 11 and 12, the artists have painted a series of scenes which, they own to have been copied from nature and man's handiwork as it exists in the Aravaipa valley, in the picturesque southwestern territory. The red tiled adobe buildings of Canby's ranch, the heavily beamed and embossed living rooms of the colonel's quarters at Fort Grant, have been reproduced truthfully on canvas and color by the clever artists who went especially to Arizona to make their color sketches. For the decorations, uniforms and groupings, Thomas is happy to thank Frederick Remington, the incomparable black and white delineator of far western scenes and people.

Grand Opera House.

"The King of Detectives" has found favor with the patrons of the Grand, judging by the large audiences that have witnessed it. The performance will be repeated to-day, matinee and night.

The one big melo-dramatic success of the season "A Ruined Life" is booked to appear at the Grand opera house Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week and at the Wednesday matinee. "A Ruined Life" is said to possess enough stirring sensations for a dozen plays of its class—the comedy is brisk and humorous—the action of the play is rapid, the lines terse and telling, the climaxes natural yet pulse-quickening and altogether it possesses every element for a great popular success. Scenically the play is superb, its mounting being complete in every detail. The stage pictures disclose a gypsy camp on the English coast; the racing track and paddock at Bournemouth, England; a millionaire's palace on Fifth avenue, New York city, and a view of Bournemouth-by-the-Sea during the resort season. The company is one of individual excellence, being headed by Miss Elsie Crescy, a talented and beautiful leading woman for whom prominent critics have predicted a brilliant future.

There are two comedy parts in the new and successful melodrama by Theodore Kremer, "Beyond Pardon," that for clean cut humor with a touch of satire that is at times incisive, have rarely been improved, and still less rarely excelled on the American stage. The character of the actress is such a superb acting part that Manager Fred Ross had a host of applicants from leading women of the stage to play it, but after much consideration of the subject he selected Miss Lavinia Shannon for it, and the critics of the country have agreed that there is not a woman on the stage to-day that could play it more successfully. "Beyond Pardon" will be at the Grand opera house Thursday, Friday and Saturday, November 13, 14 and 15. There will be a matinee Saturday.

Polit's Wonderful Theater. To-night closes the engagement of Leon Morris and his ponies and the great bill that has been surrounding this feature all week.

COMING NEXT WEEK.

With a great feature and a supporting bill of all stars Manager Poli has another great bill for his theater next week. The feature will be those famous four Eads in one of the greatest and most wonderful acrobatic and balancing acts seen on any stage. They have a routine of feats in this line that is said to make you hold your breath while they are performing. All new stunts are promised. The Simons, Gardner and company will have a sketch from Will M. Cressey entitled "The New Coachman," that ought to prove a good attraction. "Cressey has a good way of bringing out the comical and amusing situations. Van Sellen and West in a good musical turn are coming, and also The Horse-shoe trio in a fun-making and laugh producing act entitled "His Colors Saved Him." Clifford and Haven in "Peck and the Bad Boy" are two dainty ladies. Carleton and Terre, opera comedians, in "Fly and Flip;" Murphy and Slater have a real good coon act they are going to present. The talented Sully family are also to be in the bill and will introduce two junior members of the group. The vitagraph will have new and wonderful views.

PIANO AND SONG RECITAL.

A most delightful evening of music was enjoyed at the recital given by Miss Augusta Cottlow, pianiste, and Miss Elizabeth Gaffney, soprano, in Calvary Baptist church last evening.

Miss Cottlow has been here before in private musicales, but last night made her first public debut, while Miss Gaffney is an old favorite in her native town.

Miss Cottlow's programme was a well chosen one, which showed the pianiste's ability as a concert artist. Her best numbers were the Bach fugue and Liszt's polonaise in C major. She has stunning technique, combined with authority and a sound sense of rhythm. Her tone is always ample and brilliant, but lacks the sensuous charm and in the Chopin number the poetical feeling was lost sight of. But Miss Cottlow is a pianiste of the first rank and has accomplished a great deal for one so young. She has a splendid future before her and will gain elements in her playing which maturity can only bring forth. We hope to hear this charming pianiste again in New Haven. Miss Gaffney is always so delightful to her audience and she is such a favorite here that eulogy is unnecessary. All of her numbers were given with her same accustomed grace and charm. Her intonation is absolutely pure and technique facile. It would be hard to discriminate which of her numbers was the best, as all were so delightfully rendered. Both Miss Gaffney and Miss Cottlow kindly responded to hearty cheers which were keenly appreciated by the audience.

C. F. Pierce, organist of Calvary Baptist church, was the accompanist. The ladies of the church are to be congratulated for arranging such a rare musical treat and we hope for another.

Following is the complete programme: Prelude in Fugue for organ by Bach (Arranged for piano by Busoni). Mirel vilette Amichi—Vespre Siciliano. Valse, C sharp minor. Nocturne F sharp major—Chopin. Scherzo C sharp minor. a. Ye Banks and Braes—McDowell b. The Lark—F. W. Parker c. Etude D flat major. d. Polonaise, E major—Liszt. Told My Nymph (1629)—Graef. Etude, G minor—Zaremski. Marche Militaire (by request)—Schubert-Tausig.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At Meeting of Marketmen Held in This City.

At the meeting here Thursday of the marketmen of Meriden, Hartford, New Haven, Middletown and Stamford interested in the Connecticut Fat Rendering and Fertilizing company, of New Haven, the following officers were elected: President—L. C. Pfaff, of New Haven. Vice president—Adam Sattig, of New Haven. Secretary and treasurer—W. J. Tolhurst, of Hartford.

Directors—William J. O'Keefe, of New Haven, Conrad Weiss, of New Haven, Mr. Royce, of Stamford, L. C. Pfaff, of New Haven, Adam Sattig, of New Haven, W. J. Tolhurst, of Hartford, and George B. Crowell, of Meriden.

FOOTBALL NEWS OF INTEREST

YALE WILL LINE UP AGAINST BUCKNELL TO-DAY.

Game Will Begin at 3 o'clock on Yale Field—Great Mass Meeting Last Night—Freshmen Off for Princeton—Other Games To-day.

The Yale football team will line up against Bucknell on Yale field this afternoon for the last home game prior to the great battle with Harvard two weeks from to-day. The contest this afternoon will begin promptly at three o'clock and it gives promise of being a royal struggle. Bucknell has a heavy team and a strong line. Their backs are fast and the ends are reported as among the best to be found among the average college teams.

Yale will probably put in its strongest team at the outset and no chances will be taken. The Yale coaches have been devoting their time and attention during the past week to the development of aggressiveness, and this spirit will be demonstrated to-day. There will be no repetition of the West Point game. Yale will go in to win and some good, fast football should result in the first half of the contest. Should Yale obtain a fair lead the last half of the game will be used for the purpose of giving the Yale substitutes a chance.

Late last night it was announced that several very radical changes would be made in the line-up for to-day's game. Metcalf, who has been playing quarter all season, will be found at half and Rockwell will play quarter-back. Metcalf will thus replace Ward, whose work for the past week or so has been quite unsatisfactory. Wilhelm has been relegated to the second eleven and Rafferty will start the game at left end. Kinney, the big Andover freshman, will also be out of the game by reason of a bad knee and Hamlin, substitute tackle, will play left tackle. The entire line-up will then be: Holt, center; Goss, right guard; Hogan, right tackle; Shevlin, right end; Glass, left guard; Hamlin, left tackle; Rafferty, left end; Rockwell, quarter-back; Captain Chadwick, left half; Metcalf, right half; Farmer, full-back.

GREAT MASS MEETING.

A very enthusiastic mass meeting of Yale undergraduates was held last evening in Alumni hall. President Fox, of the Football association, Albert Lamb, of the Yale News, and others occupied the platform. The Yale Glee club was present and after speeches by several of the leaders of the meeting the entire assemblage started the rehearsal of the songs which will be sung on the day of the Yale and Harvard game. The songs will also be rendered at the Princeton game in Princeton next Saturday.

FRESHMEN OFF.

The Yale freshmen eleven left this city yesterday afternoon for Princeton, where they will play the Princeton 1906 team to-day. The Yale team is not as strong as the team of a year ago, but the coaches expect the Yale 1906 men to defeat the Tiger cubs.

HARVARD VS. U. OF P.

Cambridge, Nov. 7.—The Harvard team expects a hard game with the U. of P. eleven to-morrow afternoon. The Crimson will line up almost to a man as it is expected that they will meet Yale. Every man will be in his place and the team will start the game with the determination to run up a safe score in the early part of the game, then to rest on their oars. Kernan, Graydon, Marshall, King, Bowditch and other big men on the Harvard team will start in the game. Only light work was indulged in this afternoon. Both the Harvard and U. of P. teams held short secret practices.

COLUMBIA VS. BROWN.

New York, Nov. 7.—The Brown team arrived in this city this noon. In the afternoon the team held a short practice on Columbia's gridiron. Columbia did a small amount of light work. The game to-morrow afternoon will probably be attended by thousands. The Brown supporters are betting heavily on their team, and the Columbia enthusiasts are taking all the money in sight. The bets are nearly all at even money. This is due to the fact that Brown will play its regular team, while Columbia's line and backs will be a trifle out of the regular order.

QUIET AT PRINCETON.

Princeton, Nov. 7.—The Tigers held their regular drill this afternoon. The men were worked hard and the line-plunging board was again called into use. The men plunged against the device with a will and the coaches and trainers were well satisfied with the work and the results. Princeton will hold a brief practice to-morrow. The varsity squad will attend the Yale-Princeton freshman game to-morrow in a body.

OTHER GAMES TO-DAY.

West Point vs. Union at West Point. Lafayette vs. Annapolis at Annapolis, Syracuse vs. Hobart. Lehigh vs. University of Virginia at Washington. Carlisle Indians vs. Susquehanna at Carlisle. Amherst vs. Williams at Amherst. Wesleyan vs. University of Vermont at Middletown. Cornell vs. Washington and Jefferson at Ithaca. Haverford vs. Dickinson at Carlisle.

CROTTY DOING WELL.

The Man in the Hospital With Broken Back. Crotty, the man who was taken to the New Haven hospital some time ago with a broken back, and whose case has been attracting much attention from the medical men, still continues to improve and was reported last night as doing very well.

OBITUARY NOTES.

John K. Grandy.

The funeral of the late John K. Grandy was held yesterday afternoon in the Evergreen cemetery chapel. The services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Mossman, pastor of the City Mission. A number of sorrowing friends were in attendance and the remains were buried in Evergreen.

Mr. Grandy was a resident of New Haven nearly all his life and had for some time past been employed by H. B. Ives & Co. He was a widower and leaves one son, resident of this city, three sisters, Mrs. Captain Luther E. Jerome, Mrs. Lowell, a widow, and Mrs. Morse, and one brother, Mr. Grandy's father, who died years ago, was for many years an engineer on the old Hartford division of the Consolidated in the early history of the road. The pallbearers at the funeral yesterday were shopmates of the deceased and from the shop was contributed a beautiful pillow on which was inscribed "Shopmate."

THOMAS CONNOR.

The funeral of Thomas F. Connor was held from his late residence at No. 37 Adelphi street at half-past eight o'clock yesterday morning, and from a requiem high mass at the Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Dunningan and the interment was in the St. Bernard's cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. John Kelly, James Barrett, T. Welch, James Brennan, John Allard and M. Bramack.

MARY E. SCHIPPER.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Mary E. Schipper will be held Sunday afternoon. These services will be held at 1:30 o'clock at No. 19 Welton street, the home of the bereaved family.

PATRICK LYNCH.

Patrick Lynch, aged about forty years, died at his late home, 46 Franklin street, yesterday. He had been ill for only about a week with typhoid fever. Deceased leaves a wife and seven small children. The funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon at the house at 1:30 and at St. Patrick's church at 2. The interment will be in St. Lawrence cemetery.

JAMES HENDERSON.

James Henderson, one of the best known of the older Scottish residents of the city, died Thursday evening at the New Haven hospital from gastric troubles. He was engaged for many years in the coal and wood business. Deceased was born in Murrayshire, Scotland, sixty-four years ago, and leaves a widow. His funeral will take place Sunday afternoon from his late residence, 115 Commerce street.

THE DOWNES FUNERAL.

The funeral of Charles J. Downes, who died at the hospital on Wednesday, will be held in Torrington to-day. The remains will be conveyed from this city this morning.

HARPIN H. HOTCHKISS.

Harpin H. Hotchkiss of Bethany, aged seventy-four years and eight months, died at the residence of his daughters, Mrs. Herbert and Mrs. George Doolittle, 85 Broadway, this city, yesterday. Mr. Hotchkiss was a native of Bethany, this state, and was one of that town's best known citizens. He remained actively engaged in business, that of blacksmithing, until a few months ago, and although quite aged was always sprightly and active. He was respected and esteemed by all and his many friends will be greatly pained to learn of his death. He had been ill for some time. Beside the daughters above mentioned Mr. Hotchkiss leaves one son, who conducts the business in Bethany carried on for so many years by his father. Arrangements for the funeral are not completed.

BICYCLE RECOVERED.

And the Thief Arrested in Comparatively Short Time.

A bicycle thief was arrested on Congress avenue yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Gallagher of the Howard avenue station. The fellow gave his name as Antonio Frank. The bicycle belonged to Michael Setar, who is employed in Duncan hall. The wheel was stolen from in front of the hall on Wednesday. The police have been on the lookout for the stolen property with the result that the machine has been recovered and the thief arrested.

THE CITY MISSION HOUSE.

The usual Sunday services will be held to-morrow at the City Mission house, No. 291 Orange street, in the forenoon at 9 o'clock, 10:30, 11 and 12 o'clock; in the afternoon at 3 o'clock and 5 o'clock; in the evening at 8:30, 7:30, 7:45 and 8:45. At the evening service at half-past seven o'clock Rev. Mr. Mossman, the missionary pastor, will be assisted by members of the Mission Rescue band, a company of Christian workmen who conduct the Saturday evening meeting each week at the mission house and serve from 7 to 8 o'clock a hot coffee lunch, free to all, previous to their gospel temperance meeting.

SERIOUSLY ILL AT HARTFORD.

Mother of Mrs. James Mustarde, of This City. The many friends in this city of Mrs. Charles Henderson, of Hartford, mother of Mrs. James Mustarde, of 94 Crown street, this city, will be pained to learn of her critical illness at the home of her youngest son, Charles Henderson, instructor at the Central Golf club. Mrs. Henderson, who is seventy-nine years old, has spent a couple of months regularly for a number of years past visiting in New Haven, and only returned home a couple of weeks ago from her annual visit. Her friends hope that in spite of advancing years, she may recover.

JUSTLY POPULAR.

Parlor Car Facilities on Sunday Trains. The parlor car facilities provided between New Haven and New York on Sundays, leaving New Haven at 8:55 a. m. and New York at 8 p. m., are justly popular. Space will be held on application at Union station ticket office. Seat rate 50 cents.

Mr. Fowler's Condition Very Hopeful. Young Ladies' League Entertained. —Strong School Annual—Other Notes.

Dr. E. Otis Hovey lectured before the Yale faculty yesterday at North Sheffield hall on "Martinique." Dr. Hovey was sent by the Natural History Museum of New York to Martinique on the steamer Dixie, and he has recently returned. Dr. Hovey is assistant curator of the Natural History Museum of New York city and a Yale man of the class of '84. He is a former New Havener and his large circle of friends take pride in his marked success. He is a son of Rev. Dr. Hovey, a former pastor of the Second Congregational church (now Pilgrim church), Fair Haven.

Rev. Edward Hawes, D. D., of Hartford, will occupy the pulpit of the Grand Avenue Congregational church to-morrow morning. At the Grand Avenue Baptist church to-morrow the pastor, Rev. E. W. Stone, will preach in the morning on "Fruits Meet for Repentance," and in the evening his subject will be "Job's Words in the Judgment."

The condition of Leon Fowler, of East Haven, who was accidentally shot on Tuesday, was about the same yesterday. His condition is still regarded as serious, but yesterday very hopeful signs were manifest. Mrs. Ernest Potter, of Quinnipiac avenue, has been visiting at her former home in North Guilford. Frostfish are beginning to run, and quite a number are being caught by hook-and-line fishermen around the wharves. Mr. and Mrs. Miles P. Tuttle, of Front street, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. W. F. Wright, of Newark, N. J.

The house and lot on Aver street formerly belonging to Victor A. Wright has been sold to George R. Clark for about $4,000.

The Young Ladies' league of the Grand Avenue Congregational church gave a fine entertainment in the church parlors on Thursday evening. It was a chrysanthemum sale and there was also a sale of home-made candy, cut flowers and ice cream. An orchestra led by Mrs. Simpson furnished the music. The parlors were decorated with orange crepe paper, festooned from the chandeliers to the tables, with a fine arrangement of ferns and fancy lamps. Bittersweet and other plants were used liberally in making up the fine effect. Among the young ladies who took part in the sale were the Misses Emma Parker, Inez Brockway, Hattie Denison, Lizzie Soderberg, Inez Denison, Mattie Adams, Etta Sparks, Grace Lowe, Lena Glewling, Miss Finch and Mrs. Amy Dunning. The proceeds are to go for church improvements.

The Alumni association of the Strong school is arranging for a dance to be given in a few days. The proceeds are to go into the treasury to be used in various ways for the interest of the school.

THE NEW PUBLICATIONS. SOME OF THE LATEST BOOKS OF THE SEASON.

American Masters of Painting, by C. H. Caffin—Patience, or Bunthorne's Bride, by W. S. Gilbert—Cap'n Titus, by Clay Emery—Borrowed Plumes, by Owen Seaman—Cannells of Crosses, by Mary Knight—Among the Great Masters of Warfare, by Walter Revlund—The Hardy Gurdy, by Laura E. Richards—Other Books.

"American Masters of Painting" is an admirable work by Charles H. Caffin, the accomplished art critic of the New York Sun, and published by Doubleday, Page & Co., New York. Thirteen American painters, all contemporary men but one, are considered in this beautifully printed and illustrated volume of appreciative sketches and estimates. Mr. Caffin has the great advantage of speaking from a personal knowledge and intimacy—in most cases—of the artists of whom his work treats. Mr. Caffin's volume is most satisfactory. It is both critical and illuminating and a gratifying contribution regarding American art and artists.

Notwithstanding the frequent lament that America has no art centers of the old world, there is much cause for satisfaction in this growing list of American artists, whose works will live and whose names will be honored by posterity. This illustrated edition has thirty-two reproductions of the best examples of American painting, showing what American art has achieved. Among the illustrations are Inness' "Berkshire Hills," "Sunshine and Clouds" and "Midsummer," "Athens" by La Farge, "Carmenita" by Sargent, "The Balcony" and "The Music Room" by Whistler, "Portrait of Mr. Maugaud" by Sargent, "The Lookout—All's Well," "The Maine Coast," "The West Wind" by Homer, "The Penance of Eleanor, Duchess of Gloucester," by Abbey, "Westchester Hills" and "The Old Church in Normandy," by Martin, "The Mohawk Valley" and "The Connecticut Valley" by Wyant, "Early Spring, New England," by Tryon, etc.

"Of American Masters of Painting," the New York Mail and Express of November 1st says: "In giving to Mr. Caffin's brief essays this new garb, and in providing the volume with thirty-two excellent illustrations, the publishers have done American art a real service. To talk or write about pictures without concrete examples at hand is to deny the text at least half its effectiveness." "Mr. Caffin aims, in a word, at serious analysis of the strength and littleness of the men he takes up, and if there are occasional generalities that contain disproportionately small ideas, the essays as a whole are sound, careful, interesting and wholly sincere."

"Patience or Bunthorne's Bride," by W. S. Gilbert, is published by Doubleday, Page & Co., New York; price net $1.00, with a special limited edition of one hundred and fifty, price $2.50 net; for sale by the Pease-Lewis Co. This is a neat attractive little volume, presenting the libretto of Gilbert & Sullivan's famous "Patience" opera, and is a new and revised edition. "Patience" was generally accepted as the keenest and brightest of Mr. Gilbert's dramatic satires. The new edition has additional and permanent literary interest moreover because of a prefatory "Author's Note" explaining the genesis of the play.

"Patience," it seems, was conceived as a satire, not upon the aesthetic craze, but upon that type of Anglo-American clergyman already exploited by Thackeray in his Charles Honeyman, and by Gilbert himself in his "Bab Ballad" of "The Rival Curates." In the original draft of the manuscript Reginald Bunthorne and Archibald Grosvenor were two clergymen belonging to adjoining parishes, as in the ballad, and the Rev. Mr. Bunthorne was attended by a team of enthusiastic lady worshippers, who had been fascinated by his dabbled meekness of his demeanor. Discovering, however, that Mr. Grosvenor was even meeker than Mr. Bunthorne, this body of devotees, with the single exception of Lady Jane transferred their affections to Mr. Grosvenor. Thereupon the wrathful Mr. Bunthorne commissioned Lady Jane to inform Mr. Grosvenor, in the fiercest and most uncompromising terms, that unless he abandoned at once his blameless attitude and became a reckless and unconventional renegade, holding the broadest possible views of his dabbled meekness, the consequences to him would be of the most painful and humiliating description. Lady Jane faithfully and successfully discharged this mission, entrusted in the ballad to the sexton and the beadle, and Mr. Grosvenor, who had no real sympathy with an attitude forced upon him solely by an overwhelming sense of duty, acceded joyfully to Bunthorne's requirements, satisfying his conscience with the excuse that his wholesale violation of clerical proprieties was the effect of an irresistible force majeure. A body of dragoons meanwhile endeavored in vain to divert the attention of the ladies from the fascinating curates, until they at last determined to take orders, when they carried everything before them. But when Mr. Gilbert had gone thus far a difficulty presented itself to his mind. Perhaps he remembered the clerical outburst which had been provoked by Dickens' Stiggins and Thackeray's Honeyman. "At all events, I became uneasy," he says, "at the thought of the danger I was incurring by dealing so freely with members of the clerical order, and I felt myself crippled at every turn by the necessity of protecting myself from a charge of irreverence."

Evidently Mr. Gilbert lacked the true crusading spirit! "So I cast about," he continues, "for a sort of personages who should fit more or less neatly into the plot as already devised, and who should allow me a free hand in making them amusing to my audiences. At that time the so-called 'aesthetic craze' was just becoming popular, mainly owing to the late Mr. Du Maurier's admirable pictorial satires in Punch. As I lay awake one night, worrying over the difficulties that had prepared for myself, the idea suddenly flashed upon me that if I made Bunthorne and Grosvenor a couple of yearning 'aesthetes' and the young ladies their ardent admirers, all anxieties as to the consequences of making them extremely ridiculous would be at once overcome. Elated at the idea, I ran down at once to my library, and in an hour or so I had entirely rearranged the piece."

The text of Patience had never been available in a convenient and attractive form and the publishers reserve special praise for this attractive little work of permanent value.

In the preface of "How to Make Rugs" a new and timely book by Candace Wheeler, author of "Principles of Home Decoration," etc., published by Doubleday, Page & Co., there is sufficient reason given why the making of rugs should become an exceedingly useful home industry in our country. The author notes the fact that a big portion of the imports to this country are articles of domestic origin and nearly all coming under the head of artistic products are the result of domestic industry. The beauty and simplicity of many of these things is surprising, yet neither unusual talent or careful training is involved in their production. In this list are the lace of all countries, the making of which is as common a process as knitting. Embroideries in all countries but our own are common and profitable home productions; and in hand weavings the variety is great. In America we have no articles of use or luxury made in our homes which are objects of commercial interchange or sources of family profit. About the only souvenirs of the country a foreigner can get to take home are Indian curiosities and the one admirable and well established product of Indian manufacture—the Navajo blanket. The prosperity of our country explains why products of the household are so few. We buy abroad the laces, rugs, etc. But as the population increases and leisure time hangs heavily on the hands of our well-to-do women there comes a call for occupation either for art's sake or as a source of income. The author shows that a new departure has begun and that housewives are making or can easily learn to make smooth, velvety, thick piled rugs that cannot be distinguished from the Oriental rugs of the same pattern. The author points out that this subject of our domestic industries is one which should naturally fall within the scope and objects of women's clubs. Much information on this point is given and then follow eight chapters, giving complete instructions as to rug weaving and dyeing, patterns and how to make ingrain carpet rugs, woven rugs, portieres, woolen rugs, cotton rugs, linsey woolsey, etc.; and in closing some advice and suggestion as to neighborhood industries is given. There are eleven excellent illustrations showing examples of the work, either complete or in its different notable stages. Price of book $1.00; copies at the Pease-Lewis Co's.

"The Book of Weddings," by Mrs. Burton Kingland, 244 pages, handsomely printed and bound, cannot fail to interest and instruct any and all on the verge of matrimony, or who expect to be participants in the parades; for it is a complete manual of the "proper things" in all the complicated details of a modern marriage ceremony. All the perplexing matters that confront prospective brides and grooms, bridesmaids, maids of honor, groomsmen, etc., as to the details of the wedding ceremonies and reception are here straightened out and the way made so plain that none need err therein. The author's first work, "Etiquette for All Occasions," is a sufficient guarantee of the literary excellence and correctness of this work, and the real human feeling shown in the treatment of this important subject. A glance at the table of contents will show that the field is covered completely, viz: wedding customs and superstitions; invitations and announcements; the wedding gown; the trousseau; wedding expenses; customary.

INDIGESTION besides the sense of discomfort in the stomach, often results in weakness of the heart, palpitation and fluttering, shortness of breath, pain in the left side, and constipation. The Best Cure for Indigestion is IRON-OX TABLETS Fifty Tablets 25 Cents

THE BEGGAR BOY. (By I. L. Perez, Translated from the Yiddish for the Jewish World by M. S. Mandell).

"Please, sir, give me a few coppers for a night's lodging?" "No!" I replied, hastily, and went on.

He followed me, imploring with his bright eyes, and kissing my hand; but it did not avail. My allowance does not permit me to be so generous.

"Poor people," I thought as I came out of the "soup kitchen," where I had sternly refused the beggar's plea, "are a most annoying lot."

The first time I noticed the thin, grimy young face, with its sunken but bright black eyes, my sympathy was aroused. And before he finished entreating me, I was deeply moved, and at once placed a coin in his skinny hand.

I remember very well that I did not stop to reason whether I could afford to do so or not. My pension consists of only 41 roubles and 66 coppers a month, but the sympathy which he awakened in me prompted the action.

His entreaties went through me like an electric shock; they agitated my inmost heart, and my calculator, the brain, conceived the idea of the additional expense much later, when the boy was outside of the "soup kitchen," dancing for joy.

Preoccupied with my own and other people's business, I soon forgot the mendicant; but, seemingly, not altogether. Although I was unaware of the fact, there must have taken place in my mind a conference of practical ideas. Because, on the second evening, when the lad stopped me again, and in a trembling voice besought me to advance him the price of a night's lodging, these conclusions were fixed in my mind: "That a boy seven or eight years of age ought not to beg; that he should not be a frequenter of a charitable eating house, and that the food he received for cleaning up the tables would only serve to make him an idler and a mendicant, not an independent useful man."

But my hand mysteriously got into my pocket, where I quickly felt it and checked its impulse. Had I been very religious, I might have asked myself the following questions: "Is this act of pity worth the financial outlay? Would it not suffice instead to say my evening prayers, or chant a chapter or two of the psalms?" But not being inclined to acts of devotion, my object was the boy's highest good. I felt sure that by giving him alms I should degrade him, perhaps make him a beggar for life!

And still I gave him the money! My hand was pulling itself out of my pocket, and I did not attempt to keep it there any longer; and undefined emotion made my heart ache, and fled my eyes with tears. Again he left the public kitchen with joyful steps, and I felt so much easier that a smile of self-satisfaction appeared on my face.

The third time it took longer to move me to pity, very much longer. I had figured out that that income was not in proportion to my benevolence. It was a pleasure to see the delight of the discouraged, downhearted beggar at the temporary relief; to see his young eyes brighten; to know that he would not have to sleep in the street, but in a warm bed, and that he would have, into the bargain, a cup of tea and a roll for his breakfast. All this was a pleasure, but I, with my scanty allowance, must not permit myself that sensation. By no means.

Naturally, I did not explain all this to the boy, but instead, I gave him such advice as I deemed proper. I made him understand that by begging he degraded himself; that every man, and he would grow up to be a man, must work; that work was a blessing, and that, if one looked for work, he could find it! I pointed out to him the value of reading good books; but, all this could not take the place of a warm bed, or an umbrella to protect him from the chilly rain or snow.

He continually kissed my hand. He constantly raised his eyes to meet mine, to see if there were not a ray of sympathy in them; to judge if his appeal had been made not in vain. And I have felt that his hopes were not to be disappointed; that my cold decision was being melted by the pathos of his entreating, penetrating glance; that with all my calculations and sermons I should have to succumb. And I resolved to let him have the money, but I am resolved that I would tell him, once for all, that he must not beg any more. I would make it clear to him, so that he should remember it. I had not the exact amount, so I changed a coin and gave him the necessary sum, saying: "Here! But listen, you must never ask me again!"

Why did I say me? I did not have the word in my mind at all; at any rate, I did not intend to utter it. Oh, I wish I could take it back! It was a painful experience; it seemed as though I had stifled all my best impulses. However, it all passed as quickly as lightning, my stern look, my earnest voice, my firm stand did their work! I made a deep impression on the boy. Although he listened impatiently, for he wanted to get his lodgings, yet he grew pale, and the tears started to his eyes.

nity is beggary. He who does not work has no right to live," and so on.

As soon as I closed the kitchen door behind me and pushed into the dark night, I stepped into a pool of water and bruised my face against the wall!

There was a terrible wind. The flames of the street lanterns were shivering as with cold, and the numerous trembling lights reflected in the water pools dazzled in the eyes. The wind was wailing mournfully, just as if thousands of souls were pleading for mercy, or thousands of boys begging for lodgings.

"Fugh! Again the boy!" It was a pity to send a dog into the street that night, and yet the child would be obliged to sleep there! But what could I do? Was it not enough to help him three times? Let somebody else do it now! It was enough on my part that with a sore throat and hacking cough I visited the kitchen. It is true that I am one of the committee, but no one would have asked me to go there, especially in such stormy weather and without a fur coat. Were I devoutly pious, it would have been more selfless on my part; I should have thought it was for my spiritual welfare; I would have hurried home and gotten into bed and tried to fall asleep, so that my soul might ascend to heaven, and record each charitable deed to my credit. The charitable deed is credit; the debt will be a large piece of the Leviathan. But I had no heavenly reward in my mind as I walked to the kitchen; my good intentions led me there.

While praising myself I felt a glow of pride, but had some one else praised me I should have been ashamed, and would modestly have silenced him. To myself I can listen without blushing. I would have praised myself more, found many good qualities in my character, but, to my sorrow, I walked with my worn-out shoes and God knows I have worn them out by going to and from the soup-house) into a pool of muddy water.

"An errand of mercy is rewarded!" does very well to say when one is going on the errand; but returning, when the angel of day is hastening back to heaven, one might break his neck.

I got my feet wet and my whole frame began to shiver with cold. I felt positively that I was contracting a cold, and would soon begin to cough and suffer with pains in my chest. I began to dread what was in store for me, because I had just left my bed after a four weeks' illness.

"You must not do so," my conscience dictated to me. "No! You may sacrifice yourself, but your wife and child—what right have you to risk their support?"

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW. "The genuine JOHANN HOFF'S EXTRACT has been used in my family for some years."

One Penalty of Public Prominence is Stomach Derangement—Johann Hoff's Extract is a Certain Restorative and is Endorsed by Famous Men Everywhere.

The constant exactions and great strain on the nervous system of a man in public life caused by his untold public and social duties are facts well known. Ever since 1847, Kings, Scientists, the World's greatest Physicians and people all walks of life the world over have been using Johann Hoff's Extract, and it has been endorsed by them as the one true nutritive tonic that builds up and keeps them well and strong. Johann Hoff's Extract will do for you what it has done for others. It weak or run-down, if suffering from nervousness, if you can't sleep nights, if you have no appetite and feel generally "out of sorts," take Johann Hoff's Extract with your meals. It will bring you back to good health; it furnishes the elements that are necessary to make you well and strong. Dr. R. D. Patrex, 1110 S. Rampart St., New Orleans, says: "I find Johann Hoff's Extract to act as a stimulant as well as a tonic. The patient gains flesh and strength from its administration." Dr. Andrew Park, 2300 Vernon Ave., Chicago, says: "I have always prescribed the Johann Hoff's Extract with confidence and trust that it would meet my expectations, recuperate the flagging energies of the patient, and restore his strength. I have never been disappointed in its efficacy and merit." Johann Hoff's Extract is a positive cure for dyspepsia and indigestion. It regulates the bowels, aids nature in her work and keeps the system, in general, in good condition. Because of its great merit and popularity, Johann Hoff's Extract is widely imitated. Beware of the many worthless substitutes offered as "just as good" as Johann Hoff's Extract. Eisner & Mendelson Co., Sole Agts., New York.

IN AND ABOUT THE COURTS

THE NEW PUBLICATIONS.

BUSY DAY IN THE SUPERIOR COURT YESTERDAY.

Several important cases heard and decisions rendered—Permanent Receiver Appointed—Other Legal Items.

In the short calendar session held yesterday by Judge Thayer in the superior court the first Monday in January was decreed for the redemption of a $1,000 mortgage for the foreclosure of which Walter Judson had sued William T. Morrow. The property in question is located on Congress avenue.

A motion brought by Attorney Hamilton to cause the plaintiff in the divorce case of Bridget McAllin vs. Martin McAllin to file a bond for prosecution was also on the short calendar list in the superior court.

Judge Thayer ordered that the plaintiff file a bond of $70 to prosecute within one week. Then Mr. Stoddard took exceptions to the order and asked leave to submit his reasons for the exception in writing.

Another motion among the others on the short calendar related to the suit of Frederick W. Hoff vs. Dwight H. Wilson, in which $2,000 damages was claimed for an alleged assault. The motion yesterday was for an order to non-suit the plaintiff for his non-compliance with a former order of the court which had called upon Hoff to file a $70 bond to prosecute. The motion was sustained and the case is thereby thrown out of court.

Another feature of the Driggs-Seabury case was settled yesterday. Judge Thayer ordered that the bond given by James H. B. Grosvenor to secure a contract for the manufacture of ammunition and guns for the government, which had entered the contest with the Derby concern before its recent difficulties placed the company in the hands of receivers, be accepted.

PERMANENT RECEIVER.

Judge Bishop, who applied for the receivership of the Odd Fellows Mutual Aid association two weeks ago and secured the appointment of Charles G. Morris as temporary receiver, appeared before Judge Thayer in the superior court yesterday morning and confirmed Mr. Morris as permanent receiver. There was no opposition to his appointment. Henry W. Merwin and Edward S. Pickett were approved as appraisers.

JUDGMENT RENDERED.

Judge Cable held a short calendar session of the court of common pleas yesterday afternoon and gave judgment of foreclosure for the recovery of $942 by the plaintiff in the case of Theodore Bruns vs. Henry Bruns, of Seymour, and John Lambert, of Ansonia, administrators. The time for redemption is the second Monday in November. The action is based on a note for $377 dated April 5, 1875.

CITY COURT CASES.

James Green, charged with the theft of a valuable diamond stick pin, was before Judge Bishop in the city court yesterday. The case was continued to Monday.

Patrick O'Connor, from "No Man's Land," was arrested for begging. He was fined $5.18 as costs and sent to jail for ten days.

Harry E. Deily, against whom a note was entered on the charge of a breach of the peace, had his case restored to the docket.

Michael Mulvey was drunk Thursday night and in court yesterday he was fined $5 and costs. He will work out the $11.54 by doing routine tasks in and about the Whalley avenue reformatory.

Doctor Tried but Could Not Relieve Me

Of Headache, Dizziness, Twitching.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Did Relieve and Cure.

"The doctor tried but couldn't relieve me" is a phrase commonly met with in the letters we receive from grateful patients. The reason is plain. The doctor tries to cure the symptom and neglects the disease. In all cases of chronic headache, nervousness, weakness, general debility, dizzy spells, loss of appetite, inability to sleep, lack of energy, loss of flesh, lack of interest, morbid tendencies, hysteria, the disease is a nervous disorder and some means must be taken to strengthen and restore the nervous system. Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is performing wonders every day and will cure you as it has thousands of others. Read how quickly it acted in the following case:

"A few years ago I was greatly troubled with nervousness and indigestion. While at work a dizzy spell would come over me and I would be forced to stop and rest. I suffered terribly from headaches and my nervousness was so marked as to cause almost constant twitching of the muscles. My doctor tried but could not relieve me. I finally began the use of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and continued to use it until I was cured, although I have not had a dizzy spell since taking the first dose. I am very thankful for what your medicine has done for me and shall take pleasure in recommending it whenever I can."—FRANK P. BENTLEY, Middlebury, Vt.

A capital book for the leisure hour, handsomely printed and bound, is "Cap'n Titus," by Clay Emery, published by Doubleday, Page & Co.; price $1.00; for sale by the Pease-Lewis Co. The book presents a group of stories of New England country folk which center around the personality of a grizzled, weather-beaten old mariner, whose yarns have the salty flavor of the sea-coast town which he honors with his habitation. Some of the titles are: "Captain Titus' Ride; a Remarkable Shot; the Cap'n's Self; some Apples; Uncle Silas on Baked Beans; a Storm; a Pump Story; an Egg Story; a Whaling Yarn; a Deep Sea Yarn; a Horse Trade; Cap'n Titus' Bread Foot."

Owen Seaman's new collection of parodies, "Borrowed Plumes," published by Henry Holt & Co., New York, is eliciting enthusiastic praise all along the lines. It is a work of rare merit—of genius in its field. His "Battle of the Bays" won fine success and is now in its fourth edition, and critics in the main agree that he is the greatest living parodist. In "Borrowed Plumes," in the opening burlesque, he carries out the droll idea of having the Elizabeth of the Letters visit the Elizabeth of the German Garden. The parodies that follow cover Mr. Dooley, Hall Caine's Eternal City, Harland's Cardinal's Snuff Box, Ellen Thornycroft Fowler's Double Thread, John Oliver Hobbes' Robert of Orange, Mrs. Ward's Robert Elsmere and works by Hewlett, Henry James, Sir John Lubbock, Masterlinck, Mrs. Meynell, etc. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and it is only by liberal quotations that the extreme cleverness of these burlesques can be brought out. Specimens taken from anywhere in the book give the piquancy and cleverness of these burlesques upon noted writers. But those who wish an hour or two solid enjoyment should read the book itself. All of the writers named above are most successfully parodied. Price of the book $1.25; for sale by the Pease-Lewis Co.

The Mail and Express says of "Borrowed Plumes": "Mr. Seaman's new volume of parodies, this time in prose, demonstrates that his hand has lost none of its cunning, his mind none of its humor and nimble wit. Comparisons with Calverley have been made so often in Mr. Seaman's case that we refrain from repetition, not for lack of conviction, but because our modern parodist no longer needs comparison. Moreover, this is mostly prose, not verse. His work is capital in itself, hugely enjoyable, and ever strikingly faithful to its originals."

An interesting and entertaining society novel is "The Councils of Croesus," by Mary Knight Potter, author of "Love in Art." "The Art of the Vatican," etc., and published by L. C. Page & Co., Boston; for sale by the E. J. Judson Co. The scene of the book is New York of the present day. The story has a distinct and pervasive charm. The leading women of the story are drawn with artistic hand and are remarkably realistic. A beautiful and wealthy young widow with the bitter memories of a loveless marriage is the leading figure of the story, yet with all this unhappy past she would insist in her worldliness that her charming daughter should wed an English lord considerably her senior in age, for wealth and position, trusting that love would follow. The daughter, a charming girl, extremely lovable, but fast hearted and timid, loves a handsome young architect. The mother's ambition and the mother's love are put to the supreme test and in the end love conquers. The denouement is very satisfying to the reader, though tragic for the beautiful widow, whose hopes of winning the man she loved are shattered most unexpectedly. The widow's chief friend and critic, Miss Aspinwall, is another finely drawn character, and the latter's lover's long courtship is at last crowned with success by a coup de main which if made before would have won the prize.

"Among the Great Masters of Western Art," by Walter Rowland, published by Dana Estes & Co., Boston. This book brings together thirty-two reproductions of famous paintings, representing scenes in the lives of celebrated warriors, with explanatory text by Walter Rowland, the well-known art critic and collector. Many of the illustrations are drawn from sources not usually available, and all are reproduced by the best and latest methods of the half-tone process. The subjects of the chapters include Alexander, Hamilton, Caesar, Attila, Roland, Charles V, Drake, Wallenstein, Cromwell, Marlborough, Frederick the Great, Washington, Napoleon, Motzke and Grant. Among the illustrations are "The Death of Alexander," from the painting by Carl von Piloty, "The Death of Caesar," by Jean Louis Gerome, "The Baptism of Witkind," by Paul Thumann, "Godfrey de Bouillon at the Siege of Jerusalem," by Gustave Dore, "Prince Eugene at the Battle of Zenta," by Eduard von Engerth, "Marshall Vorwaris," by Fritz Neuhaus, "Nelson Leaving Portsmouth, 1805," by Fred Rice, and "The Surrender of 1807," by Thure de Thulstrup. The accompanying text is accurate and attractively written, and the mechanical appearance of the book is all that the most exacting taste could desire. This volume completes the popular "Great Masters" series, the preceding books being devoted respectively to the Great Masters of literature, music, painting and oratory. Cloth, small 12mo, printed on laid deckle-edge paper, gilt top, bound, net $1.20. Same half calf or morocco, $2.40. Postage, 13 cents extra. For sale by all booksellers.

"Pippa Passes," by Robert Browning, appears in a beautiful illustrated holiday edition, published by Dana Estes & Co., Boston. The general public was first won to Browning by the drama of "Pippa Passes," which though published more than sixty years ago, has grown rather than diminished in popularity since the initial number of "Bells and Pomegranates" introduced it to the world. Even among those who are not familiar with the play as a whole, few probably could be found who are unacquainted with Pippa, the silk-winding girl of Asolo, or with her immortal song of faith:

God's in his heaven— All's right with the world!"

The child-heroine with her words of divine cheer are known and loved the world over.

"Pippa Passes" has been published in numerous editions, but never before so adequately and in such charming dress. In the present edition the six full-page

YESTERDAY'S STOCK MARKET.

Irregular Tone Continues—Close Weak With Net Losses.

New York, Nov. 7.—The irregular tone of the market continued today. The level of prices was above last night for the greater part of the day but the advances were irregular and not well maintained. In the late dealings the efforts of professional operators to realize profits on the early advanced wiped out the advance and the market closed weak and with net losses sprinkled all through the list. The dealings were smaller than yesterday. The operations apparently were simply the result of the efforts of professional traders to find a current price for the purpose of making a turn. Sugar was a drag on the market throughout and its final dip of 2 5/8 was an influence in the general weakness. The stiffening of the call money rate at the last and the promise of a poor bank statement were contributory factors to the reaction. Payments on account of gold at the sub-treasury largely off-set the heavy receipts for customs. The collection for this account during the week have reached about $3,000,000. The announcement from Washington that no further deposit of government funds would be made with the national banks, therefore had some effect on sentiment. The strength of the sterling exchange market was an additional threatening factor to the money market, although a further advance in sterling exchange at Paris lifted somewhat the point of profit for gold exports. Additional reports of a decreasing tendency in the net earnings of railroads had to be faced. Among the early points of strength the soft coal were conspicuous. At today's meeting of Norfolk and Western directors it was expected the dividend rate would be advanced, and when the meeting adjourned without action prices of the group ran off. The weakness of Hocking Valley was due to reports of a competing line from Columbus to Toledo to be operated in the Pennsylvania interests. The anthracite coalers were in some demand on account of the agreement of the strike operators to abide by the strike arbitration. The advances amongst the corn and cotton roads may have been due to crop prospects, but they were generally attributed to pool manipulations and did not hold.

The bond market was steady on a small volume of business. Total sales par value $1,500,000. U. S. 2s declined 1-4 per cent. on the last call.

THE NEW PUBLICATIONS.

photogravures from original designs by Louis Meynell, are remarkable for the delicacy with which they have caught the spirit of the poet, as well as for their artistic execution. The book has a critical introduction, full notes and a bibliography, and is alike a good working text-book for the student and an exquisite gift-book for the holiday buyer.

"The Hurdy-Gurdy" is a charming book for children by Laura E. Richards. Mrs. Richards' "Hurdy-Gurdy" rhymes are as truly literature in their way as "Captain January" and "Mrs. Brown's Babies." For ingenious rhymes, for fluency of fancy, and for pure fun, they are really delightful. Mrs. Richards gives remarkable evidence of her versatility by entering this difficult realm of nursery verse, and carrying off laurels as she has done in other fields of literature.

The one hundred pictures by Mr. Mora, whose illustrations for the "Animals of Aesop," "Reynard the Fox" and "Andersen's Fairy Tales" have won him a secure place among young artists, are irresistibly amusing. This is an ideal book for children of all ages. Substantially bound, handsome in appearance, clean in tone, and delightfully humorous and clever. Cloth, square quarto, illustrated by J. J. Mora. Net, 75 cents. By mail, 85 cents. Dana Estes & Co., publishers, Boston, Mass. For sale by all bookstores.

The Century company has received many requests for a portrait of "Mary Adams," the pseudonymous author of the "Confessions of a Wife," requests which cannot be complied with, as the publishers do not know themselves just in which way to point the camera. In order to please everybody a composite portrait should be presented, made up of the likenesses of the many literary folks accused of being perpetrators of the "Confessions." The "wild guesses" range all the way from Harry Thurston Peck to Josephine Dodge Daskam, and folks seem evenly divided as to whether a man or a woman is responsible for this much talked about book.

The last volume which Bret Harte completed before his death was a collection of new "Condensed Novels" which Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, have just published. They bear abundant testimony to the fact that Bret Harte's humor kept its flow undiminished to the last.

The C. M. Clark company, Boston, announces that "Miss Pectin" reached a circulation of 50,000 copies in the summer months and that Charles Felton Pidgin's "The Climax" has gone through three editions in a month.

A purely philanthropic enterprise to educate the public against venereal disease has been undertaken by Edwin Ginn, one of Boston's publishers. An international library of inexpensive anti-war literature is his ideal. His publishing house has entered upon the enterprise, with the purpose of selling the books at cost. One volume has already been published—Jean de Bloch's "The Future of War." Published originally at a cost of $2 per volume in this country, it did not have a large sale. Mr. Ginn bought the plates and has an edition for fifty cents. The second issue will be a fifty-cent edition of Charles Sumner's "Addresses on War." The editorial work will be done by Edwin D. Mead.

The Smart Set, which well deserves its sub-title, "a magazine of cleverness," is out for November, and is, as usual, filled to the brim with bright and entertaining matter. The long story is entitled "Lady Ursula's Lovestory," and is by Edgar Fawcett. It is a tale of English society life. There are many good short stories in the number, besides a long poem by Bliss Carman, a gruesome tragedy by William C. de Mille after the style of Maeterlinck, and the usual quantity of jokes, short poems, etc., for which this magazine is so famous. Its contributors number most of the well known names of the day, as well as others which bid fair to be as well known after a little.

Novelists, poets, humorists, paragraphists, essayists, dramatists, are all pressed into its service, and the absence of illustrations is scarcely noted, so graphic are the pictures drawn by the facile pens of these gifted individuals.

THE BEGGAR BOY.

Why should the thought of him have recurred to me? Ha! I remember. The idea flashed through my mind that for the price which I paid for the tea that I did not drink, the poor boy could have had a plate of soup, a piece of bread, or a bed in which to sleep.

Why did I order the tea? At home the samovar was ready; some of the family were sitting near the table, smiling pleasantly on the table there was something ready for a bite; it was only because I was ashamed not to order anything.

Well, I obeyed my conscience. That is worth something. Thus I consoled myself.

Again in the street, I found that the wind had increased to a gale. It seemed as if it might have blown off the roofs had they not been made of tin and well fastened on with iron. Then it swept downward, gave vent to its anger by beating against the street lanterns. But they remained firm and diffused their lights as usual.

Then it swooped down lower still, and seemed trying to separate the clouds of the paved street, but the blocks were deeply embedded in the earth and the wind could not separate such near neighbors. Again it soared up high, very high, but the sky and stars looked calmly down as if ridiculing the frenzy of the gale.

The pedestrians were the only ones bending before the blast, or hiding from it; shrinking to take up less room, or turning around to catch their breath so as to be able to proceed a little further.

But the poor boy! I was anxious. "What will happen to him?" My cool reasoning left me and my sympathy awakened.

Suppose it were my child! What if I knew that the wind was beating against my own flesh and blood; that my child would be obliged to sleep in the street, or even if he obtained the money for a night's lodging, must walk in such miserable weather, over the bridge to find a shelter.

Is he worthless because he is not mine? Does he feel the wind less, or shiver less, because those to whom he belonged are dead and lying under a heavy tomb of stone?

I was losing the desire to go home; it seemed to me that I had no right either to the warm house or the ready tea, or the comfortable bed, the welcoming smile that was awaiting me. I perceived that the expression of my face was that of a villain—a knave. I felt as if I could not show my face to anybody.

"Would that I were pious!" I wished. "There would come no harm to me if I believe that He who lives in heaven does not overlook any one upon our world; that he will not forget the boy for a minute."

Why should I any longer feel anxious about him? Why not throw him upon the world? I should not have him always before my eyes were I sure that the Almighty was really watching over him; as we are told He does, over every creature.

But, as it is, though ill with the cold and wet feet, I must go back to the soup-house to look for the orphan. It is a shame and a disgrace! Why the "shame and disgrace" were, what I felt ashamed before anybody. I know not of the present day, and still the feeling of shame and disgrace made me walk around about way until I reached the kitchen.

The first compartment, the dining room, was vacant. The rush of the day was over, and the dampness of the floor was rising higher and higher until it filled the room and united with the steam that came from the kitchen into heavy drop of vapor.

NEW HAVEN WOMAN ARRESTED.

Maud Hunter, a handsome young woman from New Haven, was taken into custody on Water street Thursday night and locked up on a charge of drunkenness. She was in a pitiable condition when found by the officer. She stated that she had never been arrested before, and deeply regretted that she became intoxicated last night. A ride in the patrol wagon resulted, and she slept in a cell at the central station.—Bridgeport Telegram.

TYPHOID FEVER CASES.

A servant in the family of Orland V. Smith, secretary and treasurer of a patent medicine company of 25 Elm street, was taken from Mr. Smith's home at 801 Orange street, to the hospital this morning. The servant is suffering with typhoid fever.

The fresh case of the fever has caused no little alarm in the block where Mr. Smith resides. In the five houses on the block typhoid fever has broken out in three. The origin of the disease cannot be accounted for. Every effort is being made to run down the cause. The water supply has been tested and found all right.

A son of James A. Knox, grand recorder of the A. O. U. W., who lives at 387 Orange street, is one of the three down with the disease on the block. He is recovering. How Mr. Knox contracted the disease is a mystery. The other typhoid patient is Mrs. Greisshauber, wife of the contractor for some of the new Yale buildings.

Mrs. Mary Grogan of Southington Expired Yesterday Morning. Southington, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Mary Grogan, wife of Peter Grogan, died at her home on Liberty street shortly before noon to-day from the effects of a paralytic shock.

Mrs. Grogan was one of the oldest residents of Southington, having come here from Ireland many years ago. She has been in feeble health for the past two years, and suffered considerably from blood poisoning in one foot. The first paralytic shock came last week and the second yesterday.

Besides her husband Mrs. Grogan leaves a son, James, and a daughter, Miss Mary. Arrangements for the funeral have not as yet been completed, but will probably be held Sunday afternoon at St. Thomas' church. The deceased leaves relatives in Fair Haven.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Discussed Yesterday Afternoon by Mrs. M. F. Scranton. A largely attended meeting of the members of the Woman's Foreign Missionary societies of all the churches of the city was held in the parlors of the First Methodist church at the corner of Elm and College streets yesterday afternoon. After the opening services of song and prayer Mrs. M. F. Scranton, who has the reputation and honor of being the first missionary ever sent to Korea, by the Foreign Missionary society connected with the First Methodist church, was introduced as the speaker of the afternoon.

Mrs. Scranton told of the circumstances that led up to her starting out as a missionary. She left this city eighteen years ago for the missionary fields and has spent a large part of the time since then working in that far-off country. The conditions of the people and especially their religious conditions were described at length by Mrs. Scranton, and it was very evident from her remarks that the missionary was sorely needed at the time she entered upon the work.

Some of the early experiences in getting the natives to attend the meetings and to get them to realize that God lived and loved them, were described in a very interesting manner by the speaker. When Mrs. Scranton told of the conditions as they exist today, it was evident that the spreading of the gospel in Korea has helped to greatly enlighten the people of that land and to improve them in every way and manner imaginable.

At the close of the address a vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Scranton, who also received the congratulations and very best wishes of all for the continued success of the missionary work.

J. JOHNSON & SON'S. Special Offers To-Day. When the weather is abnormally warm although late in the fall, one does not bestow much thought on clothing. "Any old thing" will do to wear. But when the cold crisp weather rushes in as it has this morning it is an unerring sign that the winter is rapidly approaching.

We feel better, too. The frost "knocks out" the malaria—"braces us up." We now think of reasonable clothing, and as a matter of course we think, too, of Johnson & Son. It is a habit we have. The long and successful years during which that enterprising firm has been a recognized leader in strictly high class clothing has given them great and merited prominence in their line of trade.

And then again their prices are so reasonably low and their methods so fair and honorable. You know you are "not going to get stuck." It is no chance game where you might make a hit or a miss, just as it happens. No, it is nothing of that kind. Past years and past visits to 35 Church street have made it a moral certainty that you will be well pleased. Read their special adv. in to-day's Journal and Courier. The firm has got just what you want and at special figures.

Rev. John Reid, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., recommended Ely's Cream Balm to me. I can emphasize his statement. "It is a positive cure for catarrh if used as directed."—Rev. Francis W. Poole, Pastor Central Pres. Church, Helena, Mont.

After using Ely's Cream Balm six weeks I believe myself cured of catarrh. —Joseph Stewart, Grand Ave., Buffalo, N. Y.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

For sick headache try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, they will ward off the attack if taken in time. For sale by all druggists.

THE HURDY-GURDY.

"The Hurdy-Gurdy" is a charming book for children by Laura E. Richards. Mrs. Richards' "Hurdy-Gurdy" rhymes are as truly literature in their way as "Captain January" and "Mrs. Brown's Babies." For ingenious rhymes, for fluency of fancy, and for pure fun, they are really delightful. Mrs. Richards gives remarkable evidence of her versatility by entering this difficult realm of nursery verse, and carrying off laurels as she has done in other fields of literature.

The one hundred pictures by Mr. Mora, whose illustrations for the "Animals of Aesop," "Reynard the Fox" and "Andersen's Fairy Tales" have won him a secure place among young artists, are irresistibly amusing. This is an ideal book for children of all ages. Substantially bound, handsome in appearance, clean in tone, and delightfully humorous and clever. Cloth, square quarto, illustrated by J. J. Mora. Net, 75 cents. By mail, 85 cents. Dana Estes & Co., publishers, Boston, Mass. For sale by all bookstores.

The last volume which Bret Harte completed before his death was a collection of new "Condensed Novels" which Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston, have just published. They bear abundant testimony to the fact that Bret Harte's humor kept its flow undiminished to the last.

The C. M. Clark company, Boston, announces that "Miss Pectin" reached a circulation of 50,000 copies in the summer months and that Charles Felton Pidgin's "The Climax" has gone through three editions in a month.

A purely philanthropic enterprise to educate the public against venereal disease has been undertaken by Edwin Ginn, one of Boston's publishers. An international library of inexpensive anti-war literature is his ideal. His publishing house has entered upon the enterprise, with the purpose of selling the books at cost. One volume has already been published—Jean de Bloch's "The Future of War." Published originally at a cost of $2 per volume in this country, it did not have a large sale. Mr. Ginn bought the plates and has an edition for fifty cents. The second issue will be a fifty-cent edition of Charles Sumner's "Addresses on War." The editorial work will be done by Edwin D. Mead.

The Smart Set, which well deserves its sub-title, "a magazine of cleverness," is out for November, and is, as usual, filled to the brim with bright and entertaining matter. The long story is entitled "Lady Ursula's Lovestory," and is by Edgar Fawcett. It is a tale of English society life. There are many good short stories in the number, besides a long poem by Bliss Carman, a gruesome tragedy by William C. de Mille after the style of Maeterlinck, and the usual quantity of jokes, short poems, etc., for which this magazine is so famous. Its contributors number most of the well known names of the day, as well as others which bid fair to be as well known after a little.

Novelists, poets, humorists, paragraphists, essayists, dramatists, are all pressed into its service, and the absence of illustrations is scarcely noted, so graphic are the pictures drawn by the facile pens of these gifted individuals.
