15c and 25c Wash Belts, 10c

Pretty Crush Belts of white duck, with the new Colonial buckles in gilt or nickel. Even prettier are those Belts of fine white lawn, embroidered with little pink, black or light blue fleur-de-lis. Worth 15c and 25c—special at 10c each.

15c India Linons, 9c

Fresh and crisp. Fine quality, and full 32 inches wide. Perhaps you and the children just need another cool dress.

Women's Drawers, 25c

Extra-good value for 25c, because they are made of excellent cambric, and finished with a muslin ruffle and tucks. Cut in generous proportions, and well made.

Remnants of Black Dress Fabrics

The best sort of picking from some of this season's favorites. Plain and fancy weaves, including voiles, etamines, chevilles, etc. Usable lengths, generally enough for a dress. All at half price.

Priscilla Corsets, $1.00

Our Priscilla is the "corset that feels as if you had no corset on." Good-fitting, cool, comfortable. Cut on lines that conform to the natural grace of the figure. At the same time it is a figure-builder. We have yet to see its equal at the price. Three new summer models. You ought to see them.

declared that she would categorically refuse her consent to any articles by any treaty, convention or instrument whatever which would imply its recognition as such. "We are also informed that it is intended to treat raw cotton as contraband of war. While it is true that raw cotton could be made up into clothing for the military uses of a belligerent, a military use for the supply of an army or garrison might possibly be made of foodstuffs of every description which might be shipped from neutral ports to the non-blockaded ports of a belligerent. The principle under consideration might therefore be extended so as to apply to every article of human use, which might be declared contraband of war simply because it might ultimately become in any degree useful to a belligerent for military purposes. "Coal and other fuel and cotton are employed for a great many innocent purposes. Many nations are dependent on them for the conduct of inoffensive industries and no sufficient presumption of an intended warlike use seems to be afforded by the mere fact of their destination to a belligerent port. The recognition, in principle, of the treatment of coal and other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war might ultimately lead to a total inhibition of the sale by neutrals to the people of belligerent states, of all articles which could be finally converted to military uses. Such an extension of the principle by treating coal and all other fuel and raw cotton as absolutely contraband of war, simply because they are shipped by a neutral to a non-blockaded port of a belligerent, would not appear to be in accord with the reasonable and lawful rights of a neutral commerce. "I am, gentlemen, "Your obedient servant, "John Hay."

BLACKLIST SUSTAINED

A few days ago a Roseland (B. C.) jury awarded heavy damages against the western Federation of Miners. Now a Vancouver judge has decided that employees may sue themselves to refuse work to union men. The case grew out of the decision of an engineering company to abolish the closed shop. The employees struck, whereupon the members of the Employers' Association of Vancouver announced that they would not give work to the strikers. The international union furnished money with which the local carried the matter to the courts. Conspiracy was the charge. It is evident that the decision just given declares to be legal what is commonly known as the blacklist. This weapon of employers has been bitterly attacked for years by organized labor, yet on several occasions it has been held legal by American courts. One of the lower courts of Ohio has decided that the state law is unconstitutional which makes the discharge of a union man, because of his membership in the union, a misdemeanor. The attitude of the judges passed upon the blacklist question has been defined in this way by one of them: "One has the right to enter the service of another and several persons acting jointly in pursuance of an agreement to that effect have the right to decline to employ another and several persons acting jointly in the pursuance of an agreement to that effect have the right to decline." However, the blacklist is about as barbarous a weapon as a boycott and its use should be avoided so far as possible.—Buffalo Express.

GAY SENATE BRIDEGROOMS

Though Not Youthful, They Have Youth's Friskiness. "Re-entrance upon matrimony has wrought some remarkable changes in the raiment and general outward seeming of several of our most promising young public men," says a writer for an observant of the antics of some of the gaily bridgedrooms of the United States Senate. "Not a senator, but just Chauncey Depew (as Uncle Joe Cannon puts it) was a joy to behold during the days of the Chicago convention in a champagne-colored crash suit made sack pattern, with a rakishly danted panama, a champagne four-in hand tie. "While I was still studying him—I could not keep my eyes off of him—he walked up to the counter and selected a piece of cold mince pie and a tall glass of iced tea to top off with. "He's been back every week day since, and that's about his regular noonday ration. He's got to be one of my show pieces. He's Figure A in the exhibition. "But there are others. See that little man over yonder with the white sides and the pink cheeks—the one off there in the corner? What do you suppose his regular winter and summer high-noon reflection is, and has been for years past? A plate of bread and butter, two large dill pickles and a cup of cocoa. Every week day of the year that old boy with the white things at the sides of his countenance commits that kind of an assault and battery on his diaphragm, and, say, just look at him—cheeks pink and healthy, eyes at clear as filtered well water and more hair on the top of his head than I've got, although he's sixty, if he's a day. "He told me the other day that he hadn't had a sick minute in sixteen years. That of the conglomeration the toughest the kind of conglomeration they habitually get away with the healthier they look. But they're probably born that way. And as a matter of fact, the majority of the men who come in here for lunch seem to just try to loop-the-loop with their digestive apparatuses."—Washington Star. be broken in to pull."

A HAPPY DEVICE

Mainly because the legal profession is much crowded, especially in the lower strata, suits for damages have greatly multiplied in recent years. Some of the increase is quite legitimate, because business has grown immensely and there has been little, if any, diminution of fatal accidents due to negligence of corporations or their agents. To bring a damage suit and prosecute it, where there is good ground for such proceeding, is far from discreditable to the best legal talent; but to drum up business in that line, as many attorneys do, and to bread the methods common among those abroad and butter hunting shysters is to inflict an intolerable grievance on society.

Suits for malpractice have become so common in various parts of the country that the casualty companies are offering insurance to physicians against such litigation. Of course there are cases in which prescriptions for damages are justifiable. Indeed, there are some practitioners who should be prosecuted into the penitentiary. But taken as a whole, the doctors of medicine constitute the most altruistic of all professions, not even excepting the clergy. Malleo and blackmail ten times more frequently than real wrongs are responsible for these suits. Many of them are undoubtedly settled without publicity by capable and honorable physicians. It is well, therefore, that a means of protection has been devised.

The Springfield Republican notes that medical journals contain advertisements of casualty companies offering to issue liability policies to physicians, surgeons, and dentists against malpractice suits. The insurance company agrees to defend all such suits brought against the physician and to hold itself liable for the amount of damage, if any should the case be decided against the defendant. The Republican states that to guard against disreputable practitioners, the policies contain a paragraph reading: "The company shall not be liable under this policy for any injuries, fatal or nonfatal, resulting from the violation of any law or ordinance on the part of the assured, nor if any alleged error, mistake, or malpractice has occurred while the assured is more or less under the influence of intoxicants, anesthetics, or narcotics."

This movement is so sensible, so well calculated to meet a real want, that it seems strange it did not materialize years ago.—Washington Post.

in harmony with the hues of his plaited and figured shirt, champagne-colored canvas shoes and champagne-tinted silk stockings," says the writer. "There was a time when the austerity of Mr. Depew's summer makeup was in sharp contrast with the unfailing cheerfulness of his countenance. Senator Stewart was observed the other day in a positively flowing gray sack suit, cut like a Princeton boy's, an artistically flowing blue tie of grenadine, low cut patent leather oxfords, over bluish openwork socks of silk, and his snow-white beard trimmed so as to grate the patriarchal look which the senator once wore. Washingtonians who know Senator Stewart very well will remember how careless he used to be of his attire, and how, even in carelessness of it, he always leaned rigidly on the side of sedateness. "Senator Platt of New York, who was 71 years young a few days ago, has been wearing long-tailed English cutaway coats of quite decided checks since the beginning of warm weather, and at the Oriental Hotel, on New York bay, he was seen the other day wearing no waistcoat, for the first time in the memory of his friends, but with a fancy negligee shirt and a corn-colored belt with a buckle of gold. It seems no time at all since Senator Platt was the severest dresser of all the legislative delegation from the Empire state. "The most marvellously sudden transformation, however, in the exterior appearance of all the distinguished youths who have recently re-embarked upon the rose-tinted sea of connubial bliss was that of Justice Brown of the supreme court of the United States. With the same eyes which he employed to get the facts down this writer saw Justice Brown—who had been married just two days before—on an Atlantic City boardwalk last Sunday thus rigged: An unimaginable lovely and well-fitting suit of cream-colored flannels, with an almost invisible stripe of blue silk in the fabric. Ragish straw hat of sailor cut. Platted pongee shirt, yellow in tinge, with a bright crimson bow necktie. Black leather belt, silver buckled. White canvas shoes, pipe-clayed dazzlingly. And the trun-ups of his cream-hued flannel trousers revealed, when little gusts of wind caught them, crimson colored silk socks."—Washington Correspondent of St. Louis Globe Democrat.

$18,000 MORE IN PAY.

And Trolley Road Manager Explains Bad Condition of Business.

A general order will be issued to employees of the local division of the Consolidated Railway company to-morrow setting forth the changes in the wage schedule and in the rules of discipline which were agreed to by the employees in their Sunday meeting. The general order takes the place of what is usually announced as an agreement, and indicates the adoption by the trolley company of the methods on the steam road. The text of the agreement adopted Sunday by the employees shows that although the increase of wages is not large individually the payroll of the company is increased upwards of $18,000 a year. The men were told in a letter from General Manager Punderford of depressing conditions of trolley business for the season and figures given to convince them that the trolley line employees here are as well paid as in any other city.

AGAINST HATLESS WOMEN.

Rev. W. J. Slocum Doesn't Approve of Women Appearing in Church Without Headgear. Waterbury, Aug. 8.—During the 9 o'clock yesterday morning the Rev. William J. Slocum took occasion to refer to the custom of women appearing without their hats at divine service and said it was not a practice with which the church was in accord. The reverend gentleman was very moderate in his allusion to the practice, but those who heard him are positive that drew the line between the church and the theater so plainly that all might understand and none be offended. He was induced to speak on this subject by reason of the number of young women who came into the church recently bareheaded.

STOCK OVERSUBSCRIBED.

Rector Light Company to Organize. Stamford, Aug. 8.—The stock of the Rector Gas Lamp company formed in this city was all subscribed and 55 shares over, within two days. The company is to operate in Fairfield and New Haven counties. The capital stock is $5,000 in 600 shares. The first meeting of the stockholders for organization, will be held next Friday evening in the office of Attorney George P. Rowell.

REMEMBERED BY LIPTON.

Not forgetting the man who cut off fin tags for him thirty-eight years ago, when he first started as a ham and egg merchant in High street, Glasgow, Scotland, Sir Thomas Lipton shipped to Robert Liddell, a plumber, of this city, twenty-five pounds of tea, which arrived Saturday in a box bearing the seal of the English tea merchant.

DEATH OF MRS. CAROLINE PLANT.

Mrs. Caroline Plant, aged sixty-nine, died on Sunday. The funeral takes place this afternoon. Besides her husband she leaves one son, Dr. Louis E. Plant of Winsted, and two daughters, Miss Florence M. Plant, a trained nurse living in this city and Mrs. L. J. Corcoran of Canton, and one sister, Mrs. David White of Plainville, formerly of Winsted.

TOBACCO CROP DESTROYED.

Disastrous Effect of a Hall Storm in Westfield, Mass. Westfield, Mass., Aug. 8.—One of the worst hailstorms that has ever been known in this vicinity occurred this morning at 6 o'clock. Between 250 and 300 acres of tobacco was totally ruined, entailing a loss of fully $150,000. Tobacco in Feeding Hills and other nearby places was badly damaged.

RESCUED TO BE KILLED LATER.

Madison, Mo., Aug. 8.—Clifford Gilbert, while at work at the Great North-west Paper company's mills here, ac-identally fell into the river to-day and was rescued from drowning. An hour later, after having resumed his work in adjusting the guys to a derrick, he fell seventy feet and was instantly killed.

WRECK AT PLAINVILLE.

Plainville, Aug. 8.—Three freight cars on the northbound freight over the Northampton division were derailed and broken up to-day at a point above the split bridge one mile north of the station here. So badly damaged were two of the cars that the debris was thrown down the embankment and burned. The loss is not thought to have been heavy.

LONG SERVICE.

Conductor Frank Scott of Watertown completed his thirty-second year as an employee on the Naugatuck division last Saturday. During the past eleven years he has been in charge of passenger trains. During this time not a passenger has been killed on trains under his charge.

ANNUAL OUTING.

The Modern Woodchoppers' association, a social organization connected with West Rock camp 9907, M. W. A., will give their annual outing and clam-bake at Jost's place, East Haven, on Sunday, August 14. About seventy-five will be present.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES.

The Rev. Dryden Phelps of New Haven conducted the morning services at the Baptist church in Naugatuck Sunday.

ESTERDAY'S BALL GAMES

NEW HAVEN DROPS A GAME TO SPRINGFIELD.

Local Unable to Hit Luby at Critical Times—Trouble in Bridgeport—Kennedy Awards Game to O'Rourke's Men—Holyoke Disappointed With Decision—Meriden Defeats New London

The inability of the New Haven team to hit Luby caused their defeat at the hands of Springfield yesterday at Savin Rock. The hitting was very light on both sides, but what there was of it was decidedly in favor of Springfield.

BUNCH TOGETHER. The office has a curious way of finally attacking some organ.

Alls that come from coffee are cumulative, that is, unless the coffee is taken away new troubles are continually appearing and the old ones get worse.

"To begin with," says a Kansan, "I was a slave to coffee just as thousands of others to-day; thought I could live without drinking strong coffee very morning for breakfast, and I had a headache that kept me in bed several days every month. Could hardly keep my food on my stomach but could vomit as long as I could throw anything up and when I could get hot coffee to stay on my stomach, I thought I was better."

"Well, two years ago this Spring I was sick with rheumatism I could not use my right arm to do anything, had heart trouble, was nervous, my nerves were all unstrung, and my finger nails and tips were blue as if I had a chill all the time, and my face and hands yellow as a pumpkin. My doctor said it was heart disease, and rheumatism and my neighbors said I had Bright's Disease and was going to die."

"Well, I did not know what on earth was the matter and every morning could drag myself out of bed, and go to breakfast, not to eat anything, but to force down some more coffee. Then in a little while I would be so nervous, my heart would beat like everything."

"Finally one morning I told my husband I believed coffee was the cause of my trouble, and that I thought I would try Postum which I had seen advertised. He said 'all right,' so we got Postum and although I did not like it, at first, I got right down to business and made it according to directions, then it was fine, and the whole family got so using it and I tell you it has worked wonders for me. Thanks to Postum in place of the poison, coffee, I now enjoy good health, have not been in bed with sick headaches for two years although I had it for 30 years before I began Postum, and my nerves are now strong and I have no trouble from my heart or from the rheumatism."

"I consider Postum a necessary article of food on my table. My friends who come here and taste my Postum say it is delicious." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Get the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in each pkg.

Mother love fills the heart of a poor squaw as completely as it does that of her more fortunate pale-face sister. Her clumsy fingers fashion playthings of shells, odd shaped bones, carved wooden beads, bright pieces of tin, china or glass, which she hangs about the hood of the cocoon cradle in reach of the chubby brown fists. Baby soon learns to rattle these primitive playthings gleefully.

Strange as it may appear, the red skinned Baby Buntings seem to thrive in their cramped quarters, but they enjoy as a famous treat a change to the blankets upon their mother's backs, when the tolling squaws are forced to go down to the scant timber stretches along the creek to bring up firewood and water for the camp.

During the Boer war England paid out almost £20,000,000, or over $90,000,000, for the transportation of men and material to South Africa.

The Archbishop of Westminster has become a total abstainer. Like Cardinal Manning, he has recognized the havoc made among his flock by drunkenness, and as he must preach teetotalism to those who need it, he has decided to practice it as well.

The largest station for wireless telegraphy is being placed near Pisa, Italy. On its completion, by the end of this year, it is expected to afford direct communication with all countries of Europe, as well as the United States and Canada.

The Italian novelist Salvatore Farina recently delivered an address before the Society for Psychic Research at Milan, in which he minutely described the case of an author who, six years ago, completely lost his memory for language and names.

Booker T. Washington tells of a shrewd preacher of his race, the Rev. Washington Johnson by name, who resorted to the following method to raise funds: At the conclusion of his sermon one bright Sunday morning he said: "Brethren and sisters, I had demonstrated abstrusely that de Lord hates a thief—dat He is not to be propigated by no offering, thefo' I beg de pussion or pussions who stole yo' pastor's hog to make no contribution at the circulation of de offertory platter."

Economy, says Governor Chatterton, of Wyoming, "is always admirable. A Cheyenne hatter, though, was disgusted the other day with the economical spirit of a visitor to his shop. This visitor, a tall man with gray hair, entered with a soft felt hat, wrapped in paper, in his hand. "How much will it cost," he said, "to dye this hat gray, to match my hair?" "About a dollar," the hatter answered. The tall man wrapped the hat up again. "I won't pay it," he said. "I can get my hair dyed to match the hat for a quarter."

The Washington Star advises the New York Democrats to think some more before they nominate J. J. Hill's special friend, Colonel Daniel Lamont, for the governorship. It reminds them that the chairman of their State committee is a Sugar Trust man, the chairman of their executive (by report) a Standard Oil man, and Committeeman Belmont the American representative of the Rothschilds.

It is well enough to be moderate in praise of one's own city or State, but it is not often that such moderation is shown as that shown by Clarence B. Douglas in his description of Indian Territory. The Indian Territory can, he says, duplicate the quality of coal of Pennsylvania, the iron of Alabama, the asphalt of the Isle of Trinidad, the cement beds of Scotland, the brick shale and clays of West Virginia, the kaolin of China, the lead and zinc of the Ozarks, the copper of the shores of Lake Superior, the granite of Maine, the marble of Vermont, the lime of Arkansas, the silver of Colorado, the gold of California, the glass sand of Illinois, the sand stone of North Carolina, the oil fields of West Virginia, the gas belt of Indiana, the pearls of the Caspian, the horses of Kentucky, the cattle of Wyoming, the hogs of Iowa, the sheep of Idaho, the goats of Arizona, the mules of Missouri, the burros of Old Mexico, the fur animals of Nevada, the cotton of Mississippi, the wheat of Minnesota, the corn of Kansas, the sugarcane of Louisiana, the oats of the Missouri valley, the tobacco of North Carolina, the rye of Ohio, the barley of Nebraska, the or-

EDWIN BLAIR BOWDITCH.

The death of Edwin Blair Bowditch removes one who has occupied a large place in the business of New Haven and who has also occupied a large place in the respect and confidence of New Haven people. More than that, he has occupied a large place in the hearts of the many who were drawn to him by his good will, his honesty, his honor, his consideration for others and his tender feeling. He was a good man and a just man. He thought well and spoke well of his fellow beings. He sought opportunities to say pleasant and appreciative words to those who needed them and to do kind acts to those who needed them. He lived a long and useful life, and the latter part of it was, in its sweet peace, its good spirit and its good deeds, the fitting crown of his career. The mourning for him can be with hope and the consolation there is in such a worthy and beneficent life as he lived.

TROUBLE IN HARTFORD, TOO.

Hartford must imitate New Haven, as usual, and be agitated over her police force. This is the way the Courant talks: It is plain that there is something the matter with the force. At a time when officers were liable to be shifted from their beats if they did their duty there was reason for demoralization. It has been common talk that for some years past the tendency of things has been against the morale of the department. But there is none of that sort of talk nowadays. The board of police commissioners have the full confidence of the community and are recognized as men of ability and right purpose. The way to carry forward with them is by attending to business and keeping it attended to, and the thing for them to do is to shake things into shape so that the force shall do work worthy of those responsible for their conduct.

Perhaps Hartford will imitate New Haven to the extent of having a police investigation, but we hope not. Imitation is said to be the sincerest flattery, but we can dispense with a little flattery for the sake of Hartford's peace and purse.

A PALERMO EXPERIMENT.

There is an experiment going on at Palermo, Sicily, which is interesting, and perhaps important. Palermo has a Municipal Bakery. In Palermo the flour trade during the last few years has become centered in one private establishment—it was, in fact, a monopoly. Naturally, both bread and macaroni, the staple food of the lower classes, rose in price. This municipality tried in vain to check by fixing standard rates for both commodities. Anxious not to ruin the retailers, they struck directly at the monopolists by undertaking to supply flour to the bakers at a standard price and bread for them to sell on commission. They laid their plans in advance, collected corn from all parts of the island and set up, not only a mill, but also a bakery of their own. The latter was opened in March of last year, and turned out about 20,000 pounds of bread daily. The military emergency ovens were soon added, and supplied 11,000 pounds more. In May the municipal authorities acquired a private flour mill, which, by working day and night, can turn out about fifty tons of flour, together with two bakeries, which between them can make 28,000 pounds of bread. In practice, however, the municipal bakeries placed daily on the market 44,000 pounds of bread, or enough to supply one-sixth of a population of 325,000, which consumes not only 280,000 pounds of bread, but 110,000 pounds of macaroni. In this way the municipality has succeeded in lowering the price of bread a half-penny a pound, and in maintaining the standard rates which it considered fair to the public and to the trade. Moreover, it claims to have made a considerable profit, but on this point there is considerable difference of opinion, as the baking business has been run by officers whose salaries are paid, not out of the earnings, but out of the public purse.

SOME MILD PRAISE.

It is well enough to be moderate in praise of one's own city or State, but it is not often that such moderation is shown as that shown by Clarence B. Douglas in his description of Indian Territory. The Indian Territory can, he says, duplicate the quality of coal of Pennsylvania, the iron of Alabama, the asphalt of the Isle of Trinidad, the cement beds of Scotland, the brick shale and clays of West Virginia, the kaolin of China, the lead and zinc of the Ozarks, the copper of the shores of Lake Superior, the granite of Maine, the marble of Vermont, the lime of Arkansas, the silver of Colorado, the gold of California, the glass sand of Illinois, the sand stone of North Carolina, the oil fields of West Virginia, the gas belt of Indiana, the pearls of the Caspian, the horses of Kentucky, the cattle of Wyoming, the hogs of Iowa, the sheep of Idaho, the goats of Arizona, the mules of Missouri, the burros of Old Mexico, the fur animals of Nevada, the cotton of Mississippi, the wheat of Minnesota, the corn of Kansas, the sugarcane of Louisiana, the oats of the Missouri valley, the tobacco of North Carolina, the rye of Ohio, the barley of Nebraska, the orchards of California, the vineyards of France, the berries of Washington, the gardens of Germany, the nuts of Central America, the perfume plants of the tropics, the hard woods of New York, the soft pines of Oregon, the fowls of Brazil, the fishes of Canadian streams, the game of the western forests and plains, the civilization of the effete east, the skies of Italy, the climate of California, the scenery of Switzerland, the moonlights of the Mediterranean, the twilights of Spain, the sunset of the Golden Gate, the sunrise of the Bay of Mandalay, the energy of a compound engine, the enterprise of a Chicago boomer.

Some may find it difficult to discern the moderation in this effort, but it is there. It will be noticed, when we call attention to it, that Brother Douglas omitted to mention that Indian Territory can duplicate the beauties and glories of Heaven.

An "Auto" Idyl.

The automobile owner crawled With haste into his car, And said good-bye, to be called To travel fast and far. He grasped the steering wheel with glees, And gave the clutch a yank. And with a whir of obstructions, he Climbed down again to crank. Again he mounted to the seat Prepared like wind to fly, Yet there he lingered in the street, The water tank was dry. He filled the tank; it seemed a cinch. Once more he starts to chauff. Behold, he does not move an inch— "The differential's off." In rage he tolls with might and main 'Till he is faint and weak. Again he starts—and stops again; The tire's sprung a leak. The shades of night are falling fast, But joy illumines his brow; He shoots ahead—his trouble's past, Pray, who can catch him now? And yet, around the corner, we May find this same machine; Its owner is not there, for he Has gone for gasoline. —Council Bluffs Nonpareil.

THE TIPPER'S PROGRESS.

The Bill Figured From the Time He Left Washington Until He Got Into Bed at Atlantic City. "I went down to Atlantic City the other day," said a working newspaper man who has so much money that he has no idea where to get it, much less what to do with it, "that night, after I had tucked myself into my little salt-air-smelly bed there was something on my mind that kept me awake, mentally figuring, for quite a while. The something on my mind was a calculation as to the number of tips and the amount of the same added up that I had distributed from the beginning of my trip until donning my pajamas. And I found it quite a piece of mental arithmetic to go over that tip account. "It began in Washington—they're pretty nigh as willing to accept back-sheesh in the form of pourboires here as they are anywhere else, if you have ever taken notice. The cabman who carried me and my suit case and typewriter to the station was so affable in his general bearing toward me that I gave him a quarter. In addition to his regular fare when the cab reached the station. A station porter opened the cab door and took my suit case and typewriter and carried them through the ladies' waiting room to the main waiting room, where I told him to deposit them while I bought my tickets. When he dropped the gear in the main waiting room I passed him fifteen cents, supposing that he would be on hand to give me a lift with the things through the gate and to the train when the gate opened. I was wrong in that supposition, however. When I had finished buying my tickets there was another station porter hovering near me. The one to whom I had given the fifteen cents was off and away, but he had passed the word along to one of his mates—the one who hovered near me at the ticket window. I nodded to him to pick up the suit case and the typewriter. He carried the dunnage through the gate and to the parlor car of the train for me, and, as I had nothing smaller than a quarter in my change pocket, he got two bits. That made it sixty-five cents for tips before I had boarded the train.

"The parlor car porter treated me with great amiability as soon as he caught sight of me, depositing my suit case and typewriter behind my chair, reminding me that my necktie had slipped up behind my collar, and so on. I told him that I didn't have any change, but that I'd 'fix him out' before we reached Atlantic City. He was well enough disposed to tell me 'dat would be all right, boss.' In view of his engaging conduct, I knew that no mere quarter tip was going to do for him—that the least I could do would be a half—a quarter for his caring for my suit case and machine and the regular quarter for the whisk broom brush off at the end of the journey. He got the half when the train pulled into Atlantic City. That made it a dollar and fifteen cents for tips by the time I debarbed from the train.

"A glad station porter grabbed my suit case and machine from my hands when I found myself on the Atlantic City station platform, demanding at the same time to know the name of the hotel at which I was going to register. I told him, and he carried my gear to the 'bus of that hotel, drawn up right alongside the platform. He got two bits for his little walk of thirty feet with my hand baggage. "The porter attached to the 'bus took the two articles of baggage from the station porter, telling me magnanimously that he'd see that I didn't lose them or anything, so that when the 'bus pulled up at the hotel I felt indebted to that 'bus porter in the sum of twenty-five cents. He got the money. "That made my tip account just $1.55 up to the moment that I reached the steps leading to the hotel. "A bell boy was at the bottom of the hotel steps to take my suit case and machine from the 'bus porter. He carried the things to the desk for me, and when I registered and got my key he conducted me to my room. Twenty-five cents for that one, which brought my tip account up to $1.90 up to the moment of reaching my room.

"The chambermaid had forgotten to put any water in the wash jug of my room since it had last been occupied, and I rang for the chambermaid. The bell boy who answered the ring and went after the chambermaid was so good natured in responding to my button touch that I handed him a dime for his labor. That brought the tip account up to a pat two dollars. "When the chambermaid made her appearance and I asked for some water for my water pitcher, the girl looked so sad and aggrieved over it all that I felt that the least I could do would be to assuage her sorrow with a little tip. The smallest I had was a half. The chambermaid got the half, accepting it with an air of the greatest imaginable sadness of spirit. Thus I was two dollars and a half out on the tip question up to the moment of washing my hands and face.

"Before dinner I dropped down to the barber shop for a shave. The shave was two bits, and I let the wistful-looking barber have fifteen cents change for himself out of the half-dollar that I gave him in payment of my bill. That put me back just $2.65 for tips up to the time I sat down in the dining room for a bite of dinner. "The waiter assigned to my table treated me as if he were perfectly confident that I was Charlie Schwab or John W. Gates or Thomas Lawson or one of those fairly comfortable individuals. I knew perfectly well that he had no such idea in his head, but we are all susceptible to the insidious flattery of servitors, and when my dinner was over I felt that to give that waiter anything smaller than a half would be pure meanness. I got the half, all right, and I was $3.15 to the bad on tips when I rose from the dinner table. "After dinner I started up to my room to get ready for a stroll on the board walk. When I reached my floor I found that I had forgotten my key from the hotel key. The elevator boy cheerfully informed me that I needn't take the trouble to go down to the office—that he'd get the key for me. He got the key and ten cents for his work. That made the tip account a pat three dollars and a quarter.

"After listening to some music on one of the piers, I went into a highly illuminated and ornate cafe for a little drink. The drink cost a quarter, but the German waiter who brought it to me was so courtly, so pompously overpowering in fact, that when I handed him a half I couldn't do aught else but nod to him to keep the change. That made it three dollars and a half for tips. Before turning in I dropped into another cafe farther down the board walk for a club sandwich and something cooling to go with it. Club sandwich was thirty cents, and the cooling thing to wash it down a quarter. I gave the waiter a half and a quarter, and dodged to him to keep the change. He looked some sore, at that, over the measly twenty-cent tip. But it carried my tip account for the day up to $3.70. "It was some little distance to my hotel, and so, being, tired, I took a rolling chair for the trip. The rolling chair boy's bill was a half dollar, but he looked at me with such wounded-jeer eyes at the end of the journey that there was nothing for it but to relieve his misery by giving him a two-bit tip. That made it $3.95 for tips. "When I got up to my hotel room I rang for a pitcher of ice water. The boy who brought it deposited it on my wash stand and then gazed at me so reproachfully, seeing that I was making no move toward my depleted change pocket, that I handed him the last fifteen cents in silver that I had. "Thus, when I got into my night apparel and switched off the electric light I found, upon making that little mental calculation as to tips, that I had distributed just $4.10 in the way of pourboires since setting out from Washington for Atlantic City a little after the hour of noon that day. "Had I been a fool? Of course I had been. I had been a weak sheep, besides. The one consolation I had, in thinking it over, was that I hadn't been the only fool by a long shot to make the journey from the interior to Atlantic City that day. All the rest of the travelers had been fools and sheep with me."—Washington Star.

HEARING ON ENGINE HOUSE

HELD BY ALDERMANIC COMMITTEE LAST EVENING.

Many Citizens Speak For and Against the Proposed Exchange With the Railroad—Some Advocate Separating the Companies—Committee to Report Next Monday Night.

A meeting of the committee appointed by the board of aldermen to hold a hearing on the subject of the proposed contract with the railroad company for changing the location of No. 2's engine house was held in the city hall last evening and many citizens appeared, representing both sides of the discussion. The committee, which consists of Aldermen Langley, Hotchkiss, Elliott, Sprightly and Spreyer, was to consider the proposed agreement to turn over to the railroad the house and land at present occupied by No. 2's engine house and to receive in return the land at the corner of Olive and St. John streets, and $38,000 with which to build a new house.

One of the first speakers in favor of the exchange was Henry B. Sargent, representing the factory interests, who said that the company was needed there to protect the extensive manufacturing interests in that part of the town. Edward L. Awater spoke of the danger from fire in the large lumber yards along Water street, and urged that the house should be kept as near its present site as possible, as the most central location.

Joseph B. Cunningham, president of the board of fire commissioners, spoke in favor of the exchange. He said that there was too much apparatus for a house of that size and that they were in another's way. The present house, he said further, cost, including furnishings, $25,500 to build, and the $38,000 offered by the railroad company would build a much larger and more modern and complete house than the old one is.

District of New Haven, ss. Probate Court, August 6, 1904.

ESTATE OF HUGH BRITTON, late of New Haven, in said District, deceased. James P. Britton having made written application praying that the time heretofore limited for the presentation of claims against said estate be extended, as by said application on file in this Court more fully appears, it is Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at a Court of Probate to be held at New Haven, in said district, on the 11th day of August, 1904, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that public notice of the pendency of said application, and of the time and place of the hearing thereon, be given by publishing this order three times in some newspaper having a circulation in said District.

By Order of Court,
JAMES KINGSLEY BLAKE, Clerk.

District of New Haven, ss. Probate Court, August 6, 1904.

ESTATE OF CHARLES A. WARREN, late of New Haven, in said District, deceased. The Executors having exhibited their administration account with said estate to this Court for allowance, it is Ordered, That the 10th day of August, 1904, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at the Court of Probate to be held at New Haven, in said district, be and the same is appointed for a hearing on the allowance of said account, and this Court directs that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given by publishing this order three times in some newspaper having a circulation in said district.

By Order of Court,
LIVINGSTON W. CLEVELAND, Judge.

COMMITTEE ON RAILROADS AND BRIDGES.

occupation; so I resolved myself into a committee of one to investigate and decide on a suitable costume. I wanted something comfortable that would fit the surroundings and at the same time enable me to feel at home before other people.

It took some courage to don short skirts at first, and I thought rubber boots made me look like a fright; but I could not fish without wading and could not wade without boots, and as I was bound I would catch some fish at least, I mustered up courage, and got into the boots.

I finally decided on a short skirt, an ordinary canvas hunting coat, a soft felt hat, a double-breasted woolen skirt converted into a blouse waist, a pair of trousers that were neither bloomers nor knickerbockers, cotton stockings with woolen bicycle stockings over them, and a pair of ordinary heavy shoes with sensible heels.

For wet weather and for wading I have added a pair of boy's rubber boots and a featherweight rain cape which can be folded up and put away in my hunting coat pocket when not in use, as it only weighs about two pounds.

Any woman will find this outfit, with perhaps some slight modifications, to fit her own individual taste, almost the ideal dress for an outing trip anywhere.

—Rena A. Phillips in the August Outing.

To Decide Date of Democratic State Convention.

John J. Walsh, chairman of the democratic state central committee yesterday notified Secretary Edwin S. Thomas that a meeting of the committee would be held at the Tontine hotel next Monday at 10 a. m.

At this session the date of the state convention, the temporary chairman of it and the location of the state headquarters will be decided upon.

For temporary chairman George M. Gunn of Milford is most frequently named and it is quite likely that he will open the session. The convention will probably be held one week after the republican state convention and will be in New Haven.

It is not thought that there will be any opposition to the selection of New Haven as the headquarters for the state.

MURDERED MAN BURIED.

Funeral of Henry Osborn Largely Attended Yesterday.
Hartford, Aug. 8.—The funeral of former Police Commissioner Henry Osborn, who was murdered by Joseph Watson, a negro youth, Friday, was largely attended from the South Congregational church this afternoon.

Rev. James Bradin, who officiated, paid a tribute to the life of the dead man. Mayor Henney, members of the city government, several state officials and many of Hartford's most prominent men were in attendance at the services. The burial was in Cedar Hill cemetery.

YESTERDAY'S STOCK MARKET.

Unable to Withstand Effect of Sensational Wheat Market.

New York, Aug. 8.—Stocks proved unable to withstand the effect of the sensational wheat market to-day, although there was sturdy resistance during the early part of the day. Danger of a rupture of the steel billet pool, and an open market for finished steel products had its effect upon U. S. Steel preferred, and exerted a strong sympathetic influence on the whole list. There was no inclination to belittle the seriousness of the wheat situation to the business future if the damage reports should prove well founded, but it was urged that it was worth while for security holders to wait for the government's estimate, to be published Wednesday, to secure an impartial and uncolored judgment on what harm has actually been done to the spring wheat crop. In face of the flood of damage reports that poured into Wall street from the northwest and the wheat markets of the country, and of the sensational jump in the price of wheat, however, the early firmness of the grain carriers gave way in the latter part of the day under rather free offerings. The influence of one or two strong spots in the trading had meantime passed away. Sugar rose with sustaining effect on the list from the belief that a large fruit crop would make a large demand from the canning industry. Metropolitan Street Railway's advance was due to often revived rumors of a combination with the Interborough Rapid Transit. The cancellation of the engagement of $2,500,000 gold for shipment to London was of some sentimental benefit, but was without effect in the money market. The weakness of the iron and steel stocks was traceable to the accusation made against the Republic Iron and Steel company of converting iron into steel billets at prices that made the operation equivalent to a cut of $4 per ton in the pool's price for steel billets. Reports of special meetings of the steel pools to be held this week to consider the situation, and assertions that disruption of the pools and an open market for steel products would result, brought a pressure upon U. S. Steel preferred which cost it a loss of 1-1/2 points. Weekly traffic reviews by railroad officials were of a favorable and hopeful tenor, and the later recovery in the stock market reflected a cheerful undertone in the speculation. The closing, however, was heavy.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $2,223,000.

U. S. bonds were unchanged on call.

BRIEF MENTION.

High water to-day, 9:09 p. m. The McIntosh Monthly for August is a highly attractive number and as is usual with this fine magazine, it is richly illustrated; copies at the Pease, Lewis Co's.

President Hadley has an article in this week's New York Independent on "The Public Purpose of Education," and Walter Camp has one on "Collegiate Track Athletics;" copies at the Pease, Lewis Co's.

The New Haven County Anti-Tuberculosis home on the old Gaylord farm in the western part of Wallingford will possibly be opened about September 1, and not later than the 15th. The cottages are completed and the work of installing the furniture has begun. The institution is one of the finest of its kind in the New England States.

Arguments for and against the approval of the plan for widening the cut, as recently submitted to the board of aldermen by the Consolidated railroad, will be heard by the railroad commissioners at a meeting to be held in this city next Tuesday, August 16, at 11 a. m., when all interested will be given an opportunity to express their views on the subject.

Attorney F. J. Kinney, of Branford, broke the bone of his right arm Saturday in the game with Milford. In the second inning he was struck in the forearm with a vicious in-shoot and a large bunch was raised, giving him much pain. He continued the game, however, made a hit, scored a run and covered his position in left field. After the game Dr. Townsend made a careful examination and found the bone was fractured. Mr. Kinney came home and Dr. Tenney reduced the fracture.

Frank G. Smith of the New Haven Window Shade company with his wife and children are spending a vacation at Fall Village. The many friends of Milus Frank, who for years was one of our most prominent merchants, and who has been residing in New York for the past two years, will be glad to learn that he is now making his annual summer trip to this city to again greet his old friends. He is stopping at the Goodman cottage at St Thomas street, West Haven.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Mrs. Roxana Ives Wixon. Mrs. Roxana Ives Wixon, widow of Legrand Wixon, whose death we record this morning, has since the death of her husband, three and one-half years ago, lived with her only daughter, Mrs. Florence L. W. Burnham at Long Hill, Springfield, Mass. She was the daughter of Captain Leonard Ives of North Haven, but had lived for more than sixty years in New Haven, and while she had been patient and cheerful she had missed the friends of a lifetime since she had lived in Springfield.

The death of Edwin Blair Bowditch, one of the leading business men of this city for half a century, occurred yesterday noon at his residence, 291 Orange street.

His final illness was comparatively short. He was stricken with heart failure on Friday and pneumonia developed on Saturday. He sank rapidly, passing away at 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. From the first Dr. Charles B. Foote, who has been in attendance, had been able to hold out little hope of recovery.

Mr. Bowditch's business life had been largely compassed by his activity as head of the Bowditch Furniture company of Orange street, one of the oldest and most reliable business concerns of the city. This was founded by the father of Mr. Bowditch and it came to his son, who has just passed away, as an inheritance which was carefully conserved and developed till it became one of the best known firms of its kind in the east.

Mr. Bowditch's wife, who was Miss Frances King before her marriage, passed away in December, 1891. Three daughters survive. Mrs. Frederick Stanley Root, wife of the secretary of the American Social Science association; Mrs. Arthur B. Woodford, one of the faculty of the Hopkins Grammar school, and Mrs. F. H. Gaylord of this city. The grandchildren are Edwin B. B. Gaylord, Frances Burnham Woodford and Margaret Woodford.

Mr. Bowditch was formerly deacon of the old Third Congregational church of this city and later was a member of the United church. For many years he had retired from the active management of his business, and had been seen but little in local business circles. He was a man of the highest business integrity, of absolute modesty, of unostentatious tastes, and was gentle and lovable in his business as well as in his family relations.

Funeral services will take place at his late residence, 291 Orange street at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning. Burial at the convenience of the family.

MRS. ELLEN J. HOPE. The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Ellen J. Hope will take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her late residence, 511 Whitcomb street. The burial will be in Westville cemetery.

PATRICK J. MURPHY. The funeral of Patrick J. Murphy will take place from the residence of his parents on Ann street this morning at 8:30, and from a reglem high mass at St. John's church at 9 o'clock.

MRS. ELLEN AHERN. The funeral of Ellen Ahern, widow of Stephen Ahern, was held at her late residence, 191 East street, yesterday morning at 8:30 o'clock and followed by a reglem high mass in St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock.

MRS. SUSAN MEYER. The funeral of Mrs. Susan Meyer, who died Saturday afternoon at her home, 10 Barclay street, where she had resided for thirty-two years, will take place this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from her late residence, Rev. Mr. Timm officiating.

MRS. FRANCES DIBBLE. The funeral of Mrs. Frances Dibble, widow of Charles Dibble, who died Friday afternoon, took place from Trinity church at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Rev. Charles Scoville officiated and the interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

MRS. MARY W. CLARK. The funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Mary W. Clark will be held at her late home, 105 Dwight street, at 10 a. m. this morning. The interment will be in Plainville cemetery in the family lot at the convenience of the family.

MARY COSTIGAN. The funeral of Mrs. Mary Costigan, widow of William Costigan, took place yesterday morning from her late residence, 31 Franklin street, at 9:30 o'clock and from St. Patrick's church at 10 o'clock. A mass of requiem was celebrated. She leaves a family of four daughters and two sons, Mrs. James A. Farley, Mrs. M. H. Gihuly, William Costigan and Michael Costigan. Interment was in St. Bernard cemetery.

MRS. MARY A. JOHNSON. Funeral services over the remains of the late Mary A. Johnson will be held at her late residence, 15 Faren avenue, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Relatives and friends invited to attend.

THOMAS B. LOCKYER. The funeral of Thomas B. Lockyer, who died at his home, 59 Shelton avenue, Sunday after a long illness, will be held from his late residence to-morrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The burial will be at the convenience of the family.

WALTER ROGERS. Walter Rogers died at his residence, 24 Greenwood street, Friday night and his burial took place at 2:30 yesterday afternoon in Evergreen cemetery.

REV. FATHER HARTIGAN. Yesterday morning at 8 o'clock a solemn requiem high mass was intoned at St. Mary's church in memory of the late Rev. F. V. Hartigan, former pastor of that church, who died in Minneapolis Friday night. The mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Heagan, the Rev.

Fathers Ford and McGonigle assisting. At the 7:30 o'clock service in St. Mary's Sunday morning the Rev. Father Ford preached a panegyric on the deceased, paying a high tribute to him.

DEATH OF CHARLES CASPER. For Years a Prominent Manufacturer in Meriden. Charles Casper, aged sixty-four, died at his home in New Rochelle, N. Y., Saturday as the result of an operation for appendicitis. He did not regain consciousness. Mr. Casper was for many years president of the Meriden Silver Plate Co., now the Harbour Silver Co., or Factory A, International Silver Co. He was at his office in New York a week ago, attending to business as usual. He was taken ill Tuesday at his home there.

WALLINGFORD. To-day is the twenty-sixth anniversary of the Wallingford tornado, which occurred Friday, August 9, 1878. Abbotan lodge, I. O. O. F., will hold a memorial out-to-night after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Twitshell, Mrs. Hannah Sneider and her granddaughter, Edith, yesterday morning for a stay at Indian Neck. A party of about twenty members of the Y. M. C. A. spent Saturday and Sunday at the club's cottage at Indian Neck.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cook are entertaining Miss Edna, who is on a tour of the home on Curtis avenue. The Misses May and Catherine Wall left yesterday for a few weeks stay in Stratford, Ct.

Mrs. Fay Fuller and daughter, who have been stopping at Judge Phelps' left yesterday for Stratford, Ct., returned from a very enjoyable vacation spent at Short Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Stone, of Chester, Conn., will preach at the Congregational church in Fitchburg, Mass., next Sunday.

At the First Congregational church next Sunday Rev. Robert Craig of Newark, N. J., will officiate and also the Sunday school. Rev. Arthur B. Chase, rector of the Episcopal church in Ware, Mass., and family are at Stratford, Conn., for this month.

Rehearsals of the opera "Queen Esther" will be held in the basement of Holy Trinity church to-day and Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The carpenter's union will have a smoker August 15. There will be an impromptu entertainment and refreshments at 7:30 o'clock.

Mispah chapter will serve box lunches at the Masonic home Grand Masters' day, September 1. This morning, a monthly mind mass will be celebrated at Holy Trinity church for the late Michael Downes.

AT THE HYPERION. Dockmaster's Famous Minstrels. Lew Dockstader and his great minstrel company are booked to appear at the Hyperion to-morrow evening. Eight very funny comedians, including Lew Dockstader, present features that are entirely new, novel and laughable. A score of cultured vocalists, whose voices please in their harmonious renditions and in the interpretation of such popular programs. The first part is decidedly beautiful and impressive, closing with a stirring military tableau. Everything proceeds in a bright, bright and funny, and there is not an old joke or act from the start to finish. The entire performance will be given in black face.

RECOVERY DOUBTFUL. Max Gordon, who was hurt in an explosion at Savin Rock Sunday night, was said to be in a critical condition at the hospital last night and there is little hope of his recovery.

Simon Ginsberg, who was injured at the same time, is not in a serious condition, and his full recovery is only a matter of time.

DEAN F. S. SANDERS RETURNING. Word has been received from Dean Frank S. Sanders of the Yale Divinity school that he has left the Pacific slope, where he has been in charge of a mission since early in June, and is on his way back to this city. He will make several lengthy stops, and will not arrive until about the middle of September.

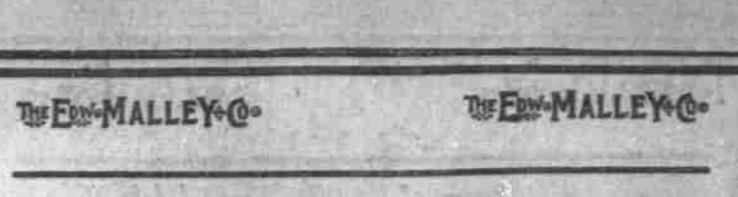

YACHT CLUB COMING. The New York Yacht club will enter this harbor in all probability late next Thursday afternoon, and leave here early the next morning to continue their annual cruise. There will be a large number of vessels in the fleet both big and small. The Pequot and New Haven Yacht clubs will entertain many of the visitors.

SAILED SATURDAY. George D. Bone of 37 Warren street, who sailed for Scotland two months ago on a tour, has just returned to Glasgow on Saturday by the Anchor line steamer Columbia. The Columbia is due at New York on Sunday morning.

COMING HOME. James Moore, of 115 Bradley street, and John Cromer, who have been touring through Europe for the past two months left Liverpool on the White Star liner Cedric last Friday. The Cedric is due in New York Saturday morning.

BOARD OF COMPENSATION. A special meeting of the board of compensation will be held in the city hall on Thursday evening to consider the establishment of the grade of Shirland avenue.

THE THOMPSON SHOP. HOME DECORATOR. Established 1884. 813-815 CHAPEL ST., NEW HAVEN, CT.

Good Things That Are Not Bargains.

BARGAINS enough in the store to talk about—bargains in silks, shoes, underwear, shirts, wash fabrics, china and hosiery, among others—but we won't talk about bargains today. Let's talk about good things to eat and drink.

First, there's the Palm Tea Room—the haven of the wearied shopper, the Mecca of the hungry, the cure-place for the jaded appetite. It's not a restaurant. You can't get anything you want, but you want everything that you get there. The place is so quiet, restful and pretty, the service is so watchful and quick and the dishes served are so well prepared and well thought of, that the appetite jumps to meet the viands, no matter how tired you may be or how hot the day.

Then there's "Point Breeze"—the new candy and soda rooms in the basement. Yesterday the thermometer was seven degrees lower in "Point Breeze than on the street at the same hour. It is always cool and airy and refreshing. And it serves the best ice-cream soda and cooling drinks in town. This isn't our say-so—everybody says it.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

City Engineer's Office, No. 17 City Hall, New Haven, Conn., August 4th, 1904. Sealed proposals will be received at this office by the Director of Public Works, New Haven, Conn., until 2 p. m. of the 15th day of August, 1904, for the construction of a Macadam section of road in the Town of New Haven, in accordance with the plans and specifications approved by the State Highway Commissioner.

S. P. THRASHER, 82 Church Street.

Real Estate and Loans.

I have a fourteen room house in Brooklyn, N. Y., which I wish to exchange for property in the suburbs of New Haven; a rare chance for a party to purchase up-to-date Brooklyn property. A desirable house in East Haven; a house on Garden St., one on Silver St.; a good lot on North Front St., Fair Haven, can be bought for one-half its actual value; Mt. Carmel and Cheshire property.
