

EIGHTEEN SHIPS OF BALTIC FLEET SIGHTED

REPORTED IN KAMRANH BAY ON COCHIN, CHINA COAST.

This Point About 200 Miles Northeast of Saigon on Cochin, China Coast—Unconfirmed Report of Small Engagement—St. Petersburg Still of Opinion That Rojestsvensky Has Taken Togo by Surprise by Appearing in China Sea—Russians Driven Back.

Singapore, April 16.—The North German Lloyd steamship Prinz Heinrich reports that she sighted eighteen vessels of the Russian Baltic squadron in Kamranh Bay at noon on Friday last. The steamer did not sight any Japanese warships. The seven Dutch cruisers now at Rhio will return to Batavia on Monday.

Kamranh Bay is in Cochin China, about two hundred miles northeast of Saigon.

St. Petersburg, April 17.—12:45 a. m.—There is no information from Vice-Admiral Rojestsvensky's squadron, but the admiral would not be surprised to learn of skirmishing between scoutships to-day or to-morrow, and the inauguration of torpedo boat warfare soon is not unexpected. The naval organs here express the opinion that Togo was taken completely by surprise when Rojestsvensky suddenly appeared at the entrance of the China Sea and is now concentrating his widely scattered fleet near the Pescadores, where it is believed a sea fight will probably occur.

London, April 17.—There is as yet no news of a naval battle in the Far East or of the whereabouts of the rival fleets. The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail sends a rumor of a small engagement, but there is no confirmation of this report. Details regarding the Russian ships in Kamranh Bay, Cochin China, are too meagre to be instructive.

According to the Daily Mail's Singapore correspondent, the North German Lloyd steamer Prinz Heinrich saw five battleships and six cruisers in the bay, but the dispatches to the other London morning newspapers are not so precise. The Daily Telegraph's Singapore correspondent, like the Associated Press, merely reports "eighteen vessels," and adds that the captain of the Prinz Heinrich states that possibly more warships were inside the harbor, but they were invisible from the offing.

The presence of the Russian squadron off the Annam coast is raising keen interest here, in view of the possibility of their infringing Chinese neutrality, and the likelihood of Rojestsvensky having had to split his squadron. The Morning Post's correspondent at Shanghai telegraphs that China has instructed the governors of the southern provinces to maintain strict neutrality, in view of the possibility of Russian ships sheltering there.

JAPANESE ADVANCE.

Russians Driven Back in the Singking District.

Tokio, April 16 (Noon).—The following official announcement was made to-day: "The forces advancing north from Singking, driving the enemy before them, occupied Yingcheng, thirty-eight miles north of Singking at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of April 14. A detachment of the same force, cooperating with cavalry, occupied Pachiatz at 6 o'clock in the evening of the same day.

"The enemy's force near Pachiatz consisted of seven sotnias of cavalry and one battery of artillery. They first retreated toward Yingcheng, then came back to Pachiatz. Finding it occupied they were thrown into confusion and they retreated in great disorder over Pelling pass, two miles north of Pachiatz.

"There is no change elsewhere."

TO STOP BURNING OF STORES.

General Linvitch Issues Strict Order to His Armies.

London, April 17.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg to a news agency reports that General Linvitch has issued an order forbidding officials of the commissariat to burn stores prematurely and reproving officials in cases that have already occurred. The order directs that stores should be only destroyed hereafter by permission of the commanders of army corps and divisions.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Tokio reports that the Japanese reserved 200 of the 500 guns which the Russians abandoned in the retreat from Mukden.

Tokio Employers Celebrate.

Tokio, April 16.—Thirty thousand employes of the arsenal paraded to-day in celebration of the fall of Mukden. They visited the palace and cheered the emperor, and afterwards went to the war and navy departments and cheered the ministers and their staffs.

Defense Zones Declared.

Tokio, April 16.—The navy department has proclaimed defense zones surrounding the Pescadores, the island of Okinawa, in the Lochoo group, and the islands of Oshima and Emi off the province of Osumi. The usual navigation restrictions apply.

Heard Firing April 12.

Hong Kong, April 16.—The steamer Telemachus reports that she heard firing 150 miles north of the Natuna islands at 3:20 o'clock in the afternoon of April 12.

FIRE AT MEADOWS END.

Four Cottages Destroyed at Midnight Last Night.

Milford, April 16.—Fire which broke out about midnight to-night destroyed four cottages at Meadows End, and for a time it looked as though several more were doomed. The Milford fire department was called to the place and succeeded in checking the flames after a stubborn fight. The flames broke out in the cottage of Mrs. Charlotte A. Porter and soon spread to another cottage of Mrs. Porter near by, destroying both. The loss to these two will be about $2,000. A short time later the cottage of Enos L. Tinkham, of Waterbury, on the beach at Meadows End, was ablaze and that, too, was destroyed. A cottage belonging to John Buchler, of Meriden, also caught fire and was burned down.

Hundreds of citizens turned out to fight the fire and helped to keep it from doing any more damage until the fire department reached there. So fast did the fire spread that it was first thought that the residential section of the summer resort would be wiped out.

POPE RECEIVES AMERICANS.

Shakes Hands With 150 in Hall of Consistory.

Rome, April 16.—Pope Pius X. to-day received in the hall of the consistory 150 Americans, including General Jacob S. Smith and wife, Albert Boardman and family, of New York; Mrs. M. D. Walsh, E. Dietrich, B. F. Shriver, of Baltimore; Miss Kraleigh, Mrs. J. G. Fitzpatrick and family, of New York, and Miss Emmet, of New York. The pope entered the hall accompanied by high personages of the court and preceded by two American private chamberlains, Rev. Martin Maloney, of Philadelphia, and Rev. J. S. Brennan, of Wilmington, Del. He gave his hand to each of the Americans in turn and said a kind word. Afterwards, standing in the middle of the hall and speaking in Italian, his words being translated by Rev. Dr. Murphy, vice-rector of the American college at Rome, his holiness said how pleased he was to meet so many Americans.

BIG DROP IN TEMPERATURE.

Groovers in South Alarmed—A Frost Predicted.

Charlotte, N. C., April 16.—News from the North Carolina trucking belt is that the fall in the temperature has alarmed groovers. The weather bureau predicts frost, and if the wind subsides it is likely to prove true. The bean crop will likely suffer most, while the strawberry crop, which is just beginning to be picked, will not be injured much, except to delay ripening to some extent.

Charleston, S. C., April 16.—With a drop of fully twenty degrees in the temperature recorded since morning, truck farmers in this vicinity are anxious concerning the future. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are invested in truck in this section, and hundreds of acres of peas, beans, lettuce, asparagus, cucumbers and other vegetables are in danger. The local weather bureau has issued frost warnings, predicting a fall to forty degrees.

GREAT STRIKE IN ITALY.

Employees of All the Railroads to Quit Work To-day.

Rome, April 16.—A general strike of railway employes is to be inaugurated to-morrow morning, in accordance with the arrangements perfected through cipher telegrams directed to all railway centers by the agitation committee at Rome. The Neapolitan railway men were insistent upon going on strike Saturday night, and as a concession to them the central authorities of the operatives' association consented that traffic on some of the Naples lines should be stopped immediately, but that on others one train should be run to-day.

THE STRIKE WILL PROVE A GREAT EMBARRASSMENT TO FOREIGN TOURISTS, OF WHOM THERE ARE A GREAT MANY IN ITALY JUST NOW.

FIRE IN CATHEDRAL CHAPEL.

Congregation Quietly Dismissed Without Knowing Reason.

Burlington, Va., April 16.—A charcoal ember from the censor accidentally kicked into a closet filled with paper started a fire in St. Mary's Cathedral to-night while the edifice was crowded with Palm Sunday worshippers. The blaze was discovered by the sexton, who finding it beyond control, notified Rev. Father P. J. Barrett, the officiating priest. The latter dismissed the congregation, announcing that service would be suspended because of an accident. The congregation left the church without knowing of the fire. The flames were confined to the interior of the chapel, the chief loss resulting from the ruin of altar draperies and statues.

Arrests for Illegal Fishing.

New Fairfield, April 16.—Game Warden Edward Bailey and two deputies swooped down on a fishing party here about midnight last night, making five arrests on the charge of illegal fishing. Charles and James Barnum of Danbury, Michael Doyle and two other men named Nevius and Richardson were arrested, and were released under bonds of $100 each. They were fishing in Bearsons pond.

Aged Milford Man Found Dead.

Milford, April 16.—Fowler G. Bailey was found dead in his home late last night by a daughter. He was seventy-two years old and leaves a widow and three daughters and one son. Heart disease was the cause of his death.

Overdue Furness Liner Safe.

Hullfax, N. S., April 16.—The Furness liner steamer Jupiter, from Liverpool, England, reached here to-day after a seven days' passage from St. John's, N. Y., where she touched. Some anxiety had been felt for the steamer.

DRANK CARBOLIC ACID.

MRS. GRACE KING DIES AT HER HOME.

Husband, an Engineer, Recently Killed by His Own Train—Apparently in a Despondent Mood—Had Only Been Married Four Months—Committed Deed After Leaving Sister.

About 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mrs. Grace King, widow of the late Engineer King, of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, who was killed by being run over by his own engine at the Union station about six weeks ago, took a dose of carbolic acid, as a result of which she died at 11:15 o'clock last night.

Mrs. King was the daughter of William H. Spooner, the contractor of 1433 Whalley avenue, Westville. She was married to Mr. King only four months ago, and upon his death, which occurred only a few weeks after their marriage, the young woman went to live with her parents at their home on Whalley avenue.

Yesterday afternoon she appeared to be somewhat despondent. In a conversation with her sister she seemed to be depressed. Later she went upstairs, and shortly after her sister, hearing a noise upstairs, went up and found that her sister had drunk about two ounces of carbolic acid. Dr. Marsh was immediately summoned on a hurry call. He did whatever he could to save her, but despite his efforts, she died late last night.

HERBERT H. LANG MISSING.

Son of the Well Known Barber of Orange Street.

New York, April 16.—Joseph H. Lang of New Haven, Conn., asked the police at headquarters to-night to help him find his son, Herbert H. Lang, sixteen years old, who, he said he believed had run away from home and come to this city Saturday in company with Sol Barr, the same age, also of New Haven.

UNREST OF RUSSIAN PEOPLE.

ALMOST STATE OF SIEGE IN SECTION OF CAPITAL.

Cossacks and Police Swarm Streets Near Poutloff Iron Works—Important Meeting of the Constitutional Conservative Party—Great Conference of the Whole of Russia Planned.

St. Petersburg, April 17.—12:45 a. m.—Almost a state of siege exists in the Narva quarter, owing to the suspension of the Poutloff iron works. Soldiers are stationed inside the works, and Cossacks and police swarm in the surrounding streets. The appearance of the district resembles the scenes witnessed during the disturbances last January. The tension yesterday was great, especially when a policeman shot a drunken workman who had drawn a revolver on him; but there was no collision during the day.

The bodies of the two workmen who were accidentally killed at the iron works, and whose funerals their fellows had planned to make a great political demonstration, were interred at daybreak, in compliance with police orders to avoid a demonstration. Several smaller demonstrations had been planned for other parts of the city, but there were no serious disorders.

The constitutional conservative party formed by a number of members of the council of the empire, senators, nobles, landowners and government officials, and presided over by Count Bobrinsky, which hitherto met privately, convened an important meeting for to-day to approve a circular embodying its views and proposals, and to arrange (Continued on Sixth Page.)

DR. HIRSCH'S WARNING.

Marriages of Jews and Non-Jews Should Not be Encouraged.

Chicago, April 16.—Words of warning of the dangers apt to follow marriages of Jews with non-Jews were spoken to-day by Dr. Emil G. Hirsch in his sermon in Sinai Temple.

"I have shown my sanction of such marriages by performing the ceremony myself and such marriages are sanctified, but they should not be encouraged actively," he said.

"So I say, even if all other considerations are forgotten, and for the sake of the world if not for the Jewish faith, the hand of warning should be raised against the mistaking of the flash of passion or infatuation for the love which should be guided by wisdom. The Jews should guard jealously against the marriage of Jew and non-Jew, except in the rare case where a true affinity based upon an agreement in the fundamental things of life has been found and tested."

KING AT ALGIERS.

Saluted by the French and British Warships.

Algiers, April 16.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra arrived here to-day on board the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert. The French and British men-of-war in the harbor saluted the royal yachts. Visits were exchanged with the governor. The populace shows great enthusiasm. King Edward remains on board the yacht.

Sister of Mrs. Irving Fisher Injured.

Word was received in this city last night of the injury of Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb, of Chicago, in a railroad accident near Asheville, N. C., on the Southern Pacific road. Mrs. Holcomb is a sister of Mrs. Irving Fisher, wife of Professor Fisher, of Yale.

Maxine Elliott Disappointed.

London, April 16.—Maxine Elliott, on arriving in London to-day was chagrined to find that the scenery for her play had been accidentally left behind in New York. This will compel her to postpone her opening here until April 25.

NAN PATTERSON'S THIRD TRIAL.

Will Begin To-day—Attends Tombs Chapel With Sister.

New York, April 16.—With her third trial on the charge of murdering "Caesar" Young, a bookmaker, set for to-morrow, "Nan" Patterson to-day attended religious services in the Tombs for the first time, it is said, since she was placed in the prison following the tragedy in June last. With her sister, Mrs. J. Morgan Smith, who is in the Tombs under the indictment charging conspiracy to extort money from Young, the Patterson girl went to the Catholic chapel and listened to the sermon preached by the Rev. Father Luke Evers. To friends who saw her to-day, "Nan" Patterson declared she was in excellent spirits, and was anxious that the trial should go on to-morrow without further delay.

DR. HAYNES' PROTEST.

Stirring Sermon on Rockefeller Gift Yesterday.

Most Despised Man in Nation—Such is Preacher's Belief Concerning Standard Oil Magnate, Who, He Says, Has Alienated Workmen from Christian Church.

Rev. Artemas J. Haynes, pastor of the United church, delivered a stirring sermon yesterday morning in protest against the stand which the prudential committee of the American board took on the gift of $100,000 by John D. Rockefeller for foreign missions. Dr. Haynes described the scene when Jesus drove the money changer from the temple, and applied that story and its underlying teaching to the present agitation over Mr. Rockefeller's donation. Dr. Haynes said in part:

"If Jesus were here in the world to-day the few who have made themselves strong out of the many, those who have broken the laws, and practised extortion and bribery, who have robbed the poor by trading upon public privileges for private gain, who have bought and sold lawmakers and those set to administer the laws, who have openly defied every state and federal authority, and prostituted those institutions on which free government rests—those men, if Jesus were here in the world, would find a great gulf fixed between themselves and the Christ—they would find it utterly impossible to get into any sort of alliance with Him until they had become penitent, as Zaccheus came, offering full restitution, and making public confession of their guilt. If Jesus did not take that stand then he would go back on everything He stood for in Palestine; He would violate and outrage the spirit of His former ministry. He would no longer be the great Protestant. The plain people who have been robbed would turn from Him to find a higher ethic in some other place.

"But what evidence have you that Mr. Rockefeller would fall into this class of the few concerning whom you have spoken? may be asked. May you not be doing him great injustice? Did not our Lord say 'Judge not,' and have you, a Christian minister, the right openly to violate that command? Let me answer by saying, 'Yes, our Lord did say 'Judge not,' but He also said, 'By their fruits ye shall know them.' The fruit of this man's life and work is in 10,000 homes to-day, and it is exceedingly bitter to the taste. No legal judgment, men say, has been passed upon him, therefore you should wait. By the same process of reasoning should not the board wait, seeing he is now under 'formidable indictment'?"

"But what are we to wait for? What are juries and judges and courts and legislatures to this man? They are but the playthings of an idle hour. More than a dozen state legislatures and the federal government itself are to-day investigating charges against the company of which he is the head. What will it all amount to? Nothing, until the people speak. The courts can (Continued on Second Page.)

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Musical Director and His Wife, an Actress, Found Dead.

Philadelphia, April 16.—Louis Heck, jr., musical director of Keith's Chestnut Street theater, and his wife, known on the vaudeville stage as May Belle Eckert, were found asphyxiated by gas to-day in the bedroom of their flat in this city. Two burners of a chandelier in their room were turned on. Whether the couple had deliberately planned to end their lives together or whether their death was an accident has not yet been definitely determined, but the

New Things for EASTER

Natty Effects In Easter Neckwear

Of real captivating, satisfying beauty there is no end in the Easter Neckwear for men.

Whether one admires the elusive chameleon tints, or the exquisite patterns in gray, plum, green or tan—the pleasure of possessing one is very keen.

Some of the patterns are odd. The broken figures and bias stripes especially so. Others are quiet in hue, and less striking in general effect.

At 50c the selection is even stronger.

It's a popular price for a four-in-hand—many men do not care to pay more. Well this showing will strengthen the resolution.

The new silk poplins are most luxurious. The soft, sheer, iridescent effect is very striking.

The largest and choicest line of 25c four-in-hands in New Haven—look this up and see if we are not right.

Lace Collar and Cuff Sets

They're new—correct—exceedingly stylish—Are those Lace Collar and Cuff Sets we are now showing.

The Burning Arrow

By special arrangement this great painting will be shown on our Second Floor for a short time longer.

STYLISH SUITS

An extraordinary reduction Sale of Women's Spring Suits will be a prominent feature of Easter week.

To begin with these suits were marked at a very close margin of profit. From $5.00 to $10.00 more would have been only reasonable, considering the quality.

Which simply means that we offer you fine suits for Easter at end-of-season prices.

Fine Gloves for Easter

Even if it wasn't considered lucky to wear new things at Easter, the necessity for new Gloves would be felt by every woman.

And of course, you want the best.

And when you speak of the very best in fine kid gloves—you refer to the Reynier.

They are best because of the quality of skin used—the cut—the Reynier thumb—the perfect fit. Because of all of these the Reynier takes precedence in the glove-world—took it years ago and always maintained it.

In medium-priced, but very fine quality Gloves, we show the Constance and Madeleine—both made of beautiful skins, and shown in full assortment of new shades, also white and black.

The person of fastidious taste who wants a stunning piece of bric-a-brac for a buffet or sideboard, will choose Salosica.

New Howe Sewing Machines

And the Howe No. 2—equal in design, make, material and finish to the high-cost machines.

Dainty Gifts for Easter Brides

Our Silverware Department is always an interesting spot—particularly so, just now, because of the advent of large additions to the line of novelties.

Just a few of the choice things we have in sterling silver are mentioned below:

- Olive Forks, 75c
Olive Spoons, 95c
Salt Spoons, 50c
Pepper and Salt, $2.25 pair
Bonbon Dishes, $1.25
Pin Trays, $1.00
Child's Set, $3.57
Cake Server, $1.39
Sardine Forks, 75c each
Bouillon Spoons, $9.39 doz.
Bonbon Spoons, 85c up
Pickle Fork, $1.19
Cream Ladle, $1.00
Sugar Shells, 75c to $1.57
Baby Spoons, 90c each
Butter Knives, $1.19
Gravy Ladle, $1.10
Match Safes, $1.69
Lettuce Forks, $2.50
Oyster Forks, $9.10 dozen

Ivory Ware is the name of this new English line of bric-a-brac—one of the most attractive of all recently manufactured novelties.

An ivory-tinted body, set off with mat gold decorations of many sorts. The white and gold contrast is striking, and the effect so contrary to the other novelties in bric-a-brac that it is of great help in decorative effect.

We have Ivory ware in vases, jugs, centrepieces, candlesticks, cabarets, etc.

The person of fastidious taste who wants a stunning piece of bric-a-brac for a buffet or sideboard, will choose Salosica.

It's new, novel, and altogether pleasing. Made of hand-turned, weather-stained wood, with trimmings of antique silver in floral and serpentine effects.

NEW PASTOR PREACHES

AT FIRST METHODIST CHURCH YESTERDAY.

Rev. Francis T. Brown Meets New Congregation—Committee Expects to Resume Services in Remodeled Church Next Sunday—Sunday School Officers Elected.

At the First Methodist church yesterday morning the new pastor, Rev. Francis T. Brown, formerly of Middletown, a graduate of Yale, academic and Divinity school, preached his first sermon to his new congregation.

After the morning service the members of the congregation met Mr. Brown for the first time and all were very much pleased with the choice of the conference for them.

He told how the society had brought about the abolition of two saloons which were formerly in business in the basement of the building of the senate and of the house of representatives.

Another of the accomplishments of the society which he told of was the closing of the world's fair at St. Louis on Sundays. He spoke of the attempt of the people of St. Louis through their delegates to obtain from congress a $5,000,000 appropriation for the aid of the exposition.

Rev. Mr. Brown also addressed the meeting of the Epworth league at 6:30. Yesterday was also the day for the installation of the new officers of the Sunday school.

Sidney Perlin Butler, superintendent; Dr. J. E. Bryant, first associate superintendent; Miss Messer, second associate superintendent; Benjamin Cowan, librarian; Edward Gilbert, secretary; Mrs. Kedsie, pianist.

be bought, but the American people cannot be bought. The legislatures can be bought; the churches can be bought; but the American people cannot be bought.

The plain people may be puzzled over the legal aspects of this matter but they see the moral issue. They are used to giving blunt names to things, and they call this man a robber.

Great heavens, is there nothing certain in this world until some court of law has passed upon it; and even among lawyers is there not such a thing as prima facie evidence? I have not the lawyer's mind but I do have the intelligence of the average man, and for seven years, since I read Mr. Lloyd's "Wealth and Commonwealth" to the time of closing Miss Tarbell's vivid story I have studied this man's company and its methods. If this man has not perjured himself no man ever did; if this man has not robbed the people, no man ever did; if this man, through the company which he dominates, has not broken the laws, no man ever did.

I say judgment has been passed; the evidence is all in, and the verdict has been rendered. The American people are the ones who have passed judgment being themselves the creators of the courts. What progress shall we ever make in denouncing evil if we are to wait for process of law, when the creators and executors of law are but pawns under the thumb of him who plays the game. Here is an extract from a letter which I have just received:

"You halt in the face of the first opportunity to speak a clear rebuke of commercial dishonesty to throw dust in our eyes. We go into court and prove John D. Rockefeller a robber, they will not act on a moral conviction so absolute that nobody doubts. They ask us to charge them with the imbecility of being ignorant of what every man knows privately. And the people, God's great masses of the poor, the great democratic laboring cohorts—how can anybody bearing a Congressional name henceforth look them in the face? I, for one, can't talk back when they say 'You are in with John D. You are the fellows who support foreign missions with the money stolen from American workmen.'

"That letter rings true. It is the old fine spirit of righteous protest. It is once again the fire of God in a man's bones.

"The whole American people believe that in playing the game this company has persistently, and by settled policy, stacked the cards; The Standard Oil company is further unique in the fact that it controls most of the great railroad lines, thus making it unnecessary to resort to the illegality of secret rebates, by which, in the beginning, it gained ascendancy.

"It would almost seem that Providence had arranged this offer of $100,000 in order to give the Congregational church an opportunity to take the high moral ground which would enable it to speak with authority the message that this age requires. No other such opportunity has ever come to us as a church. Above all other men in our American nation this man is despised. His membership in the Christian church and his alliance with religious organizations have done more than any other single influence to alienate the workingman from the church. God has given us our chance to strike and strike in the place where the blow will cut the deepest. What is the extension of our educational work when measured against the opportunity of speaking the fine, clear word that might have been spoken? How shall we answer such a blunt old proverb as this: 'The receiver is as bad as the thief.' We cannot answer it. The case as it stands to-day is a clear one against us. We may spin fine sophistries to the end of time, and it will remain true that there is no way to receive a gift without commending and honoring the giver. We may draw distinctions until we have exhausted all the possibilities of logic, and it will be clear in the end—as it is now, that every argument by which the prudent committee of the American board seek to justify themselves is an argument for accepting money from any source. Gamblers, strates, murderers, all may bring their little share of spoil, and the board, by the logic of its own reasoning must take the money.

"Mr. Rockefeller has lived his life in his own way. He will die and go to his own place. But the American board will remain and continue to do its great work. The way it looks at this thing is of more importance to the world than all Mr. Rockefeller's money.

"When I read the formal statement of the prudential committee something kept crying out within me: 'Two thousand years and this is the utterance of the Christian church! Two thousand years and this is men's understanding of Jesus.' The opportunity of the century, and all we have to show for it is a document of tangled sophistries, a paper that might have been prepared by a corporation lawyer looking for technicalities by which the main issue might be avoided or obscured. Explanations, evasions, excuses, legal quibbles but not one sentence from beginning to end that rings true. Fold that statement into any page of the New Testament and it would burn to a crisp.

"In that statement is an attempt to hide behind the Baptist church. Of the Baptists, this much at least may be said, they have never tried to evade responsibility. They have planted their feet squarely on the ground and stood straight under the burden of their shame."

PAXTINE TOILET ANTISEPTIC is one of the most powerful and economical antiseptics known, it cleanses, disinfects and heals inflammation of the mucous membrane wherever located. This is the reason it so quickly cures sore throat, sore eyes, sore mouth, nasal and pelvic catarrh. To disinfect the mouth and sweeten the breath it has no equal. Paxtine is the formula of a noted Boston physician. All druggists sell it.

CHESHIRE'S PROSPECTS.

MAY RIVAL LITCHFIELD OR LENOX AS SUMMER RESORT.

Greater Demand Now There For Summer Residences and Summer Board Than Ever Before—Many Improvements—Notes.

Cheshire, April 15.—There is some prospect that Cheshire will soon take a boom, and it would be well for Cheshire people to be liberal and sell their land for a fair price if they would have the town grow. There is no reason why Cheshire should not rank with Lenox, Mass., and Litchfield, Conn., as a famous summer resort. It has many advantages over either, as it is near New Haven and on the line of the steam and trolley car lines, and with the trolley lines north, east, west and south, where you can find a more desirable plain. To-day there is a greater demand for summer board and summer residences than can be supplied. If some of our farmers that do not make the farm pay would take a few boarders they might increase their income. If Rockefeller should ever visit Cheshire we think he would be charmed with the place he would build him a mansion here, or would be willing to give some one $100,000 to have built a summer hotel or boarding house here.

One of the most desirable locations would be just north of the Congregational church on land of A. S. Bennett, where a splendid view could be had to the north, east, west and south, and near the trolley cars.

The residence of the late A. C. Peck is for sale with two acres of land, house of twelve rooms, great variety of fruit, 300 feet from trolley car line, 1-1/4 mile from New Haven and Northampton railroad station, a very pleasant place for some one to buy and take boarders. Inquire of F. S. Burnett, 90 Clark street, New Haven.

The syndicate of the Cheshire school have purchased the David Gaylord place adjoining the grounds, and will erect a power house for lighting and heating the school building.

J. M. Speaks has purchased two large buildings lots of the estate of the late Dr. Cornwall, and it is reported that he will build himself a fine residence this season.

A new industry is promised soon to distill witch hazel, as a sufficient supply of witch hazel has been found to keep a distillery plant going for several years.

Eugene Penkett has discovered traces of petroleum on his farm and intends to sink a well and see what can be found.

Mr. Weeks, who is doing the grading on the Milldale trolley, is pushing the work rapidly, and expects to have his part completed by the first of June. Most every one is in favor of the trolley road to Meriden, and it is thought that the road will soon be built.

Scott has his new pavilion nearly done, just north of the hotel. The structure is 40x80 feet and comprises one large floor room, which will be fitted up with buffet lunch, toilet rooms, etc. Upstairs there will be eleven sleeping rooms. The building will add much to the pretty Waverly Inn grounds.

E. Greene Doolittle was quite badly injured last Sunday while driving one of his spirited colts in the east part of town. The animal took fright near C. S. Gillette's and overturned the carriage. Mr. Doolittle was thrown out into a stone wall. He was picked up unconscious, but now he is resting comfortably and it is hoped he will soon recover.

Mrs. A. C. Williams and Hobart Williams, who sailed for Europe several days ago, expect to be gone about six months. They will spend some time at Carlsbad for the benefit of the water and baths. Mrs. Chapman and sons of Rockville will occupy Mrs. Williams' house while she is gone.

HOW FOOD WORKS.

A Sure Way Out of Bowel Troubles.

So called "septic appendicitis" will often hang on for years. This is caused by white, bread potatoes add other forms of starchy food, that the individual does not properly digest, and it is useless to attempt to make a permanent change by any form of drug, for all drugs "wear out" and in time refuse to benefit where the cause of the disturbance is not removed.

Septic appendicitis is a general term for a diseased condition of the bowels caused from undigested starch, and, as stated above, it may go on for years; yet people must have starchy food.

It is a well established fact among physicians and individuals who have made the experiment, that when bowel disturbances are shown, a change in food must be made, and that the famous pre-digested food—Grape-Nuts—is the most perfect remedy for it contains no medicine of any sort, but it is made up of the selected parts of wheat and barley in which the starchy part has been changed into the form of sugar that is found in the human intestines after the starchy part of the food has been perfectly digested.

When Grape-Nuts food is used in place of bread or any of the other forms of starch, the body is supplied with the necessary elements already in the form of this sugar (known as "Post sugar"), and is therefore ready for immediate assimilation for the first act of digestion has taken place outside of the body and during the process of manufacture. Absolute certainty of results can be depended upon and the disease relieved by this method.

A prominent Missouri editor tells this cheerful story: "For three years I suffered from septic appendicitis, with all that involves. The aid of physicians was inadequate and the difficulty of finding food that would assimilate without great annoyance in the region of the vermiform appendix was fairly insurmountable until I struck Grape-Nuts."

"Grape-Nuts I relish and digest comfortably. They have not only proven to be most satisfying and nutritious food, but they have actually healed my ailment. I use Grape-Nuts, after several months use of Grape-Nuts, absolutely free from any disorder whatever, in perfect health—and I attribute my strength of mind and body to Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

The engagement of Miss Nellie Place to Frank R. Lewis of New Haven is announced.

Edwin F. Lawton, a former Cheshire boy, now superintendent of the Hartford lighting system, has been appointed consulting engineer for the viewing of the city of Buffalo to make use of the new Niagara Fall power.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Avery had a new arrival at their home last week Friday of a young boy which they intend to make one of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ainsley have had a boy come to their home a short time since which they will take good care of.

Rev. C. P. Pitblado is appointed pastor of the M. E. church as successor of Rev. B. E. Case, who will go to Kensington.

The old watch shop would be a very good place for a hotel by adding one or two stories, making it quite a large building.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

Hyperion Theater.

One of the amusing characters in "Peggy from Paris," George Ade's musical comedy, which will be offered at the Hyperion theater to-night, is that of Sophie Blutz, the German maid of "Peggy's." She arrives in this country as a green horn, with her mistress, Mlle. Fleurette Caramello, and an attempt is made to foist her on Captain Alonzo Plummer of Hickory Creek, Ill., as his daughter. Sophie doesn't want to, and she is accepted by her father, who does not care to accept her as a daughter, but a strawberry mark, of which existence neither is aware, is at length accepted as settling the relationship, until Plummer's real daughter, who is "Peggy from Paris," straightens out the tangle.

"EBEN HOLDEN."

A delightful play is the dramatization made by Edward E. Rose from Irving Bacheller's famous novel, "Eben Holden." The time of the play is that of the out break of the Civil war. The scene of the first act is laid in the barn of David Brower, and a truer picture of farm life was never presented upon the stage. The second act is at Deep Hole, a shady pool in Tinkle Brook, the home of the wary trout, "Old Settler," and in this act is introduced "Nick," the quaint old fiddler, whose only means of speech is his violin.

The final act is in the kitchen of David Brower's home. The production is an out and out American production, and has all the flavor of sentiment, pathos and drollery that made the novel famous. It is staged with a view of conveying as completely as possible an idea of the spirit and beauty of the story, and the dramatists has done his part well.

The title role will be played by William McKee, who made such a hit in the title part of "David Harem." He will be supported by Blanche Kendall, a well known western actress, and an excellent company. The engagement at the Hyperion theater Tuesday matinee and evening will be played.

"ISLE OF SPICE."

The "Isle of Spice," which returns to the Hyperion theater at an early date, will be one of the best things that New Haven will be favored with this season. Its two acts are filled with catchy songs and pretty dances. "Up to Sam's Marines," a march song, done with a lot of dash and accompanied with a display of flags and the rolling of drums, is one of the song hits of the piece. "You and I," "Mercenary Mary Ann," "Peggy Brady," "How Can You Tell 'Till You Try?," "The Goo-Goo Man," and "The Broomstick Witcher" are some of the best musical numbers.

Carleton King, the leading comedian, in the role of Bompoppka, the sixty-seventh king of Nicobar, is very funny, and unlike most comedians, has a voice which he uses to advantage. Hsi make-up is sufficient in itself to score a hit. Harry Watson and Denman Maley are assisting of Mr. King in the mirth making; the former in particular, with the assistance of fifteen little girls, making a great song hit in "The Goo-Goo Man."

New Haven Theater.

"The Peddler," with Sam Thorne in the role of Abraham Jacobson, the peddler, will be presented at the New Haven theater the first three nights this week, with matinee Wednesday. All lovers of high class melodrama, with elaborate stage mountings to excite the eye will enjoy this production. The play is universally acknowledged to be the best play of its kind ever written by a playwright.

"The Peddler" contains a story abounding in the lights and shadows of laughter and tears, full of pure sentiment and ennobling example. The plot is of absorbing interest, and holds the spectator keyed up to the highest pitch of expectancy. The play is one of the biggest box office winners of the season, and after all is said and done the box office really tells the story of success or failure.

The company is exceptionally strong, introducing the greatest of all Hebrew characters, Sam Thorne, in the role of Abraham Jacobson, an east side clothing dealer. Mr. Thorne impersonates the character with fidelity to nature which is little short of marvelous. The stage settings are superb, the mechanical effects the best money can procure, while the supporting company has been carefully selected. The production is under the direction of Sullivan, Harris & Woods.

"AT THE OLD CROSS ROADS."

It has been claimed, and with apparent good reason, that of the new plays recently produced none has scored a more remarkable hit than Arthur C. Alston's production of "At the Old Cross Roads," which comes to the New Haven theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights this week. Its engagement at the Grand Opera house New York city was marvelous, and this same state of affairs has existed in every large city visited. Manager Alston, who has in the past given us "Friends," "Tennessee's Fardine" and several other first class comedies, has really outdone himself in this his latest offering. The cast this season is even stronger than that of last year, and contains such well known people as James M. Brophy, William Brumwell, Phillip Conner, Harry L. Drukington, Maurice J. Frank Gibbons, May Manner, Annie Mortimer, Easter Of Surpassing Millinery Beauty.

Only six business days till Easter and we are prepared this week to do the largest business in our history. You can come here this week feeling sure that you can be suited in the selection of a new spring hat. There is no feature of a woman's dress requirements that she should be, and is, more critical about, for style, originality and economy. We have over six hundred trimmed hats, ranging in price from

$5 to $25

MUHLFELDER'S

841-843 Chapel Street.

Louise Valentine, Gertrude O'Malley, Kathryn Shay and several others of equal note. There will be matinees Friday and Saturday.

"M'FADDEN'S ROW OF FLATS."

Those who love music and laughter will welcome the coming of "McFadden's Row of Flats," which will be the Easter attraction at the New Haven theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next week. To the great comedy production has been added a grand chorus of twenty mixed voices, and a cast of exceptional merit. There will be a matinee Easter Monday, and the regular matinee Wednesday.

"SUPERBA."

In this season's version of "Superba," which comes to the New Haven theater April 27, 28 and 29, the Hanlons have supplied more new and novel illusions than for many years.

Poll's Theater.

Poll's big headline feature for his attractive bill for this afternoon is a troupe of Tyrolean singers direct from a triumph at Hammestein's New York city theater.

The Oberreiter Troupe of Tyroleans were brought to this country purposely for the St. Louis world's fair, and have made so decidedly a favorable impression that Mr. Poll will present them in his circuit. He went specially to New York city to witness the act and engaged them for a tour of his circuit. Their specialty is decidedly pleasing, appearing in their quaint costumes. Their playing is a feature of the act and they will no doubt create a big sensation as leading number on the lengthy bill.

Miss Augusta Glose and her musical monologues is a new style act. Seymour and Hill with their funny gymnast and the gray soubrette number are sure to arouse the keenest interest.

The juggling McBanns are known to vaudeville devotees of this city and they usually offer something built entirely upon new lines. Fiske and McDonough, with Fiske's own specialty, "Good News," have one of those delightfully uproarious comedy sketches that will help to fill up the bill in splendid style. Harry Scanlon, the splendid bartone, is coming, as well as Huges and Lauchere with their colorful specialty, which completes the bill.

The electrograph will have a special series of pictures of the "Kleptomaniac," and he will be very funny. The motion pictures will also include some comical ones, and what they do will be duly appreciated as a final number of the big bill.

The daily matinees are a feature of this theater. Prices: Evenings, 10, 20, 30 cents; matinees, 10, 20 cents; ladies at matinees, 10 cents; box seats, 50 cents.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Death of Mary N. Babb—Was Taken Suddenly Ill on Friday and Died Saturday.

The host of friends of Mrs. Mary N. Babb, of this city, will be deeply grieved to learn of her sudden death early Saturday morning. Mrs. Babb had been suffering from a cold nearly all winter, but continued her work, not considering her trouble. Thursday afternoon she suddenly became very ill and Dr. Arthur Cheney was summoned. He found that Mrs. Babb was suffering from a complication of diseases, and that her condition was critical. Friday night she lapsed into unconsciousness and remained in that condition up to the time of her death. Surrounded by a host of friends, she quietly passed away, although every effort was made to save the valued life.

Mrs. Babb, whose maiden name was Miss Mary N. Moses, was born in Exeter, N. H., about sixty-five years ago. Her girlhood was spent in that place, and when a young woman she went to the city of Boston and became a school teacher. It was while doing this work that she married George W. Babb, who was a photographer in that city.

After living in Boston for some years the happy couple came to this city to live about twenty years ago. Mrs. Babb opened a studio here and later Mrs. Babb opened an employment bureau, which she continued up to the time of her death.

Mrs. Babb was quite a talented woman and wrote many articles in prose and verse, under the name of "Solitary," many of which were published in this paper and in papers in various parts of the country. She was of a sweet, trustful disposition and quickly cemented the bonds of friendship with all with whom she came in contact. A devout Christian, a great part of Mrs.

Babb's life was spent in charitable work, and by her many acts of kindness she was able to make the pathway of many unfortunates a brighter one. Mrs. Babb attended the Church of the Messiah, and she was identified with that church in practical all its undertakings.

Mrs. Babb never had any children, but her husband, who was a widower, had three, and on them she showered a mother's love. They are Mrs. George Watkins and Miss Ida Babb, of Bridgeport, and George W. Babb, who is general agent of the Factory Insurance company, of New York.

Funeral services will be held this evening at Lewis & Maycock's mortuary chapel, 1110 Chapel street. Harmony division, Sons of Temperance, of which the deceased was a beloved member, will attend the funeral in a body. The interment will be in Melrose, Mass.

FUNERAL OF MISS WENTZ.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Wentz, the parents of the late Miss Minnie Wentz, who died last week after a long and protracted illness which covered a period of two years. Miss Wentz was a bright and genial young girl, whose sunny disposition and winning ways attracted to her hosts of friends. Her parents did all that was possible to do to save her life, and their faithful ministrations were continued without abatement throughout her entire illness.

Following are the names of those who sent flowers: From her parents, a floral pillow; from her sister, Mary Wentz, a heart; from her brother, William Wentz, Jr., a wreath; from her sister and brother-in-law, a pedestal; from Mr. and Mrs. E. NEW HAVEN GRAND LIST.

Is $200,000 Larger Than Last Year's. The board of assessors has completed the grand list for 1904. The gross amount of taxable property in New Haven is stated at $109,262,817, of which there is exempted from taxation on account of soldier's and of churches property of the value of $813,104. The net taxable property is $108,449,713. This is a net increase of $2,063,174 over 1903. The real estate on the list is valued at $95,142,885, and personal estate at $14,119,132. There is no change in the tax rate for this year, the same rate as prevailed last year, 14 1-4 mills, still being in force.

The New Haven Gas Light company pays the largest amount of taxes of any corporation in the city and Henry F. English is the heaviest individual taxpayer.

Under the last list Yale was taxed for property worth $117,990, but under the new list it has only $85,320 available for taxation.

Mrs. Eugene Wiltgen of Chicago is seeking divorce on the ground that "every girl who came into our house my husband would kiss."

Professor Molisch, of Prague, says that photographs can be taken by the light emitted by raw potatoes and hard-boiled eggs, in which the phosphorescent germs have been artificially cultivated.

In a contest in Cleveland eleven women, all of them 75 years or more, walked four and a quarter miles in an hour and three-quarters, actual time, taking one-half hour out for lunch. The winner was a woman of 78 and her second a woman of 83.

Among various evidences of "anarchy" in Nebraska, the Omaha Bee notes that "every member of the legislature is required to take an oath that he has not accepted and will not accept or receive directly or indirectly any money or any valuable thing from any corporation or person, or any promise of office for any vote he may give or withhold on any bill, resolution or appropriation. But the legislature that has just adjourned has drawn out of the treasury between $5,000 and $6,000 for mileage, while its members notoriously paid no fare, but were travelling on railroad passes.

Mayor Dunne of Chicago has made the discovery that the size of his family brings his residence under the new law regulating hotels and that he could be required to put up fire escapes and other safety devices, were the law enforced. Beside his wife and himself and ten little Dunes his home shelters grandparents, uncles and aunts and five servants, making twenty-three in all. The new law passed after the Iroquois theater fire makes any house having twenty or more persons a hotel and subject to the laws governing hosteleries. Under the law, therefore, the mayor is a hotel-keeper and could be required to put up a sign to that effect.

According to the Electrical Review, only a very small proportion of the efficiency of coal used ultimately to generate electricity is returnable in the luminous rays obtained by the use of an incandescent lamp. Our technical contemporary makes the statement that it is now generally accepted that only between 4 and 6 per cent. of the total amount of electrical energy delivered to the lamp is converted into luminous rays. If that is true, making allowance for the further reduction in efficiency at the generating station, of the energy contained in the coal burned under the boilers less than one-half of 1 per cent. becomes light.

Three French doctors have recently held a consultation having in view the adoption of a code of rules for the treatment of duellists before going into action. It is laid down as a wise precaution to take medicine over night, and on reaching the field the combatants must first be greased all over, then soaped all over, and finally rubbed down with alcohol and sprayed with a solution of sublimate, so that all the personal germs which they may carry out with them are rendered incapable of multiplying their species. When they have now put on suits of clothes, just out of sterilizing ovens, they are ready to take up their arsenic weapons and straddle all over the field in advance, or retreat, till one or the other receives a scratch deep enough to pink his second's cambric handkerchief, when a halt is called and the whole party go off to breakfast in the friendliest manner.

The first recommendation in President Diaz's message this year was addressed to Mexico's senators. He urged them to do their part toward eliminating the chief factor of conflicts between the governments of America by ratifying the convention (signed at the second international American conference) for the submission to arbitration of private claims against the signatories. "I consider it opportune," said Mexico's wise old President, "to recall the fact that the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo of the year 1848 contains important stipulations in regard to arbitration, so that if to these be added those contained in the convention with respect to pecuniary claims, one can realize the remoteness of the fear of any possible difficulty with the neighboring republic on our north, with which, due repute, we cultivate, as is well known, relations which every day become closer and more friendly."

MARY M. BABB

Mary M. Babb, who has "passed on," as she would like to have it said, was of the salt of the earth. She was a woman of the kindest impulses and the noblest aspirations. She spent her life in being good and doing good. Her sympathy and help were always ready for the needy to draw on, and she would stint herself to help others. She loved humanity and she believed in it. She was sure that it would finally come out all right, and she had gentle and hopeful excuses for its present defects. Being cheerful she gave cheer wherever she was, and being hopeful she gave hope. She was active and efficient in church and other benevolent work. She was warmly friendly and so had warm friends. They and all who knew her worth and her faith will hope that she is already enjoying, as she firmly expected to enjoy, larger opportunities for being, doing and knowing than were hers on earth.

SAVING NIAGARA FALLS.

While New York's governor is dependent upon to save New York's part of Niagara Falls from the rapacity of the power promoters, the commissioners of Queen Victoria Park, on the Canadian side of Niagara Falls, show a proper sense of the condition now affecting that majestic cataract. They have just issued their nineteenth annual report and laid it before the Ontario legislature, setting forth that a halt must be called in the granting of franchises at the falls, and that too many have been given away already. Three of them are now in the possession of private companies, and a fourth, permitting the creation of 100,000 more horse-power from the Chippewa river, is under consideration. This will make an aggregate on the Canadian side of 475,000-horse-power, which the commissioners think should not, at the present time, be exceeded. If more are to be given hereafter they should cost the grantees more, and in particular care should be taken that the shores above and below the falls be not marred by unsightly buildings.

More power and success to all engaged in this work. These are days of business, but there are a few things that should not be wholly given over to business. Niagara Falls is one of them.

RICH AS MUD.

An indication that we are at least as rich as mud is found in the fact that diamonds have been and are fast coming into this country. During the past decade over $123,000,000 worth of diamonds have been imported into this country, having increased from $1,500,000 in value in 1896, the earliest year for which figures are available, to $23,750,000 in 1904. Of the latter sum $10,000,000 value was imported in the uncut state, indicating that diamond cutting is becoming an important industry in our country. Jewelry and precious stones other than diamonds, on the other hand, have fallen off from a total importation of $10,189,202 in 1896 to $5,548,224 in 1904. That this decrease in the importation of foreign manufactures of jewelry and other forms of gold and silver does not represent any reduction in home demand for such luxuries is shown by a reference to the census figures. The capital employed in the United States in the manufacture of jewelry has increased from $11,000,000 in 1880 to $22,000,000 in 1890 and $28,000,000 in 1900; and the value of the product from $22,000,000 in 1880 to $34,750,000 in 1890 and $46,500,000 in 1900, practically all of which is consumed in the home market.

We can have what we want, whether we have to import it or make it. We've got the money to make the mare or anything else go or come.

PAPER IN CHINA.

A great deal of paper is made in China, but it is made by hand in small establishments. The rough paper is made back in the hills where there are no means of floating bamboo to market, but where there are canals and water enough to float down light boats with loads of paper. The natives cut their bamboos in convenient lengths, and soak them in lime vats for several months. When the wood is disintegrated, they strain it with home made strainers made out of bamboo fibres, and gather up enough of the pulp to make one sheet of paper at a time. The fibrous mass is beaten or pressed into the paper sheet, and when the greater part of the moisture is pressed out, by hand, it is pressed up against a smooth surface, made for the purpose, on the outside of a native stove or furnace. Sometimes this is merely a smooth place on the outside of the household chimney.

When the sheets are dried in this manner they are counted and packed in bales, which are placed under a native press and kept under it until the product is taken to market. As is usual with Chinese producers of articles of merchandise of this sort, the manufacturer is also the sales agent and transportation company. When the Chinese paper maker has used up his supply of bamboo and rice straw and other paper materials, he takes the result of his labor to market, disposes of it, and goes back home with his winter supply of city goods. The finer grades of paper are made in the cities, as a rule, with appliances which seem very crude, but the quality of paper produced is surprisingly good.

"Mind Yer Own Business"

I met friend Jinks upon the street, and he forgot to stop me for a moment. I inquired about my health, nor told the latest one on Smith. He simply passed upon his way—a thing which pained me much, for he had not regaled me with a bit of gossip, but he seemed to be in no such frame of mind that day; he seemed lost in a world of cares. For all the people in the world were tending to their own affairs.

I stood upon the street and watched the people hurrying to and fro. Their eyes were bent upon the ground, they had no glances to bestow upon their townsmen; now and then a man would stare by accident, and would thrust a gun or put a piece of money in his eager hand. Then onward they would take their way down the gloomy thoroughfares, for all the people in the world were tending to their own affairs.

Indeed, it was a cheerless scene! The cripple, clad in rags, would whine his piteous tale in vain, and in a woman's eyes I saw the shine of fever, but no hand was raised to help her, and she went alone. Until her strength failed, and, sinking on the clammy stone, she lay there, shrinking from the gaze of passers-by with heartless stares.

For all the people in the world were tending to their own affairs.

In vain I listened for the ring of laughter that was once so sweet. But all I heard upon the street was just the ring of hurrying feet. And when I woke and rubbed my eyes and saw the morning sun—a gleam of gladness. And I realized that it had been the darkened shadow of a dream. I said "good morning" to the world, and clattered gladly down the stairs. I thanked the Lord that people do mix up in other folk's affairs.—Detroit Tribune.

Why Mr. Kerley Will Not Vote for Mayor Studley.

To Editor of the Journal and Courier:

With your permission I wish to give my many friends and the public my reasons for not voting for the re-election of the present mayor at the coming city election. I have been a Republican from the formation of the party, voting that ticket in full except in city elections, when I have often voted some part of the Democratic ticket, if I thought the nominee the most worthy of the place. Four years ago I voted for Studley, but my faith in him was tried when he refused to sign the estimates of the board of finance, because the police department could not have all they asked for, giving a shallow reason, which would have disgraced a grammar school student, and while then I could not understand the motive for such action I do fully understand now. At that time I almost registered a vow that I would never vote for this man again, but I did two years ago, not being as well informed as now as to how things were drifting. While not a member of the Citizens' League, and thinking that some of their movements might not be the best, still I fully endorse the indictment against the present mayor, in the appeal of the league to the voters of this city, and the report of the special police commission, who, by the way, were appointed by the mayor himself, and who certainly have the fullest confidence of the community. One of the greatest sources of corruption in the government of cities is the control of the police, and the present demoralized condition of this force (not through the fault of the men) in this city is justly charged upon the mayor. And going back the source of all this is one man who has in a short time, to the wonder of all men, developed into a "boss" as successful and relentless, as ever Quay was in Pennsylvania. Those in his own party who dare to protest are speedily consigned to political oblivion, while by trades made by this boss with another in the Democratic party, we have the strange spectacle of a Republican mayor being assured of an election by the votes of some of the worst elements of the other party. This state of things will not be continued longer by my vote. I appeal to all of my republican friends, with whom I have labored in the past, that before casting their votes at the coming city election, they inform themselves on these matters which are of such vital interest to our city. Perhaps you may be surprised to learn what is going on in our fair city. We have charged in the past that the "saloon element" (so-called) mostly voted the Democratic ticket, but whether this has been true or not in the past it is not true now, so far as voting for mayor is concerned, and can we assume that they are fools when they march to the polls and vote for a Republican mayor? I appeal most earnestly to my co-laborers in religious work that they fully inform themselves whether the things charged against the present mayor of this city are true or not, before they vote for his re-election, and I also appeal to all other good citizens to help stem the rising tides before we become a stench and a by-word, as is the case in Philadelphia. This good work can be done now, better than if relegated to some more convenient season. Fortunately there are presented for our suffrages for mayor two good men, either one of which is not open to the objections against the present incumbent.

KINGS' PAY ENVELOPES.

How the Effete Monarchs of Europe Have to Draw Their Wages.

The Emperor of Russia is the only European sovereign who is entitled to draw on the revenues of the country over which he rules whenever he pleases and to almost an unlimited extent. All the vast sums accruing from various forms of taxation in Russia are banked to the credit of two officials named the Imperial Treasurers, who discharge all the liabilities of the Russian Government.

The Czar, however, has the first call upon the money paid into the Imperial Treasury and draws upon it whenever he wishes by simply directing the treasury officials to lodge so much money to his private account, giving them a voucher for the amount. Under the Russian Constitution the Czar is entitled to receive a seventh share of the revenue of the country, and though he, as a matter of fact, never draws upon the treasury to this extent, the Emperor of Russia is yet far the best paid and wealthiest of European monarchs.

The Emperor of Germany is in receipt of a salary of £100,000 per annum from the State, but His Imperial Majesty has, of course, many other ways of supplementing this pay, which would be a very poor one for the sovereign of a great power. The salary is paid into the Emperor's private banking account twice a year, the check for it being signed by no fewer than seven officials, and is finally indorsed by the Kaiser himself. The Emperor, also receives a "military and naval" allowance, which amounts to a big sum, and the expenses in connection with the maintenance of the royal household at Potsdam are paid quarterly by the State treasury.

King Edward receives a quarterly check from the Paymaster-General for his salary as monarch; the check is what is known as a negotiable receipt, and is sent to the keeper of the privy purse, by whom it is signed on behalf of the King, and then lodged to the credit of His Majesty's private banking account.

The Emperor of Austria is put to some personal inconvenience before he can obtain his salary, owing to the love of maintaining ancient customs and ceremonies that prevail in the Austrian court. On June 1 and December 1 the Austrian monarch pays a visit to the office of the State Treasury, where he is received by three important officials. One of these officials then reads out a document to the monarch, reminding him of the many duties he owes to the State, and exhorting him to the faithful performance of the same. The document concludes with a mention of the amount of money that the Emperor is entitled to receive from the State to maintain him in a position of such great dignity becomingly. The Emperor is then asked if the amount is sufficient, and on his replying to the question in the affirmative, is given a receipt to sign for the money, which is, in due course, lodged to the credit of the imperial account.

The Kings of Portugal's salary is vested in the care of three officials, upon upon the King can draw whenever he requires money. This is an arrangement to which the King of Portugal has a distinct objection, but as it is a very old established custom His Majesty would probably have some difficulty in having in altered. Each of the three purse keepers, as these officials are called, receive £500 per annum, which the King of Portugal has to pay out of his own pocket, so that the arrangement costs the King £1,500

CHICAGO, ILL.

How It Happened That the City is Within the Bounds of the State. It was through one of the really important events of history that the fourteen northern counties of Illinois were included in the boundaries of the state and that we are permitted to call the people of Chicago and vicinity Illinoisans.

In 1818, when the enabling act was being discussed in congress for the admission of Illinois into the union, Nathaniel Pope, delegate from the territory of Illinois, urged that the northern boundary of the new state be moved northward a distance of fifty-one miles. As originally fixed the territory of Illinois had for its northern boundary a line running east and west through the southern bend of Lake Michigan. Pope argued that the metropolis of the northwest must be developed on Lake Michigan, that Illinois by her fertility of soil location, her great length her eastern shore washed for 150 miles by the Wabash, and her western shore bounded by the Mississippi, would be forever united by commercial ties to the Gulf of Mexico and the influence of the south. He saw that the channels of commerce must eventually reach east and north through the great lakes, and that if Lake Michigan of the southern portion of it belonged to Illinois it would bind the state to Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, and thus create a rival interest against the southern influence; that this would make the state of Illinois the keystone of the national fabric; the cementing link which would hold the south to the east and the north; that in the days to come a canal would be built, which, in connection with the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, would unite the lakes and the gulf, and that whenever the question of the dissolution of the union would be raised, as he raised, as he argued it would be raised, Illinois would be the great central power that would save the union.

So in that early day in January, 1818, on the floor of the house of congress, Nathaniel Pope presented these arguments with such power that they were adopted without division. The boundary was moved northward for fifty-one miles, taking in what are now the fourteen northern counties of the state, and the act also established a perpetual fund for the encouragement of learning. How like the voice of prophecy does this argument now appear! In less than fifty years every word spoken by Judge Pope was verified in history. But for this change the canal would not have been built. But for this change the Illinois Central railroad, the creation of which was a chief distinction of Senator Douglas, would not have been built. It was the vote of these fourteen counties in 1818 which sent Lyman Trumbull to the senate and turned the state of Illinois right-about-face on the great question of slavery. It was the voice of these same counties which, two years later, saved the state to the party of Lincoln and made possible his candidacy for president of the United States. In need not go further by way of suggesting the momentous train of events which followed as a result of Judge Pope's work.

The man who made this argument and controlled the action of congress and gave Chicago to the state of Illinois was Nathaniel Pope, the man who afterward became district judge of the United States for the district of Illinois, and who was the first man to hold the distinguished office whose duties are now divided between Judge C. C. Kohlhaas of Chicago and the writer. This has been recorded in history a perpetual call upon Illinoisans of every age to remember the sacred trust reposed in them as the special champions and guardians of the union by the great and wise men who adorned the councils of the nation in the early days of the republic.

No more far-reaching, no more beneficial legislation has ever been enacted by any public servant at any time on behalf of the state, and historians generally accord to Judge Pope the distinction of having achieved more lasting benefits to the state of Illinois during his brief service of delegate than can be accorded to any other man—Chicago Standard.

The new Water Cracker called "Medium hard Water" resembles the old stand-by (Bent's) with just one exception—it is not as hard—and therein lies the excuse for its existence. The only just criticism of the old-fashioned water cracker is that it is too hard on the teeth—its goodness was never questioned. This new Medium hard cracker splits easily for toasting, is perfectly digestible and goes well with milk, oysters, cheese or for any purpose where a cracker with substance to it is wanted. Perfectly plain—no sweetening.

FORESTERS MEETING.

CONNECTICUT GRAND COURT GATHERING NEXT MONTH.

Waterbury, With Twenty Courts, to Have Forty-three Delegates on the Floor—Hopes for Places on the National Delegation.

The biennial convention of the Connecticut Grand Court, Foresters of America, will be held in the Auditorium, Waterbury, Wednesday and Thursday, May 10 and 11. It is about fourteen years since the Foresters last met here in convention, and since that time the order has made immense gains in membership and financial standing.

There will be twenty-one delegates elected from the state to attend the national convention to be held in Buffalo the last week in August. Waterbury confidently expects to furnish a fair share of the twenty-one.

The reception of the delegates by the city courts is in the hands of competent committees who will look out for the comfort and amusement of the visitors. A dance at the Auditorium Wednesday night and a banquet at Concordia Hall the same night are parts of the reception committee's plans.

The delegates from Waterbury have held several meetings and have agreed upon the places they will ask from the convention. As they are united and harmonious it is expected that their desires will be granted.

In connection with the doings of the order the recent fair netted the courts the sum of $3,930, which will do a large amount of good in its distribution as sick and funeral benefits to the members of the order in this city.

PRELUDE BY RACHMANINOFF.

Russian Afternoon of a Dweller in This City of Cosmopolitans.

Lately, in what has been called the most cosmopolitan city in the world, a man enjoyed a Russian afternoon. Two entirely distinct entertainments were accidentally linked together, separated only by an interlude in the shape of a walk down Fifth avenue.

The first was a meeting of Russians and their friends to discuss certain practical matters. The second was at a studio to which the flavor and the perfume of the first seemed to have escaped. And how the real poetry of humanity filtered into the combination of a Russian tea in an American studio, served by a Japanese servant, was odd.

Impromptu and unexpected the visit was. In the dark hallway, after a turn or two, the caller found a door in the blackest corner. He lifted the obscure knocker.

When he entered, pushing aside a Yamanaoka portiere, the broad, pale light from two great, dusty windows opposite threw the interior objects into a dull silhouette. A conglomeration of persons, furniture, rugs, statuary, was for an instant indistinguishable.

Sluggishly moving, under velvets, silks, or motionless in their embroideries, he at length distinguished women from sofa cushions. Tables, divans, were everywhere.

In a moment his eye showed him that the rich golden embroideries, the fabrics of Oriental satins, the expanses of hanging rugs, red or blue, were the background for green and purple gowned women, who reclined here and there or stirred spasmodically about.

What a contrast to the gathering he had left, with its bare colorlessness, its plain faces, its dark, simple clothing!

As a hint of division in the great oblong room, a heavy curtain fell at one side from a crossbar. On this side was luxury—shining tea tables, thickly stuffed chairs, a balcony above, from which depended rich yellow embroideries—shields, sculpture, great branches of palm leaves, sketches, brozes, jars, couches, furs—all somewhat sombre in the late grayish light of the afternoon.

On the other side of the heavy curtain—the light more permeating and pitiless—the floor was bare. Boxes and scaffolding stood naked as the sculptor's quick iron stove, sat a rosy, black gowned chaperon, and within call waited a slight, sarcastic Japanese servant.

The samovar, more mysteriously to balance these bare coils, held in the ante-room its inner warmth, with a slight crackling of charcoal, a faint hissing of the boiling water. A woman who looked astonishingly like a Beardsley drawing, low of forehead, broad of lip, narrow of eye, pointing of mouth, was languidly pouring Russian tea. Voluptuous, slow, indolent, unflummied was the picture.

The late visitor beheld, came near, accepted and drank, after a liberal allowance of Santa Cruz had, with disregard to the unities, been added.

For an instant this seemed like life. Another woman, large, lovely, suave was imperiously pushing a small plain girl to the piano whose keyboard barred a dark corner into a triangle.

At last the plain girl began to play. "Play, play, something Russian! Anything—"

The girl played, with expostulation, a little snatch of a sentimental song from "Mada me Chrysantheme," then a bit of ragtime. No one, of course, listened. But it helped them to talk.

"To ssian—'ssia—' bet id the visitor. "Let us have Russian music."

A mood insisted on taking possession of him, in spite of the irony of things. "Ah—the Russians—I cannot help sympathizing with them," cried the suave woman, with warmth. She had once, been courted by a Grand Duke and by a Russian Count.

"Ah, and mine," murmured the Beardsley mouth. And she had once known a Frenchman who had told her stories of the court of St. Petersburg.

The little Japanese brought in a kettle of water from the top of the redhot stove to replenish the elegant samovar which, if it had not been imported, we should call of Colonial shape.

The chaperon rocked back and forth in the other room. Some one who had once been a military man undertook to furnish her with a very strong toddy.

In movements of intense curve the Beardsley woman allowed the odorous Santa Cruz to drop from its gold trimmed decanter into tiny trimmed glasses of tea.

With hope from such cheerful golden brown beauty the man drank from his glass. He, too, felt a sympathy with the Russian people—yet he never met a Grand Duke. Indeed, he vaguely felt that the names of Grand Dukes scarcely be mentioned lightly in serious circles, for the past meeting of the gray afternoon was still in his thoughts.

At last the plain girl began to play the opening octaves of "a prelude" of Richmannoff. They trod heavily as if burdened—the opening octaves of this dark, sober voice of the Russian prelude.

Crouched in the shadow at the rounded end of the grand piano the Beardsley woman, in purple velvet reposed from her labor, her draperies scarcely moving, her neck hidden in pink corals, her body swathed in places. Very quietly the ex-officer was whispering to the narrow downcast eyes.

Impassive, the sculptor hove lit a cigarette. Under her white plumes the suave beauty grew still—for a moment. Marvelling at the deep call of the voice of a Russian soul, the man closed his eyes. Had he not heard this voice a short time before? Was it not brought here now, with its undertone of a sorrow too strong for sobe? Out of the afternoon's memory, had it not followed him down 27th avenue from the bare plain room where the earnest people had sat listening to learn how they could help their Russian brothers.

Words, images, phrases, looks drifted down to him, crowded at last into his vision. What was the fleshly beauty of any woman's face compared to that sweetness he has wondered at just before?

The face of an old woman who had lived two-thirds of her life at hard labor in Siberia throbbed in his closed eyes. He saw her lowered eyelids, the page from which read in broken English, he heard the eloquent story of her own life. A voice of deeper music he had never heard.

All through the heavy melody, with its whispered pianissimo, of the first part of the "prelude" of Rachmaninoff, he saw the described vision. No more sorrowful than the trailing rhythms were the ragged feet of the convict—the words of the old woman—

"It was a gray, dark afternoon in late autumn. Over the wild, chilly waste of the steppes swept the cold, capricious wind. A rough road threads the sombre waste. Continually from the north the wind beats against the file of prisoners.

"Men and women struggle onward. They are bound toward a period of free exile in a convict town of Tara, where they must serve a few years more after having ended their convict term.

"They do not speak. Long trials, lonely years, solitude of soul have made them wordless. A certain nobility from suffering has invested fine with coarse alike in a same prison garment of quiet."

The vision of the sensitive, beautiful little mouth of the woman, who grew old far away from the kisses of her baby, is in the eyes of the man. He sees the stalwart courage of her figure, at the head of the dark weary column of submerged souls.

The music changes its movement. A melody is brought out, as if a contralto voice were walling its question. "Why—why—? Oh, whither do ye take me?"

The picture changes too. At a halt in the journey of the train toward night fall they are brought tired and cold to a large enclosure. Here, strangely, they see many, many women, neither too young nor too old. They are dressed in white, with rouged cheeks, with coquettishly arranged hair—so fantastic a sight, so weird in this lone, darksome settlement of the wild steppes!

"And then I learned the reason," and the old woman spoke with a sad claim.

"These women, neither too young nor too old, are political exiles and common criminals. Some are refined and noble, others are depraved and of the lowest classes. There are matrons and maidens. There is to be a revel.

"The Russian Government wishes to populate the Siberian convict villages," explains the sad calm voice. "The soldiers and convicts do not mind the lack of comforts, of glamour. Later they are drunken, and the night becomes noisy with orgies.

"I thought I should go mad in my cell," and the serene eyes of the old woman rested for an instant on her audience. "I did not sleep—and in the morning when we resumed march, from the gate of the enclosure we met emerging a train of convict women bound for Siberia. They were dirty, ragged, they were humiliated and in despair.

These women were going to fulfil the decree of the Russian administrative justice. They were also bound on their terrible mission of populating the Siberian convict towns—"

The first movement of the prelude expanded and returned a gain to the first low fervent march. It rose near the end to a deep fortissimo. And the closing octaves trod heavily as if burdened.

For Real Shoe Style, Real Shoe Worth, You Can Depend on

Queen Quality tan and russet and black Oxfords are Trim, Stylish, Perfect-fitting. There are so many styles and kinds in Queen Quality that the most exacting of and shoe whims can be satisfactorily met.

The daintiest kinds of Boots and Oxford Ties are here, just as are the most masculine of style, as one woman who always wears Queen Quality puts it. There's a shoe here for every possible occasion and all kinds of weather—and always $2.50 and $3.50 extra for a few special styles.

From the end of the piano a murmur, a subdued shriek testified that the curving Beardsley shape was enjoying diversion afforded by the ex-officer. The closing chords were done. Some pleasant like a pebble cast into a pool sent out inconsiderable ripples to meet the dying vibrations of these tragic C sharp minor echoes of the Russian steppes.

"That is real caravan tea-brought over the—"

It was the imperturbable, soft voice of the sculptor, explaining to the beauty.

"To be what you are—that is the question," was heard the insistent voice of the ex-officer—answered by the short shriek of amusement from the shadow.

A thin spiral of smoke arose from the sculptor's lips, and he had become silent after his temporary break into speech.

"You see," went on the insistent one, "women are not strong enough to allow their individuality, overburdened with fashions, to be what—"

Every one laughed, but he resumed: "I do not forget that I am speaking in the studio of an artist—"

"Why don't we break away," some one suggested, "break—"

Scarcely awake to the game of light joy, the late visitor reached for his cane and gloves.

Seated at the fire in the other room, the chaperon leaned over to place her empty glass on a tabouret and was anticipated by the swift little Japanese, who conveyed it to a more tidy spot.

Before the plain girl had been pushed back into the triangular corner of another ragtime—"something to wake us up," murmured the sculptor in an artistic torpor—the last caller managed his adieu.

In the dark hallway and in the brisk walk up the avenue in the dusk he thought of the strange conglomerate that life is in a great city. And he thought how far apart human beings are from each other.—New York Sun.

Unrest of Russian People (Continued from First Page.) whole of Russia, to be held in St. Petersburg a few weeks hence. It is stated that the proposals included an elected representative assembly.

Serious disturbances of an anti-Semitic character, in which soldiers of the garrison joined, is reported to have occurred at Chelyabinsk.

In Orenburg a number of houses have been sacked. Troops have been sent there to restore order.

The Son of the Fatherland, now the whole of Russia, to be held in St. Petersburg a few weeks hence. It is stated that the proposals included an elected representative assembly.

Editorializing in this dispatch, the Novoe Vremya says it is no longer the yellow peril which Europe and America is facing, and refers to the words of the French savant, who, when asked how long the war would last, replied, "Two hundred years. Europe does not seem to understand the terrible truth."

The Novoe Vremya predicts that "the enigmas of the future historian will be the indifference, even the hostility, of some European nations toward the great struggle between Japan and Russia, which read inevitably a conflict between Asia and Europe," and quotes the words of the vice governor of Jerusalem on the awakening of the Arabs in Asiatic Turkey to show the deep-seated hatred of Asia toward all Europeans, and the eventual menace to Europe of not only the yellow, but the Asiatic peril.

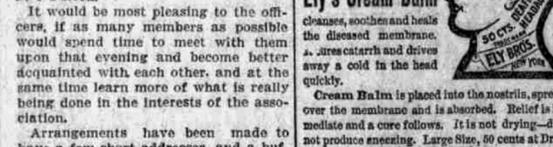

GLOVES FOR Easter Centemeri and Foster in Particular

Women who are at all critical are invited to make the acquaintance of these two world famous kid gloves—and especially at Easter-tide—when, if ever, woman-kind aspires to be well-gowned, groomed and gloved.

No nearer approach to perfection in fit and in quality is to be considered than guaranteed by the CENTEMERI at $1.50 and the FOSTER at $1.

All the correct shades for the season of 1905 are here and only here in this city as we have the exclusive agency. Every pair fully warranted to give unqualified satisfaction or money back.

by association meetings may be held without extra expense. The board of directors have arranged for an informal opening of the new rooms on Thursday evening, April 20, at 8 o'clock.

It would be most pleasing to the officers, if as many members as possible would spend time to meet with them upon that evening and become better acquainted with each other, and at the same time learn more of what is really being done in the interests of the association.

Arrangements have been made to have a few short addresses, and a buffet lunch will be served during the evening. Show your interest by attending social meetings of this kind, and you will aid your officers and directors in carrying on the work and building up the association.

Per request of S. E. Dibble, President, F. J. Lindsey, Secretary.

Japanese Being Reinforced. Siphnah, April 16.—Captured Japanese spies place the numbers of the Japanese army at 400,000, and state that their losses at the battle of Mukden are already being replaced by drafts from home battalions. Lieutenant Komayasi, one of the spies, calculates that the Japanese losses at Mukden were over 100,000.

LIMIT EXPIRED SATURDAY. Danaher Will Not Release New Haven Players.

Attorney C. J. Danaher said Saturday afternoon that he had not sold his New Haven baseball team and franchise. He said he had not heard anything further from P. A. Hendrix, of Tatfield, regarding the purchase of the club, nor from any one else Saturday except Hug McKinnon, of Bridgeport, who had been to Meriden before Saturday to see him. He said McKinnon kept the telephone wires busy on Saturday, but no deal had been made with him.

"Do you still stand by your decision to release your players on April 15, if the league does not rescind its action in the pennant award and Tuckey matter?" Mr. Danaher was asked.

"Yes, sir," replied Mr. Danaher, "but I have the right to change my mind about releasing the players if I so desire."

The limit given the league by Mr. Danaher to act expired at 12 o'clock Saturday night.

PLAYERS REVERT TO LEAGUE. Bridgeport, April 15.—Secretary James H. O'Rourke, of the Connecticut Baseball league, has received a communication from J. H. Farrell, secretary of the National Association of Baseball Clubs, in which it is stated that in case there is a vacancy in the league circuit the players belonging to the outgoing club revert to the league.

This practically prevents C. J. Danaher from disposing of the New Haven players, as he has threatened to do.

WALLINGFORD. Dr. Sidney L. Gulick of Tokio was yesterday at the Congregational church and spoke upon the "New Attitude of Japan Toward Christianity." He has been appointed in the Doshisha university in Japan.

Saturday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock the Woman's Exchange of Wallingford held its Easter sale at the residence of Mrs. F. R. Manning.

Captain Abbott commander of Company K, has announced the following appointments: Sergeant Reuben Fox, quarter master general; Corporal Goodwin, sergeant; Privates William H. Smith, jr., Charles Van Tassel, and Harold James, corporals.

LOCAL FINANCIAL NOTES.

Notwithstanding the considerable rise in stocks dealt in on the New York stock exchange, N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. has been steady in price, selling in small lots only from 202 1-2 to 205, closing at 204 to 205.

There are but few local stocks offering for sale, the attention of investors being turned toward the Boston and New York markets.

Holders of Pennsylvania R. R. on April 12 have the right to subscribe before May 1 and May 5 to a convertible 3 1-2 per cent. bond. These rights sold on Saturday at 1 per cent.

Transfer books of the United States Rubber Co. close on the 25th for the quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. and 1 1-2 per cent. extra, payable May 15.

The agitation of the telephone question in Hartford seems to have but little effect upon the Southern New England Telephone Co. stock.

International Silver 6 per cent. bonds have sold at 106 1-2 and interest, the highest price in several years.

The clearings and balances of the New Haven banks for the week ending April 15 and for the corresponding week of last year, are furnished by the secretary of the New Haven Clearing House:

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT.

Republicans Seem Confident of Electing Sixth Ward Alderman.

The republicans of the Sixth ward seem to be confident that they will elect their candidate for alderman, Harry M. Robinson, at the city election to-morrow. Mr. Robinson's candidacy is being pushed with great vigor by his numerous friends, and he is also receiving flattering consideration from many prominent democrats in the ward.

Mr. Robinson is a young and active newspaper man and has resided in this city about a year and a half. He has held responsible positions on some of the most important papers in the east, including Boston, Worcester, Springfield, Brooklyn and New London. He was at one time editor of the White Plains (N. Y.) Daily Argus.

Since Mr. Robinson has resided in this city he has made hosts of friends, all of whom are anxious to see him elected.

The condition of Charles Tucker, the well known nurse, who has been ill at Grace hospital for several months, does not improve, as was hoped at first, but his recovery is not yet despaired of.

Brief Mention.

High water to-day, 9:04 p. m. Smart Set for May at the Pease, Lewis Co.'s. Emilio W. Grauert, New York, has for the new building now being erected on Chapel street for the Knights of Columbus. The New York Lock corporation has just filed a certificate of incorporation and will start up the Branford Lock works. Harold B. Colton of Branford, William Bailey and Robert McLeod Jackson of New York, are the incorporators. President Hadley of Yale will return to this city to-day and officiate at the corporation meeting. Two minor appointments will be made and the committee from the Yale Dining club will present a resolution to allow smoking after dinner at the Commons. At request of Yale authorities James Donnelly, one of the campus policemen, has been appointed a deputy sheriff by Sheriff Dunham. He has been acting under the authority of a constable. He was a member of the New Haven police before going to the campus work.

ESCAPED FROM HOSPITAL.

Inmate Jumps from Window and Goes to His Home at 35 Spruce Street. Early last evening Patrick Kelly, an inmate at the New Haven hospital escaped from that institution clothed in nothing but his night gown, and ran to his home at 35 Spruce street, from where he was immediately returned to the hospital by his family. Mr. Kelly is suffering from nervous trouble, and last night he arose from his bed and went to the lavatory. He opened the window when no one was looking and jumped to the ground, about three feet below. When he landed on the ground he ran to his home.

Although he was only absent from the hospital about twenty minutes in all, the fact of his disappearance was immediately learned, and at the time of his return the police were looking for him.

STONED FREIGHT CARS.

Complaint Comes to Local Police from Hartford of Trouble Near North Haven.

Shortly after 9 o'clock last evening Sergeant Cook received a telephone call from a man who said that he was a train dispatcher in Hartford. He said that the crew of a freight train which had just arrived in that city complained that as the train was on route between the Cedar Hill station and North Haven some men who were walking the tracks towards this city had thrown a number of large stones at the train crew as they passed him, and that some of the missiles had nearly hit some of the men.

The Grand avenue police were notified and were on the lookout for the man.

FIREMEN CLIMB TREE.

Brush Fire Yesterday at Foot of East Rock.

A tree and some brush at the foot of East Rock, near the end of Orange street, caught fire yesterday afternoon, and it was necessary to call out chemical engine No. 8 to extinguish it. The firemen were forced to climb the burning tree before the fire could be put out. No damage resulted.

CORNERSTONE LAYING.

Bishop Brewster Performs Ceremony at Forbes Memorial Chapel.

The ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the new Forbes Memorial chapel in East Haven was conducted Saturday afternoon by the Rt. Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, bishop of the diocese. Splendid weather attended the exercises and favored those who attended.

CONFIRMATION AT ST. PAUL'S

BISHOP BREWSTER ADMINISTERS RITE TO FORTY-NINE.

Special Sermon on the Importance of the Ceremony—Bishop Leaves Motto for Class—Saturday Next the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of St. Paul's.

Following the custom of many years the annual administration of the rite of confirmation was administered at St. Paul's church yesterday morning by the Rt. Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, bishop of Connecticut. The class presented for confirmation, which is the first class to be confirmed under the rectorship of the Rev. James DeWolf Perry, jr., numbered forty-nine.

Following the confirmation service the bishop preached a sermon appropriate to the service. He spoke of the importance of the rite of confirmation as a rite and of the importance of ceremonies aside from the feeling they express. Confirmation he spoke of as one of the great crises of a life. Then it is that the spiritual power to strengthen one in time of trial comes. He compared the strength, or supposed strength that is material with the spiritual strength. The former rises to a zenith and decays as the power of Caesar and Napoleon did while the latter accumulates and gathers force with each obstacle it overcomes instead of expending its force in overcoming. He alluded to the present Russo-Japanese war as an example. Here the supposed material strength of Russia has been unmasked as weakness while the supposed weak Japanese have proved incalculably strong in their spiritual strength, their enthusiasm, love of country, love of ruler and love of justice.

In closing the bishop asked the class to keep in mind a little motto which he gave them, "Only be strong and of good courage."

Next Saturday will be a day of special interest to St. Paul's as it will be the 75th anniversary of the consecration of the parish. So the church will be celebrating this anniversary at the Easter-tide this year.

MISS SCHEFF IN "BOCCACCIO."

Ruffling Cavaliers and Gay Escapades of the Days of the Renaissance.

A series of brilliant stage pictures, merry exploits of love, such as those which live in the pages of the Decameron; melodious choruses—such as "Boccaccio," in which Fritz Scheff appeared at the Hyperion theater Saturday evening. The audience was large and enthusiastic. If one failed to moralize he was greatly amused by the intrigues of rapier and feather, and by the sad plights into which buff Jerkin was befouled. Wallace Brownlow, who did not appear in "Fattintza," was a prince with ambitions to learn the art of writing novels, and a perfect willingness to follow Boccaccio's method of living them first. He was quite as much of an actor as one would expect to find a man who indulged in a minuet in Boccaccio's time. Louis Harrison was, again, excellent. We must protest against the would-be comic scene of the last act, in which the procession carry band instruments. The sight of a beautiful princess tooting a piccolo blightfully spoils the idyll, though it delight the idle.

RETURNED FROM ENGLAND.

After spending the winter in England Mrs. Eliza S. Gaffney, the well-known nurse of 142 Edgewood avenue, has returned home. Mrs. Gaffney sailed last December on the Celtic and returned to America on the big liner Baltic. She praises very highly the sterling qualities of these big ships, and especially their great steadiness in all sorts of weather. She has crossed the Atlantic many times, but this is the first occasion she has escaped seasickness. This Mrs. Gaffney attributes solely to the great steadiness of the Celtic and Baltic. The most of the time Mrs. Gaffney spent in and around the city of London, where she has many relatives and friends. During her stay in London she paid a visit to the Crystal Palace, St. Paul's Cathedral and other historical spots.

BOYS CAUSE TROUBLE.

Are Arrested and Charged With Breach of the Peace.

For some time there have been complaints made to the police by residents on Washington street that boys have been creating a disturbance. Last evening there were several boys in that vicinity and Policeman Cassidy arrested two of them and charged them with breach of the peace. Their names are Andrew Cohan, fifteen years old, of 39 Lafayette street, and James P. Shanley, seventeen years old, of 62 Broad street. The boys are both well appearing and they said that they did not know that they were causing any trouble.

FUNERAL OF LOZELLE FOOTE.

Large Attendance Yesterday at Funeral of Well Known State Street Merchant.

The funeral of Lozelle Foote was held yesterday afternoon from his late residence, 74 Sen street, City Point, and was largely attended by sorrowing friends, among whom were many of the prominent business men of the city, who gathered to pay the last sad tribute.

There were a profusion of beautiful floral offerings. Rev. Mr. Wright, pastor of the Congregational church in Orange conducted the funeral services and made remarks beautiful, and characterized by deep feeling and consolatory thoughts.

Mr. Foote was one of the best known business men of State street, prominent for many years in his business, and was a civil war veteran. He served in the war as a member of the 27th C. V., and quite a large delegation of the Grand Army attended the services. The interment was in Evergreen cemetery. Stahl & Sons had charge of the funeral.

CLUB ROOMS BURNED.

Property of Liberty Organization on Clay Street Damaged Over $500.

About 4 o'clock yesterday morning as Patrolman Brown was passing the building at 49 Clay street occupied by the Liberty club he saw that the interior of the building was on fire. He broke into the place and attempted to extinguish the blaze, but as it was getting the better of him he sent in a still to No. 10's house for help. The call was quickly answered and on the arrival of the apparatus the firemen got to work. In about a half hour the fire was extinguished, but not until what is roughly estimated as over $500 damage had been done.

The fire started with a lounge and there had been no one in the building for a long while before it was discovered. The lounge was burned up; a piano was destroyed; a pool table badly damaged, and in addition to all this the entire interior of the room was burned out. It is believed that the fire was started by some one accidentally dropping a cigarette butt on the sofa.

Close to the burning building was a stable filled with horses, and after sending in the still alarm Officer Brown got these all out and into a place of safety, as well as several carriages, so that in case the fire had spread they would have been safe.

The building where the fire occurred is owned by Patrolman Peter McKoon. The amount of the insurance could not be learned last evening.

TO CURE STUTTERING.

Efforts Being Made in the Public Schools of Vienna.

An interesting addition to the course of instruction in the public schools of Vienna is to be made in a short time by providing classes in four districts to overcome the defects in speech of children who stutter. United States Consul-General Rubice at Vienna, who reports this matter to the state department, says that the length of the course of five weeks and instruction is to be given during two hours of each week day. The children are to withdraw from other school attendance, as it is essential that they devote themselves exclusively to the course of stuttering.

The co-operation of the parents is especially important to the success of the cure. During the period of the special instruction it is necessary that the children have a separate room where they can practice the exercises whenever without any disturbance whatsoever. The parents must undertake to have the children practice their exercises at home for at least four hours daily, and during the first two weeks not to allow them to speak at all, except to practice the exercises prescribed by the course of instruction. Keeping silent is of such importance that the success of the course depends on this requirement being strictly observed. Parents are particularly advised never to case any doubt on the effectiveness of the course or of the teachers. It is well known that stutters lack self-confidence, and this must be taken in account in the treatment. The children should be encouraged by calling attention to progress that has been made, for stutters are extremely susceptible to praise. Parents, however, should be careful to make no experiments and to make no tests.

At the end of the five weeks' course the instructor brings each pupil back to his regular school and indicates to his teacher what has been accomplished, besides giving advice concerning his further instruction. The teacher is required to try to encourage and make permanent the new habits acquired. Children who have taken the special course in stuttering are examined afterward each month in order to determine what permanent results have been obtained.—Washington Star.

INSULTED A WOMAN.

Husband Has Offender Arrested on a Charge of Breach of the Peace.

James Quigley was arrested yesterday afternoon by Policeman C. J. Egan and charged with breach of the peace. The facts leading up to the arrest were not fully obtainable last evening, but, according to the police, a woman who resides at 51 George street was going along that street towards her home yesterday afternoon, when Quigley started talking to her, and, as she paid no attention to him, followed her to the door of her home. There she told the facts to her husband, who had the man arrested.

"Some philosopher," said the man who had been abroad, "has truly said that traveling takes the conceit out of a man." "Nonsense!" replied the wise man, "how about a commercial drummer?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

The ambitious young merchant cared of the shapely hand of the heiress. "Dear little hand," he murmured, absentmindedly. "So delicate! So fragile! And yet I hope some day to see it lift the heavy mortgage that's on my store!"—Chicago Tribune.

If the Baby is Cutting Teeth, be sure and use that old and well known remedy, Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures the swollen and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

LATEST FAIR HAVEN NEWS

PLENTY OF WORK BY THE POLITICAL WORKERS.

Busy Times Getting Ready for Election To-morrow—Union Evangelical Services Last Evening—Address by Rev. George Foster Prentiss—A Birthday Surprise—Little Workers Entertainment Next Wednesday—Other News.

Election is so near, even the Sabbath was impressed into service as the time when it was considered necessary by political workers in this section to make hay. And to-day there will also be considerable work done. The ballots and literature of the non-practical municipal league were delivered to every voter Saturday, the distributors going around with tents from house to house. Harry V. Santry, candidate for general on this ticket, had charge of the distribution in this neighborhood. Mr. Santry is a republican in national politics and in a former contest for alderman on that ticket came within fifteen votes of an election. Extra carriers will be employed at station A to-day in delivering several thousand ballots of the republican and democratic parties.

Mrs. Cheney, widow of Rev. N. G. Cheney, a former pastor of the East Pearl street church, sails on April 28 on steamer Germania for Europe. She will visit Italy and during the warm weather will stop in Switzerland. Mrs. Cheney now resides in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Rev. Mr. Marston of Newton theological seminary, preached at the Grand avenue Baptist church morning and evening yesterday.

The governor's Fast day proclamation was read by pastors in several churches yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Waters of Wolcott street recently returned after a visit to Mrs. Waters' old home in Paterson, N. J., visiting her mother.

A minstrel show will be given by the Society of Phi Delta in Polar Star hall May 9. Arthur J. Wins will be the interlocutor and Wilfred T. Nott and Leroy A. Buckingham will be the end men.

The Tan Zeta Sigma, a club of young men from Fair Haven and City Point, will give a private informal dance at the Pequot, April 25.

The "Little Workers" of the Grand avenue Congregational church will give an entertainment in Polar Star hall on Wednesday evening. There will be music, recitations, impersonations and fancy dances. This society is composed of a band of twenty little girls.

There was a flurry of snow yesterday noon and the weather was quite cold, resembling a day in March, rather than April. It is to be hoped that Easter Sunday, one week hence, will be marked by much finer weather. The electric cars were patronized to a considerable extent, but not so much as one week ago.

Owing to the illness of the organist and choir master of the East Pearl street church, William Brown, the quartette only sang yesterday. Miss Belle Slater played the organ.

The East Pearl street Chautauqua will meet this evening with Miss Etta May Avery of East Pearl street.

The "Little Workers" of the Grand avenue Congregational church will give an entertainment in Polar Star hall on Wednesday evening, April 19, which will prove unusually interesting. Margaret and Manning Reynolds will be seen in a very pretty diet entitled "Fis Pong from Hong Kong," dressed as a tiny Yankee soldier and little Chinese maid. Vida Hill and Margaret Reynolds will dance the "Lollypop Dance" together. These talented children have won a well deserved popularity as entertainers, being graceful little dancers and sweet singers.

Mrs. Val Schellenberg will render several vocal selections. Mrs. Schellenberg is a pupil of Miss Helen Gauntlett Williams and possesses a voice of unusual sweetness.

Lottie Reynolds Dill, whose recitations are always eagerly welcomed, will appear as the "Marble Dream" with all the best effects which colored lights can accomplish. Mrs. Dill will also recite "Aunt Rhody's Dream."

W. Manning Reynolds, the well known impersonator, will present a series of dialect recitations illustrated by stereopticon views, including Scotch, English, Swedish, German, and French-Canadian sketches.

The band of "Little Workers" are composed of the following little girls: Carolyn Hillmes, president; Ruth Salisbury, secretary; Ruth Fowler, treasurer; Mrs. L. L. Bradley, leader; Ethel Ball, Florence Burwell, Ardella Chandler, Bertha Flint, Glenna Colburn, Mildred Scheffer, Esther Russell, Dorothy Tyrrell, Florence Booker, Charlotte Hall, Gertrude Lansdale, Gladys Phelps, Florence Jenkins, Josephine Smith, and Georgiana Urquhardt.

Union evangelical services were held in the Grand Avenue Congregational church last evening, in the series which have been held during Lent. Pilgrim church joined in the services, which were largely attended. The song service was from the leaflet of special selections, which have been so largely used in the great revival in London. The services were under the direction of the pastor of the church, Dr. Sneath.

The sermon was delivered by Rev. George Foster Prentiss of the Davenport church. In introducing his sermon he said he had been greatly inspired by the "Glorious Song," which had just been rendered by the choir and congregation.

"We are all naturally religious," said the preacher. "All have some divinity, and may the choice of our divinity be worthy. We should bear in mind the tremendous necessity of acting upon our intelligence. The damning sins are the sins we don't commit, the sins of omission. Everything for you and me depends upon the now. Behold now is the acceptable time. Behold now is the day of salvation." In fact, all decisions are made in the present. In religion as in other things, you must act upon the minute. You all know how necessary it is in business to act on the dot. The words of the message to-night are for you who have long been Christians, as well as for those who have never accepted the truth. Joshua in the midst of his nation said, in the words of the Act, 'As for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah.' Look at the effect of such a nation upon the people. He was a fearless leader and he wishes to turn them in the right way. I tell you it is everything to have a leader's example. It is very necessary to have an intelligence in relation to one's self. And yet it is possible for one to decide very quickly in great things. We face matters of business and meet them bravely, but in religious things, we falter and hesitate. God introduces mercy and love. God might rule in compulsion. God simply suspends that, gives his own sweet music, which is sweeter than all the music of the world. There is a great tendency that, being the owners of our own will, it gives us a sort of leadership. Throughout every life there is an opportunity of choosing, and it takes a hero to choose right. To-night we are on the battlefield. Rest comes later. We should make the most of that which comes to us. We respect that man who carries scars. Choose each one of you as a child made in the image of the everlasting Father. We may act as a worthy example. 'As for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah.'

The annual rental of pews of the Grand Avenue Congregational church will be held on Monday evening of next week. The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of this church will be held on Wednesday of this week. An Easter concert by the Sunday school of the church will be held next Sunday evening.

A birthday surprise party was given Master Clifford Phillips on his fourth birthday Saturday afternoon at his home, 121 East Pearl street. Each guest brought a birthday gift in the way of Easter greetings. There were plants, vases and numerous other things. A bountiful spread was served and after singing the Doxology, the little folks amused themselves by playing games. Those present were Edna, Alice and Albert Phillips, Esther and Edna Frost, Douglas Manwaring, Raymond French, Charles Waters, Lillian Waters, Mrs. Charles Manwaring, Mrs. Gildersleeve, Mrs. Hatlie Waters, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Phillips.

At the A. O. U. W. hall, 25 Grand avenue, this evening Quinquennial convalescence will hold one of the largest meetings of the year, when it is expected that a delegation of about a dozen members of the South Norwalk convalescence will witness the exemplification of the degrees of the order on six candidates by the Quinquennial degree team. District Deputy Davis and Alternate District Deputy Bodwell will be present, and it is believed that the hall will be taxed to its seating capacity. Several applications will be presented, and a banquet will be served after the business session. Members of the order will be cordially welcomed and those wishing to spend an evening of fun should attend.

His Assistants Injured, He Kills Five Bulls in One Sunday Session. Parrao was forced to kill five bulls, out of the seven slain in yesterday's corrida, because Antonio Montes and "Falco," matadors alternativa, were each wounded in the sword hand in killing their first bull. Montes received the more severe wound, the flesh between the thumb and first finger being split by the sword bill when he made his first thrust. "Falco" escaped with a sprain, but neither of the matadors was able after that to handle the espada.

The fight was exceptionally good from every point of view, and Parrao covered himself with glory by dispatching every one of his bulls, with one exception, by a single neat stroke. Six bulls had been advertised, but seven were killed, the last being a present from Montes, whose benefit performance it was.

Of the bulls, the first three let into the ring were easily the best. Two of these probably were the fiercest animals seen since the opening of the ring this season. Skillful work on the part of the banderillos enraged them to a point where they made things extremely lively. The first animal killed five horses as fast as they could be brought to the ring, and was dispatching his sixth when the bugle was blown.

After the banderillos had been placed "Falco" took the sword, but his aim in the first two strokes was not true, and they caused wounds only. At the third the bull dropped. Parrao killed the second bull with one stroke, and received an evasion from both soil and sombra sides. Montes, in slaying the third, made a good stroke, but his hand was wounded, and he left the ring to receive attention just as his animal tumbled and fell. "Falco" received his wound while stabbing the fourth, and Parrao relieved him of the sword, finishing that bull and killing the following three animals.

The fifth, sixth and seventh bulls were not equal to the first three in fighting qualities, and only by exceedingly clever work could some of them be made to attack. One had to be returned to the corral because he refused to fight at all, but when the oxen were turned in he refused to follow them, and subsequently had to be roped and dragged out.—Mexican Herald.
