GREAT MASSACRE OF GERMANS IS FEARED

REVOLUTIONARY SOCIETIES IN CONTROL OF SITUATION AT RIGA.

Hatred of German Speaking Population, Caused by Years of Oppression, Being Vented by Murders, Even in Brond Daylight-Police Afraid to Great Strike for January

Stockholm, Dec. 15.-The Dagens here to-day from Riga, says:

"The Letts, constituting a majority of the population of Livonia, control the situation there. Their leader, M. Jansohn (editor of the Deenas Lapas) is also the head of the federated revolutionary societies and has command of everything. Their hatred of the German speaking population, which is unrelenting, is caused by years of oppression on the part of the German nobility.

"The peasants around Riga are burning estates and murdering landowners. The Germans of Riga expect a St. Bartholomew night, and it is evident that the Letts are preparing for a wholesale slaughter. The central part of Riga can be protected at the bridges if the army is true.

"In each block one house has been prepared as a fortress in which to shelter the Germans when the massacre starts. Besides this, the householders have established various refuges.

"Murders are committed in broad daylight, mostly for revenge and the police are afraid to interfere. The governor general does not dare command the troops, not knowing whether they will obey orders.

Several country committees have established republics, intending later to confederate into a Baltic republic. The revolutionaries are preparing an irresistible strike for January and the workmen are being armed. "The revolutionaries have refused to allow either Germans or Russians to leave Livonia." The correspondent says he fears that the deep hatred felt by the Letts for the German nobility and German cap-

HOTEL TOURAINE COMPELLED TO SURRENDER LICENSE.

Guesta Unable to "Gef a Drink".—Part of Stock Placed in Storage for the Present-Eight Saloons Closed-Within 400 Feet of School Houses-Others May Have to Shut Un.

Boston, Dec. 14.-The efforts of District Attorney John B. Moran, the new prosecuting officer of Suffolk county, to obtain a more rigid enforcement of the liquor law in this city, resulted today in the closing of eight saloons and the surrender or deposit of a liquor license Issued to John R. Coleman, an employee of the Hotel Touraine, a leading hostelry, and from whom the guests of that house have obtained liquor for the past seven or eingt years. The saloons which were closed by order of the board of police commissioners on the ground that they were within 400 feet of schoolhouses are situated on Columbus avenue, Roxbury, and on Cambridge street, West End. The license issued for the benefit of the Hotel Touraine was surrendered, according to J. Reed Whipple, the lessee of the property, but the police commissioners hold that it was merely deposited. The police ere will keep the license pending an investigation on their own part as to whether the method employed by the hotel in obtaining liquor for its guests was a violation of the law relative to the proximity of a school house. A part of the liquor in Coleman's wine room was placed in storage to-day, and the guests at the hotel were unable to obtain any alcoholic beverage, Counsel for Mr. Whippie stated that every effort would be made to comply received last night from the district attorney, but he refused to say whether the curtailment of the hotel's liquor license would result in the closing of the house, as has been reported. The police commissioners held a long session to-day, but they made no effort to comply with the request recelved yesterday afternoon from district attorney to visit him in his office, and reply to interrogations relative to the alleged violation of the law in the issuance of liquor licenses, and by those already holding such documents. It also developed to-day that the schoolhouse, which is situated on Trement street within 400 feet of the Hotel Touraine, has two annex schools on Eliot street, which, if considered a part of the main institution, will compel the closing of ten saloons within the restricted radius on that street.

The police commissioners are also investigating this situation.

Hearings on this bill and the question of embodying a constitutional amendment prohibiting the sale of liquor in the two territories were begun to-day. Aside from this question the bill is practically in shape to report. The bill probably will not be reported until after the holiday recess. When it is reported a rule will be brought in for its immediate consideration by the house.

The conference had not proceeded long when the debate was limited to five minute periods, and this action caused complaints by those opposing the admission of New Mexico and Arizona.

WALTER CAMP GOES OVER THE FOOTBALL SITUATION

INTERCOLLEGIATE RULES COMMITTEE.

His Ten-Yard Proposition-Proposed Last Year but Not Adopted-Committee Bound to Work for an Open Game-Figures That Heavy Hammering Will Defent Itself Under Ten-Yard Rule-Its Adoption Will Lead to More Kickhig.

Warter Camp, Yale's athletic adviser, gave out the following statement on the football question:

It seems too bad that there is to be further delay in the matter of action by the rules committee. The public and the various faculties throughout the country certainly expected prompt tion by this committee, and I think the members of the committee were for the large part ready to act last Saturday and certainly all expected to be able to by this week Friday. If Harvard, however, asks for further delay, as I understand Mr. Reid does, we must in courtesy consent. It does seem to me, however, that this further postponement renders advisable further statements from the individual members and such discussion as should lead to prompt action when the committee gets together. The situation is simply this: The rules committee, originally a number of individuals, asked, on account of their football interest by the University Athletic club, to formulate rules, never did more than that. No one was obliged to accept their rules unless they wished to. If the committee fail to answer the demand that has been growing for decided action along two points—the opening of the game and the lessening of accidents and unnecessary roughness-it surely will not live up to the very object of its being. Last year the 10-yard rule was proposed but was not adopted. When the original 5-yard rule was adopted the outery was similar, but at that time I was more in the minority in its favor than I am now in favor of the 10yard rule. The players and the other legislators felt that the five yard rule would be too radical and v lead to simply a kicking game with no ery kind, it was announced to-day, running, just as those who a year ago opposed the 10-yard rule argued. the opponents of the 5-yard rule were finally willing to adopt it tentatively in case I would withdraw the request. if by the end of October it proved imsult. Two midshipmen will be dismiss. practicable. By that time it was an assured success. Let me make perfectly clear what I think about this 10-yard days by the Secretary of the navy, the rule, as it seems to me to be important one for hazing and the other for coun- that everyone interested should under

It has been argued that this will mean simply a kikolng game, that if the team has some difficulty now gaining its five yards in three downs, it cannot possibly be expected to gain ten yards in three downs. That is just what was argued regarding tho original five yard rule, and, so far as it goes, is true, but anyone who studies it must see what the value of posse of the ball is thus greatly lessened and hence a quarter-back will do just what we want him to do, namely, take a bigger chance on an open play because he a resoltion introduced in the house this feels that even if he does loss the ball on it his opponents, when they secure it will not then hammer by short gains of two yards at a time straight down for half the field to a touchdown without losing possession of the ball. This will lead to drilling the players on open plays throughout the season instead of only one or two weeks in the beginning of it, and then lapsing into formation man, by forcing him to stand on his plays, counting the open plays as so simple that they can be taken up ag in the midst of the game. The Yale team this year by practicing open plays through the season made their execution of these plays better than they have been before and demonstrated trist that fact that whatever play is pracficed the most, whether it be an open play or a formation play, is brought to its highest pitch of execution.

It is very probable that the enactment of this rule would lead to more kicking, but even that would be, in the eyes of the public, an improvement on the present close play. Still further, it will make unnecessary roughness less possible of concealment. Let it be understood that I am not arguing this led by what I have seen at Yale, for when we were criticised for such close plays over a year ago, it will be remembered that at that time I advocated the ten yard rule, and since then we have practically demonstrated on our own field and in seven al of our contests this year that a more open play was quite effective. Furthermore, as to accidents, we have been practically free at Yale always, and last season had only the most trivial ones, and never have had a fatal accident since the game was taken up in This brings up the question of the other part of the legislation which should be coupled with the ten yard rule. Accidents are inseparable from any game like our modern football, but we wish to minimize them as much as possible, and to free the game from unnecessary roughness. If the opening of the game is effective there should be a return to the old style of

STATE STATUTES AND ADMIRALTY. The leading article in the Yale Law Journal for December is by James D Dewell, ir., of this city, the well known firm of Cushman, Dewell and Cushman of New York. It is entitled "State Statutes and Admiralty," and is an interesting and valuable discussion of the situation which has arisen by reason of iffs to that figure. It is argued that State statutes giving and attempting to give actions against vessels. Mr. Dewell points out that in many of the States bordering upon navigable wahave generally been enacted without any regard for the exclusive jurisdiction of admiralty in certain cases grow out any distinction being made between out any thought but that State courts might enforce actions in rem against vessels in all instances. The confusion and litigation which have resulted from such statutes have in many instances made "confusion worse confounded" to those who are not familiar with maritime law. This confusion from these misleading statutes is not confined to laymen having dealings with vessels, but it is very troublesome to a State court practitioner when called up-gard to these matters-Connecticut is one of the States which have made statutes such as are spoken of above and she doesn't seem der-nothing but dignified protest and to have succeeded in such lawmaking much better than other States which have tried it. Mr. Dewell makes the awkwardness of the whole situation very clear, and the cases he cites and explains are decidedly instructive. He thinks that at the present time the Supreme court of the United States

By way of illustrating the injustice of the proposed remedy for the rate evil, the following case is cited: Say that between two large cities of this country there are five railroads, four of which are reasonably strong and prosperous, whose officers are obeying the law and whose shippers are reasonably content with the price and the service. The fifth rallroad however is thin in traffic and its owners cannot meet the legitimate competition of the these two points on some commodity is 60 cents per hundred pounds, a rate that has been agreed upon as being reasonable to the shipper and profitable to the railroads. A Disciple of Cleanliness,-A teacher in one of the uptown public schools was endeavoring to inculcate in her puplis a proper regard for the virtues of cleanliness. After her instructive little talk she asked the children to give their own views on the subject, whereat a student of eight raised his hand.

"Well, George?" And George thereupon uttered this wise comment:

"I think we ought to take a good scrub every Saturday night, cause, you know, we're all full of little holes an' they might get plugged up."-Cleveland

A SURPRISE TO THE MAJOR. We were both watching the same beautiful woman. She did not see us. management. Between nearly all of up and down the comparatively dethe large centers there are weak lines serted street at a little watering place which are compelled by reason of their in New Jersey. She held a sunshade daintily at such an angle as to ward off the rays of a somewhat fierce, four o'clock sun. We were seated in the deep bay window of a capacious hotel, enjoying a couple of cigars in our shirt sleeves, and enjoying also, the view of the radiantly blue sea and sky through lace curtains, and from beneath a long-hung striped awning.

I suppose my eyes were fixed rather intently upon the female figure, for I heard a grumpy laugh from my com-"Losing your heart, old boy?" I took the cigar from between my ips, and sent a little ring of smoke to the celling before I answered. I had a surly fried from North Dakota to deal with, An inveterate Not an old man, but that bitter thinga young man with an old heart. A woman, no doubt, had aged it.

"She's worth looking at," I answered.

Then never do more than look at ner!" snapped Major Ward. "I'll take a jolly good look as I'm mobserved," was my reply. And again my eyes went back to that graceful figure, dazzlingly bright in the glarewhich seemed to center itself on the white muslin gown, and the white sunshine, both of which were spotted with red. A twist of scarlet silk was knotted at her walst, and another twist went around the French sailor hat at the back of which was a bow which tilted the hat over her face, and off her perfectly dressed dark hair, which swept liself up from a neck of snowy

A face-beautiful more from its finishing touch of exquisite content than from its own lines of beauty-looked out on the fair world with gravely sweet eyes.

"Look at her yourself, Ward." I urged. "Confess, now, if you have ever seen a sweeter or more contented

"Contented, very probably, because she has fooled some man," sneered the major, "and has come out to fool another. So much spick and spanness means more human worlds to conquer. I know the sort. I have seen too much of them, my friend. See them when they're five years married-these dainty specimens. Tousled, heavy-stepping

"I don't believe the woman walking there could ever turn into one of these creatures."

"Of course not! They all say thatthe poor deluged victims. Their own particular angel must-will-shall remain an angel forever. All I say is: Walt and see! Look at her now-she's on the watch for somebody." So it appeared.

She had taken a slower and yet a nore slow step; then suddenly wheeled around and stood for a moment looking down the road of which our hotel formed the corner. Now, as she stood fronting us, with masses of transparent flounces caught lightly up in one hand, and her small dark head on one side we could see the upward curve of the lips.

"That's the mouth of a sweet-tempered woman," I said.

"You wouldn't say so after the has waited an hour or two for the individual she's on the watch for. It's an thing-that twist of the lips. Once married, down they go the other way. A hysband's not of sufficient attraction to draw them up. It takes a loadstone of another color to do that There she goes again, in her dainty walk. He is evidently not yet in sight We will wait. Bob, till he does appear and view the meeting. She's got up for victory—that's'a fact!"

to adjust his single eyeglasses and lean forward to take a nearer look at the woman who dared her complexion and her temper in such a sun. A broiling smarting sun, yet the smooth cheek looked so cool and fresh that it almost made you cool ourself to look at it;

"You'll have looked too long soon, said the major, with a sinister chuckle. "Oh, v'le no doubt she'd be glad enough to have a shot or two at you while the other fellow is away from the place. Anybody and everybody is game to that sort. But take my advice, Bob, and leave women alone They either make you love them and then throw you over, or do what's worse-marry you. And upon my word, old man, you would be disenchanted yourself after a year, or, at the most, two. They never look like this lady in white muslin when they're married. I don't say they don't dress sa well, for they do, probably better because they have their husband's money to squander as well as their own. But they don't look like this-as if the whole world had been combining to please them and had succeeded She looks like that doesn't she?"

"She does," I said under my breath, and I suppose I was looking at the lady in white musiin as if I could look and look forever, for Ward laughed again-the laugh that is invariably accompanied by a shrug of the shoulders. "I believe," he said, slowly, "I verily believe that you are going to make a fool of yourself over the woman, Bob. When I see men look as you do, I know what it means. I have only one piece of advise to give. Clear out of this place while you are still heart whole, and cut and run from every place whenever you begin to look at a woman, and to wonder if your income will do for two. "Poor, old major!" I said! compassionately. "They have evidently been playing battledore and shuttlecock with you."

"They-one-played the very-There

Your silly, lovesick face makes me behave like an ass, I tell you, if you mar ried that beautiful woman walking out there, you would wonder in two years' time what you ever saw in her, and in five you would, if you had not learned to hate her, have become as much accustomed to her as to a table or a chair. You would always be there, and just a part of the furniture of your house. I say, Bob-it is not really a fact-it can't be-that you are actually losing your heart to the lady outside. She's not your sort-if you'll excuse my being so outspoken. She's too fashionable for you. I can see you have still the same innocent belief in women as you had when last I saw you. You're too good, Bob, for such magnificent wife. You would have to knuckle under to her. You want-if you must have a wife-a quiet, little. homely soul who won't disappoint you, simply because you will not have expected mad impossibilities of her. As If a woman could live up to the task of appearing all her life as she does when she is on the tiptoe of expectancy of what fate may bring her in the way of scalps. No, Bob, this beautiful woman is not for you. Take my word for it, and leave her alone. And, besides, ten to one she's at present engaged to the fellow she's watching for."

There was silence. No doubt Ward thought that I was weighing his words. But I was engaged upon something more important. The lady in white was turning again. I waited till she got just in front of our window once more, and then I suddenly swept aside the curtain nearest me and Ward looked at me as if he thought I was mad, or, at least, ungentlemanly. Becaugh the cough was palpably a forced one.

"Oh, there you are!"

And with these words spoken in a one of relief, the woman we had both been watching stepped off the walk and came quickly up to our window. I was the only man visible-

"You lazy, old darling!" she said, in low and tender voice, "Do you know, have been quite anxious about you? thought you might have had a spill coming from the station, and here I find you calmly smoking away in your shirt sleeves. OBITUARY NOTES.

Mrs. Augusta M. Beecher. Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Augusta M. Beecher, whose death occurred at her home, 141 Bradley street, yesterday morning, will be held to-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at her late residence. The burial will be in Wallingford at the convenience of the family. Mrs. Beecher had been suffering from a serious sickness for nearly three years. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her many friends, two daughters, Mrs. E. C. Andrews and Mrs. F. | vived by one daughter, Miss Kate Mar-M. Doolittle. Mrs. Beecher was nearly sixty-nine | lishment at 831 Chapel street.

years old, a member of the Church of the Redeemer, and a loving friend to those who knew her. Rev. Dr. Phillips, of the Church of the Redeemer, will officiate at the funeral services.

MRS. ELLEN FLOOD. The death of Mrs. Ellen, widow of formerly

Michael Flood, took place at her home, 96 Greene street, yesterday morning. She was sixty years old and is survived by one son. William, and four daugh ters, Mary, Nellie, Sarah and Loretta. She was a sister of Rev. Father Dellard, of St. Mary's church, Mount Car-

People." The Hyperion last evening was well filled by an audience representative of all nationalities to witness the produc tion of "The Chosen People" by P. N. Orleneff, supported by the St. Peters burg Dramatic company. The cause of this little band of Russian actors being in this country just now is twofolw: Firstly, they are here because they dared to act the truth in their performances and were on that account exiled from Russia; secondly, they are here, as they were in England and as they hope to be in every civilized country of the globe, for the purpose of showing the entire world the horrible tragedles that are being enacted in a supposedly civilized country.

"The Chosen People" is a three-act drama dealing with the present massa-cres in Russia. The play is lively and nteresting. Most of the audience could not understand the Russian language, but that did not impair their enjoy ment of the play to any great degree. The last scene of the play is a very strong one, representing a mob in the act of pillaging a house in the Jewish quarter during the recent massacres. The acting of Mr. Orleneff and Mme Alla Nasimoff was irreproachable. The supporting cast was also very good.

A man named Bliss contributes to the Outlook a narticle attempting to explain why Athens in one hundred and fifty-two years produced a score or more of men of an ability which, he thinks, has hardly been equalled elsewhere in history. He quotes with approval the remark of a Dr. Francis Galton, whom he calls a "high authority," that "a population of 90,000 produced two men-Socrates and Phidiaswhom the whole population of Europe has never equalled, and fourteen men of an ability of which the Anglo-Saxon race has only produced, in two thous-

dle. The simple fact is that no explanation is necessary. Athens wasn't so much. The United States in the last half century has Greece beaten to a frazzle. These Athenians that Bliss and Galton go into rhapsodies about never had a million dollars in their lives. There is Socrates. What did he ever do? "He only philosophized and he didn't pull down even the salary of a professor of philosophy in the University of Chicago. And Phidias? A pretty fair sculptor, maybe. But he never got the price of a single commission from J. Pierpont Morgan.

Go down the list and they're all in the same boat. Take Demosthenes. He left word that his mother brought up him and his sister on $126 a year. That wouldn't have been so bad if he had ever made up for It later, but he pegged along on almost nothing at all. though he might have been a decent lawyer. Why, there are a million atout fifty times over. And then Sophocles. You can bet he never made as much out of "Antigone" in all the time it was running as Clyde Fitch carries away from the box office of "The Woin the Case" every Saturday night. And Aristophanes? He simply isn't in it for a holy minute with George Ade as a writer of comedies. Isn't Ade making $150,000 a year? Yet Bliss and Galton never mention him.

They are just as unreasonable throughout. Thucydides was all very well in his day before people knew about historical novels. But he isn't to be mentioned in the same breath with Winston Churchill, and his royalties wouldn't have bought him a good buckboard. As a statesman, Pericles had a reputation, to be sure. But he couldn't are doing their worst at Tsarkoe Selo have swung the Nineteenth Ward in New York City, and Boss Murphy could have cleaned him off the map in no Besides, he hadn't the faintest notion of what could be done to the a cessation of popular agitation, to big corporations or of the possibilities of contracts, and he wouldn't have got MAN'S CHIEF PERIL The chief peril to which man is exposed is that of profanation of what s holy, from which hells shielded by shuting htim up in the circle of his senses, and restricting him to the shallows of his reason. Within that circle, and in those shallows, he acquires what he believes is wisdom, what he names ambitions, suffers what he fancies are pain and sorrow, wreaks what he inends for revenges, commits what he calls sins, indulges what he mistakes for love, and, in a word, lives what it s given him to imagine is human life, Yet in all that span of existence there is but a handful of hours when he truly lives the life that is his own and not a pretense, an enasion, or an error; and those few hours appear to him-save at the instant of their revelation- as hallucinations. Nevertheless they are the jorticos and pillars, halls and gardens, sun and stars of his beaven; which he pragmatically and complacently puts away from him, and turns himself to what seems to him his heaven, but is his hell. Truly, this is a pity and a loss!-Julian Hawthorne in the Century.

A SERMON THAT FAILED.

Husband Preached a Fine One, but Couldn't See Wife's Application. "Mary," said Mr. Wimbleton, 'we've got to shut down on this Christmas present business. Now, I don't want you to imagine I've become one of these grouches who think it's wrong to let the children believe in Santa Claus. I'm in for giving the little ones a good time. There's nothing more beautiful than the joy of the children over their presents, and I'd be the last man in the world to advocate any scheme that would tend to sweep away the idea that Christmas should be a time of peace on earth and god will toward men. But the crouble is that we've been drifting away from the real Christmas Idea. We make it a time to be dreaded. Instead of the simple festival that Christmas should be we make it an excuse for extravagant displays. oldhave departed from the good fashioned Christmas and are not satisfied to gladden our children with simple presents merely to remind them of our love, but we try to outdo one another in making lavish displays Women boast about the maounts of money they spend for Christmas presents and the only who succeeds in being the most foolish in this respect appears to stand highest in the estimation of the others. While putting them on I noticed for the first time that they were regular magple colors, a fact which did not improve my temper, already tried by the condolence of friends, who predicted Blue Light would get about a mile when he would be pumped out-

There were thirteen of us at the post, an unlucky number, and I got left. It did not matter much, as I thought, for with a half-trained horse it was better for me to wait and trust to the chapter of accidents.

These dld not seem to be going favorable on that day, for the field went sailing away at a great pace on their three-mile journey. It was true that an outsider came down at the second fence, and Yorkshire Lass, the favorite, pecked, which let me up alongside, next obstacles The pace was so hot that it began to dawn on me that if I did not make up something of the leeway that any little chance there might be of not being tailed off was over; so I shook up Blue Light, and we gradually crept up to the ruck. Still, when we passed the stand the first time round we were more than a furlong behind the leader.

At the fence, at the bottom turn, three came down, and as my horse and Blue Light, not inclined to be beat caught hold of his bit, and we raced along the railway side together, rapidly catching up to the leaders.

To say I was surprised at the way my horse was going would faintly exprese what I felt. Here, when he ought to have been completely done, he was going great guns, not a bit distressed, to all appearance, Nearing the last fence, four of us were together; the favorite, a black horse; a wiry little mare named Kate, an Irish importation, and Blue Light. but the best cross-country rider in England was on Samson, and he led by a dozen lengths. At the fence the favorite came down, and I could hear the shout which went up from the crowd.

At the first hurdle we were within three lengths of Samson, and the Irish more was outside. At the second hurdle I was only a length behind, and Blue Light was still going well. Just then I thought Captain Beetman must have a bit up his sleeve, and expected to see him, after landing on the flat, shoot away.

But he did not. I could see his spurs at work, and in another moment, with an effort, I was at the girths and had the satisfaction of seeing he was done, and that I had only the black to beat. The roar from the ring was in my ears as I forged bit by bit ahead. Blue Light had the longer stride, and although the black ran game as a pebble we won pretty comfortably by a length.

"Frank," whispered Jack, as soon as we were alone, "you rode splendidly, and we have made a good haul, but you must allow that's chiefly my doing. But, I say, old man, do you know who

There was a flush on her cheek and a light in her pretty eyes which led me to think that our run of luck lasted that Jack might hope. Still a treble event! It was too much to hope for. The second of the series, however, came off all right. Blue Light had another engagement, and, though he had to put a seven-pound penalty, he won easily, and as Jack had followed out his mad ideas -I did not -of putting on all his winnings he pulled off a heavy stake.

INTERESTING REPORT OF THE CHIEF OF ENGINEERS.

Tells of What Has Been Done to Improve the Harbor and Projects Now on Foot-The Breakwaters a Haven of Safety for Many Vessels During

The following interesting extracts are culled from the report of the chief of engineers of the United States army: New Haven Harbor, Connecticut,-This is a bay on the north shore of Long Island Sound extending about four miles inland and from one to two milės wide. Mill and Quinnipiac rivers, navigable for about one and three miles, espectively, above their mouths, empty into the head of the harbor the northeast. The original available low-water depth from the wharves to Cranes bar, one-third way down the harbor, was nine feet; thence to Fort Hale, half-way down, It was sixteen feet or over. Below Fort Hale was a broad bar of soft mud extending across the channel, with available depth of thirteen feet. The harbor entrance was partly obstructed by several sunken rocks. In Quinnipiac river the available low-water depth was shout four feet, and in the west branch of Mill river about five feet to the head of the present projected improvement. Above this pjoint both rivers are for the most part available for navigation only at high tide. The entire east branch of Mill river ran nearly bare at

In 1870 a project was adopted for removal of sunken rocks at the harbor eitrance. This work was not continued after 1875, when the harbor breakwater were first proposed. In 1871 the project was extended to include deepening the harbor channel, the proposed depth and width being modified from time to time as appropriations were made, so that when the present profect was adopted, March 3, 1899, it consisted in making a channel sixteen feet deep and from four hundred to sever hundred feet wide from Long Island Sound to the head of the harbor and in constructing a dike to contract the channel across Fort Hale bar, at a total estimated cost from beginning of $348,000. This project was nearly comthe deficiencies being in the of channel arm of the dike, was about two-thirds the projected length, and in widening the channel across Fort Hale bar, which was only two hundred feet wide. The total amount expended on previous projects fas $325,695.66. The present project, act of March 3. 1899, to to dredge a channel twenty feet deep, four hundred feet wide, and four miles long, from Long Island Sounr to Canal dock: thence one-half mile to Tomlinson bridge, of same depth and three hundred feet wide; and three anchorage basins of twenty, sixteen and twelve feet depths, at a cost not to exceed $345,000, and, act of June 13, 1902, The exercises were held in the Y. The amount expended on the existing project up to the close of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, was $288,-799.61, of which $15,593.40 was for main-

The maximum draft which could be carried June 30, 1905, through the main channel to Tomlinson bridge is twenty feet at ean low tide; above Tomlinson which could be carried up Mill river to Grand avenue bridge is twelve feet in both branches; up Quinniplac river to Ferry street bridge, twelve feet, and from Ferry street bridge to Grand avenue a little more than six feet in the natural channel connecting the two portions of the dredged channel. The depth in this dredged channel is eight feet. The mean rise of tide is 5.7 feet at entrance to the harbor and 6.6 feet

The work donat Tomlinson bridge. The work done has enabled deeperdraft vessels to use the harbor than was formerly possible. Vessels drawing from twenty-two to twenty-three feet now regularly enter the harbor. and vessels drafts are now limited by the depth of water in the various berths and slips and not by the depth of the main channel.

The engineer officer in charge invites attention to and explains the commercial need of greater capacity of channel in the Quinnipiac river to Ferry street bridge.

The commerce of New Haven harbor is mainly in coal, steamboat freight, shellfish and shells, lumber, steel billets and pig iron. "Sorosis" Shoe for Ladies.

Nothing could be more acceptable as a useful Christmas present than a pair of handsome shoes or elippers, and certainly no shoe could be more appreciated than the Sorosis. This shoe is known the world over, and is as popular in Great Britain and other foreign countries as it is at home. This shoe is of great beauty, of elegant style and lasting wear. It is made of every size and shape, and is fit for a queen to wear. It is manufactured for every kind of foot, large and smail, as well as for feet that are neither the one nor the other. They are numbered in such a way that no matter where the wearer may be the number will enable them to write to the nearest branch store and they will get an exact reproduction of the shoe they have been using. The sole agent in this city is A. B. Greenwood, 814 Chapel street. "The Sharpness of Steel" is an admirable little book with an interesting story, and it also contains much information relative to the merits of the Sorosis shoe. You can have the book by call-

> DEMOCRACY AND SOCIALISM. Inasmuch as the force of socialistic ideas, if not of socialistic votes, is becoming formidable in some sections of the Union, it is interesting to remark what attitude will be taken by the two great parties regarding this latest tendency in American politics. The selection of Mr. Williams as the minority leader in the house furnishes in itself conclusive evidence that the democratic party is not yet, nor likely soon to be, swept from its old landmarks regarding at least fundamental principles. For this happy condition the credit is due in large measure to the sound judgment and steadiness of purpose of the electorate in the Southern states-to the coinstancy and stability of the Southern people. This section of the Union should be the last place on the planet in which socialism may hope to flourish. Its apostles may succeed elsewhere, but it is safe to predict that here they will wear themselves out against the conservatism of Southern character. If the South can predominate in shaping the policy of the democratic party, that organization will set itself like a fiint against those socialistic tendencies, which, in the judgment of many persons, are to-day the greatest menace to the perpetuity of institutions.-Birmingham Age-Herald.

Great Hill Farmer Declares He Saw

One Yesterday. A Great Hill farmer came into town, yesterday afternoon, looked up a reporter and told him that he wanted to get on record as the man who had seen the first ground hog of the season. He said that he had read a great deal about the fall and winter being an open open one, and had noticed that a number of people referred to flowers blooming late in the fall, but he thought that he had some facts that would be of more interest than all the others so far published.

He called attention to the fact that the ground hog was supposed to go to bed early in the fall and to keep under cover until February, when he came out to see how the weather was and to

FIRST DORSCHT CONCERT.

BRILLIANT PROGRAM OFFERED AT HYPERION SUNDAY NIGHT.

Mrs. Josephine Rizzo Woods, Soprano, the Soloist-One of Lord Elgar's Compositions to be Rendered-Played Last June When He Received Degree

For the first of the season's series of concerts the Dorscht orchestra Sunday evening will give a brilliant programme at the Hyperion. The soloist of the evening will be Mrs. Josephine Rizzo-Woods, soprano, an accomplished artist, and rapidly coming to the front as one of the sweetest sapranos in the state. Recently Mrs. Woods sung at a rehearsal of the Choral union, and created such enthusiasm that it was some time before Conductor Haesche could resume his choral work. It is confidently expected that Mrs. Woods will prove a delightful treat Sunday evening.

The programme itself is made up of exceedingly interesting numbers, one of which in particular has an unusual interest for New Haven music lovers. This is "Salute Demour," one of Lord Elgar's compositions, and which was played for him by the Symphony orchestra when he received his degree at Yale last spring.

Another brilliant number will be "The Charmer," the latest of Chaminade's compositions. This is the first of this esterling composer's works to be arranged for orchestra, and musicians throughout the city are deeply interested in it.

The subscriber's sale of seats will be continued through to-day at Steinert's, 777 Chapel street. The public sale also opens to-day at the same place. Saturday and Sunday

the sale will be at the Hyperion.

This animal is nearly extinct. It is nearly as rare now in nature as it is on the Oregon coins-called beaver money of the early time. All early explorers and settlers of the Oregon country Oregonian is not sure that any member retreat might lead to their destruction. home. and trappers Columbia, were his favorite grounds, ocrat. The animal was always very shy, not prolific, and therefore easily exterminated. In many particulars the beaver of the Western Hemisphere was differso numerous in the Eastern Hemistime of the discovery and till long afterwards. The demand for the fur of the beaver -strange as it may now seem-was one of the factors that combined to break the way into the great wilderness of the West; and in its result of primary exploration, that led up to settlement, it was the mast important one. It led the trapper and trader from the Great Lakes and the Mississippi to the Western Ocean.

the beaver avoided-unless canyons, out into valleys where there were lakes or marshes that could be controlled and unflowerlike flower. where there was timber or brushwood in some abundance. Where thestream was large and deep and swift the beaver could not build a dam, nor was it necessary, since the animal could not burrow into the banks and establish his chamber at a steady water level. Where waters were continually swift and uncontrolable, and especially where they were not bordered by an abundof cottonwood, willow, yellow birch and other favorite wood food, the beaver was absent. Where brooks and growths, the beavers were abundant, as well as in the natural lakes and quiet reaches of the larger streams.

That is, the object of the dam of blue. was the formation of an artificial pond. the principal uses of which were the refuge to them when assailed, and the water connection it gave to their lodges Hence, as the level of the uond must in all cases have risen from one to two feet above these entrances for the protection of the animal from pursuit and capture, the surface level of the pond must have been subject to their immediate control. With this in view, their dams were always sonstructed. The animal lived wholly on bark and twigs; its food for winter where the climate was gevere, was prepared by cuting poles and branches, which it dragged into places within or beside the lodge and the bark was stripped off as wanted. The cutting was done mainly with the inferior or lower teeth-the upper teeth, though formidable in appearance being used mainly for holding. All early settlers of Oregon were familiar with the habits of the beaver. So common was the animal, indeed, that it was possible to miss notice of him. Throughout the entire Oregon country west of the Cascade Mountains, there wasscarcely a creek or swamp which the beaver did not inhabit. Strange to say, the Indians lacked the ingenulty to capture them, which the whites so quickly developed. One reason was

For man's desire to kill, and his eagerness for profit, exerted upon a timid and not very prolific race of ani mals, has virtually destroyed it. Yet there are persons still living in Port land who have seen dwellings of the beaver within short distances all round the present city, if not within or upor the very site of it .- Portland Oregonian

COLOR SCHEME OF FLOWERS. One of the mast fascinating phases of the study of flowers is in watching ent from the beaver of the Eastern, yet the changes in the dominant color at of the same general family. But since different periods of the year. There the historic period began, it never was is evidently a color scheme, and we cannot fail to detect it if we only take phere as it was in the Western, at the the pains to work it out. There is only one month whic hean be said to be absolutely devoid of flowers in this latitude, and even this is open to question. That month is January. In December you can easily find stray blossoms of self-heal, and here and there a belated dandellon. In February, unless the weather is unusually severe, seek some sheltered nook of the woodland, where a spring from the hillside forms some marshy ground which is less frozen than the surrounding earth, because the water Swift streams, flowing through rocky is warmer than the atmosphere. CHILD'S EXCITING ADVENTURE. There was a big to-do around the Albany Hotel the other afternoon when little Eva Dutton, seven-year-old daughter of S. F. Dulton, the hotel manager, was discovered in the bear pit. Attention was drawn to her pre dicament by the child's outcries, and there was a general rush from the rear end of the building to bring her back to safety. Mr. Maher, proprietor of the hotel, recently came into possession of the two bears, which are nothing more than good sized cubs, one a cinnamon and the other a black, through Vernor Davis of Almont. They were captured when only two weeks old. They are now seven months old, but, fortunately not of a vicious temperament. The an imals are confined in a small pit at the rear of the hotel, and have naturally attracted considerable attention. Guesti at the hostelry and the public in general have gone to have a look at the young bears, and Eva Dutton took a great interest in them. She was playing about the pit and went part way down a ladder running into it.

The bears, which are carefully chained, eyed her demurely, and as no one was looking, she decided to go further down, not realizing any possible dan ger. Toward the bottom of the ladder she slipped a ndwent plump against the little cinnomon. The fall frightened her and she began crying. When help arrived. Eva was seated in the pit be tween the two bears, which were gent ly looking her over. Their bread and milk diet had falled to arouse their natural inheritance of love for flesh and blood. To this the girl undoubtedly owes her safety. As it was, she was rescued with only a slight tear in her dress where the claw of the cinnamon had caressed her.-Denver Repub-

VALUE OF TATTOOING. "Tattoo marks," said Lecoq, the detective, "identified the other day an unknown man killed by a train. It is Imazing how tattooing has revived. Among sailors and such like it has never decayed, but of late rich young men have taken to it as much as sailers ever did. One young man will have tattooed on his arm his crest; another will have the name of his college fraternity; a third, having traveled, will have a superb Japanese design-a gorgeous flight of pheasants, winding in a dozen bright colors from his shoulder down to his wrist. Some think tattooing hurts-that under the needele the victim writhes and grunts in a welter of blood. It doesn't hurt much, and no blood flows to speak of."

YESTERDAY'S STOCK MARKET. Speculative Interest Maintained-Decided Irregularity.

New York, Dec. 14.-Speculative interest in the stock market was fully maintained to-day as is abundantly indicated by the volume of the day's sales-The market was decidedly irregular at all times and more than once was quite uniformly weak. But many brilliant advance s scored in stocks of large influence on speculative sentiment, kept allve confidence in the market and facilitated the process of realizing profits, which was the cause of the stationary or backward condition of many stocks in the list and the sharp break at the last. The evidence of successful progress in the distribution of holdings is one of the most satisfactory features in any active bull market. To-day's speculative favorites included some of the substantial standard stocks. News to account for the movement was lacking, but there was the usual circulation of tips to herald the movement and closely following this the outbreak of enormous activity in the designated stocks. The operation of organized speculative parties could not be more clearly indicated. A feature astracting much attention is the very large buy ing abroad of what are called Ameri can privileges. Purchases of calls for American stocks in London prompt the purchase of stocks here as part secur ty for the sellers of these privileges But the purchase of these calls, it is pointed out, may be designed as an in urance o n the part of local specula ive holders who desire to lighten their ioldings during the remaining period noney uncertainty. BRIEF MENTION.

High water to-day, 1:03 p. m.

The borough of West Haven meets in the town hall to-night for the purpose of a hearing a report on the Kimberly avenue bridge matter.

On and after to-day all cars for Schuetzen park will leave the corner of Church and Chapel streets for the park by way of Chapel and State strees instead of by way of Church and Elm, as formerly.

John Nichols, who, the police say, has been arrested a number of times for non-support of his wife and child, was again taken into custory yesterday by Policeman Stowell, of the Howard avenue station. He was found living in a house on Hill street.

Clayton E. Hart, of 16 Mill River street, the brakeman whose foot was amputated by a train in the Water streets yards, was reported as doing well yesterday by the authorities at the New Haven hospital, where the man

It's the Red Blood Corpuscles That Proper Food Makes.

A Tiffin, O., woman says Grape-Nuts food gave her good red blood and restored the roses of youth to a complexion that had been muddy and blotchy. She says:

"For ten years I had stomach trouble which produced a breaking out on a conflict of emotion? What other kind ents. When the Hoods decided to place my face. The doctors gave it a long Latin name, but their medicines failed to cure it. Along with this I had frequent headaches, nervousness and always pain in my stomach after meals. "I got disgusted with the drugs, stopped them and coffee off short, and quit eating everything but fruit and Grape-Nuts, with Postum Food Coffee for my table beverage. The headaches, stomach trouble, and nervous weakness disappeared almost like magic, which showed that when the cause was removed and good food and drink used nature was ready to help. My blood was purified and my complexion became like a young girl's, while my weight was increased from ninety to 100 pounds in a few months-good, solid, firm flesh, where it used to be soft and flabby.

"I recommended Grape-Nuts and Postum to my friend, Maud Wwho was afflicted as I had been. She followed my advice, and in a short time was restored to complete health, and in about eight months her weight increased from 100 to 148 pounds.

"Our doctor, observing the effect of Grape-Nuts and Postum in our cases, declared the other day that he would hereafter prescribe these food products for gastritis." Name given by Postum

THE WAGON BABY.

A Vermonter's House on Wheels That Is Comfortable.

"It's remarkable about that baby," said the proud father; "she's going to be famous some day. She will be a leader, first in something, but I don't just know what. Seems, though she was destined to be something great when I tell you she was born on the first day of the month, the first day of the week, the first hour of the day, and she's the first child."

"And she was born in the cart?" "Yes, sir, she was born in the cart and in one of the streets of Barre,' said Everett Hood, a travelling tinker whose outfit is one of the strange seen on the roads of Vermont, or dawn up in a side street one of the cities or

Society took up the pair and came very near spoiling them.

The house on wheels in which they live is a hugh affair, and although additions have been made to it from time to time, it is still rather contracted for a growing family. Its owner has not been content to live in any other kind of a house for many years. The past winter he compromised by buying an old street car, and setting it up on a farm a few miles outside of Barre. The wheels have been removed from the car and additions made to it, but the fact that it was at one time on wheels seems to have reconciled Hood to his new domicile,

With his wimfe and baby he still spends most of the time in the cart, have newspapers in their hands, and startign out in the morning and journeying to Barre or some other town In summer he makes more extended

A jack-of-all-trades, he has always been working out strange ideas. NO PAIN Start Right

Then you are pretty sure to come out right at the end. It is especially true of Interior Decorating.

If you would have the furnishings of your house or your room in perfect harmony, start right.

The first step toward starting right is the choosing of your interior decorator.

The "Thompson Shop" has helped a good many people to start right.
