

EXTENT OF VALPARAISO DISASTER UNCERTAIN

NO DIRECT NEWS RECEIVED ASIDE FROM FEW PRIVATE DISPATCHES.

Nothing Up to an Early Hour This Morning to Confirm Early Reports of Great Loss of Life and Widespread Damage—Belief That They Were Exaggerated—London Firm Receives Cable Stating: 'Severe Earthquake, Commerce Paralyzed, Town Afire.'

The Associated Press correspondent at Buenos Ayres cables that it is feared the town of Los Andes, in the province of Aconagua, has been destroyed. At the same time he points out that Buenos Ayres has no direct communication with the disturbed district.

No official information has reached Washington from Chile, and while positive information is lacking, New York officials of cable companies having connections in South America last night expressed the opinion that the first reports of the earthquake were exaggerated.

All cables reaching New York from Chile and Valparaiso early last night were evidently much delayed, according to the statements of these officials, who are themselves unable to get any information bearing on the situation other than the fact that an earthquake has occurred; that the disturbance has disarranged the telegraphic apparatus and interfered with communication.

There is much anxiety to-night among those who have friends and relatives in Chile. The cable companies and newspapers are making every effort to secure definite information.

It is pointed out that the entire absence of any word from official sources in Valparaiso and other points in Chile may be taken as indicating considerable exaggeration in the reports of loss of life and extent of damage.

The reports received from the various quarters of the globe regarding the disaster have varied greatly, some going so far as to compare the havoc wrought to that of the San Francisco catastrophe with details much the same. It is said that the city at first shaken by a violent earthquake took fire and was burning fiercely, many scores perishing in the flames and the ruins of the fallen buildings. The latest reports along this line comes by way of London and is to the effect that a Hamburg firm has received a dispatch stating that numerous districts of Chile have been destroyed and that Valparaiso has been practically demolished, many, many ships lost and more than a hundred persons killed. It is added, however, that the dispatch is not well authenticated. This is true of all the dispatches, and rumors which purport to give details of the disaster.

One London firm has received a cablegram from Valparaiso which says: "Severe earthquake. Commerce paralyzed. Town afire. Staff safe."

No mention is made of serious loss of life in this brief but probably accurate dispatch and this is regarded as a hopeful sign in the situation.

The central cable office of the Western Union Telegraph company in New York has received a service message saying the Valparaiso office closed for the night at 11:30 o'clock eastern time.

This is an unusual proceeding, but is not explained. Sunday night is the only night the wires are closed at Valparaiso. None of the private messages coming from Valparaiso, some of them responses to messages of inquiry as to the safety of relatives or friends, make mention of serious loss of life.

Buenos Ayres is still cut off from Chile.

Galveston, Tex., Aug. 18.—According to statements made by the cable operator at Valparaiso, who was working in direct communication with the office in this city yesterday, earthquakes shook continued at intervals all through the day, and many times the operators had to flee from their offices.

The operator at Valparaiso stated that everything is in confusion at that place; that many houses have been razed, and the loss of life believed to be great, although no attempt has yet been made to ascertain the number of lives lost. Overland lines over the Andes mountains are all down, and communication south of Valparaiso is completely shut off.

National Ex-Champion Wins Final Round at Southampton.

Southampton, L. I., Aug. 17.—William A. Larned, the national ex-champion, won the final and cup round in the singles of the Meadow club Lawn Tennis tournament here to-day defeating Karl H. Behr, jr., 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1, 7-5.

This was the fifth time that Larned has won the cup on these courts. Larned skillfully forced Behr into difficulties which with the play at high speed, proved the undoing of the youthful Yale aspirant.

WAS WU'S LIFE ATTEMPTED? Fatal Explosion in Pekin Gives Rise to Rumor.

Pekin, Aug. 17.—By the explosion of a gasoline tank used in connection with a lantern show here a general of the army and another official were killed to-day and several persons were wounded. The occurrence caused great alarm and gave rise to many rumors, one being to the effect that an attempt had been made to assassinate Wu Ting Fang, formerly Chinese minister to the United States by a bomb as he was returning from an audience with the empress.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—The Temps correspondent at St. Petersburg telegraphed to-day that he had an interview with Premier Stolypin, who said that had the Russian parliament continued to exist the troubles would have been worse. In his opinion the revolutionary movement was non-political, depending on the agrarian question, and an immediate solution of the pending problem was impossible.

The premier entirely agreed that the emperor was opposed to the expropriation of land, which he regarded as a crime. Much exaggeration, M. Stolypin added, existed relative to the death of land.

Referring to the coming election the premier said he hoped the new parliament would be divided into two parties, and thus be more representative of the country. An accurate forecast of the composition of the future parliament was, however, impossible, owing to the disturbed conditions. He also considered that the liberty granted to the press in Russia had been too extensive, in view of the great influence it exerted, and said that force was the only visible method of fighting the revolution.

Touching on the Jewish question the premier asserted that he was in no way anti-Semitic. He considered that the Jews should be consulted relative to their condition. In conclusion the premier said that all the possible necessary reforms would be introduced, and regarding loans he stated that none will be issued before the meeting of parliament, and, perhaps, even then it would not be necessary to borrow any more money.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—Premier Stolypin to-day authorized a flat denial of various reports which have been in circulation here with regard to revision of the fundamental law, declaring that alteration is not even contemplated. In reference to other rumors that a commission is now working on revision of the law governing the election of members of parliament, a member of the cabinet informed the Associated Press that they probably are conceivable to the fact that the government is making a systematic study of its role in the elections and how best to combat the efforts of the revolutionists quasi or avowed.

Man Stabbed in the Back With Pair of Scissors. New Lebanon, Mass., Aug. 17.—Adolph Walgar is dead and William Owens is under arrest to-night, following a quarrel alleged to have occurred between the two men at the New Lebanon carpet cleaning works to-day, where both were employed. Walgar was stabbed in the back with a pair of shears, dying in a few minutes, from loss of blood.

Owens, while cleaning some mattresses, it is said, brought one into the room where Walgar was working and laid it down on some of the latter's work. This angered Walgar, and he threw the mattress to the floor. A hot argument then ensued, which finally came to blows. Then Owens is alleged to have picked up a pair of shears and hurled them at Walgar. The shears, striking Walgar in the back, remained there until pulled out by Owens. The shears had cut an artery, and Walgar staggered into another room, dying in a few minutes. Owens claims that Walgar attempted to strike him and that he threw the shears in self-defense.

William Bism, also an employee of the company, was the only witness to the affair, and his story coincides with that of Owens, with the exception of the alleged attempt on Walgar's part to strike Owens. The latter was arrested late to-day by the police and lodged in the Greenwhich jail. Walgar was twenty-nine years old and unmarried. Owens is fifty-five.

FIFTY MINERS ENTOMBED.

Cave-In at Virginia Mine—Fate of Victims Unknown.

Bristol, Va., Aug. 17.—Fifty men are entombed alive in the Clinch mountain tunnel at Clinchport, Va., as a result of a cave-in which occurred to-day. It is not known whether the men are dead or alive, but the work of rescue is being pushed as fast as possible. Air is being pumped into the tunnel, and a large force of men is working in an effort toward rescue.

The cave-in occurred unexpectedly, and it is not known who is responsible. The men entombed are chiefly Italians of the mountainous section of southwest Virginia, and the excitement is intense. Men, women and children to-night were at the mouth of the tunnel, awaiting news of those dear to them. Women screamed and wrung their hands, and cried hysterically for fathers, brothers and loved ones.

No bodies have been recovered. The tunnel is being driven through Clinch mountain, and is to be one mile in length. It has already been extended about 700 feet, and the men are a considerable distance in the hole. The contract for the tunnel was let several months ago by the South and West-ern railroad at $2,000,000, and is to be one of the longest and most expensive tunnels in the south.

ENCAMPMENT FOR SARATOGA GRAND ARMY WILL MEET THERE NEXT YEAR.

Protest Against Erection of Statue to Henry Wirtz to be Sent to General S. D. Lee, Commander of the United Confederate Veterans—Proposal to Deprecate Action of Congress in Abolishing Canteen From Old Soldiers' Homes Laid on the Table.

Minneapolis, Aug. 17.—The Grand Army of the Republic completed its annual encampment to-day and adjourned to meet in Saratoga, N. Y., in 1907.

The encampment, after an exciting and acrimonious debate, decided that a protest against the erection of a statue to Henry Wirtz should be sent to General S. D. Lee, commander of the United Confederate Veterans.

The proposal to deprecate the action of congress in abolishing the canteen from old soldiers' homes was laid on the table without debate.

Just prior to adjournment Commander-in-Chief-elect R. B. Brown announced the following staff appointments: Adjutant-general—Joseph W. O'Neil, of Ohio.

Quartermaster-general—Charles Burrows, of New Jersey.

Assistant quartermaster-general—J. H. Holcomb, of Philadelphia.

Chief of staff—J. V. Winans, of Ohio.

The final vote on the next meeting place showed 403 for Saratoga and 175 for Cincinnati.

Commander-in-Chief Tanner gave up the chair to make an impassioned appeal from the floor in support of the minority report relative to the Wirtz statue.

The debate grew warm and a few personalities were indulged in. The minority report was adopted by a viva voce vote.

Resolutions were passed asking the secretary of war to purchase the grounds on which monuments have been erected on the battlefields of Bull Run, and asking that statistics as accurate as possible of the mortality in southern prisons be issued by the government.

During the day Commander-in-Chief Tanner sent a telegram to President Roosevelt informing him that the encampment was in session. To this the following reply was made by the president to Commander Tanner:

"Many thanks for your telegram. Through you I extend to the Grand Army of the Republic my heartfelt greetings, not merely personal, but official, in behalf of all the people of this nation, whose existence is owing to what you and your comrades did in the heroic days of the civil war.

"Theodore Roosevelt."

Adjournment was taken immediately after the installation of the newly-elected officers by Past Commander Louis Wagner, of Philadelphia.

New York, Aug. 17.—L. L. Whitman and C. S. The former record, thirty-two days and twenty-three hours, they made in 1904.

Mr. Whitman brought a letter from Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco, to Mayor McClellan, of New York, expressing San Francisco's thanks for the assistance rendered by the people of New York after the earthquake.

ACCEPT BRYAN AS THE NATIONAL PARTY LEADER

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY BAY STATE DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE.

Recent Wage Earners' Convention in Boston Recognized and Recommendation to State Convention Adopted That Some Representative of Organized Labor be Placed Upon the Ticket—Skirmish for Governorship Between Whitney and Moran.

Boston, Aug. 17.—Resolutions "accepting" William Jennings Bryan as the national leader of the democratic party, and its probable candidate for the presidency in 1908, was unanimously adopted at a meeting of democratic state committee here to-day, the committee having met to make arrangements for the annual state convention to be held in the fall. October 4 was named as the date and Tremont Temple, Boston, as the place for holding the convention. The caucuses to nominate state delegates will be held September 25. The committee also adopted a resolution recognizing the recent wage earners' convention held in Boston to promote the interests of union labor in connection with the nomination of state officers, and recommending to the state convention that some democratic representative of organized labor be placed upon the state ticket.

Unusual importance has been attached to the sitting of the committee to-day, as it was expected that in the course of the proceedings something would develop to show the relative strength of Henry M. Whitney and District Attorney John B. Moran, as rival candidates for the nomination for governor on the democratic ticket. No vote was taken, however, on any question that would disclose the support held by the two men among the members of the committee.

There was an approach to such a revelation, when Daniel H. Toomey, of Springfield, a supporter of Mr. Moran, raised objection to the usual procedure of leaving the selection of officers for the convention to the executive committee. Mr. Toomey claimed that this committee, being appointed by Chairman Josiah Quincy, who already had taken a position in favor of Mr. Whitney, naturally would be influenced by the chairman's view in selecting convention officers. Before the matter had reached the stage at which a vote could be taken, Mr. Toomey was prevailed upon to withdraw his objection.

A number of committee members understood to be supporters of Mr. Whitney made no attempt to conceal their pleasure.

AGED PHYSICIAN ARRESTED. Accused of Grand Larceny by His Ward.

New York, Aug. 17.—Dr. Whitman V. White, seventy-two years old, consulting physician and member of the board of managers of the Manhattan State Hospital for the insane, was arrested in Pittsfield, Mass., to-day on a charge of grand larceny, the amount named in the complaint being $1,435.

The charge was made by James O'Sullivan of the Bronx, for whom Dr. White acted as guardian until O'Sullivan came of age early this year. O'Sullivan alleged that in paying to him his share of his father's estate, Dr. White withheld $1,435.

Dr. White, according to the detective who brought him here, declares that the matter is a trifling one, and that the complaint is based upon a mere technicality, and not upon any real crime. He declares, it is said, that the matter will be very quickly settled, and that he will be released and cleared of any criminal charge.

Dr. White has been known for years as an expert alienist, having a reputation in that line extending throughout the country, and having been connected with several institutions for the insane. He was formerly head of the State insane asylum in Birmingham, and acting superintendent of the government hospital for the insane at Washington, D. C. From Washington he came to this city, and has been for several years connected with the Manhattan State Hospital for the Insane on Ward's Island.

WOMAN STRANGLED.

Found Dead in Her Room—Robbery the Motive.

New York, Aug. 17.—Mrs. Mary Mandelski, the wife of a farmer, was strangled to death in the dining room of her home in East Williston, L. I., to-day. Her body was found by her son lying on the floor, face downward, with her apron bound tightly about her neck. Life was extinct. A search of the upper rooms of the farmhouse showed that the rooms had been ransacked, and the members of the family believe that $1,000 which Mrs. Mandelski had in the house was stolen.

Mrs. Mandelski's son spread the alarm, and a search was begun for Peter Levy, a negro farm hand, who was employed on a farm nearby. It was reported that Levy had been seen about the Mandelski home.

Later Levy was arrested. The prisoner denied any knowledge of the crime.

D. M. WELCH & SON,

Fair Haven 28-30 Congress Ave West Haven

Mr. Wells made a pecuniary settlement with Mrs. Wells, whereby she agreed to live apart from him and to leave him to live as he chose. Miss Wilcox cared for Mr. Wells for a considerable period of time, but by the act of her suit for a bill of service it develops that these services were not remunerated for while the late Mr. Wells was alive. The claim of the widow for her allowance is statutory for $2,000 absolute and for one-half the remainder of the estate of $7,000 after the bills are paid.

WILL BRYAN MISS HIM.

Cummings Will Not Attend the Reception to the Peerless.

Politicians, this morning were remarking upon the coincidence that Mayor Cummings chose for his vacation four weeks during which such a momentous happening is to take place as the home coming of William Jennings Bryan. The peerless in Connecticut, and Cummings 500 miles away! That seems incredible, but it looks as though it were going to happen.

Meanwhile Uncle Alex. Troup is the receiving member of the National reception committee, and is to have Bryan up in New Haven and will lend him for an hour or two to Archie McNeil of Bridgeport, who, so it has recently and enthusiastically been discovered, was always a friend of the traveling statesman, Archie McNeil, you know, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and candidates this year must appear to be very radical, especially when they are running against Mayor Thayer, who in the radical business seems to have a distinct advantage in the fact that he has produced the goods.

As the plans for the reception to Bryan in New Haven and Bridgeport have been coming to a head, a good deal of speculation was aroused as to just how Uncle Alex and his doorkeeper of 10 years ago were going to ride a horse without either riding in front. The thing was solved this morning, when Mayor Cummings left town for a month's vacation, which was planned, of course several weeks ago.—Stamford Advocate.

GIRLS DISPLACE "BUTTONS."

The charity school boy and the boy in buttons were two types of boyhood out of which Dickens contrived to get a great deal of humor. The first named has entirely disappeared, while page boys of the "Joe the Fat Boy" class are almost extinct, and the last specimens are to be found in clubs and hotels.

At one time the possessor of a bright little boy in buttons was held to indicate that the mistress had risen above the rank of a mere suburbanite and was reaching the fringe of society, but now the parlor maid has taken his place.

Within the past nine or ten years the demand for page boys for private houses has dwindled to almost all except in the case of doctors, who combine in them the duties of door opener, medicine carrier and foot cleaner.

People nowadays prefer to have a smart parlor maid to open the door and receive callers, or to employ a young foreigner of 18 or 20 years of age, who not only acts as footman, but also as window cleaner and general handy man for a trifling wage, leaving after he has earned the language.

from the normal tides of between three and four inches.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 17.—The Valparaiso earthquake was recorded by the seismograph at Victoria. This afternoon E. Baynes Reed, the officer in charge of the Victoria meteorological station, obtained a record of the shock, which, while not so severe as that of April at San Francisco, was prolonged. From the local record the most recent earthquake shock occurred about 4:10 o'clock yesterday afternoon and lasted from that time until 8 o'clock. The heaviest shock was felt at 4:45, when the swing of the boom of the seismograph was about ten kilometres. The next severe shock was at 5:45, and this, too, was prolonged.

SUMATRA AND THE VIM

Won Trial Roosevelt Cup Races Off Marblehead Yesterday.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 17.—The Sumatra, owned by Francis Sminner of the Eastern Yacht club, divided the honors to-day in the seventh and eighth races for the selection of the three defenders for the Roosevelt cup. The Sumatra won the first race, a triangular affair, and scored for the second time in the series. Vim won the second race of the day, a three mile heat to windward and return, coming home in the lead for the first time since the trials began. Both races were sailed in very light airs from the southeast and south. In the first race the yachts were sent on a three mile beat to windward and those boats that stayed inshore or to the north, beat out the rest of the fleet that went wind hunting out to sea, at the first mark.

The regatta committee held a meeting after the second race to-day and announced to-night that all but six boats had been eliminated from the list of contestants. The six yachts which will be requested to continue the trials to-morrow are: Auk, owned by C. F. Adams, 2d; Bonidrel, owned by G. H. Wightman; Caramba, owned by C. H. W. Foster; Spokane, owned by F. Lewis Clark; Sumatra, owned by Francis Sminner, and Vim, owned by T. L. Park.

FIGHTING FOR WIDOW'S SHARE.

Sensational Testimony Expected In Suit for Mrs. Hattie Wells.

The fight of Mrs. Hattie Wells of Old Mystic for the widow's allowance in the $10,000 estate of her late husband, Franklin H. Wells, taken up one year ago soon after the latter's death intestate, was resumed Aug. 15 at a continued hearing before Judge of Probate Arthur P. Anderson of the town of Groton and Noank.

At the opening of the case, Mrs. Wells applied for the office of administratrix of the estate. Judge Anderson denied the application for appointment and a few weeks later he appointed Judge Lemuel G. Clift of Mystic as administrator.

For some time previous to her husband's death Mrs. Wells had been living apart from her husband. In order that she may convince the court of her rights to a widow's allowance, or that she should share at all in the estate, of her late husband by allowance, weekly or otherwise, so as a widow, she must bring convincing proof before the court that her separation was justified by circumstances.

Soon after Mrs. Wells separated from her husband, Mr. Wells went to live at a boarding house conducted by Miss Nancy Wilcox of Old Mystic. It was said that Miss Wilcox was employed by Mr. Wells as housekeeper. Miss Wilcox is charged by Mrs. Wells with being the cause of her separation from her husband.

There are many letters to be read and it is said that some testimony of a sensational nature is expected to develop.

Mrs. Wells is represented at the hearing by Attorney Donald G. Perkins of Norwich, Attorney A. P. Tanner of New London, assisted by Attorney Warren B. Burrows, also of New London.

Miss Wilcox has retained Judge Sweeney and Attorney Henry Agard of Westerly, Attorney Hadal A. Hull and Attorney William E. Joseph of New London will appear before Judge Anderson representing the heirs of the estate, including the Misses Minnie and Dora Wells of Old Mystic, George Wells and William Wells of Old Mystic and Mayor Everett Wells of Penacola Fla.

There are several claims against the estate, Miss Wilcox claiming $2,000 for services rendered as housekeeper, and claims of $1,000 each from George and Miss Minnie Wells, a brother and sister of the deceased.

TRIPLE DROP TO-DAY. Professor Flower Determined to Do It Once More—Free Prizes.

The people at the White City yesterday afternoon saw Johnny Mack, the famous little aeronaut, shot out of a cannon at a height of over a mile. It was a beautiful ascension and the people were amazed at the startling spectacle. Mack was burned about the arms owing to the premature explosion of the cannon.

Professor Flower said to Manager Speck last night in all earnestness: "Sam, we will do that triple parachute drop to-morrow if we kill a man. You can say this in the papers for me." Johnny Mack, who stood near by, echoed the professor's words. "A triple drop it shall be," he said, "no matter what happens." Mack further said that he would use the "hoodoo" red parachute and would cut away from it in time to get in his three drops.

Visitors to the White City should remember that the free tickets they receive at the gate may result in their being awarded the fine piano now on exhibition at Loomis' music store on Chapel street. This splendid instrument will be awarded next Thursday without fail, and the winner will be entitled to take it right out of the grounds that very night. A fine list of silver prizes will also be awarded.

SAVIN ROCK THEATER. The Savin Rock theater has been a Mecca for lovers of high-class vaudeville this week. The performances today are the last of the week and should not be missed.

CARPENTER ANTS. Rare Intelligence of These Curious Small Creatures.

"I once carefully studied a large colony of carpenter ants that for several years had lived and wrought within the heavy copper beam of a flour mill at Bellwood, Pa.," says Henry C. McCook, in "Harper's Magazine."

"One by one the gang dropped the pellets from a crack in the twelve-inch beam which opened into the next. These fell upon a cross-beam, eighteen inches beneath, where another group of workers gathered then up and dropped them upon the stairway that led from the lower story, the next being situated above the second floor."

"The miller, who had been about the premises for several years, said that when he first came the ants had a third gang detailed upon the stairway, several feet below, who cleared off the dumpage and dropped it to the floor. But as he swept the stairs daily, the emnets discovered that their detail for duty in that quarter was not needed, and withdrew it. Thereafter work went on as I saw it—the chipping cast from the cross-beam to the stairs were left to the manipulations of themselves broom."

"It was interesting and amusing to watch the little creatures in this act. Having reached the curbstone, the wee porter would rear upon his hind legs, poise himself a moment thus, then bending forward, release or cast the chip from her jaws. The forefeet were used for this, being raised to the side of the face and placed against the pellet, which, by a sharp forward motion was hurled away. Then would follow several similar movements, as though to brush from mouth and mandibles adhering particles of dust."

ENTERTAINMENTS.

New Haven Theater. Pregnant with the purity of Christian holiness in its religious aspect, which has specially endeared the play to chock people of all sects, "The Sign of the Cross" has strong historical interest in its realistic exposition of the darkest days of Roman history, when Nero held cruel and profligate sway, and Christians were persecuted, tortured and put to death by his Pagan subjects. No greater contrast could be pictured than the resignation and serene faith of the Christians, and the brutal license and barbarism of Nero and his people.

"The Sign of the Cross" will have an elaborate scenic and costume production at the New Haven theater Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, August 20, 21 and 22, with matinee Wednesday.

The plot briefly told is as follows: Marcus Superbus, Prefect of Rome, meets in the streets Mercia, a beautiful Christian maiden, and falls in love with her. Marcus has been ordered by Nero to exterminate the fast increasing sect of Christians. Learning that Mercia is one of the despised followers of the new faith, he goes to her disguised as a boatman and warns her of her peril. While he is with the girl and her companions word is brought that Stéphanus, a young boy who is of their number, has been arrested. Marcus hurries to the prison, but he is too late to save Stéphanus from the rack, where he has been tortured until the boy has revealed the meeting place of the Christians. Learning from the boy that Mercia will be at the meeting the prefect and his guards hasten to the grove by the Cestrian bridge, where it is in progress. The worshippers have been attacked by the soldiers of the emperor, and Marcus arrives just in time to save the life of the woman he loves.

Borealis, a wealthy patrician, who is in love with Marcus, hears of his infatuation for the Christian girl. Goaded on by the enemies of the prefect she induces Nero to condemn Mercia to death. Marcus appeals to the emperor who at last promises to save the girl from her frightful doom in the arena if she will publicly renounce her faith. Marcus goes to her and entreats her to live and become his wife. This she refuses to do, although she confesses that she loves him. Won at last by the unswerving faith of Mercia and her companions Marcus, too, embraces the belief of the woman he loves, and hand in hand they go to the beasts and "the light beyond."

SCENE FROM "THE SIGN OF THE CROSS."

"HOITY-TOITY." The attraction at the New Haven theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, August 23, 24 and 25, with matinee Saturday, will be Weber & Fields' greatest success "Hoity-Toity," which comes with the prestige of "one sold year on Broadway." Hoity-Toity is to laugh. There is a plot to be sure, but you don't want to let that worry you, as it is frankly admitted that it is a mere thread on which to hang an unusually good assortment of hilarious comedy and tuneful music. The chorus is one of rare loveliness, and what is more to the point, is distinctly a singing chorus.

The original scenery and light effects

used in the New York production of "Hoity-Toity" at Weber & Fields' cozy little Broadway theater in New York, will be seen in this production; and no expense has been spared in making this what the New York press unanimously conceded it to be, the greatest musical hit on Broadway in a decade.

Everything about "Hoity-Toity" contains that which appeals to lovers of high class musical comedy. The book is by Edgar Smith; the music by the late John Stromberg, and the dances and ensemble movements by Julian Mitchell—a trio of names which speaks volumes to those who are up-to-date in things theatrical. There is said to be an effulgent array of chorus girls and a glittering show of gorgeous costumes. The large company numbers fifty people, seat sale opens Monday.

A JAPANESE ROMANCE.

Wise Man Will Decide Who Shall Wed Iame-San. Kono Tamasaara, who mends porcelain ware and sells Onaka bronzes in his shop over Tolland's sausage store in East Houston street, near Second avenue, is awaiting the award of a tribunal of arbitration on the question of the proprietary rights in one Iame-san Hosoye, a Japanese maiden from the plum gardens of Oomori, near Tokio. The other disputant in the suit is a Japanese widow washer of Jersey City, Inumaru by name. The tribunal is a "very wise man" whose name is at present not revealed.

Mr. Tamasaara's case, as told to an interested and sympathetic listener over the bronze incense burners in his shop is one that requires all the delicacy and tact of the "very wise" umpire. The bronze dealer believes that Iame-san, the maid from Omori, is, according to Japanese rite, his lawfully wedded wife. The plebeian widow washer of Jersey City has a stronger hold on Miss Iame's affections, Tamasaara admits, but he gained that advantage unfairly and without regard for the honor of a fellow countryman.

One day last week Tamasaara dressed himself in his best entaway coat and bought a pink for his buttonhole. Then he went across to the Jersey City terminal of the Pennsylvania railroad to meet the young woman, who was to arrive direct from Japan on an evening train from the west. He had received a letter five yards in length, written from Seattle by his bride-to-be the day of her landing from the steamer, saying that she would travel east in the company of a Japanese gentleman and his wife, and that she would expect to see her future husband at the end of the honorably long and arduous journey.

When the train drew up at the station Tamasaara removed his hat in the excitement of anticipation. He caught a glimpse of a small young person in a pink shirt waist and straw sailor making her way through the car to the steps. Thither he went in some haste and stood, hat in hand, to greet the young woman.

"I am honorably overwhelmed with joy to see your face again," spoke Tamasaara. "Many times has the cherry blossom since I have had the humble honor of listening to your musical voice," demurely lippled Miss Iame. "If you will deign to come to my humble house," began Tamasaara. Then came the intervention of the widow washer gentleman. He had been standing awkwardly by, awaiting the chance to speak.

"Without daring to interrupt," said he of the swab and pail, "let me humbly beg to suggest that Iame-san will not go to the house of Tamasaara. She has most graciously deigned to become my wife and will now depart with me after taking courteous leave of the honorably gentleman whom I am addressing."

Tamasaara was floored for the instant. "But has she not exchanged photographs with me and did I not provide, poorly, no doubt, for Miss Iame's passage from Omori to New York? Not on your honorable thynp, but words to that effect will the lady go to your house as your wife?" Then with appropriate tears the maiden of the plum blossoms intervened. True, she had known the Honorable Tamasaara in Omori when he used to own a rikisha stand near the temple gate. And true, she had seen him depart for America with tears. Had she not become his betrothed with joy and eagerly exchanged photographs with him? Ah, yes! but she had met the widow washer on the train from Chicago and he spoke so wonderfully of his love. What was she but a miserable girl, whose heart was in the hand of Kwannon, goddess of love, and not for her own disposing?

The widow washer from Jersey City said he would gladly reimburse Mr. Tamasaara for the passage money he had spent all unworthily on Miss Iame. The widow washer said he would even set out a sake cup for Mr. Tamasaara at the wedding feast. But this was not for Tamasaara. They should take the girl to the home of a very wise man whom he knew. They should ask this man of wisdom to decide where she would bestow her hand. He, Tamasaara, would abide by the decision.

So after a rash pasley on the platform of the Jersey City station it was decided that the very wise man should act as a court of arbitration. Two very stern faced Japanese men and one oddling nean, whose eyes glistened with tears, took the ferry to Cortlandt street and there set out for the home of the very wise man. There Iame-san still is, awaiting the time when the high court of arbitration shall render his judgment.

"It is highly improper that a young woman should act thus," says Mono Tamasaara, as he dusts his Onaka bronzes in his shop on East Houston street. "But then women have not been given the honorable sense that men have. They are little children."—New York Sun.

HELPLESSNESS OF CITIES.

The helplessness of a great city was never better illustrated than when he earth trembled a few seconds under San Francisco on April 18 last. This tremor did comparatively small damage to buildings, but it worked havoc by snapping water and gas mains, electric wires and railroad tracks. In an instant the city was deprived of water, food, light, transportation facilities and means of communication. The tremor that shut off the water set the city on fire and burned the small stores of food. Street railways were paralyzed, the telephones and telegraphs were useless, and human beings were reduced to aboriginal methods of living and locomotion. By mere accident a single railroad track was left so little damaged as to be easily repaired, and by superhuman work sufficient food was brought in to prevent starvation. If the outside world had not rushed to their assistance the people of San Francisco would have perished in the midst of a land of running waters and flowing with milk and honey. Such complete wreckage of urban facilities is rare in history, and could only occur through convulsions of nature of warlike assault and siege. It is comparatively easy, however, for the delicate mechanism of any city to be thrown out of gear temporarily by re-

PICNIC FOR ODD FELLOWS. To Be Held on Grounds at Odd Fellow's Home, Groton, Labor Day. The board of managers of the Odd Fellows Home, Groton, has voted to hold a basket picnic on the home grounds on Labor Day, September 3, and a cordial invitation has been received by all the Odd Fellow lodges in the State to participate. An interesting program has been promised. One of the special features will be the unveiling of a bronze tablet presented by the past grand patriarchs of Connecticut in memory of the late P. G. P. G. M. and P. G. R. John W. Smith of Waterbury. A basket luncheon will be enjoyed, and clam chowder and coffee will be provided free to all. The board of managers has asked that the secretaries of the different lodges notify Wallace R. Johnson of New London, as early as possible of the number to be present, so that adequate arrangements can be made for their reception and entertainment. Special rates have been secured from the railroad company, which will require only a half fare on the return trip from Groton. The occasion will afford an excellent opportunity for inspecting the home, and a number from here will undoubtedly take advantage of it. The Uniformed Rank, K. of B. of the State, will hold its field day exercises in New London on Labor Day, which will be an added attraction for taking the trip. LEGACY FOR BARBER. Canaan Man Was Mentioned in His Grandfather's Will. Meriden, Aug. 17.—George N. Laurence the erstwhile manager of the Brunswick Hotel on State Street has fallen heir to a small fortune and is very happy in consequence. It will be remembered that Mr. Laurence left Meriden a few weeks ago having decided that the hotel business was not to his liking, and taken a job at his trade of a baker in Hartford. Shortly after going to Hartford Mr. Laurence received word that his grandfather, George N. Laurence of New Orleans, had died and by the terms of his will $7,000 are awaiting Mr. Laurence's call in that city. His son received a legacy of $8,000. Mr. Laurence has given up his position in Hartford and is now working in a bakery in Canaan. This position he will retain until winter, when he will go to New Orleans to claim his inheritance.

It is not too warm for the Atlanta Journal to answer a question which has long been unanswered. The question is, What becomes of the pins? The Journal says they fall to the earth and become terrapins.

Some people haven't much sentiment. Two sycamore trees planted in 1745, to one of which tradition says Washington tied his horse, have been cut down in York, Pennsylvania, after all possible effort to save them.

In the United States during the first half of this year $260,000,000 was spent for new buildings in twenty cities, $13,000,000 more than was spent during the corresponding time last year in twenty-four cities. Of the $13,000,000 increase $8,000,000 was in Greater New York, whose total was $85,000,000. Los Angeles spent $10,000,000 during the six months, an increase of $2,400,000.

Some rather remarkable fancy work was recently exhibited in London, the work of a woman living in Cape Town, South Africa. Several screens and some exquisite panels were decorated with flowers and figures made entirely of fish scales. The scales were threaded on silver wire and dyed just the right tints, and the results were quite wonderful in both color and general effect.

Is anybody who is worth $15,000 a year really worth associating with? asks Mr. E. S. Martin in Applton's Magazine. Mr. Martin argues that a man making this much is likely to be too busy to be good for much else; and that after he has made his money he is generally too busy spending it to make him a desirable companion—too busy "buying things, building, playing ardently with costly new toys—automobiles and the like—hustling off to Europe and hustling back home."

Secretary Paul De Schweinitz of the Moravian mission board has written a letter to the Philadelphia Ledger about that unfortunate Syrian leper down in West Virginia. "The fear of him is absolutely senseless," he says. "The Moravian church, in sundry of its widely extended mission fields, has been taking care of lepers since 1823. At present Moravian missionaries have charge of leper colonies at Groot Chatillon, in Surinam, Dutch Guiana, South America, and outside the gates of Jerusalem, in Palestine. Not only do they live with the lepers, but the nurses wash and bind up the wounds of the patients in the very worst stages of leprosy, and care for these poor afflicted mortals until they die. In the experience of nearly three-quarters of a century of this personal work among and with lepers, there is not a single instance of a Moravian missionary or nurse having contracted the disease."

The class of 1907 at the Naval Academy will have three graduation days, the first of which will take place on September 12, when will be sent to sea those midshipmen who have attained more than 78 per cent. for the so-called second term, that from February to May, and who have also made at least 75 per cent. in the entire academic work. The next graduation will take place in February, when will be graduated those who made 78 per cent. in the period from October to February. It is expected there will be few, if any, graduates on that occasion, for the reason that those who can come up to the requirements will be able to make the graduation in September. The third graduation will take place in June. It is unusual to have three graduation dates for one class, and it is without precedent to have any part of a class graduate as early as September. The reason for it was to raise the standard of efficiency and stimulate rivalry, and at the same time get the young men to sea at as early a date as possible to meet the demand for naval officers on board ship. The academic authorities, however, remain opposed to the system which graduates the midshipmen ahead of the usual June closing.

MORE EARTH-SHAKING.

There has been a severe earthquake in South America, and though the news about it is not entirely clear at this writing, the indications are that much damage has been done. The evidences of the instability of things we have had this year are decidedly disturbing. They show that proud man doesn't amount to as much as he often gets to thinking he does, and they show how easily much of that which is called property can be made valueless.

What next and where next? Nobody knows and perhaps it is just as well that nobody does know. Let us continue buying, selling and getting gain as if the world were going to stand forever and we were going to stand with it. They say that this part of it is solid and out of the earthquake region. Let us hope it is.

USEFUL, IF MARRIED.

Woman no longer needs any defense. She can and does defend herself, and she has got herself established in a way that makes her growth and progress sure. Man, on the other hand, needs much defense, and gets little. It is seldom that a voice is raised in his behalf, and then only when he is married. A single man is no good and he is constantly reminded of his worthless estate, both by the voice of conscience and the voice of Woman. But a married man may be worthy. Some new and valuable testimony to the usefulness of the married man is given by the Swifts of Chicago, who have offered a sliding scale of wedding presents from $50 to $200 to all men in their employ who will marry. The reasons advanced by the company for the increased value of married men are: A married man can be depended on better than an unmarried man. He has increased domestic responsibilities and takes his work more seriously. He places his work higher in importance than does the youth, whose brain is filled with thoughts of girls and light social affairs. He is not as extravagant and "flighty," hence can be trusted in financial matters to a greater extent than the single man. The larger a man's family the more faithful he is to his work, his responsibility being such that he works more energetically for increased wages.

This is about right, and was long ago perceived by the intuition of Woman, who always knew that the only valuable men are the married men.

NOT SMART ENOUGH YET.

United States people have been and are pretty smart, but they have never been smart enough to get the trade with South America they ought to have. And there is much to be done before they do get it. Almost the whole banking system of South America is controlled by European capital or is in close affiliation therewith. The result is of course a great advantage to the European merchant in the matter of credits. Further, the several countries of the continent, with the exception of a few at the north and northwest, are inadequately supplied with steamship lines running to the United States, while there are abundant facilities of this kind in the direction of Europe. Third and most important of all among the reasons for the slow growth of our business is the fact that the United States is new in the business of exporting. Our exports to the rest of the world have been chiefly agricultural, but South America wants the product of our factories. We must learn to consult and heed Latin-American prejudices in preparing and shipping our manufactured goods.

The South American markets really belong to us, but we shall not get them without a good deal of enterprise and maneuvering.

A NEW WRINKLE.

More and more it appears that there is nothing pure in this adulterated world but that baking powder. It seems that certain coffee houses have been importing coffee from Brazil to New York, shipping it from New York to Porto Rico in the original bags, where it is transferred to other bags, given a Porto Rico label and shipped back to New York to be sold as Porto Rico coffee at an advanced price. According to the government agent for the Porto Rico coffee-growers the market price of No. 4 Rio, which is the army and navy standard, and an excellent coffee, is 9 1-2 to 2 5-8 cents a pound. The freight charges from New York to Porto Rico and back are half a cent a pound, and the handling and resacking in Porto Rico cost another half-cent, making a total cost of 10 1-2 to 10 5-8 cents a pound. The price of Porto Rico Coffee in New York is 12 1-2 to 13 1-2 cents a pound, and the demand so great that it is gobbled up on arrival, so that at a fair estimate the profit on the fraudulent Porto Rican coffee is close to three cents a pound, or six dollars on each two hundred pound sack.

Of course we are not poisoned by this performance. Only cheated. Still, it isn't quite comfortable to be cheated all the time and in every way.

The Price. It costs me more and more to live. But I will not sit down and fret. For, after all, the price I give is very small for what I get.

I am not bound in slavery. Sweet breezes blow across the hills And happy children smile at me Without presenting any bills. The sky is blue above my head, And, if it's cooling more and more To keep alive, it may be said That life was never so good before. I will not sit in weak dismay Or worry 'er each little debt. For, after all, the price I pay is very small for what I get. —Chicago Record-Herald.

A VEGETABLE DINNER.

Those who, from choice or medical necessity, are contemplating abstinence from flesh food can find no better time than now, when fresh vegetables are abundant and varied. There are many ways of serving vegetables other than boiled with a milk or butter sauce and she who has the practical science of cookery at her finger ends can present a most tempting menu as readily in winter as summer. However, here is a summer dinner which even the greatest devotee of meats would pronounce good.

Cucumber and Onion Soup Ragout of Vegetables Cauliflower Fritters Tomatoes Stuffed with Peppers and Mushrooms Lettuce and Beet Salad Chilled Cantaloupes Iced Coffee

Allowing proportions sufficient for six persons there would be needed for the first course three good sized cucumbers and two large white onions. Pare and slice both vegetables thinly. Cover them with a pint and a half of boiling water, add a pinch of salt and simmer until soft enough to be rubbed through a sieve. In the mean time scald three cupsful of milk in a double boiler and thicken it with two scant tablespoonfuls of butter and three tablespoonfuls of flour rubbed together to a paste. In this stir gradually the cucumber puree; season highly with salt and white or red pepper and simmer for ten minutes. When serving a spoonful of croutons (half inch bread dice fried in a little butter) may be dropped into each plate.

For the ragout of vegetables the principal dish take one quart of potatoes, one of white turnips and a pint of carrots, measuring after paring and cutting in pieces the size of a walnut. Cook the carrots for forty five minutes in boiling, slightly salted water. Boil potatoes and turnips together for ten minutes then drain. Melt tablespoonful of butter or nice dripping in a kettle; add one large onion cut fine and fry slowly until just beginning to color. Sprinkle over them two tablespoonfuls of flour and stir frequently until the flour is pale brown then add, with slow constant stirring, one pint of water. When smoothly thickened add one tablespoonful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, half as much white pepper and the vegetables. Cover and simmer gently until all are tender about half an hour, adding more seasoning if needed. Just before serving sprinkle in a heaping tablespoonful of chopped parsley.

The cauliflower should be boiled until barely tender in salted water; this must be done in advance that it may be cold before using. With a sharp knife divide it into tiny branches. Separate the whites and yoke of two eggs. To the yolks add one-half cupful of cold water, a pinch of salt and one cupful of flour. Beat until a smooth batter, add a tablespoonful of melted butter and beat again. Stir in the whites which have been beaten to a stiff froth and put aside in a cold place for an hour or more. Have ready a kettle half filled with smoking hot fat. Dip the pieces of cauliflower in the batter, lift out with a fork, let drain and dip the pieces of cauliflower in the batter, lift out with a fork, let drain for an instant then drop in the fat, cooking until golden brown. Five or six pieces can be cooked at once in this way. When done drain for a moment in soft paper then send at once to the table.

Use crisp lettuce and cold boiled beets for the salad. Cut the beets in slices then in match-like strips. For a picnic so prepared mix together a French dressing, using four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of black pepper and one tablespoonful of vinegar. Sprinkle this over the beets, heap them on the lettuce in the salad bowl and pass a small bowl of additional dressing with them when served.

Cantaloupe should be thoroughly chilled on ice before opening. Have them and with a spoon remove seeds, taking care not to scrape away the first layer of flesh as in it is found the best, most spicy flavor of the fruit. Never fill the opened halves with chopped ice as in melting it draws out much of the high flavor and juice of the fruit. Serve plain, passing salt or sugar to suit individual tastes.

Should the day be a warm one iced coffee will be more enjoyable than the boiling hot article. In such case prepare the coffee early in the day; add an equal quantity of scalding hot milk and just enough sugar to make moderately sweet then chill and stand on ice until the meal hour. Where are members of the family who prefer unweetened coffee it will be well to have some plain sugar syrup, as it blends more quickly and entirely with cold liquid than in powdered or granulated form. As it keeps well when covered and in a cold place a quantity may be prepared at one time. Place in a saucepan three cupfuls of granulated sugar and one pint of boiling water. Stir frequently until dissolved then boil without stirring for five minutes. Strain and pour into clean bottles.

THE VICES OF SOCIETY.

Indiscriminate Condemnation May Do More Harm Than Good.

During the last few months Fr. Bernard Vaughn has been edifying large congregations with his denunciations of fashionable sins. We do not question the integrity of his purpose, but we are far from certain about the wisdom of his methods. He denounces what he calls the "smart set" for their godlessness, their luxury, their gambling. No doubt it is partly true in detail; chapter and verse may conceivably be found for every statement; and yet the result is, to our mind, far from true. It takes two people to make a truth—one to hear it and one to speak it; and the preacher is too often prone to forget mind as to what impression he desires to make, but we venture to say that it is a very different impression which is left upon his hearers and upon the larger public which reads the reports next day in the half-penny papers. To generalize about "society" is like dogmatizing about a nation; and there can never be more than a suspicion of truth in the generalization. In its proper sense the word is used to describe that large body of people distinguished by birth, intellect or means who can afford to live a life undistracted by petty cares. In this broad sense it denotes the governing class, the men and women who in every department of life set the standards and perform the higher tasks. At one period in our history it had a narrow basis, determined mainly by birth; but nowadays the terms of admission to its portals are generously conceived. There was never a time when capacity was more willingly welcomed, whether it showed itself in the form of wealth or intellect.

Obviously in so large a class there must be many worthless members, who will naturally draw into a set by themselves. People who have wealth and position, without brains or character to correspond, will spend their days in the idle pursuit of pleasure. There are ne'er-do-weels among shopkeepers and dock laborers; only their position advertises their worthlessness and sets them on a pedestal for men to gaze at. We are far from denying the vice and silliness of those people, but we maintain that they are a very little part of society, and that their influence is negligible. They are admired and followed only by the very young or the very foolish. To identify them with society as the pulpist moralist is wont to do, is not only unfair and untrue, but a danger to the existence of any wholesome public opinion. It is Burke's metaphor over again of the noisy grasshopper and placid oxen. Remember that this identification will be made by Fr. Vaughn's hearers and readers even if it is not countenanced by the words of the preacher himself. The spread of cheap newspapers has given the public a morbid curiosity about the doings of the richer classes. The fiction which they read draws a sufficiently lurid picture, and the cheap scandal printed everywhere heightens the colors. When the pulpist adds its testimony their suspicion is confirmed, and the "wicked baronet" of melodrama becomes the type of our ruling classes. It is idle to point out that he is an exception. When you condemn society in the mass, your hearer is entitled to argue that it sanity which must be the exception and folly the rule. Such hazy generalizations miss the truth on another side. The preacher becomes unconsciously a laudator temporis acti, and argues that the wickedness of his age is unexampled in its have attained a pitch of wrongdoing for which past ages provide no equivalent, and if a parallel must be sought we must fly to that old haunt of irrelevant moralists, the decadence of the Roman Empire. The danger of fixing such an impression in the popular mind is obvious, even if it were true, and its truth is manifest to anyone with a slight knowledge of history. We are convinced that society has never shown so high a level of good conduct, intelligence and public spirit as it shows today. For one young man who remains at home to go to the devil there are a dozen performing the task of the State under difficult conditions in far countries. For one fashionable lady who lives only for pleasure here are twenty who spend much of their time in serious and intelligent public work. Let anyone compare the life of a "smart" woman as he will find it in Pope or Horace Walpole with the life of her sister to-day, and he will grant the reality of the change.—From the London Spectator.

STOCK MARKET FEATURES

U. P. AND S. P. WERE THE SENSATION YESTERDAY.

U. P. Up 17 Points, S. P. Gained 7 and Pennsy 6—Ten Per Cent. Yearly Dividend for U. P. a Big Surprise for the Market; Also S. P.'s Dividend—A Great Day's Business Among the Heavy Weights—Did Harriman Make $10,000,000—Pennsy and N. Y. Central Have a Race—Steels Start Up—The Day's Gossip.

The surprise perpetrated upon yesterday's stock market by the declaration of the dividend on U. P. and S. P. set the market boiling in those shares. The former stock was placed on a 10 per cent. and the latter on a 5 per cent. basis. This extraordinary action is justified in the one case by an income from railroad operations and investments equaling 20 per cent., and in the other by a year's surplus amounting to 10 1/2 per cent. on the common stock.

These dividend rates fired the imagination of Wall street, and killed a speculative movement that has not been equalled in years. The market simply went mad. Union Pacific rose over 17 points, Southern Pacific 7, Pennsylvania 6, New York Central 4, Atchafalaya 5 and Amalgamated Copper 2.

The transactions were on the largest scale since the Northern Pacific panic, and the feeling was around that corporations are to accede to the demand of stockholders for a larger share of the surplus earnings; also the feeling that the big men are working mightily to get a first class market to unload on.

An interesting question now is as to how the outside public will take the 10 per cent. rate on Union Pacific and whether it will accept it as worth 200 to yield 5 per cent., as insiders claim. Union Pacific at 10 per cent., compared with St. Paul, a 7 per cent., at 188; Northwestern, 7 per cent., at 210; Great Northern, at 300; Northern Pacific, 210, and Omaha, 185. So also as to Southern Pacific and its dividend and value.

The talk was also that Mr. Harriman in declaring dividends much larger than any one had reason to expect has held himself open to serious criticism of his own great benefits from such action.

Early in the day there were reports that St. Paul had been bought by Southern Pacific at $100 in new stock and $100 in cash. This was denied. The stock responded to the rights, which sold from 15 to 16 on the curb.

The dividends of the Union Pacific company are payable October 1, to the stockholders of record at 12 o'clock m. September 15, and the dividend of the Southern Pacific company is payable October 1, to the holders of the dividend warrants.

United States Steel profited by the Harriman dividends more than by its own. It was forced above 48 on heavy speculative purchases. Talk of a 4 per cent. rate next year was started.

Commission house brokers yesterday morning, although admitting that business had been a little better the last couple of days, still complained that buying had been attracted to the market in very limited volume.

The street felt confident that now Atchafalaya's common dividend will be raised to 5 per cent.

It is probable that with the declaration of such handsome dividends the directors of the companies will be excused for having trifled with the feelings of the street.

Except for half a dozen stocks there was not much response to the dividends. The distribution of stocks in them was so great that pools in minor issues did not have much chance to work up their specialties.

To many observers it was clear that the big people in control of the market are not yet through with their campaign. They still have the stocks, according to familiar phraseology, and they are bent on distributing them.

There was a pretty race between Pennsylvania and New York Central. It started around 14 1/2 and ended at about 145. There was a good deal of rivalry between the two.

A man who is in close touch with prominent interests in the Steel corporation is strongly of the opinion that the common stock will advance to 50 on steady heavy buying by interests.

Commission houses had more business than they could begin to execute. Many had orders for 50,000 shares dumped in on them between 10:15 and 12 o'clock. They sold stocks at the market and bought them the same way. It is believed also that the upward

FASHIONS IN COLOR OF HORSES.

With regard to horses used for pleasure and sport in this country there has generally been a fashion. Probably at the present moment breeders of hackneys are the most particular with regard to color, for at the last hackney show it was generally noticed how greatly chestnut horses were in the ascendant. It is possibly the case, too, that a majority of the best stepping horses one sees in the park are in these days chestnuts; many handsome bays and browns there are too, but the chestnuts are now almost strongest numerically of those horses which appear to be purely hackney blood.

Of course, when one sees a smart pair go quickly past which one is unable to identify, it is impossible to say off-hand whether they are true—i. e., gut-bred hackneys or not; but the breed has made such enormous strides in recent years that it is now possible to guess with a fair amount of certainty which of the horses one sees in the park or in the West End streets are stud book hackneys. Not only have the numbers increased, but so also has the desire to be possessed of these horses, and thus the harness horse of obvious hackney cut is far more in evidence than he was a few years ago. As the light built victoria has succeeded the heavy barouche, so has the lighter made stepping horse succeeded the bigger and stronger harness horse of the Cleveland bay or Yorkshire coach horse type; and whereas a generation ago bay was almost certainly the dominating color in the park, it now hardly more than shares the honors with chestnut and brown.

Bay and brown are, it need hardly be stated, the commonest colors among all half bred horses, and thus the ordinary pair of general utility carriage horses, possibly good enough and honest nags but with no pretensions to breeding or action, are as a rule either bay or brown; but if one ignores the ordinary harness horse and only takes cognizance of the showy trapper, chestnut will be found to have made a great advance. This, coupled with the fact that so many of the London winners are chestnuts, certainly suggests that breeders of stud book hackneys have deliberately tried to produce horses of this color.

The evidence as to fashion in the color of teams is not very pronounced, though it is almost certain that very few in hand driver has some particular fancy in this direction. In the hunting field in color not much observed, but it is pretty certain that there are nothing like so many good gray horses as there used to be a few years ago. It is seldom that a skewball or piebald horse is seen in the hunting field, while a roan is rare, and when he is to be found is more often a blue roan than a strawberry roan. As for the decline of the gray, this is simply due to the fact that there is very few gray sires in the country.—The Field.

WILD RICE.

Picture to yourself a winding island studded lake, twenty-five miles long by two to three wide, with high rolling shores, waving green with their rich fire and glens, maples, birches and oaks, all the undergrowth a luxuriant tangle of red willow, alder, sumach, birch, red cedar and young white silver birch. Down the center of the lake a chain of wooded islands stretched, emerald green with their uncut trees. In May the entire surface of the lake heaves and tosses to the wind without disclosing the wild rice shoots that are pointed even then toward the surface. June shows the ribbons of the rice floating on the surface, pointing ahead every vagrant breeze, turning the lake to a waving mass of yellow-green grasses. July is the blossoming time. Then the garnet and yellow seed flowers on the standing stalks haze all the rice beds in a purplish bloom. All gust strengthens the straw and fills up the seed and colors all a rich, ripe yellow. Then the green islands stand out like emeralds in a plain of gold.

This wild rice riots in changing colors and shades, its golden fields rippling before the wind with the blue lake channels intermingling. Once seen it is never forgotten. Add to this the darting white sails and flashing paddles of the Mississippians, and you have a faint pen picture of Rice Lake, Canada.—Bonnyville Dale in the August Field and Stream.

FEDERAL GAME PROTECTION.

"In consequence of the impulse given to state legislation by the Lacey act, conditions in 1905 presented a marked contrast to those prevailing in 1900," says T. S. Palmer in the August Field and Stream. "Prairie chickens had almost entirely disappeared from the markets of Chicago; venison, quail and grouse were received in greatly diminished quantities, and even ducks, which formerly were shipped from Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas and Texas by thousands, were offered for sale in comparatively small numbers. Cottontails and jack rabbits were almost the only kinds of game received in large quantities. In St. Louis the anti-sale provision in the Missouri law had practically driven all game, except rabbits, from the market; the wholesale trade in game was a thing of the past, and game birds were no longer freely offered for sale throughout the year in hotels and restaurants. "Even more striking are the changes which have taken place in methods of shipment. Until recently most of the game was forwarded to market by express, but the rigid inspection to which express matter is now subjected in Chicago and St. Louis has resulted in detection of many of the devices formerly resorted to with success, and has rendered the ordinary methods of evading the law unsafe. As a result comparatively little game was received at these two cities by express during the past year, and shippers have been driven to the adoption of other means of transportation which, being more or less unsatisfactory and expensive, are likely to prevent a resumption of the trade in violation of law. Conditions similar to those now existing in Chicago and St. Louis may be found also in Milwaukee, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Omaha, Kansas City and other important points in the west. This marked contrast between the present state of the game trade in these cities and that of a few years ago serves to illustrate the progress made possible by stringent laws, coupled with effective and intelligent co-operation in enforcement."

BEATS ALL RECORDS.

Wood, won, married, separated, reunited, separated again and divorced within three weeks, is the record made by Alice Arnold Yager, a fair refugee from San Francisco, who was to-day granted divorce from Ezra R. Yager on the grounds of cruelty.

The girl came here with those who fled from San Francisco shortly after the disaster overwhelmed the Bay City. After a few days' courtship she married Yager. Just as the couple were about to step into the judge's chambers, where the nuptial knot was tied, the woman is said to have refused to proceed with the ceremony. It is stated it was only after several minutes of eloquent persuasion that she consented to have the ceremony performed.

Yager took his bride to the St. Charles Hotel, and three days later reported to the police that his bride had mysteriously disappeared during the night, leaving a note saying she had gone to Oakland. He suspected that she was still in Portland, and detectives were detailed to hunt her up.

Two days later Yager met his missing wife on the street and is said to have pleaded with her to return. It is stated that she resented his earnest pleadings by whacking him viciously over the head with her umbrella. However, she was reconciled, went back to him, only to leave him again for divorce. Yager has made no contest of the suit and did not appear in court when the trial was had. No attorney represented him.—Portland (Ore.) Special.

FINE RACING

AT ELM CITY PARK BY NEW HAVEN DRIVING CLUB.

Red Sovereign and Patronia Princess Win Two Straight Heats—Bonnie Belle Defeats Sam F.—Fine Exhibition of Mule Racing Won by Waterhouse's Major Delmar—Nichols' Band Played Between Heats.

Some fine racing was exhibited at the Elm City Driving park yesterday afternoon by the New Haven Driving Club. The day was an excellent one and a large attendance was present.

The racing began at 2:45 o'clock. Class A, trotting one mile heats, was not raced because Sally Mate, belonging to Dr. Morris Slattery, and George R. belonging to Dr. George Lawton were not in condition.

George R. had his leg cast in a piece of rope last week while he was being driven in West Haven, and fell down badly hurting his leg. One of the principal features of the afternoon was the mule half mile dash in which there were four starters.

While the racing was not going on at Nichols' City band played different selections. The playing was of fine quality and much to the people's satisfaction.

Class B, pacing one mile heats, was raced first. Red Sovereign, who was driven by H. L. Dickerman, won the first two heats easily and thus won the series. Kittle Lalah, who came in third in both heats broke in both heats and was third all the way round.

The mule races were next. Red Sovereign (H. L. Dickerman) 2 1 Prince Elect (L. G. Richey) 3 2 Kitty Lalah (Clayton Redfield) 3 3 Time—2:24 3/4, 2:24 1/2.

Class C, pacing one-half mile heats, was next pulled off, and Patronia Princess won. Royal Huntress and Ajax at the termination of the second heat were tied for second place and as it was only a matinee race the judges used their own rules and both raced to pull off the tie.

In this heat Waterhouse's Royal Huntress broke at the start and led a good deal of ground, but she gained continually all the way around Moran's horse, and came in first. The summaries:

Patronia Princess (Peter Strom) 1 1 3 Royal Huntress (Charles R. Waterhouse, Jr.) 2 2 1 Ajax (John Moran) 3 2 2 Time—1:11, 1:10.

Class D, trotting one-half mile heats, was a mixed up affair, as Kite Nekon was scratched and Bonnis Rex, owned by D. C. Molloy, was out of town. Bonnie Belle was the only horse left in the class, but through the generosity of Dr. William H. Crowe, the race was fixed up.

As Dr. Crowe's horse, Sam F., and Dickerman's Bonnie Belle, were not in the same class the race was not of much interest. The summaries:

Sam F (Dr. William H. Crowe) 2 1 1 Bonnie Belle (H. L. Dickerman) 1 2 2 Time—1:13, 1:17.

The final race of the day was the one-half mile dash.

Waterhouse's mule Major Delmar was picked to win and it did. Dr. Crowe's mule, after roving around the track, the field and the stables came in a good second. H. L. Dickerman's City Hall finished third, John Moran's Allie Slop-er following closely. At the finish a smashup was narrowly averted. The prizes for this race were:

1st, a handsome framed picture given by Brown & Durham; second, a track whip, rosewood handle with gold engravings from Thomas H. Sullivan; 3d, a gold frame picture given by Mr. Hegel; 4th, a stable blanket given by John Moran. The races were finished about 5 o'clock.

The race committee consisted of Dwight Moore, Charles R. Waterhouse, Jr., and R. Kannegger.

DEATH OF COMANCHE CHIEF.

Story of Indian Warfare in Northern Texas.

All day long wagon after wagon had been rumbling up from all parts of Comanche country in Oklahoma to a gospel rendezvous on Cache Creek.

The camp was teeming with modern Indian life. The smoke was rising from fifty little campfires; the innumerable dogs barking; they prepared the evening meal; the men were attending to the horses; the children were racing and laughing. An old Texan was talking to the missionary, who was intensely interested in the story.

"I've seen the time when we gave the Comanches bullets instead of Bibles," he said. "It was in the war of the early '70s. I was one of the Texas rangers, and we fought the Comanches to the finish. We fought them out of Texas, and then the troops did them up at McClellan's Creek, in the territory. Comanches could fight in those days. I saw some brave Indians die, one old chief in particular. I always feel and when I think of it."

"We Texans were fighting our own war with the Comanches. Their troops were in the territory, chasing the 'Staked Plains' band of Comanches; but we stayed in Texas and fought Comanches and Kiowas wherever we found them. Well, one day we found them too thick. About twenty of us got cut off and had to take to the buttes to save our horses. We kept the redskins off until we reached the buttes, and leaving our horses there we rushed back a long gun range from them, and then lay down in the tall grass and kept the Indians off with our rifles until help came. This saved our horses, and fortunately we lost only two men."

"The Comanches would ride within range and fire upon us, but we could shoot from perfect rest, and we emptied many saddles."

"One Comanche had white hair, and when he would whirl his horse around and come riding low, with his gun ready to shoot, the rangers would call to each other, 'Look out for old granddaddy. He shoots close!' There was something unnatural about the old Indian's riding, and Jack Jefferson, who was shooting next to me, said, with a laugh, 'The old buck is so stiff that he can't ride slick.'"

"One time the old man came on a little too far. Jack pulled up his gun. We saw the Indian's horse rise and plunge, and we knew that Jack hadn't missed."

"He's coming on," cried Jack. AAnd sure enough, he was running straight for us, low and swift, over the long grass, the old man tugging in vain at the rein and trying to turn his maddened pony."

"A dozen rifles were raised to stop him, but Jack, all wild with fight and run, yelled, 'Don't shoot. He's coming in. He's my meat.'"

"The old Comanche came on, while the other Indians in the distance were shooting and yelling like demons. But he made no attempt to fire. He sat straight up on his horse, and as he came close we heard him singing."

"One hand was clutching his empty rifle. His eyes were fixed straight ahead. He was riding to his finish, slinging the death chant of the Comanche warrior. He was a sneaky sly. Jack raised his gun, but just couldn't shoot, and nobody else wanted to. The crazy pony passed almost over our heads. Then all of a sudden he straightened up in the air and came down head first on the ground—Indian under, as the horse's feet rose up in the somersault."

"Why didn't the old fool slide off?" yelled Jack, as we both trenched, with our rifles ready in case the Indian should rise again. But no Indian showed up, and the horse lay perfectly still."

"After a bit the Comanches drew off out of range, and Jack and I walked over to where the dead horse lay. 'Shot the pony through the head!' said Jack, and as we came up and saw the limp and lifeless body of the old Comanche, Jack turned to me with a strange choke in his voice. 'Partner, he's broke his neck, and he was tied on to his horse.'"

That night, after the preaching service, the missionary, with dozen of the leading men of the Comanche tribe, some old men, with war records, sat around the fire. Through the interpreter the missionary told them the tale of the white haired Comanche. Their eyes glistened, and a deep guttural "Ha, ha!" followed each sentence.

When the story was done there was a long, solemn silence, and the interpreter, turning to the missionary, said: "They say it's so."—Youth's Companion.

THE AUSTRIAN EMPEROR.

In consequence of the weekly audience given by the emperor having been cancelled for next week, repeated rumors as to the health of the monarch are current among the public.

The correspondent of the Hungarian paper, "Macs" writes accordingly, "I was addressed an inquiry on this subject to the court physician of his Majesty, and the reply received was as follows: 'I am always in the immediate neighborhood of the emperor. I do not know whether it is a habit, but his Majesty will always have a doctor near him. I appear every morning in the presence of the emperor with an inquiry after his health, and receive always the same answer, 'Nothing is the matter with me.'"

"At the present time the health of his Majesty is as good as possible. The emperor belongs to that category of persons who throughout their lives never even suffer from headache. His Majesty and the Archduke Rainer, who is three years older, have the soundest constitutions among the Hapsburgs."

The approach of age is not visible in either of them. This miracle as regards his Majesty may be explained by his manner of life. The emperor, who formerly smoked ten to fifteen strong Virginia cigars daily, now contents himself with two light ones; he drinks daily about two glasses of beer and some light wine; he sleeps much, and great care is taken during his sleep that cold is avoided."

"While traveling the emperor thinks much of personal neatness. During his recent journey to Reichenberg the train was stopped in order that he might be shaved. The time thus lost had to be made up, as the emperor allowed no irregularity. A dentist attended his Majesty once yearly, but has rarely anything to do. His Majesty has only lost three teeth. In a word, we have not the slightest occasion for ungueness. His Majesty enjoys Heaven be praised, excellent health."

MANLESS YACHT RACES.

Novel and Amusing Sport To Be on the Aquatic Programme at the Jamestown Exposition.

It is probable that the "manless yacht" will attract a great deal of attention and give pleasure to thousands at the Jamestown exposition next year.

Chief R. H. Sexton of the department of congresses and special events is in correspondence with persons interested in the racing of little yachts, built on the models of yachts regular to carry a crew and are sailed without anybody aboard. This novel sport is quite popular on English waterways and also at points in New England. The Scotch people likewise indulge in it.

There is in Scotland an association for miniature yacht racing which has developed the sport to a high degree of merit. Little yachts, not more than six feet long, exactly conforming to the model of the famous craft that have engaged in the international cup races for many years past, are entered in the contests.

Each yachtsman handles his craft just as cock-fighting enthusiasts handle their chickens. The yacht, like the rooster, is first put into prima condition and then just turned loose to fight for itself. With sails trimmed and all things shipshape, each tiny craft sails with the breeze, while the admiring admirals and commandors stand on shore and anxiously watch the progress of the race.

In the big yacht race the management of the yacht by the men on board has much to do with success or failure, but in the case of the miniature yachts all seamanship is a matter antecedating the race, for when the starting gun is fired and the boats are off and away each boat must attend to its own sailing.

Usually the races are sailed on a straightaway course, but a race on a triangular course is not impossible, even for the manless yacht. In this event a man is stationed at each turning point, to trim the sails for tacking. The triangular race, of course, is much more exciting than the straightaway, and also much more amusing. Sometimes the little yachts butt into each other, now and then one capsizes and again one of them will take a sudden shoot and get far out of the course.

To sail one of these yachts successfully requires a high quality of seamanship on the part of the navigator, and therein lies the interest of such a contest to the scientific person. While to the eye of the layman, viewing the race from shore, there may appear to be a good deal of haphazard to what the affair, there is in fact a considerable amount of "science" shifting breezes and course cannot be taken into account, and the sudden little squalls which sometimes occur play havoc with a race; but on the whole these miniature yachts races are quite interesting even to the non-technical observer, and they afford much amusement as well as thrill.

It is the hope of the Jamestown exposition official that a large fleet of manless yachts may be assembled upon the exposition waters, comprising models of noted American racing yachts and European craft as well. Leaving aside the racing these little yachts will be interesting to students of yacht architecture and to the great body of exposition visitors, particularly those from inland places, who have had no previous opportunity to inspect a yacht built upon proper lines.

The Jamestown exposition will be the scene of the greatest series of marine maneuvers ever witnessed in the world. There will be races between steam and sailing yachts, between the new motor boats and other types of water craft, and in the event of success in securing the manless yacht regatta these novel contests will add to the general interest.

OUT FOR BLUE FISH.

ALL ABOARD FOR THE GAMEY SNAPPER BLUES.

Animadversions on the Fish, and the Hippling Good Tackle to be Had at Bassett's—Proper Fish Fetchers, and at Fetching Prices—Like Boyhood Days.

"The snapper blues are running" is the good news from the shore and coast. Every disciple of Walton dreams of the little waves flapping against the boat recalls the port with these gamey rascals, and hurries down to John E. Bassett & Co.'s hardware store to complete his stock of fishing tackle.

There is no better way of spending a holiday afternoon known to the elect than the pull and swirl as a snapper blue takes hold, besides the fresh briny air, and the sight of the wooded shore thrown in gratis. There is no mean sport, also, in hanging over a bridge rail to fish, in boyhood fashion.

But one must have proper tackle, and these elect know the wisdom of seeking out a well-established and well-stocked store, as being complete and safest—therefore cheapest—especially when the store is making a specialty of tackle.

These terms define John E. Bassett & company of 74 Chapel street, and also of State street. The stores one of the oldest in the state, established when New Haven was a country village, and it is most completely stocked. Here, with courteous treatment accorded him, one may be sure of finding goods as they are represented, of excellent quality, and at surprisingly low prices.

There are all sorts and conditions of fishermen's tools—poles, reels, floats, lines of all sorts. There are seines at various prices for catching shiners for bait. The latter-day Waldensian is delighted, as he has ever been at Bassett's, and the new customer contracts the habit of going there regularly.

So it's back to boyhood days, and with James Whitcomb Riley's "Old Swinmaid" in the pocket, and Bassett's good tackle, it's hot for the snapper blues.

GRIEVANCE COMMITTEE SPEAKS.

Denounce the Action of the Men Who Struck.

James Murock of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen yesterday afternoon announced that ultimately a few of the men now on strike in the yards of the New Haven road might regain their positions.

The general grievance committee, which consists of thirty-seven members, representing upwards of 3,000 train and yard men for the New Haven employes, convened yesterday for the purpose of investigating the strike, and found that the strike was illegal. Their statement in part follows:

"We must in justice to the officers of the New Haven railroad and ourselves denounce the conduct of the New Haven yardmen, and if they had just cause for complaint and had taken it up in the proper manner there is no doubt that it would have been satisfactorily adjusted, inasmuch as labor organizations have as their only asset integrity."

"We must call on our members upon the system to see to it that the contract which exists between the New Haven road and its train and yard men is properly lived up to by the members. This we pledge ourselves to do. We also wish to commend the action of the New Haven yardmen who remained at work during the strike."

The little "Snapper Blues" have just put in an appearance along the shore. They are the gamiest fish of their size along the coast and there'll be good sport and plenty of it for the next few weeks. We make a specialty of Bluefish tackle and have mighty catching prices on all of it.

YESTERDAY'S BALL GAMES

NEW HAVEN WINS LIGHT HITTING GAME FROM HOLYOKE.

Waterbury and New London Split Even in a Double-Header—Springfield Defeats Bridgeport in Twelve-Inning Contest—Norwich Loses to Hartford.

New Haven won a light-hitting game from Holyoke at the Savin Rock grounds yesterday afternoon, the score being 3-1. To Pitcher Cox's loose work in the third inning, when the Blues scored all their runs, can the defeat of the visitors be attributed. In that period Lawson, the first man up, was passed to first and Nolte was hit by a pitched ball. Connell sacrificed to Cox, and the latter, in attempting to stop Lawson at third, threw a mile out of the way. Lawson and Nolte scoring and Connell landing on third, from whence he scored a minute later on Hannifin's safe rap.

It was Nolte's third victory this week, and, backed up in perfect style, he pitched a good game. Only two hits were made off his delivery until the eighth, when Holyoke registered her only run on McAndrews' two-bagger and Hoffmann's single. Hayward is on the sick list and Sherwood covered third in the captain's absence, making three brilliant stops. Hannifin and Fitzpatrick also contributed some lightning stops and throws, while Warren carried off the fielding honors for his side. No official umpire appeared and Players Jope and Hodge were selected to handle the indicator.

HARTFORD 6, NORWICH 2. Hartford, Aug. 17.—Hartford defeated Norwich in a well-played game to-day. Wilson being very strong, while Pelouin weakened at critical points. A fast double play by Crook and Gastmeyer was the feature of the game. The score by innings:

BRIDGEPORT 3, BRIDGEPORT 2 (TWELVE-INNING). Bridgeport, Aug. 17.—Springfield won 3 to 2 from Bridgeport in a twelve-inning contest to-day that was full of brilliancy. In spite of the errors of the home team, Ladd pulled down a low fly from Yale's bat which was intended for a three-bagger. Phoenix and O'Rourke, Jr., did some excellent work and Drake played a star game at short. It was a pitchers' battle up to the ninth inning, when both teams began to find the ball. In this inning O'Connor, Yale, Finnegan and Stankard singled in succession, but three of the hits were short infield bunts and the last hit scored the first two runs. The locals tied the score on two hits. Bowler was bunched, Hess taking his place. In the twelfth inning Luby was passed to first, advanced on a sacrifice and scored on Tansey's hit. The score by innings:

Table with columns: Team, R, IB, PO, A, E. Rows for Springfield and Bridgeport.

WATERBURY WINS AND LOSES. Waterbury, Aug. 17.—New London won the first game, 2 to 0, and Waterbury took the second, 8 to 1, in a double-header here to-day. The first was a low-hitting game, but New London got a run on two consecutive hits in the fourth and another in the ninth in the same way. In the second game Ward was hit hard by Waterbury, while Hogarty was a puzzle to the visitors all through the game. New London's only run was made on two errors, followed by a two-bagger. O'Hagan was put out of the game in the second inning. Hickey's decisions when he was at the bat, Hickey would not umpire the second game and two players officiated. The scores by innings:

Table with columns: Team, R, IB, PO, A, E. Rows for Waterbury and New London.

OBITUARY NOTES

FUNERAL OF JOHN WILLIAM COE. The funeral services of the late John William Coe were held from his late residence, 36 William street, yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock, and later at St. Patrick's church, where a requiem high mass was celebrated for the repose of his soul.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, among them being a plaque of roses inscribed "papa" from his only daughter, May, a plaque of roses from the widow inscribed "Husband," spray of asters from Mrs. Wilbur F. Day, carnations from Mr. and Mrs. Ward, wreath of roses from the employees of Joseph H. McDonald, spray of asters from Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Sessler and family.

Mr. Coe was well known in New Haven, being one of the oldest coachmen here. He will be remembered by many in the employ of the late Stephen Whitney, where he proved faithful and honest, and with whom he remained for fourteen years. He later accepted a position with J. H. McDonald, with whom he was employed up to the time of his death. He was of a very pleasant disposition. He was born in Liverpool, England, and came to this country when a boy ten years old, and went to Philadelphia. He traveled extensively for ten years all over the country, living most of the time down south. Afterwards he came to New Haven, where he had resided ever since.

The services at St. Patrick's church were very beautiful. Mrs. Josephine Conway Tobin sang most beautifully. The bearers were four friends of the family. Mr. Coe is survived by a widow, Mrs. John Keating Coe, and one daughter, May Keating Coe, who have the sympathy of their many friends. The interment was in the family plot in St. Lawrence cemetery, and St. Sk. Brothers had charge of the funeral.

FUNERAL OF CHARLES SKEELER. The funeral of Charles Skeeler, the Savin Rock restaurant pioneer, was held Thursday afternoon from his late home, 54 Oak street, and was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Gammack, rector of Christ church, West Haven, officiated. Burial was in Oak Grove cemetery, West Haven. Among those from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. James M. Smith of Seymour. Mrs. Smith is a sister of the deceased.

Auto Makers from Hartford Try Shore Dinner. Makers of Popes—not a college of cardinals, but the employes of the Pope Manufacturing company of Hartford—held an outing at Savin Rock yesterday. They indulged in a shore dinner, sports and baseball.

The men, led by Colonel James Pope in his touring car, made the trip in automobiles, reaching Savin Rock at 11 o'clock. Not a single accident happened during the line journey. The employes from Hartford were joined by 100 more from the Westfield, Mass. factory, who came by rail, making 200 in all.

A boat race was won by a team from the Westfield factory. The swimming race was won by A. L. Pope, vice president of the factory. The fat man's race for a hundred yards was won by W. C. Walker, secretary. A baseball game followed. They returned at 4 o'clock.

Machine for Delivery Here Consumed in Montowest. There was a lot of excitement on Quinplace avenue, near Barnes avenue, on the trolley line in Montowest Thursday, when a large $3,000 touring car, which two men were bringing down from Springfield to this city for delivery, caught fire from the gasoline. The men sought to extinguish the fire by sand, but their efforts were fruitless, and they sat by the road, concluding philosophically that if they couldn't put out the fire, which consumed the car almost totally, the spectacle was at least interesting.

FUNERAL OF LOUIS PAUL. The large attendance of sorrowing friends at the funeral services yesterday afternoon of Louis Paul, aged forty-three years old, son of the late Peter Paul, and who died of typhoid fever after a short illness. The services took place at his late residence, 107 Ward street. Rev. Mr. Scoville of Trinity P. E. church officiated. There were beautiful tributes of flowers. A delegation was present from Esel lodge, K. of P. The interment was in Evergreen cemetery. Stahl & Son were the funeral directors.

ACCIDENT TO TRUCK. Whitney Avenue Trolley Track Blocked Two Hours and a Half. A team loaded with machinery from the New Haven Manufacturing company broke down on the trolley tracks at the corner of Whitney avenue and Laidbarn street about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The incoming track was blocked almost two hours and a half.

WOLF IS FOUND. Westville Man Went to Brooklyn to Look Up Work. John Wolfe, of 821 Whalley avenue, who has been reported missing for two days, is simply visiting in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he has gone to seek employment.

CHILD DANGEROUSLY ILL. M. T. Kennedy of Rainbow, Pogueonock, was suddenly called to Savin Rock on Thursday. His wife and children are staying there and a dispatch informed him that one of the children had appendicitis. He left for New Haven in the afternoon taking Dr. Coogan of Windsor Locks with him.

EDISON TELLS HIS CAREER INFLUENCE A GREAT BATTLE HAD ON HIS WHOLE LIFE. His First Invention a Good One, But Not Welcome—His Second Brought a Check for Forty Thousand Dollars Which He Couldn't Cash—Box on the Ears Made Him Desist.

"I'll tell you how I happened to get into telegraphing first," said Thomas Edison to a representative of Pearson's Magazine. "When the battle of Pittsburg Landing was fought the first announced that there were sixty thousand killed and wounded. I was a train newsboy then, and I told the telegraph operator at the Detroit station that if he would wire the main facts of the battle along the line so that announcements could be put up on the station bulletin boards I would give Harper's Weekly to him for six months free of cost.

"I used to sell about forty newspapers on the trip. This time I made up my mind that I ought to take a thousand, but when I counted my money I found I had only enough to buy four hundred.

"Then it occurred to me that if I could get to Wilbur F. Story, the proprietor of the Detroit Free Press, I might be able to work out of my difficulty. I climbed up the stairs to his office and said: "Mr. Story, I have only got money enough to buy four hundred papers, and I want six hundred more. I thought I might get trusted for them. I'm a newsboy. I got my thousand papers all right.

"That was a great day for me. At the first station the crowd was so big that I thought it was an excursion crowd. But no; when the people caught sight of me they began to yell for papers. I just doubled the price on the spot and charged ten cents instead of five cents a copy.

"When I got to the last station I jumped the price up to twenty-five cents a copy and sold all I had left. I made seventy-five or a hundred dollars in that one trip, and I tell you I felt mighty good.

"That called my attention to what a telegraph operator could do. I thought to myself that telegraphing was simply great, and I made up my mind to become an operator as soon as possible.

"The first serious thing I invented was a machine which would count the votes in congress in a very few moments. It was a good machine, too, but when I took it to Washington they said to me: "Young man, that's the last thing we want here! Filibustering and the delay in counting the vote are all that means we have of defeating bad legislation."

"My next practical invention was the quadruplex telegraph. I started in to work it on the Atlantic and Pacific telegraph line between Rochester and New York, but there was a chump at the other end of the wire, and the demonstration ended in a fizzle. It was years before the quadruplex was adopted.

"That landed me in New York without a cent in my pocket. I went to an operator and managed to borrow a dollar. I lived on that for a week, but I had to park it a little. Ooh, didn't mind it and I never did care much about eating, anyhow.

"Then I hustled for something to do. I could have got a job as an operator at ninety dollars a month, but I wanted a chance to do something better. I happened one day into the office of a 'gold ticker' company which had about five hundred subscribers.

"I was standing beside the apparatus when it gave terrific rips and suddenly stopped. In a few minutes hundreds of messenger boys blocked the doorway and yelled for some one to fix the tickers in their office. The man in charge of the place was simply flabbergasted, so I stepped up to him and said: "I think I know what's the matter."

HEALTH BOARD SAYS DAIRIES SHOULD BE CLEAN. Dr. J. H. Townsend, secretary of the state board of health, in the bulletin for July directs attention to the necessity for cleanliness in dairies and urges strict dairy inspection. Referring to this feature the report says: "For several years the health authorities of our cities have paid much attention to examining the quality of the milk sold within their limits, in order to determine whether cream had been abstracted, water added or chemical preservatives used; also to see whether it contained bacteria in excessive quantities. Until recently the conditions at the farms have been largely overlooked on account of the expense of inspecting them and other difficulties.

"Fresh milk being a good culture media for most bacteria, and germs that get into it through careless milking of improper handling rapidly multiply, especially when the milk is not properly cooled. The ordinary bacteria of milk, which are derived from manure dust and other sources are harmful and render the milk dangerous to infants when present in considerable quantities. Of great importance also is the infection from diseased cattle, those suffering from tuberculosis and disease of the milk glands. It is generally considered, however, that the most serious contamination of milk is the contagion of scarlet fever, typhoid fever and diphtheria.

"In spite of laboratory examinations the conditions at the farm can only be learned by inspection, and the city or state should employ enough inspectors to visit each farm supplying milk at least once a year. The inspectors should see that the cows, barns, milkers and milk rooms are in a clean condition, that the water used in the dairy room is above suspicion, and that the bottles and utensils used in milking are properly sterilized. The health officer of a city should be notified whenever a case of typhoid fever, scarlet fever or diphtheria occurs on a farm supplying that city with milk, and no person having such a disease should have anything to do with milking or the care of the milk.

"There are in this state many model dairy farms which use every precaution to produce pure milk. These farms serve as an example to their neighbors, and have done much to raise the general standard, but there are still numbers of small farms which, through ignorance or carelessness, are a menace to the health of the people whom they supply with milk.

San Francisco Labor Temple. The Building Trades Council of San Francisco has had plans made for a new labor temple to be erected in this city, which will be one of the handsomest and best equipped structures of its kind in the United States. The council has acquired the site on the southwest corner of Fourteenth and Guerrero streets, ninety by one hundred and forty feet, which will be entirely occupied by the building, a three story Ionic temple. The first floor will be arranged for the main office of the council, offices for members of the council and also for the use of business agents of affiliated unions, reading and billiard rooms, and an assembly room in the rear. The two upper floors will contain ten large assembly halls, with committee and ante-rooms, and a press room equipped and fitted for the exclusive use of reporters and news gatherers. The exterior will be made attractive by large Ionic columns, the harmonious symmetry in the arrangement of windows and trimmings, lending the whole a tone of soft but pleasing architectural beauty. The cost of the building is estimated at seventy-five thousand dollars, and P. H. McCarthy, president of the Building Trades Council, states that it will be finished and ready for occupancy in four months. E. J. Vogel has been selected as the architect for this important work.—San Francisco Chronicle.

HOW HE SAVED HIS GOLD.

Yosemite Bandit Passed by Two Hundred Dollars and a Gold Watch to Get Sixty Cents.

J. V. Dusenberry was one of the victims of the Yosemite bandit who held up the passengers of five valley stages in one continuous performance.

Dusenberry lost only sixty cents, but on his person when the highwayman searched him were ten twenty dollar gold pieces and a gold watch and chain.

Dusenberry had left the stage shortly before it reached the bandit's ambush. He was following slowly behind, gathering wild flowers and intending to take a cross country path later on and head off the stage, which was obliged to follow the tortuous road.

The highwayman stopped the five stages one after the other. As he stopped one he ordered the driver to pull off the road in such a way as to conceal the coach and horses from the stage following. The passengers he lined up behind a clump of trees. Dusenberry, ignorant of the excitement ahead, was dawdling along enjoying the beauties of nature and adding blossom by blossom to the bunch of wild flowers in his hand.

He turned a sharp bend in the road and found himself looking into the barrel of a rifle. Behind the rifle was a tall, stooping figure with head, face and neck swathed in cloth. Through one of the crevices in the face covering gleamed an eye.

"Hands up!" came in a quiet tone of voice from another crevice.

"Now stand at the head of that line," continued the voice.

The highwayman then resumed the operation of stripping the passengers of their wealth which Dusenberry's unexpected appearance had interrupted.

Instead of standing at the head of the line however, Dusenberry scattered down to the other end and joined those who already had been robbed. Behind the friendly shelter of an old lady's parasol Dusenberry made a re-arrangement of his personal property. The two hundred dollars, part of which belonged to a fellow traveler, and the watch and chain he dropped inside the waistband of his pantaloons and a sudden chill around the angles told him of the safe arrival in his socks of his valuables.

It was not until all the passengers had been ordered back into the stages that the bandit remembered Dusenberry. He found the passenger angry and demanded his money. Dusenberry gave up the sixty cents and a knife. "Better let me keep the knife," said Dusenberry. "If you take it it might cut friendship."

The knife was returned and after sounding the outside of Dusenberry's pockets for more coin, the highwayman told him to "chase himself."

While standing in line many of the passengers, says Dusenberry, threw their valuables into the brush. They returned later to find them gone. They had been picked up, however, by the detectives who took the bandit's trail, and were restored subsequently to the owners.

The highwayman opened the Wells Fargo box, but refrained from taking the fifty dollars he discovered there. His modesty, he explained, was due to a dislike to interesting the express company in his capture for so small a sum. He borrowed Dusenberry's linen duster, spread it on the ground and on it laid all the lot he did not want. He turned this bundle over to one of the passengers for distribution later to the owners.

"He was very cool," said Dusenberry, "but took no chances either of surprise or subsequent identification. The mask he wore hid even his hair and disguised the shape of his head. He wore a loose fitting suit and his feet were swathed in gunny sacks. The detectives found that after he had left the fellow had discarded his mask and the loose fitting clothes and burned them. He was a tall man, but maintained a crouching position and I do not suppose any who saw him could guess his height within a couple of inches. In the valley nobody seems to think there is much chance of capturing him."—San Francisco Chronicle.

tion leaped to the conclusion that there was a decision representing financial power and authority of the first magnitude and likely to effect, by its influence and example, the control of corporate management as a whole, that the retrenchment period was ended, and that the way was open for the enjoyment by stockholders of a fuller share of earnings, secure in the capacity of their property to care for the requirements upon them thus defined.

The convulsive rise in Union Pacific and Southern Pacific aroused some anxiety at first, owing to the distress of an uncovered short interest which was indicated. The movement elsewhere in consequence was feverish and irregular for a time. The general deductions drawn from the dividend action on the Pacific were too important and far-reaching, however, to allow the general advance to be long restrained. The new income basis offered by the Pacific themselves, especially Union Pacific, left such wide room for readjustment in the price that the rise was vigorously extended by spasmodic movements.

Other stocks most acutely affected naturally were those in which conditions bore the close analogy to those of Union Pacific. Pennsylvania and New York Central were the principal examples by reason of their large stockholdings of controlled companies. The increase in the Union Pacific dividend was definitely assigned to the resources of its income from investments. Hence the analogy. The strength of the market, however, became fairly comprehensive. Union Pacific's extreme high price was 179 3/4, compared with 162 3/8 last night. Southern Pacific rose to 89 early in the day, an extreme advance of 67-8, but did not rise again to that level later. Pennsylvania gained 6, New York Central 4 and the active list generally from 1 to 3 points. The irregular closing below the best of the day was the natural result of realizing the day's inviting profits.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $2,930,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Wall Street Electrified by U. P. and S. Dividend. New York, Aug. 17.—Union Pacific on a ten per cent. dividend basis and Southern Pacific on a five per cent. dividend basis. Official announcement of this result of yesterday's meetings of the executive committees of the two companies electrified Wall street almost immediately after operations in the stock market had begun to-day.

Speculative excitement blazed up of a sudden and instead of burning itself out in a flash, as is not unusual on such an outbreak after a period of continued speculation, the flame thus kindled increased and spread until practically all parts of the stock exchange list were embraced in the excited demand for stocks.

Wall street unquestionably was taken by surprise. Yesterday rumor mongers who alleged that Southern Pacific was to receive a semi-annual dividend of 2 1/2 per cent., rather than the expected 2 per cent., were regarded as extravagant. As for the prospects of Union Pacific stockholders, the most hopeful prophet offered no suggestion that more than 3-1/2 per cent. for the half year would be disbursed on that stock. The dazzling effect of the announcement of a regular 5 per cent. semi-annual dividend on the speculative imagination was thus magnified many-fold. Open-

Work on the addition to the Norwich hospital for the insane at Brewsters Neck is proceeding with all possible speed, under the spur of the need of more room for the patients who are awaiting accommodations there. The laundry is also ready for its machinery, and the contract for the same has been let. The kitchen can record the most advanced stage of any of the buildings. The brick oven is at present being used for some of the cooking. On the two ward buildings the roofers are at work putting on the slate roofs, and inside carpenter work is under way. LEFT BEQUEST FOR DANCES

ODD WILL THAT CAUSED A QUAINT ENGLISH CEREMONY

John Knill Ordered That Once in Five Years Ten Maidens Should Dance Around His Mausoleum and That the Village Notables Dine at His Expense.

"Ten maidens of 10 years old at most," accompanied by a fiddler and two widows, on the feast day of St. James the Apostle paid posthumous honor to the memory of John Knill, on time treasurer of Gray's Inn. The Knill festival, says the Pall Mall Gazette, is one of the quaintest of Cornish celebrations, and hundreds of residents in the western part of the county travel to the town of St. Ives and accompany the curious procession through the streets across a grass covered promontory to the great granite obelisk which was built as a mausoleum more than 120 years ago.

Every tourist who has tramped along the cliffs which frame St. Ives Bay and every stranger who has travelled over the most picturesque bit of railway line in the west country—the five miles between Erith Junction and St. Ives—has probably asked the history of the pyramid which stands out boldly against the skyline on the crest of the hill which dominates the fishing town; and he has been told, with a smile, that he had better come down again to see the fun on Knill's day. His interrogation may have elicited some further vague story of a "dinner for the Mayor and the parson" and "a premium on children," but the true inwardness of the festival he will only get locally in vague terms and with some amount of supercilious unconcern.

John Knill, lawyer, customs officer and renowned raider of smugglers, political agent and Mayor, owned much to his devotion to the political interests of that Duke of Buckingham who, at the end of the eighteenth century, became Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, but he seems to have had ideas and aspirations of his own, for after many years of public service he took up his residence in London, became a member of Gray's Inn in 1804, filled the office of Treasurer two years later and signalled his tenure of that office by presenting a silver coffee pot inscribed in Latin to the bench. Most of his active service was, however, performed in the little Cornish town which at that time was merely a fishing village. In a county whose coves and bays afforded shelter to the "runnel" of silks and spirits from the coast of France. At the age of 20 Knill accepted what was at that time the very responsible post of Collector of Customs at St. Ives, and for twenty years he continued to keep a watchful eye on the revenues of the Crown. The twelve months succeeding his retirement from that post found him on an expedition to Jamaica, a special tour of inspection on behalf of the Government; then he returned to his post at St. Ives, and appears to have conceived during this latter residence his quaint scheme for perpetuating his memory. He had been elected Mayor of the borough in the year before the mausoleum was built, had commanded a company of volunteers and had, with the consent of the Government, equipped small vessels to act as privateers against smugglers, and on the outbreak of war between France and America he had fitted out a fleet of privateers.

The erection of the mausoleum was a protest against the then prevailing practice of interring the dead within the body of the church whose walls are washed by the waves, for in a letter to Mr. Præsed—a name which has many associations with the Parliamentary history of St. Ives—Knill told his friend that he "abhorred the practice" and that "the churchyard is already too small for the people." The pyramid under which he meant to be buried was built in courses of hewn stone, and an arch constructed in the base gave entrance to the cavity, which was only of sufficient size to admit of one body. This archway was yalped up, and from that time to this present year of grace this wall has never been broken. John Knill was buried in London.

The quaint ceremony is the strict carrying out of the terms of a deed of trust which this strange man executed some years before his death. John Knill in this deed, which was drawn by a brother barrister of Gray's Inn, a Mr. Ritson, settled upon "the Mayor and capital burgesses of the borough of St. Ives and their successors forever" an annuity of £10 to be paid out of the manor of Gluvian, in the parish of Mawgan, near St. Columb, in the Town Hall of St. Ives, at 12 o'clock on noon on the Feast of the Nativity of St. John (Midsummer Day), in every year, and in default to be levied by distress on the said manor. The said £10 is to be paid to the Mayor, the Collector of Customs and the clergyman of the parish, to be deposited by them in a chest secured by three locks, of which each of them is to have a key and the box left in the custody of the Mayor. Then these curious provisions continue:

"At the end of every five years on the feast day of St. James the Apostle £25 shall be expended as follows: "Ten pounds in a dinner for the Mayor, Collector of Customs and clergyman, and two friends to be invited by each of them, making a party of nine persons, to dine at some tavern in the town. "Five pounds to be divided equally among ten maidens, natives of the borough, and daughters of seamen, fishermen or tanners, each of them not exceeding 10 years of age, who shall, between and 12 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, dance for a quarter of an hour at least on the ground adjoining the mausoleum, and after the dancing the 100th Psalm to the tune to which the same is sung in St. Ives Church. "One pound to a fiddler who shall play to the girls. "Two pounds to two widows, 44 years or upward, who shall accompany the dancing and singing of the girls and certify to the trustees that the ceremonies had been duly performed. "One pound for white ribbons for the girls and widows, and a cockade for the fiddler to be worn on that day and on the Sunday following. "Five pounds to a man and wife, widow or widower, 60 years of age or upward—the man being an inhabitant of St. Ives—who shall have bred to the age of 10 or upward the greatest number of legitimate children without parochial assistance.

There is a second section of the trust which has some further curious clauses. It is prescribed that when a certain sum of money shall have accumulated in the chest beyond the above named payments £50 shall be distributed in addition to the £25 in the following manner: "Ten pounds as a marriage portion to the woman between 26 and 28 years old, being a native of St. Ives, who shall have been married to a seaman, fisherman, tinner or laborer residing in the borough between the 1st of December previously and the day following the said feast, that shall appear to the trustees to be most worthy, regard being had to her duty and goodness to her parents or to her friends who shall have brought her up. "Five pounds to the woman deemed to be the best curer and packer of pilchards for exportation. "Five pounds to the two following boys judged to have best conducted themselves of all the follower boys in the preceding fishing season.

The balance to be divided among all the friendly societies in the borough, or if there be no such society, then among the poor persons, 64 years of age or upward, who have never received parochial relief.

LIFE'S FRESH AIR FARM.

Much Good work Done at Branchville in this State.

A few words about the work. Since it was started, eighteen years ago, the total number of children who have been entertained at Life's Fresh Air Farm is 58,385. On the average, they have consumed each season about 17,000 quarts of milk and have stowed away 9,000 loaves of bread a year, and loaves of the biggest kind. These figures are given merely to convey some idea as to the appetites of our guests.

The Fresh Air Farm was first started in 1888. In New Jersey, a factory had been destroyed by fire, leaving a number of abandoned cottages, and these cottages were used for the children. The first year we took care of 2,000 children, the second, 1,900, and the third, 2,417. In 1891, through the kindness of Mr. Edwin C. Gilbert, we were enabled to secure the present location at Branchville, Conn., at a minimum rental. Later on, Mr. Gilbert transferred the entire property to the Life Fresh Air Fund, and it is now a permanent feature.

The first year that Life's Farm was transferred to Branchville (this being the fourth year of its existence) 1,015 children were taken care of. From this time on to the present year there has been an average of about 11,200 each season, the largest being in 1892, 2,872, and the smallest in 1889, with 1,017. The children are collected from various sources in New York. Many come from the slums; many are waifs. Among those who visited us last summer, one group on July 8 and the other on August 14, there were: Orphans, 10; father dead, 33; mother dead, 31; parents in hospital, 18; abandoned, 10; parent insane, 6; father in prison 5; father deserted by mother, 20; mother deserted by father, 8; taken from mother, 9; mother in reformatory, 4; father a drunkard, 35; mother a drunkard, 12.

To quote Mr. Mohr, the superintendent: "The transportation of the children average about $1,050 a season. We employ six caretakers (three men and three women), besides Mrs. Mohr and myself, to look after the children, and six colored women to do the cooking, cleaning and chamber work. A number of years ago we had to close the farm for a few days because of a case of measles; other than that, although many children are taken to the farm suffering with noncontagious illness, no child has had to be sent home on this account."

At the close of the first season during which Mr. and Mrs. Mohr had charge of the farm there was a balance of ..... $1,170.99 2d season..... 3,967.80 3d "..... 2,781.39 4th "..... 2,964.62 5th "..... 1,437.91 At the opening of the sixth, or present, season, deficit ..... 10.11 Mr. Mohr adds: "The above makes the condition of the fund look decidedly blue to us; we certainly need money right away."

The sudden falling off in receipts was experienced by many other summer homes last season, owing to the coolness of the weather. Our most prosperous year financially was 1892 when our receipts amounted to $12,364.43. About two hundred children are taken to Life's Farm every fortnight. The cost of transportation and providing for a child averages $3 for two weeks; so, for every $6 sent to this fund a child from the city gets a fortnight's outing in the country, with as much fresh air and wholesome food as he can utilize.

HIS FIRST BEAR. "About one mile to our west was a large snowdrift. Snow in August! I was looking at that snow when all at once my heart gave a leap. Right across that snow moved two black animals. Bear, as sure as you are alive! I exclaimed: "Look there!" Sisson looked and said, "Yes, there are a couple of bear, an old one and a cub." It did not excite him at all. He said it was no use trying to get a shot at them, for they were emigrating. "See them as they go through those berry patches without even stopping to take a taste."

We watched them as they moved across the mountainside, now disappearing and then coming into view again. Their black bodies were easily seen, although they must have been a good mile away. The mother was evidently teaching her baby to walk, and she led him a merry chase. Sometimes she would get twenty or thirty feet ahead of him, then she would wait and in a little while he could see the little black, woolly speck emerge from the brush and waddle along with his mammy.—Jay Smith in the August Field and Stream.

AT SARATOGA SPRINGS.

A Jolly Crowd at This Famous Spa. All Highly Enjoying Themselves. Saratoga Springs, Aug. 15, 1906.

Within the memory of the oldest visitors at this famous resort, never has there been known quite such a brilliant season as the present one promises to be. At the present time about every hotel and boarding house is full to running over. Fashion predominates to a remarkable degree at the spa this season. The racing season is now in full blast; some of the most notable horses of the track are here and doing big work. Betting is going on at a fearful rate, even the female visitors at the race course doing their share in the various contests. The clubs of visitors are receiving their full quota of visitors. Among the patrons are seen many of the wealthy of the land. The police made a recent raid on Joe Wilman's well known gambling house at 29 Philadelphia street and arrested the noted gambler and his partners. Seven men acting as dealers at the roulette and faro tables were also arrested. Bonds were furnished of five hundred dollars for each and they were released. The players all went scot free. The action of the police on the gambling resorts was due largely to the action of Rev. Dr. Decker, a Methodist minister. He was assisted by eleven other ministers of Saratoga.

The governor has to-day notified the sheriff that he will be held strictly accountable for the due execution of the gambling law in this county. This order does not effect race-track gambling, but is aimed at Canfield and the rest. The police shut down Canfield's big room on the ground floor, but permitted him to operate on the floor above. The various mineral springs are extensively patronized daily. The Hathorn seems to be the favorite place of resort every morning. Doring's famous orchestra gives concerts at this place or resort every morning from seven to nine o'clock, and is highly enjoyed by their large patronage. At the Grand Union, United States, Kensington and Congress Hall hotels the orchestras render superb concerts every morning at half-past ten o'clock and usually every evening. The hops are largely attended at the several hotel ball-rooms in the morning, and are usually very brilliant affairs. The clerk at the Grand Union, who has been in their employ some forty years, says this is the greatest season ever experienced at this place. Automobiles and coaching parties are numerous every day, going to the various springs, lakes and mountains hereabouts. Among parties from New Haven has recently been noticed Henry D. Cowles and son, Mr. and Mrs. George W. L. Benedict, Mr. and Mrs. Allen, Miss Gorman and Miss Crowley, Mrs. Winn and daughter, James B. Bartin, Miss C. E. Fogarty, Miss E. Kiernan.

Quite a large number of Roman Catholic rectors of much prominence in the various cities are to be seen here frequently. A prominent young lady who has quite a taste for the beautiful, observes, after her rounds at the various hotels in Saratoga, that the Kensington Hotel has the handsomest ones of the lot. Her opinion might be seriously doubted by some of the other fellows. W. A. E.

It comes from the only creamery privileged to use the odor-proof and germ-proof package. That is why the butter keeps its delicacy and sweet fresh smell. If not, ask your grocer for GOLD MEDAL CREAMERY BUTTER—the price is the same as for common butter in tubs.
