The libel alleges that on the trip from Havre to this port, between the 15th and 24th of last September, Professor Wurts and bis family were exposed to the rudest sort of treatment and ill-It alleges that on information that there were no first-cabin accommodations he and his wife and daugh ters were booked in the second cabin but that within two hours of leaving port they found that they were overrun by 1,400 steerage passengers. It is alleged that one of the daughters while in bed was bitten by a rat.

PECULIAR DEATH.

Millionaire Had Considerable Poison in His Stomach.

New York, March 8 .- An autopsy held to-day by Coroners' Physician O' Hanlon developed that Leonidas Preston, a millionaire, who died suddenly had enough hydrocyanic poison in his stomach to kill six men.

Coroner Harburger immediately reported the case to the police and de tectives were set to work upon several aysterious circumstances connected with the case. Mr. Preston was New York manager for the Timken Bearing Axle company. The first reports of his Yeath stated that he had died while felephoning to some business acquainances in the office of the hotel. BILLIARD TOURNAMENT.

Young Calvin Demarest More Than Maintains His Reputation.

New York, March 8 .- Contestants in the national amateur billiards championship tournament cut a wide swath in the records of the 14.2 balk line game to-day. Young Calvin Demarest more than maintained the reputation which had preceded him from Chicago, when to-night, he not only outplayed his opponent Dr. L. L. Mial, one of New York's best amateur players, but established a new record both in speed and execution.

In the afternoon game J. Ferdinand Poggenburg of the Liederkranz club, broke Foss' record for averages by winning in the fourteenth inning, but in the evening game Demarest outclassed everybody in the amateur ranks by running out the necessary 300 To-morrow afternoon Mial will play Rolls, and in the evening Gardner will meet Poggenburg.

FOR INCREASED PAY.

Firemen's Committee Before Fire Board Last Night.

The firemen's committee which is in charge of the campaign for more pay for the firemen met the board of fire ommissioners at fire headquarters last night, and presented its side of the question. The men argue that the rice of commodities and house rent have increased twenty-five per cent, in the past year or two, but that no increase had been made in the pay of the paid were not keeping pace with the efficiency of the department. Chief Fancher stated last night that he was in favor of the increase. He said that the men were earning it and that they ought to have it. He said that he had lost a number of good men I nthe last year or two, and he said it was due to the fact that the men could get better pay outside the department. The firemen's committee consists of Messrs. Wilbur A. Peck, Richard M. Dixon and Henry W. Langdon. No action was taken on the matter by the board last might, but it was voted to meet next Wednesday evening when some action will be taken. The board has no money with which to pay the increase, even if they should favor it. An appeal for an extra appropriation would have to be made to the heard was had before the judiciary committee this afternoon on the petition of Mrs. Ollie T. Huntoon Billings, of Somers, for legalizing her marriage last ment upon himself. In the matter of well-to-do resident of the same place. July to James G. Billings, bon of a was that she be declared a wife for he represented by Joseph Barbour, of Hartford, and J. Warren Johnson, of Stafford, the former selting up the claim that the young woman asks the general assembly to legalize what the laws say is illegal, namely, a marriage by a notary public. Billings and the young woman kept company a year ago, and last July Miss Hunton's par ents suggested that they get married. The couple went to James R. Washburn, of West Stafford, aged eighty who for a great many years and until of the engineers in the employ of the formed the ceremony. them last July. Many of the great department stores of Parls, especially those in the center of the city, rely entirely upon electricity for lightin gand heating. These buildings are not piped for gas, and when the Night-No Decision Reached as to electric lights went out no oil lamps were on hand. As a result candles had to be installed hurriedly in order to Those Living in Boston, Chiengo and help the shoppers and the employes to leave the buildings.

LIVELY DEBATE

The prefecture of police, the buildings of the various ministries and the public institutions also were without light, and even the Elysee palace was emporarily thrown into darkness. The senate and the chamber of deputies are provided with gas pipes and were therefore able to get light and go on with their business.

It was impossible to get out the latr editions of the afternoon newspapers, and the offices of the morning papers were scenes of confusion. The typesetting machines and printing presses are at a standstill. Only the Parisean will appear in its full size to-morrow morning, this because it possesses its own electric installations. The managers of all the other morning papers. while hoping against hope that the electric courant soon will be restored, do not see their way to getting out other than two or four pape papers, set up by hand and printed on improvised plants.

The reasons for the strike by the electricians are as follows: The company that supplies electricity was reently accorded concessions by the municipal council, and it now refuses to carry out certain resolutions passed by that body under which the electrical workers are granted an eight-hour day and old age pensions. These stitpulations are nto written in the contract with the city, but it was understood that they would be granted.

The men are exasperated by what they characterize as bad faith on the part of the company, and now claim recognition as employes of a municipal department, with the privileges attached to the employment by the municipality, which includes vacattions, pay while they are sick, and the granting of pensions at a specified age.

The strikers called a meeting to be held this evening in the labor exchange. but this building was closed owing to the lack of light. The men then proceeded to another hall where they could see, and after a number of vio lent speeches had been delivered they voted to continue the strike until all their claims were granted. It was announced durling this meeting that the electricians of Lyons, Marsellies and other large cities in France were prepared to join the Paris movement and emand similar concessions. The strikers to-night showed themselves as strongly in favor of the taking over of the various electric lighting plants by the various municipalities. This feeling is a direct outcome of the socialstic tendency generally prevalent among the electrical workers. A delegation of prominent citizens, including a number of members of the chamber of deputies, called on Premier Clemenceau at a late hour to-night and discussed the situation with him. The premier promised to bring in a regiment of engineers quartered at Versailles to replace the strikers, but not to take this step, for no orders were sent to Versailles. On the contrary Premier Clemenceau expresses his determination to use every effort to overcome the strike by concillatory means. He probably will have an inerview with the strikers' delegates during to-night or early to-morrow morning. In the meantime the strikers have staunchly resolved to maintain a firm attitude and fighe to the end.

YALE WRESTLERS WIN.

Princeton a Hard Proposition-Visitors Win Gymnastic Meet.

The Yale wrestling team had the hardest proposition of the season last night, when it went up against Princeton wrestlers in the Yale gymnasium. In seven weights only one fall was scored by either side, and that was made for Yale in the third bout of the heavyweight class. Goebel of Yale threw D. G. Herring in one minute, 37 seconds. In the 125, 135, 158 and 175 pound bouts the Yale men were awarded the decisions on points. The 115 and 145 pound bouts were draws. This gave the Yale wrestlers the meet by a score of five points.

In connection with the wrestling matches a contest between the gymnastic teams of the two universities was held. This was won by Princeton unanimous and unexpected strike on by a score of twenty-eight to twenty-

PAPER KNIVES.

Wide Range in Cost-Sixty-two Different Forms Made by One Young Wo-

A paper knife may be anything from a bit of cardboard worth the fraction of a cent to a jewelled and carved piece of ivory or tortolse shell costing undreds of dollars. Some of the most beautiful of comparatively inexpensive paper knives are made of tortoise shell | Truth. by the Chinese.

These are of many forms, the largest like weapons of offense, the smallest mere bits of polished shell glued together so as to serve the double purose of bookmarker and paper cutter, and tiny enough to be carried in the waistcoat pocket.

Some of the most expensive unadorned paper knives are made of the last fifteen or eighteen inches of an elper knives richly carved, slightly colortd and set with diamonds may cost anything you like. Mostly they are given as presents by persons with ortunate estate.

Other expensive paper knives are made of precious metals, carved and jewelle I mother of pearl, or rare shells or one hundred dollars is not an ex-

Paper knives of richly colored and expensive glass are also made, and there are expensive paper knives made of beautiful horns from the heads of rare animals, of delicate and richly decorated porcelain and of curious veg-etable growths. Those of vegetable lvory simulate very well the real thing, and those of celluloid may be made to look like costly examples of almost any material,

The Chinese and Japanese show great ingenuity in adapting odd materials to such uses. So do savage peoples, some of whomnever saw a printeg book. Many such peoples make up miniature copies of their warlike weapons as paper knives for civilized men and women.

A young woman in Boston has educated her hand and amused herself in whittling from hard woods paper knives in as many different forms as she could learn of or invent. She made sixty-two different forms, almost every one of which is highly practical, and many of which are extremely graceful. These range from simple straight pieces of wood thinned on each side to a cutting edge, to an ornate dagger with curved blade and decorated han-She has used as motifs the razor, the butter paddle, the cance paddle, swords, spears, dirks and other weapons, spoons and other table imple-

Her industrious winter's whittling is worth a good deal commercially, for the stationers are always on the lookout for a lew and practical form of that very simple implement, the paper knife.

GATEWAY OF ANCIENT CHINA.

Old Mud Fort With Heaps of Small Stones for Use of Defenders. the spot where merchants, as well as embassies from the west, have been forced to await the permission of the mighty emperors of Cathay before entering China. As such, and from its remote situation-remote, that is, so far as Europeans are concerned-this frontier post has long enjoyed a halo of romance in Chinese eyes, writes a correspondent of the London Standard. In reality it is a mud brick fort, far inferior to such places as are to be seen at Labore and other Indian cantonments long ago given up, except as The walls at Chia-yu-Kuan enclose an area some one hundred and twenty to one hundred and fifty yards square. On the north and south sides there are double the outer, being twenty feet high and four to six feet thick. East and west there are double gates of solid aspect, and the inner wall is thirtyfive to forty feet high all around. From outside the fort has, to the Oriental eye, an imposing appearance, which the inside does its best to atone for. Here is to be seen a collection of dirty mud hovels, with one official residence of the poorest kind. Along the wall runs a narrow parapet, some four feet from the summit, but, owing to its height, unapproachable from below, except in two or three places. From the point of view of modern defence the whole position is pitiable.

Guns there are none, the garrison consists of a half score withered old men of the usual Chinese type, and these are the proud possessors of wooden jingalls. Having said so much it might seem that the worst had been told, but this is not so. With no intention to hurt the feelings of the trusty garrison to whose charge is committed the most advanced outpost their mighty empire possesses, it must be added that piles of small stones are heaped at intervals along the parapet wall. With these it may be presumed that the defenders will be called upon some day to meet a foe advancing from the northwest, AMERICANIZED ENGLISH. This is the age of short memories in this country; movement is a new feature in England, and it has altered for the moment many of our characteristics. The English, even of the immediate past, were not bombarded with interests and incidents as we News falls about us so fast and thick that the memory retains little for more than a few days. The scandal which is a year old has generally look since been forgotten; the triumph which is a month past is already dead. "The Man of the Pear" was formerly the customary outline; it was altered later to "The Man of the Day," and last to "The Man of the Moment," It will be "The Man of the Second" shortly, or "The Man of the Millionth of a Sec-Money alone has some stability in this country. Even the physical characteristics of the English are altering rapidly in the new conditions. The tall, graceful wonan with the finely-shaped head, wellchiselled nose, kindly eyes, sweet smile, esmall feet and hands and light tread, is almost extinct; she is being replaced by big-made women, with a firm chin, hard-looking, and taking long, derisive strides. The man with the aquilline nose and amiable expression and dellcately framed appears to have perished altogether. There is in his stend the bullet-headed man, with beady, cunning eyes, the bulbous nose, thick necked, vast waisted, and a voice that apparently struggles through a salmis of money.

It might be said that it is always easy to know an Englishman or woman on the continent now; both are bad imitations of the American of the same sex.-Marmaluke in the London

FEFORMING THE MENU.

Comfort in Sight for Diners Who Connot Read French. One oft-discussed but ever-postponed reform, that of printing the menu in "United States" instead of French. seems at least to be within visible distance of reolization, says the Pittsburg ephant's tusk, reduced at the larger Dispatch. It has made substantial progress in London. New England hotel keepers have formally resolved to adopt it, and even in New York its advocacy is being listened to with patience.

There has never been any good reason for the Gallicized menu in Englishspeaking countries. The use of French as the language of diplomacy can be and fine woods. Twenty, thirty, fifty understool because it afforded a medior one hundred dollars is not an ex-travagant price as some such things as the language of the bill of fare had no such excuse.

If the chef could not name his creations in English the waiters, who had no pretent for pretending to be French, might have translated the titles into terms that their customers could understand. It has long been suspected that the chief reason for persisting in French menus was the profit that accrued through the ignorance of the patrons. The man who made a bluff at reading the menu and told the wlater "to gi' me some of that" had to pay for it whether he could eat it or not.

Coincident with this spelling reform is to be another of almost equal importance. The number of dishes is to be reduced. Frequently the variety of items has been only less bewildering to the average diner than the French Itself. By reducing the number it is expected that the proprietors will save money, the cooks will be able to devote more attention to the smaller selection they do prepare, the customer will get better prepared food and everybody ought to be happy.

But the main reform will be the language. There is hope at last for the man who, confronted suddenly with an araay of unintelligible preparations, and after a vain search for a "Pork and ten cents," sign on the palatial walls, has too often been compelled to throw up his hands and console himself with oriering "beefsteak." When ments, and some forms that would be he is able to order what he wants in his own language he will be more apt to When one sees the whole sixty-two get his money's worth and enjoy it without the humiliation of the thought that the supercilious waiter takes him for a common person from the rural

The committee on insurance, senator Blakeslee, chairman, is up against a brand new idea in insurance legislation in Connecticut. The house in laying the resolution relating to the Travelers on the table Thursday afternoon was in a mood for a measure that would safeguard the interests of policyholders in stock companies which have mutual departments. This pro-

Moslirdleutaokishrdluetharodiuln ection is to be realized by the participating policyholders having a representative in the board of directors. Senator Blakeslee's committee is expected to formulate a bill that will give the safeguards required. Legislation of this kind is new in Connecticut. The method of selecting the director or directors who shall represent the participating policyholders is no doubt the most difficult thing in the problem. It has been suggested that such directors shall be appointed by the governor. Years ago, when the Phoenix Life was passing through the ordeal of roorganization from a stock to a mutual company, the legislature authorized the appointed of directors by the insurance commissioner, and this was done until the stock was extinguished. Probably the giving of the appointment of directors to the governor in stock companies which have participating policyholders would be sustained by the courts. It would also do away with the inherent bad features of the proxy system, in deciding who shall be the representatives of the participating policyholders in the board of Senator Howard A. Middleton of the Seventh district is sick at his home in Broad Brook. VALIANT MARIONETTES UNIQUE ATTRACTION BY SIGNOR PARISPS TROUP AT Y. M. C. A.

Popular for Five Hundred Years in Southern Italy-"The Paladins of France" Played as It Was in Middle Ages-Benefit of Lowell House Again This Afternoon and To-night.

Undoubtedly one of the most unusual and interesting entertainments ever given in New Haven was that of Signor Antonino Parisi's Valiant Mari onettes at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last night. It is rather asttonishing though that so few people took advantage of the opportunity to acquaint themselves with a kind of entertain ment which has been so prominent for 500 years in southern Europe, and which the average American may but rarely see in his uative land. Aside from any historical or literary significance the Marionettes are a rattling good source of delightful entertainment. These puppets fight and kill, storm with rage, tremble with grief, in fact do about everything but talk.

The stage of the auditorium was made into miniature theater. Bright scenery suggestive of Italy in every detall of color, formed the setting for the loings of the Vallant Marionettes. The rformance as a whole is eractly as it is given in Italy. Similar performances were given in England as late as the Eighteenth century, and form an important part of the earlier forms of framatic entertainments. No attempt has been made to improve upon the mediaeval simplicity of the original form of the entertainments. The boog from which the play is taken is called "The Paladins of France," and deals with some of the great num ber of legends that grew up around Charlemange, known in French literature as the "Song of Poland." particular adventures of Signor Parisi's entertainment are, however, of Italian origin, and do not occur in the French Roland stories.

There will be two other presentations of the Vallant Marionettes, this afternoon at 2:30 and this evening at 8 o'clock. Music is furnished by the New Haven Mandolin club.

In every way the performance is thoroughly delightful. The proceeds are to go to the support of the Lowell

THE CALL OF PUBLICITY.

Yesterday in Washington, he took the mitiative in actually sending for the reporters. In doing this, Mr. Harriman has made life more interesting. He is an able man, with the habit of concise and positive expression. He has knowledge and the facultry of conveying that knowledge in terms that are Civilized Potentates on State Oc- intelligible and interesting. He has, therefore, himself become more interesting. It may also be noted that in entering upon this change of policy he is extending the lines of his competition with the raffway giant of the Northwest-James J. Hill. For a long time, of all the great men of the ratroad world of America, James J. Hill was he only one who, as occasion presented itself, took the public into his onfidence by communication to the dally press.

There is great significance in this hange of policy. It does not mean that Mr. Harriman has suddenly beome loquacious. It means that there has been the growth of an idae born in the truth, to the stage where it bears 'ruit. It is now nearly six years since, Theodore Roosevelt, then Vice President of the United States, first enunciated his theory that the main road to correction of evils that oppressed the ountry was that of publicity. The romulgation of that idea was received ith the slient sneers and contempnous amiles of all those who had been rained in the school of silence as to their affairs, which, after all, were the affairs of the public. The faise priniple of "what is the public's business s none of the business of the public," vas strongly entrenched.

In the course of time the idea, first egarded as the vaporing of a docrinaire, took vital form. President Roosevelt put into active life, and with esults that are little short of a revoluion. That man of large measure, Judge Gray, of the United States Steel Corporation, under whose roof are gathered all the giants of the transporation, financial and industrial vorids, was the first of his kind to apreclate the power and the energy of he enunciation, and to insist upon takng the affairs of the momentous busiless enterprise of which he is the real lead, to the public. Others have folowed. Measures have been taken for he spread of knowledge of business affairs. Bureaus of publicity are not now unknown in the organization of great enterprises. And finally, Harrinan, hitherto regarded as impenetrable as come into the open and ranged imself as a subcriber to the idea. Publicity has been established. Whether the administration will pursue o the end the course it has entered upon in making it law or not, the principle is established, and in that stablishment is the triumph of an dea. It is a distinct public gain.-Brooklyn Eagle.

JEROME WANTS WHITE'S LETTERS PRODUCED

prove, on rebuttal remains as deep a mystery as ever. The prosecutor himself is probably at a loss to know how far he can go in attacking Evelyn Thaw's story and in adducing evidence tending to contradict and discredit her. His plan of campaign may be entirely coanged at any time by an adverse de-cision from Justice Fitzgerald. Mr. Delmas, for the defense, undoubtedly will make Mr. Jerome's progress difficult by continued objections The rules of evidence invoked in the Thaw case differ materially from those in any recent murder trial in this jurisdiction, and it has been evident from the first that the attorneys on both sides have been feeling their way cautiously.

District Attorney Jerome undoubtedly will again summon Abraham Hummel, a lawyer, to the stand to testify as to the affidavit Evelyn Nesbit is alleged to have signed charging Thaw with crueities because she "would not tell lies" about Stanford White. The prosecutor attempted to introduce this testimony by interrupting young Mrs. Thaw's parrative, but the testimony was barred at that time. Mr. Jerome believes that upon rebuttal Justice Fitzgerald will allow him a much wider latitude than was granted on cross-

Howard Nesbit was with the district attorney to-day and it is said he will be called to the stand to testify that his sister told him Thaw had treated her cruelly while abroad in 1903 because she again "would not tell lies about Stanford White." Mr. Jerome hopes by the brother to corroborate the testimony he effects to elicit from Abraham Hummel, the latter being under indictment at the present time for alleged subornation of perjury in the Dodge-Morse divorce tangle.

With all the witnesses here enumerated and many others under subpoena Mr. Jerome adhered to-day to his prediction of last night that the case might be given to the jury by Friday. Mr. Jerome when asked to-day how many witnesses he would call, replied smil-

"The minimum is zero and the maxinum is twenty-five; el may be either.' He would not modify what he said yesterday to the effect that in the present state of the evidence he would assuredly let the case go to the jury and not ask for a commission. This determination on the district attorney's part pleases Thaw's lawyers and the defendant himself, who all along has feared the asylum for the criminal insane far more than a verdict as to his guilt or innocence under the statutes.

Despite Mr. Jerome's hope for a ternination of the long drawn out case within the next week, few of those who have kept track of the progress of the trial are willing to hazard a prediction that the end is less than two weeks

Before leaving for his home in Pittsallenist put upon the stand by the dethat of the allenists subsequently exwhat significant sentence:

"They have but reiterated your opining that, upon the facts of the case, the defendant at the time of the homicide was of unsound mind."

From this expression by Mr. Delmas t would appear that he does not expect to use the plea of "justification" in his appeal to the jury, but rather hopes to convince them that Mrs. Evelyn Thaw's stories about White temporarily unbalanced the defendant's mind.

HOW ENGLAND REWARDS HER SOLDIERS.

Britain has generally been generous Dake of Wellington came off best in this respect. In his earlier Peninsular campaign he was granted a pension of £2,000 a year for two generations, and on the conclusion of the Peninsular War in 1812, he was voted £1000,000 for the purchase of an estate. After Waterioo the Government bought for him situation is that in San Francisco the estate of Strathfieldaye at a cost of Boss backed by "Labor" has been able

Lord Wolseley received a grant £25,0000 on completing the Ashanti campaign; Sir Hugh Gough for the Sikh war, an annuity of £2,000 for wiping out the Indian mutiny, and Sir Henry Haelock, for the relief of Lucknow, £1,000. Coming to more recent times, Lord Roberts received £100,000 for his services in the South African campaign, and Lord Kitchener received £30,0000 after Omdurman.

FEAR TO ADMIT IDENTITY. "It's really alarming how hard it is getting to be nowadays to get a person to admit his identity to a stranger," said a business man the other day "Now. I have a perfectly legitlmate line which draws me to a middle class of people and those who are on the edge of so-called society. I go to their places of business. Some of them I know by sight. I go up to them and ask if Mr. So-and-So is in, knowing at the time he is the man I am looking for. Half the time the man will reply 'No, he's out just now, but I will take the message. "When he finds out my business he generally laughingy admits his identity and says he thought I was repreentative of So-and-So. I suppose this is the result of the modern way of living on the instalment plan, with collectors at our heels."-Boston Herald.

esting of present day meledramas, opened a successful engagement at the New Haven theater last night, and was an audience that appreciated and enjoyed every moment of the play. It is lover of the melodramatic type of stagecraft. It has sensational climaxes that thrill and carry the audience into the realm of enthusiasm. It is full of touching incidents that appeal to the better nature of every man and woman, and it bristles over with comic sitiuations which chase dull carr away. Charles T. Aldrich plays the principal ole, and plays it in a masterly and thoroughly interesting manner, and he is supported by a company which is in full sympathy with the lines allotted to them. The stage settings are realistic in the extreme and help greatly towards the success of the There is no attempt at exaggeration, no time worn stage artifices are employ to hold the attention of the spectator. The play entertains amuses and instructs. The characters are well drawn. There is a motive for each exit; the situations are clever and practical, and action is incessant through-

Taken all in all it is a drama that should play only to crowded houses and should be well supported at the matinee this afternoon, and again in the evening, when the final performance will be given.

SENGENBURG DOING WELL.

Man Who Fell from Car Not Seriously Hurt.

William Sengenburg, who was injured Thursday night while getting on a car in Mt. Carmel was reported as doing well at the New Haven hospital

Sengenburg had been working at the Bradley farm, Hamden, where he has been doing some decorating for a man named Hoggsson Booth. Sengenburg, it is thought, was coming to the city, and had just mounted the trolley car when he fell and badly cut his face and hands. One of his eyes is also shut as a result of the accident. When asked about the accident yesterday he said that he ran into someething, although he did not remember what it was,

THE BOSS OF SAN FRANCISCO. The dispatch in yesterday's papers bout the failure to select a jury to try Abe Ruef, the Boss of San Francisco, is very instructive. It seems that out of fifty men drawn for the first panel, only 41 could be found, and that out of these 41 only 9 showed what the dispatch calls "a willingness to serve." The obvious explanation is that the Boss of San Francisco has succeeded burg to-day Dr. C. C. Wiley, the first in intimidating the town. This explanation explains more than the diffifense, gave out for publication a letter culty of getting jurors to serve in this sent to him by D. M. Delmas, Thaw's case. It explains why and how Ruef chief counsel. The letter, after stating has managed to continue so long a rule that the expert testimony given by Dr. which every San Franciscan will Wiley had "been fully confirmed by privately admit is loathsome and infamous but which no San Franciscan amined," contained the following some- has has the courage to stand up in public and proclaim to be so. It ever explains much beyond the jurisdiction or the scope of the Municipal Government of San Francisco, It explains why no San Francisco newspaper dares to utter the persecution of the Japanese which has brought not San Francisco alone, but the whole Nation, which entirely disapproves and disclaims this persecution, into a strained and false relation with the Empire of

That no man in San Francisco who is conducting a lawful and honorable business dares to oppose the Boss in public is one result of the servitude which he has imposed upon the city. in rewarding her soldiers. Perhaps the It is another that no man in San Franelsco who is conducting an illegal and infamous business has any fears, so long as he is on good terms with the Boss and pays his allotted tribute. These conditions have been those of other American cities, though we do not think they have ever elsewhere been quite so scandalously and shamelessly enforced. The peculoarity of the to raise questions not merely municipal but National and International, and that the rottenness of the Municipal Government of San Francisco has become a matter of immediate concern to all citizens of the United States .- New York Times.

> SAILING AT CAPE MAY. Senator Penrose was discussing Philadelphia's need of a deeper channel in the Delaware for ships.

> "You know," he said, "how often ships get stuck in the mud of the Delaware now. Actually, to traverse that difficult stream with impunity you need as light a draught as they require on the Cape thoroughfares.

> "Amazed at the way we skimmed through creeks but an inch er two deep, said to a Cape May skipper one day: "I suppose, captain, that you think othing of sailing across the meadows when there's been a heavy fall of dew?' "Right you are," said the captain, though occasionally we have to send a man ahead with a watering can."-Providence Journal.

Long Silk, Glace, Suede Gloves

OME for these Long Gloves Saturday or you may regret it. All the Big Glove dealers are dubious over the glove outlook-they say indications point to Long Glove scarcity.

Perhaps not a famine as there was last year, but still Long Gloves, both silk and kid, are going to be scarce. These are extraordinary values as you'll see, but we had the good luck to get them and we're not going to hold them back with the hope of getting more money for them later. Not a big lot of any one kind.

12 Button Tan Suede, $3.25 Gloves For $2.39 a Pair

16 Button Black Glace Gloves; also 12 Button Cape Tan Gloves the latter in 61/2 and 63/4, $3.75 Gloves For $2.75 a Pair

MORE RUMORS OF RAILROAD PLANS

NEW HAVEN ROAD MAY DISPOSE OF ONE STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

t is Purely a Business Proposition-President of Merchants' and Miners' Company Admits That Negotiations

Whitney stated that on account of the arge amount of business which the New Haven road carries on with the Merchants' line, it would do no harm if the railroad corporation should have a voice in the control of the steamship company.

He continued: "It should not be understood from this that the Merchants' Miners' Transportation company will either change its officers or be in any way absorbed by the New Haven interests. A statement of that character would be going too far.

"The plan is for the New Haven road o acquire a large interest, thought not ecessarily a majority of the stock, but still large enough so that by that means and by an agreement largely in the nature of a traffic contract, it will exercise a strong influence over the affairs of the line."

Mrs. F. B. Street gave a lunchoen at ier home 629 Chapel street yesterday or members of the executive board of the Connecticut congress of mothers. There were twenty-three guests.

Are in Progress—His Opinion of the Situation—Might be a Good Thing For Railroad to Become Interested in Ownership.

New York, March 8.—It was reported to-day, on what was apparently good authority, that the Boston and Philadelphia Steamship company, which was recently purchased by the New York, New Haven and Hartford, railroad, will be sold to the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation company of Baltimore. The latter company owns several steamers running from southern ports to New England. It was also reported that the New York, New Haven and Hartford will purchase a sufficient amount of the stock and bonds of the Merchants' and Miners' company to enable it to maintain its present rate schedule from the south to New England ports. It is said, however that the railroad will not pur-

THE LADY OF THE WHISK BROOM.

The fillure of the street cleaning department to live up to its agreement has given one woman employment. She stood at Thirtieth street and Broadway the other afternoon and dexterously flirted a whisk broom. "Brush your dress, ma'am?" she said.

The other woman ruefully surveyed the bottom of her skirt, which had become polka dot with vari-sized chunks of mud from the crossing. "Yes," she said, "I think you may,"
They stepped into a doorway on which the woman seemed to hold a tacitly asserted and undisputed claim, and the renovating process was pursued with vigor. A few minutes later, when the customer stepped out to the pavement, the bedraggled garment had taken on an appearance of self-respect. "How long have you been in this business?" she asked.

"Ever since the street sweepers went on a vacatiol," said the woman. "When I took up the business I had no idea how it would work, but I had nothing to do, and a whisk broom is not a very expensive outfit, so I made the experiment. BLACK LABOR IN THE SOUTH. It is a matter of wonderment to northerners that the most urgent need of the south should be declared to be agricultural labor. In the days of slavery it was the southern contention that the staples of the south, especially the chief of them, could not be successfully grown except by African slave labor. That this labor should there should even be discussion of deporting the southern negroes looked like rather an innominious confession of incompetency on the part of the superior race. It is gratifying to find the assumption of the inadequacy and untrustworthiness of negro labor flatly denied by soutrrn experts. The Atlanta Constitution quotes with approval an interview held some time since with J. W. Hyde, a successful lumberman of Jacksonville, Fla., in the course of which he said of the negroes: "I regard them as the best workers n the world. I said then, and I repeat now, that I would not give one black man in the lumber camps of the south for three Italians or three of any other oreigners. We can's get along without them, and, for one, I don't want to try. If Senator Tillman will give the country a rest on his negrophobia the so-callel race problef will settle itself." With the concluding sentence of Mr.

Hyde's interview," ands the Constitu-"we coincide almost unreservedly." It goes on to point out, very properly, that the men of business who have had practical experience with negro labor are much better witnesses than the political agitators, and that they have reached oposite conclusions, -New York Times.

He is described by a writer in the Boston Globe as rather below the average size of American men, but of a graceful figure and distinguished presence. He was a lively boy, with chestnut hair, blue eyes, a delicate complexion and rosy cheeks; sensitive, impressionable, impetuous, often impatient; quick tempered, but as easily appeased; kind hearted and affectionate-

It was not until later life that he that extremely picturesque appearance that makes hisportraits seem almost idealized. His white hair and beard were "as fine as spun glss."

He was most porticular in his attire. At Bowdoin he was looked upon as somethling of a fop. An English visitor write:

"He was dressed very fashlonably—almost too much so, a blue frock coat of Parislan cut, a handsome waistcoat, fultless pantaloons, and primrose colored kids set off his colpact figure." In later years his costume for the street was distinguished by a long blue cloth cloak, similar to these worn in

Even as a lad he disliked noise or violent sports, though he engaged in swimming, fishing, ball, kite flying, coasting and skoning. His elder brother was fond of the gun, and Henry ac companied him to the woods on little execusions, but one day he came home with tears in his eyes, fgrieved because he had shot a robin. He never went gunning again. He was foud of walking, or rather of strolling, but engaged in no athletic pastimes. At Bowloin he traced his image on a closet door, and every night fought that in pantomime for exercise. Although fond of the sea shore he generally managed to escape yachting parties and similar excursions when at his summer home at Nahant. A parental suggestion that he choose a profession, preferably the law, was very distasteful to him, and toward the close of his college career he wrote his father: "I most eagerly aspire after future eminence in literature; my whole soul burns most ardently for it." He was the soul of loyalty and honor and a public spirited citizen. In more than one private conversation on the civil war it is noted that "his patriotism blazed."

In his dealings with publishers and others Longfellow was a careful business man, while his judgment at times in withholding his work from publication until the proper moment was always sound:

On the Sunday following his return in 1829 from Europe, where he had been for three years, he attended church at Portland, and there he saw Miss Mary Potter, whom he had known as a child. He was so enamored of her beauty that he followed her home. As soon as he reached his own home he implored his sister to call with him at the Potter

Their brief but happy married life terminated in her death at Rotterdam, November 29, 1835. The young husband plunged into a winter's study at Heldelberg to forget his grief, which wore away but slowly.

The historic mansion in Cambridge where Longfellow secured lodgings in 1837, after he became a professor at Harvard, was very dear to him in after years. The house was a large one, and already Edward Everett and Jared Sparks had lived there; afterward, Mr. Longfellow was keeping house in it, the maker of the dictionary, Joseph E. Worcester, shared it with him, for there was room for each family to keep a separate establishment, and even a third could have found independent quarters.

She expired the next day and was buried on the eighteenth anniversary of her marriage. Longfellow could not go to the grave because of the burns he had sustained.

The depth of feeling in Longfellow's nature was such that some poems were sufficient to move the poet to tears when he heard them well rendered When Mrs. Kemble, the celebrated ac tress, read "The Building of the Ship," in old Masonic hall, in the war time, it was sald there was scarcely a dry eye n the audience of three thousand peo Longfellow's vogue in Europe was almost as great as his own country. There is a story that on the ship in the Mediterranean, when a chance allusion was made to Longfellow, an Italian quoted one of the well known verses of the poet from a translation in his own language, was followed by a Greek, who quoted a passage in his language, and the Greek by a Spanlard. It soon developed that of the various nationalitles represented there was not one in the group who was familiar with the poet in his own tongue.

On the occasion of Longfellow's last visit to England he was honored by a private audience with the Queen. When the Queen stretched out her hand to be kissed, the poet promptly grasped and shook it with the utmost ordiality.

Queen Victoria passed over the incient without appearing to notice it, but her subsequent conversation revealed a triffe of pique.

"Even my servants read verses," she sald, and Longfellow was never quite ure what she meant by it.

However, it was probably literally true. As he was passing through the palace he felt the eyes of attendants nseantly peering at him.

The poet told Mrs. J. T. Fields on his eturn that though the Queen received him with all cordiality no foreigh tribite touched him deeper than the words of an English hod-carrier, who came up e his carriage door at Harrow and asked permission to take the hand of the man who hal written "The Voices of the Night,"

RARE WINTER BIRDS.

Boston People Enjoying Sight in the Fenway and Other Parkways.

Out in the Fenway, anywhere from he entrance off Massachusetts avenue to the Arnold Arboretum, says the Boston Transcript, on any pleasant day may be seen men and women, sometimes singly and sometimes in groups, effacing themselves as much as may be against some friendly shrub and gazing through field glasses out across the face of nature. Whateven may be the first guess of the passerby as to the occupation of these people, it will probably be the wrong one, for they are students of bird life, and they know that the winter of 1906-707 has proved treasure-trove to ornithologists. Opinions differ as to the cause, but the fact has been established that varieties of birds whose home is in the far north, and which are in this latitude only occasionally, and usually only one variety at a time, are here this winter

But hese who have made birds a study realize that while the personnel of the summer visitors is a fairly constant quantity, it is the winter that every ow and then brings the really distingulshed strangers. They know, too hat the park system of Boston, with ts myriads of seed bearing shrubs, its streams and thickets and his tree covered hills, is one of the most favorable places in New England to observe the tabits of these winter tourists.

The white winged crossbill, about the size of the English sparrow, is sometimes called the "seven year bird," though ornithologists insist that Its appearance in this latitude at intervals of confidence of an oldo acquain- approximately seven years is the result merely of change. The northern birds, they say, come south not to escape the cold of a severe winter, but to find food when there is a crop failure in their own homes. These birds feed exclusively upon the seeds in the cones of the evergreen trees, preferably of the hemlock. They take their name from the curious crossing of the points of they are able to extract the seeds from he ground. The variety is marked b, white in double bars on the wing. EDUCATION IN JAPAN Baron Kiduchi, woo from 1903 to 1905 was Minister of Education in Japan, is on a visit to England, and will remain here for about six months. One of his objects on his present visit is to study the English educaby the fact that in Japan the national language is much more thoroughly taught than English is bere. To a foreigner in England, he says, who has studied English as ordinarily spoken in polite circles, the jargon of the last era and the dialects of various parts of England grated on his ears. In Japan, owing to the importance attached to correct speaking and pronunciation in all the schools of the country, the language is kept comparatively pure. In Japan, Baron Kiduchi sald, education is entirely secular. It is from the beginning to the end, from the primary school to the university, entirely a State affair, and so far as primary education is concerned is concerned, is practically free, and a movement is on foot to make it en-

And with it the rates have gone soaring. A table worked out by the borough treasurer of Islington, Lawrence Gilman in Harper's Weekly. and printed in R. P. Porter's recent book on "The Dangers of Municipal Ownership," shows a startling rote of taxation. It runs, in the various boroughs, from thirty to sixty per cent. of the rental value.

This was undoubtedly the aspect of the matter which had most to do with causing the Progressive upset, John Bull's pocket-nerve was at last reached. CHURCH NEXT WEDNESDAY.

Death of Mrs. Adeline C. Ellsworth-Funeral of Andrew C. Pratt-Outlook Club of Baptist Church-Mr. Tullar's Sunday Sermons-Good Suc cess of Fund Raising for Catholic Hospital-Other Notes.

There will be a large gathering next Wednesday evening at the Grand avenue Congregational church at the ladies' night entertainment and reception given by the men's club of the church. The committee is to extend invitations to the people of all the Fair Haven churches to attend. This is the first ladies' night planned by this club, and it is intended to give an excellent entertainment. Prof. Wetzell of Yale university will be present and will give a lecture recital from James Whitcomb Rellly's poems. There will be good music and an evening of fine entertainment is assured. All of the meetings of the men's club this winter have been interesting and well attended.

The death of Mrs. Adeline C. Ellsworth took place at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jessie Doer, 80 Exchange street, yesterday from heart failure. She had been troubled with heart failure for some time, but her death was rather sudden, her last illness having been only a few days. She had resided here with her daughter for several years. She also leaves a son. Mrs. Elisworth was a native of Avon. The funeral will take place Sunday at 2 p. m. at the undertaking rooms of H. W. Crawford in Grand avenue, and the burial will be in the East Haven

Services were held yesterday afternoon in the Memorial chapel of Fair Haven cemetery for the late Andrew C. Pratt of 1010 Chapel street, Rev. Mr. Scoville of Trinity church officiating. A delegation from the New Haven commandery, Knights Templars, of which he was a member, performed the ritual of that order, and members of the commandery acted as bearers.

The funeral of Chauncey J. Lines, formerly of Fair Haven, was attended from his late residence in Mather street in Whitneyville yesterday afternoon, Rev. E. C. Tullar of the East Pearl street M. At a largely attendd meeting Tuesday evening various places were proposed for the excursion. including the Jamestown exposition, Washington and Coney Island. The Jamestown trip, it was believed, would require over a week and the expense for forty-three members would be in excess of $1,000, and many members, it was reported, could not be away for so ong a time: A trip to Washington yould also consume considerable time and expense, and if either trip was approved, Jamestown seemed to be the preferred. As an expression of opinion vote was taken and a majority were in favor of Coney Island, for a two days' trip. The company has not definotely decided in the matter and this will probably be concluded at the next regular meeting, next Tuesday evening. From present appearances, the Coney Island trip is likely to be taken and in the month of July or August. TELEPHONE SAVED HIS LAFE.

Keeper Baumgartel at Merrimere Would Have Bled to Death Without Phone.

'The telephone saved his life." Such in brief is the true story of the escape from death by bleeding of Arthur C. Baumgartel, the watchman at Merrimere reservoir Wednesday afternoon. Says the Meriden Record: gartel was at work some distance from his house chopping wood and the axe glanced off the tree he was cutting. splitting open his left foot.

The wound was a very serious one and bled very freely. Mr. Baumgartel was alone and grew rapidly weak from the loss of blood. He managed to crawl to the house and get to the telephone, which enabled him to summon a physician. Dr. Cooke was summoned and in a vaint voice Mr. Baumgartel told him of his injury and that he was entirely alone in the house. The physician realized the seriousness of the ase and drove with all speed to the house. When he arrived Mr. Baumgartel was in a painting condition and exceedingly weak from the loss of Dr. Cook gave all the necessary care

York City.

The sad news was received in this city yesterday of the sudden death Thursday evening at his home, 325 West Seventieth streeth, in New York city, of Walter Pierrepont Bigelow, the vice president of the Hobart B. Bigelow company of this city. Mr. Bigelow had been in good health, and was in good spirits Thursday evening, and dined as usual with his family. was about to retire, when he suddenly fell to the floor and died without a struggle from heart failure. The news of his death spread rapidly in this city among the large circle of friends of the deceased, and created much sorrow surprise and regret. Mr. Bigelow was the youngest son of former Governor H. B. Bigelow and as he grew older began to resemble him very closely in form and feature. He was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific school in the class of 1887, and entered at once upon work in his father's company. For several years he had resided in the city of New York, where he had charge of the company's interests, visiting New Haven frequently to consult with the home office and see his mother, who lives here with her only remaining child, Colonel Frank L. Bigelow. Mr. Bigelow was forty years of age. He leavesa wife and no children.

Though it has been years since Mr. Bigelow lived here he is still remembered with a lively sense of affection by his school and college friends. temperament he was very much like his father, whose amiability and uniform courtesy made him, as the same qualities did his son, an ever increasing circle of friends, and in business associations gave him a place of dignity and influence. His brother went early to New York yesterday morning, and completed the arrangements for the funeral, which will be private.

Pressure against stocks was resumed right at the opening and amid an outpouring of various active issues new low records for the year were scored. Great confusion prevailed for a time, and all efforts to support stocks, if there were any, failed. Toward midday, however, a sharp rally occurred, which carried prices to a level fairly well up to the opening, but shortly after 1 o'clock what looked like a concerted movement against Pennsylvania stock began and a sharp break in this issue carried down the entire market. The demoralization for a little while seemed to be worse than at any previous time this week. Blocks of from 2,000 to 5,000 shares were thrown over by brokers, and one lot of 12,000 shares of Pennsylvania came out on the decline. New he discovered during his visit to his low records were made in the closing hour. Wall street was at a loss to account for the decline, but it was apparent that banking interests were doing able of giving intelligent direction of very little to support prices. Whence all the selling in the last hour and a half of business yesterday came from was mystifying to most persons in Wall street. To put it all on the shoulders of a few speculators for the decline would be far from the facts. That much long stock poured out from strong boxes or quarters which had to liquidate was the belief in some usually well informed quarters.

WOMAN'S INFERIOR NOSE. An English doctor, having arrived at the conclusion that no woman was a judge of wine, started a series of experiments recently to determine the reason. He started out with the proposition that the feminine taste was so had that a woman could not even distinguish whether a sample of wine was very good or very bad.

He located the incapacity in the sense of smell. A woman's sentilveness to offers he appreciates far below that normally possessed by men. The essences with pure water and testing experiments were made by diluting the limit of strength at which men and women could detect them and distinguish their character. The average man, it was found, could easilly detect the presence of lemon essence diluted with 200,000 times its own bulk of water. Women could only recognize it in a mixture of one part in 40,000. He concludes that the reason why some women use large quantities of perfume is that their sense of smell is specially obtuse and that they only btain from a considerable quantity of eu de cologne of perfumed tolled waters the same sensation that a man would gain from a drop or two.-New York Sun.

YESTERDAY'S STOCK MARKET.

Further Drastic Liquidation -Periods of Extreme Weakness.

New York, March 8 .- There was furthe drastle liquidation in the stock market to-day, and periods of extreme

WHY SPOONER RECANTED.

It is probable that if Orville H. Plati were alive John C. Spooner would not have resigned from the senate. The great Connecticut senator was more instrumental in persuading Mr. Spooner to resent his announced decision in 1900 against re-election than was any other influence brought to bear upon him. Between Mr. Platt and the Wisconsin statesman there was a bond of friendship as strong as affection. President Roosevelt also begged Mr. Spooner to withdraw his declination (and largely for the same reson that Mr. Platt pre sented such convincing force. This was that the republican party was undergoing a change of policies and leadership, and that to guide this process safely the service of men of Mr. Spooner's ability and character were needed.

It was toward the close of congress in 1903 that Mr. Platt virtualy obitaned Mr. Spooner's consent to permit his friends in Wisconsin to re-elect him, in spite of the positive declaration of the latter two years previously that he would not be a candidate. The Connecticut statesman then felt that his days were numbered, and in his told Mr strong Spooner that if he (Mr. Platt) should consult his own convenience and de sires he would retire to private life for rest which might prelong his days but that he owed a duty alike to his party and his country to remain at his post in the senate to the end. It was soon after this that Mr. Spooner let i be quietly known in Wisconsin that if the legislature should elect him with out a fight he would seept .- Washington Herald.
