Not finding there the car the party drove to the West Haven car barns, and were made acquainted with some of the facts. Trial of William D. Haywood Drawing Toward a Close.

END IN TWO WEEKS Defendant Will Take Stand In Own Behalf On Monday.

Bolse, July 5 .- A beginning of the end of the trial of William D. Haywood on a charge of murdering Frank FARE TO DERBY REDUCED Counsel for the defense announced that with the exception of three or four witnesses, their case in direct is before the jury. Charles H. Moyer, president of the Western Federation of Miners, will be called as a witness on Monday to which time court to-day adjourned. Moyer will be followed by Haywood, the defendant.

Judge Fremont Wood has asked counsel on both sides to submit their requests for instruction to the jury. He has advised counsel that he will consider these requests and will agree with counsel as to what his instructions shall be in order that th arguments on both sides may be limited to what the jury will be allowed to consider as evidence. In adjourning court this afternoon until Monday morning Judge Wood said he hoped that the interval would be utilized by counsel in preparations that would prevent further delay and bring the case to a speedy close,

It is expected that the rebuttal evidence in behalf of the state will begin on Wednesday and possibly on Tuesday, much depending on the extent of the cross examination of Moyer and Haywood. Counsel for the defense and the prosecution, after the adjournment this afternoon were willing to admit the possibility of a verdict of disagreement in two weeks,

Some uneasiness on the part of the urymen, as a result of their long confinement, developed this afternoon. Just before the adjournment of court Juror S. F. Russell, asked the judge if the jury would be allowed to exercise during the two days adjournment, complained that some members of the jury were disinclined to take walks and that for this reason the other jurors were unable to take exercise to which they were accustomed and without which there was danger of sickness.

the contemplated fleet movement. The opinion of the officers on diuy to-day is that but one route is fesible for the big ships, and that is by way of the Straits of Magellan. The route from New York across the Atlantle and through the Mediterranean and the Suez canal is open to the obships almost into Japanese waters, and the movement might consequently be regarded as a menace, which Secretary Metcalf has stated has never been contemplated.

Mr. Meigs was a native of Oxford, being born there March 6, 1825. He was oungest of five children of Samnel and Lorenz Comlinson. He received his common school education in the schools of the vicinity had at sixteen took up the talloring trade, arving for five years in Derby. Ill health caused him to give up this work. BATTLESHIPS

This, according to the best calculations, and allowing for short visits to ports not on the nearest sailing route, is about 13,000 miles in

The opinion is that under ordinary cruising seas which for the big battleships means about 10 or 12 knots an hour, and allowing a reasonable time for coaling en route, the Atlantic fleet can make the passage from New York to San Francisco in less than 60 days. It is conceded that Rear Admiral R. D. Evans will command the fleet in this great movement, as It is known by his friends that he would like to wind up his active career by safely conducting around the American continent the greatest fleet of warships ever gotten together in these waters.

It is believed now that the sailing route of the ships will be about as follows: Leaving New York Hampton Roads in the early fall, the battleships would probably steam to corporations. He said that there is no Culebra, where coal would be taken The next stop will be Rio de the Straits of Magelian. Here again good. The Consolidated, he said, pur-for the run to Callao, Peru. The would proceed without a stop to San

It is believed that after reaching Peruvian waters the movements of the essels will be much more deliberate han up to that point. Although the reason for this statement is not offidally obtainable, it is apparent that the explanation is to be found in the fact that the battleships will be within easy reach of San Francisco; in other words, they could in an emergency arrive at that port before any other fleet

Two methods of coaling have been eral board, and it is not possible now ent number of colliers to enable them replenish their coal supplies without ependence upon foreign coaling staions. In this case no less than twenty olliers will be necessary, because something like 77,000 tens of coal will be burned on this cruise.

In the second case, the plans provide for the free use of merchantable coal along the route, which of course would diminish the need of colliers.

Admiral Evens will, It is expected, start out with sixteen battleships, besides the colliers. Captain Smith summoned the crev o quarters; the fore hatches were battered down, and within ten minutes four streams of water were pouring in to the hold. Meanwhile, the smoke was so dense that it was impossible to get into the chain locker to weigh anchor, and the anchor with 75 fathoms of chain was slipped while the steamer was headed for the mud flats off Clifton landing, where she was beached. The captain did not summon assistance but relying ers Washington and Tennessee, which smith, general traffic manager of the on the steamers fire fighting apparatus, which proved sufficient. The fire was discovered at seven o'clock and was under control two hours later.

Late to-night the Monterey was resting easily, her bow well submerged and her fore hatch flooded. It is probable that nearly all the cargo in No. 1 hatch has been greatly damaged by fire and water. The steamer had on board 120 passengers, 76 in the saloon, 32 second cabin and 12 steerage. Among these there was considerable excitement for a time, but nothing approaching a Soon after the steamer grounded, the passengers were taken off by tugs which had stood by when the blaze was discovered. Of the passengers 87 were transferred to the Ward line pier in this city by the Quarantine tug, Governor Fowler; 22 of the second abin and steerage were removed to Hoffman Island for observation, while 13 remained on board the Monterey. They will be taken off in the morning. Among these were P. Le Faivre and Dr. B. Von Humbracht, respectively French and German ministers to Cuba.

mated that about $32,000,000 is involved in the suit.

The phonograph wan has been waged through the courts for many years. It is alleged that, although the National Phonograph company, one of the Edison concerns, was ordered by the court not to sell the phonographs or supplies in this state, the dealers were encouraged to do so. The New York Phonegraph company maintains it purchased the sole right to sell Edison machines and records in this state.

Justice Keogh granted an injunction on June 25 restraining the Edison concerns from selling in the state. Edison interests appealed, and the case was argued last Wednesday before Justice Keogh, who announced his decision to-day at his home in New Rochelle.

She said her husband had worked at Farnham's and they lived in this city until he deserted her. After that she went to Bridgeport where she is now working Mr. Phillips advised her to see Bridgeport lawyer if she desired a divorce and told her the police here could do nothing for her. THE CITY OF ORANGE.

Independence Day at Savin Rock was what might be called a feast day in the town of Orange. The more than ever attractive shore resort drew thousands of people, not alone from New Haven, but from adjoining towns. The atmosphere was that of a huge picule and the personnel that of lively picnickers. It was an orderly, well behaved growd of people but the impressive fact remained that it was the love of outdoor life by the sea shore which made the borough of West Haven in the town of Orange a-people with the pleasure seek-

We refer to the occasion and the borough as another and fitting Illustration of the absurdity of making a city of the town of Orange because the borough of West Haven is during certain months in the year popular. There are many, of course, who live there during the Summer months, and still many more, though fewer in number, who make it their home throughout the year, but from the municipal point of he the only leader in sight? How can view there is no more excuse for transthan there is for transforming "the during the period West Haven is is this mistaken view of its own importance that the town of Orange sake of New Haven, but for its own sake. The protection which is needed for the control of this artificial population for a few months is the kind of to give; it is the very kind of protection a city cannot with justice to itself give. of Orange to care for the thousands who visit it during the Summer months. Because it is a picnic ground and be cause it is viewed as a picnic ground own protection. In the case of the city of New Haven, it is because the thirty thousand people who come here each Autumn to attend the big football game spirit of fun-making that New Haven is able to cope with the conditions which arise, But upon the theory advanced by the political revolutionists crowds visit it for the fun of it a few months in the year, without thought or care of local traditions and local aspirations, a city is needed, the same need of a municipal organization. It is law, and requesting each to "direct crowd, or possibly a misconceived understanding of the service a municipality can give by ambitious men, that the people of the town of Orange are be an effective one. If we believed that a city of Orange see New Haven the largest city in New welfare of the people of any Connecticut community is of concern to the people of every other Connecticut community and the community which would deliberately feed on and fatten off the welfare of an adjoining community would be deserving of the severest punishment. What the people of the town of Orange should do, if they are not already doing so, is to study as they have never studied before the proposal which has been put up to them to risk an independent city existence.

It is but a few days, as days come and go, before October will be due and t is then that the voters of Orange will be called upon to accept or reject the municipal charter which the General Assembly has enacted into law subject to their approval. A mis-step may cost them more than the traffic will bear. A longer test of town and borough life may of itself, and probably will, blaze their way out of the wilderness of doubt and confusion.

NOT TOO MUCH.

We have been a little surprised by some of the comments on the action of the Democratic State convention of Pennsylvania in voting down the resolution indorsing Mr. Bryan for the presidency. NOT PARADISE FOR THE FARM EI Not long ago many restless western farmers were leaving their good farms and their good surroundings for the new land and the new life of Canada are finding out that they didn't know when they were well off. How cheering and surprising it is in this shifty and shiftless world to find something that can be depended on, that will hold under any strain. President Eliot truly remarks that there is a lack of public confidence in the methods of administering municipal government. More Democracy Needed. (Boston Heraid.) We are living in a new epoch of revolution, following a period of patient endurance of evils, for 'experience hath shown"-as the framers of the Declaration said-"that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are atcustomed." But, like our forefathers, ing coal is not all. There is a marked increase in the production of fluor spar and barytes, with their associated lead and zinc ores. In fact, Kentucky is shown to be not only the largest prodemocracy—aristocracy in business and democracy in government, privilege in trade and equality in courts and at the polls. The remedy for democracy's present ills is more democracy, not less—an extension of the field, not a limitation of it.

A nervous irritable woman, often on | the verge of hysterics, is a source of misery to everyone who comes under her influence, and unhappy and mis-

Such women not only drive hus-bands from home but are wholly unfit to govern children.

The ills of women act like a fire brand upon the nerves, consequently seven-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, the "blues", sleeplessness, and nervous irritability of women arise from some organic derangement.

Do you experience fits of depression with restlessness alternating with extreme irritability? Do you suffer from pains in the abdominal region, backache, bearing-down pains, nervous dyspepsia, sleeplessness, and almost continually cross and snappy? If so, your nerves are in a shattered condition and you are threatened with nervous prostration.

Proof is monumental that nothing in the world is better for nervous troubles of women than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs. Thousands and thousands of women can testify to this fact. Mrs, Nellie Makham, of 151 Morgan

Has None of the Luxuries of Life and Does Not Seem to Care to Live.

Out the Year.

New York, July 5 .- "Abe Hummel is dving. He cannot live out his term. I doubt if he lives out the year 1907. Reate might prolong his life. I have not told him what his illness is. He is disressed enough as it is. He does not know that he is a dying man," said the highest medical authority at the penitentiary at Blackwell's Island to-day.

Professional ethics prevented the physician from disclosing the nature of Hummel's illness. The admission as to the little lawyer's dying condition was made only after it was said to Warden Fallon of the penitentiary; Dr. Metz of the penitentiary hospital; Dr. D. A. McAuliffe, a visiting physician, and Dr. Sigmund Tynberg, president of the medical board, department of correction, that the privileges accorded Hummel savored of favoritism,

"I don't know whether Hummel suffered from his present ailment before he entered the penitentlary or not,' said the physician who discussed Humcondition. The tremendous change from his former to his present manner of living agravates his filness as was nourishing and easily digested and comfortable physical conditions such as soft beds, baths, with opportunities for refreshing physical exercise,

"Now he has only such nursing as prison orderlies give. He spent the Fourth of July on his cot. The hospital as he has been used to. His cot is not supplied with a hair mattress and the environment cannot but be depressing ty, said that twice since Hummel's in-carceration in the penitentiary on May 21 he had been set to work. Hummel's ing, but after awhile put to work. A second time he was sent to the hospital, and, after treatment, sent to his work, handling supplies in the storeroom. He was sent back to the hospital after an interval, and is there now.

"Mr. Hummel seems to be indifferent as to whether he recovers or not," said Dr. Tynberg. "I am sure he has not been permitted to take outdoor exercise since he was sent to the hospital, bepermitted to walks outdoors and was told that there was no rule that would allow Hummel that privilege.

"I have never seen visitors with Hummel. I think he suffers from the extreme barshness of the prison rules. rather than being favored in any way. Because he is Hummel, rich and presumed to be powerful, the prison authorities see to it that no rules are stretched in his favor."

RIVALS IN DASH FOR SOUTH POLE,

American and British Explorers to Use the Automobile.

WILL START NEAR SAME TIME.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook to Use Especially Designed Machines-Motor For Leader of British Expedition Will Draw Sledges-Hopes to Make Sudden Dash After Reaching Ice Edge, Relying on Manchurian Ponies.

In view of the report cabled from New York to London that Dr. Frederick A. Cook has made preparations to explore the antarctic regions and make an effort to reach the south pole, using motor cars for the purpose, it is interesting to note that the British expedition to the south pole under command of Lieutenaut Ernest H. Shackleton. announced in February last, is now almost ready and will start from the Thames about the same time as Dr. Cook does from America-namely, at the end of July.

About that exposition a New York Herald correspondent recently had a talk with Lieutenant Shackleton. He was much interested in the American expedition, especially as the automobile will play a prominent part in his plan, though the lieutenant is not reying on the automobile entirely.

"It is not stated in the cabled report about Dr. Cook," remarked Lieutenant Shnckleton, "where Dr. Cook is going to land and whence he will start his journey to the pole. We of course shall land on King Edward VII. Land and explore around the Ross Quadrant, which has hitherto been the British sphere of exploration since it was discovered by Sir James Ross in 1842.

"Of course the prospect of going south from King Edward VII. Land is yet hypothetical, because no one has landed there since it was discovered during the national antarctic expedition in 1902. But we have decided to land there for certain reasons. We have a good staff of strong, scientific men, numbering twelve in all, men who are not only expert geologists and meteorologists, but are able to put a strong hand to sledging in case of

"We have Sir Philip Brocklehurst, who will be invaluable to the expedition in sledging work. Mr. James Murray is a well known blologist. He has been for the last five years engaged with Sir James Murray on lake survey. Lieutenant Adams is our meteorologist, and we have a splendid mechanical engineer and chauffeur in

Mr. James Muir. "Our general staff will join the ship at New Zealand at the end of the year. Our automobile-for we shall have only one-consists of a framework of specially manufactured steel and is a very simply constructed offair. It will carry separate sets of wheels to suit the varying conditions of the surfaces over which we shall have to travel.

"For Instance, in soft snow the two front wheels will require to be taken off and sledge runners substituted. There is no water circulation to cause trouble through freezing, and the engines will be air cooled. We shall carry no weight on the automobile-at any rate, no more than necessary. The chauffeur will be the only passenger, the car being used merely as an engine, as it were, to draw the train of sledges which will carry the members of the expedition and provisions.

"Arrangements have already been made for us to ship a number of Manchurian ponies at Lyttleton, but these are not to do any work unless the automobile breaks down. Then they will be used to draw the sledges. My reason for adopting the automobile as a locomotive to draw sledges is because I do not think a heavily laden automobile would be so serviceable as the method I propose to adopt.

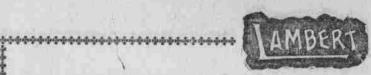

"It is a well known naval saying that the speed of a fleet is the speed of the slowest ship, and our speed will be the speed of ponies, which should be about twenty-five miles a day. We shall also take some dogs with us, but not for our journey to the pole. These Manchurlan ponies, which are very hardy animals, can each drag as much as eighteen dogs, and they each eat only about eleven pounds of food as compared with eighteen for the dogs, so you can understand what a saving that is not only in the matter of food

"As to our prospects? Well, the distance from our winter quarters to the south pole is about 730 miles, and on our last sledging trip we covered something like 270 miles as the crow files. I am quite confident that the automobile will be able to draw our train of sledges quite that distance without being called upon to fall back on ponies, required, but in the weight of stores

"Then for the remainder of the distance, if we have to rely on the ponies, we should be able to do from fifteen to twenty miles a day. If we have level ground, there should be no difficulty in reaching the south pole. But if mountains intervene, then our operations will require to be modified. If the slopes of glaciers are too steep for our ponies to climb, we shall have to leave them behind. They are very hardy, sure footed animals and grand climbers. But if they cannot do the work we shall have to haul the sledges up the heights ourselves. That is why I said the members of our expedition were not only expert scientific men. but physically strong men, rendy and to undertake. "Doing as we purpose and supposing

Loses Queer Game.

When two nines meet each of whom has been trimmed twice the previous day the game can be set down in advance as sure to prove of the mollycoddle order.. Yesterday's New Haven-Springfield struggle was fought under just such auspices and its out-come, a 14 to 3 victory for Springfield was little worse than was expected. First New Haven galloped off in the lead and with a 3 to 1 start in the third inning seemed well along on the road to victory. This was obtained at the expense of "Windmill Cy" Miller, who was called from the sunlight glare into the shade of the bench in the third "Bill" Luby, who replaced him, held New Haven well within his sphere of influence, which is little more than an euphemism for a spit ball, till the game closed, the home team not crossing the plate once. Springfield began perking in the fourth and in the seventh and eighth indulged in a batting bee for 11 runs which put the game safe. Nolte was pounded to a pulp and "Ham" Wade, who was called into the box failed to check the freshet of hits which poured around him.

During the two and one-half innings that Miller occupied the box he was found for five hits and only the sharpest of fielding prevented the New Haven run total from mounting higher. Nolte was displaced in the middle of the seventh inning after 7 hits had been recorded against him during the game. In the two and a half innings of Wade's stay in the box he was touched for seven more hits. The six and a half innings of Luby's stay on the slab netted New Haven a solitary single, Captain Fitzpatrick's drive to left in the seventh. Captain Fitzpatrick getting, scoring 2 of the 3 runs and 3 velt was the feature. The score:

Despite the fact that New Haven playing far from winning ball a crow of practically a thousand people fu nished teh largest uttendance of th season, outside of a holiday, and roote lustily for the home team till th Springfield batting streak in the se enth pulled it beyond reach.

From the start it looked like a sec ing game. In the first Curtiss walke Tansey drove a single to center, Lui laid down a sacrifice and on Rising grounder to Hayward, Curtiss w thrown out at the plate. When Rish stole second Tansey dashed for hom and beat the throw back to the plate of Sherwood. Stankard out, Sherwood to Bunyan, closed the inning.

Connell began New Haven's half by walking, Fitzpatrick hammered a safe hit to left and Hayward sacrificed. Kennedy came to the rescue with a timely .569 to attend the tri-ennial conclave of the drive to left, which scored Connell and 422 grand encampment at Sacatoga. Up to Fitzpatrick. In what is termed an errorless game, according to the official rules of the Howe & Stetson Baseball association, the married men of that store defeated the single men by one lone tally yesterday afternoon at the Morris Cove grounds, the final score being 11 to 10. According to the reports of the single men, and to be sure their veracity should not be tested. Umpire Bernstein, Two base hit, Page, Rankin. Hits one of the married men, robbed them of the contest. The umpire's chief method of favoring the married men was to call every ball which came within ten feet of the single men's batsmen a strike, and calling every ball, whether it went over the base or not, when the married men were at bat, a ball. Bernstein had no scruples against favoring the married men on bases. That the single men were able to check the ten men opposing them to within one run of their own score was far above any one's expectations. On the side of the married men, as would be expected, no kick has yet been made, nor has any reply to the statements of the team which lost been heard of:

Distinguished Soldiers Who Once Worked the Scissors.

Washington, July 4.-Through the joint efforts of the committee on publicity of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice and National Rifle Association of America a permanent trophy has been secured for the Press Rifle match to be shot for in the Press match at Camp Perry, Ohlo, on August 22. It is believed that this is the first permanent prize to be offered in any field of sport where the contestants are confined to newspaper men.

It is surprising how many young newspaper men have served in the militia and not a few of the older ones have seen service in the armies of the United States or as correspondents with the armies of other nations. The commanding general of the District Militia, Brig. Gen. George H. Harries, for instance, was long one of the most prominent newspaper men at the capitol; the late Gen. H. V. Boynton, Col. John M. In addition to the scores made in the two days' contest, there will be added those scores in the Wimbleton Cup Match, the "Leech Match" and the "Uresident's Match" all being individual matches of the National Rifle Association and to be shot during the week beginning August 19 at Camp Perry. From the aggregate of all these scores the team will be selected-nine on the basis of the highest aggregate and three by executive committee, making twelve in all of whom four will be alternates. A BOOM THAT LIVED. McKinley's Candidacy Was Early An-nounced-A Hint to Tatt.

Washington political news, in the abence of anything positive in other quarters, naturally gets a rather pronounced pro-administration coloringand "pro-administration" means little else than a Taft tinge as far as "presidential possibilities" in the Republican party are concerned. Up to date President Roosevelt has not openly espoused the cause of any aspirant for the nomination, but he makes no effort to concent his present, preference for his secretary of war-unless of course, the "call" should come to himself bresistibly-although it is not at all inconceivable that, if some other fairly representative Republican were some fine day to betray affection for the Rooseveltian "policies" and to present strong "availability," William H. Taft might then and there begin to wonder "what he was ever begun for if so soon he was done for." The Oyster Bay disposition is said to be to let everything lag until just prior to the regular meeting of the Republican national committee next December, when a determined effort would be made to put the committee on a thoroughly administration basis from top to bottom and thus be in good form early in 1908 for handling the Taft boom-or any other boom that the administration might at that particular time be ambitions to promote. In this connection a la interesting. General James S. Clarkson, who may play an important part for the administration, particularly in the south, was here last week in conference with Secrettary Cortelyon. Let it be crusted that the chairman of the Republican national committee In 1892-the second of the only two campaigns that have swept the Republican party out of power during fortysix years-has here been misquoted. He must know a boom when he sees it. And the most conspicuous "early boom" in recent American history-presidential booms are here referred to, course-was that which had its inciplency as far back as 1893 and its fruition in landing William McKinley of Ohio in the White house on March 4. 1897. It was the most carefully nursed, the most industriously and most systematically promoted boom of record in the politics of this country. et Thomas Brackett Reed of Maine and his friends either did not actually sense its growth and strength and irresistibility until the very eve of the St. Louis convention in 1896, or else they affected not to; for when Hon, "Jee" Manley, already on the ground in the convention city, wired the Maine delegates en route, "Everything here McKinley," they branded him forthwith as a political traitor; and "Sam" Fessenden of Connecticut was so terribly cut up by the disquicting news that out off from any possible contact with he made the telegraph wires into the Manley headquarters fairly hise out this answer: "God Almighty hates a quitter, Joe!" In short, the Reed men there were myrlads of them-had put off the organization of his boom long that Hon. Mark Hanna had left a separate section also for imported them not even a scrap to make it out Better an early boom that "dies a bornin" than one that never gets generated at all! Secretary Taft's promoters have a practical lesson in delegate-getting in the history of the Hanna-Osborne system of 1894-95, McKinley could not have secured the 1896 mination through any other means. The "early boom" in adroit hands was his only chance.-New York Commercial.

DOGS IN CLOVER.

In Care of Hospitals, Surgeons and the Government Itself.

So far no dog has been found who will submit to wearing spectacles. To please their masters and for their own comfort large numbers of dogs have cheerfully worn wooden, vulcanite and leather legs, false eyes of celluloid or glass and artificial teeth, too, but all legdom draws the line at spectacles. Something like thirty crippled dogs in England are now skipping about merrily on artificial legs and realistic looking paws, says the Ladies' Realm. They learn to walk with absolute ease on ost as much as several guineas. One prosperous petted French poodle ossesses a gorgeous artificial leg of eather with side supports of handsomely chased gold. Solid silver trimmings combined with leather are by no means uncommon expensive accessories which make extra precautions against the dog stealer a necessity.

The dogs of the poor content themselves with a cheap though efficient France. Evidently the ball was not wooden leg at about 50 cents. A dog or leg speedily discovers that this is a dealing with other and fighting dogs. And with a little practice the false limb, especially when fitted with a movable, flexible joint and paw, serve ele and forms an efficient holder for a delectable bone. A Pharisaical pride and upplsaness enters into the heart of a dog wearing glass eye, a set of false teeth or a vulcanite paw. He is not as other dogs are. Therefore he carries his nose in the air and sniffs superciliously at former canine companions.

Even a cow with a wooden leg has seen known to give herself insufferable airs in the pastures. When the accident occurred which necessitated an artificial limb her owner was offered two pounds for her. As soon as the lea was fitted her market price rose to fifeen pounds. The proverblal nine lines of cats preerve them from some of the accidents to which more venturesome canine used by the regular army. The change tion for representation on the State fiesh is heir; still, puss frequently is a welcome one to the men.

at comes under the skilful ministrations of the veterinary surgeon. Frisky, a NATIONAL GUARD handsome seven-year-old tabby which broke its foreleg, was in splints for three weeks at the animal hospital but was as frisky as ever when she came

An elderly Schipperke had a fine set of false teeth put in by his owner, a dentist. The dog, hitherto of blameless record, celebrated his acquisition by stealing a chop the very first day. It had been so long since he had been able to enjoy a bone that he could not re

The same dentist made several sets of teeth for an old collie. The dog swallowed the first set, smashed the econd over a toothsome bone and became an expert in removing them with his paw. Finally a permanent plate on the American bridge plan, which effectually prevented him from taking them out and losing them, was put in with bars of twenty-four carat gold.

The consulting room of a famous veterinary surgeon during consulting hours is full of interest. Patients of every kind arrive, from a pigeon with a broken wing to a sick rabbit.

A three-months-old puppy comes with a broken leg. He is speedily put up in a plaster of paris splint, which, after the custom of his kind, he tries Bandages, splints and every type of surgical appliance are as grist to the dog mill, but cunningly made collars prevent this playful epicureanism. Prof. Hobday, a notable veterinary surgeon, has invented an electrical motor pump for administering anaesthetic vapor to dogs to obviate pain during operation.

The fitting of a glass eye in a dog or cat is now quite a commonplace thing in veterinary practice, Peggy, a beautiful Jap spaniel, was fitted out with a perfect match for her sinle eye, but the first day she sported it she lost it That is to say, being out with her mistress, she unperceivedly extracted the new eye and not being able to carry t in her paw dropped it by the way. But it was bought back for a shilling from a street boy who found it. Pegy did not always wear her glass eye, but it was invariably put in for afternoon tea.

At the dogs' sanitarium, Beddington Lane, Mitcham, some 306 dogs may be seen under treatment in the wards. The hospital covers about three acres of land; the air is bracing, and scented from the famous Mitcham lavender

The bright wards are built bungalow fashion on one floor. Each dog has a self-contained flat or cage, consisting of a large bedroom with straw and litter couch, and a nice sittingroom or exercising yard. An even, warm temperature is maintained by hot water pipes out of reach of dogg e's paws and investigating nose.

The sickbeds of all are surrounded with every comfort and tendar care, Experienced kennel men watch over the invalids throughout the day and night. Their temperatures are taken and recorded, their diet carefully prescribed and cooked in a dainty little kitchen. A qualified resident surgeon in charge lives in a delightful, old-fashioned farmhouse in the grounds, while the specialists and consultants pay periodvisitsw for inspection and operation. The surgery is fitted up with the most elaborate appliances such as electro scopes for the examination of canine throats. The pills, potions and liniments are varied and attractive

The distemper hospital is absolutely the other departments. A separate staff is told off both for the distemper sec tions and the isolation wards, where cases of infectious troubles are treated A special ward is provided for healthy pet dogs whose owners are abroad, and dogs in quarantine. Dogs from every part of the world find a happy home here while in durance vile-or the six months quarantine prescribed by the Board of Agriculture for dogs coming from foreign parts.

There are two forms of quarantine, indoor and outdoor. The regime depends on the climate from which the dog has

Each dog from quarantine has-by order of the Board of Agriculture-to take his walks and runs abroad in solitary state in the exercising grounds lest he may communicate rables or infection of some sort to his canine companions. It is said that almost $3,000,000 is invested in dogs in Great Britain.

GOLFERS' CURIOUS DRIVE.

Playing From a .Treetop-Ball That Bounded Back to Starting Point,

An odd incident occurred on Saturday during a match at the Golf Club de Paris, near Versaffles. Two players in the open amateur championship were at the fourteenth tee, when one sent his drive up a tree. The ball retheir surgical limbs, some of which mained fixed between two branches; a presence there.

A great consultation arose as to what should be done. The committee was hastily summoned and stood beneath the spreading branches of the tree, much in the fashion in which St. Louis dispensed justice in a primitive out of bounds. Finally the judges decreed that either a new ball should be dropped on the tee, counting two, or the ball should be played from To save the point, the golfer bravely shinned up the tree and played his ball from the embracing fork, making, indeed, quite a good stroke.

Later in the afternoon from the ame tee I witnessed another curious ncident. The player had driven, and his ball, striking the sand box of the ladies' tee, fifty yards ahead, bounded back to its starting place. The player then drove into the bunker with his second shot, which is also something of a performance.-Pall Mall Gazette.

There is a blinding blue flash and at each pressure on the key sparks nearly two feet in length start from beween the two silvery balls of the infuction reel. One of these balls is in communication with the earth and the other with a rod. Each spark represents an impulsion which is communicated from the battery to the rod and from this rod the electrician sets in motion the vibrations of the other call-d Hertzian waves. These waves expand in space in every direction at a speed of 300,000 kilometros a second: that is to say, seven times the circumference of the earth. They are independent of wind and temperature and glide above the surface of the earth and sea, striking on their way the wireless stations that He far beyond the horizon.

At each blinding flash that accompanies the movement of the key a noise like the report of a rifle is heard. It is an awe-inspiring spectacle, the inventor calmly standing there pressing the key amid the lightning and the thunder. The operator is obliged to stuff his ears with wool. It appears, however, that recently Marconi has found means of doing away with the noise almost completely.

nough to alarm the State. If this trial and verdict establish a precedent in Virginia, hereafter when a woman charges a man with an offence against her honor, and relates it to a male nember of the family and so inflames his passion as to cause a "brain storm," such a man will be justified in slaying the person accused. It will matter not whether the woman's story be true or false; whether it be an exaggeration or a pure invention. Not a word of testimony can be intro-Juced in court to impeach the witiess. The only thing necessary will be to make the jury believe that she fold such a story to the prisoner at the bar and that the shock of it deprived him of his reason for the mo-If the prisoner was once a irunkard and had injured his brain and weakened his will power by strong lrink, so much the better for his case. He will be less responsible in law than otherwise he would have been.

Can any doctrine more dangerous than this be imagined! It is simply astounding. We have the Southern instinct. We understand why a Virginia Jury will not convict a man who has slain another, if that other have lebauched his home. But we balk at this new version of the 'unwritten law," which is the worst form of lynch bad the woman may be. The law is no respecter of persons. A plea which suffices, in one case must be quite sufficient in another. And why should a woman be necessarily involved? If a man hears from any source a charge against another which so enrages him as to produce a brainstorm, whether the story be true or not, he is justified in committing murder.

This must not be the practice in Vir ginia. We are carrying the "unwritten law" and the dectrine of irresponsibility to absurd and dangerous extremes. "SOCIAL AND RELIGIOUS IDEALS," put centers of degradation and dis-by Revi whemas Jean Haynes, M. A. Published of Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. For sale by Judd: $1.00.

The object and aim of this new book extracts as follows:

"At the present time many thoughtful people are seriously perplexed by questions that seem to throw doubt upon the essentials of the Christian That radical and far-reaching changes are taking place in our theological conceptions cannot be denied. changes? How much is left of the old Is there growing up a new faith that will meet the religions and social needs of a new age? The answers of traditional theology to these questions will not, it is becoming clear, satisfy earnest seekers of the truth."

The author then exercises the hope that the perplexed may find guidance in this book and adds: "These essays are written from the point of view of one who frankly accepts the established facts of modern science and the new Biblical criticism, of one who is in full sympathy with that movement of religious life which is finding its interpretation in what is known as the New Theology. This theology approved by the reasoning intellect has yet to justify itself to the spirit of man. The writer's appeal therefore, is not primarly to dogma but to life itself." The author adds that he "believes in applying the principles of Christ's teach ings to questions of social no less than of individual righteousness."

No formal connection exists between the essays which make up the book. "Each is the outgrowth of a particular mood; fragmentary, but adapted to the need of busy men and women." Indeed, this is one of the charms of this timely and helpful little work. The seeker after the Christian ideal has no philosophical treatise or polemical discussion to flounder through. The thoughts presented are clothed in simple language such as distinguish Henry Ward Beecher's pulpit utterances and books. He who runs may read and understand and there is food for reflection and helpful suggestion for the enquirer on every page. There is a great variety of topics but disconnected as are these essays there runs through all an evident singleness of purpose and aim-a desire to help forward the reader to higher spiritual ideals and attainments.

The book has 168 pages and there are 180 of these little helpful essays, among which are: "Things in a City Life to Weep Over," "What This Age Most Values," "Sins of the Disposition," "The New Patriotism," "A Return to Puritanism." "Responsibility for the War of the Classes," "Men Who Buy and Sell Christ," "The Present Day Protest Against Creeds," "The To-morrow," "The Secret of Spiritual Blessing," "The Misfortune of Being Cortunate" "The National Awaken-"Every Citizen Should Know His Own City," "The Christian Theory of Wealth," "What Science Has Done and Failed to Do," "The Modern City a Sad Sight," "A Wise and Unwise Has Its New Theology.'

The book is gracefully dedicated to pastor-emeritus of the United church, Rev. Dr. T. T. Munger. We quote a selection or two from the book that the reader may note its

The Outing Magazine for July is a big and tempting issue, alive with ligh-class flotion and with special artiles of present-day importance. HOW CIGAR BOXES ARE MADE. A Fortune Spent in Producing Them Every Year.

There is probably not a cigar smoker in the land who has not wondered, at one time or another, how much of what he pays for his smoke goes into the box, and the lithographed labels, and the gilt bands, and the like. A box which holds fifty clears costs from four to eight cents, according to what it is made of, and this is without counting the labels and bands, or anything but the wood and nails. The cost of these boxes used in the United States alone foots up to $6,000,000 every year. Some of them go to Havana, but they come back with eigars in them, says Tit-

Perhaps the most interesting and east known fact about this industry is that while some cigar boxes are made of cedar, a great number are made of popular, veneered on one side with cedar, while still others are made of popular without any venser. In the latter case the wood is printed in imitation of cedar by the use of ink of the proper color and a machine which carries a printing roller on which are the lines to resemble the graining of cedar wood. The bottom and top of a cigar box of standard grade are 5-32 inch in thickness, while the ends are 7-32 inch. De spite the very small amount of wood needed, it is cheaper, however, to use the veneered poplar than the cedar, and till cheaper to print the poplar. Solld redar boxes to hold one hundred cigars now cost about 10 cents, and the half boxes, or those for fifty cigars, about eight cents. The corresponding prices for veneer are about one cetn less, while for the printed poplar the prices are three to four cents. Such prices are only made possible by the use of intricate machinery and subdivision of labor, and it is also imfounded with the Rev. W. J. Dawson. These machines are fed with nails by an automatic arrangement, which presents the required number of them at each stroke. One stroke does the business of nailing at each corner, and one stroke also suffices for the botoms and tops, the nails being pushed in rather than driven. One of these machines will frame five thousand boxes a day, and two machines, working together, will turn out ten thousand boxes, except for the labels.

The lid of the clear box is held in place by nailing only along the front edge, and generally by one nail. The Generally speaking, the entire interior surface of the box is lined with paper and paper flaps, and in large facorles the label printing, and sometimes even the designing of the labels, constitues an important branch of the work. When I have done that I will go in my aeronautomobile to President Roosevelt's house on Sagamore Hill, at Oyster Bay, and tell him I am ready to build a machine that will cross the ocean."

This was the announcement made by Fritz H. Grawert, a German inventor, as he stood watching the antics of his aeronautomobile about a large room at er papers put together, cannot get a 160th street and Forest avenue, the "Airship talk is cheap," he continued; "the cheapest kind of talk I know any thing about, but I am telling you what I am going to do, not what in theory I think I might do. You see for yourself. This model sails around here under perfect control. That shows you what a larger machine can do. It is the only model with a propeller that has ever proved itself-the only one that has ever actually worked."

If Fritz Grawert has not solved the problem of aerial navigation he will be one of the most grievously disappointed genluses that ever wasted time and materials in the effort.

Every time he winds up the spring in his model and sets it circling about the room his conviction that he is the conqueror becomes more firmly established in his own mind.

He has evolved many inventions of one kind and another during his lifetime, but his aeronautomobile is the result of fifteen years of hard work and many discouragements. Now he and many discouragements. Now he up the Evening News while the ball-declares nothing remains for him but lifts were at the door. Many Gas Bags Used.

His airship, he says, is to combine how enormously another paper had the automobile, the dirigible balloon caught its nold upon the public, it was and the aeroplant all in one.

When the forward or rear sections are turned from a straight line then the machine twists about in a narrower circle, and by turning the forward part down or up it performs imperfectly the spiral motion, which the inventor says will enable him, with the perfected machine, to rise or descend with a screwlike movement, so that he may come down wherever he desires.

Going to Cross Ocean.

In building his first machine he says he will use a seven-horsepower motor and that the four gas bags will carry about as much gas as is usually contained in one of the dirigible balloons of the Santos-Dumont type,

These bags will be pointed at the ends, and, he states, will offer less resistance than one large bag. Strange to say, Governor Woodruff's friends are quiet as to his fuure aspirations and so far as the govenor himself is concerned, he is giving no outward sign that he has any. The talk of a renomination to the gubernstorial blass has subsided, and it is not thought he would care to prolong or repeat his experience with a headstrong legislature. While the Woodruff camp is enveloped in quietness, so far as "future aspirations" are concerned, it is thought the governor might be induced to withhold his veto from any well-backed proposition to send him to congress.

Their Home on Dixwell Avenue.

On the night of the Fourth quite an ssemblage of friends gathered at the Bailey, 689 Dixwell avenue, for a celebration. The balconies were profusely decorated with beautiful Chinese lanterns, which were extended across the sidewalk. Red fire was burned each side of the lawns and illuminated the scene. During the evening selections were renderd on a Victor talking machine from J. E. Bassett's home which was much appreciated by the company. The features of the evening was the living picture of a little two year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bailey standing alone like a little statue with both chubby arms extended holding the flery sparklers, braver and calmer than some of the older ones. He is a child of unusual intelligence and a pet in the neighborhood.

AT THE LOCAL THEATERS

At Poll's.

Devotees of comic opera who have witnessed the production of "Olivette" at Poll's this week have noticed the clever work of Miss Olive Randolph who appears as Velventine, the maid of Olivette. Miss Randolph is a local girl who gained her stage experience in H. W. Savage's "Sho-Gun" company at Wallack's Broadway theater, New York city. She is making a decided hit this week.

Miss Anna Millevard, who is Monague, Capt. De Merrimac's cabin boy, decidedly effective in the part, Miss poetry. Millevard is a former member of the Sultan of Zulu company, appearing in that production as one of the "wives." She makes a pretty cabin boy,

The final bow of the Poli Opera company at Poll's theater will be made next week in Lecocq's rollicking op-era comique, "Girofie-Girofia," one of the brightest, both in comedy and in tuneful music, of all the opera series of this popular organization. The warm friendship engendered by the excellent offerings this capable organization has given to New Haven make it a disappointment, both to the management and to their patrons, to have the Poll favorites leave after their seventh week of signal success, but it is necessary on account of other engagements made some time ago. They will return later for a supplementary season, and will be cordially welcomed by nusic lovers here, when they come ack in August. In "Girofie-Girofia" next week Bertha Davis will have another vivacious prima donna soubrette cole happily sulted to her personality and voice; James McElhern will have judicrous character equally fitted to him, and laughter will be further promoted by the return of Margaret Baxter to cast after several weeks' absence. Other important roles will be appropriately assigned to J. J. Castellanes, Joseph W. Smith, Florence Rother, Edwin W. Lewis and others, with the usual powerful chorus in attend-

We now must enter upon the visionreligion and deffication. Among the numerous Pagan divinities there were none to whose protection the polite arts were so indebted as to the god Apollo. Identifying Apollo with the Sun, mankind, from the harmonious motions of his attending planets, ferred his immediate power and presidency over "the concord of sweet

The picture of Uterpe is obliterated but the poets generally consider the flute as marshalled before us and excite a curithoress of comedy and Melpomene of tragedy. Though authors do not concur in regard of the principal powers and employments of the Muses, they all, ancient and modern, agree that every one of them excels in song. Homer, in his hymn to Apollo, tells us that:

By turns the Nine delight to sing. and in Milton the English Homer's, "Il Penseroso," we read

"Hear the Muses in a ring, Round about Jove's altar sing." The Muses had their terrestrial secndaries. While they were delighting the ears of the gods, the Sirens were charmers of the mortal auditors. The number of these celebrated songstresses, inhabitants of the coast of Sicily, was three. Their names were Parthenope, Lygea and Leucosia. They have been represented under more than one form. By some ancient artists they are exhibited as half-women and half-fish; by others as halfwomen and half-birds. Persuaded by Juno, they emulated the confidence and temerity of Pan, Marsyas and Sienus by vying with heavenly skill. Among the first musicians after Apollo, handed down to us by what may be called fabulous record, is Philammon of Delphos. According to Tatian, a scientific student in music and flourished as a speculatist before the time

The exploits of Amphion, Chiron, Linus, Orpheus and Musaeus are gravely her symbol. Thalia is made the au- osity that can never be gratified. Amphion is one of the sixteen kings of the first Theban musicians upon record. Homer tells us that, to secure the crown he usurped, he enclosed the city but says nothing of the miraculous powers of his lyre or nothing of his having built the wall by virtue of its sound. Pliny says he was the inventor of music and of the cithara.

Chiron was called by Plutarch the Wise Centaur, He was not only a musician but a distinguished astronomer and general scholar. One of his most favored scholars was the Grecian Bacchus who learned from him the revels. orgies, Bacchanalla and other ceremonious worship. As to the time when some of these great musicians lived, it is stated by the learned antiquarian, Archbishop Usher, that Linus flourished 1280 years before Christ and Eusebius included him among the poets who wrote before the time of Moses. There were hundreds of great musllans among the Greeks. They were all credited in history with being capable of moving the emotions of the people with their wonderful music. Among the many, Simonides must be mentioned, a ontemporary of Stesichorus who died, according to the most authentic chronologers, near the end of the fifth century before Christ. There were several poets and musicians of this name but the one born 533 years before Christ was the most illustrious. He was a native of Ceos and was the preceptor of

This distinguished genius lived to his ninetieth year. Such an extraordinary ongevity afforded him the opportunity of personally knowing many of the first characters in antiquity. Xenophon, in his Dialogue upon Tyranny, makes him one of the interlocutors with Hiero, King of Syracuse.

Not the least curious part of the history of Simonides, is, that being fre quently applied to by the victors a the games to write odes in their praise, ed with this fable, which Pope, when he would never gratify their vanity until he had secured the sum for which of the Odyssey, collected as follows: he stipulated. Timotheus, however, was afterwards pardoned and rose to such exalted celebrity that he received from the Epheslans the immense sum of a thousand pieces of gold, as his reward for composing and setting to music a poem in onor of Dlana.

Dorlon, who is entitled to a place among the poetical luminaries, was oraised more on account of his wit than his professional superiority over others, Being in Milo in Egypt and unable to procure a lodging, he inquired of a priest who was sacrificing in a chapel, to what divinity it was dedicated who answered, "To Jupiter and to Neptune." "How should I be able," says Dorlon," to get a lodging in a place where the gods are obliged to lie double."

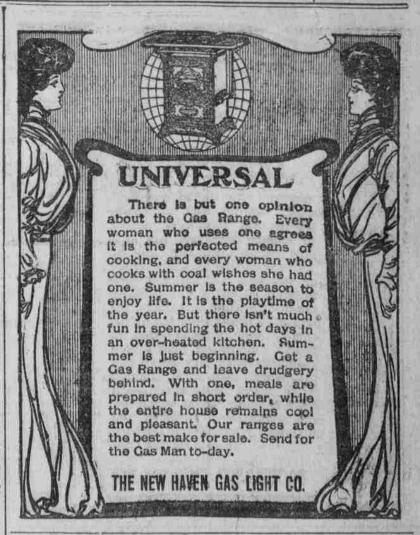

Supping with Nicocreon in the island of Cyrus and admiring a rich cup of gold that was placed on the sideboard "The goldsmith will make you just such another," says the prince, "whenever you please." "He'll obey your orders much better than mine, sir," swered Dorlon," so let me have that and do you bespeak another,"

Upon hearing the description of a empest in the Nauplius of Timotheus. Dorlon said he had seen a better in a ciling caldron.

Being robed of a gouty shoe at a anquet, "The only harm I wish the thief," says he, "is that my shoe may fit him.

Dorion's wit and talents made him welcome guest wherever he went. Philip of Macedon often invited him to his parties of pleasure which he never failed to animate and delight.

It remains now for us to speak of a ady by the name of Lamia. This celebrated female was as much admired for her abilities as a flute player as for her wit and beauty. Lamla was the inughter of Cleanora, mistress to Demetrius Poliorcetes, at whose court she became the object of universal admiration. Can you use a Strong, Sturdy Set of BRAINS?

Grape-Nuts

'I don't believe you can arrange food so that it will go to rebuild and nourish the brain. Grape-Nuts is a most delightful tasting food, but I can't understand how you expect any certain food to be appropriated by any certain part of the body.' A good, earnest skeptic and well worth attention.

Actual results are better than any theory pro and con. Grape-Nuts food is being eaten by millions of people all over the world, and any interested person can satisfy himself by questioning his neighbor as to the result of the use of Grape-Nuts. The testimony is given over and over that after ten days' use there comes a feeling of strength. sturdiness, clearness of intellect and power of the mind that is unmistak-"There's a reason."

Thinking uses up, each day, parts of the filling of the cells in brain, and nature demands albumen and natural phosphate of potash (not from the drug store) to make new the soft jelly-like substance (gray matter) which is used as the filling of these brain cells.

Grape-Nuts contains these elements direct from Mother Nature and prepared in the form of a most delicious and dainty food, practically pre-digested and quickly absorbed into the sys-

He was discharged from the department following his being found in a room on the campus. This time he was found in the blacksmith shop of John F. Tiernan. It is thought that criminal intent was lacking both times and that he was merely muddled from drink, so State's Attorney Williams announced and asked that he be not sentenced to jail on account of his wife and several small children. Helser is 31 years old.

O'Nell Brothers Arrested.

EDWARD P. MERWIN.

Judge Robinson Orders Sale Prominent Business Man in This City for Years Passes Away.

T. P. Merwin of No. 28 College street, eccived the very sad news by telegram yesterday that his brother Edward P. Cases Before the Superior Merwin had died suddenly at the Antlers, Racquet Lake, in the Odirondacks. The dispatch was from Edward P. Merwin, son of the deceased and was dated at the Antlers, and stated that has father passed away early yesterday morning from heart failure, and yesterday issued an order for the sale | that arrangements for the funeral would be made later, Edward P. Merwin was for many years a prominent New Haven business man. During the latter part of his life he was a banker and broker in New York city, his residence being in East Orange, N. J. He was a native of New Haven, a son of Smith Merwin, a mer-chant of high standing and character who was engaged in the merchant tailoring business on Chapel street for a long period, The son, Edward, was educated at the Gen. Russell Collegate and Commercial Institute in the palmy days of that famous institution. When still a youth he served in the dry goods store of the brother T. P. Merwin, on Chapel street, remaining there two or hree years. At his father's desire ho then became associated with his father n the merchant talloring business and on the death of his father continued the business, largely increasing it until arger quarters became necessary. He then leased for a long term of years the ground on Church street where the Mechanics' bank building is now and erected the building occupied by the bank. In this building he occupied the whole of the second floor for from fifteen to twenty years doing a large merchant talloring business, his trade being extensively outside of New Haven as well as in this city, and extending into many states. His brother, Berkley R. Merwin, was associated with him in the business. To further enarge the business it was transferred New York city. After a year or two Edward P. Merwin engaged in the banking and brokerage business at No. 35 Wall street, New York, relinquishing his active interest in the merchant business which for years thereafter was conducted by his brother, Berkley R. Merwin. The latter, a year of two ago retired from active participation in the business which was aken over by a corporation. Edward retired from active connection with he banking and brokerage business about two years ago, his son Edward P. conducting it for a time. The father still retained for a time an office at 35 Wall street, having extensive financial interests For many seasons in late years Mr. Merwin had summered in the Adirondacks. Years ago when in New Haven his favorite resort was the White Mountains, varied occasionally by trips to Europe. He was in the dist year of his age and was born in the double brick building on Court street, next to Music hall, formerly known as the Brunswick house and which was erected by his father and late George B. Rich, a relative by marriage of the family. The house was considered

fine one in the early days of it

history. The deceased married Miss Grace Bishop whose parents resided on State street beyond Cedar Hill. Mr. Bishop being a prominent farmer and business man, Mrs. Merwin and the son Edward P. were with Mr. Merwin in the Adirondacks. The deceased leaves also a daughter, wife of L. Sinclair Colby, a prominent business man residing in East Orange, N. J., where Mr. Merwin bought a fine residence years ago which he had since made his home.

The deceased leaves two brothers, T. P. Merwin of this city, and Berkley R. Merwin, and a sister, Mrs. Lloyd, wife of Samuel Lloyd, cashler of the City bank this city, A sister, Mrs. Charles S. Gray, was killed suddenly by a trolley car near her home in Los Angeles, California, Previous to this sad accident the Merwin family of three brothers and two sisters, had re- it leaped at him, biting his hand. The mained unbroken for a period of half a century.

Mr. Merwin was for several pars a member of the New Haven Grays and dashed into Broadway again, followed when a resident here was an active member of the Dwight Place church. He was a man of high character, sollcitous for the welfare of others, of an agreeable and sympathetic nature and many will mourn his death.
