Our Dress Goods Sale. Seldom before has the game of brag been so audaciously played in Pry Goods advertising in New Haven as it is now. Ladies (to whom this advertising is chiefly addressed) must feel that a very low estimate is put on their judgment if they are expected to believe a tithe of the bombast daily printed in the papers. We will not condescend to any such means of winning trade. We appeal to the judgment and not to the credulity of the Ladies, and we simply ask them to remember the bargains they and not to the credulity of the Ladles, and we simply ask them to remember the bargains they have got at former clearing sales, and to come in and see for themselves what we are doing now. The pri-ces we have put on all our Colored Summer Dress Goods for this sale have not been determined by what the goods cost, but have been fixed at rates that we considered certain to effect a speedy clearance of stock. The reductions have been made on Cashmeres, Momios, Camel's Hairs, Alpacas, Delleiges, Buntings, and all Novelty and Farcy Dress Goods. Linen Dusters.

In our Suit and Cloak Room will be found a cor plete line of Linen Dusters at all prices, each the be value that can be got for the money. Suits, &c.

Yours truly,

From Mr. Richard Case, of Canton

For the past twenty years I was afflicted as a baby, my hearing is restored, and my health has so much improved that I feel like a new man. In fact such a change for the better has been from the bottom of my heart for bringing Dr. Lighthill to Hartford and for directing me to him. I am 64 years of age and have lived in Bartford county nearly all my life, and if the blessings and prayers of an old man are of any avail, the happiness and prosperity of Dr. Lighthill is assured.

Soon after the capture of Port Royal b our naval forces early in the war, an attack upon the peculiar labor system of the South was begun. The field of operations was the Sea Islands of South Carolina. A large number of intelligent young men from the North were sent thither by the freedmen's aid societies and placed in charge of the abandoned plantations. The Government assisted in the work, and as the colored people were unaccustomed to provide for themselves rations were doled out to them, the Government taking in return what cotton they might be able to raise. The negroes were set to work for themselves. At first it was impossible to employ any methods but those to which they were accustomed, but every effort was made to furnish instruction and new ideas and to bring the standard of labor

The production of sea island cotton has almost approached perfection, the amount rising from 103 pounds per acre in 1872, to 400 pounds in 1879. On a prize acre, the yield was 566 pounds last year. The negroes succeed even better than the whites in cultivation, the latter averaging from 200 to 250 pounds per acre, with a profit of $40 to $50. The relation between the races in this district and between employers and employed is what might be expected from the spirit in which the experiment was begun and carried on. the English commander, who made a pleasan remark in relation to the little fellow.

Our ancient townspeople remember the Captain as a fine specimen of the old style of seafaring men. He was short of stature, exeedingly fleshy, and ever rolled through the reets on his sea legs, a pleasant object for umorous contemplation from his bluff, hearty, cheery ways, and downright honesty of expression. His voice was very low and wholly subterranean. No mortal could be found more happy than he. His last words were, "All I have to say is that I have had a good time in this world:"—on attering which he turned over on his side, and in a few monents more had breathed his last. the infirmities of age.

He was ever bubbling up with humor. We remember his droll figure, then about ready remember his droit ingure, then about ready to tumble into his grave, to pass by a group of boys playing marbles on the gravelled walk near his residence on College street, op-posite the site of the church—when he slyly, as if by accident, knocked a marble from its as it by accident, knooked a marble from its place with his cane. And then when he had got about a rod farther on, he gave three peculiar hems which revealed the waggery, the ruling propensity almost on the verge of ie grave.

When he died, and at the great age of 85

his sister, Mrs. Pierpont—grandmother of the late Judge Foster—who was then about 90 years old, was duly informed of the sadevent. Her reply, considering his age, was remarka-ble: "I am not surprised," she said, "poor Elias, he always was a weakly child!" One summer night, in 1832, myself and nother boy, also a grand nephew—one of the twins Huggins—sat up with his mortal remains. The apartment was small on the ground floor, the light feeble, while the body ay before us upon the bed. The windows were open, and as we sat there watching rough the lonely night, some felines were aside pouring forth their infernal cries. and when they ceased we were apprehensive hey would steal up with silent tread, spring rough the window and pounce upon utilate the face of the dead.

The corpse lay stretched upon the bed, overed over with a white sheet, the outlines projecting up under the covering, a ghastly, impressive object. We were alone with the great mystery. Watching with the dead was then an universal custom, and the situation of us two boys, with that ghastly object constantly before us under the shadows, was, with the superstitions of the time, horrible; or the belief in ghosts was then prevalent with he lower strata of our population.

Around the fire, then of wood in an open re-place, little children often sat winter enings, and by the light of the flames lis-ned to awful stories from the domestics intil cold chills ran in successive waves over hem, and they sat shuddering, fearing to ook back over their shoulders at the window. pon the pane, should be seen there glaring

We have been informed that such were the pecuniary obstacles that fell in the way of the rogress of the work, that perhaps it never ould have been completed, but for the busess energy, and wise, economical manage-ent of Mr. Henry Farnam, then a very young man, the engineer of the work. He was conspicuous in the State militia, was Brigadier General and had military command of New Haven in the war of 1812. In his old age he looked upon his former inter-est in military matters as having been little better than child's play. We think he was mistaken. It is educating to young men be-yond the power of words to express to belong to associations, helps them to learn their kind, to know and become known. Capt. Powell had been a well-to-do mer-chant. In his old age misfortune overtook him, and rather than be dependent on friends he voluntarily went to the Town Poor House where in content he passed the remainder o his life like a philosopher as he was. He was an elegant gentleman, and his being a town pauper did not seem at all to affect his social position, for he was gladly received at the ta-ble and homes of his old friends, then our very first people—such as Abraham Bishop, Elias Shipman, etc., with whom he frequently dined. On these occasions his attire was in the old style, with ruffle shirt. He never left the Poor House without his ruffle shirt and

His recent discoveries are of the highest practical importance, rendering treatment so effectual that relief is experienced at once, and permanent cures are often effected in the most stubborn and aggravated cases; and it is one of the happy features of his practice that the applications cause neither pain nor distress, and can be readily administered to the most timid or nervous person. A candid opinion will invariably be given as to the possibilities of a cure, and no case will be accepted for treatment which does not present a reasonable chance for success. THE DRAWING BOOM ENTERTAINMENT The entertainment given at the Opera House last evening in aid of the Dispensary was far superior to the ordinary amateur performance, and rarely is an audience so genuinely pleased and entertained. The Army Worm.

Its Great Ravages on Long Island-Fear ful Devastation—Its Supposed Origin and a Supposed Effectual Remedy—Appearance of the Worm in Connecticut to a Slight Extent. The Long Island plague of the army worm continues without abatement, and the pest has also made its appearance at Madison and down near Stamford. The worm is in great force near Northport, and as on the shores of the Great South Bay is making havon devouring everything in its line of march. Some central parts of the island have escaped thus far. A close inspection shows that the worms do not feed at night, as some have thought. but in the afternoon and evening, and at about three o'clock in the afternoon the selections marched down Chapel street to ground begins to be literally black with them. Early in the morning few are to be seen, but claims the first campaign flag—Garfield and Here a handsome flag was run across the by turning up the sod, clumps and other places which they can crawl under, they will dent, James A. Garfield. For Vice Presi- be found in gangs of from twenty-five to fifty. So far trees and shrubbery and potato vines and clover to some extent have escaped, but rye and wheat fields are stripped so com mains. Corn is cut off even under the earth so that it is feared even the roots will be devoured, and timothy and "red top" are eater meadows would not leave them more arid. Thirty acres of rye in one place were com pletely stripped in 60 hours, and now the stalks are dying in the ground. The field looks as if ripening for the harvest, but at the head only the chaff remains. Even the beards have been eaten up.

Where the worms come from is a great subject of inquiry. One authority believes that the moth deposits its eggs in the fall, and that if there had been an early frost or a severe winter the worms would have been killed in their includent state. The deposit had in their incipient stage. The deposit, he says, is made at the junction of the second leaf in the formation of the first joint, as with grain insects generally. He argues that where rye and wheat were sowed late the second leaf was not yet forming when the moths were laying their eggs, and in proof of this points to wheat fields which were sowed late, which have escaped almost scot free from the worm. The largest of the worms are now burying themselves in the earth, having apparently finished their mission, but there is another crop coming on.

The great desideratum, a remedy for the worms, has been sought for most earnestly. It is stated that an effectual remedy has been found in fighting them thus far. This is to dig deep trenches dividing the field, to be protected from the one already attacked. The tected from the one already attacked. The deeper the trench the better, and it will be improved by pits or wells dug still deeper With these trenches and pits it is claimed: boy and a broom can stop an army, but it is well to keep fresh "red top" saturated with Paris green or London purple in the bottom so that the worms may eat thereof and die.

POLITICAL. The Greenback Convention-Weaver and

Chambers the Ticket. CHICAGO, June 11.-In the Greenback labor convention last night, after the nomination of Messrs. Weaver, Campbell. Butley and Wolf for the Presidency, Representative Yocum, of Pennsylvania, placed in nominaion Hendrick B. Wright, of his State. Wiliam R. Dale, of Tennessee, who set himself up as a phenomenon, as the only living Conderate private in the United States, nomiated Thomas H. Murch, of Maine, but, as e was on the floor of the convention, he delined the honor. Wisconsin presented the ame of Edward P. Allis, of that State. The all of the States from Alabama to Wisconsin was seized on by delegates to speak on every uestion connected with the Greenback Laoor party and the various candidates. At 3:25 a. m. it was moved that the convention proceed to ballot for a candidate for Presilent of the United States. An informal ballot was first taken, the result of which was nnounced at 4:10 a. m., just as daybreak UNTIL January 1st, a comfortable suite of seven Rooms, completely furnished (except linen) for housekeeping, in a nice, quiet locality; if desired; references required and possession 24th inst. Inquire at 90 CHURCH STREET, posters were heard. It stood: Weaver, 241; Wright, 1261; Dillaye, 119; Butler, 5; Chase, 89; Allis, 41; Campbell, 21. Before the announcement of the first ballot t became evident that Weaver had a clear marom every part of the convention to make the nomination unanimous, and just as the sun hone through the eastern windows the reout any motion his nomination was made nanimous. In the midst of a perfect panemonium of shouting delegates, the nomi-ations of candidates for Vice President were nade. General Horace P. Sargent, of Massachusetts, presented the name of General A. M. West, of Mississippi; E. J. Chambers, of Texas, the candidate of the St. Louis Green-and West 311 votes, . General Chambers' nomination was then made unanimous, them in a more formal manner of his acceptance. After passing the usual vote of the reports are rather meagre as yet. It is General Arthur Welcomed Home. New York, June 11.—General Chester A Arthur, Republican nominee for Vice Presig lent, arrived at the Grand Central depo hortly after 7 o'clock this evening from Chicago. A large delegation of Republican poliicians were on hand and tendered the General their hearty congratulations on his good fortune. General Arthur will be serenaded at his residence to-morrow evening, and early next week a banquet will be given him at th Union League Club.

FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

SENATE.—The bill to authorize the State f Ohio, Indiana and Illinois to commence and prosecute suits against the United States in the Supreme Court for tclaims on account of sales of public lands was passed. The Chair announced the following members for the Senate of the joint commission provided by the Yorktown monument bill: J. Rawlins, Dawes, Anthony, Kernan, Randolph, Eaton, Wallace, Whyte, Ransom, Butler, and Hill of Georgia.

The regular order was taken up, being the Kellogg-Spofford resolutions. Mr. Hill (Ga.) said he proposed to reply to the remarks made by Hampton and Butler and other Senators on the Democratic side. He was not surprised at the Republican advocacy of Kellogg, for they believed that the Packard Legers for the Senate of the joint commission

He was several times interrupted by Sena-tors Butler and Hampton, and both of them replied to his speech.

The deficiency bill was reported. After a brief discussion of the Mexican pension bill the Senate at 6:20 adjourned. House.-The debate on the marshals bill House.—The debate on the marshals bill was continued to day at some length. Mr. Hawley arraigned the Democratic party as having done nothing during the present session, and as having promised to raise the tariff and pass the funding bill, and as not doing either. The country, he said, would hold that party responsible for this.

Mr. Harris, of Virginia, said that the Republican party in opposing this bill were going back on the record of their standard bearer, General Garfield. He sent up and had read an amendment offered by Mr. Garfield to the army bill in March last, which was identical with the pending bill, and also had read a speech made by Garfield on that occasion, in which he said he would support the measure if it was put in as an independent measure and not as a rider to the appro-

Kelley said he at one time supposed Garfield was not in favor of tariff, but he learned bet-ter, and no man who would read his late re-port on the tariff bill would doubt his sym-port on the tariff bill would doubt his sympathy with protective tariff.

At this point Mr. Carlisle sent up and had read an extract from a speech made by Kelley in 1871, in which he spoke in favor of free trade. The reading of this extract was greeted with loud applause by the Democrats, but the Republicans were not behindhand with their applause. When Mr. Cox proposed to have read a speech he had selected, Mr. Robinson said the speech had already been read. Mr. Cox replied that this was another speech. Mr. Robeson desired to thank the gentleman for having these speeches read. He knew while wrong fades away the truth endures forever, but the gentleman must he approaching train.

(Laughter.) Mr. Cox—The gentleman refers to the rubbish that surrounds the column. Irrespect-ive of my honorable friend's services as Secretary of the Navy everybody knows that the rubbish is not on this side. Mr. Cox was interrupted by Messrs. Keifer, Conger and others, but he persisted in having Garfield's speeches read. He maintained that Garfield's position was such that those who voted against it were his enemies. This being the opening gun of the campaign in the House the debate excited much attention and inter-

An Extraordinary Suicide New York, June 11.-This afternoon well dressed negro, about 30 years old, ran to the middle of the pavement at the corner of Wall street and Broadway, as a heavily loaded truck was feoming along. Before any one could guess his intention he had laid down in the street, and in a moment all that was left of his head was a shred of skin that hung from the nape of his neck, the wheels having passed over his head, flattening out his skull and leaving a disgusting mass of hair, bones, braius and gore on the cobble stones. The truck was loaded with more than five tons of salt. The unfortunate man was identified as Samuel Ford, a sailor from nteresting Reports and Statistics Charitable Work. at the Central office, No. 47 Court street, with a good number in attendance. In the absence of Judge Wayland from the city Mr. S. G. Thorn occupied the chair, and Mr. E. E. Mix was appointed secretary pro tem. in place of Professor Honey, who was necessarily absent from the meeting. The committee in charge reported the en-agement of Mr. Jabez Scott as bookkeeper at the Central office, and this engagement having been approved the Board now have the services of two men, Mr. Seelye and Mr. Scott, for its permanent work; the one as investigating agent constantly at work among vestigating agent constantly at work among already. he poor (in connection with the work already being done by the charitable societies of our city, most of whom are now represented on the Board), and the other always on duty at To combat this tendency to premature decline, no cuty, most or whom are now represented on strengthening properties of MALT BITTERS. They enrich the blood, perfect digestion, stimulate the liver and kidneys, arrest ulcerative weaknesses, and purity and vitalize every function and process of the femule system. case of trouble or distress that does not require outside work. This arrangement is made not only to increase the efficiency of the Central Office of Charities and ensure speedy and thorough attention, in the name of the benevolent people of the city, to every case of misfortune brought to its notice, but also to enable Rev. Mr. Mossman, as city missionary, to devote his time more fully to the constant visiting of the large number of families and persons now known to him through the Central office or otherwise, who are either almost or entirely destitute of pas-toral care. As chairman of the committee in charge, Mr. Mossman will still retain the general direction of the work of the Board; but as he is now under engagement by the Board of City Missions, and receives no pay-ment from the Board of Charities, it seemed ecessary to make some arrangement, as has ow been made at his request, that would allow each part of this common work the best opportunity for development. Mr. Moss-man's office hours will be as usual from 9 to 11 a. m., at 47 Court street, and any person in trouble of body or of soul, and any other who are willing to take some part in the work among the poor and unfortunate people of our city, can consult with him at that time, with Mr. Seelye from 2 to 3 p. m, and with Mr. Scott at any time during office hours, 9 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 5 p. m.

The annual meeting of the Board of Charities for the election of officers and the hearing of reports of the work for the past year (ending June 1) was voted to be held next week Thursday evening at the Center church chapel, further notice of which will be given through the papers. At that time there will also be presented a report of the receipts and expenses of the second year of the work of the Board, and an auditing committee, con-sisting of Messrs. S. G. Thorn and R. E. Rice were appointed to examine the books of the office and report at that time. Attention was called to the constant need of additions to the special relief fund, the coan fund, the Central wardrobe and the storeroom, and interesting incidents were mentioned to show methods of using these various means of relief in connection but without interference with the existing benevolent work of the city. New visitors to the poor and new sustaining members (subscrib-ing at least $1 per month) are needed, and all who are willing to help in any way will be welcomed to a part in the work of the Board. welcomed to a part in the work of the Board.

The Court Record.

Court of Common Pleas—Judge Harrison This court came in yesterday morning at 10 at 10 o'clock, when the case of Sutton vs. Hollister, trustee, will be tried. A bar meeting will be held on Tuesday afternoon, when there will be a re-assignment of cases.

City Court-Criminal Side-Judge Pardee Daniel Dougherty, theft, $5 fine, $10.42 costs; Charles Hofacker, breach of the peace, $10 fine, $6.87 costs; Patrick Nolan, same, ntinued to June 14.

Justice Court. The case of Charles L. Ullman vs. Augu-Huebner was heard before Justice Wood in the Exchange building yesterday. Ullman, who is a young lawyer, claimed fifty dollars damages for being ejected from Huebner's saloon on Union street. A friend of his was jected because he would not pay for drinks, and when he went for an explanation he in turn was unceremoniously removed from the remises. Strouse and Ullman for plaintiff, acher for defendant.

City Court Notes. In the City Court yesterday morning Danel Dougherty was fined $5 and costs for tealing two dollars from Herman Gonnell, a aloon keeper. Charles Hofacker, 19 years of age, was fined $10 and costs for assaulting Thomas Rourke last Wednesday. It appeared in evi-dence that there was an ill feeling between the two regarding a former business transac-tion, and the accused took the law into his
