For the Pianoforte. By Nathan Richardson. Price

It is generally conceded that this is the most perfect, as well as the most successful Pianoforte Instruction Book ever published. Having been many times revised, it may be considered as entirely free from errors. Having been repeatedly enlarged, it is remarkably full and complete.

Many thousands of teachers have used the book for years, and still continue to use it, as the best. Sales are constant, and very large. Hichardson's New Method for the Plassoforte is the title. Order it by the whole title, and accept no other book, since this is the original and true "Richardson."

Saturday Morning, Nov. 13, 1880. GENERAL GRANT ON MEXICO.

General Grant's talk about Mexico with number of the leading railroad men of the United States at Delmonico's, Thursday evening, was interesting, sensible and sagacious He had two objects in visiting Mexico last winter. One was to again see the country where he had fought before he was famous and the other was to discover how relations of friendship and commerce might be established between that country and the United States. He saw that we were large consumers of tropical products and that the consumption was increasing in two ways, first by an increase in our population and then again by an increase in the wealth of our inhabitants. All those products we derive from countries that trade but very little with us, countries that collect their revenues to a large degree by levying duties on their exports, which we have to pay, and we are forced to ship our products to a European market to get the sterling exchange with which to pay these bills. General Grant believed and was convinced after his visit to Mexico that that country was capable of producing all that we have to import now of this character and a large surplus to provide for our increased nsumption. She is a neighboring republic with institutions like our own, and her wants, which must be supplied from abroad, are just such as we could supply. If Mexico were developed, so as to have an incentive to cultivate her soil, she would want agricultural im plements and many such articles. As the people became wealthy they would want carriages and wagons, all sorts of machinery, all of the rolling stock for railroads, harness, boots and shoes, clothing and a thousand and one other articles we could furnish, so that we could pay largely for what we received in the produce of our manufactories, thereby adding to the commerce of our country and benefitting the two republics alike.

General Grant found the people of Mexico very much interested in the development of heir own resources, but he found some hos tility to a connection with the United States on account of the unfortunate occurrence many years ago, when the Americans settled Texas, which State then seceded from the Mexican republic, and a war followed, which esulted in the loss of still more territory. There was a feeling among some that if Mexico had much to do with the United States now she would be in danger of constantly losing territory. To this General Grant very properly American Anti-Slavery Society in Philadeland sensibly replied that slavery being dead, phia in 1833, and was a delegate to the fawe have homogeneous institutions in the now dependent upon the acquisition of terri- other female delegates, she was refused adtory for the purpose of maintaining its insti- mission on account of her sex. He said further that if there was Among her published works are "Sermons to any danger whatever of the United States Medical Students" and "A Discourse on ever wanting to take territory from our neighbors, the best method in the world to ecure themselves against such a result would be to cultivate friendly and commercial rela tions with us and not to seek to go abroad to establish relations with nations beyond the seas, keeping aloof from their neighbors. That might lead to hostilities and hostilities might lead to the acquisition of territory even were the people not in favor of it at the time. These views seemed to be very favoraly received, as they deserved to be. ailroads in their country to develop it, and ome of the capitalists of the United States are ready to build them if they can "see any noney" in the enterprise. General Grant thinks that people who may start to build railroads there with the expectation of doing any considerable portion of the work with the subsidies they receive from Mexico will be very much disappointed, After the railroads are built and the country has had time to develop as a consequence of hese roads, then the country will in all probability be rich so that she can pay. But at idies to be used in the building of these oads. If there is anything incoming from hat source it is something that will have to be waited for. The money will have to be furnished by the builders of the roads, and they will have to wait for the development of the country for their subsequent returns. His advice would be to get a right of way with-out charge, exemption from taxation and the introduction of all material used for the construction of the road free from duty for a certain number of years, have the entire control of fixing tariffs, etc., after it was built, and let the government come in only when the road paid more than ten per cent. over cost, and say how the surplus over ten per cent

Lucretia Mott, whose death was announced yesterday, was one of the most famous wonen of her time. She was born in Nantucket on the 3d of January, 1793. Her maiden name was Coffin. When eleven years old. her parents removed to Boston, where she went to school, finishing her education at a young ladies' boarding school in Dutchess ounty, N. Y., in which, when only fifteen ears old, she became a teacher. In 1809 she joined her parents, who had removed to Philadelphia, and in 1811, two years later, vas married to James Mott. She was then in her nineteenth year. Her husband went into partnership with her father, Mr. Coffin, and Mrs. Mott again turned her attention to educational matters. In 1817 she took charge of a school in Philadelphia, and in 1818 began to preach. She made extended pilgrimages through New England, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and parts of Virginia, advocating Quaker principles and waging at the same time a vigorous warfare against the evils of intemperance and slavery. They began dredging thirty feet from the shore, and scooped out a hole 100 feet long and 40 feet deep. Here they found the bow of a vessel whose timbers were pearly all of a vessel whose timbers were hearly all rotted away. It hay apparently at an angle of forty degrees. By removing about forty feet more of mud, and going down twenty feet further they reached nearly the center of the wreck. Pieces of spar, ship timbers and pieces of live oak plank have all been brought to the surface by the dredger. The company has two divers on the spot and they report has two divers on the spot, and they report that the wreck of a vessel at least one hun-dred feet long lies buried in the mud at a ter. Yesterday the dredge became fastened in something, and in trying to raise it the chain was broken. When a Herald reporter arrived a diver was preparing to go down. He was let down fifty-five feet and remained under water an hour and a half. When he came up he reported that the dredge had be-come fastened in what appeared to him to be a large gun, the point of which was fast in the stiff mud. In proof of what he said he the stiff mud. In proof of what he said he brought up iron scales which he prodded off with his sounding rod. Mr. Chapin and Mr. Pike are quite sanguine that they have really struck Kidd's vessel, the gun seeming to them proof sufficient. Mr. Tasker, the engineer, says that the mud is all a deposit, and he thinks the amount found would readily accumulate in the time which has elapsed since Kidd was captured. Mud to the amount of 6,500 cubic yards has been removed.

The Rev. Charles A. Gilbert, whose name is well known among the Episcopalians of this city, died of yellow fever at Key West, Fla., on the 8th inst. Mr. Gilbert, who was weakened with disease in the midst of his parish labors, visited many of those who were suffering with the fever. In September he visited his mother, Mrs. Mary H. Gilbert, who lives with her daughter at 49 West 35th street, New York. Although he was a delegate to the convention of Episcopal clergymen which assembled here in October, and notwithstanding the fact that to go back to his labors among the sufferers with the fever was, in his weak condition, almost certain to result in his contracting the disease, he returned. In a very few days he was taken with the fever. His illness was

Charles A. Gilbert was a son of Jesse Gil bert, formerly a prominent resident of New Haven, Conn. He was born in 1843, and was graduated from the Episcopal Theological Seminary in this city. During his residence here he acted as superintendent of the Sunday school of Dr. Anthon's church. After his graduation he went to Joliet, III., thence to Gainesville, Fla., on account of failing health. After a brief residence there his health was fully restored, and he went next to Key West, where he assumed charge of the largest parish in the State. In addition to this he had accepted the office of superintendent of public schools.

Mr. Gilbert was of fine personal appearance, tall, well formed, with black hair at eyes, heavy moustache and clear complexion. His brother, Rev. Frank B. Gilbert, also an Episcopal clergyman, died about two months ago of consumption at Marianna, Fla.—New York Sun.

Talk is Cheap,

And Paper is Gentle.

You can print almost anything on it, but the wise and close buyer is not deceived by claptrap of this sort. They know that Frank talks reason only, discourses sound logic, and therefore they read his advertisement with care, and go and buy his goods. For the last 4 years Frank has made it a point to purchase all his goods for cash, and you can hardly have an idea what an enormous advantage this gives him over any of his competitors; in fact, he buys from 16 to 25 per cent, cheaper than most anybody else. Besides, he occupies his own store in Frank's Building and has no rent to pay, while his neighbors are saddled with store rents all the way from $1,500 to $8,000. Frank can afford to sell cheap.

Unfortunately Mr. Baycott, who wanted a score at most of northern men lives, caused the greatest consternation. The report spread with lightning rapidity, and in a short time all business was suspended and hundreds of people flocked to the scene of the disaster. The facts are as follows: Previous to 6 o'clock the two night foremen, John Campbell and John Wier, came to the surface and reported the pit all safe, adding that they had not known the workings so free from gas for some time. At 5 o'clock the day foremen descended, among whom were Angus McKay, one of the missing, and A. D. McKenzie, who being fortunately on the north side escaped. Descending the pit they saw that the lamps were all safe, gave them out to the men as they came down the pit, and told them everything was safe. The men proives, caused the greatest consternation. side would, if not killed by the explosion, have very shortly died from the after damp and afterward a series of explosions the same as occurred at Drummond. This calamity would have prevented explorations and rendered it impossible to secure the bodies for weeks, perhaps months. Meanwhile a great number of the men working on the north side of the pit being warned of the disaster by the unusual concussion of air escaped by way of the cage pit which communicates with the Foord by a tunnel. About this time the men who had arrived at the bottom of the Foord shaft, some two or three of whom were injured, were hoisted to the surface. At this time, half-past seven o'clock, James Hudson, the manager, his son Joseph, underground manager, Robert Simpson, manager of the Drummond mines, who arrived from Westville, had assembled at the pit head and were holding a consultation. It was now too made by Samuel S. Morey and Jas. O'Brien, alias Lindsay, alias Barry, formed the chief topic of conversation in political circles this norning, and the general impression was that they had been justly dealt with in the treatment they had received. Their perjured tesimony was denounced on all sides. Yet there is no doubt that their confessions in full have not been given to the public. For three hours this morning the office of the district attorney was practically deserted, all the principal prosecutors of the perjured witnesses being ton, were destroyed by fire early this mornwere holding a consultation. It was now too patent that a great calamity had occurred, off in search of somebody or something. Toand it was believed that thirty to thirty-five day before the Grand Jury to corroborate the caped with their lives. step, and others of their fellows kept watch and ward over the stable and grounds. Nearly three weeks of painful excitement had made but slight change in Baycott's family. His wife and daughter live under circumstances which would drive many mad, and this combative land agent and farmer himself maintains a belligerent attitude. The gray head and slight figure is bowed, but by no means in submission; on the contrary, never was Baycott's attitude more defiant. It is only by skillful subterfuge that he can get a shirt washed for his outer, or a loaf of bread on my own responsibility, I gave them my personal check for $150 on the Park National bank. Morey gave me a receipt in full for the check. If I had given them a draft on the treasurer they could not have had it cashed that night. Afterward, when I saw one of the committee, I presented the bill and received the money for the check I had given them. That is all I know about this matter."

The decision of Judge Davis in the Phil case is to be given to-morrow morning, and is looked forward to with deep interest.

The Democratic Committee Going Back on Its Dupes. New York, Nov. 12 .- The executive con mittee of the National Democratic committee held its first meeting to-night at No. 138 campaign of the committee, the following chairman ; W. L. Scott, W. W. Armstrong, A. S. Hewitt, Frederick O. Prince, Outerbridge Harsey, Alvah W. Sulloway and Bradley W. Smalley. After the transaction of auditing of a large number of bills, the com. mittee adopting the following:

auditing of a large number of bills, the committee adopting the following:

In response to inquiries the National Democratic committee make the following statement as to the so-called Morey letter:

First. neither the committee nor any sub-committee thereof have ever taken any action in reference to the letter. Second, it was first called to the attention of the chairman of the committee on the night before its publication in Truth, on the 20th of October. Third, that the chairman therefore requested Mr. Smalley, a member of the committee, to examine the letter, but permission to do so was refused at the office of "Truth. Fourth. that no member of the committee ever saw the letter or any copy or portion thereof until after its publication or was in anywise concerned therein, or gave any savice in reference thereto. Fifth, Mr. Hart, the publisher of Truth, brought the original letter to headquarters, Fifth avenue, on the afternoon of October 20, where it was seen for the first time by any member of the committee, and then examined by several members. All those who are familiar with the handwriting of General Garrield came to the conclusion that the letter was genuine. Sixth, the committee decided to purchase a reasonable number of electrotypes of a fac-simile witch had already been propared by Truth. Seventh, no denial having come from General Garrield came to the conclusion that the letter was genuine.
