That nothing may be lost the sawdust is distilled in large retorts and the oil extracted, every onnce of which finds ready sale.

The need has long been felt of some con trivance to help stop steam vessels after the engines have been reversed. One recently tried in France is a cable to which are attached a series of canvas cones that open by the action of the water. A test of it with vessel steaming at thirteen knots is reported to have resulted in stopping her in seven seconds, and within a space of thirty feet, while the simple reversal of her engines uneccompanied by the use of the cable could only stop her in thirty-four seconds, and rithin three hundred and fifty feet. The following was issued yesterday:

THE STATE HOUSE VOTE.

To the Taxpayers and Voters of New Haven.
You are to vote on December 5 whether to repair the old State House or pull if down. We ask you to vote the enclosed ballot for repairs. The State House is the largest public building in town, and cord not be replaced to-day for $100,000. It was well built and is in sound condition inside. The walks are solid and strong and the ragged look of the marble steps and facings of the basement is disamply to the total neglect of ordinary repairs for twenty years. The city already needs more accommodations for its public offices and departments, and the city school district needs more for its industrial schools, night schools and the enlargement of the High school. The State House can be fitted for any of these uses and made to look better than it ever did for $25,000. To pull it down and grade over the site would require the moving of so many loads of heavy innterial that it would probably cost at least $10,000.

These facts are shown by the different official reports to the city government on the State House and by the published opinions of our leading builders and architects. In our judgment to pull it down would be a gross waste of public property.

We should not hesitate to repair it any more than we do to repair our own houses. Every room in it is needed for public uses, and can be occupied for them the moment it is made to look as it should, by these outside repairs.

Vote the ballot printed "For repairs of State House, (second proposition.")

It puts me all out of patience with those who do advocate its destruction; to be charitable, I think they must be out of their heads, or have some personal axe to grind which my poor eyesight fails to see, for I don't think there is a city in the United States but would rejoice to have located in its public square just such a building, even in its dilapidated condition, and would not have acted like a lot of school boys, as is be-The New Havens Lose Their First ing done now, but would have raised money and had it repaired long ago. I am forced to the conclusion that in the cause of the advocates for its destruction there is a "cat in the meal" that the masses do not see. There seems to be no force in the argument we do not need it, for what wiser or grander thing could our city do than repair it, spending $25,000 or $30,000, which our first-class $25,000 or $30,000, which our hist-class masons and joiners say it can be done for, and put it under the control or give it to the Grand Army of the Republic, thereby fulfilling our word to the noble men who sacrificed health, life and property in the late war, for when they enlisted we virtually promised they could have anything almost for the asking. In doing this we would do no more than other cities, from the fact that while they erect a monument we erect a monument on

I feel proud of my position in New Haven, situated as I am where I can gaze down upon the busy marts and bazaars of trade; where I can behold the steady growth of Yale college, its increase of fine buildings, and the pranks of the students. I have seen much mischief done on the college campus, and for that matter within my own portals. I feel sollemn matter within my own portals. I feel solemn too: solemn, because I live among graves. Near me lies the dust of one of the regicides who sentenced Charles I to the scaffold, and close by is the dust of innumerable of the early fathers and mothers of this town, and I have heard that under my very feet lie the graves of many more of them. I owe no grudge to Yale despite the fact that its presi-dent wants me pulled down and most of the professors say "amen" accordingly. I rejoice in Yale's prosperity; but like one of our great heroes I simply say, "Let us have peace." I want no occasion for a requiem over me, nor for the exclamation, "Peace to its ashes!"

Sale At Lewis', 840 Chapel Street.
Although crowds have filled the establishment of T. C. Lewis, 840 Chapel street, for the past week, there is at the present time no diminution in numbers drawn to that fa-mous store. This is not to be wondered at, as the bargains there are genuine. Every article has been marked way down and the article has been marked way down and the people know that they can visit Lewis' store and save money. The goods offered at greatly reduced prices include a fine line of neckwear, this year's importation, gloves of the best make, choice underwear, dressing robes, silk umbrellas, canes, etc., etc. The force of assistants has been doubled, yet the mers keep them constantly busy in at endance upon them.

Carlisle was put in nomination by Mr. Cox, of New York, and Thomas B. Reed by Mr. Cannon, of Illinois. At the request of the clerk Messrs. Randall, Mills, Long and McKinley took their places at the clerk's desk to act as tally keepers and the roll was again called. The vote resulted as follows: Total number of votes cast 313; for Carlisle 153, for Reed 148 for Exempt of Pagnaylyania. 148, for Brumm of Pennsylvania 2. Of the four independents Anderson of Iowa voted for Carlisle; Nicholls of North Carolina and mith of Wisconsin for Brumm; Hopkins of Virginia did not vote. The clerk thereupon leclared Mr. Carlisle to be the duly elected speaker and that gentleman was escorted to the Speaker's desk by Messrs. Cox and Reed amid loud applause. The oath of office having been administered by Mr. Kelly of Pennsylvania, the Speaker rapped the House to order and made a long address thanking the House for the distinguished favor conferred upon him. In the course of his remarks Mr. Carlisle said: There has scarcely ever been a time in our history then the continued prosperity of the country de-ended so largely upon legislation in Congress as see for the reason that the dangers which it this time threaten the commercial

To the thousands who are teaching in the South the things which the people of the North are doing are valuable. All these people wish for is a chance that they may rise to a better and higher life, educationally and religiously. John Tiackasin, a Sioux student from Standing Rock, Dakota, was introduced by H. B. Frissell. The latter first related of a recent visit he had to that part of the country and drew the contrast of a former visit. He told of the improvements that had taken place between the two visits. They were being taught more day by day. The training which a few of them had received at these industrial schools is showing itself They are getting so that they can build houses, raise crops, etc., like the white man. He referred to Mr. Tiaokasin, who had graduated from one of the schools and was goin back to teach his fellow Indians. He had bee

Many have left our (the Hampton) school to go forth as teachers. The best class of men in the South are desirous of having these people educated and regard it necessary for the good of the country. The negro wants to be educated, but he hasn't the means. I appeal to you, as one who has seen educated at one of these schools, to continue to support them. You are surrounded by luxuries while we know nothing but poverty and ignorance. The outlook is bright. A great work has already been ac-complished, but a greater one will be. You are doing a great work for the elevation of our people and for Christ. General S. C. Armstrong, principal of the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute, which is devoted to the negro and Indian races, also addressed the audience. The In-dians are not weakening, but are gaining. They are more ameanable to Christian work than is supposed. They say they know God, but not Christianity. No one outside of Christianity stands on so high a pinnacle as groes were anxious to be educated. The South is paying $5,000,000 to support these schools, the North $1,000,000 to help keep them up. The teachers sent out from these schools organize Sunday schools as well. The work of the redemption of the negro race will go on if these schools are kept up. We want you to help us in this. The meeting was highly interesting throughout.

A beautiful monument has just been erected in this cemetery. It is one of the most beautiful in the cemetery. It was gray granite about seven feet long by five in width. The sub-base is heavily molded and bears the family name, "Watkinson," in large raised letters. This is surmounted by a large, elegantly polished die surmounted by a richly carved and ernamental cap, the whole surmounted by an exquisite statue representing memory. The figure is in a graceful sitting posture; the expression of the face, the attitude and the drapery are admirably done. The face of the figure is admirably done. The face of the figure slightly inclined and resting upon one hand, in the other hand is a wreath of the most beautiful Carrara marble. On one side of the sarcophagus is carved the name of George Irving Watkinson, so well remembered as one of Yale's famous football men, who died a year ago so deeply lamented. The stone also commemorates the memory of two younger sons. The monument was executed by our townsmen, the Messrs. Phillips &

The stock market to-day was firm to strot hough only fairly active throughout the day with the exception of a reaction toward noon occasion y an attack upon the coal stocks, induced by th Washington advices that the President would rec ommend the placing of iron and coal on the fre list. The settlement of the French presidential crisis induced a more complacent feeling among foreign investors. The foreign purchases were specially noticeable in St. Paul, Union Pacific, Lake Shore Eric and Louisville and Nashville, all of which made material advances. Lackawanna was the special weak spot of the day, being not so well supported as Reading, which bore with it the brunt of the bear attack, but its first loss is entirely insig nificant and the latter is unchanged. There was pecial strength displayed in Pullman and the lickslivers and all made advances in excess e rose in the strong stocks.
