The BEHR Piano is so superbly complete in every attribute that it assumes the position unquestioned of an ideal instrument. It is a revelation in its way and marks the taking of a forward stride in plane making that was not deemed pessible until the appearance of this instrument of extraordinary attributes. The BEHR lifts the plane occupied by the absolutely perfect plane to lis own level, and that level is far beyond what it was a few years ago. To buy a Plane before becoming familiar with the wondrous beauty and power of the BEHR instrument's tones, the rare symmetry of its proportions, the case and precision of its action and the great advantages of its wonderful patented improvements, would be to commit a grave error.

When will the cry of the brakemen be seard? Ever since railroads were first used hese humble workers have been maimed or killed with great frequency, and until lately without much protest. But during the last two or three years there have been occasional protests, strengthened by the knowledge that here are inventions which if adopted by the railroads would do away almost entirely with the wounding and killing of brakemen. The writer once asked a prominent railroad man ager why they were not adopted. His reply was that it would cost too much. We suppose it is found cheaper to get new brakemen than new brakes and couplers. The brutality of this needs no illustration.

Moved by the dangers of their work ten housand brakemen have petitioned the Interstate Commerce commission that the use of automatic brakes and couplers on freight ears be made compulsory on the railroad companies of the country. "Automatic brakes and couplers," says the petition, "are practicable, no one would be injured, and many lives and limbs would be saved by their adoption." This is unquestionably true, and the petition of the brakemen ought to be supplemented by such support from the press, the pulpit and other influences that the railroad companies would be shamed into many lives and limbs would be saved by present situation is nothing less than shock-The separate school question is a "burn-ing" one in Manitoba. Mr. Smart, a mem-Not mutual: "I have a little poem here ber of the lecal government, has just been and I want to see the editor," said the long-haired stranger at the door of the sanctum telling people what the situation is. He showed that the returns of the various school "Is that so now?" said the office boy, mu districts gave the number of Roman Catholic school-children at 4,300, the non-Catholic at 18.000; the Roman Catholic or separate chools number 59 with 107 teachers, the public schools 495 schools with 687 teachers, yet the separate schools get one-fifth of the provincial grant; that is $22,210, or at the rate of $376 each, while the public schools get the remainder, $97,749, at the rate of $197 each. Mr. Smart further charges that the Roman Catholics overstate the number of their teachers, citing as evidence the case of the convent at Brandon, entered as a separate school, which he declares on his own knowledge has but 30 scholars, with an average atendance of 20, yet it is represented that it cholars, a manifest absurdity. Mr. Smart's timate of relative school taxation of Roman Catholics and Protestants in Manitoba is $4.07 per pupil for Roman Catholies and $12.03 for Protestants. This is certainly not fair. The Winnipeg Sun hits the nail on the head when it eays: In principle there is no possible defense for separate schools for Roman Catholics, and there are no excepional circumstances existing in Manitoba to suggest any departure from a wholesome rule This fact, if closely inquired into, should be recognized by all classes of the community and misconceptions prevented. Were compulsory attendance upon the state schools denanded there might be room for complaint on the part of the minority, but so long as hese schools are undenominational, and inerference is attempted with the religious faith of no child, all should be expected and should expect to contribute to their support.

We see nothing in all this that would justify the cry of religious persecution. EDITORIAL NOTES.

Gifu is the place to go to if you care e, in all its perfection, one of the oldest extant forms of piscatory craft. To see the ishing at all you must be there between May and October, which are the limits of the season. To see it to full advantage you should choose a time when the river is free from turbidity, and when there is no moonlight-the darker the night the better. Further, if you are wise, you will take care to see it after the manner of the country and in the company of a pleasant party of Japanese. That is how I saw it a month ago, and what I saw I now proceed to tell: It was but a short drive from our inn a Bifu to the riverside tea house that served as the real starting point of the expedition Embarking there after nightfall in a roomy

A contributor to the September number of Scribner proves from an examination of the figures standing for the entire passenger traffic in the United States for 1837 that a the barge is brought to rest at a convenient place in mid-channel, there to await the ar-rail before being killed or 12,000,000 before being injured. It is evidently safer to trave; than to stay at home.

The Rev. Hugh O. Pentecost, who is somewhat known in this region, is reported as speaking thus in his discourse Sunday: "If I knew a burglar was in my house at night I would go to him with a light, unarmed, and talk to him as I would to a friend whom I desired to help. If he then desired to take my goods I would make no protest, nor would I cause his arrest. I would follow him to the door and invite him to call again." Broth-I cause his arrest. Perhaps the best argument sgainst duelling that was ever made is to be found in the late Senator Baker's oration over the body of Senator Broderick, Terry's victim. It is as follows: The code of honor is a delusion and a snare; it palters with the hope of true courage and binds it to the feet of crafty and cruel skill. It surrounds its victim with the pomp and grace of the procession, but leaves him bleeding on the altar. It is a shield, blazoned with the name of chivalry, to cover the procession of the proces

When the fishing ground is reached the master lowers his twelve birds one by one into the stream, and gathers their reins into his left hand, manipulating the latter there his left hand, manipulating the latter thereafter with his right as occasion requires; No. 2 does the same with his four birds; the kake starts in with his volleys of noise; and forthwith the cormorants set to at their work in the heartiest and jolliest way, diving and ducking with wonderful swiftness as the astonished fish come flocking toward the blaze of light. The master is now the busiest of men. He must handle his twelve strings so defuly that, let the birds dash hither and thither as they will, there shall be no impediment or fouling. He must have his eyes everywhere and his hands following his eyes. Specially must he watch for the moment everywhere and his hands following his eyes. Specially must he watch for the moment when any of his flock is gorged—a fact generally made known by the bird itself, which then swims about in a foolish, helpless way, with its head and swollen neok erect. Thereupon the master, shortening in on that bird, lifts its aboard, forces its bill open with his left hand, which still holds the rest of the lines, squeezes out the fish with his right, and starts the creature off on a freah foray—all this with such admirable dexterity and quickness that the eleven birds still bustling about have scarce time to get things into a "The annual consumption of this favourite beverage, which, it is stated, now exceeds twelve million bottles, affords a striking proof of the widespread demand which exists for table water of absolute purity, and it is satisfactory to know that wherever one travels, in either hemisphere it is to be met with; it is ubiquitous, and the composition of the composition. about have scarce time to get things into a tangle, and in another moment the team is again perfectly in hand.

As for the cormorants, they are trained when quite young, being caught in winter with bird-lime on the coasts of the neighboring Owari Gulf, at their first emigration southward from the summer haunts of the species on the northern seaboard of Japan. Once trained they work well up to fifteen, often up to nineteen or twenty years of age; and, though their keep in winter bears hard-BEWARE OF IMITATIONS and, though their keep in winter bears hardly on the masters, they are very precious and profitable hunters during the five months' season and well deserve the great care that is lavished upon them. From four to eight good sized fish, for example, is the fair result of a single excursion for one bird, which corresponds with an average of about one hundred and fifty fish per cormorant per hour, or four hundred and fifty for the three hours occupied in drifting down the whole course. Every bird in a flock has and knows its number; and one of the funniest things about them is the quick witted jealousy with which they invariably insist, by all that cormorant language and pantomimic protest can do, on due obsarvance of the recegnized rights belonging to their individual numbers. No. 1, or "Ichi," is the doyen of the corps, the senior in years as well as rank. His colleagues, according to their age, come after him in numerical order. enter the baskets in which, when work is over, the birds are carried from the boats to their domicile. Ichi, when abroad, has the post of honor at the eyes of the boat. He is a solemn, grizzled old fellow, with a pompous noti me tangere air that is almost worthy of a Lord Mayor. The rest have place after him, in succession of rank, alternately on either side of the gunwale. If, haply, the lawful order of precedence be at any time violated—if, for instance, No. 5 be put into the water before No. 6, or No. 4 be placed above No. 2—the rumpus that forthwith arises in that family is a sight to see and a sound to hear. to see and a sound to hear.

But all this while we have been drifting down, with the boats about us to the lower end of the course, and are again abreast of Gifu, where the whole equadron is beached. As each cormorant is now taken out of the water the master can tell by its to see and a sound to hear. out of the water the master can tell by its weight whether it has secured enough supper while engaged in the hunt; failing which, he makes the deficiency good by feeding it with the inferior fish of the catch. At length all are ranged in their due order, facing ontward, on the gunwale of each boat. And the eight of that array of great ungainly sea birds—shaking themselves, flapping their wings, gaw gawing, making their toilets, clearing their throats, looking about them with a stare of stupid solemnity and now and then indulging in old maidsh tiffs with their neighbors—is quite the strangest of its little class I have ever seen, except perhaps the wonderful ever seen, except perhaps the wonderful penguinry of the Falkland Islands, whereat a certain French philosopher is said to have even wept. Finally the cormorants are sent to bed and we follow suit. The Snake Bit the Wooden Leg. The following amusing tale, of which Nevada justice was the hero, is told by vestern traveler: "While wandering about in the vicinity of Rockbound Lake, accompanied by a boy, the judge was struck on the leg by the fangs of a large rattlesnake. The boy witnessed the snake strike the judge's leg and ran back to the hotel at Rubicon and gave the alarm. A receue party was hur-riedly organized by the guests. The party, armed with at least a barrel of whiskey in flasks, decanters and bottles, hastened in the flasks, decanters and bottles, hastened in the direction of the spot where the judge had been bitten by the venomous reptile. The members of the rescue party had not proceeded far on their humane mission when they observed the judge approaching—his usual limp in walking seemed greatly intensified by their alarmed imaginations. A grand rush was made for the judge and a hundred flasks were instantly uncorked, the odor of whiskey supplaating that of fragrant pines, firs and wild flowers—each owner of a flask being eager to have the judge first partake of the contents, and others endeavoring to strip his trowsers off to apply healing ointments to the waund. The judge finally was able to explain that he had been struck on the leg by a rattler, and while indicating with his finger the spot where the reptile's with his finger the spot where the reptile's poisonous fangs, remarked that it was his wooden leg that had been bitten, and therefore the wound would not prove serious. The judge afterward killed the snake and exhibited the end of the tail as a trophy, which is ornamented with seven rattles."

Memorable Time in the History of Connecticut Odd Fellowship-The City Full of Visiting Cantons and Lodges and Their Friends-The Parade a Grand Success-Fully Four Thousand Paraders in Line-A Splendid Appearance—Musicians Fill the Air with Melody—Seenes at Meadow Street Armory after the Parade—A Notable Celebration. That Odd Fellows are great paraders was fully demonstrated yesterday. Their big semi-centennial celebration and parade was one of the finest events of the kind ever seen in the city. It was certainly the grandest Odd Fellowship demonstration which the State has ever seen. The day seemed to be entirely given up to the hosts of celebraters. The principal streets were crowded throughout the morning, afternoon and early evening hours. At the time of the passage of the big procession, Chapel street was nearly blocked to all travel. The walks were crowded with eager sightseers and the crossstreets were hedged with carriages and vehicles of all kinds. The parade itself was a notable affair. Many enthusiastic spectators declared that it far surpassed the recent centennial celebration of the Masons of the State and some more conservative observers were willing to admit that the demonstration was equal to that big display. As to the number of men, yesterday's paraders were in the ascendency by about fifty. It is absolutely safe to place the whole number in line at four thousand.

After 10 o'clock the walks on both sides of Chapel street were crowded with people, and the streets were also full of marching bodies of men headed for the old green, where the line was to form. At 12 o'clock the head of the procession had not started. Five minutes later Col. Doberty gave the word and the platoon of police fell in and led the line out the South gate of the green to Chapel street, and thence to Church street, where in front of the city hall it was reviewed by the city officials.

won golden encominms. This new offshoot of Odd Fellowship, established only a few years ago, has not only come to stay but to grow still more. Its growth has been marvellously rapid throughout the country, and this uniformed branch is now a mighty force numbered by tens of thousands. The waving plumes, handsome uniforms and brightly polished scabbards added greatly to the picturesque appearance of the line of march. Music was in the air also. "In a multitude of connesilors there is actety," but sometimes in autitude of bands when in close proximity there is a confusion of melody. However, this difficulty was overcome by a judicious disposition of the bands at appropriate intervals and by the alternation of the playing which was observed. Hospitable Whalley Avenue.

While the procession was halted on Whalley avenue it occurred to the members of families living at Nos. 78 and 82 on that avenue that some cold well water would not be amiss to the comfort of the paraders, and quick as thought pails and pitchers were brought into use and the members of Harmony lodge refreshed themselves with the cooling beverage and felt that they should ever remember the kindness of the occupants of those fine Whalley avenue homes. Both these residences were handsomely decorated in honor of the day.

"The order is the strongest fraternal organization in the world. Strong in the paraderies it and in the men that compose it. I believe it is still on the threshold of its career. You can no more stop the growth of this grand fraternity than you can stop the ebb and flow of the tide in your beautiful harbor. I beg of you, my brothers, to keep the fires burning and to guard them with the same diligence that the virgins guarded the eternal fire in the temple of Vesta."

The audience joined in the colosing hymn and the semi-centennial was over. orated in honor of the day.

order. The lower boxes were occupied largely by ladies and a few ladies were pres ent in the audience, but was filled for the most part with meu, all members of the great order. An excellent programme, as previously published, was rendered with un-usual success. Wheeler & Wilson's band opened the evening's exercises with excellent renditions of Rossini's "William Tell" and Willmer's "A Summer's Day in Norway." The Abt quartette of this cily sang Buck's "On the Sea," and their rendition of the selection called for a storm of applause. Grand Master James Bishop presided, and in his opening remarks congratulated the members of the order on the success of the day and the excellence of the programme provided for the evening's entertainment.

When the quartette had rendered another choice selection, Judge L. P. Deming, P. G. M., spoke eloquently of "The Order." Odd Fellowship is a true fraternal order. The growth of the order has been the development of this grand design of fraternity. Our order is neither religious or political. As an order no religious faith is taught, but we believe true religion is the lever which raises near to the plane where all men may worship God according to their own wishes.

"The Mill in the Forest" was a selection rendered most acceptably by Wheeler & Wilson's band. At its conclusion Grand Master Bishop introduced the orator of the evening, Hon. John W. Stebbins, past grand master of the Grand lodge of New York, and whose home is at Rochester. Among other things he said: If in any degree the words to which you are about to listen shall seem heavy or dull, I beg of you to attribute it to the speaker and not to his theme, a theme worthy of the most burning eloquence and the richest praises. gathered in the lodge room in this city several gentlemen, the charter members of Quinnipiac lodge No. 1. The officials of the Grand lodge of New York established the lodge according to the customs of the order, and not contrary-wise.

The five ploneers of the order in this state have passed away, but all lived to see their anticipations more than realized. We can say of them in full scripture measure, "They are gone but their works do follow them." In less than twelve months Quinnipiac lodge had grown from five to one hundred and niueteen members. of the great seat of learning from which have gone forth some of the highest intellects of the age.

Fifty years ago to-night our order in this commonwealth numbered one lodge and thirteen men. To-night it has sixty-seven lodges and 13,000 men. It has twenty-four Rebecca degree lodges and twenty cantons of Patriarcha Militant, with 852 men uniformed at a cost of $29,280. The yearly income of the order is $357,850. It has $301,784 in assets. It expended during the year 784 in assets. It expended during the year $25,213 in relief, and its other disbursments $25,213 in relief, and its other disbursments were $11,374.

Do you know that Odd Fellowship was the first order to carry relief to the sick and protect the widow and the fatherless! The Grand lodge of Connecticut is the one of a sisterhood of fifty-fonr lodges acting under a Sovereign Grand lodge that has a constituency of 574,000 members scattered through thirteen nationalities, including the far off empire of Japan, binding these nations together by the cords of brotherly love.

The strength of Odd Fellowship, its glory and grandeur, rest with the subordinate lodges. It stirred my heart to see to day this fine array of men, men of intelligence and strong character, every one of them good citizens of this great country. I have seen Odd Fellows' processions all over the country, but I have never seen one that in point of character the participants ranked with the one I have seen to day.

The directors of the Nor walk Base Ball Association held a meeting this morning to discuss the financial outlook and the treasuret's report showed a loss of $3,500 during the present season. The team was greatly strengthened from time to time, and when the Jersey City club disbanded the team was taken into the Atlantic Association. The attendance at the games was not large enough to pay current expenses, and the directors decided to abandon the enterprise.

Fair Haven has been pretty well depopulated for the past two days. Labor day attracted quite a contingent to the city center, but there was a much greater exodus yesterday at the semi-centenial of Odd Fellowship. Fair Haven is well represented in the order. It has a flourishing lodge, Polar Star of 172 members, with representatives in the city lodges. The large number of our residents who de pend upon the oyster industry for a lively hood enjoy reading lines such as the follow ing:
The oyster, down in his bed of ooze,
Waked with a start from his summer snooze,
Opened his shell and said with a yawn:

And I know, by the keel of that hideous sloop,
That some of us shortly will be in the soup."

o the Editor of the JOURNAL AND COURSES We wake on Sunday morning to find ourelves at Evanston, Wyoming with strange rock foundations and tall mountain peaks on other side. It has rained during the night and the clouds yet hang on the mountain ops while light fleecy vapors float between hem. Jack rabbits are scampering through the sage brush, disturbed by the noise our rain makes. Passing a small town we notice on one of the buildings this sign "Z. M. C-, of Morgan City" and asking the meaning f the cabalistic letters are told that they mean Zion Municipal Co-operative Institution by which token we know that we are now in Utah. Soon we enter a fertile valley well timbered, with corn fields, ripened grain stacks and again the daisy greets us. In stacks and again the daisy greets us.
Here the sun bursts through the clouds and lights up the mountains across the valley and the light and shadow with the cloud effects make a picture only to be realized by being seen and which our pencil cannot portray. The ride from here to Ogden is rich in mountain scenery, but before we reach there a series of short whistles means cattle on the track and looking from the car window as we round a curve we see the herd scampertrack and looking from the car window as we round a curve we see the herd scampering ahead, all but one cow which stands motionless, and the next moment the poor creature is hurled one side and down the embankment some three hundred feet to the level below. Next we see a couple of fishermen by the brookside, but we know from observation in former years that your fisher. observation in former years that your fisher-man is a Sabbath breaker be he Mormon or Sacramento, Cal., again we set our watches back an hour to correspond with "Pacific time," our tourist friends are taken by the Central Utah Railroad which will carry them to Salt Lake City, and from there the Denver

Soon after leaving Ogden we get a glimpae of the Great Salt Lake, whose blue waters are outlined by the gleaming crystals from which it gains its name, and now we are on the great American desert. Bret Harte's description comes forcibly to our

The English historian, Froude, who visited this country a year ago, is said to have remarked of this region where the sun beats down fiercely in the summer, and the piercely among the year of the year, that it ing winds sweep the rest of the year, that it reminded him of the Spaniard's description of Castile—"Nine months winter and three months h——" But before Fronde's visit

We are favored to-day in that the sun is clouded most of the time and the rain has laid the fine, penetrating alkali dust, so that ventilators and windows remain open and we are not compelled to swelter. It is no unusual thing for the temporature in the closed cars, when making this day's run, to reach 110 degrees.

All day we run through the desert, and the next morning we awaken at Reno, Nevada, next morning we awaken at Reno, Nev All day we run through the desert, and the next morning we awaken at Reno, Nevada, and soon we are at Boca, Cal. We take on another locomotive here to help pull us up to the summit of the Sierra Nevada moun-taine, 7,017 feet high. Near Summit, a station with a summer hotel, we see at intervals through the snow sheds glimpses of Lake Donner, a beautiful blue sheet of water nestled in the valley below us. We are told it takes its name from Lieutenant Donner, who was taking a party across the mountains in 1849 and that they all were massacred on the banks of the lake by the Inlians. Another story is that a family of that name lived here and perished of starvation during the very deep winter snows. We do not know which tale is correct. From Summit we run down through miles f snow sheds till we reach Dutch Flat on Stephen J. Kane, a member of the High the south fork of the American river. Near here on the north fork was the first discov-ery of gold in 1848, which led to the emigraschool, was in the city court yesterday ery of gold in 1848, which led to the emigration of the gold seekers in 1849. We are informed that at Dutch Flat the mining company took out fourteen millions of gold last year. From our car window we can overlook the whole region and see the evidence of the work that has been done in mining; hills several hundred feet in height, having been washed entirely down by the hydraulic process, and the big sheet iron pipes, which carry the water, are plainly visible.

We see tall pino trees, placer mining, saw mills, ice sheds, ran around the peak called Cape Horn, with the mountain looming up above us and the clouds, and the American

At Sacramento we bid good bye to two kindley companions of our journey, Lieutenant Carl Junger, U. S. navy, and Mr. Alex. Young, the head of the Houolulu iron works, Sandwich Islands. Mr. Junger goes to San Francisco to join his ship and sail for Alaska to help protect the Behring Sea seal fisheries, and Mr. Young to sail for his island home.

Leaving Sacramento we halt at Lathrop for supper and sit in the place where United States Marshal Nagle sat when he shot Judge Terry a few weeks since, to protect Judge Field. The dining station keeper tells us that no one paid for breakfast that morning in the excitement which ensued, though sixty persons were at table when the tragedy occured, but all stampeded from the place: and he seemed sad at the recital, but we fear only for pecuniary reasons.

Next morning we breakfast at Bakersfield, 415 feet above the Pacific, and then begin the climb of Meunt Tehnchapi of the Sierras. He reported progress, however, and exhibited some plans for the new precincts which the committee has determined upon practically. They had as yet obtained no figures; $3,500 has been fixed as an estimate of the cost of the buildings, but the committee is of the opinion that the expense will not be as great. The plans exhibited yesterday call for a one story building, $25x50 feet, so built that they can be enlarged at any time. The front entrance opens into the general office, to the right of which is a private office and the captain's desk, enclosed by a railing, is at the left. After Mr. Smart had given the trotter a little exercise he drove up to the judges' stand and stated that in his opinion the horse's toe weights, which had been taken off, should be replaced. After the toe weights had been adjusted the judge gave the word and the horses started with Smart behind Willy Brooks. A majority of the spectators were pleased with the change of drivers as was evident from the applause.

There was considerable excitement during the heat. Smart took the lead at the first turn and led to the wire when he was greeted with loud cheering by the spectators.

The young man, with a company of Red Bank friends, was out sailing in Clinton R. James' yacht Undine. MRS. DART'S TRIPLETS. President Cleveland's Prize for the three best babies at the Aurora County Fair, in 1887, was given to these triplets, Mollie, Ida and Ray, children of Mrs. A. K. Dart, Hamburgh, N. Y. She writes: "Last August the little ones became very sick, and as I could get no other food that would agree with them, I commenced the use of Lactated Food. It helped them immediately, and they were soon as well as ever, and I consider it very largely due to the Food that they are now so well."

Financial. Advance in Prices at the Opening-Re action in Atchison and St. Paul-The Market Firm but Quiet at the Close. At the Stock Exchange to-day first prices were advances extending to 1 per cent. The mos marked upward movement was started immedi-ately in the Northern Pacifics, Burlington and Quincy and Hocking Valley, with Oregon Transontinental, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and spe cialties following. Wisconsin Central and Michigan Central also became prominent toward noon, when the movement among the stronger stocks became less pronounced. A reaction was had in the afternoon, though in nothing but Atchison and St Paul was there any marked weakness, while a movement in Union Pacific, accompanied by a decided increase in the amount of business done, was the special feature. Several specialties, however, were strong and scored material advances. The excitement in the market died away completely in the last hour and the close was still firm, but quiet. The entire active list, with a few unimportant exceptions, is higher to-night.

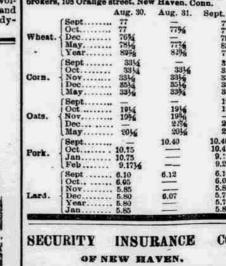

The railroad bond market was quiet, the sales reaching $1,057,000, of which the hocking Yalley contributed $100,000. The tone of the dealings was in close sympathy with that of stocks and remained strong, though in most of the list the movements were insignificant.
