WHAT IS

SCROFULA It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, can cerous growths, or the many other manifestions usually ascribed to "humors;" whi fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it. How Can CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have falled, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous soreneck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. Canlille, Nauright, N. J. N. B. The decorations this year will differ somewhat from those of last, and the electric lights are to be covered with yellow shades. The boxes which will number two more than last year will be carpeted and the floor covered with crash.

Befreshments will be served in the governor's and other rooms of the Hyperion, and the arrangements will be entirely different from those of last year, and care will be taken that they may be obtained without discomfort or long delay. To-day 1,300 invitations will be sent out, and accompanying each ticket that is enclosed within the invitation is the ballot for determining to what charities the proceeds of the ball will go. It is expressly wished that the use of this ballot be fully understood. With it the purchaser of the ticket has the power of voting for what charity he prefers to be benefited, and those receiving the three highest votes to receive the proceeds in the ratio 50, 30 and 20.

Professor Day made some introductory remarks followed by a selection from the soriptures and prayer. The remainder of the time was taken up mostly by two young Indian students, one a member of the Law school and the other studying in the Hartford Theological seminary. If they are to be taken as a sample of what may be done for the American Indian in the way of culture and development, then the assertions are absurd that we have heard so many times to the effect that the Indian is utterly incapable of civilization, and must be crushed before its adjustion, and must be crushed before its adjustion, and must be crushed before its adjustion, this city, and a native Sionz, spoke first. His paper had been prepared for his graduation from Hampton college, Virginia, and a five minutes limit had been imposed.

The views he expressed were, in substance, as follows:

You have no doubt heard all about the Indian was adouting civilization, still clings.

The views he expressed were, in substance, as follows:

You have no doubt heard all about the Judians not adopting civilization, still clinging to their old ways and traditions, and it has been said that they are on a plane practically the same as when Columbus discovered them. The question is shall we educate or exterminate them? As an example in the case of the Sloux of Dakota and Montana, the comparison between the cost that fell on case of the Sioux of Dakota and Montana, the comparison between the cost that fell on the government of fighting or educating was about $1,720,000 in favor of the latter.

There have been repeated wrongs on the part of the government in their dealings with them, but he did not say this from prejudice and, had he done so, would have been guilty of misrepresenting his people.

Many of the popular ideas about the Indians are due to fictitious stories and newspaper yarns. That there have been murders, orimes and turmoil prevalent is natural when all things are considered. There is a class on the frontier composed of hard characters from all nationalities, in other words, ruffians, whose crimes are oftentimes imputed to the Indians.

whose crimes are oftentimes imputed to the Indians.

Another class is the traders, whose sole desire is to get rich, and this is chiefly accomplished by selling poor whiskey. So when these classes come together it is all get drunk together and the traders get the land of the Indians. They are a heathen people in the nineteenth century and in some respects just the same as they were four centuries ago when the white man was as yet unknown. But the speaker had hopes of a brighter future for his race, and examples from the Sioux tribes gave him grounds for the belief. Less than a generation ago, something like thirty years, several of the Sioux tribes having been influenced, sold a portion of their lands and determined to settle down and live like the whites. To be sure they did not make a great success, be came discouraged and went off on hunting expeditions, leaving their crops to go to waste. But this was a beginning. They suspected the government, all those about them and even the missionaries. But these have done noble work, which is and will be appreciated. As one example of progress the speaker cited that of the old fort at Yorktown, which gradually being needed lees and less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by being set on fire by a little Indian less, tumbled to pieces and finally met its fate by nation, and it was concerning the nations in the Indian Territory that he spoke chiefly, as follows: Ever since the first settlers took possession of the Atlantic coast there has been a steady increase in the population. The eastern part of the continent filled up, government has heretofore always treated them as foreigners, making treaties, etc.

Speaking of Indians, etc., he described the eastern front as composed of civilized tribes, that is as the word civilization applies to even many of the whites in the West. They are independent nations, making and enforcing their own laws, having their own churches and schools, and if it is possible would like to continue in this way. They are opposed to the thought of losing their individuality as a nation and becoming fenced in the sea of universal citizenship. They could exist in their present character for 50 or 100 years were it not for the increasing surrounding sentiments. The Choctaw, Cherokee and other nations share this feeling, but accept this position philosophically.

One danger that threatens this country is the character of those filling up this central part of the country which some day will be the controling power. They came from their own countries, bringing their own customs ways and beliefs and own language, and perhaps don't care particularly about the free institutions we hold sacred. At any rate this is a danger that confronts the Indians, and though driven from their own country they want this land. And not being accustomed to possessions they sovet it when they behold broad acres stretching out as far as the eye can reach belonging to the Indians.

And it is for this the Indian nations object so strenuously to opening up the Territory. formerly the property of Morris Cohn, but now owned by Fred. Potter, jr., was one of the contesting horses which was matched against C. G. Earle's mare "Black Bess."

Col. W. J. Leavenworth of the Second reg-ment, who has been in the National guard service nearly twenty years, says:

"I am opposed to the renting of State armories for any purpose whatever other than military.

"Possibly it cannot be shown that the renting of them has been greatly detrimental to discipline so far, but any officer of experience knows that such renting is to a certain extent demoralizing, and increases the difficulty of securing complete and enthusiastic service from the men.

"As the matter now stands, any person by the payment of money can hire a State armory with the arms and munitions therein, and can then place it in possession of any organization, no matter how socialistic or hostile to the peace and good order of the State it may be.

"Why not run the same risk of placing your fire and police department in the power of an organized band of incendiaries? I do not hesitate to say that State armories ought not to be out of control of the military for a moment.

their horses, and, as understood, the burden of the jokes has been that each of the owners claimed his horse to be the faster of the two. These repartees recently resulted in a lively race between the two horses, from Broadway to John Lyons' road house on Whelley avenue. As both of the horses were in fine condition the gait was a fast one, and the race was lively and very close as the trotters were sent over the broad avenue at the top of their speed to the terminus, where Fred was the first to arrive.

After the race the owners and several sports met at the stable office of Burnie Cannon on George street, where the race was talked over and the joking was continued, as Mr. Earle explained that he did not win as his horse cast a shoe during the race. The Brotherhood men will all how have swelled heads. They will strike out now, make money and draw large crowds, but the franchises will not hold out.—Wreck and ruin will then stare the Players' league in the face. I have not heard from Mr. Spaulding, but I think our policy will not be varied any. Had the matter been decided the other way I do not think the Chicago club would have made any effort to get back the old players. SENATOR SPOONER REPLIES

A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION Experiments In Chemistry Causes Fatal Injuries.

THE FIFTY-FIRST CONGRESS. he Maltreatment of Henry J. Paune at Aberdeeu, Miss.—Mr. Spooner Re-plies to Mr. George—Mr. Platt Takes a Hand in the Debate. WASHINGTON, Jan. 28. SENATE.-The Senate at 2 o'clock resumed he consideration of Mr. Chandler's resolution n relation to the maltreatment at Aberdeen

Miss., of Henry J. Faunse, and Mr. George made an argument against it, declaring his belief that the adoption of the resolutio would be a serious infraction of the consti ution and a very serious encroachn the rights of the people of Mississippi. Mr. George went on to say that not only did he condemn the hanging in effigy of any respectable officer of the United States under any circumstances or under any provoca but that in the case of Secretary Probut that in the case of Secretary Proctor there was no provocation for the insult. He had never heard from any other Democrat any other comment on the conduct of Secre-tary Proctor (for which that indignity had been attempted to be inflicted on him) except that he had performed a painful and delicate duty with consideration to the feelings (the duty with consideration to the feelings (the prejudices even) of the people of the South. The pending proposition he described as an annex, or adjunct, of the original offense, another violation of the laws of Mississippi.

with crimes isolated or general in the State of Mississippi. It did not involve the contention that the United States government by any existing law, or by any law that could be constitutionally passed, could punish a man in its courts for an assault and battery committed in the State of Mississipping.

by any existing law, or by any law that could be constitutionally passed, could punish a man in its courts for an assault and battery committed in the States of Missiaspip. Still he was not ready to admit that there might not be circumstances under which jurisdiction might be conferred by congress or courts of the United States to congress or courts of the United States in his constitutional rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness which the States denied him by force and by fraud. But it was not necessary now to discuss that question. As to the course of the attorney-general in the matter Mr. Spoones aid he was glad that the day had some when the United States had an attorney-general that would take notice of an outrage on an American citizen. He denied that there existed in the North any feeling of animosity toward the people of the South. Losg, long ago all the South-ernStates were recould be no better evidence of it than the fact that long ago all the South-ernStates were represented in hoth bouses of Congress, and that, too, mostly by gentlemen who had fought under their flag and against the American flag. The hanging in effigy of Secretary Prototr had not only brought out the feeling of bitterness that existences, that oreally, that brutality, that indifference to law and to decency which the context and other high person-plain of. He expressed his regret that the senator from Missisappi (Mr. George) had felt called upon to pronounce a culogy on Jefferson Davis. It was to have been expected that he would be borne to his last restitup place surrounded by his old companions and to the would be borne to his last restitup place surrounded by his old companions and to the music of mmfled drams. But he (Mr. Spooner) had hoped that no one would deem it needs to the surface of the libraria and complete of the sent of mmfled drams. But he (Mr. Spooner) had hoped that no one would deem it needs to the surface of the libraria surface of the libraria and complete the surface of the library had for many pe music of musiced drams. But he (Mr.Spooner) had hoped that no one would deem it nesary to pronounce an eulogy on Jefferson. Davis in the Senate chamber of the United States. It would strike a harsh chord in the breasts of millions of men all through the North. The people had not regarded him (although the chief of the Confederacy) as false to the Union and to its flag and to his coath, than thousands of his confreres. But the people had not believed what the Senator (Mr. George) said to-day about Jefferson Davis, that whether under the constitution or the Confederacy he had never betrayed a trust. The people believed, on the contrary, that he had sat in the Senate betraying daily and hourly and nightly the highest trust ever reposed in man. But it was not for that that they executed his memory. It was be-and notify and nightly the highest true everreposed in man. But it was not for that that they exectated his memory. It was because they had held him responsible for the atrocities, the unspeakable, devilish, horrible crucities visited on Union prisoners at Libby prison, Belle Isle, Salisbury and Andersonville. It was because they charged him with the responsibility of holding men prisoners of war to starve them. He (Mr. Spooner) did not know what the resolution would accomplish in the way of legislation, or of constitutional amendment, but it would subserve one purpose if nothing else. It would turn the light on that transaction at Abordeen. It would prove the existence of a spirit of bitterness and brutality there. It would show that there was a community claiming to be intelligent and law-abiding, where the love of Jefferson Davis' memory is stronger than respect for law, stronger than love of liberty, stronger than the impulses of humanity

—the law of God, written in, every human heart. If the resolution would accomplish nothing else it would subserve that one good purpose.

purpose.

Mr. Gray remarked that no greater compliment could have been paid to the compact, clear, incid and exceedingly able argument of the senator from Mississippi (Mr. George) than the fact that the able senator from Wisconsin (Mr. Spooner) had evaded the issue tendered by the senator from Mississippi and had replied to it only in an eloquent distribe. The senator from Mississippi had demonstrated with a positiveness which left nothing to be said that the power of the Senate to inquire into or investigate any given subject was limited and defined by the legislative jurisdiction committed to Congress. But the senator from Wisconsin had dedged every issue thus raised. The hanging of a high official in effigy while a thing to be condemned most severely was not so unprecedented an outgress. But the senators had described it, and he referred to the fact that quite recently President Harrison had been bung in effigy in the State of Indians. He moved to amend the resolution by adding the words "and also the letter of instruction to the said marshal to which the report of said marshal was a response." and also to

That had not been the idea of the American eitizen. It had not been the idea of the expounders of the constitution or of the courts. He held that under the constitution there was power in Congress to protect the citizen in the enjoyment of the rights guaranteed him by the constitution, and to punish those who deprived or attempted to deprive him of those rights. And if there were not laws already on the statute book to punish in any State any infraction of the rights guaranteed by the constitution, it was high time that such laws were passed.

The debate was further continued by Senators Gray, Chandler and Hoar. The first

The debate was further continued by Senators Gray, Chandler and Hoar. The first part of Mr. Gray's amendment was agreed to. The second part was not voted on.

Mr. Call offered an amendment calling on the attorney-general for a report as to the hanging in "effigy of President Larrison in Indiana and of the then President Cleveland in Kansas.

annex, or adjunct, of the laws of Mississippi. The only and to be obtained was to blacken the name and reputation of a State whose sons had honored and served the country. Among the distinguished sons of Mississippi, Mr. George referred to Jefferson Davis as a man who had never betrayed his trust or falled in the discharge of his full duty whether he served the United States or the confederacy. He claimed, in conclusion, that the pending proposition was without any warrant in the constitution, which senators had already been uncovered. Why then pass the resolution except to show that where the interests and rights and honor and good name of the people of the South were involved, the constitution was nothing but a rope of sand. INCREASED BUSINESS—SHOPS TO BE ENLARGED—THE TOWN TO LOSE A VALUED PASTOR.

Jan. 28.—Rev. Mr. Reynolds, who has resigned, has been a pestor here for the past six years. For the past year there has been a disagreement between two elements in the church about church expenses, which has probably had something to do with the pastor's resignation. Mr. Reynolds will probably accept a call from the Baptist Broadway church at Cambridge, Mass., where also is located Rev. Mr. Richmond, a former pastor of the same church. Rev. Mr. Reynolds will be missed from the soloci board, on which he has done admirably efficient service. It is with many regrets that the Baptist church here part with him. He has been with them between six and seven years and has endeared himself not only to the people of his own church, but to the citizens of the town generally.

On Saturday, Borough Sheriff L. I. Baldwin sought them at their habitation in the house of a white man and brought them both back to Torrington. An effort was made to have Smith arrested for enticing the girl away, but she declared she went of her own free will. The girl, however, told another story when Smith was out of hearing and said that she went away through fear, as she did not dare disobey him. When the officer came to look for Smith a second time he had taken French leave.

CHAIRMAN DICKIE AT HARTFORD—FOUR POINTS.
At the prohibitionists local convention in Hartford Monday night Prof. Samuel Dickie of Michigan, chairman of the national prohibition committee, spoke. Four points, he said, must be established by advocates of prohibition:

Herman Wilcox, the three year old child born blind, died yesterday.

The funeral aid societies of Simpson, Hall & Miller and Maltby, Stavens & Curtis have been heavily drawn on during the last month in consequence of the prevalence of the grippe. the Democratic and Republican parties no question of national importance which would be definitely postponed or jeopardized by the coming into power of the third party. On the first point Mr. Dickie said that $900,000, 000 are annually spent in salcons, and showed indubitably that it might be spent in some other way. As to the second, he said the liquor dealers were organized and there must be organization against them. Under the third head he remarked that neither great party could afford to lose votes by backing an uncounter reform. The fourth weight Jan. 28.—Stiles C. The nest medical writers claim the suc-cessful remedy for nasal catarry must be non-irritating, easy of application and one that will reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past obliges us to admit that only one remedy has met these condi-tions and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physi-cians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms yield to it. j22 cod&w2t G.
