Certainly it will do no good to prolong the controversy further in this way. It is as much setled as it ever will be. There has been a good deal of sharp talk, and Mr. Porter, seing conspicuous, has had to take much which perhaps ought to have been distributed among some of his fellow members of the committee. He is not of the stuff of which conspirators are made, and spers have applied to him. One of the sketches portrays Mount Hutchings, a bold peak rising between Hutchings, a bold peak rising between 4,000 and 5,000 feet above the floor of the 4,000 and 5,000 feet above the floor of the valley, through which flows the picturesque stream known as the south fork of the King's river. The only waterfall of any great magnitude is the Roaring River falls. It appears to be not more than twenty-five feet wide and fifty feet high, but by measurements made by surveyors it is fifty feet wide by 100 feet high.

Its appearance is deceptive because of the lofty cliffs that close in on it on the sides and in the rear. The water falls over a precipice, making a beautiful fan of foam, and spreading out in a turbulent, eddying mass into Roaring river. The wall back of it stands 2,000 feet above the level of the river and on the left-hand side rises a peak on whose top the snow falls

The sand appeared to be of a light color, and the movement of the train gave the impression that workmen were loading the cars. The top of the bank was crowned with green trees, which stood out clearly and distinctly for nearly an hour. The mirage extended from directly northlof the city tothe eastward, and was visible for over an hour.

SHE WOULDN'T HAVE HIM. tut Her Father Would, By Gum,

[From the Globe-Democrat.]

The Cairo Short Line passenger from aducah had a very heavy load of excursionists Sunday, returning home from Centucky, where they had been spending the Fourth. Among the number was a dapper little man from St. Louis, whose name is withheld because it would add othing to this o'er true story. He was very sweet, at least his vanity told him o. The dude sported lavender pants, black silk tennis shirt, a flashy tie, and vore a No. 61 beaver hat. Like all of his kind, this dude had a mania for breaking earts, and made himself conspicuous by ogling all the ladies on the train and by oud remarks drawing attention to himself. His forte, though, was a promenade pulled up. Then he was in his element, as he minced along the platform or took

p an artistic pose, as much as to say, he approached a woman, be she black or white, this foolish dude had some inane wittleism to crack at her expense. This conduct continued till the train reached a station this side of Pinckney-ville, Ill., where a long halt was made Here was the dude's opportunity, here he surpassed all previous efforts in his role as a railway masher, and here, alas, he was overtaken by a vengeance. On the platform stood an old gray-haired and by his side a modest girl of seventeen years, neatly and becomingly dressed. They were evidently father and daughter. The natty little dude spied them as soon as the train pulled in. Here was his opportunity, of which he quickly availed himself. Accompanied by three companions he walked slowly past the couple, making some remark as he reached them. The girl's cheeks crimsoned, while an ominous frown gathered on the father's brow. Un-aware of their danger, the quartette pro-ceeded to the station saloon and gleefully ceeded to the station saloon and greefully quaffed their sods, after which each light-ed a cigarette and retraced their steps to the train, again having to pass the father and daughter. Whether the soda flew to the dude's head and made him more reck-

the dude's head and made him more reckless than usual, or whether the fact that the girl was so modest and shrinking that he thought her lawful game, and as her only protector was an old man, no danger was apprehended, the St. Louis dude grew bolder as he approached the couple, and turning to a companion said, "This girl says that she won't have me."

In a moment the old gentleman reached forward and grasped the surprised masher
by the back of the neck, saying: "No, by gum, but her father will," and then proceeded to mop the platform with his dudeship. Back and forth the natty little man was dragged, his lavender pants split man was dragged, his lavender pants split up one leg, his silk shirt torn, while his handsome beaver was hopelessly crushed as though so much paper. Then, turning him around, the old gentleman planted a No. 10 shoe squarely and fairly at the base of the dude's spinal column, elevating the little man into the air and landing him off the platform and helpless wreck. His three valiant companions had fled at the first onslaught of the old man, but the four or five hundred passengers gave him such an ovation as seldom falls to the lot of mortal, the cars fairly rolling under the applause so heartily bestowed.

His dudeship dragged himself away, a sorer if not a wiser man. Where he hid himself no one knew, but he was not seen again until the cars reached the Union depot, when he was detected limping painfully between a standing train, wending his weary way to the nearest street car line. "The canon increases in importance and magnitude as you go up the valley, but the broadest spaces are found near its mouth. The narrowest part, where the glaciers have worked most actively, is at its upper end, and there its walls are the loftiest.

"J. M. Hutchings, the pioneer, was the original explorer of King's River canon, as he was of the Yosemite valley. All the trails and other improvements in the Yosemite valley were designed by him, and the Yosemite commissioners have simply reharrowed his ground."

Mr. Robinson was loud in his praise of the scenic beauty of the King's River canon. He exhibited several oil sketches in proof of his statement, and the sketches are remarkable for the emerald meadows, the lofty peaks, and the deep blue skies they portray. Mr. Andruf was knocked from his chair across the room and for a few minutes was badly dazed.

George H. Richardson, proprietor of the Railroad house at the foot of West street, Litchfield, will in all probability be the loser of some two hundred gallons of intoxicating liquors. The Enquirer says: Information being received by the authorities that Richardson was selling matt and vinous liquors without a license, Mr. Wellington B. Smith of Winsted, prosecuting attorney for violation of liquor laws of Litchfield county, proceeded to make an investigation. He came to the village last Monday afternoon, procured a warrant and had the place searched. One hundred and fifty gallons of blackberry and elderberry wine and a small quantity of whisky were secured. The officer seized the liquors and they are now in safe keeping. The case will be heard about the 23d of this month and if the goods shall be declared forfeited the barrels and kegs holding the same will be taken to the public highway, the heads knocked in and the contents spread along the road.

Bishop Perry of Iowa, who has been so prominent in his warfare on Dr. Phillips Brooks, and against whom charges of plagiarism have now been brought, is well known in Litchfield section. About twenty years ago he was rector of St. Michael's church, Litchfield, and has frequently visited in that town in the summer since. The Rev. T. J. Lee of Easton, Penn., who brings the charges, was formerly a prominent pastor of a Congregational church in Winsted.

The case of the state vs. Charles H. Miller was tried before the jury. He was charged with permitting minors to loiter about his saloon at Savin Rock. There were seven talesmen on the jury, which is very unusual. This resulted from four challenges by the state and four by the defense. A new point was made in the charge to the jury. At the request of the defendant the court charged the jury that it was not necessary that the defendant should have instructed his barkeeper not to permit minors to loiter in the saloon. In the absence of any instructions it was presumed that the bartender would obey the law, and that to convict the defendant it must appear that he sutherized or approved the action of his barkeeper, George M. Gunn for the state; E. P. Arvine for the defendant. Miller was acquitted.

In the case against W. L. Terrific Wind Storm in the West Carries Death and Destruction in Its Track-Thousands of Bollars' WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., July 16 .- A wind storm of terrific violence swept over Su-erior to-day, carrying death and destruction in its path. The wind was accompa nied by pouring rain and the air was heavily charged with electricity. The storm asted only about thirty minutes, but during that period many thousands of dollars of damage was done, while at least five ersons were killed and many others inured. During the progress of the storm an alarm of fire was turned in from the Fifth ward and the department responded o find the new large three-story frame hotel on Third street near Lamborn avenue a mass of ruins. The structure had been olown down and many workmen were in he ruins. A large number of persons assisted the firemen in the rescue. Fully three thousand persons were at the scene. At a late hour to-night the dead were:

John Laur, married, aged 38; Charles Lucas, single, aged 26; Herman Paussey, single, aged 26; John Schofield, and an unknown, about 35 years of age. Among the more seriously injured are: John Brown, broken legs; John Long, internal and probably fatal injuries; William Sem-ple, Dick Clarke and others more or less seriously. The assistant chief of the de-partment had his leg broken during the work of rescue. An eye witness of the disaster says he saw a crew of workmen run into the building to seek shelter from the storm. Fully thirty or forty men must have been inside. They were distributed over all the floors. It appears that the men on the third floor took warning first and five were seen to jump and get away in safety.

Much damage was done in all directions.
The steel hoisting and conveying apparatus employed by the Silver Creek and Morris and Ohio Coal companies was badly damaged. A large frame was blown down at the corner of Third and Tower extracts. South Superior and anymbor streets, South Superior, and a number of other buildings were levelled, but no casualties are reported. Lightning played havoc with the Fisher hotel, Unitarian church, Union depot and other buildings. There are no reports of disaster on the lake or harbor.

Their plans are to land at or near Jeremie, on the southern coast. It is a hot-bed of revolu-tionary sentiment. Should General Prophete succeed in landing his forces there, and then co-operating with the people of Jacmel, who are expected to revolt, the exiles are confident of driving Hippolyte off the stand.

THE AMERICAN COPYRIGHT ACT. THE CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL. The Adoption of the Act Celebrated Last Evening by a Banquet in London-President Harrison Toasted LONDON, July 16 .- At this morning's

Many Notable Personnges Present. London, July 16.—The Society of Auhors celebrated the adoption of the American copyright act this evening with a dinner at the Hotel Metropole. Lord Monkswell was in the chair and amon Harte, Lewis Morris, C. D. Warner, Louise Moulton, Brander Matthews, Thomas Hardy, Walter Besant, Sir F. Pollock, Edmond Gosse, Rider Haggard, Max O'Rell, Canon Doyle, Oscar Wilde and Justin McCarthy and son. Lord Monkswell, in toasting Pres Harrison and the success of the copyright act, commented upon the friendly feeling shown by President Harrison in extending shown by President Harrison in extending at once without demur the act to England. He thought that clauses existed in the act to which exception might be taken. Yet, substantially, the United States had gone far as could reasonably be expected under the circumstances in meeting the wishes of England. He hoped no vestige of irritation or annoyance would remain either on the part of England or on the part of America to cloud the perfect understanding that ought to subsist between the two peoples so closely allied by blood and so worthy of one another's friendship. [Cheers]. Mr. Lincoln replied: "It is a great honor to me to have an opportunity of meeting at once so many who are devoting their energy and talents to the instruction and literary entertainment of the English-speaking race. It is an especial pleasure to do so under the circumstances which make this dinner of the society so which make this dinner of the society so peculiarly notable to you in signalizing the end of the impatience which has exist-ed so many years on both sides of the water over the delay in establishing proper relations between the copyright laws of England and those of the United States.

England and those of the United States. It is not strange that this impatience existed. For, while our governments differ in form, the duties, rights and privileges of the people of both nations are nearly identical. With their common language, and for the most part common origin, their equally advanced civilization, their aspirations and modes of thought make them almost one race in the history of the world. [Cheers.] Under these conditions it long seemed to many—among them myself—almost arbitrary and unreasonable to keep in form a rule of law sonable to keep in form a rule of law which denied in each country to the author of the other, and to that alone of all the people carrying on the numberless trades of our present civilization, the property right which each accorded to its own citizens or to resident authors. In own citizens or to resident authors. In own citizens or to resident authors. In saying this of England, as well as of the United States, I speak in view of the fact that it has only just now become certain that a non-resident allen friend may have that a non-resident alien friend may have the benefit of the English copyright law, and that the first official and conclusive declaration to that effect has been called forth by our American act. Between our countries to a-far act. Between our countries to a far greater degree than between those using different languages has the question of reciprocal copyright been a practical one. Consequently opposing interests have been more numerous than powerful in the nature of things. The adhesion reached not very long ago by various countries under the provisions of the Berne convention was far more easily attained than the arrangement just brought Berne convention was far more easily at-tained than the arrangement just brought about between England and the United States. I am one of those who long thought it ought to be made. I am neither an author nor a publisher, but as a prac-ticing lawyer it has never been difficult for me to feel the justice of myself being paid for a written argument at least for a successful one, irrespective of any a successful one, irrespective of any question of the nationality of the client. Question of the nationality of the What I thought just for myself I could hardly think unjust for any man of any nation or any nation or any geographical remoteness from whose mental labor I derived profit or pleasure. Then, too, in feeling this I but followed the lead of almost every living author of high repute in my own country in wishing them, and especially their younger brethren struggling for their proper places, to be re-lieved from the involuntary competition of uncompensated foreign authors. So take away the huge obstacle in the path of our literary progress. This is not the for the two weeks ending July 15. Manager Fraser said that they would have to wait until Monday for their money, but assured them that it would be paid in full. The players positively refused to go to Albany Saturday unless paid. To-night Manager Fraser wired President White that he might consider Syracuse no longer a member of the Eastern association. Mr. Fraser said he would not have anything further to do with base ball. He blames White for the condition of the team, claiming that he aroused the suspicions of the players by retaining the Stars' guarantees time for thres ing over what is now only contemporaneous acts of justice to authors—the declaration of your government and the new legislation of mine—there is not only removed a cause of international irri-tation, but a new stimulus to study and literary effort is given and will be long felt on both sides of the Atlantic. 1 am sure you will all join me in hoping for this new phase of our community of interest and in the anticipation that we will find renewed assurance of an extension in other lirections of that good will and under standing which is so important to both countries and which it is so especially fitting should exist between them [Cheers.] A letter from Lord Tenneyson was read, in which he said: "In the name of the United Kingdom our society congratulates the United States on their great act of ustice." Mr. Bryce toasted the American Copyright league. Brander Matthews re-sponded. Prefessor Minto proposed "American Literature," to which Mr.

Warner replied.

EDITOR PORTER'S REPLY. Ils Review of the Hon. Lynde Har

His Review of the Hon. Lynde Harrison's Open Letter.

OFFICE OF THE HARTFORD POST, July 16.
Lynde Harrison, New Haven, Conn.
Dear Sir: Your "open letter" of July 9th is before me. This is not the firstime we have differed.

I vigorously protested in my paper against the passage of your bogns ballot bill—the law which has caused all the recent political trouble in Connecticut—and I mercilessly exposed your defense of it printed in the New Englander magazine.

More than once I have felt obliged, in the interest of the public, to criticise the affairs and officers of the railroad corporation of which you are the "working" attorney.

tion of which you are the "working" attorney.

When, a few months ago, the newspaper which you control made an outrageous attack on State-Treasurer Henry, I denounced your course in unmeasured terms. When, more recently, after the adjournment of the house, you revengefully turned the editorial criticisms of the same journal upon me personally, I did not hesitate to show the public your real attitude to the committee and the party.

With these events in mind, perhaps you set yourself the task of composing an "open letter" to me in a spirit of strict impartiality and judicial calmness.

You admit that my editorial upon you published in the Hartford Post of June 19th drew out your "open letter:" You, therefore, not myself, or the committee, or the republican party of Connecticut, are really on the defensive.

Before taking up the points of your letter seriatim, I will briefly illustrate the tone of insecurity and exaggeration which runs through the whole of it. You state that I met you on the floor of the house on January 27th and I uppraided you for

These are small matters in themselves, but they sufficiently indicate the method o your misrepresentation—the object of will be seen later, at the critical points of eneral assembly and prior to the appoint ent of the committee on canvass of vote or state officers. II. The work done by the committee, o > and no influence, excepting that attempted by you, was exerted upon them, but that of the evidence in the case. The rough draft of the report was made The rough draft of the report was made several days previous to our meeting on the 27th of January. Messrs. Green, Judson and myself had prepared speeches which were put in type in my office several days before the report appeared, all bearing out the conclusions which it contained. You must be egotistical indeed if it causes you to be nettled and excites your indignation that an hour's work of your own with the committee would not easily enable

You state in commenting on the repor that it was "exceedingly surprising" to you. How could this have been so, since Mr. Greene, the chairman of the committee, told you on the floor of the house on the morning of January 27th that the committee had practically decided to report that, from the evidence, they did not find that any of the democratic candidates for state officers had been elected, excepting Mr. Staub?

You, yourself, as I have already stated, were, from all I can find out, the only person endeavoring to bring a "pressure" or "influence" upon the committee in making up their report. So far as Governor Bulkeley is concerned—whom I understand you are about to charge with having "threatare about to charge with having "threatened" the committee—he never attempted to exert any influence upon me personally, or upon any of my colleagues, so far as I know. He never suggested plans and motives for keeping himself in office, or others out of office, but once or twice he remarked to me, casually, that, having had the honor of the office and being interested in developing a new branch of his private the honor of the office and being interested in developing a new branch of his private business, he would be glad to retire when-ever his successor was duly chosen and qualified. This furnishes my specific answer to your "open letter." But, Mr. Harrison, I have not done with you quite yet. Surely, a gentleman who cultivates publicity as you have done, who courts morality with such eagerness, cannot logically object to my pursuing this interesting theme even to its, to you, bitter end.

A conference of a number of prominent

A conference of a number of prominent republicans was held, at your invitation, at the Hartford club, some time after the adoption by the house of the committee's report, at which were present, among others, Messrs. Herbert E. Benton, Allan W. Paige, Gardiner Greene, jr., Milton A. Shumway; and afterwards, Messrs. William C. Case, Morgan G. Bulkeley, and others. On this occasion you, Mr. Harrison, who before that time and since have repeatedly stated and boasted, both personally and in the editorial colums of the New Haven Palladium, that (to quote the words of your "open letter") at no time "since last November have I changed my opinion that General Merwin isentitled to the office of governor"; who have all along posed that General Merwin is entitled to the office of governor"; who have all along posed and still pose as his (self-constituted) special champion, stated to me that, "in your opinion the right thing to do, to stop all the wrangle and delay, would be to seat Judge Morris at once, without furthe jurdicial or legislative examination." This can be vertified by other gentlemen who were present and heard your remark.

Of course there was nothing necessarily

Of course there was nothing necessarily reprehensible in your professing a belief that Judge Morris was entitled to be seated without further investigation, though it is to be specially noted that you were undoubt-edly the only republican in the state of Connecticut who professed to hold such an Connecticut who professed to hold such an opinion. But, can you offer any explanation why you should have favored these two radically different plans at the same time—one in public and the other in private? Do you, in the light of the recent legal decision, now believe that Judge Morris is entitled to the office of governor? If you wish, if at least what you want is a start what you want.

"no one suggested that there should be also any report declaring that the democratory comptroller were not elected, without reaching any control of the state of better.

If you will call upon the senior representative from Hartford, who is a member of the present house, he will tell you that at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of January 27 you met him on the floor of the house, and when he inquired why the report of the committee had not been made that day, you told him that the report had been all ready to put in on that morning, except only a matter which the committee had decided to set forth in the schedules. Any disinterested friends of yours will advise you that this particular issue be-Any disinterested friends of yours will advise you that this particular issue between us may be treated as concluded.

The most important charge I have made against you, however, is that in consequence of the adoption of that changed report, two gentlemen who were elected last November have been wrongfully deprived of their offices. I had reasons for believing for saveral months that not with. pelieving for several months that notwith-standing the blunder which had been comnitted by making that report, the best riews of Mr. Judson and Mr. Tuttle of your committee would finally prevail and that justice would be done, either on this subject. It is true that I attended the meeting a he Allyn house at which many prom nent republicans were present. The principal question which was discussed were cipal question which was discussed were the best methods for securing the election of General Merwin. Nearly all of the gentlemen present thought at that stage of the controversy that the republicans should stand firm upon the ground that they had taken, insisting upon the duty of the general assembly to investigate and inspect the returns. One of the gentle-men you named in your letter stated that en you named in your letter stated that in his judgment it would not be wise at that time to admit that a mistake had been made in relation to the minor offices because it would lay the party open to the charge before an investigation had been charge before an investigation had been made that it had tried to steal certain

It was stated by some of those present that the ballot boxes would be opened in May, if no investigation was had before that time, and that then the facts would be better known. It was the opinion of many members of the party during the spring that nothing more should be said or done by the house in relation to the minor offices, unless the senate would act notil

The blow is a heavy one for his relatives and friends, for the processing in the descent of the control o counsel for two or three corporations in whose interest I should have appeared before the proper committees of the general assembly, if they had been attacked. I know of no general legislation, or special legislation of any consequence, that any of them desired. Yet this is none of your business, especially you who are a personal beneficiary of the only successful strike I ever knew to have been made against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company by a rival, threatening par-ability and a man endowed with true Christian virtues. The deceased leaves a wife. He was one of the most popular citizens of Westville and, as stated, enjoyed a large and lucrative practice in that section. He was well liked by all who knew him and was ever ready to do anyone a service if it lay in his power. His loss to the community will be felt by a large number of sorrowing friends. STATE CORRESPONDENCE.

Mr. Judson's Testimony.

Hon. Stiles Judson, a member of the house committee on canvass of votes for state officers, has written a statement about a column and a half long to the Bridgeport Standard. This statement in the main supports the position taken by Hon. Lynde Harrison in his open letters to Editor Porter. He says that according to his understanding of the matter, Mr. Porter, up to the time of calling in Mr. Cole and Mr. Buck as counsel, was in favor of seating Mr. Alsop and Mr. Phelan. After this consultation he was opposed to a declaration seating them. Mr. Judson further says that a change in the form of the report was made before signing, and he adds:

To show conclusively that the report as finally made was not to be understood as being final as to lieutenant-governor or secretary, permit me to quote from my speech in the debate had on the subject of the adoption. runs through the whole of it. You state that I met you on the floor of the house on January 27th and I upbraided you for not coming up the night before, etc., etc. What I really said was, "Why did you not come up to our meeting last evening?" "Because I was busy and I did not feel well," you replied. "I am sorry," I said, and the matter dropped there.

You write, in regard to your being present with the committee at its meeting in the Capitol on the same day, that you stated that you desired to go to New Haven on the next train, but I, especially, was so urgent that you consented to remain. What I casually remarked was, when you took out your watch and said you must be going to the train, "Well, there is another train in a short time (naming the hour); why not take that?" These are small matters in themselves, but will be seen later, at the critical points or your so-called argument. They and exaggerations like them are the only pegs on which you could hang your false inferences and wrong deductions.

Your "open latter" may logically be classified under three heads, viz.:

I. The attitude of the leaders of the republican party of Connectiont to the elecpublican party of Connecticut to the elec-ion problem before the convening of the

which I was appointed a member, without olicitation on my part.

III. The alleged "influence" which was brought to bear upon myself and the other members of the committee to make them 'change" their report.

Your remarks under each of these head Your remarks under each of these heads
I propose to analyze, concealing nothing.
In the first place, as your letter makes no unfavorable comment on my share in shaping the policy of the party previous to the meeting of the legislature—but as you acknowledge, rather, that, at that time, I held sound and liberal views looking towards a fair and honest settlement of the difficulty—I need only add that I agree with you in stating that the attitude of republicans in general on this subject was eminently fair and unprejudiced.
They expressed themselves, in private consultations, as well as in public, as in favor of doing what was legally sound and morally just, without regard to personal considerations, or the braggadocio of their opponents. Can I name any exceptions! Yes! I am told that at "A gathering in a neighboring city of several of the leading republicans of the state"—referred to in your letter—that you, Mr. Harrison, before the general assembly had met, and before it had had an opportunity to consider the accuracy of the official returns—stated, in substance, to other gentlemen who were present, that your relations to your clients would not permit you under any circumstances to endorse any ander any circumstances to endorse any colicy which might cause delay, or a break in the session. This I can prove on reliale authority. I, whom you accuse aving acted falsely, had no "clients;" had never been approached by, or agreed to give my support to any men, corpora-tions or measures, certain or likely to come before the general assembly. Are you willing to make so sweeping a statement on the pour willing to make any statement on this point? Personally it made a differ-willing to make so sweeping a statement? Are you willing to make any statement on this point? Personally it made a difference of a good many hundreds of dollars to me that the legislature should go on, as each session my paper has published a "Legislative Annual."

In the second place we come to the period after the organization and during the recess of the house, while the committee was taking testimony. Here is your version of what happened after the recess of the house of January 21st: That I met you with two or three others at the foot of the steps leading to the speaker's desk and requested you to go to the Allyn House and meet myself and the other republican members of the committee on canvass of votes, for the purpose of discussing the kind of report that we should make upon the vidence which we had taken. I expressly stated, you add, that I objected to doing what I had been urged by some gentlemen to do—to make a seport statement of this point? Personally it made a difference of a good many hundreds of dollars to me that the legislature should go on, as each session my paper has published a "Legislative Annual."

pressly stated, you add, that I objected to doing what I had been urged by some gen-tlemen to do—to make a report which would keep out of office some of the dem-ocratic candidates whom I believed had been elected; and I stated, you say, that I did not propose to be bulldozed by certain persons whom I named, into making any such report. I deny the truth of the above statement in toto. It is twisted and biased in the ingenious manner already explained by previous instances. What I really did say was that I wished you would discuss the subject with us, as other prominent republicancy hed done so and you as you and did not know what information they had obtained. I said that I was anxious that a perfectly fair report should be made; that no man should be kept out of office who was justly entitled to it; that is should not be controlled by the opinion of any one man, but in forming my conclu-sion I wished to hear the views of all. But your allegation discloses its falseness on the very face of it. If I had made up my mind that certain democratic or other candidates had been elected, why should l wish to have you go with me (to quote your own language) "for the purpose of discussing" the kind of report we should

The meeting above referred to occurred on January 21st. The next meeting of the committee was held on Monday, January 26th. You allege that at the former date "no one suggested that there should be any report declaring that the democratic candidates for lieutenant-governor, secretary or comptroller were not elected, nor did any one in that room suggest that there should be any prolonged delay as to those men who were believed to have been elected, for the purpose of coercing the democratic senate." Here we have three of your mis-statements, made with deliberate design, all crowded together in one sentence. First, the committee separated without reaching any conclusion in favor of the seating of the lleutenant-governor, secretary or comptroller, but, on the con-

you did meet with it again on January 27th, for the purpose of presenting your views on the situation. Just as in the former instance, I was anxious that you ahould be present and state your views, as I knew they differed more or less from those of the other prominent members of the party. I was also glad to have the party. I was also glad to have the committee avail itself of your experience.

with or without an investigation. It is because I trust the wrong may yet be righted that I have called public attention to the matter, and I shall not cease to do so. At the proper time and in proper ways it will be demonstrated to the people of the state of Connecticut ways it will be demonstrated to the people of the state of Connecticut that the republicans, since the examination of a large number of ballot boxes in May, have no possible case under which they can claim the minor state offices. You unfortunately seem to be joined to your idols and I fear you are past repentance.

In your letter you attempt no defense and make no reply to the positive assertions that Dr. Alsop and Mr. Phelan were elected, and that they are entitled to their offices. Your silence upon the subject is a confession that I am right, and you may as well understand that there are tens as well understand that there are tens of thousands of republicans in this state who will not sustain you in any attempt you may make to further continue the mis-taken course which has been followed up-this, which in itself is quite honorable.

The first serious complaint made against you is that after holding these views and after a report had been prepared on certain lines of fairness and equity, to which you assented, you changed that report and brought before your associates on the committee a report which was presented to the house, and by the adoption of which Dr.

Alsop and Mr. Phelan were deprived of offices to which they were elected. This charge you have denied by interview, and upon page 5 of your letter you seem to continue to deny it, although by inference from your statements rather than by direct denial. Upon this issue between us I call your attention specifically to a telegram which you filed at the office of the Western Union Telegraph company at ten minutes before 12 of the night of January 27. It is addressed to me and reads as follows:

On revision we have thought best to modify our report materially. Think you will approve final result and our reasons.

It is unfortunate that you did not think best, on revision of your letter this morning, to go to the office of the Western uning, to go to the office of the western uning, days before the report appeared, all bearing out the conclusions which it contained. You must be egotistical indeed if it causes you to be nettled and excites your indignation that an hour's work of your own with the committee would not easily enable them to reverse the views which they had been more and more in favor of adopting the more deeply and critically they studied the defective nature of the "face of the returns."

It is unfortunate that you did not think best, on revision of your letter this morning, to go to the office of the Western Union Telegraph company in Hartford, read your telegram and materially modify portions of your letter. The reasons for material modifications in your letter would be understood by the public without explanation on your part, and the final result for yourself would have been better. ounsel for two or three corporations and was not to be understood as being final as to lieutenant-governor or secretary, permit me to quote from my speech in the debate had on the subject of the adoption of the committee's report:

"The evidence conclusively shows that enough votes were illegally thrown out at the polls to change the result as to the offices of governor and treasurer, and it is found that, as to these officers, there has been no election by the people. It also appears that the democratic candidate for comptroller is duly elected. As to the offices of lieutenant governor and secretary, that it cannot be determined by these returns whether any person has a majority eturns whether any person has a majority of the votes cast. "There having been no election of gov-ernor or treasurer, it is the clear duty of the general assembly in joint convention to proceed to the election of a governor and treasurer, in the manner pointed out by he constitution, and thus end a strife that has already occupied more time than is justified by the facts in the case.

"As to the offices of lieutenant governor and secretary there should be further and more extended investigation, but the same should be had without obstruction to the regular business of the session, and if the democratic candidates for those offices are legally elected thereto, let us not hesitate to make the necessary declaration."

Fatal to the Cows. BRIDGEPORT, July 16 .- A mysterious nd fatal disease has broken out among the cows in this vicinity during the past nonth. The malady made its appearance during the calving season. When the calf is hardly a week old the mother cow will be suddenly taken sick and will lie down on the ground. It will remain in this position for several days, suffering intensely, until it finally dies. The calf if properly taken care of generally survives.

In conversation with the writer yesterday a North Bridgeport farmer said that the fatality from the disease at the present time was really alarming. "I know of at time was really alarming. "I know of at least two dozen cows," said he, "that have been lost by this ailment in my immediate vicinity during the past month." During the past few days the cows in the Goosethe past rew days the cows in the Goose-town district have become affected, and a day or two ago Edward Hughes, the ice man, lost a valuable cow from the aliment referred to. Matthew Fitzpatrick, one of Mr. Hughes' neighbors, has lost two cows from the same cause.
