THANKSGIVING DAY.

THE WEEKLY JOURNAL

When the Puritans had the first Thanks giving Day, two hundred and sixty years ago, the fact that they had harvested good crops was one of the chief causes of their hankfulness. At the mention of Thanks giving Day this year the first thought is of he tremendous crops which have been cathered. Their quantity and value are set forth in figures whose meaning is prac tically inconceivable. People cannot un lerstand 3,000,000,000 or 4,000,000,000, but they can understand that there is nough to eat in this country and a great surplus to sell. RECENT PUBLICATIONS. "Fisher Ames-Henry Clay, Etc." These distinguished names give a title to the first volume of the Hour-Glass series, a series to be extended should these epi-tomes of history meet the favor of the public. The authors of these papers, which are of national interest, are Daniel B. Lucas, L.L. D., and J. Fairfax Mc-Laughlin, L.L. D. To controvert the stements of some foreign writers, draw truthfully in miniature some of "our own great originals," to get behind the scenes of actual occurrences, is the animating motive of these papers, which have been thoughtfully prepared, inspired by a feeling of genuine and earnest patriotism. The paper on "The Origin of the Star Spangled Rayses" in Spangled Banner" is especially interesting. Charles L. Webster & Co., New York

For sale by E. P. Judd. "The Happy Isles and Other Poems," by S. H. M. Byers. This little volume contains some forty poems, several of which bear upon events of the civil war. Some bear upon events of the civil war. Some of them have already been published in magazines. The book does not impress by any special power or originality, but that perhaps will not interfere with a very genuine enjoyment of the contents, for the author wields a ready pen and betrays a relish for the work that is contagious. Charles L. Webster & Co., New York. For sale by E. P. Judd.

"Mysterious Mrs. Wilkinson and Other"

"Mysterious Mrs. Wilkinson and Other Stories," by W. E. Norris, author of "Matrimony," etc. Four entertaining and well-told tales, with eleverness rather more lengthy works, and character-study somewhat less so. To begin one of these stories is to finish it; to read one is to read the rest. "Lumley the Painter," by John Strange Winter, author of "Bootles' Baby," etc. A brilliant and entertaining novel, like most of the author's stories, and full of delicate touches both in description and character-sketching. The volumes have been issued recently in Lov-ell's Westminster series. John W. Lovell, New York. For sale by E. P. Judd.

"Thomse Carlyle's Moral and Religious evelopment," a study, by Ewald Flugel. Translated from the German by Jessica Gilbert Tyler. To consider Carlyle as a moral force, and to do this in the light of investigation as related to his writings and his life, was the author's aim in the prepture of the constant of the same and enermous beard gave him the appearance of a Colossus, and he had to have powerful horses to carry his weight through the fatigues of a campaign. Mr. Froude writes to him as follows: Your admirable little ook is the first sign I have seen of an independent and clear insight into Carlyle's life, work and character, as it will one day be universally recognized by mankind. The work of translation has been admira-bly done. M. L. Holbrook & Co., New York. For sale by E. P. Judd.

"The Children of Wilton Chase," by L r. Meade, author of "Polly, a New-Fash oned Girl," etc. A story for which Ermie, the selfish girl, deceitful and un happy, is well contrasted with honest and generous Marjorie; Basil is a manly and noble big brother, while even impish Eric is interesting in his boyish pranks. The esson of the story is an excellent one, and it is brought out in a style both entertaining and forcible. Cassell Publishing Co., New York. For sale by E. P. Judd. "The Little Millionaire," by Martha L. foodey, is the story of a winsome and willful little lad whose life is made a burden to him by a species of home tyranny which is founded upon intense affection and solicitude. He suffers for the need of a little wholesome neglect, and the expres-sion of his discontent, "This is such a sion of his discontent, "This is such a ruly house—and I, I want to stretch myself," is sufficiently suggestive. The doctor's prescription, "Forget yourself and remember everybody else," was a whole-some one, and worked marvels with the wayward child, who begins to appreciate money when he finds how much of comfort and pleasure he can give to children less favored by fortune. Jim, the bootblack, and Elizabeth Dove, who lives upon a roof and dresses cast-off dolls for the children at a hospital, help to teach him lessons of patience, honor and duty. The book is handsomely bound and has many illustrations, which are, however, of unequal merit. D. Lothrop Co., Boston. For sale by E. P. Judd.

Eminent Generals in the Saddle. Major George F. Williams in "The Rider

Major-General George B. McClellan was one of the handsomest men on horseback in the federal service. He sat in the saddle with a grace and ease peculiarly his own. All his appointments were in the most correct taste, and his horses were full-blooded animals. Wearing highly colished riding-boots coming up nearly to ais hips and wrinkled from the instep to the knee, he would go splashing over the coads until horse, rider and boots were overed with Virginia mud, probably the stickiest substance in existence. His serrant always had a clean pair of boots for he general on his return to quarters, after which the man would spend a couple of nours cleaning the other pair. The soltime than any other general in the army. McClellan always rode at a slapping pace, and saw that his staff were well mounted, for nothing more displeased him than their for nothing more displeased him than their inability to keep up with him. He was very cool on the battlefield, and used to ride from point to point in the calmest manner. Without attempting the cavalry seat or style, McClellan had at all times a was intensified by his habit of rising in his stirrups on reaching a turn in the road or some advantageous point of observa-tion. While always careful of his snimals, Sherman did not appear to have that fondness for them that is so common among good horsemen. He was constantly on the go, and his eye seemed to be everywhere except where his horse was treading. Sherman's rein was rather a loose one, for he trusted apparently to the natural sagacity of his steed rather than to his own guidance. Seen at the head of a column of troops, or giving orders for their disposition on the field, Sherman presented a remarkable figure. Riding presented a remarkable figure. Riding along the road he was constantly gazing about him, noting the lay of the land passed over, as if internally planning how a battle could be fought there.

Lieutenaut-General James Longstreet was magnificent on horseback. His bulky figure and spounds beard over him the who fought under him have told me that Longstreet had always a gracious manner, and he was unvarying in the observances of politeness. He had a swinging seat, as or politeness. He had a swinging seat, as most heavy men have. I had a glimpse of General Longstreet at Gettysburg. The third corps had met with a reverse to the right of Little Round Top, and my corps, the fifth, ran up from its reverse position to take the place of Sirkles' men. Through the sweet of the lattice of the the smoke of the battle, after we had climbed up and retaken the Little Round Top, a brother officer loaned me his glass and pointed out the confederate corps commander. Longstreet looked grand as he sat calmly on his horse, evidently giving directions for another forward move-ment, which we were soon after compelled to meet. It is related of him that he never seemed flurried in the heat of the bat tle, and issued his orders in the most mat-ter-of-fact way. He was a grand horse-man and entirely at home in the saddle. Major-General Joseph Hooker was probever rode at the head of a federal army. He was a true soldier of the old type, had

Captain Townshend reported that 1,200 feet of the west breakwater was com-pleted. He also stated that he had been pleted. He also stated that he had been informed that 110 vessels, exclusive of small craft, had taken refuge inside the breakwater during the last storm. He continued, stating that the cyster grounds inside the breakwater were protected by he breakwater. Captain Townshend, as chairman of a committee, read a bill which will be pre-sented to congress asking for the appro-priation of $1,000,000 to pay the expenses of surveys and purchase of land sites for the erection of fortifications at the eastern entrance to Long Island sound. The text of the bill will be found appended below. The report was accepted, the committee to congress.

Third Organ Recital. Mr. Hedden's third organ recital last evening was attended by a good sized audience. The organist's fine technique was shown to advantage in the fourth sonata of Mendelssohn, and in two other beautiful selections by French organists of the modern school. Dubois' march of Magi Kings was strikingly picturesque and depicted in a perfect tone picture the desert pilgrimage of the three wise men on their camels, toward the guiding star, which is suggested by a sustained high note. Handel's fourth concerto was an in-teresting number, as was also the Vorspiel to Wagner's Tristen and Isolde, which has

The vocalist was Mrs. Charles Tyler Dutton of New York, who possesses a lovely voice of sympathetic quality and rare clearness. She was much admired in her beautiful rendition of "Hear ye Israel" by Mendelssohn, as well as in "These are They" from Gaul's Holy City, and Moir's 'Children Asleep.'

Ward Politics.

Politics in the Eighth ward are boon ing. The republicans have up for alderman J. M. Crampton, the well-known lac curtain and window shade dealer, and the democrats are all at sea yet as to their can didate. Various consultations, conferences and gatherings have been held on the subject and the differences of opinion prevailing preclude as yet any certain prophesying as to who the fortunate or unfortunate man will be, but names prominently mentioned are ex-Postmaster B. R. English, Mr. Matthews, the State street merchant and Frank Kelly, the lawyer, all of whom are being urged to carry the democratic banner in the coming contest. Mr. Crampton stands well in the good opinion and esteem of all in the ward, as a citizen and business man. As a member of the common council a few years ago he did able and efficient work, and if elected alderman, as there is excellent prospect that he will be, he will, in the opinion of the ward's inhabitants, irrespective of political creed, do excellent work for the city and credit to himself and his ward.

The Second ward democrats last night nominated the following ward ticket: For alderman, Prentice W. Chase. For councilmen, Bernard Brady, C.E. Longdon Fred Goetz

The idea at the meeting was that this ticket, which is headed by Lawyer Chase, might win, but Goetz's friends were rather

Dr. Weston will preach the serme at the union religious service to be held in Ferry street church this morning at 11 o'clock. Services will be held at St. Francis church at 7 and 8 a.m. The postoffice and the stores will close at noon. There will be one delivery by carriers, who leave the main office at 8 a. m., one hour later than usual.

One of the Consumers' Ice company's wagons got stalled on Blatchley avenue near Woolsey street yesterday and was delayed half an hour, the wheels having become imbedded to the hubs in the sand. Richard G. Davis, the feed man, pur chased a horse at auction sale yesterday for $130 and Allen, the liveryman, bought one for $80. These are about half the tation. Allen is one of the star goal tenders of the polo league. Phelan, formerly halfback of the New Haven team, has given up polo for good, and is now working his up polo for good, and is now working his latter, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hemingway.

fair sized and much pleased audience last evening. The play is a happy combination of novelty, humor and excitement, is which the most realistic scenic mechanism and effects are produced, and while it is omedy melo-drama it is devoid of the ob ectionable features of melo-drama, in that exaggeration is avoided and the intenses terest excited. The actors have the play vell divided between them, and each does his or her part well, and none suffer in comparison. In this respect the play is quite remarkable. The situations are natural, though thrilling, and the mechan-ism and scenery, by which the railroad representatious are effected, are as real as art and skill can make them. The arrival of the limited express at the end of the third act set the audience astir with inter est and excitement and produced sponta neous and enthusiastic applause. The play will be repeated this evening and at a special Thanksgiving matinee this after-

Helen Barry, supported by an unusually well selected company, will appear in the sparkling comedy, "A Night's Frolic, Saturday evening.

Beginning Monday, November 30, and for the entire week, including the Wednesday and Saturday matiness, the grand New York and Boston success "The Soudan," will be presented at the Hyperion at prices

On Thursday and Friday Stahl's latest and best effort, "Said Pasha," will be pre-sented; on Saturday matines the New York Casino success, "Erminie;" Saturday e ning, "Mascot"

PROCTOR'S OPERA HOUSE. The American drama of "The Witch" was presented here last evening to quite a well filed house. It is a play of great historical interest, as setting forth the superstitions and narrowness of the early Puritans. Miss Marie Hubert Frohman, in the character of Marguerite, the Witch, received well earned applause. Mr. Charles Jeblinger also enacted his role of the lover to the sati faction of the audience. This is one of the best plays that have been here this season and the people who had the good fortune to be present spent their ening most agreeably.

Frank Harvey's really strong play 'Woman against Woman," will be pre sented this afternoon and evening and for the balance of the week by a specially selected and efficient company. All the leading characters are well sustained, and the play is full of interest and well worth seeing by all who have a liking for the BELL'S DIME MUSEUM. At Bell's Church street dime museur ast evening the beautiful illusion "Rock of Ages" was very successfully shown for the twentieth time. Sonwell, the rattlemake king, fascinated everybody by his difficult and dangerous performance. The sailor whistlers gave away clever specimens of their work in the shape of a fan to every lady visiting the museum. The museum will open at 9 a.m. to-day. PLEASANTLY SURPRISED.

The name Byzantine was first applied to a style of architecture developed in the Byzantine Empire about A. D. 300.

Its leading forms are the Round Arch, the Dome, the Pillar, the Circle and the Cross. The Mosque of St. Sophia, Constantinople, and the church of St. Marks, Venice, are prominent examples of Byzantine Architecture.

One of the most progressive American manufacturers of carpet fabrics has happily combined many of the beautiful forms peculiar to the Byzantine era in the production of a new kind of Rugs, which are properly called the "Byzantine."

The purity of the designs, and absence of offensive colorings, will commend them to all persons of good taste.

Associated with straw mattings in the furnishing of a chamber, library or dining com, the effect is charming beyond that of any combination heretofore presented.

We now have in stock a fine variety of styles, in sizes from the small mat up the largest carpet squares, together with a large and elegant line of Turkish and Oriental and when the natives rose they met with no material opposition, for the officials were practically helpless. It may be, he stated, that the local governor in his report of the occurrence to the Pekin government does not place the blame upon the natives of the province, but places the responsibility for the crimes to bands of Mongolian robbers, who, he says, made a raid through the dis-trict. Whatever the truth may be the general government has taken steps to preven any further outrages on foreigners or na tive Christians in the district. Under or ders from Pekin all the troops available were immediately upon the receipt of in-formation regarding the trouble dispatched to the scene of the disturbances.

Mr. Hyde is abundantly satisfied with the work accomplished by the committee. He had thought all along that the indications pointed to the choice of Minneapolis as the convention city and voted for it, practicing tricks for to-morrow's game and running. The Princeton team left for New York at 5 o'clock. The members of the team are confident they will give Yale all she wants to do, and expect to win if they succeed in keeping Yale from scoring during the first quarter hour. They say their team has immense endurance, plays a great defensive game and has the hour. great defensive game and has the bes ullback in the country in Homans f he has a fair chance a Yale's goal anywhere within forty yards of it, it is more than likely that the pigskin will drop between the posts. M. de Giers' Mission in Traveling Aboad. BERLIN, Nov. 25 .- Chancellor Von Capivi this morning paid an official visit to M. De Giers, the Russian minister of forsign affairs. The truth as to the object of M. De Giers' travels leaked out last evening probably intentionally and it has been confirmed apparently by the emperor himself. The secret of these conferences is that Russia desires peace in Europe for some time to come at least and that M. De Giers has been sent to call attention to this fact and to see if it is not possible to bring about the desired peace. It is now frankly admitted in official circles that the ravels of M. De Giers have directly or intravels of M. De Giers have directly or in-directly so explained and arranged mat-ters that peace will be maintained.

LONDON, Nov. 25 .- The Standard this morning has advices from China to the effect that the government has decreed that the printing and publishing of antiforeign placards is a capital offence, and has ordered those already convicted of this offence to be beheaded forthwith, and without waiting for the formal imperial authority. It was hoped that these stern measures would have a deferrent effect, measures would have a deterrent enect, and convince the powers that the govern ment was in earnest; as, under ordinary circumstances, a period of two months would elapse before the executions.

this assurance Captain Schley allowed lib-erty to a number of men last Friday and the result was a serious riot. Inves-tigation shows that the trouble commenced in a trivial quarrel between two American and two Chilian sailors. One of the latter finally spat in the face of one of the Americans, who struck his insulter. This was the signal for an attack by a large number of Chilian sailors and boatmen upon the Baltimore's men. None of the Americans were intoxicated and they had no weapons, beyond a few pocket knives. The Chilians used clasp knives freely. The Americans were outnumbered and were forced to retreat. One of the Americans who had been wounded was shot and killed by a policeman. The disturbance was no confined to one locality, but the American were attacked in every part of the town where they were found. There are no knife wounds on the Chilians who were injured. Several received severe bruises. A number of Chilian naval officers attemped to quell the disturbance and were partly successful. HER DEAFNESS CURED. A Well Known Young Lady of Providence Makes an Interesting Statement In Regard to the Manner in

Which She Regained Her

MISS IDA L. HOHLER. "Yes, I have been deaf for some years, and it has been gradually growing worse," said Miss Ida L. Hohler of 6 Portland street, Providence, R. I., to the writer, in reply to a request for a statement of facts. Roaring and Buzzing Noises made me reel so tired and listicss and the so deaf.

This was the condition in which I called on Doctor Roth, who very kindly explained the cause of my deafness, etc., and assured me that he could cure me. The rapidity with which my old symptoms left me was really astonishing. My throat was better almost from the first; the roaring and buzzing noises and dropping are gone, and I hear as well as ever; and surely Doctor Roth is entitled to all the credit, and I most certainly advise all afflicted with deafness, catarrh, or diseases which he treats, to consult him."

With twenty-five years' experience in the manufacture and almost daily application of Trusses and the various appliances for the mechanical treatment of Hernia and around the fire-place and had a good smoke, and then, having expressed our thanks to our hostess, we started for the swamp. Here we were secreted for nearly a week, visited nightly by our colored friend, who brought us provisions and cheered our hearts by his own hopeful a-surances. Near the close of this week of confinement he brought the glad news that Sherman's troops had come up, and lead us to one of the cabins near his own, where we found the orderly of General Howard. By him we were taken to headquarters, and there met such a reception as only the blue coats could give us. We were fitted out with clothing contributed by our fellow officers, and in due season were forwarded to Wilmington, and thence to New York. Thus ended our life of captivity, and our long and exciting escape from the prison pen of Columbia.

HENRY FRANKLIN COWLES.

His Service for His Country—A Brave and Unflinching Patriot.

Henry Franklin Cowles, fourth child of Rev. Orson and Eunice (Foote) Cowles, was born at North Haven, Conn., May 8, 1839.

His early education was obtained at the common schools and academy of his native place.— In 1854 he entered General Russel's commercial institute at New Haven Lawrence Lawr where he remained three years. Leaving that place he engaged in the employ of Williams & Grosvenor of Norwich, Conn., in 1858.

At the call for volunteers in 1861 young Cowles quickly responded. He enlisted as sergeant major in the Second Connecticut infantry, a position which he was well qualified to take by his military training at New Haven. The Second was a three months' regiment recruited mainly from the militia. It left New Haven, May 10, 1861, under the command of Colonel A. H. Terry. It was engaged at the battle of the series and died February 9, 1885.

It remains only to add a few words concerning his religious life. The son of worship serily taught the great truths of Christianity. In 1856 he united with one of the New Haven churches. In 1858, as related, he removed to Norwich, Conn. It is supposed by some neglect or informality he failed to have his church membership transferred; at any rate, he became separated from the New Haven place of worship and thus lost his connection with any religious body. His brother, mentions this occurrence as "a mistake of his boyhood which seriously affected his whole subsequent life." In later years he months' regiment recruited mainly from the militia. It left New Haven, May 10, 1861, under the command of Colonel A. H. Terry. It was engaged at the battle of Bull Run, acquitting itself with honor, notwithstanding the lost fortunes of the day, by retiring in perfect order from the field to its camp at Fort Corocran. For bravery in this battle Cowles was promoted to second lieutenant. He was mustered out with his regiment August 7, 1861.

In the summer of 1862—July and August—the Eighteenth Connecticut was recruiting in the eastern part of the state, with headquarters at Norwich. Cowles determined on a second campaign and was commissioned second lieutenant of Company C, color company, July 26. This regiment was commanded by Captain William G. Ely, who had seen service in both the Second and Sixth Connecticut. It left for Washington, August 22, 1862, and was assigned to the army of the Patonace. regiment was commanded by Captain William G. Ely, who had seen service in both the Second and Sixth Connecticut. It left for Washington, August 22, 1862, and was assigned to the army of the Potomac. It performed guard and garrison duty at Baltimore until May 22, 1863, at which time it was ordered to the department of West Virginia.

it was ordered to the department of West Virginia.

In June, 1863, it was engaged at the battle of Winchester, Va., where a large number of the officers and men were taken prisoners, among them Lieutenant Cowles. He was captured while his regiment was making its third charge to cover the retreating brigades. With characteristic grit Cowles broke his sword and thrust the pieces in the ground, saying to his captors, when it was demanded: "There it is in the ground: if you want it take it." in the ground; if you want it take it."

The total loss of the Eighteenth Connectiont in this battle was 567 killed, wounded and missing, or more than half ts strength. The prisoners were soon paroled, exchanged and returned to their regiment at Harper's Ferry. Lieutenant Cowles was not so fortunate. For some cause never known to him—but probably for the breaking of his sword after his capture—he was taken to Libby prison and there confined ten months. From thence he was removed to Charleston, S. C., and with others confined in that portion of the city exposed to the fire of the union batteries under General Gilmore.

At this place he was seized with sickness and removed to a confederate hospital. Here his attendants were the Sisters of Mercy, who showed him the only kindness He was bound over in each case in $500 to since his capture. They nursed him back to health and of them he always back to health and of them he always spoke in terms of highest appreciation.

The varying fortunes of war compelled the south to make occasional removals of prisoners. At one of these times he was transferred to Macon, Ga., where he remained four months. From this place he was sent to Columbia, S. C.

He had now been twenty months in southern prisons and his exchange seemed remote as ever. On the 14th of February, 1865, he was ordered to be removed once more, and with others placed on a freight ocated, and the other generously left open that we might breathe. The guards were placed on op of the car—the rebels having once before dezeted an attempt to overpower them when stationed inside. As the night came on and we got mider way rain began to fall, which turned into hail, and the storm became so furious that we had to push the door nearly together, leaving only a small aperture for breathing purposes. I had determined to effect my escape, for I did not feel—knowing how poor the confederacy was—that I could any longer trespass upon its hospitality. I had talked over the matter with Captain Hawkins of the Seventy-eighth Illinois and Lieutenant Sears of the Ninety-s xth New York, when we watched in turn at the door, for a favorable chance to escaps. As the train stopped for wood and water, about thirty miles out of Columbia, it was found that seven out of the nine cars of our train had been lost on the road.

After a council was held it was determined to back down and find the missing cars. I told my comrades that now was our time, so after making them both promise to foliow me I jumped out. The ground was covered with sleet and as soon as I struck my feet went from under me and I rolled down the side of the track against the fence. For an instant I expected to have a volley of musket balls poured into me, but as they did not come I gathered myself up and tried to vault over the fence. I got half way over and there stuck, doubting not at this time I should be riduled; but giving another desperate lurch I tumbied the dead first into the field on the opposite morning for the purpose of conferring the third degree on several candidates. There will be no work this evening, owing to its being Thanksgiving. Canton Golden Rule, I. O. O. F., and Canton Golden Rule, 1. O. O. Another New Industry. A new boiler manufactory will be erect ed early next spring on East street, corner of Chapel. The site was purchased on November 11 from Richard L. Story, and the dimensions of the lot are 80x192 feet. The purchaser was Henry Elson of Pearl street, who a few years ago was a stock-holder in the Bigelow company. Mr. Elson sold out his interest in the company about that time, and his son, Frank Elson, who is superintendent of the Bigelow compa-ny's factory and has been connected with the circumstances. After repeated attempts we got a fire started and bringing forth our corm bread and hard tack we all sat around the fire and warmed ourselves and ate our breakfests as tree men once more. We then weat as far into the forest as we could, still keeping the fire in view, where we waited for something to turn up. We remained here, I suppose, about two hours, all too thoroughly drenched and to excited by our novel position to sleep, when to our great joy we saw our picket appraching the firs accompanied by a nearo. He listened very quietly to all we said and then assured us in the first place that we ran no risk in staying near our fire, as there would probably be no white persons along that way. We told him that as our provisions were nearly exhausted he could best serve us if he would go back to his cabin and get from the other negroes, or any one else, such estables as we could most readily carry. At nightfall our faithful guide came back, bringing with him corn meal, corn bread and cooked and raw bacon, upon which we all fell like wolves, and ate a ubscantial supper. Gathering from him all pessible information as to our route, and being sed by him for some hitle way we pushed on our exciting course, meeting with a variety of adventures and finding our way to freedom, about as 'hard a road as Jordan' to travel. Two days and nights passed in this sort of weary wandering, when I was startled while on watch by the distant booming of artillery. At once it occurred to us, 'this is old Tecumseh, riving them a little serenade at Columbia!' Inspirited by this music we started on again, heading for Wilmington, N. C. Through swamps and woods, weary, hungry and ragged, we still held on our route until we came across another negro. He also proved a friend in need, and from him we learned that we were near one of the principal roads, and that his master said that probably some of General Sherman's army would pass that way and advised us, instead of trying to pass the rebel lines to reach our own, to let him also sold out his interest. the new company in process of formation, which will probably be a stock company of from $50,000 to $75,000 capital.

CAPTURED THE ROBBER.

lames Moran Arrested in Woodbridge-Another Charge Against The thief who attempted highway robbery about 3 o'clock Sunday morning, but found that his intended victim was too strong for him, was captured in Woodbridge early yesterday morning by Officers Gibson and Welch and Constable Horace Small. Captain Brewer of precinct station No. 4 has had two men on the trail of the assailant for several days. The officers discovered that the man they wanted was ames Moran, who was employed on a farm n Woodbridge. Yesterday morning about 4:30, when the fficers found Moran in a barn he started to run across the fields, with the officers in pursuit. A fence crossed their path, which followed and in some way his revolver was discharged and the ball lacerated one finger badly. Then Officer Welch sprinted away from the rest and captured Moran just as he was about to enter a swamp.

He was taken to the precinct office and while being examined there it was discovered that he had certain clothing upon him which resembled that stolen from Bernard which resembled that stolen from Bernard Burns' house the night of October 31. Later the clothing was fully identified as the property of Mr. Burns, and now there are two serious charges against Moran—burglary and highway robbery.

Mr. Burns' house was entered through a back window, which was broken in by the burglar. Only clothing was stolen.

The injury to Mr. Small's finger is a painful one, but not serious.

Woman's Needlework Guild. to the Editor of the Journal and Courier: Among the many beneficent societies sustained by the ladies of New Haven is the "Woman's Needlework Guild." Its unostentations but efficient method of carrying relief and comfort to needy women and children is worthy of the highest com-mendation. This simple organization lays no obligations upon its members, except to no obligations upon its members, except to supply annually two plain, substantial gar-ments, made or purchased during the year. These are brought to the one yearly gath-ering and left with a committee of their own number, who select for their almon-ers persons who labor among those to whom such garments are a great help and relief.

Such Christlike services are mere trifles, omparatively, to those who, in the leisure of a year, may find only pleasure in pre-paring a few warm garments, but they are among the unheralded blessings that our Lord counts as service rendered to himself. From a sweet whisky punch, diluted a first to be palatable to the delicate feline taste, Tom rapidly increased the strength of his tipple until he drank whisky straigh in large quantities as he could obtain it. The result was that Tom became a con-The result was that Tom became a con-firmed toper and has been one for years. During the latter part of every afternoon and every evening Tom is to be found in the bar or billiard room of the hotel and associates with the guests of the hotel as if one of the party. When three or four men leave the billiard room to go to the bar Tom follows with them. He goes behind the bar and announces his desire to drink by placing his paws on the bartender's

Tom quickly laps up his whisky, and, if it be his first drink of the day, will go to the lunch counter and demand to be fed by purring and mewing. After the meal Tom retires to the billiard room, gets upon a seat and waits to be petted. In a short time his desire for drink returns, and he goes to the bar and announces his presence if he be not immediately served. This continues all the night or until Tom gets such a "jag" on that it is all he can do to walk straight. He will then try to get upon a seat, and if too drunk to do that, with all the gravity of an intoxicated person, will walk out of the billiard room and, blear-eyed and unsteady in his legs, will wander up through the different floors wander up through the different floors of the hotel, sometimes taking the eleva-tor if climbing the stairs is too tiresome

when moderately sobered up he will re-turn to the bar for his "nightcap." If given him he will disappear to some sleeping place not to be seen again until late the next day. If refused his "nightcap" he becomes offended and goes to the coal bin to sleep off his spree, only to appear the next evening looking very dirty and "rocky" and the janitor has a job to clean him

Financial. Leading Shares-The Afternoon In-The stock market here to-day opened firm and almost all the leading shares scored fractional gains in the first hour, but the coal stocks wer laggards and later developed considerable weak ness which encouraged pressure upon the rest of the list. The grangers showed some animation but only in the forenoon. The only features were some of the industrials and New York, On tario and Western, buying in last named but quite marked and resulting in a sharp advance from 19¼ to 20½. Distillers was specially weak. Cordage preferred, however, rose. All these changes were modified in the later trading and noon was intensely dull. Railroad bonds were quiet with only a few ma-terial changes. Reading firsts furnished $115,000 to the day's total of $1,449,000. Following are the closing prices, reported by PRINCE & WHITELY, bankers and brokers, 64 Broadway, N.
