ANOTHER TOUCHING SPEECH. The speeches made by Mr. Clevelan ince his election have been interesting them he has made it quite plain that he is also deeply grateful to those who wen out of their way to make him president Indeed, he has appeared to be so weighed down with "responsibility" and "grati tude" that a sentimental person could not refrain from being sorry for him and hoping that strength would be given him to bear his responsibility, and that oppor tunity to show his gratitude would come his way. He left New York yesterday in search of rest, but before he left he made an atterance which will show again to his faithful friends and supporters how heavy his responsibility is and how much he values their friendship and support. It is not quite so touching to a sentimentalist as some of his other heavy-laden plaints have been, but it will sharply touch a vast num ber of Democratic patriots who are not especially sentimental. These were his touching words: I desire to give as much publicity as possible to the statement that I do not propose to consider application for office prior to my inauguration and I shall avoid all interviews on that subject, Those who under any pretense gain an opportunity to present their applications ersonally, or those who burden me at this time with written applications, cannot possibly do anything which would so interfere with their chances of success

Written applications will be so little regarded that I doubt if they ever see the files in Washington. Mr. Cleveland has made some moving speeches, including the one delivered at the millionaire's dinner the other evening, but he has never made a speech that went directly home to more "bosoms" than this will. We suppose that there are at least a their great leader's responsibility and gratitude they will, we doubt not, appreciate his position. They know that he has no time to think of them. They know that he must be as quiet as pos-Democratic egg. And they don't want office for themselves. They know, of course, that the country needs them, but they feel sure that it can get along better without them than it can without Mr. Cleveland. They want him to have a free mind and an unclouded judgment while he is staggering under his responsibility and gratitude, and so they will cheerfully relinquish whatever idea they may have had of bothering him about offices. And if the time ever does come when he feels like listening to them they will be modest and unobtrusive in the presentation of their claims. They don't really want "license to revel in partisan spoils," and if Mr. Cleveland thinks they had better not ask for it they wont. And they will be entirely ontent to see him use the license they gave him as he sees fit. They have saved the country and they have loaded him with "responsibility" and "gratitude." But they don't want their services recognized unless they ought to be. Oh no! EDITORIAL NOTES. Nobody wants to be what he is, but who would be a turkey!

Some think that the action of the Eastern Trunk Line association concerning fares to and from Chicago next year was an speriment to try the temper of the publio. If it was it was a very successful expariment. It has severely tried the temper of the public.

A student in a Kansas college sent a leter to the Hutchinson News the other day n which he spelled "eaten" with two ta. This was away out in uncultured Kansas, but a Yale junior wrote a few lines for the OURNAL AND COURIER last week containng the curious word "acomadated." A bill has been introduced in the Geor-

is legislature to allow State banks to isue notes, as soon as congress has repealed the prohibitory tax. The bill provides hat the banks shall deposit as collateral with the State treasurer State and municipal bonds to an amount equaling the cir-

shoes of aluminum. They have shod corses with one aluminum shoe and three of iron. The aluminum has stood it best, has lasted longer and has protected the foot in better shape. It weighs only onequarter as much as the iron shoe. Aluminum shoes may work very well with the pneumatic tire.

A new way of meeting college expense opened to impecunious students by the new Chicago university, that of running one of the 4,000 preambulating chairs at the world's fair. They can chose between ts greatest politicians. We know, as the end man in the minstrel show says, that $1 per day and 10 per cent of their receipt they have built all the railroads of this or a certain percentage of their daily receipts. It is an interesting fact that the grea Suez canal, on which floats the merchan ships of all the nations of the earth, is yet the avenue for the transportation of a smaller amount of freight by 2,000,000 tons than is carried annually through the now rudely snatched away, or, at least, little Sault St. Mary's canal, which affords waterway between Michigan and the Province of Ontario. A writer in an engineering journal ar-having been long ago snatched away, the fact is now announced. Florence Nightgues that the increased cost of electric motors over steam locomotives "will be a most serious obstacle to the utilization of should hear less of unloved and unlovely electricity for steam railroad trains." After the death of his Hurrah for the Irish, first in war, first in His Majesty the widows may, if they depolities and first in the favor and sire, marry again, but they usually remain single and guard the Imperial grave.

My fashion plate to-day depicts a modish ress in which the distinctive feature is a ull skirt. I may aver one thing and prophesy another. The first is that skirts re to be cut with more fulness; the sec end, that the "improver" is not far from as and will soon reappear in our midst. During the summer I saw that these things would shortly be. Madame Sarah Bernardt, who is a fashion prophetess, wore when last in this country both the full skirt and the bustle, and though we thought that for us at least the time for the revival of the latter improvement had carcely come, I was of the opinion that that great lady's example would very speedily be followed by the more advanced of fashion's disciples. I may add, however, that in Paris the improver never entirely declined from favor; it was there will. We suppose that there are at least a million Democrats who feel that Mr. Cleveland's responsibility and gratitude are of right inseparably connected with them. If such Democrats are all over the country in the same proportion as in New Haven, there are more than a million. But however many they are, and however much they want some tangible expression of their organic leader's responsibility and great their organic leader's responsibility and great their organic leader's responsibility and great the trying server is a suppose that there are at least a million between the time, but so alightly evident that the ordinary observer did not realize it. We hope we may not have to realize it too forcibly in the coming by and-by. As a rule, unfortunately, we Americans are prone to exaggeration in dress, a fault your Parisienne is never guilty of, and one that we should do well to guard against. Regarding the fuller skirt we are glad of it, fearing, as we did, that we were about to emulate the trying tightness of the sheath-like garment that went by the name of a skirt some ten years

But how shall our skirts be trimmed: One of the newest modes is the goffered or slightly kilted narrow frill, put on in a widely vandyked form round the edge of the skirt. A charming example of this was shown to me on an afternoon bonse gown of rich striped silk, which had a triple row of frills of self-colored silk set on in this billowy and very becoming manner. Another novelty is provided by velvet ribbon or merv twisted on the skirt, and adorned at intervals with huge flat bows of the same.

Romantic fiction in the United Sta egan with the publication in 1798 Wieland," the first of a series of six novels written by Charles Brockden Brown. The author was a young man, an invalid, and with narrow means, who relinquished his profession, the law, because of his thusiastic love of literature. It has been said by an eminent critic that his works de-serve to be ranked among the wonderful productions of the human mind. This pi neer American novelist delighted to an yze the phenomena of consciousness, to ring human nature under mystic or ex traordinary influences, and mark the con sequences. Such agencies as pestilence somnambuliem, rare coincidence and ven triloquiem, are brought to act upon indi-viduals of excitable or introspective chareter, and the result is often thrilling lis novels were original in every sens and though in many respects faulty, they have now in their favor the voice of Britforgotten by Americans, since their au-thor was first of American writers to set an example of literary independence, and first to devote himself to literary pursui as a regular occupation. A descriptive narrative of the voyages and career of Columbus and the precursors of his great discovery, with the sequel as seen in the United States, by Kinahan Cornwallis. This volume of descriptive verse is the first of a series dealing with the history of America. The writer, who is editor and proprietor of the New York Daily Investigator, and author of many volumes of travel and adventure, is thoroughly in love with his subject, which has been elaborated in his lefaure hours into a poetical narrative. The metre has an easy swing, and the work has the merit of historical accuracy in every particular. Published at the office of the Daily Inves-

Paris, Nov. 22 .- The lobbies of the chamber of deputies before the beginning of to-day's regular session were crowded with members discussing the probable omposition of the Panama Canal company inquiry committee. Many members remarked that it would be difficult to define the extent of the company's powers and that the company's decision would have no legal force. The regular proceedings were opened by M. de Gauther, who said he hoped that the government would take steps to prevent the lapsing of the Panama canal concession on February 22.

The chamber then discussed a motion offered by M. Leville, providing that all nembers of the chamber of deputies should have the right to attend the sittings of the investigating committee. The motion was negatived by a vote of 400 to 120.

M. Deroulde, in the course of the debate, took occasion to announce that he did not desire to be a member of the in-vestigating committee and would not allow the use of his name as a candidate. He ook this course, he said, because the ninority was inadequately represented on minority was insacquately represented on the list of the proposed members of the committee. M. Porquery de Boisserin pro-posed that the investigating committee be invested with the powers of an examining magistrate, but debate on the motion was adjourned until Saturday. The first vote for members of the investigating committee was then formally taken and resulted in the election of twenty-three republicans and three conservatives. The members of the left included Mm. Ricard, Leydet, Deluns-Montaud, Pelletan, Dumay and Deeasse. Upon the announcement of the result Vicomte de Villebois Mareuil, in behalf of the right, declined to take any fur-been manifested throughout Germany in the speech that the emperor would make in opening the reichstag to-day, and especially in his words concerning the army bill. The ceremony of opening the session took place in the Knights' hall of the Royal palace, and was performed with great pomp. Emperor William read his speech, opening the session. With the exception of his reference to Germany's friendly foreign relations the emperor's speech was coldly received by the evening papers. The National Zeitung complains that the speech contained noth-ing new in regard to the army bill. The ultra conservative Kreuz Zeitung says that an unprejudiced person can scarcely obtain from the speech any other impression than that the empire under the present econom-ic conditions is rather in need of economy than of new and large demands. The Vos country is unsatisfactory.

The army bill requires a capital expendi-ture of 66,000,000 marks and an annual ture of 66,000,000 marks and an annual expenditure of 64,000,000 marks. It is expected that the government will be obliged to adjust matters by modifying the di-mensions of their military scheme, or by the exaction of large contributions from the federal states to the imperial trea-

Long Search for a Kidnapped Boy-Accidentally Discovered in New York. NEW YORK, Nov. 22 .- For seven year Alexander Kearney, an actor, has searched in nearly every part of the United States for a little cousin, who was kidnapped when five years old from Montreal. The boy had never been seen or heard of by his friends or relatives until Mr. Kearney, by the most curious chance found him on Saturday selling newspapers in this city. The boy could not tell who kidnapped him. He had travelled with a man who had a bear, but recently ran away from him. Mr. Kearney sent Bertie to Montreal on the Committee of the New York Yacht Club-Little Change Necessary for the Race. NEW YORK, Nov. 22.-The letter from Lord Dunraven relative to a challenge for the America's cup, read before the members of the New York Yacht club special committee last night and approved, was made public to-day by ex-Commodore James D. Smith, one of the committee of five appointed to arrange the preliminaries for a match with the earl. The letter reads as follows: GALMORGAN, Nov. 7, 1892. Sir—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 20th of October, containing the reply of your com-mittee to my letter of the 16th of Septem-ber. On the general terms of the races we seem to be at one. With regard to your remark that "as to the details of sailing the match alluded to in your letter, we the match alluded to in your letter, we think they can be easily arranged after a challenge has been made in proper form by a qualified yacht club," I take it that the details would be arranged within the propositions made in former letters.

THE AMERICA'S CUP. Sunraven's Letter and the Reply of

With regard to your proviso "that no yacht of the specified rig, either now existing or under construction," I am quite agreeble to sail any such yacht without any penalty beyond taking or giving the ordinary trial allowances, according to the New York Yacht club's rules, and as my letter appears to have been ambiguous on the contrary, that the pledges of 1890 in regard to fostering it must be sacredly kept. Under the head of "assessment of property" the governor refers to the judges who decided against the state in the bank cases, which played such an imletter appears to have been ambiguous on this point, I may say it was under that rule of measurement and scale of time al-

In 1889 I suggested that in calculating time allowance the mean of the rules in use by the challenging and the challenged clubs should be taken, but the committee did not then see their way to committee the sail of the sai did not then see their way to agree, and I have no wish to reopen the question.

In respect to the final clause of your letter I stipulated that "should I win the cup, the club containing the custody of it should hold it open to a challenge on the same conditions as those under which I challenged." To this I adhere, as being only in accordance with my own ideas of fair play, and no yacht club would place itself in the position of having the power to expect, or of appearing to expect us, the party challenged, to terms different to those under which it challenged. But feeling that your committee with, I am sure, equal faith, believe in the absolute fairness of the conditions laid down in the deed of 1887, I had no intention of barring s challenge under these conditions. To make this perfectly clear I am quite willing to substitute for my former stipu lations, "It is to be understood and agreed that should I win the cup the club obtain ing the custody of it should hold it subject to a challenge on precisely similar terms to those under which I challenged, provided, lature consider the matter of the establishment of a soldiers' home tor confederate lways, that the club shall not refuse challenge in accordance with the conditions aid down in the deed of 1887, and is at liberty to make any arrangement mutually agreed upon, as provided for in the deeds of 1857, 1882 and 1887." I trust that no difference now exists b ween us, and on your cabling me that challenge on the terms of my former letter as herein modified, will be accepted, shall at once endeavor to arrange for formal challenge being sent through qualified yacht club.

I remain your faithfully, The committee decided to send the fo lowing reply: "If all reference to former and absolute deeds is omitted, the proposi-tion in your letter of the 7th of November will be satisfactory to the committee and will recommend the New York Yacht club to accept. (Signed) PAINE."

Ex-Commodore Smith said: "It looks as if there will be race. I think that Lord Dunraven wants to catch us napping on some little legal question when he quotes portions of the obsolete deed. The New York Yacht club is perfectly willing to challenge for the cup under the same conditions that Lord Dunraven wins it, if he happens to rece for and win it. We might happens to race for and win it. We might even grant him extra concessions now, provided he accepts a challenge under the deed of 1887." LONDON, Nov. 23 .- Lord Dunraven, who has just come to town, has received a press representative to-night. When asked about the reply of the New York Yacht club to his letter setting forth the terms on which he would agree to race for America's cup Lord Dunraven said: know nothing of the reply of the New York club. I have received no word yet, though I expested to hear from the New York club before now. The position, therefore, remains unchanged. I have nothing further to impart."

-The Amerscan Delegates. BRUSSELS, Nov. 22.-The International afternoon in the Marble Hall of the Palais des Academies. The proceedings of opening the conference were purely formal. M. GOVERNOR TILLMAN'S MESSAGE A Sharp Arraignment of South Caro lina Politics-The Educational Sys-tem a Humbug-Judicial Misinterpretation of Law-Prospects of Successful Prohibition Campaign.

[Special to the Associated Press.]

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 22 -The general ssembly of South Carolina convened at the state capitol at noon to-day. Governor Tillman, in his annual message, says that all claims against the state have been promptly met. Commenting on the assessment of property for taxation for the last thirteen years, during which time the total norease has been only $33,000,000, the governor says this indicates that we are a very improvident and non-progressive people, or else a large amount of property escapes taxation. He speaks of radical defects in the educational system, and says it is a humbug. He says that the South desire to patronize it on account of the "inhospitable atmosphere surrounding it."

The governor, however, does not favor the proposition to close the institution. He says, on the contrary, that the pledges of says, on the contrary, that the pledges of 1890 in regard to fostering it must be sa-oredly kept. Under the head of "assesslieve that any private citizen would have received the consideration given the banks and though I stand ready to accord all corporations equality before the law, I cannot remain silent while the laws are trampled under foot and see them accorded privileges which a private citizen feels he cannot obtain."

The message deals at length with the question of prohibition, which is a leading one in the state now. The governor points out some of the obstacles in the way of enforcing prohibition. Referring to the statutory prohibition in regard to spreeing in barrooms and selling whisky to minors, he says: "Our solicitors, our judges, our juries, sworn officers of the law, see and know these things, and yet they don't."
One difficulty he mentions is the probability of a desperate political struggle be-tween the prohibitionists and the autis two years hence, with an appeal to the negro as the balance of power.

The governor recommends that the legis-

Trains Soon to Run Into Union Depot-The Proposed Change of the Location of the Cedar Hill Depot-The Proposed Extension o Laurel and Myrtle Streets-Two Accidents on the New England

It is expected that on or about December the Derby passenger trains will be run ning into the southwest end of Union depot. A gang of workmen are engaged in preparing the foundation for the shed that is to be built between the tracks The plan is for the incoming trains to take one track and the ontward trains the other and the building of a shelter roof between these tracks.

The winter time table will go into effect n December 5. CYRTLE AND LAUREL STREETS EXTEN

At the meeting of the railroad commisners, which is to be held in this city will be taken in reference to the extension probably receive some discussion. The bridging for the extension of these two streets should take into consideration several other crossings. If Chapel street was to go over the railroad, then it would be necessary to depress the tracks and the life of the control of the cont be necessary to depress the tracks, and the same policy would be carried out at Grand avenue. On the other hand, it same policy would be carried out at Grand avenue. On the other hand, it might be thought best to have both streets go under the tracks, which would require the raising of the railroad. The plan for these two streets would affect the matter of bridges at Laurel and Myrtle streets. There should be some understood plan between the railroad and the city regarding these streets, then the bridges could come when it was considered necessary. Competent observers say that it would be best to wait until the Shore Line route into the city was changed, as it would be when the Fair Haven cut off was completed, before erecting a bridge at Laurel street. At present, in order to get the necessary bridge approaches it is thought necessary to change the channel of Mill river, but if the matter was delayed until the Shore Line road was changed, the change in the river might be obviated, thus saving considerable expense. According to the present plan the improvements for the Laurel street bridge would cost at least $60,000.

There is a great opposition to the moving of the Cedar Hill depot to Ferry street, as is talked of by the railroad people, owing to the change which is being made in the Shore Line route. The people of that section think the best location for it is on the lot just west of the railroad on the north side of James street and close to Blatchley avenue. This would be very handy for a large part of Fair Haven. Canorth side of James street and close to Blatchley avenue. This would be very handy for a large part of Fair Haven, Cedar Hill and the lower part of the city and for people in the vicinity of what is known as the Miller's garden section. It would be, of course, easily accessible by the horse cars likewise.

on the estate of Lieutenant William H. Sears. The proceedings have been instituted by ex-Postmaster Benjamin Euglish, through his attorney, William S. Pardee. The application for the appointment of a trustee over Mr. Sears' estate was filed a day or two ago for a hearing. Several months ago a suit was brought by Benjamin R. English against Mr. Sears to recover a debt of $250. The case was returned to the city court and on July 8 a udgment for the plaintiff to recover $201.60 was rendered. The writ of judgment was placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Pond, who vainly endeavored to find some property to attach in order to secure the judgment. He failed to find anything and then made a demand upon Mr. Sears personally. It is alleged that Mr. Sears refused to pay, but this is dis-puted by the defendant in the present pro-

Mr. Sears refused to pay, but this is disputed by the defendant in the present proceedings.

According to the claims of the defense, it seems that Mr. Sears was the secretary and treasurer of a company called the Little Giant company, which was engaged in the manufacture of levers. The company occupied a building belonging to Benjamin R. English, and some time after they had been engaged in the business their trade became dull and the company decided to close up its business. Before this decision was reached the company had become indebted to Benjamin R. English for the rent of the building they occupied. However, suit was brought against the company for the rent of the building, and the property of the company was attached to cover the amount of the claim. When the property was attached it is alleged that Mr. Sears, who is possessed of considerable wealth, held a conference with the plaintiff in the case, in which he agreed to pay the claim for rent when certain moneys which were due the company could be collected. This was accepted, and according to the attorney for the defendant the attachment was released and the keys turned over to Mr. Sears, and he thought the matter was temporarily settled. temporarily settled.
